how bad is it...

...to post answers on social media to questions that ask your pet's name, your first car, your place of birth, and your mom's maiden name?

A: These important questions are likely the security questions you were asked to answer for your bank account, your email account, and many other important accounts. Answering these types of questions could give outsiders the ability to retrieve passwords to your accounts. Don't become the next target by sharing answers to questions that are likely your security questions!

BOTTOM LINE: REALLY BAD!

how bad is it.....to post comments and pictures about your fabulous vacation prior to or while you are vacationing?

A: Posting these comments and pictures tells people that you are not home. If people know where you live and know your vacation plans, your home could be put at a higher risk for robbery. It is okay to post comments and pictures of your vacation, but do it after you return from vacationing.

GOOD STUFF

The Editor

My goal as the writer/editor Good Stuff was to make it an interesting publication and give readers an inside look into the events, programs and people we often take for granted.

Here are some of my favorite articles. You can read them online at www.21fss.com.

– Margie Arnold

A Salute to Veterans,

November 2001 - After 9/11, there was a tremendous surge of patriotism; countless veterans, regardless of age, wanted to re-enlist.

Staying overnight at Keystone Resort,

November 2001 – Article about Max and Edna Dercum, founders of Arapahoe Basin Ski Area and then Keystone Resort (location of our annual SnoFest!!! event).

Racing to the finish,

January 2002 – Edna Dercum, avid ski racer. She and her husband Max were honored our guests at the SnoFest!!! party on Feb. 22, 2002, at Keystone.

The 6th Photo Squadron Reunites at Pete,

August 1999 – We were delighted to meet members of the 6th Photographic Reconnaissance Squadron at their reunion in August of 1999.

The Delivery

In the spring of 1988, Donna Ruokonen, who managed publicity for Moral, Welfare, and Recreation (MWR) - which became Morale, Welfare, Recreation, and Services (MWRS) which became Services and Marketing - for the 21st Space Support Wing, was looking for someone who would be willing to deliver - to on-base housing - a single-page flyer advertising activities planned at Peterson Air Force Base. At that time, the housing area consisted of about five hundred homes, including about fifty mobile homes (at the eastern end of Mitchell Street). Leisure News was delivered every weekend. After a few years, a problem arose with the title, and the flyer was renamed Good Stuff. Donna moved back to Maryland in 1993, and the job of putting together the flyer became the responsibility of

Jon Brown. After Jon retired, Margie Arnold took over. Good Stuff grew to a glossy multi-page magazine that was issued monthly, then semi-monthly. The housing area grew and changed to include about six hundred fifty houses. At first, eleven-year-old Edward and his mother Roberta delivered the flyers. Later, Edward moved on, and his younger sister Rebecca took over the job. In the end, Roberta worked alone.

– Roberta M.

Edward was eleven and Rebecca was eight when the picture was taken.

The Marketing Director

When Services Squadron changed its slogan from "Doing Good Things for People" to "Combat Support and Community Service," retired publicity specialist Jon Brown started answering the phone "Still Doing Good Things for People."

In this same stubborn manner, I tried to keep the focus of GOOD STUFF magazine on the fun side of support no matter how grim things got from time to time. I recall the fun I had doing a cover photo of 21st FSS Deputy Director Dan Schofield in a strait jacket (He seemed so natural.)

and another cover photo of former squadron commander Col Romer being slimed (the green goo) by his children for a Kidz Day promotion. I remember dressing up for a photo in scuba gear and posing in front of pond 2 at the golf course to advertise a Leisure Travel trip. We had fun with GOOD STUFF with the intention of inspiring our readers to have some fun, too, at a Force Support Squadron program or activity.

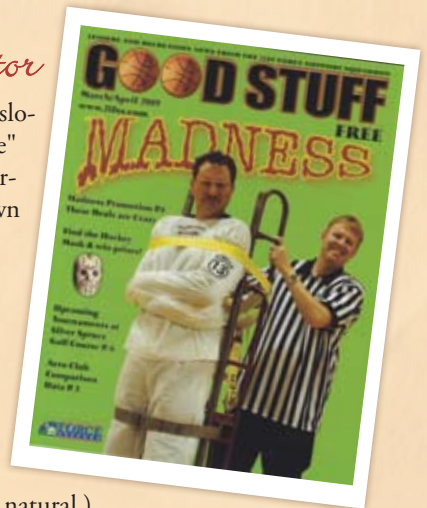

I saw GOOD STUFF go through significant changes over the years but, in my opinion, not always changes for the best. As use of the Internet, email, and social media eventually reduced everyone's attention span to about two sentences (or a sentence-like structure), GOOD STUFF had to drop feature articles in favor of flashy graphics, headlines, and lists. Now GOOD STUFF itself is being dropped. I really miss those feature articles and I thank writer/editor Margie Arnold for the craft and the love that she put into all of those articles. Now, I will really miss GOOD STUFF too.

Lastly, thanks to all the graphic specialists involved with GOOD STUFF over the years, especially Alison Ramerth, Marla Holbert, and Jon Brown. It was a good run.

– Warren Schroeder
