

Adjunct Instructor of Political Science

The Department of Political Science at Franklin College invites applications for an Adjunct Instructor of Political Science during the fall 2023 semester. This is a part-time, temporary position in which the lecturer will be expected to teach one section of Introduction to American National Government beginning August 28, 2023. This is a 4 credit-hour course at the 100-level in Franklin College's curriculum with the expectation of holding one in-person office hour per week. There is also a possibility for renewal the following spring semester.

We provide a strong, active, and tailored liberal arts education through small class sizes and intentional relationships between students and their faculty mentors. Located about 20 miles from downtown Indianapolis, we support purposeful and practical academic experiences in and out of the classroom that leverage this location as students pursue personal, intellectual, and professional growth.

Candidates with successful teaching experience and a willingness to work in a private small liberal arts setting will receive the highest priority. Candidates who can demonstrate a dedication to teaching and the ability to contribute in meaningful ways to the College's continuing commitment to diversity will also be given preference. A minimum of a Bachelor's degree is required and graduate study in American politics or related field is also required. College-level teaching experience is preferred. Please see www.FranklinCollege.edu for more details.

Evaluation of applications will begin immediately and will continue until the position has been filled. Applicant transcripts will be requested at a later time during the recruitment process. Applicants should submit a complete application (electronic submissions preferred) including a cover letter, and contact information of three references via the following link: https://franklincollege-ubsru.formstack.com/forms/faculty_application
