The June 2005 issue of Southern Lady magazine included an article featuring Samantha Barber and Paul Ebert '03 of Vestavia Hills. The couple made an old Southern custom part of their summer wedding plans. In a "White Bible" ceremony, intended to focus wedding festivities on the spiritual meaning of the union, various family members and friends each presented the bride with a symbolic flower for her bouquet, and her mother passed on to her the white Bible from her own wedding ceremony 30 years earlier.

Matt Lacey of Homewood and Thomas Martin of Warner Robins, Ga., have begun a website entitled the Center for Faith in Politics.

Laura Oldham of Huntsville recently appeared in the first major professional U.S. production of Moby Dick! The Musical. The show was staged at the Seaside Musical Theater in Daytona Beach, Fla., and was named "Florida's Best Professional Theater" by Florida Monthly magazine.

Kathryn Stewart Stokes of Huntsville has been selected for a national Daily Points of Light Award for her volunteer efforts in warning young people about the dangers of smoking, through a wellness program entitled "Up in Smoke." Her work was featured July 1, 2005, on The Points of Light Foundation's website. Stokes used the "Up in Smoke" program as a platform in her successful competition for the title of Miss Birmingham-Southern College 2005 and again in her bid for the Miss Alabama title.

Anne Terry of Molino, Fla., has been awarded a full-tuition scholarship, stipend, and graduate assistantship in musicology at Florida State University.
