EDITOR'S NOTE.

THIS edition of Mr. Browning's poems and plays makes no pretence to be critical. One of the most useful of the Shakespearian commentators, Mr. Theobald, has observed that the science of criticism, so far as it affects an editor, is reduced to three classes: "The emendation of corrupt passages, the explanation of obscure and difficult ones, and an inquiry into the beauties and defects of composition." Happily there are no corrupt passages in Browning, but undoubtedly there are some obscure and difficult ones, although the reader will often be surprised to find how frequently obscurity and difficulty will be dissipated and removed by a careful study of the context. So, too, Browning has his beauties and defects of composition; but neither his beauties or defects of composition, nor the obscurities and difficulties of particular passages, are here discussed or explained. All that has been done is to prefix (within square brackets) to some of the plays and poems a few lines explanatory of the characters and events depicted and described, and to explain in the margin of the volumes the meaning of such words as might, if left unexplained, momentarily arrest the understanding of the reader. That some easy words have been explained and some hard ones left alone is more than likely, since, on such a subject, no standard exists either of information or of ignorance. Mr. F. G. Kenyon has been kind enough to make the notes for "The Ring and the Book," but for the rest the Editor alone is responsible.

The edition is a complete one, containing all Mr. Browning's regularly published plays and poems, from Pauline (1833) to Asolando (1889). In the arrangement of the contents a chronological order has as far as possible been observed; but as Mr. Browning himself rearranged some of his smaller poems regardless of their dates of publication, his publishers have not felt themselves at liberty in these cases to adhere to chronology. In all the poems the poet's latest readings have been followed.

AUGUSTINE BIRRELL.

I DEDICATE THESE VOLUMES TO MY OLD FRIEND JOHN FORSTER, GLAD AND GRATEFUL THAT HE WHO, FROM THE FIRST PUBLICATION OF THE VARIOUS POEMS THEY INCLUDE, HAS BEEN THEIR PROMPTTEST AND STAUCHEST HELPER, SHOULD SEEM EVEN NEARER TO ME NOW THAN ALMOST THIRTY YEARS AGO.

AUTHOR'S PREFACE TO EDITION OF 1868.

THE poems that follow are printed in the order of their publication. The first piece in the series I acknowledge and retain with extreme repugnance, indeed purely of necessity; for not long ago I inspected one, and am certified of the existence of other transcripts, intended sooner or later to be published abroad: by forestalling these, I can at least correct some misprints (no syllable is changed) and introduce a boyish work by an exculpatory word. The thing was my earliest attempt at "poetry always dramatic in principle, and so many utterances of so many imaginary persons, not mine," which I have since written according to a scheme less extravagant and scale less impracticable than were ventured upon in this crude preliminary sketch—a sketch that, on reviewal, appears not altogether wide of some hint of the characteristic features of that particular dramatis persona it would fain have reproduced: good draughtsmanship, however, and right handling were far beyond the artist at that time.

AUTHOR'S PREFACE TO EDITION OF 1888.

I PRESERVE, in order to supplement it, the foregoing preface. I had thought, when compelled to include in my collected works the poem to which it refers, that the honest course would be to reprint, and leave mere literary errors unaltered. Twenty years' endurance of an eyesore seems more than sufficient: my faults remain duly recorded against me, and I claim permission to somewhat diminish these, so far as style is concerned, in the present and final edition where "Pauline" must needs, first of my performances, confront the reader. I have simply removed solecisms, mended the metre a little, and endeavoured to strengthen the phraseology—experience helping, in some degree, the helplessness of juvenile haste and heat in their untried adventure long ago.

The poems that follow are again, as before, printed in chronological order; but only so far as proves compatible with the prescribed size of each volume, which necessitates an occasional change in the distribution of its contents. Every date is subjoined as before.

PAULINE.

A FRAGMENT OF A CONFESSION.

1833.

[Browning was twenty years old when this Fragment was first published. Amongst the early works of great poets it must always occupy a distinguished place on account of the splendour and extreme beauty of many of its passages. As a rule, such early work is disappointing, or at all events insignificant and uninteresting, but "Pauline" is far from insignificant, and is always interesting. One sees a mind at work and a rich promise of a harvest to come. The story of the young Rossetti transcribing the whole poem from the copy in the British Museum is a literary anecdote always worth recording. Mr. Browning himself seems to have thought lightly of the poem, and in giving one of his own copies to Mr. Frederick Locker spoke of it as a literary curiosity only. In his later days he became a very severe critic of the life and conduct of Shelley, and did not care to be too frequently reminded of his boyish raptures for that strange and unaccountable being. It would be difficult and unprofitable to attempt to analyse "Pauline," the charm of which now consists in detached passages. It is the sole survivor of a great deal of Browning's youthful verse. In a copy recently sold, and formerly belonging to Mr. Crampon, is an autograph note from the Author, recording "that the poem was written in pursuance of a foolish plan I forget or have no wish to remember, involving the assumption of several distinct characters;" whilst in a copy of his own he wrote, "Only this crab remains of the shapely Tree of Life in my fool's paradise."]

V. A. XX.

[This introduction would appear less absurdly pretentious did it apply, as was intended, to a completed structure of which the poem was meant for only a beginning and remains a fragment.]

PAULINE, mine own, bend o'er me—thy soft breast
Shall pant to mine—bend o'er me—thy sweet
eyes,
And loosened hair and breathing lips, and arms
Drawing me to thee—these build up a screen

To shut me in with thee, and from all fear ;
 So that I might unlock the sleepless brood
 Of fancies from my soul, their lurking-place,
 Nor doubt that each would pass, ne'er to return
 To one so watched, so loved and so secured.
 But what can guard thee but thy naked love ?
 Ah dearest, whoso sucks a poisoned wound
 Envenoms his own veins ! Thou art so good,
 So calm—if thou shouldst wear a brow less
 light

For some wild thought which, but for me, were kept

From out thy soul as from a sacred star !
 Yet till I have unlocked them it were vain
 To hope to sing ; some woe would light on me ;
 Nature would point at one whose quivering lip Was bathed in her enchantments, whose brow burned

Beneath the crown to which her secrets knelt,
 Who learned the spell which can call up the dead,

And then departed smiling like a fiend
 Who has deceived God,—if such one should seek

Again her altars and stand robed and crowned Amid the faithful ! Sad confession first,
 Remorse and pardon and old claims renewed,
 Ere I can be—as I shall be no more.

I had been spared this shame if I had sat
 By thee for ever from the first, in place
 Of my wild dreams of beauty and of good,
 Or with them, as an earnest of their truth :
 No thought nor hope having been shut from
 thee,

No vague wish unexplained, no wandering aim

Sent back to bind on fancy's wings and seek Some strange fair world where it might be a law ;

But, doubting nothing, had been led by thee,
 Thro' youth, and saved, as one at length awaked

Who has slept through a peril. Ah vain, vain !

Thou lovest me ; the past is in its grave
 Tho' its ghost haunts us ; still this much is ours,

To cast away restraint, lest a worse thing
 Wait for us in the dark. Thou lovest me ;
 And thou art to receive not love but faith,
 For which thou wilt be mine, and smile and take

All shapes and shames, and veil without a fear

That form which music follows like a slave :
 And I look to thee and I trust in thee,
 As in a Northern night one looks alway
 Unto the East for morn and spring and joy.
 Thou seest then my aimless, hopeless state,
 And, resting on some few old feelings won
 Back by thy beauty, wouldst that I essay
 The task which was to me what now thou art :
 And why should I conceal one weakness more ?

Thou wilt remember one warm morn when winter

Crept aged from the earth, and spring's first breath

Blew soft from the moist hills ; the blackthorn boughs,

So dark in the bare wood, when glistening
 In the sunshine were white with coming buds,

Like the bright side of a sorrow, and the banks

Had violets opening from sleep like eyes.

I walked with thee who knew'st not a deep shame

Lurked beneath smiles and careless words which sought

To hide it till they wandered and were mute,
 As we stood listening on a sunny mound

To the wind murmuring in the damp copse,
 Like heavy breathings of some hidden thing

Betrayed by sleep ; until the feeling rushed
 That I was low indeed, yet not so low

As to endure the calmness of thine eyes.

And so I told thee all, while the cool breast
 I leaned on altered not its quiet beating :

And long ere words like a hurt bird's complaint

Bade me look up and be what I had been,

I felt despair could never live by thee :

Thou wilt remember. Thou art not more
 dear

Gladdens and the young earth is beautiful,
 Yet thy songs come not, other bards arise,
 But none like thee : they stand, thy majesties,
 Like mighty works which tell some spirit
 there

Hath sat regardless of neglect and scorn,
 Till, its long task completed, it hath risen
 And left us, never to return, and all
 Rush in to peer and praise when all in vain.
 The air seems bright with thy past presence
 yet,

But thou art still for me as thou hast been
 When I have stood with thee as on a throne
 With all thy dim creations gathered round
 Like mountains, and I felt of mould like
 them,

And with them creatures of my own were
 mixed,
 Like things half-lived, catching and giving
 life.

But thou art still for me who have adored
 Tho' single, panting but to hear thy name
 Which I believed a spell to me alone,
 Scarce deeming thou wast as a star to men !
 As one should worship long a sacred spring Scarce worth a moth's flitting, which long grasses cross,

And one small tree embowers droopingly—
 Joying to see some wandering insect won
 To live in its few rushes, or some locust
 To pasture on its boughs, or some wild bird
 Stoop for its freshness from the trackless air :
 And then should find it but the fountain-
 head,

Long lost, of some great river washing towns
 And towers, and seeing old woods which will live

But by its banks untrod of human foot,
 Which, when the great sun sinks, lie quivering
 In light as some thing lieth half of life
 Before God's foot, waiting a wondrous
 change ;

Then girt with rocks which seek to turn or stay

Its course in vain, for it does ever spread
 Like a sea's arm as it goes rolling on,
 Being the pulse of some great country—so
 Wast thou to me, and art thou to the world !

And I, perchance, half feel a strange regret
 That I am not what I have been to thee :
 Like a girl one has silently loved long
 In her first loneliness in some retreat,
 When, late emerged, all gaze and glow to view
 Her fresh eyes and soft hair and lips which bloom

Like a mountain berry : doubtless it is sweet
 To see her thus adored, but there have been Moments when all the world was in our praise,

Sweeter than any pride of after hours.
 Yet, sun-treader, all hail ! From my heart's
 heart

I bid thee hail ! E'en in my wildest dreams,
 I proudly feel I would have thrown to dust
 The wreaths of fame which seemed o'er-hanging me,
 To see thee for a moment as thou art.

And if thou livest, if thou lovest, spirit !
 Remember me who set this final seal
 To wandering thought—that one so pure as thou

Could never die. Remember me who flung
 All honour from my soul, yet paused and said

“ There is one spark of love remaining yet,
 “ For I have nought in common with him, shapes

“ Which followed him avoid me, and foul forms

“ Seek me, which ne'er could fasten on his mind ;

“ And though I feel how low I am to him,

“ Yet I aim not even to catch a tone

“ Of harmonies he called profusely up ;

“ So, one gleam still remains, although the last.”

Remember me who praise thee e'en with tears,
 For never more shall I walk calm with thee :
 Thy sweet imaginings are as an air,
 A melody some wondrous singer sings,
 Which, though it haunt men oft in the still eve,

They dream not to essay ; yet it no less
 But more is honoured. I was thine in shame,
 And now when all thy proud renown is out,

I am a watcher whose eyes have grown dim
With looking for some star which breaks on him
Altered and worn and weak and full of tears.

Autumn has come like spring returned to us,
Won from her girlishness ; like one returned
A friend that was a lover, nor forgets
The first warm love, but full of sober thoughts
Of fading years ; whose soft mouth quivers yet
With the old smile, but yet so changed and
still !

And here am I the scoffer, who have probed
Life's vanity, won by a word again
Into my own life—by one little word
Of this sweet friend who lives in loving me,
Lives strangely on my thoughts and looks and words,

As fathoms down some nameless ocean thing
Its silent course of quietness and joy.
O dearest, if indeed I tell the past,
May'st thou forget it as a sad sick dream !
Or if it linger—my lost soul too soon
Sinks to itself and whispers we shall be
But closer linked, two creatures whom the earth
Bears singly, with strange feelings unrevealed
Save to each other ; or two lonely things
Created by some power whose reign is done,
Having no part in God or his bright world.
I am to sing whilst ebbing day dies soft,
As a lean scholar dies worn o'er his book,
And in the heaven stars steal out one by one
As hunted men steal to their mountain watch.
I must not think, lest this new impulse die
In which I trust ; I have no confidence :
So, I will sing on fast as fancies come ;
Rudely, the verse being as the mood it paints.

I strip my mind bare, whose first elements
I shall unveil—not as they struggled forth
In infancy, nor as they now exist,
When I am grown above them and can rule—
But in that middle stage when they were full Yet ere I had disposed them to my will ;
And then I shall show how these elements
Produced my present state, and what it is.

I am made up of an intensest life,
Of a most clear idea of consciousness

Of self, distinct from all its qualities,
From all affections, passions, feelings, powers ;
And thus far it exists, if tracked, in all :
But linked, in me, to self-supremacy,
Existing as a centre to all things,
Most potent to create and rule and call Upon all things to minister to it ;
And to a principle of restlessness
Which would be all, have, see, know, taste, feel, all—

This is myself ; and I should thus have been

Though gifted lower than the meanest soul.

And of my powers, one springs up to save
From utter death a soul with such desire
Confined to clay—of powers the only one Which marks me—an imagination which Has been a very angel, coming not
In fitful visions but beside me ever
And never failing me ; so, though my mind
Forgets not, not a shred of life forgets,
Yet I can take a secret pride in calling
The dark past up to quell it regally.

A mind like this must dissipate itself,
But I have always had one lode-star ; now,
As I look back, I see that I have halted
Or hastened as I looked towards that star—
A need, a trust, a yearning after God :
A feeling I have analysed but late,
But it existed, and was reconciled
With a neglect of all I deemed his laws,
Which yet, when seen in others, I abhorred.
I felt as one beloved, and so shut in
From fear : and thence I date my trust in signs
And omens, for I saw God everywhere ;
And I can only lay it to the fruit
Of a sad after-time that I could doubt
Even his being—e'en the while I felt
His presence, never acted from myself,
Still trusted in a hand to lead me through
All danger ; and this feeling ever fought Against my weakest reason and resolve.

And I can love nothing—and this dull truth
Has come the last : but sense supplies a love
Encircling me and mingling with my life.

These make myself: I have long sought in vain
To trace how they were formed by circumstance,
Yet ever found them mould my wildest youth
Where they alone displayed themselves, converted
All objects to their use : now see their course !

They came to me in my first dawn of life
Which passed alone with wisest ancient books
All halo-girt with fancies of my own ;
And I myself went with the tale—a god
Wandering after beauty, or a giant
Standing vast in the sunset—an old hunter
Talking with gods, or a high-crested chief Sailing with troops of friends to Tenedos.
I tell you, nought has ever been so clear
As the place, the time, the fashion of those lives :

I had not seen a work of lofty art,
Nor woman's beauty nor sweet nature's face,
Yet, I say, never morn broke clear as those
On the dim clustered isles in the blue sea,
The deep groves and white temples and wet caves :
And nothing ever will surprise me now—
Who stood beside the naked Swift-footed,
Who bound my forehead with Proserpine's hair.

And strange it is that I who could so dream
Should e'er have stooped to aim at aught
beneath—

Aught low or painful ; but I never doubted :
So, as I grew, I rudely shaped my life
To my immediate wants ; yet strong beneath
Was a vague sense of power though folded up—

A sense that, though those shades and times were past,
Their spirit dwelt in me, with them should rule.

Then came a pause, and long restraint chained
down
My soul till it was changed. I lost myself,
And were it not that I so loathe that loss,

I could recall how first I learned to turn
My mind against itself ; and the effects
In deeds for which remorse were vain as for The wanderings of delirious dream ; yet thence
Came cunning, envy, falsehood, all world's wrong
That spotted me : at length I cleansed my soul.

Yet long world's influence remained ; and
nought
But the still life I led, apart once more,
Which left me free to seek soul's old delights, Could e'er have brought me thus far back to peace.

As peace returned, I sought out some pursuit ;
And song rose, no new impulse but the one
With which all others best could be combined.
My life has not been that of those whose heaven

Was lampless save where poesy shone out ;
But as a clime where glittering mountain-tops
And glancing sea and forests steeped in light
Give back reflected the far-flashing sun ;
For music (which is earnest of a heaven,
Seeing we know emotions strange by it,
Not else to be revealed,) is like a voice,
A low voice calling fancy, as a friend,
To the green woods in the gay summer time :
And she fills all the way with dancing shapes
Which have made painters pale, and they go on

Till stars look at them and winds call to them
As they leave life's path for the twilight world Where the dead gather. This was not at first,

For I scarce knew what I would do. I had
An impulse but no yearning—only sang.

And first I sang as I in dream have seen
Music wait on a lyrist for some thought,
Yet singing to herself until it came.

I turned to those old times and scenes where all

That's beautiful had birth for me, and made
Rude verses on them all ; and then I paused—
I had done nothing, so I sought to know

What other minds achieved. No fear out-broke

As on the works of mighty bards I gazed,
In the first joy at finding my own thoughts
Recorded, my own fancies justified,
And their aspirings but my very own.
With them I first explored passion and
mind,—

All to begin afresh ! I rather sought
To rival what I wondered at than form
Creations of my own ; if much was light
Lent by the others, much was yet my own.

I paused again : a change was coming—came :
I was no more a boy, the past was breaking
Before the future and like fever worked.

I thought on my new self, and all my powers Burst out. I dreamed not of restraint, but gazed

On all things : schemes and systems went and came,

And I was proud (being vainest of the weak)
In wandering o'er thought's world to seek some one

To be my prize, as if you wandered o'er
The White Way for a star.

And my choice fell

Not so much on a system as a man—
On one, whom praise of mine shall not offend,
Who was as calm as beauty, being such Unto mankind as thou to me, Pauline,— Believing in them and devoting all His soul's strength to their winning back to
peace ;

Who sent forth hopes and longings for their
sake,

Clothed in all passion's melodies : such first
Caught me and set me, slave of a sweet task,
To disentangle, gather sense from song :
Since, song-inwoven, lurked there words which seemed

A key to a new world, the muttering
Of angels, something yet unguessed by man.
How my heart leapt as still I sought and found
Much there, I felt my own soul had conceived,
But there living and burning ! Soon the orb
Of his conceptions dawned on me ; its praise

Lives in the tongues of men, men's brows are high

When his name means a triumph and a pride,
So, my weak voice may well forbear to shame
What seemed decreed my fate : I threw myself
To meet it, I was vowed to liberty,
Men were to be as gods and earth as heaven,
And I—ah, what a life was mine to prove !
My whole soul rose to meet it. Now, Pauline,
I shall go mad, if I recall that time !

Oh let me look back ere I leave for ever
The time which was an hour one fondly waits
For a fair girl that comes a withered hag !
And I was lonely, far from woods and fields,
And amid dullest sights, who should be loose
As a stag ; yet I was full of bliss, who lived
With Plato and who had the key to life ;
And I had dimly shaped my first attempt,
And many a thought did I build up on thought,

As the wild bee hangs cell to cell ; in vain,
For I must still advance, no rest for mind

'Twas in my plan to look on real life,
The life all new to me ; my theories
Were firm, so them I left, to look and learn Mankind, its cares, hopes, fears, its woes and joys ;

And, as I pondered on their ways, I sought
How best life's end might be attained—an end Comprising every joy. I deeply mused.

And suddenly without heart-wreck I awoke
As from a dream : I said "'Twas beautiful,
" Yet but a dream, and so adieu to it !"
As some world-wanderer sees in a far meadow Strange towers and high-walled gardens thick with trees,

Where song takes shelter and delicious mirth
From laughing fairy creatures peeping over,
And on the morrow when he comes to lie
For ever 'neath those garden-trees fruit-flushed

Sung round by fairies, all his search is vain.
First went my hopes of perfecting mankind,
Next—faith in them, and then in freedom's self
And virtue's self, then my own motives, ends

And aims and loves, and human love went last.

I felt this no decay, because new powers
Rose as old feelings left—wit, mockery,
Light-heartedness ; for I had oft been sad,
Mistrusting my resolves, but now I cast
Hope joyously away : I laughed and said “ No more of this ! ” I must not think : at length

I looked again to see if all went well.

My powers were greater : as some temple seemed

My soul, where nought is changed and incense rolls

Around the altar, only God is gone

And some dark spirit sitteth in his seat.

So, I passed through the temple and to me
Knelt troops of shadows, and they cried
“ Hail, king ! ”

“ We serve thee now and thou shalt serve no
more ! ”

“ Call on us, prove us, let us worship thee ! ”
And I said “ Are ye strong ? Let fancy bear
me

“ Far from the past ! ” And I was borne away,

As Arab birds float sleeping in the wind,
O'er deserts, towers and forests, I being calm.

And I said “ I have nursed up energies,
“ They will prey on me. ” And a band knelt low

And cried “ Lord, we are here and we will make

“ Safe way for thee in thine appointed life ! ”

“ But look on us ! ” And I said “ Ye will worship

“ Me ; should my heart not worship too ? ”
They shouted

“ Thyself, thou art our king ! ” So, I stood
there

Smiling—oh, vanity of vanities !

For buoyant and rejoicing was the spirit
With which I looked out how to end my
course ;

I felt once more myself, my powers—all
mine ;

I knew while youth and health so lifted me

That, spite of all life's nothingness, no grief
Came nigh me, I must ever be light-hearted ;
And that this knowledge was the only veil
Betwixt joy and despair : so, if age came,
I should be left—a wreck linked to a soul
Yet fluttering, or mind-broken and aware
Of my decay. So a long summer morn Found me ; and ere noon came, I had resolved

No age should come on me ere youth was spent,

For I would wear myself out, like that morn
Which wasted not a sunbeam ; every hour
I would make mine, and die.

And thus I sought
To chain my spirit down which erst I freed
For flights to fame : I said “ The troubled life
“ Of genius, seen so gay when working forth
“ Some trusted end, grows sad when all proves vain—

“ How sad when men have parted with truth's peace

“ For falsest fancy's sake, which waited first
“ As an obedient spirit when delight

“ Came without fancy's call : but alters soon,
“ Comes darkened, seldom, hastens to depart,

“ Leaving a heavy darkness and warm tears.
“ But I shall never lose her ; she will live

“ Dearer for such seclusion. I but catch
“ A hue, a glance of what I sing : so, pain

“ Is linked with pleasure, for I ne'er may tell “ Half the bright sights which dazzle me ;

but now
“ Mine shall be all the radiance : let them fade

“ Untold—others shall rise as fair, as fast !
“ And when all's done, the few dim gleams transferred,”—

(For a new thought sprang up how well it were,

Discarding shadowy hope, to weave such lays
As straight encircle men with praise and love,

So, I should not die utterly,—should bring One branch from the gold forest, like the knight

Of old tales, witnessing I had been there)—
“ And when all's done, how vain seems e'en

success—

"The vaunted influence poets have o'er men!
 "'Tis a fine thing that one weak as myself
 "Should sit in his lone room, knowing the
 words
 "He utters in his solitude shall move
 "Men like a swift wind—that tho' dead and gone,
 "New eyes shall glisten when his beauteous dreams
 "Of love come true in happier frames than his.
 "Ay, the still night brings thoughts like these, but morn
 "Comes and the mockery again laughs out
 "At hollow praises, smiles allied to sneers;
 "And my soul's idol ever whispers me
 "To dwell with him and his unhonoured song:
 "And I foreknow my spirit, that would press
 "First in the struggle, fail again to make
 "All bow enslaved, and I again should sink.

 "And then know that this curse will come on us,
 "To see our idols perish; we may wither,
 "No marvel, we are clay, but our low fate
 "Should not extend to those whom trustingly
 "We sent before into time's yawning gulf
 "To face what dread may lurk in darkness
 there.
 "To find the painter's glory pass, and feel
 "Music can move us not as once, or, worst,
 "To weep decaying wits ere the frail body
 "Decays! Nought makes me trust some love is true.
 "But the delight of the contented lowness
 "With which I gaze on him I keep for ever
 "Above me; I to rise and rival him?
 "Feed his fame rather from my heart's best blood,
 "Wither unseen that he may flourish still."

Pauline, my soul's friend, thou dost pity yet
 How this mood swayed me when that soul found thine,

When I had set myself to live this life,
 Defying all past glory. Ere thou camest
 I seemed defiant, sweet, for old delights
 Had flocked like birds again; music, my life,

Nourished me more than ever; then the lore
 Loved for itself and all it shows—that king
 Treading the purple calmly to his death,¹ While round him, like the clouds of eve, all dusk,

The giant shades of fate, silently fitting,
 Pile the dim outline of the coming doom;
 And him sitting alone in blood while friends
 Are hunting far in the sunshine; and the boy
 With his white breast and brow and clustering curls

Streaked with his mother's blood, but striving hard

To tell his story ere his reason goes.

And when I loved thee as love seemed so oft,
 Thou lovedst me indeed: I wondering searched

My heart to find some feeling like such love,
 Believing I was still much I had been.

Too soon I found all faith had gone from me,
 And the late glow of life, like change on clouds,

Proved not the morn-blush widening into day,
 But eve faint-coloured by the dying sun

While darkness hastens quickly. I will tell My state as though 'twere none of mine—
 despair

Cannot come near us—this it is, my state.

Souls alter not, and mine must still advance;
 Strange that I knew not, when I flung away
 My youth's chief aims, their loss might lead to loss

Of what few I retained, and no resource
 Be left me: for behold how changed is all!

I cannot chain my soul: it will not rest
 In its clay prison, this most narrow sphere:

It has strange impulse, tendency, desire,
 Which nowise I account for nor explain,

But cannot stifle, being bound to trust
 All feelings equally, to hear all sides:

How can my life indulge them? yet they live,
 Referring to some state of life unknown.

My selfishness is satiated not,
 It wears me like a flame; my hunger for ¹ Agamemnon.

All pleasure, howsoe'er minute, grows pain ;
 I envy—how I envy him whose soul
 Turns its whole energies to some one end,
 To elevate an aim, pursue success
 However mean ! So, my still baffled hope
 Seeks out abstractions ; I would have one joy,
 But one in life, so it were wholly mine,
 One rapture all my soul could fill : and this Wild feeling places me in dream afar
 In some vast country where the eye can see
 No end to the far hills and dales bestrewn
 With shining towers and towns, till I grow mad
 Well-nigh, to know not one abode but holds Some pleasure, while my soul could grasp
 the world,
 But must remain this vile form's slave. I look
 With hope to age at last, which quenching
 much,
 May let me concentrate what sparks it spares.

This restlessness of passion meets in me
 A craving after knowledge : the sole proof
 Of yet commanding will is in that power
 Repressed ; for I beheld it in its dawn,
 The sleepless harpy with just-budding wings,
 And I considered whether to forego
 All happy ignorant hopes and fears, to live,
 Finding a recompense in its wild eyes.
 And when I found that I should perish so,
 I bade its wild eyes close from me for ever,
 And I am left alone with old delights ;
 See ! it lies in me a chained thing, still prompt
 To serve me if I loose its slightest bond :
 I cannot but be proud of my bright slave.

How should this earth's life prove my only sphere ?
 Can I so narrow sense but that in life
 Soul still exceeds it ? In their elements
 My love outsoars my reason ; but since love
 Perforce receives its object from this earth
 While reason wanders chainless, the few truths
 Caught from its wanderings have sufficed to quell
 Love chained below ; then what were love, set free,

Which, with the object it demands, would pass
 Reason companioning the seraphim ?
 No, what I feel may pass all human love
 Yet fall far short of what my love should be.
 And yet I seem more warped in this than aught,
 Myself stands out more hideously : of old
 I could forget myself in friendship, fame,
 Liberty, nay, in love of mightier souls ;
 But I begin to know what thing hate is—
 To sicken and to quiver and grow white—
 And I myself have furnished its first prey.
 Hate of the weak and ever-wavering will,
 The selfishness, the still-decaying frame . . .
 But I must never grieve whom wing can waft Far from such thoughts—as now. Andromeda !¹
 And she is with me : years roll, I shall change,
 But change can touch her not—so beautiful
 With her fixed eyes, earnest and still, and hair
 Lifted and spread by the salt-sweeping breeze,
 And one red beam, all the storm leaves in
 heaven,
 Resting upon her eyes and hair, such hair,
 As she awaits the snake on the wet beach
 By the dark rock and the white wave just breaking
 At her feet ; quite naked and alone ; a thing
 I doubt not, nor fear for, secure some god
 To save will come in thunder from the stars.
 Let it pass ! Soul requires another change.
 I will be gifted with a wondrous mind,
 Yet sunk by error to men's sympathy,
 And in the wane of life, yet only so As to call up their fears ; and there shall come
 A time requiring youth's best energies ;
 And lo, I fling age, sorrow, sickness off,
 And rise triumphant, triumph through decay.

And thus it is that I supply the chasm
 'Twixt what I am and all I fain would be :
 But then to know nothing, to hope for nothing,
 To seize on life's dull joys from a strange fear Lest, losing them, all's lost and nought remains !

Wondering at all around, as strange beasts herd
 Together far from their own land : all wild-
 ness,
 No turf nor moss, for boughs and plants
 pave all,
 And tongues of bank go shelving in the lymph,
 Where the pale-throated snake reclines his
 head,
 And old grey stones lie making eddies there,
 The wild-mice cross them dry-shod. Deeper in !
 Shut thy soft eyes—now look—still deeper in !
 This is the very heart of the woods all round Mountain-like heaped above us ; yet even
 here
 One pond of water gleams ; far off the river Sweeps like a sea, barred out from land ; but one—
 One thin clear sheet has overleaped and wound
 Into this silent depth, which gained, it lies
 Still, as but let by sufferance ; the trees bend
 O'er it as wild men watch a sleeping girl,
 And through their roots long creeping plants out-stretch
 Their twined hair, steeped and sparkling ;
 farther on,
 Tall rushes and thick flag-knots have combined
 To narrow it ; so, at length, a silver thread,
 It winds, all noiselessly through the deep wood
 Till thro' a cleft-way, thro' the moss and stone,
 It joins its parent-river with a shout.

 Up for the glowing day, leave the old woods !
 See, they part like a ruined arch : the sky !
 Nothing but sky appears, so close the roots
 And grass of the hill-top level with the air—
 Blue sunny air, where a great cloud floats laden
 With light, like a dead whale that white birds pick,
 Floating away in the sun in some north sea.
 Air, air, fresh life-blood, thin and searching air,
 The clear, dear breath of God that loveth us,

Where small birds reel and winds take their delight !

Water is beautiful, but not like air :
 See, where the solid azure waters lie
 Made as of thickened air, and down below,
 The fern-ranks like a forest spread themselves
 As though each pore could feel the element ;
 Where the quick glancing serpent winds his
 way,
 Float with me there, Pauline!—but not like air.

Down the hill ! Stop—a clump of trees, see, set

On a heap of rock, which look o'er the far plain :

So, envious climbing shrubs would mount to rest
 And peer from their spread boughs ; wide they wave, looking

At the muleteers who whistle on their way,
 To the merry chime of morning bells, past all
 The little smoking cots, mid fields and banks
 And copses bright in the sun. My spirit wanders :

Hedgerows for me—those living hedgerows where

The bushes close and clasp above and keep Thought in—I am concentrated—I feel ;
 But my soul saddens when it looks beyond :
 I cannot be immortal, taste all joy.

O God, where do they tend—these struggling aims ?¹

What would I have ? What is this “sleep” which seems

To bound all ? can there be a “waking” point
 Of crowning life ? The soul would never rule ;
 It would be first in all things, it would have
 Its utmost pleasure filled, but, that complete,
 Commanding, for commanding, sickens it.

The last point I can trace is—rest beneath
 Some better essence than itself, in weakness ;
 This is “myself,” not what I think should be :
 And what is that I hunger for but God ?

My God, my God, let me for once look on
 thee

As though nought else existed, we alone !

And as creation crumbles, my soul's spark
Expands till I can say,—Even from myself
I need thee and I feel thee and I love thee.
I do not plead my rapture in thy works
For love of thee, nor that I feel as one
Who cannot die : but there is that in me
Which turns to thee, which loves or which should love.

Why have I girt myself with this hell-dress?
Why have I laboured to put out my life?
Is it not in my nature to adore,
And e'en for all my reason do I not Feel him, and thank him, and pray to him—
now?

Can I forego the trust that he loves me?
Do I not feel a love which only ONE . . .
O thou pale form, so dimly seen, deep-eyed !
I have denied thee calmly—dō I not
Pant when I read of thy consummate power,
And burn to see thy calm pure truths out-flash
The brightest gleams of earth's philosophy?
Do I not shake to hear aught question thee?
If I am erring save me, madden me,
Take from me powers and pleasures, let me
die

Ages, so I see thee ! I am knit round
As with a charm by sin and lust and pride,
Yet though my wandering dreams have seen all shapes

Of strange delight, oft have I stood by thee—
Have I been keeping lonely watch with thee
In the damp night by weeping Olivet,
Or leaning on thy bosom, proudly less,
Or dying with thee on the lonely cross,
Or witnessing thine outburst from the tomb.

A mortal, sin's familiar friend, doth here
Avow that he will give all earth's reward,
But to believe and humbly teach the faith,
In suffering and poverty and shame,
Only believing he is not unloved.

And now, my Pauline, I am thine for ever !
I feel the spirit which has buoyed me up
Desert me, and old shades are gathering fast ;
Yet while the last light waits, I would say much,
This chiefly, it is gain that I have said

Somewhat of love I ever felt for thee
But seldom told ; our hearts so beat together
That speech seemed mockery ; but when dark hours come,
And joy departs, and thou, sweet, deem'st it strange

A sorrow moves me, thou canst not remove,
Look on this lay I dedicate to thee,
Which through thee I began, which thus I end,
Collecting the last gleams to strive to tell
How I am thine, and more than ever now
That I sink fast : yet though I deeper sink,
No less song proves one word has brought me bliss,

Another still may win bliss surely back.
Thou knowest, dear, I could not think all calm,

For fancies followed thought and bore me off,
And left all indistinct ; ere one was caught
Another glanced ; so, dazzled by my wealth,
I knew not which to leave nor which to choose,

For all so floated, nought was fixed and firm.
And then thou said'st a perfect bard was one
Who chronicled the stages of all life,
And so thou bad'st me shadow this first stage.
'Tis done, and even now I recognize
The shift, the change from last to past—discern

Faintly how life is truth and truth is good.
And why thou must be mine is, that e'en now
In the dim hush of night, that I have done,
Despite the sad forebodings, love looks
through—

Whispers,—E'en at the last I have her still,
With her delicious eyes as clear as heaven
When rain in a quick shower has beat down mist,
And clouds float white above like broods of swans.

How the blood lies upon her cheek, outspread
As thinned by kisses ! only in her lips
It wells and pulses like a living thing,
And her neck looks like marble misted o'er
With love-breath,—a Pauline from heights
above,

Stooping beneath me, looking up—one look
As I might kill her and be loved the more.

So, love me—me, Pauline, and nought but me,
 Never leave loving! Words are wild and weak,
 Believe them not, Pauline! I stained myself
 But to behold thee purer by my side,
 To show thou art my breath, my life, a last Resource, an extreme want: never believe Aught better could so look on thee; nor seek Again the world of good thoughts left for mine!
 There were bright troops of undiscovered suns,
 Each equal in their radiant course; there were Clusters of far fair isles which ocean kept
 For his own joy, and his waves broke on them
 Without a choice; and there was a dim crowd
 Of visions, each a part of some grand whole:
 And one star left his peers and came with peace
 Upon a storm, and all eyes pined for him;
 And one isle harboured a sea-beaten ship,
 And the crew wandered in its bowers and plucked
 Its fruits and gave up all their hopes of home;
 And one dream came to a pale poet's sleep,
 And he said, "I am singled out by God,
 "No sin must touch me." Words are wild and weak,
 But what they would express is,—Leave me
 not,
 Still sit by me with beating breast and hair
 Loosened, be watching earnest by my side,
 Turning my books or kissing me when I Look up—like summer wind! Be still to me
 A help to music's mystery which mind fails
 To fathom, its solution, no mere clue!
 O reason's pedantry, life's rule prescribed!
 I hopeless, I the loveless, hope and love.
 Wiser and better, know me now, not when You loved me as I was. Smile not! I have Much yet to dawn on you, to gladden you.
 No more of the past! I'll look within no
 more.
 I have too trusted my own lawless wants,
 Too trusted my vain self, vague intuition—
 Draining soul's wine alone in the still night,
 And seeing how, as gathering films arose,
 As by an inspiration life seemed bare
 And grinning in its vanity, while ends
 Foul to be dreamed of, smiled at me as fixed
 And fair, while others changed from fair to foul
 As a young witch turns an old hag at night.

No more of this! We will go hand in hand,
 I with thee, even as a child—love's slave,
 Looking no farther than his liege commands.

And thou hast chosen where this life shall be:
 The land which gave me thee shall be our home,

Where nature lies all wild amid her lakes
 And snow-swathed mountains and vast pines begirt

With ropes of snow—where nature lies all bare.

Suffering none to view her but a race
 Or stunted or deformed, like the mute dwarfs
 Which wait upon a naked Indian queen.
 And there (the time being when the heavens are thick

With storm) I'll sit with thee while thou dost sing

Thy native songs, gay as a desert bird
 Which crieth as it flies for perfect joy,
 Or telling me old stories of dead knights;
 Or I will read great lays to thee—how she,
 The fair pale sister, went to her chill grave¹
 With power to love and to be loved and live:
 Or we will go together, like twin gods
 Of the infernal world, with scented lamp
 Over the dead, to call and to awake,
 Over the unshaped images which lie
 Within my mind's cave: only leaving all,
 That tells of the past doubt. So, when spring comes

With sunshine back again like an old smile,
 And the fresh waters and awakened birds
 And budding woods await us, I shall be Prepared, and we will question life once
 more,

Till its old sense shall come renewed by
 change,

Like some clear thought which harsh words
 veiled before;

Feeling God loves us, and that all which errs
 Is but a dream which death will dissipate.

And then what need of longer exile? Seek
 My England, and, again there, calm approach
 All I once fled from, calmly look on those ¹ Antigone.

The works of my past weakness, as one views
Some scene where danger met him long before.

Ah that such pleasant life should be but dreamed !

But whate'er come of it, and though it fade,
And though ere the cold morning all be gone,
As it may be ;—tho' music wait to wile,
And strange eyes and bright wine lure, laugh like sin

Which steals back softly on a soul half saved,
And I the first deny, decry, despise,
With this avowal, these intents so fair,—
Still be it all my own, this moment's pride !
No less I make an end in perfect joy.

E'en in my brightest time, a lurking fear
Possessed me : I well knew my weak resolves,
I felt the witchery that makes mind sleep
Over its treasure, as one half afraid

To make his riches definite : but now
These feelings shall not utterly be lost,
I shall not know again that nameless care
Lest, leaving all undone in youth, some new
And undreamed end reveal itself too late :
For this song shall remain to tell for ever
That when I lost all hope of such a change,
Suddenly beauty rose on me again.

No less I make an end in perfect joy,
For I, who thus again was visited,
Shall doubt not many another bliss awaits,
And, though this weak soul sink and darkness whelm,

Some little word shall light it, raise aloft,
To where I clearer see and better love,
As I again go o'er the tracts of thought
Like one who has a right, and I shall live
With poets, calmer, purer still each time,
And beauteous shapes will come for me to seize,
And unknown secrets will be trusted me
Which were denied the waverer once ; but now
I shall be priest and prophet as of old.

Sun-treader, I believe in God and truth
And love ; and as one just escaped from death
Would bind himself in bands of friends to feel
He lives indeed, so, I would lean on thee !
Thou must be ever with me, most in gloom

If such must come, but chiefly when I die,
For I seem, dying, as one going in the dark
To fight a giant : but live thou for ever,
And be to all what thou hast been to me !
All in whom this wakes pleasant thoughts of me
Know my last state is happy, free from doubt
Or touch of fear. Love me and wish me well.

RICHMOND :

October 22, 1832.

NOTE.

Je crains bien que mon pauvre ami ne soit pas toujours parfaitement compris dans ce qui reste à lire de cet étrange fragment, mais il est moins propre que tout autre à éclaircir ce qui de sa nature ne peut jamais être que songe et confusion. D'ailleurs je ne sais trop si en cherchant à mieux co-ordonner certaines parties l'on ne courrait pas le risque de nuire au seul mérite auquel une production si singulière peut prétendre, celui de donner une idée assez précise du genre qu'elle n'a fait qu'ébaucher. Ce début sans prétention, ce remuement des passions qui va d'abord en accroissant et puis s'apaise par degrés, ces élans de l'âme, ce retour soudain sur soi-même, et par-dessus tout, la tournure d'esprit tout particulière de mon ami, rendent les changemens presque impossibles. Les raisons qu'il fait valoir ailleurs, et d'autres encore plus puissantes, ont fait trouver grâce à mes yeux pour cet écrit qu'autrement je lui eusse conseillé de jeter au feu. Je n'en crois pas moins au grand principe de toute composition—à ce principe de Shakespeare, de Raphaëlle, de Beethoven, d'où il suit que la concentration des idées est due bien plus à leur conception qu'à leur mise en exécution : j'ai tout lieu de craindre que la première de ces qualités ne soit encore étrangère à mon ami, et je doute fort qu'un redoublement de travail lui fasse acquérir la seconde. Le mieux serait de brûler ceci ; mais que faire ?

Je crois que dans ce qui suit il fait allusion à un certain examen qu'il fit autrefois de l'âme, ou plutôt de son âme, pour découvrir la suite des objets auxquels il lui serait possible d'atteindre, et dont chacun une fois obtenu devait former une espèce de plateau d'où l'on pouvait apercevoir d'autres buts, d'autres projets, d'autres jouissances qui, à leur tour, devaient être surmontés. Il en résultait que l'oubli et le sommeil devaient tout terminer. Cette idée, que je ne saisis pas parfaitement, lui est peut-être aussi inintelligible qu'à moi.

PAULINE.

PARACELSUS.

1835.

[In his choice of Paracelsus, Browning exhibits that fondness for learned subjects and out-of-the-way reading which always characterised him. A Life of Paracelsus, did it only exist, would be a fascinating record of times and ideas now well-nigh inconceivable by us. Paracelsus (a name invented by himself to indicate that he was greater than Celsus) was the son of a doctor, and was born about 1490 in Einsiedeln, in the Swiss canton of Schwyz. He studied at Basel University, and was taught alchemy and chemistry by the renowned Trithemius. He also acquired in the mines in the Tyrol belonging to the Fugger family a practical acquaintance with minerals. His merit became that of an observer and an acquirer of facts. He wandered all over Europe, and even reached Samarcand. In 1526 he returned to Basel, and was appointed town physician, and lectured before the University. His behaviour was eccentric, and his conceit boundless. In 1528 he left Basel and resumed his wandering life. He died in Salzburg in 1541—some say he was murdered, and others that he drank himself to death. He has been credited with an enormous number of works explanatory of his system, which was a mixture of mysticism, charlatanism, and useful empiricism. He lectured both in Latin and German. Erasmus consulted him for the stone, and he is said to have cured the famous printer, Froben, of the gout. It is asserted on his behalf that he discovered zinc, hydrogen gas, and the tincture of opium. His asoth is sometimes supposed to have been electricity (see Encyclopædia Britannica, vol. xviii.). The poem sufficiently explains itself, and presents no difficulty to an intelligent reader.]

FESTUS, PARACELSUS, MICHAL.

Paracelsus. Come close to me, dear friends; still closer; thus!

Close to the heart which, though long time roll by

Ere it again beat quicker, pressed to yours,

As now it beats—perchance a long, long time—
At least henceforth your memories shall make Quiet and fragrant as befits their home.

Nor shall my memory want a home in yours—

Alas, that it requires too well such free

Forgiving love as shall embalm it there!

For if you would remember me aright,

As I was born to be, you must forget

All fitful strange and moody waywardness

Which e'er confused my better spirit, to dwell

Only on moments such as these, dear friends!

—My heart no truer, but my words and ways

More true to it: as Michal, some months
hence,

Will say, "this autumn was a pleasant time,"

For some few sunny days; and overlook

Its bleak wind, hankering after pining leaves.
Autumn would fain be sunny ; I would look
Liker my nature's truth : and both are frail,
And both beloved, for all our frailty.

Michal. Aureole !

Paracelsus. Drop by drop ! she is weeping like a child !

Not so ! I am content—more than content ;
Nay, autumn wins you best by this its mute
Appeal to sympathy for its decay :

Look up, sweet Michal, nor esteem the less Your stained and drooping vines their grapes
bow down,

Nor blame those creaking trees bent with their fruit,

That apple-tree with a rare after-birth
Of peeping blooms sprinkled its wealth among !

Then for the winds—what wind that ever raved
Shall vex that ash which overlooks you both,
So proud it wears its berries ? Ah, at length,

The old smile meet for her, the lady of this Sequestered nest !—this kingdom, limited
Alone by one old populous green wall
Tenanted by the ever-busy flies,
Grey crickets and shy lizards and quick spiders,

Each family of the silver-threaded moss—
Which, look through near, this way, and it appears

A stubble-field or a cane-brake, a marsh
Of bulrush whitening in the sun : laugh now !
Fancy the crickets, each one in his house,
Looking out, wondering at the world—or best,
You painted snail with his gay shell of dew,
Travelling to see the glossy balls high up
Hung by the caterpillar, like gold lamps.

Michal. In truth we have lived carelessly and well.

Paracelsus. And shall, my perfect pair !— each, trust me, born

For the other ; nay, your very hair, when
mixed,

Is of one hue. For where save in this nook
Shall you two walk, when I am far away,
And wish me prosperous fortune ? Stay :
that plant

Shall never wave its tangles lightly and softly,

As a queen's languid and imperial arm
Which scatters crowns among her lovers, but you

Shall be reminded to predict to me
Some great success ! Ah see, the sun sinks broad

Behind Saint Saviour's : wholly gone, at last !

Festus. Now, Aureole, stay those wandering eyes awhile !

You are ours to-night, at least ; and while you spoke

Of Michal and her tears, I thought that none Could willing leave what he so seemed to
love :

But that last look destroys my dream—that look

As if, where'er you gazed, there stood a star !
How far was Würzburg with its church and spire

And garden-walls and all things they contain,
From that look's far alighting ?

Paracelsus. I but spoke

And looked alike from simple joy to see
The beings I love best, shut in so well
From all rude chances like to be my lot,
That, when afar, my weary spirit,—disposed
To lose awhile its care in soothing thoughts
Of them, their pleasant features, looks and
words,—

Needs never hesitate, nor apprehend Encroaching trouble may have reached them
too,

Nor have recourse to fancy's busy aid
And fashion even a wish in their behalf
Beyond what they possess already here ;
But, unobstructed, may at once forget
Itself in them, assured how well they fare.

Beside, this Festus knows he holds me one Whom quiet and its charms arrest in vain,
One scarce aware of all the joys I quit,
Too filled with airy hopes to make account
Of soft delights his own heart garners up :
Whereas behold how much our sense of all That's beauteous proves alike ! When Festus learns

That every common pleasure of the world
Affects me as himself ; that I have just
As varied appetite for joy derived

From common things ; a stake in life, in short,
Like his ; a stake which rash pursuit of aims
That life affords not, would as soon destroy ;—
He may convince himself that, this in view,
I shall act well advised. And last, because,
Though heaven and earth and all things were at stake,

Sweet Michal must not weep, our parting eve.

Festus. True : and the eve is deepening, and we sit

As little anxious to begin our talk

As though to-morrow I could hint of it

As we paced arm-in-arm the cheerful town

At sun-dawn ; or could whisper it by fits

(Trithemius busied with his class the while)

In that dim chamber where the noon-streaks peer

Half-frightened by the awful tomes around ;

Or in some grassy lane unbosom all

From even-blush to midnight : but, tomorrow !

Have I full leave to tell my inmost mind ?

We have been brothers, and henceforth the
world

Will rise between us :—all my freest mind ?

'Tis the last night, dear Aureole !

Paracelsus. Oh, say on !

Devise some test of love, some arduous feat
To be performed for you : say on ! If night Be spent the while, the better ! Recall how oft

My wondrous plans and dreams and hopes and fears

Have—never wearied you, oh no !—as I

Recall, and never vividly as now,

Your true affection, born when Einsiedeln

And its green hills were all the world to us ;

And still increasing to this night which ends

My further stay at Würzburg. Oh, one day

You shall be very proud ! Say on, dear friends !

Festus. In truth ? 'Tis for my proper peace, indeed,

Rather than yours ; for vain all projects seem

To stay your course : I said my latest hope

Is fading even now. A story tells

Of some far embassy despatched to win

The favour of an eastern king, and how
The gifts they offered proved but dazzling dust
Shed from the ore-beds native to his clime.

Just so, the value of repose and love,
I meant should tempt you, better far than I
You seem to comprehend ; and yet desist
No whit from projects where repose nor love
Has part.

Paracelsus. Once more ? Alas ! As I foretold.

Festus. A solitary brier the bank puts forth
To save our swan's nest floating out to sea.

Paracelsus. Dear Festus, hear me. What is it you wish ?

That I should lay aside my heart's pursuit,
Abandon the sole ends for which I live,
Reject God's great commission, and so die !
You bid me listen for your true love's sake :
Yet how has grown that love ? Even in a long
And patient cherishing of the self-same spirit
It now would quell ; as though a mother hoped

To stay the lusty manhood of the child
Once weak upon her knees. I was not born Informed and fearless from the first, but shrank

From aught which marked me out apart from men :

I would have lived their life, and died their death,

Lost in their ranks, eluding destiny :

But you first guided me through doubt and
fear,

Taught me to know mankind and know myself ;

And now that I am strong and full of hope,

That, from my soul, I can reject all aims

Save those your earnest words made plain to
me,

Now that I touch the brink of my design,

When I would have a triumph in their eyes,

A glad cheer in their voices—Michal weeps,

And Festus ponders gravely !

Festus. When you deign

To hear my purpose . . .

Paracelsus. Hear it ? I can say

Beforehand all this evening's conference !

'Tis this way, Michal, that he uses : first,

*Fair usage policy applies

To grasp all, and retain all, and deserve
 By patient toil a wide renown like his.
 Now, this new ardour which supplants the old
 I watched, too ; 'twas significant and strange,
 In one matched to his soul's content at length
 With rivals in the search for wisdom's prize,
 To see the sudden pause, the total change ;
 From contest, the transition to repose—
 From pressing onward as his fellows pressed,
 To a blank idleness, yet most unlike
 The dull stagnation of a soul, content,
 Once foiled, to leave betimes a thriveless quest.
 That careless bearing, free from all pretence
 Even of contempt for what it ceased to seek—
 Smiling humility, praising much, yet waiving
 What it professed to praise—though not so
 well Maintained but that rare outbreaks, fierce and brief,
 Revealed the hidden scorn, as quickly curbed.
 That ostentatious show of past defeat,
 That ready acquiescence in contempt,
 I deemed no other than the letting go
 His shivered sword, of one about to spring
 Upon his foe's throat ; but it was not thus :
 Not that way looked your brooding purpose
 then.
 For after-signs disclosed, what you confirmed,
 That you prepared to task to the uttermost
 Your strength, in furtherance of a certain aim
 Which—while it bore the name your rivals gave
 Their own most puny efforts—was so vast
 In scope that it included their best flights,
 Combined them, and desired to gain one prize
 In place of many,—the secret of the world,
 Of man, and man's true purpose, path and fate.
 —That you, not nursing as a mere vague dream
 This purpose, with the sages of the past,
 Have struck upon a way to this, if all You trust be true, which following, heart and
 soul,
 You, if a man may, dare aspire to KNOW :
 And that this aim shall differ from a host
 Of aims alike in character and kind,
 Mostly in this,—that in itself alone
 Shall its reward be, not an alien end
 Blending therewith ; no hope nor fear nor joy

Nor woe, to elsewhere move you, but this pure
 Devotion to sustain you or betray :

Thus you aspire.

Paracelsus. You shall not state it thus :
 I should not differ from the dreamy crew
 You speak of. I profess no other share
 In the selection of my lot, than this
 My ready answer to the will of God
 Who summons me to be his organ. All Whose innate strength supports them shall succeed

No better than the sages.

Festus. Such the aim, then,
 God sets before you ; and 'tis doubtless need
 That he appoint no less the way of praise
 Than the desire to praise ; for, though I hold
 With you, the setting forth such praise to be
 The natural end and service of a man,
 And hold such praise is best attained when
 man

Attains the general welfare of his kind—
 Yet this, the end, is not the instrument.
 Presume not to serve God apart from such Appointed channel as he wills shall gather Imperfect tributes, for that sole obedience Valued perchance ! He seeks not that his altars

Blaze, careless how, so that they do but blaze.
 Suppose this, then ; that God selected you To KNOW (heed well your answers, for my faith

Shall meet implicitly what they affirm)
 I cannot think you dare annex to such Selection aught beyond a steadfast will,
 An intense hope ; nor let your gifts create Scorn or neglect of ordinary means
 Conducive to success, make destiny Dispense with man's endeavour. Now, dare you search

Your inmost heart, and candidly avow
 Whether you have not rather wild desire
 For this distinction than security
 Of its existence? whether you discern
 The path to the fulfilment of your purpose Clear as that purpose — and again, that purpose

Clear as your yearning to be singled out
 For its pursuer. Dare you answer this?

Paracelsus [after a pause]. No, I have nought to fear! Who will may know
 The secret'st workings of my soul. What though
 It be so?—if indeed the strong desire
 Eclipse the aim in me?—if splendour break
 Upon the outset of my path alone,
 And duskest shade succeed? What fairer seal
 Shall I require to my authentic mission
 Than this fierce energy?—this instinct striving Because its nature is to strive?—enticed
 By the security of no broad course,
 Without success forever in its eyes!
 How know I else such glorious fate my
 own,
 But in the restless irresistible force
 That works within me? Is it for human will
 To institute such impulses?—still less,
 To disregard their promptings! What should I Do, kept among you all; your loves, your cares,
 Your life—all to be mine? Be sure that God
 Ne'er dooms to waste the strength he deigns impart!
 Ask the geier-eagle why she stoops at once
 Into the vast and unexplored abyss,
 What full-grown power informs her from the
 first,
 Why she not marvels, strenuously beating
 The silent boundless regions of the sky!
 Be sure they sleep not whom God needs!
 Nor fear
 Their holding light his charge, when every hour
 That finds that charge delayed, is a new death.
 This for the faith in which I trust; and hence
 I can abjure so well the idle arts
 These pedants strive to learn and teach;
 Black Arts,
 Great Works, the Secret and Sublime, forsooth—
 Let others prize: too intimate a tie
 Connects me with our God! A sullen fiend
 To do my bidding, fallen and hateful sprites
 To help me—what are these, at best, beside God helping, God directing everywhere,
 So that the earth shall yield her secrets up,

And every object there be charged to strike,
 Teach, gratify her master God appoints?
 And I am young, my Festus, happy and free!
 I can devote myself; I have a life
 To give; I, singled out for this, the One!
 Think, think! the wide East, where all Wisdom sprung;
 The bright South, where she dwelt; the hopeful North,
 All are passed o'er—it lights on me! 'Tis
 time
 New hopes should animate the world, new light
 Should dawn from new revealings to a race
 Weighed down so long, forgotten so long;
 thus shall
 The heaven reserved for us at last receive Creatures whom no unwonted splendours blind,
 But ardent to confront the unclouded blaze
 Whose beams not seldom blessed their pilgrimage,
 Not seldom glorified their life below.
Festus. My words have their old fate and make faint stand Against your glowing periods. Call this,
 truth—
 Why not pursue it in a fast retreat,
 Some one of Learning's many palaces,
 After approved example?—seeking there Calm converse with the great dead, soul to
 soul,
 Who laid up treasure with the like intent
 —So lift yourself into their airy place,
 And fill out full their unfulfilled careers,
 Unravelling the knots their baffled skill
 Pronounced inextricable, true!—but left
 Far less confused. A fresh eye, a fresh hand, Might do much at their vigour's waning-
 point;
 Succeeding with new-breathed new-hearted
 force,
 As at old games the runner snatched the torch
 From runner still: this way success might be.
 But you have coupled with your enterprise,
 An arbitrary self-repugnant scheme
 Of seeking it in strange and untried paths.
 What books are in the desert? Writes the sea

The secret of her yearning in vast caves
 Where yours will fall the first of human feet?
 Has wisdom sat there and recorded aught
 You press to read? Why turn aside from her
 To visit, where her vesture never glanced,
 Now—solitudes consigned to barrenness
 By God's decree, which who shall dare impugn?
 Now—ruins where she paused but would not stay,

Old ravaged cities that, renouncing her,
 She called an endless curse on, so it came:
 Or worst of all, now—men you visit, men,
 Ignoblest troops who never heard her voice
 Or hate it, men without one gift from Rome
 Or Athens,—these shall Aureole's teachers be!
 Rejecting past example, practice, precept,
 Aidless 'mid these he thinks to stand alone:
 Thick like a glory round the Stagirite
 Your rivals throng, the sages: here stand you!
 Whatever you may protest, knowledge is not Paramount in your love; or for her sake
 You would collect all help from every source—
 Rival, assistant, friend, foe, all would merge
 In the broad class of those who showed her haunts,

And those who showed them not.

Paracelsus. What shall I say?
 Festus, from childhood I have been possessed
 By a fire—by a true fire, or faint or fierce,
 As from without some master, so it seemed,
 Repressed or urged its current: this but ill
 Expresses what would I convey: but rather
 I will believe an angel ruled me thus,
 Than that my soul's own workings, own high nature,

So became manifest. I knew not then
 What whispered in the evening, and spoke out
 At midnight. If some mortal, born too soon, Were laid away in some great trance—the ages

Coming and going all the while—till dawned
 His true time's advent; and could then record
 The words they spoke who kept watch by his bed,—

Then I might tell more of the breath so light
 Upon my eyelids, and the fingers light
 Among my hair. Youth is confused; yet never

So dull was I but, when that spirit passed,
 I turned to him, scarce consciously, as turns
 A water-snake when fairies cross his sleep.
 And having this within me and about me While Einsiedeln, its mountains, lakes and woods

Confined me—what oppressive joy was mine
 When life grew plain, and I first viewed the thronged,

The everlasting concourse of mankind!
 Believe that ere I joined them, ere I knew
 The purpose of the pageant, or the place
 Consigned me in its ranks—while, just awake,
 Wonder was freshest and delight most pure—
 'Twas then that least supportable appeared
 A station with the brightest of the crowd,
 A portion with the proudest of them all.
 And from the tumult in my breast, this only Could I collect, that I must thenceforth die
 Or elevate myself far, far above

The gorgeous spectacle. I seemed to long
 At once to trample on, yet save mankind,
 To make some unexampled sacrifice
 In their behalf, to wring some wondrous good
 From heaven or earth for them, to perish, winning

Eternal weal in the act: as who should dare
 Pluck out the angry thunder from its cloud,
 That, all its gathered flame discharged on
 him,

No storm might threaten summer's azure
 sleep:

Yet never to be mixed with men so much
 As to have part even in my own work, share
 In my own largess. Once the feat achieved,
 I would withdraw from their officious praise,
 Would gently put aside their profuse thanks.
 Like some knight traversing a wilderness,
 Who, on his way, may chance to free a tribe
 Of desert-people from their dragon-foe;
 When all the swarthy race press round to kiss
 His feet, and choose him for their king, and yield

Their poor tents, pitched among the sand-hills, for

His realm: and he points, smiling, to his scarf

Heavy with riveled gold, his burgonet

Gay set with twinkling stones—and to the East,

Where these must be displayed !

Festus. Good : let us hear
No more about your nature, “which first shrank

“From all that marked you out apart from men !”

Paracelsus. I touch on that ; these words but analyse

The first mad impulse : ’twas as brief as fond,
For as I gazed again upon the show,
I soon distinguished here and there a shape Palm-wreathed and radiant, forehead and full eye.

Well pleased was I their state should thus at
once

Interpret my own thoughts :—“Behold the clue

“To all,” I rashly said, “and what I pine “To do, these have accomplished : we are peers.

“They know and therefore rule : I, too, will know !”

You were beside me, Festus, as you say ;
You saw me plunge in their pursuits whom fame

Is lavish to attest the lords of mind,
Not pausing to make sure the prize in view
Would satiate my cravings when obtained,
But since they strove I strove. Then came a slow

And strangling failure. We aspired alike,
Yet not the meanest plodder, Tritheim counts
A marvel, but was all-sufficient, strong,
Or staggered only at his own vast wits ;
While I was restless, nothing satisfied,
Distrustful, most perplexed. I would slurover
That struggle ; suffice it, that I loathed myself
As weak compared with them, yet felt somehow

A mighty power was brooding, taking shape
Within me ; and this lasted till one night
When, as I sat revolving it and more,
A still voice from without said—“Seest thou
not,

“Desponding child, whence spring defeat and loss ?

“Even from thy strength. Consider : hast thou gazed

“Presumptuously on wisdom’s countenance, “No veil between ; and can thy faltering
hands,

“Unguided by the brain the sight absorbs,
“Pursue their task as earnest blinkers do

“Whom radiance ne’er distracted ? Live their life

“If thou wouldst share their fortune, choose their eyes

“Unfed by splendour. Let each task present
“Its petty good to thee. Waste not thy gifts

“In profitless waiting for the gods’ descent,
“But have some idol of thine own to dress

“With their array. Know, not for knowing’s
sake,

“But to become a star to men for ever ;
“Know, for the gain it gets, the praise it brings,

“The wonder it inspires, the love it breeds :
“Look one step onward, and secure that step !”

And I smiled as one never smiles but once,
Then first discovering my own aim’s extent,
Which sought to comprehend the works of
God,

And God himself, and all God’s intercourse
With the human mind ; I understood, no less,
My fellows’ studies, whose true worth I saw,
But smiled not, well aware who stood by me.
And softer came the voice—“There is a way :

“’Tis hard for flesh to tread therein, imbued
“With frailty—hopeless, if indulgence first “Have ripened inborn germs of sin to
strength :

“Wilt thou adventure for my sake and man’s,
“Apart from all reward ?” And last it breathed—

“Be happy, my good soldier ; I am by thee,
“Be sure, even to the end !”—I answered
not,

Knowing him. As he spoke, I was endued
With comprehension and a steadfast will ;
And when he ceased, my brow was sealed
his own.

If there took place no special change in me,
How comes it all things wore a different hue

Thenceforward?—pregnant with vast consequence,

Teeming with grand result, loaded with fate?
So that when, quailing at the mighty range
Of secret truths which yearn for birth, I haste
To contemplate undazzled some one truth,
Its bearings and effects alone—at once
What was a speck expands into a star,
Asking a life to pass exploring thus,
Till I near craze. I go to prove my soul!
I see my way as birds their trackless way.
I shall arrive! what time, what circuit first,
I ask not: but unless God send his hail
Or blinding fireballs, sleet or stifling snow,
In some time, his good time, I shall arrive:
He guides me and the bird. In his good
time!

Michal. Vex him no further, Festus; it is so!

Festus. Just thus you help me ever. This would hold

Were it the trackless air, and not a path
Inviting you, distinct with footprints yet
Of many a mighty marcher gone that way.
You may have purer views than theirs, perhaps,

But they were famous in their day—the proofs
Remain. At least accept the light they lend.

Paracelsus. Their light! the sum of all is briefly this:

They laboured and grew famous, and the fruits
Are best seen in a dark and groaning earth
Given over to a blind and endless strife
With evils, what of all their lore abates?

No; I reject and spurn them utterly
And all they teach. Shall I still sit beside Their dry wells, with a white lip and filmed eye,
While in the distance heaven is blue above
Mountains where sleep the unsunned tarns?

Festus. And yet
As strong delusions have prevailed ere now.
Men have set out as gallantly to seek
Their ruin. I have heard of such: yourself
Avow all hitherto have failed and fallen.

Michal. Nay, Festus, when but as the pilgrims faint
Through the drear way, do you expect to see
Their city dawn amid the clouds afar?

Paracelsus. Ay, sounds it not like some old well-known tale?

For me, I estimate their works and them
So rightly, that at times I almost dream
I too have spent a life the sages' way,
And tread once more familiar paths. Per-
chance

I perished in an arrogant self-reliance
Ages ago; and in that act, a prayer
For one more chance went up so earnest, so
Instinct with better light let in by death,
That life was blotted out—not so completely
But scattered wrecks enough of it remain,
Dim memories, as now, when once more seems

The goal in sight again. All which, indeed,
Is foolish, and only means—the flesh I wear,

The earth I tread, are not more clear to me
Than my belief, explained to you or no.

Festus. And who am I, to challenge and dispute

That clear belief? I will divest all fear.

Michal. Then Aureole is God's commissary! he shall

Be great and grand—and all for us!

Paracelsus. No, sweet!

Not great and grand. If I can serve mankind
'Tis well; but there our intercourse must end:
I never will be served by those I serve.

Festus. Look well to this; here is a plague-spot, here,

Disguise it how you may! 'Tis true, you utter

This scorn while by our side and loving us;
'Tis but a spot as yet: but it will break
Into a hideous blotch if overlooked.

How can that course be safe which from the
first

Produces carelessness to human love?
It seems you have abjured the helps which
men

Who overpass their kind, as you would do,
Have humbly sought; I dare not thoroughly probe

This matter, lest I learn too much. Let be
That popular praise would little instigate
Your efforts, nor particular approval

Reward you ; put reward aside ; alone
 You shall go forth upon your arduous task,
 None shall assist you, none partake your toil,
 None share your triumph : still you must retain
 Some one to cast your glory on, to share
 Your rapture with. Were I elect like you,
 I would encircle me with love, and raise
 A rampart of my fellows ; it should seem Impossible for me to fail, so watched By gentle friends who made my cause their
 own.

They should ward off fate's envy—the great gift,

Extravagant when claimed by me alone,
 Being so a gift to them as well as me.
 If danger daunted me or ease seduced,
 How calmly their sad eyes should gaze reproach !

Michal. O Aureole, can I sing when all
 alone,

Without first calling, in my fancy, both
 To listen by my side—even I ! And you ?
 Do you not feel this ? Say that you feel this !

Paracelsus. I feel 'tis pleasant that my aims, at length

Allowed their weight, should be supposed to need

A further strengthening in these goodly helps !
 My course allures for its own sake, its sole
 Intrinsic worth ; and ne'er shall boat of mine
 Adventure forth for gold and apes at once.

Your sages say, " if human, therefore weak : "

If weak, more need to give myself entire
 To my pursuit ; and by its side, all else . . .

No matter ! I deny myself but little
 In waiving all assistance save its own.

Would there were some real sacrifice to
 make !

Your friends the sages threw their joys away,
 While I must be content with keeping mine.

Festus. But do not cut yourself from human weal !

You cannot thrive—a man that dares affect
 To spend his life in service to his kind
 For no reward of theirs, unbound to them
 By any tie ; nor do so, Aureole ! No—
 There are strange punishments for such. Give up

(Although no visible good flow thence) some part

Of the glory to another ; hiding thus,
 Even from yourself, that all is for yourself.
 Say, say almost to God—" I have done all
 " For her, not for myself ! "

Paracelsus. And who but lately

Was to rejoice in my success like you ?
 Whom should I love but both of you ?

Festus. I know not :

But know this, you, that 'tis no will of mine
 You should abjure the lofty claims you make ;
 And this the cause—I can no longer seek
 To overlook the truth, that there would be
 A monstrous spectacle upon the earth,
 Beneath the pleasant sun, among the trees :
 —A being knowing not what love is. Hear
 me !

You are endowed with faculties which bear
 Annexed to them as 'twere a dispensation
 To summon meaner spirits to do their will
 And gather round them at their need ; inspiring

Such with a love themselves can never feel,
 Passionless 'mid their passionate votaries.

I know not if you joy in this or no,
 Or ever dream that common men can live
 On objects you prize lightly, but which make Their heart's sole treasure : the affections seem

Beauteous at most to you, which we must taste

Or die : and this strange quality accords,
 I know not how, with you ; sits well upon
 That luminous brow, though in another it scowls

An eating brand, a shame. I dare not judge you.

The rules of right and wrong thus set aside,
 There's no alternative—I own you one
 Of higher order, under other laws
 Than bind us ; therefore, curb not one bold glance !

'Tis best aspire. Once mingled with us
 all . . .

Michal. Stay with us, Aureole ! cast those hopes away,
 And stay with us ! An angel warns me, too,

Man should be humble ; you are very proud :
And God, dethroned, has doleful plagues for such !

—Warns me to have in dread no quick repulse,

No slow defeat, but a complete success :

You will find all you seek, and perish so !

Paracelsus [after a pause]. Are these the barren firstfruits of my quest ?

Is love like this the natural lot of all ?

How many years of pain might one such hour
O'erbalance ? Dearest Michal, dearest

Festus,

What shall I say, if not that I desire

To justify your love ; and will, dear friends,

In swerving nothing from my first resolves.

See, the great moon ! and ere the mottled owls

Were wide awake, I was to go. It seems

You acquiesce at last in all save this—

If I am like to compass what I seek

By the untried career I choose ; and then,

If that career, making but small account

Of much of life's delight, will yet retain

Sufficient to sustain my soul : for thus

I understand these fond fears just expressed.

And first ; the lore you praise and I neglect,

The labours and the precepts of old time,

I have not lightly disesteemed. But, friends,

Truth is within ourselves ; it takes no rise

From outward things, whate'er you may believe.

There is an inmost centre in us all,

Where truth abides in fulness ; and around,

Wall upon wall, the gross flesh hems it in,

This perfect, clear perception—which is truth.

A baffling and perverting carnal mesh

Binds it, and makes all error : and to KNOW

Rather consists in opening out a way

Whence the imprisoned splendour may escape,

Than in effecting entry for a light

Supposed to be without. Watch narrowly

The demonstration of a truth, its birth,

And you trace back the effluence to its spring

And source within us ; where broods radiance vast,

To be elicited ray by ray, as chance

Shall favour : chance—for hitherto, your sage

Even as he knows not how those beams are born,

As little knows he what unlocks their fount :

And men have oft grown old among their books

To die case-hardened in their ignorance,

Whose careless youth had promised what long years

Of unremitted labour ne'er performed :

While, contrary, it has chanced some idle
day,

To autumn loiterers just as fancy-free

As the midges in the sun, gives birth at last

To truth—produced mysteriously as cape

Of cloud grown out of the invisible air.

Hence, may not truth be lodged alike in all,

The lowest as the highest ? some slight film

The interposing bar which binds a soul

And makes the idiot, just as makes the sage

Some film removed, the happy outlet whence

Truth issues proudly ? See this soul of ours !

How it strives weakly in the child, is loosed

In manhood, clogged by sickness, back compelled

By age and waste, set free at last by death :

Why is it, flesh enthrals it or enthrones ?

What is this flesh we have to penetrate ?

Oh, not alone when life flows still, do truth

And power emerge, but also when strange
chance

Ruffles its current ; in unused conjuncture,

When sickness breaks the body—hunger, watching,

Excess or languor—oftenest death's approach,

Peril, deep joy or woe. One man shall crawl

Through life surrounded with all stirring things,

Unmoved ; and he goes mad : and from the wreck

Of what he was, by his wild talk alone,

You first collect how great a spirit he hid.

Therefore, set free the soul alike in all,

Discovering the true laws by which the flesh

Accloys the spirit ! We may not be doomed

To cope with seraphs, but at least the rest

Shall cope with us. Make no more giants,
God,

But elevate the race at once ! We ask

All I have clearly gained ; for once excluding
A brilliant future to supply and perfect
All half-gains and conjectures and crude hopes :

And all because a fortune-teller willis
His credulous seekers should inscribe thus
much

Their previous life's attainment, in his roll,
Before his promised secret, as he vaunts,
Make up the sum : and here amid the scrawled
Uncouth recordings of the dupes of this Old arch-genethliac,¹ lie my life's results !

A few blurred characters suffice to note
A stranger wandered long through many lands
And reaped the fruit he coveted in a few Discoveries, as appended here and there,
The fragmentary produce of much toil,
In a dim heap, fact and surmise together
Confusedly massed as when acquired ; he was Intent on gain to come too much to stay
And scrutinise the little gained : the whole Slipt in the blank space 'twixt an idiot's gibber

And a mad lover's ditty—there it lies.

And yet those blottings chronicle a life—
A whole life, and my life ! Nothing to do,
No problem for the fancy, but a life
Spent and decided, wasted past retrieve Or worthy beyond peer. Stay, what does
this

Remembrancer set down concerning "life" ?
" 'Time fleets, youth fades, life is an empty
dream,'

" It is the echo of time ; and he whose heart
" Beat first beneath a human heart, whose speech

" Was copied from a human tongue, can never

" Recall when he was living yet knew not this.

" Nevertheless long seasons pass o'er him

" Till some one hour's experience shows what nothing,

" It seemed, could clearer show ; and ever after,

" An altered brow and eye and gait and
speech

" Attest that now he knows the adage true,

" 'Time fleets, youth fades, life is an empty
dream.' "

Ay, my brave chronicler, and this same hour
As well as any : now, let my time be !

Now ! I can go no farther ; well or ill,
'Tis done. I must desist and take my chance.
I cannot keep on the stretch : 'tis no back-shrinking—

For let but some assurance beam, some close
To my toil grow visible, and I proceed
At any price, though closing it, I die.
Else, here I pause. The old Greek's prophecy
Is like to turn out true : " I shall not quit
" His chamber till I know what I desire !"
Was it the light wind sang it o'er the sea ?

An end, a rest ! strange how the notion, once
Encountered, gathers strength by moments !

Rest !

Where has it kept so long ? this throbbing
brow

To cease, this beating heart to cease, all cruel
And gnawing thoughts to cease ! To dare let down

My strung, so high-strung brain, to dare unnerve

My harassed o'ertasked frame, to know my
place,

My portion, my reward, even my failure, Assigned, made sure for ever ! To lose myself

Among the common creatures of the world,
To draw some gain from having been a man,
Neither to hope nor fear, to live at length !

Even in failure, rest ! But rest in truth
And power and recompense . . . I hoped that once !

What, sunk insensibly so deep ? Has all
Been undergone for this ? This the request
My labour qualified me to present
With no fear of refusal ? Had I gone
Slightly through my task, and so judged fit

To moderate my hopes ; nay, were it now
My sole concern to exculpate myself,
End things or mend them,—why, I could not choose

A humbler mood to wait for the event !
No, no, there needs not this ; no, after all,
At worst I have performed my share of the task :

The rest is God's concern ; mine, merely this,
To know that I have obstinately held
By my own work. The mortal whose brave foot

Has trod, unscathed, the temple-court so far
That he descries at length the shrine of shrines,

Must let no sneering of the demons' eyes,
Whom he could pass unquailing, fasten now
Upon him, fairly past their power ; no, no—
He must not stagger, faint, fall down at last,
Having a charm to baffle them ; behold,
He bares his front : a mortal ventures thus Serene amid the echoes, beams and glooms !
If he be priest henceforth, if he wake up
The god of the place to ban and blast him
there,

Both well ! What's failure or success to me ?
I have subdued my life to the one purpose
Whereto I ordained it ; there alone I spy,
No doubt, that way I may be satisfied.

Yes, well have I subdued my life ! beyond
The obligation of my strictest vow,
The contemplation of my wildest bond,
Which gave my nature freely up, in truth,
But in its actual state, consenting fully
All passionate impulses its soil was formed
To rear, should wither ; but foreseeing not
The tract, doomed to perpetual barrenness,
Would seem one day, remembered as it was,
Beside the parched sand-waste which now it is,

Already strewn with faint blooms, viewless
then.

I ne'er engaged to root up loves so frail
I felt them not ; yet now, 'tis very plain
Some soft spots had their birth in me at first,
If not love, say, like love : there was a time
When yet this wolfish hunger after knowledge

Set not remorselessly love's claims aside.
This heart was human once, or why recall Einsiedeln, now, and Würzburg which the Mayne

Forsakes her course to fold as with an arm ?

And Festus—my poor Festus, with his praise
And counsel and grave fears—where is he now
With the sweet maiden, long ago his bride ?
I surely loved them—that last night, at least,
When we . . . gone ! gone ! the better. I am saved

The sad review of an ambitious youth
Choked by vile lusts, unnoticed in their birth,
But let grow up and wind around a will Till action was destroyed. No, I have gone
Purging my path successively of aught
Wearing the distant likeness of such lusts.
I have made life consist of one idea :
Ere that was master, up till that was born,
I bear a memory of a pleasant life
Whose small events I treasure ; till one morn
I ran o'er the seven little grassy fields,
Startling the flocks of nameless birds, to tell
Poor Festus, leaping all the while for joy,
To leave all trouble for my future plans,
Since I had just determined to become
The greatest and most glorious man on earth.
And since that morn all life has been forgotten :

All is one day, one only step between
The outset and the end : one tyrant all-
Absorbing aim fills up the interspace,
One vast unbroken chain of thought, kept up
Through a career apparently adverse
To its existence : life, death, light and shadow,

The shows of the world, were bare receptacles
Or indices of truth to be wrung thence,
Not ministers of sorrow or delight :

A wondrous natural robe in which she went.
For some one truth would dimly beacon me
From mountains rough with pines, and flit and wink

O'er dazzling wastes of frozen snow, and tremble

Into assured light in some branching mine
Where ripens, swathed in fire, the liquid gold—

And all the beauty, all the wonder fell
On either side the truth, as its mere robe ;
I see the robe now—then I saw the form.
So far, then, I have voyaged with success,
So much is good, then, in this working sea
Which parts me from that happy strip of land :

But o'er that happy strip a sun shone, too !
And fainter gleams it as the waves grow
rough,

And still more faint as the sea widens ; last
I sicken on a dead gulf streaked with light
From its own putrefying depths alone.
Then, God was pledged to take me by the
hand ;

Now, any miserable juggle can bid
My pride depart. All is alike at length :
God may take pleasure in confounding pride
By hiding secrets with the scorned and base—
I am here, in short : so little have I paused Throughout ! I never glanced behind to
know

If I had kept my primal light from wane,
And thus insensibly am—what I am !

Oh, bitter ; very bitter !

And more bitter,
To fear a deeper curse, an inner ruin,
Plague beneath plague, the last turning the
first

To light beside its darkness. Let me weep
My youth and its brave hopes, all dead and
gone,

In tears which burn ! Would I were sure to win

Some startling secret in their stead, a tincture
Of force to flush old age with youth, or breed
Gold, or imprison moonbeams till they
change

To opal shafts !—only that, hurling it
Indignant back, I might convince myself
My aims remained supreme and pure as ever !
Even now, why not desire, for mankind's
sake,

That if I fail, some fault may be the cause,
That, though I sink, another may succeed ?
O God, the despicable heart of us !
Shut out this hideous mockery from my heart !

'Twas politic in you, Aureole, to reject
Single rewards, and ask them in the lump :
At all events, once launched, to hold straight
on :

For now 'tis all or nothing. Mighty profit
Your gains will bring if they stop short of such Full consummation ! As a man, you had
A certain share of strength ; and that is gone
Already in the getting these you boast.
Do not they seem to laugh, as who should
say—

“ Great master, we are here indeed, dragged
forth

“ To light ; this hast thou done : be glad !
Now, seek

“ The strength to use which thou hast spent in getting ! ”

And yet 'tis much, surely 'tis very much,
Thus to have emptied youth of all its gifts,
To feed a fire meant to hold out till morn
Arrived with inexhaustible light ; and lo,
I have heaped up my last, and day dawns
not !

And I am left with grey hair, faded hands,
And furrowed brow. Ha, have I, after all,
Mistaken the wild nursling of my breast ?
Knowledge it seemed, and power, and recompense !

Was she who glided through my room of nights,

Who laid my head on her soft knees and smoothed

The damp locks,—whose sly soothings just began

When my sick spirit craved repose awhile—
God ! was I fighting sleep off for death's
sake ?

God ! Thou art mind ! Unto the master-
mind

Mind should be precious. Spare my mind
alone !

All else I will endure ; if, as I stand
Here, with my gains, thy thunder smite me
down,

I bow me ; 'tis thy will, thy righteous will
I o'erpass life's restrictions, and I die ;

And if no trace of my career remain,
 Save a thin corpse at pleasure of the wind
 In these bright chambers level with the air,
 See thou to it ! But if my spirit fail,
 My once proud spirit forsake me at the last,
 Hast thou done well by me ? So do not thou !
 Crush not my mind, dear God, though I be crushed !

Hold me before the frequency of thy seraphs
 And say—"I crushed him, lest he should disturb

"My law. Men must not know their strength : behold

"Weak and alone, how he had raised himself!"

But if delusions trouble me, and thou,
 Not seldom felt with rapture in thy help
 Throughout my toils and wanderings, dost intend

To work man's welfare through my weak endeavour,

To crown my mortal forehead with a beam
 From thine own blinding crown, to smile, and guide

This puny hand and let the work so wrought
 Be styled my work,—hear me ! I covet not
 An influx of new power, an angel's soul :

It were no marvel then—but I have reached
 Thus far, a man ; let me conclude, a man !
 Give but one hour of my first energy,
 Of that invincible faith, but only one !

That I may cover with an eagle-glance
 The truths I have, and spy some certain way
 To mould them, and completing them, possess !

Yet God is good : I started sure of that,
 And why dispute it now ? I'll not believe
 But some undoubted warning long ere this Had reached me : a fire-labarum¹ was not deemed

Too much for the old founder of these walls.
 Then, if my life has not been natural,
 It has been monstrous : yet, till late, my course
 So ardently engrossed me, that delight,
 A pausing and reflecting joy, 'tis plain,

¹ The sacred standard used by Constantine after his conversion.

Could find no place in it. True, I am worn ;
 But who clothes summer, who is life itself ?
 God, that created all things, can renew !

And then, though after-life to please me now
 Must have no likeness to the past, what hinders
 Reward from springing out of toil, as changed
 As bursts the flower from earth and root and stalk ?

What use were punishment, unless some sin
 Be first detected ? let me know that first !
 No man could ever offend as I have done . . .

[A voice from within.]

I hear a voice, perchance I heard
 Long ago, but all too low,
 So that scarce a care it stirred
 If the voice were real or no :
 I heard it in my youth when first
 The waters of my life outburst :
 But, now their stream ebbs faint, I hear

That voice, still low, but fatal-clear—
 As if all poets, God ever meant
 Should save the world, and therefore lent
 Great gifts to, but who, proud, refused
 To do his work, or lightly used
 Those gifts, or failed through weak endeavour,

So, mourn cast off by him for ever,—
 As if these leaned in airy ring
 To take me ; this the song they sing.

"Lost, lost ! yet come,
 With our wan troop make thy home.
 Come, come ! for we
 Will not breathe, so much as breathe
 Reproach to thee,
 Knowing what thou sink'st beneath.
 sank we in those old years,
 who bid thee, come ! thou last
 Who, living yet, hast life o'erpast.
 And altogether we, thy peers,
 Will pardon crave for thee, the last
 Whose trial is done, whose lot is cast
 With those who watch but work no more,
 Who gaze on life but live no more.
 Yet we trusted thou shouldst speak
 The message which our lips, too weak,

Refused to utter,—shouldst redeem
 Our fault : such trust, and all a dream !
 Yet we chose thee a birthplace
 Where the richness ran to flowers :
 Couldst not sing one song for grace ?
 Not make one blossom man's and ours ?
 Must one more recreant to his race
 Die with unexerted powers,
 And join us, leaving as he found
 The world, he was to loosen, bound ?
 Anguish ! ever and for ever ;
 Still beginning, ending never.
 Yet, lost and last one, come !
 How couldst understand, alas,
 What our pale ghosts strove to say,
 As their shades did glance and pass
 Before thee night and day ?
 Thou wast blind as we were dumb :
 Once more, therefore, come, O come !
 How should we clothe, how arm the spirit
 Shall next thy post of life inherit—
 How guard him from thy speedy ruin ?
 Tell us of thy sad undoing
 Here, where we sit, ever pursuing
 Our weary task, ever renewing
 Sharp sorrow, far from God who gave Our powers, and man they could not save !”

APRILE enters.

Ha, ha ! our king that wouldst be, here at
 last ?
 Art thou the poet who shall save the
 world ?
 Thy hand to mine ! Stay, fix thine eyes on
 mine !
 Thou wouldst be king ? Still fix thine eyes on mine !
Paracelsus. Ha, ha ! why crouchest not ?
 Am I not king ?
 So torture is not wholly unavailing !
 Have my fierce spasms compelled thee from thy lair ?
 Art thou the sage I only seemed to be,
 Myself of after-time, my very self
 With sight a little clearer, strength more firm,
 Who robes him in my robe and grasps my crown

For just a fault, a weakness, a neglect ?
 I scarcely trusted God with the surmise
 That such might come, and thou didst hear the while !

Aprile. Thine eyes are lustreless to mine ;
 my hair

Is soft, nay silken soft : to talk with thee
 Flushes my cheek, and thou art ashy-pale.
 Truly, thou hast laboured, hast withstood
 her lips,

The siren's ! Yes, 'tis like thou hast attained !
 Tell me, dear master, wherefore now thou comest ?

I thought thy solemn songs would have their meed

In after-time ; that I should hear the earth
 Exult in thee and echo with thy praise,
 While I was laid forgotten in my grave.

Paracelsus. Ah fiend, I know thee, I am not thy dupe !

Thou art ordained to follow in my track,
 Reaping my sowing, as I scorned to reap
 The harvest sown by sages passed away.
 Thou art the sober searcher, cautious striver,
 As if, except through me, thou hast searched or striven !

Ay, tell the world ! Degrade me after all,
 To an aspirant after fame, not truth—
 To all but envy of thy fate, be sure !

Aprile. Nay, sing them to me ; I shall envy not :

Thou shalt be king ! Sing thou, and I will sit Beside, and call deep silence for thy songs,
 And worship thee, as I had ne'er been meant
 To fill thy throne : but none shall ever know !
 Sing to me ; for already thy wild eyes
 Unlock my heart-strings, as some crystal-shaft
 Reveals by some chance blaze its parent fount
 After long time : so thou reveal'st my soul.

All will flash forth at last, with thee to hear !

Paracelsus. (His secret ! I shall get his secret—fool !)

I am he that aspired to KNOW : and thou ?

Aprile. I would LOVE infinitely, and be loved !

Paracelsus. Poor slave ! I am thy king indeed.

Aprile.

Thou deem'st

That—born a spirit, dowered even as thou,
 Born for thy fate—because I could not curb
 My yearnings to possess at once the full Enjoyment, but neglected all the means
 Of realizing even the frailest joy,
 Gathering no fragments to appease my want,
 Yet nursing up that want till thus I die—
 Thou deem'st I cannot trace thy safe sure march

O'er perils that o'erwhelm me, triumphing,
 Neglecting nought below for aught above,
 Despising nothing and ensuring all—
 Nor that I could (my time to come again)
 Lead thus my spirit securely as thine own.
 Listen, and thou shalt see I know thee well.
 I would love infinitely . . . Ah, lost ! lost !

Oh ye who armed me at such cost,
 How shall I look on all of ye
 With your gifts even yet on me ?

Paracelsus. (Ah, 'tis some moonstruck creature after all !

Such fond fools as are like to haunt this den :
 They spread contagion, doubtless : yet he seemed

To echo one foreboding of my heart
 So truly, that . . . no matter ! How he stands

With eve's last sunbeam staying on his hair
 Which turns to it as if they were akin :
 And those clear smiling eyes of saddest blue
 Nearly set free, so far they rise above
 The painful fruitless striving of the brow .
 And enforced knowledge of the lips, firm-set
 In slow despondency's eternal sigh !
 Has he, too, missed life's end, and learned the cause ?)

I charge thee, by thy fealty, be calm !
 Tell me what thou wouldst be, and what I am.

Aprile. I would love infinitely, and be loved.

First: I would carve in stone, or cast in brass,
 The forms of earth. No ancient hunter lifted
 Up to the gods by his renown, no nymph
 Supposed the sweet soul of a woodland tree
 Or sapphirine spirit of a twilight star,
 Should be too hard for me ; no shepherd-king
 Regal for his white locks ; no youth who stands
 Silent and very calm amid the throng,

His right hand ever hid beneath his robe
 Until the tyrant pass ; no lawgiver,
 No swan-soft woman rubbed with lucid oils
 Given by a god for love of her—too hard !
 Every passion sprung from man, conceived
 by man,

Would I express and clothe it in its right
 form,

Or blend with others struggling in one form,
 Or show repressed by an ungainly form.

Oh, if you marvelled at some mighty spirit
 With a fit frame to execute its will—

Even unconsciously to work its will—

You should be moved no less beside some strong

Rare spirit, fettered to a stubborn body,
 Endeavouring to subdue it and inform it
 With its own splendour ! All this I would do :
 And I would say, this done, " His sprites created,

" God grants to each a sphere to be its world,
 " Appointed with the various objects needed

" To satisfy its own peculiar want ;

" So, I create a world for these my shapes

" Fit to sustain their beauty and their
 strength !"

And, at the word, I would contrive and paint
 Woods, valleys, rocks and plains, dells,
 sands and wastes,

Lakes which, when morn breaks on their quivering bed,

Blaze like a wyvern¹ flying round the sun,
 And ocean isles so small, the dog-fish tracking
 A dead whale, who should find them, would swim thrice

Around them, and fare onward—all to hold
 The offspring of my brain. Nor these alone :
 Bronze labyrinth, palace, pyramid and crypt,
 Baths, galleries, courts, temples and terraces, Marts, theatres and wharfs—all filled with
 men,

Men everywhere ! And this performed in turn,

When those who looked on, pined to hear the hopes

And fears and hates and loves which moved the crowd,

¹ Dragon.

I would throw down the pencil as the chisel,
And I would speak ; no thought which ever stirred

A human breast should be untold ; all passions,

All soft emotions, from the turbulent stir
Within a heart fed with desires like mine,
To the last comfort shutting the tired lids
Of him who sleeps the sultry noon away
Beneath the tent-tree by the wayside well :
And this in language as the need should be,
Now poured at once forth in a burning flow,
Now piled up in a grand array of words.

This done, to perfect and consummate all,
Even as a luminous haze links star to star,
I would supply all chasms with music,
breathing

Mysterious motions of the soul, no way
To be defined save in strange melodies.
Last, having thus revealed all I could love,
Having received all love bestowed on it,
I would die : preserving so throughout my
course

God full on me, as I was full on men :
He would approve my prayer, "I have gone
through

"The loveliness of life ; create for me
"If not for men, or take me to thyself,
"Eternal, infinite love !"

If thou hast ne'er

Conceived this mighty aim, this full desire,
Thou hast not passed my trial, and thou art
No king of mine.

Paracelsus. Ah me !

Aprile. But thou art here !
Thou didst not gaze like me upon that end
Till thine own powers for compassing the bliss
Were blind with glory ; nor grow mad to grasp
At once the prize long patient toil should claim,

Nor spurn all granted short of that. And I Would do as thou, a second time : nay, listen !

Knowing ourselves, our world, our task so great,

Our time so brief, 'tis clear if we refuse
The means so limited, the tools so rude
To execute our purpose, life will fleet,

And we shall fade, and leave our task undone.
We will be wise in time : what though our work

Be fashioned in despite of their ill-service,
Be crippled every way ? 'Twere little praise
Did full resources wait on our goodwill
At every turn. Let all be as it is.

Some say the earth is even so contrived
That tree and flower, a vesture gay, conceal A bare and skeleton framework. Had we means

Answering to our mind ! But now I seem Wrecked on a savage isle : how rear thereon
My palace ? Branching palms the props shall be,

Fruit glossy mingling ; gems are for the East ;
Who heeds them ? I can pass them. Serpents' scales,

And painted birds' down, furs and fishes' skins
Must help me ; and a little here and there
Is all I can aspire to : still my art
Shall show its birth was in a gentler clime.

"Had I green jars of malachite, this way
"I'd range them : where those sea-shells
glisten above,

"Cressets¹ should hang, by right : this way we set

"The purple carpets, as these mats are laid,
"Woven of fern and rush and blossoming flag."

Or if, by fortune, some completer grace
Be spared to me, some fragment, some slight sample

Of the prouder workmanship my own home boasts,

Some trifle little heeded there, but here
The place's one perfection—with what joy
Would I enshrine the relic, cheerfully
Foregoing all the marvels out of reach !
Could I retain one strain of all the psalm
Of the angels, one word of the fiat of God,
To let my followers know what such things are !

I would adventure nobly for their sakes :
When nights were still, and still the moaning
sea,

And far away I could descry the land

¹ Lanterns.

Say, though I fell, I had excuse to fall ;
Say, I was tempted sorely : say but this,
Dear lord, Aprile's lord !

Paracelsus. Clasp me not thus,
Aprile ! That the truth should reach me thus !
We are weak dust. Nay, clasp not or I faint !

Aprile. My king ! and envious thoughts could outrage thee ?

Lo, I forget my ruin, and rejoice
In thy success, as thou ! Let our God's praise Go bravely through the world at last ! What care

Through me or thee ? I feel thy breath.
Why, tears ?

Tears in the darkness, and from thee to me ?
Paracelsus. Love me henceforth, Aprile, while I learn

To love ; and, merciful God, forgive us both !
We wake at length from weary dreams ; but both

Have slept in fairy-land : though dark and drear
Appears the world before us, we no less
Wake with our wrists and ankles jewelled still.
I too have sought to KNOW as thou to LOVE—
Excluding love as thou refusedst knowledge.
Still thou hast beauty and I, power. We wake :

What penance canst devise for both of us ?

Aprile. I hear thee faintly. The thick darkness ! Even

Thine eyes are hid. 'Tis as I knew : I speak,
And now I die. But I have seen thy face !

O poet, think of me, and sing of me !
But to have seen thee and to die so soon !

Paracelsus. Die not, Aprile ! We must never part.

Are we not halves of one dissevered world,
Whom this strange chance unites once more ?
Part ? never !

Till thou the lover, know ; and I, the knower,
Love—until both are saved. Aprile, hear !
We will accept our gains, and use them—
now !

God, he will die upon my breast ! Aprile !

Aprile. To speak but once, and die ! yet by his side.

Hush ! hush !

Ha ! go you ever girt about

With phantoms, powers ? I have created such,
But these seem real as I.

Paracelsus. Whom can you see
Through the accursed darkness ?

Aprile. Stay ; I know,
I know them : who should know them well as I ?

White brows, lit up with glory ; poets all !

Paracelsus. Let him but live, and I have my reward !

Aprile. Yes ; I see now. God is the perfect poet,

Who in his person acts his own creations.

Had you but told me this at first ! Hush !
hush !

Paracelsus. Live ! for my sake, because of my great sin,

To help my brain, oppressed by these wild
words

And their deep import. Live ! 'tis not too late.

I have a quiet home for us, and friends.

Michal shall smile on you. Hear you :
Lean thus,

And breathe my breath. I shall not lose one word

Of all your speech, one little word, Aprile !

Aprile. No, no. Crown me ? I am not one of you !

'Tis he, the king, you seek. I am not one.

Paracelsus. Thy spirit, at least, Aprile !
Let me love !

I have attained, and now I may depart.

III.—PARACELSUS.

SCENE.—Basil ; a chamber in the house of
PARACELSUS. 1526.

PARACELSUS, FESTUS.

Paracelsus. Heap logs and let the blaze laugh out !

Festus. True, true !

'Tis very fit all, time and chance and change
Have wrought since last we sat thus, face to face

And soul to soul—all cares, far-looking fears,
Vague apprehensions, all vain fancies bred
By your long absence, should be cast away,
Forgotten in this glad unhop'd renewal
Of our affections.

Paracelsus. Oh, omit not aught
Which witnesses your own and Michal's own Affection: spare not that! Only forget
The honours and the glories and what not,
It pleases you to tell profusely out.

Festus. Nay, even your honours, in a sense,
I waive:
The wondrous Paracelsus, life's dispenser,
Fate's commissary, idol of the schools
And courts, shall be no more than Aureole
still,
Still Aureole and my friend as when we parted
Some twenty years ago, and I restrained
As best I could the promptings of my spirit
Which secretly advanced you, from the first,
To the pre-eminent rank which, since, your
own
Adventurous ardour, nobly triumphing,
Has won for you.

Paracelsus. Yes, yes. And Michal's
face
Still wears that quiet and peculiar light
Like the dim circlet floating round a pearl?

Festus. Just so.

Paracelsus. And yet her calm sweet countenance,
Though saintly, was not sad; for she would sing
Alone. Does she still sing alone, bird-like,
Not dreaming you are near? Her carols dropt
In flakes through that old leafy bower built under
The sunny wall at Würzburg, from her lattice
Among the trees above, while I, unseen,
Sat conning some rare scroll from Trithem's shelves

Much wondering notes so simple could divert
My mind from study. Those were happy days.
Respect all such as sing when all alone!

Festus. Scarcely alone: her children, you may guess,
Are wild beside her.

Paracelsus. Ah, those children quite

Unsettle the pure picture in my mind:
A girl, she was so perfect, so distinct:
No change, no change! Not but this added grace

May blend and harmonize with its compeers,
And Michal may become her motherhood;
But 'tis a change, and I detest all change,
And most a change in aught I loved long since.

So, Michal—you have said she thinks of me?

Festus. O very proud will Michal be of you!
Imagine how we sat, long winter-nights,
Scheming and wondering, shaping your presumed

Adventure, or devising its reward;
Shutting out fear with all the strength of hope.
For it was strange how, even when most secure

In our domestic peace, a certain dim
And fitting shade could sadden all; it seemed
A restlessness of heart, a silent yearning,
A sense of something wanting, incomplete—
Not to be put in words, perhaps avoided
By mute consent—but, said or unsaid, felt
To point to one so loved and so long lost.
And then the hopes rose and shut out the fears—

How you would laugh should I recount them
now!

I still predicted your return at last
With gifts beyond the greatest of them all,
All Trithem's wondrous troop; did one of which

Attain renown by any chance, I smiled,
As well aware of who would prove his peer.
Michal was sure some woman, long ere this,
As beautiful as you were sage, had loved . . .

Paracelsus. Far-seeing, truly, to discern so much

In the fantastic projects and day-dreams
Of a raw restless boy!

Festus. Oh, no: the sunrise
Well warranted our faith in this full noon!
Can I forget the anxious voice which said “Festus, have thoughts like these ere shaped themselves

“In other brains than mine? have their possessors

“Existed in like circumstance? were they weak
 “As I, or ever constant from the first,
 “Despising youth’s allurements and rejecting
 “As spider-films the shackles I endure?
 “Is there hope for me?”—and I answered gravely

As an acknowledged elder, calmer, wiser,
 More gifted mortal. O you must remember,
 For all your glorious . . .

Paracelsus. Glorious? ay, this hair,
 These hands—nay, touch them, they are mine! Recall

With all the said recallings, times when thus
 To lay them by your own ne’er turned you pale

As now. Most glorious, are they not?

Festus. Why—why—
 Something must be subtracted from success
 So wide, no doubt. He would be scrupulous, truly,

Who should object such drawbacks. Still,
 still, Aureole,
 You are changed, very changed! ’Twere losing nothing

To look well to it: you must not be stolen
 From the enjoyment of your well-won meed.

Paracelsus. My friend! you seek my pleasure, past a doubt:

You will best gain your point, by talking, not
 Of me, but of yourself.

Festus. Have I not said
 All touching Michal and my children? Sure
 You know, by this, full well how Aennchen looks

Gravely, while one disparts her thick brown
 hair;

And Aureole’s glee when some stray gannet builds

Amid the birch-trees by the lake. Small hope
 Have I that he will honour (the wild imp)
 His namesake. Sigh not! ’tis too much to ask That all we love should reach the same proud fate.

But you are very kind to humour me
 By showing interest in my quiet life;
 You, who of old could never tame yourself
 To tranquil pleasures, must at heart despise . . .

Paracelsus. Festus, strange secrets are let out by death

Who blabs so oft the follies of this world:
 And I am death’s familiar, as you know.

I helped a man to die, some few weeks since,
 Warped even from his go-cart to one end—

The living on princes’ smiles, reflected from A mighty herd of favourites. No mean trick

He left untried, and truly well-nigh wormed
 All traces of God’s finger out of him:

Then died, grown old. And just an hour
 before,

Having lain long with blank and soulless eyes,
 He sat up suddenly, and with natural voice

Said that in spite of thick air and closed doors
 God told him it was June; and he knew well,

Without such telling, harebells grew in June;
 And all that kings could ever give or take

Would not be precious as those blooms to him.
 Just so, allowing I am passing sage,

It seems to me much worthier argument
 Why pansies,¹ eyes that laugh, bear beauty’s

prize
 From violets, eyes that dream — (your

. Michal’s choice)—
 Than all fools find to wonder at in me

Or in my fortunes. And be very sure
 I say this from no prurient restlessness,

No self-complacency, itching to turn,
 Vary and view its pleasure from all points,

And, in this instance, willing other men
 May be at pains, demonstrate to itself

The realness of the very joy it tastes.
 What should delight me like the news of

friends
 Whose memories were a solace to me oft,

As mountain-baths to wild fowls in their flight?

Offer than you had wasted thought on me
 Had you been wise, and rightly valued bliss.

But there’s no taming nor repressing hearts:
 God knows I need such!—So, you heard me

speak?
Festus. Speak? when?

Paracelsus. When but this morning at my class?

 tum familiaris.—DORN.

There was noise and crowd enough. I saw you not.

Surely you know I am engaged to fill
The chair here?—that 'tis part of my proud fate

To lecture to as many thick-skulled youths
As please, each day, to throng the theatre,
To my great reputation, and no small
Danger of Basil's benches long unused
To crack beneath such honour?

Festus. I was there ;
I mingled with the throng : shall I avow
Small care was mine to listen?—too intent
On gathering from the murmurs of the crowd
A full corroboration of my hopes !

What can I learn about your powers? but they Know, care for nought beyond your actual state,

Your actual value ; yet they worship you,
Those various natures whom you sway as one !
But ere I go, be sure I shall attend . . .

Paracelsus. Stop, o' God's name : the thing's by no means yet Past remedy ! Shall I read this morning's labour

—At least in substance? Nought so worth the gaining

As an apt scholar ! Thus then, with all due Precision and emphasis—you, beside, are clearly

Guiltless of understanding more, a whit,
The subject than your stool—allowed to be
A notable advantage.

Festus. Surely, Aureole,
You laugh at me !

Paracelsus. I laugh? Ha, ha ! thank
heaven,
I charge you, if 't be so ! for I forget
Much, and what laughter should be like.

No less,
However, I forego that luxury
Since it alarms the friend who brings it back.
True, laughter like my own must echo
strangely

To thinking men ; a smile were better far ;
So, make me smile ! If the exulting look
You wore but now be smiling, 'tis so long

Since I have smiled ! Alas, such smiles are born

Alone of hearts like yours, or herdsmen's souls

Of ancient time, whose eyes, calm as their flocks,

Saw in the stars mere garnishry of heaven,
And in the earth a stage for altars only.

Never change, Festus : I say, never change !
Festus. My God, if he be wretched after
all !

Paracelsus. When last we parted, Festus,
you declared,
—Or Michal, yes, her soft lips whispered
words

I have preserved. She told me she believed
I should succeed (meaning, that in the search
I then engaged in, I should meet success)
And yet be wretched : now, she augured false.

Festus. Thank heaven ! but you spoke strangely : could I venture
To think bare apprehension lest your friend, Dazzled by your resplendent course, might find

Henceforth less sweetness in his own, could move

Such earnest mood in you? Fear not, dear
friend,

That I shall leave you, inwardly repining
Your lot was not my own !

Paracelsus. And this for ever !
For ever ! gull who may, they will be gulled !
They will not look nor think ; 'tis nothing new

In them : but surely he is not of them !
My Festus, do you know, I reckoned, you—Though all beside were sand-blind—you, my
friend,

Would look at me, once close, with piercing
eye

Untroubled by the false glare that confounds
A weaker vision : would remain serene,
Though singular amid a gaping throng.

I feared you, or I had come, sure, long ere
this,

To Einsiedeln. Well, error has no end,
And Rhasis is a sage, and Basil boasts
A tribe of wits, and I am wise and blest

Past all dispute ! 'Tis vain to fret at it.
I have vowed long ago my worshippers
Shall owe to their own deep sagacity
All further information, good or bad.
Small risk indeed my reputation runs,
Unless perchance the glance now searching
me

Be fixed much longer ; for it seems to spell
Dimly the characters a simpler man Might read distinct enough. Old Eastern
books

Say, the fallen prince of morning some short space
Remained unchanged in semblance ; nay, his
brow

Was hued with triumph : every spirit then Praising, his heart on flame the while :—a tale !

Well, Festus, what discover you, I pray ?

Festus. Some foul deed sullies then a life which else

Were raised supreme ?

Paracelsus. Good : I do well, most well !
Why strive to make men hear, feel, fret
themselves

With what is past their power to comprehend ?
I should not strive now : only, having nursed
The faint surmise that one yet walked the earth,

One, at least, not the utter fool of show,
Not absolutely formed to be the dupe
Of shallow plausibilities alone :

One who, in youth, found wise enough to choose

The happiness his riper years approve,
Was yet so anxious for another's sake,
That, ere his friend could rush upon a mad
And ruinous course, the converse of his own,
His gentle spirit essayed, prejudged for him
The perilous path, foresaw its destiny,
And warned the weak one in such tender
words,

Such accents—his whole heart in every tone—

That oft their memory comforted that friend
When it by right should have increased
despair :

—Having believed, I say, that this one man

Could never lose the light thus from the first
His portion—how should I refuse to grieve
At even my gain if it disturb our old
Relation, if it make me out more wise ?
Therefore, once more reminding him how
well

He prophesied, I note the single flaw
That spoils his prophet's title. In plain
words,

You were deceived, and thus were you deceived—

I have not been successful, and yet am
Most miserable ; 'tis said at last ; nor you Give credit, lest you force me to concede
That common sense yet lives upon the world !

Festus. You surely do not mean to banter
me ?

Paracelsus. You know, or—if you have been wise enough

To cleanse your memory of such matters—
knew,

As far as words of mine could make it clear,
That 'twas my purpose to find joy or grief
Solely in the fulfilment of my plan
Or plot or whatso'er it was ; rejoicing
Alone as it proceeded prosperously,
Sorrowing then only when mischance retarded

Its progress. That was in those Würzburg days !

Not to prolong a theme I thoroughly hate,
I have pursued this plan with all my strength ;
And having failed therein most signally,
Cannot object to ruin utter and drear
As all-excelling would have been the prize
Had fortune favoured me. I scarce have right
To vex your frank good spirit late so glad
In my supposed prosperity, I know,
And, were I lucky in a glut of friends,
Would well agree to let your error live,
Nay, strengthen it with fables of success.

But mine is no condition to refuse
The transient solace of so rare a godsend,
My solitary luxury, my one friend :

Accordingly I venture to put off
The wearisome vest of falsehood galling me,
Secure when he is by. I lay me bare,
Prone at his mercy—but he is my friend !

Not that he needs retain his aspect grave ;
That answers not my purpose ; for 'tis like,
Some sunny morning—Basil being drained
Of its wise population, every corner
Of the amphitheatre crammed with learned clerks,

Here Æcolampadius, looking worlds of wit,
Here Castellanus, as profound as he,
Munsterus here, Frobenius there, all squeezed
And staring,—that the zany of the show,
Even Paracelsus, shall put off before them
His trappings with a grace but seldom judged
Expedient in such cases :—the grim smile
That will go round ! Is it not therefore best
To venture a rehearsal like the present
In a small way ? Where are the signs I seek,
The first-fruits and fair sample of the scorn
Due to all quacks ? Why, this will never do !

Festus. These are foul vapours, Aureole ;
nought beside !

The effect of watching, study, weariness.
Were there a spark of truth in the confusion
Of these wild words, you would not outrage
thus

Your youth's companion. I shall ne'er regard These wanderings, bred of faintness and much study.

'Tis not thus you would trust a trouble to me,
To Michal's friend.

Paracelsus. I have said it, dearest
Festus !

For the manner, 'tis ungracious probably ;
You may have it told in broken sobs, one day,
And scalding tears, ere long : but I thought
best

To keep that off as long as possible.
Do you wonder still ?

Festus. No ; it must oft fall out
That one whose labour perfects any work,
Shall rise from it with eye so worn that he
Of all men least can measure the extent
Of what he has accomplished. He alone
Who, nothing tasked, is nothing weary too,
May clearly scan the little he effects :
But we, the bystanders, untouched by toil,
Estimate each aright.

Paracelsus. This worthy Festus

Is one of them, at last ! 'Tis so with all !
First, they set down all progress as a dream ;
And next, when he whose quick discomfiture
Was counted on, accomplishes some few
And doubtful steps in his career,—behold,
They look for every inch of ground to vanish
Beneath his tread, so sure they spy success !

Festus. Few doubtful steps ? when death retires before

Your presence—when the noblest of mankind,

Broken in body or subdued in soul,
May through your skill renew their vigour,
raise

The shattered frame to pristine stateliness ?
When men in racking pain may purchase
dreams

Of what delights them most, swooning at
once

Into a sea of bliss or rapt along
As in a flying sphere of turbulent light ?

When we may look to you as one ordained
To free the flesh from fell disease, as frees
Our Luther's burning tongue the fettered
soul ?

When . . .

Paracelsus. When and where, the devil, did you get

This notable news ?

Festus. Even from the common voice ;
From those whose envy, daring not dispute
The wonders it decries, attributes them
To magic and such folly.

Paracelsus. Folly ? Why not To magic, pray ? You find a comfort doubtless

In holding, God ne'er troubles him about
Us or our doings : once we were judged worth
The devil's tempting . . . I offend : forgive
me,

And rest content. Your prophecy on the whole

Was fair enough as prophesyings go ;
At fault a little in detail, but quite Precise enough in the main ; and hereupon
I pay due homage : you guessed long ago
(The prophet !) I should fail—and I have failed.

Festus. You mean to tell me, then, the hopes which fed Your youth have not been realized as yet Some obstacle has barred them hitherto? Or that their innate . . .

Paracelsus. As I said but now, You have a very decent prophet's fame, So you but shun details here. Little matter Whether those hopes were mad,—the aims they sought, Safe and secure from all ambitious fools; Or whether my weak wits are overcome By what a better spirit would scorn: I fail. And now methinks 'twere best to change a theme

I am a sad fool to have stumbled on. I say confusedly what comes uppermost; But there are times when patience proves at fault,

As now: this morning's strange encounter— you

Beside me once again! you, whom I guessed Alive, since hitherto (with Luther's leave) . No friend have I among the saints at peace, To judge by any good their prayers effect. I knew you would have helped me—why not he,

My strange competitor in enterprise, Bound for the same end by another path, Arrived, or ill or well, before the time, At our disastrous journey's doubtful close? How goes it with Aprile? Ah, they miss Your lone sad sunny idleness of heaven, Our martyrs for the world's sake; heaven shuts fast:

The poor mad poet is howling by this time! Since you are my sole friend then, here or there,

I could not quite repress the varied feelings This meeting wakens; they have had their vent, And now forget them. Do the rear-mice still Hang like a fretwork on the gate (or what In my time was a gate) fronting the road From Einsiedeln to Lachen?

Festus. Trifle not: Answer me, for my sake alone! You smiled Just now, when I supposed some deed, unworthy

Yourself, might blot the else so bright result; Yet if your motives have continued pure, Your will unfaltering, and in spite of this, You have experienced a defeat, why then I say not you would cheerfully withdraw From contest—mortal hearts are not so fashioned—

But surely you would ne'ertheless withdraw. You sought not fame nor gain nor even love, No end distinct from knowledge,—I repeat Your very words: once satisfied that knowledge

Is a mere dream, you would announce as much,

Yourself the first. But how is the event? You are defeated—and I find you here!

Paracelsus. As though "here" did not signify defeat!

I spoke not of my little labours here, But of the break-down of my general aims: For you, aware of their extent and scope, To look on these sage lecturings, approved By beardless boys, and bearded dotards worse, As a fit consummation of such aims, Is worthy notice. A professorship At Basil! Since you see so much in it, And think my life was reasonably drained Of life's delights to render me a match For duties arduous as such post demands,— Be it far from me to deny my power To fill the petty circle lotted out Of infinite space, or justify the host Of honours thence accruing. So, take notice, This jewel dangling from my neck preserves The features of a prince, my skill restored To plague his people some few years to come: And all through a pure whim. He had eased the earth

For me, but that the droll despair which seized The vermin of his household, tickled me. I came to see. Here, drivelled the physician, Whose most infallible nostrum was at fault; There quaked the astrologer, whose horoscope Had promised him interminable years; Here a monk fumbled at the sick man's mouth With some undoubted relic—a sudary¹

His stern lord, wills from the perplexing blows
That plague him every way ; but there, of
course,

Where least he suffers, longest he remains—
My case ; and for such reasons I plod on, Subdued but not convinced. I know as little Why I deserve to fail, as why I hoped Better things in my youth. I simply know
I am no master here, but trained and beaten
Into the path I tread ; and here I stay,
Until some further intimation reach me,
Like an obedient drudge. Though I prefer
To view the whole thing as a task imposed Which, whether dull or pleasant, must be
done—

Yet, I deny not, there is made provision
Of joys which tastes less jaded might affect ;
Nay, some which please me too, for all my pride—

Pleasures that once were pains : the iron ring
Festering about a slave's neck grows at length
Into the flesh it eats. I hate no longer
A host of petty vile delights, undreamed of
Or spurned before ; such now supply the place
Of my dead aims : as in the autumn woods
Where tall trees used to flourish, from their roots

Springs up a fungous brood sickly and pale,
Chill mushrooms coloured like a corpse's cheek.

Festus. If I interpret well your words, I
own

It troubles me but little that your aims,
Vast in their dawning and most likely grown
Extravagantly since, have baffled you.
Perchance I am glad ; you merit greater
praise ;

Because they are too glorious to be gained,
You do not blindly cling to them and die ;
You fell, but have not sullenly refused
To rise, because an angel worsted you
In wrestling, though the world holds not your peer,

And though too harsh and sudden is the
change
To yield content as yet, still you pursue
The ungracious path as though 'twere rosy-strewn.

'Tis well : and your reward, or soon or late,
Will come from him whom no man serves in vain.

Paracelsus. Ah, very fine ! For my part,
I conceive

The very pausing from all further toil,
Which you find heinous, would become a seal
To the sincerity of all my deeds.
To be consistent I should die at once ;
I calculated on no after-life ;
Yet (how crept in, how fostered, I know not)
Here am I with as passionate regret
For youth and health and love so vainly lavished,

As if their preservation had been first
And foremost in my thoughts ; and this strange fact

Humbled me wondrously, and had due force
In rendering me the less averse to follow
A certain counsel, a mysterious warning—
You will not understand—but 'twas a man
With aims not mine and yet pursued like mine.
With the same fervour and no more success,
Perishing in my sight ; who summoned me
As I would shun the ghastly fate I saw,
To serve my race at once ; to wait no longer
That God should interfere in my behalf,
But to distrust myself, put pride away,
And give my gains, imperfect as they were,
To men. I have not leisure to explain

How, since, a singular series of events
Has raised me to the station you behold,
Wherein I seem to turn to most account
The mere wreck of the past,—perhaps receive
Some feeble glimmering token that God views
And may approve my penance : therefore here
You find me, doing most good or least harm.
And if folks wonder much and profit little
'Tis not my fault ; only, I shall rejoice
When my part in the farce is shuffled through,
And the curtain falls : I must hold out till then.

Festus. Till when, dear Aureole ?

Paracelsus. Till I'm fairly thrust
From my proud eminence. Fortune is fickle
And even professors fall : should that arrive,
I see no sin in ceding to my bent.
You little fancy what rude shocks apprise us
We sin ; God's intimations rather fail

In clearness than in energy : 'twere well
Did they but indicate the course to take
Like that to be forsaken. I would fain
Be spared a further sample. Here I stand,
And here I stay, be sure, till forced to flit.

Festus. Be you but firm on that head !
long ere then

All I expect will come to pass, I trust :
The cloud that wraps you will have disappeared.

Meantime, I see small chance of such event :
They praise you here as one whose lore, already

Divulged, eclipses all the past can show,
But whose achievements, marvellous as they
be,

Are faint anticipations of a glory
About to be revealed. When Basil's crowds Dismiss their teacher, I shall be content
That he depart.

Paracelsus. This favour at their hands
I look for earlier than your view of things Would warrant. Of the crowd you saw to-
day,

Remove the full half sheer amazement draws,
Mere novelty, nought else ; and next, the tribe
Whose innate blockish dulness just perceives
That unless miracles (as seem my works)
Be wrought in their behalf, their chance is slight

To puzzle the devil ; next, the numerous set
Who bitterly hate established schools, and help
The teacher that oppugns them, till he once Have planted his own doctrine, when the teacher

May reckon on their rancour in his turn ;
Take, too, the sprinkling of sagacious knaves
Whose cunning runs not counter to the vogue
But seeks, by flattery and crafty nursing,
To force my system to a premature Short-lived development. Why swell the list ?
Each has his end to serve, and his best way
Of serving it : remove all these, remains
A scantling, a poor dozen at the best,
Worthy to look for sympathy and service,
And likely to draw profit from my pains.

Festus. 'Tis no encouraging picture : still these few

Redeem their fellows. Once the germ implanted,
Its growth, if slow, is sure.

Paracelsus. God grant it so !
I would make some amends : but if I fail,
The luckless rogues have this excuse to urge,
That much is in my method and my manner,
My uncouth habits, my impatient spirit,
Which hinders of reception and result
My doctrine : much to say, small skill to speak !

These old aims suffered not a looking-off
Though for an instant ; therefore, only when I thus renounced them and resolved to reap
Some present fruit—to teach mankind some
truth

So dearly purchased—only then I found
Such teaching was an art requiring cares
And qualities peculiar to itself :

That to possess was one thing—to display
Another. With renown first in my thoughts,
Or popular praise, I had soon discovered it :
One grows but little apt to learn these things.

Festus. If it be so, which nowise I believe,
There needs no waiting fuller dispensation
To leave a labour of so little use.
Why not throw up the irksome charge at
once ?

Paracelsus. A task, a task !

But wherefore hide the whole
Extent of degradation, once engaged
In the confessing vein ? Despite of all
My fine talk of obedience and repugnance,
Docility and what not, 'tis yet to learn
If when the task shall really be performed,
My inclination free to choose once more,
I shall do aught but slightly modify
The nature of the hated task I quit.
In plain words, I am spoiled ; my life still tends

As first it tended ; I am broken and trained
To my old habits : they are part of me.
I know, and none so well, my darling ends
Are proved impossible : no less, no less, Even now what humours me, fond fool, as
when

Their faint ghosts sit with me and flatter me
And send me back content to my dull round ?

How can I change this soul?—this apparatus
 Constructed solely for their purposes,
 So well adapted to their every want,
 To search out and discover, prove and perfect;
 This intricate machine whose most minute
 And meanest motions have their charm to me
 Though to none else—an aptitude I seize,
 An object I perceive, a use, a meaning,
 A property, a fitness, I explain
 And I alone :—how can I change my soul?
 And this wronged body, worthless save when tasked

Under that soul's dominion—used to care
 For its bright master's cares and quite subdue
 Its proper cravings—not to ail nor pine
 So he but prosper—whither drag this poor
 Tried patient body? God! how I essayed
 To live like that mad poet, for a while,
 To love alone; and how I felt too warped
 And twisted and deformed! What should I do,

Even tho' released from drudgery, but return
 Faint, as you see, and halting, blind and sore,
 To my old life and die as I began?
 I cannot feed on beauty for the sake
 Of beauty only, nor can drink in balm
 From lovely objects for their loveliness;
 My nature cannot lose her first imprint;
 I still must hoard and heap and class all truths
 With one ulterior purpose: I must know!
 Would God translate me to his throne, believe
 That I should only listen to his word
 To further my own aim! For other men,
 Beauty is prodigally strewn around,
 And I were happy could I quench as they
 This mad and thriveless longing, and content me

With beauty for itself alone: alas,
 I have addressed a frock of heavy mail
 Yet may not join the troop of sacred knights;
 And now the forest-creatures fly from me,
 The grass-banks cool, the sunbeams warm
 no more.

Best follow, dreaming that ere night arrive,
 I shall o'ertake the company and ride
 Glittering as they!

Festus. I think I apprehend
 What you would say: if you, in truth, design

To enter once more on the life thus left,
 Seek not to hide that all this consciousness
 Of failure is assumed!

Paracelsus. My friend, my friend,
 I toil, you listen; I explain, perhaps
 You understand: there our communion ends.
 Have you learnt nothing from to-day's discourse?

When we would thoroughly know the sick man's state

We feel awhile the fluttering pulse, press soft
 The hot brow, look upon the languid eye,
 And thence divine the rest. Must I lay bare
 My heart, hideous and beating, or tear up
 My vitals for your gaze, ere you will deem Enough made known? You! who are you,
 forsooth?

That is the crowning operation claimed
 By the arch-demonstrator—heaven the hall,
 And earth the audience. Let Aprile and you Secure good places: 'twill be worth the while.

Festus. Are you mad, Aureole? What can I have said

To call for this? I judged from your own
 words.

Paracelsus. Oh, doubtless! A sick wretch describes the ape

That mocks him from the bed-foot, and all gravely

You thither turn at once: or he recounts
 The perilous journey he has late performed,
 And you are puzzled much how that could be!
 You find me here, half stupid and half
 mad:

It makes no part of my delight to search
 Into these matters, much less undergo Another's scrutiny; but so it chances
 That I am led to trust my state to you:
 And the event is, you combine, contrast
 And ponder on my foolish words as though
 They thoroughly conveyed all hidden here—
 Here, loathsome with despair and hate and rage!

Is there no fear, no shrinking and no shame?
 Will you guess nothing? will you spare me
 nothing?

Must I go deeper? Ay or no?

Festus. Dear friend . . .

Paracelsus. True: I am brutal — 'tis a part of it;

The plague's sign—you are not a lazar-haunter,
How should you know? Well then, you think it strange

I should profess to have failed utterly,
And yet propose an ultimate return
To courses void of hope: and this, because You know not what temptation is, nor how
'Tis like to ply men in the sickliest part.

You are to understand that we who make
Sport for the gods, are hunted to the end:
There is not one sharp volley shot at us,
Which 'scaped with life, though hurt, we slacken pace

And gather by the wayside herbs and roots
To staunch our wounds, secure from further harm:

We are assailed to life's extremest verge.
It will be well indeed if I return,
A harmless busy fool, to my old ways!
I would forget hints of another fate,
Significant enough, which silent hours
Have lately scared me with.

Festus. Another! and what?

Paracelsus. After all, Festus, you say well:
I am

A man yet: I need never humble me.
I would have been—something, I know not what;

But though I cannot soar, I do not crawl.
There are worse portions than this one of
mine.

You say well!

Festus. Ah!

Paracelsus. And deeper degradation!
If the mean stimulants of vulgar praise,
If vanity should become the chosen food
Of a sunk mind, should stifle even the wish
To find its early aspirations true,
Should teach it to breathe falsehood like life-breath—

An atmosphere of craft and trick and lies;
Should make it proud to emulate, surpass
Base natures in the practices which woke
Its most indignant loathing once . . . No, no!
Utter damnation is reserved for hell!

I had immortal feelings; such shall never
Be wholly quenched: no, no!

My friend, you wear
A melancholy face, and certain 'tis
There's little cheer in all this dismal work.
But was it my desire to set abroad
Such memories and forebodings? I foresaw Where they would drive. 'Twere better we discuss

News from Lucerne or Zurich; ask and tell
Of Egypt's flaring sky or Spain's cork-groves.

Festus. I have thought: trust me, this mood will pass away!

I know you and the lofty spirit you bear,
And easily ravel out a clue to all.

These are the trials meet for such as you,
Nor must you hope exemption: to be mortal
Is to be plied with trials manifold.

Look round! The obstacles which kept the rest

From your ambition, have been spurned by
you;

Their fears, their doubts, the chains that bind them all,

Were flax before your resolute soul, which
nought

Avails to awe save these delusions bred
From its own strength, its selfsame strength disguised,

Mocking itself. Be brave, dear Aureole!
Since

The rabbit has his shade to frighten him,
The fawn a rustling bough, mortals their cares,
And higher natures yet would slight and laugh

At these entangling fantasies, as you
At trammels of a weaker intellect,—

Measure your mind's height by the shade it casts!

I know you.

Paracelsus. And I know you, dearest
Festus!

And how you love unworthily; and how
All admiration renders blind.

Festus. You hold
That admiration blinds?

Paracelsus. Ay and alas!

Festus. Nought blinds you less than admiration, friend!

Whether it be that all love renders wise
In its degree ; from love which blends with
love—

Heart answering heart—to love which spends itself

In silent mad idolatry of some

Pre-eminent mortal, some great soul of souls,
Which ne'er will know how well it is adored.

I say, such love is never blind ; but rather

Alive to every the minutest spot

Which mars its object, and which hate (supposed

So vigilant and searching) dreams not of.

Love broods on such : what then ? When first perceived

Is there no sweet strife to forget, to change,

To overflush those blemishes with all

The glow of general goodness they disturb ?

—To make those very defects an endless
source

Of new affection grown from hopes and fears ?

And, when all fails, is there no gallant stand

Made even for much proved weak ? no shrinking-back

Lest, since all love assimilates the soul

To what it loves, it should at length become

Almost a rival of its idol ? Trust me,

If there be fiends who seek to work our hurt,

To ruin and drag down earth's mightiest spirits

Even at God's foot, 'twill be from such as
love,

Their zeal will gather most to serve their cause ;

And least from those who hate, who most essay

By contumely and scorn to blot the light

Which forces entrance even to their hearts :

For thence will our defender tear the veil

And show within each heart, as in a shrine,

The giant image of perfection, grown

In hate's despite, whose calumnies were spawned

In the untroubled presence of its eyes.

True admiration blinds not ; nor am I

So blind. I call your sin exceptional ;

It springs from one whose life has passed the bounds

Prescribed to life. Compound that fault with God !

I speak of men ; to common men like me

The weakness you reveal endears you more,

Like the far traces of decay in suns.

I bid you have good cheer !

Paracelsus.

Præclare ! Optime !

Think of a quiet mountain-cloistered priest

Instructing Paracelsus ! yet 'tis so.

Come, I will show you where my merit lies.

'Tis in the advance of individual minds

That the slow crowd should ground their expectation

Eventually to follow ; as the sea

Waits ages in its bed till some one wave

Out of the multitudinous mass, extends

The empire of the whole, some feet perhaps,

Over the strip of sand which could confine

Its fellows so long time : thenceforth the rest,

Even to the meanest, hurry in at once,

And so much is clear gained. I shall be glad

If all my labours, failing of aught else,

Suffice to make such inroad and procure

A wider range for thought : nay, they do
this ;

For, whatsoe'er my notions of true knowledge

And a legitimate success, may be,

I am not blind to my undoubted rank

When classed with others : I precede my age :

And whoso wills is very free to mount

These labours as a platform whence his own

May have a prosperous outset. But, alas !

My followers—they are noisy as you heard ;

But, for intelligence, the best of them

So clumsily wield the weapons I supply

And they extol, that I begin to doubt

Whether their own rude clubs and pebble-stones

Would not do better service than my arms

Thus vilely swayed—if error will not fall

Sooner before the old awkward batterings

Than my more subtle warfare, not half learned.

Festus. I would supply that art, then, or withhold

New arms until you teach their mystery.

Paracelsus. Content you, 'tis my wish ; I have recourse

To the simplest training. Day by day I seek
To wake the mood, the spirit which alone
Can make those arms of any use to men.
Of course they are for swaggering forth at once
Graced with Ulysses' bow, Achilles' shield—
Flash on us, all in armour, thou Achilles!
Make our hearts dance to thy resounding step!
A proper sight to scare the crows away!

Festus. Pity you choose not then some other method

Of coming at your point. The marvellous art
At length established in the world bids fair
To remedy all hindrances like these:
Trust to Frobenius' press the precious lore
Obscured by uncouth manner, or unfit
For raw beginners; let his types secure
A deathless monument to after-time;
Meanwhile wait confidently and enjoy
The ultimate effect: sooner or later
You shall be all-revealed.

Paracelsus. The old dull question
In a new form; no more. Thus: I possess
Two sorts of knowledge; one,—vast,
shadowy,
Hints of the unbounded aim I once pursued:
The other consists of many secrets, caught
While bent on nobler prize,—perhaps a few Prime principles which may conduct to much:
These last I offer to my followers here.
Now, bid me chronicle the first of these,
My ancient study, and in effect you bid
Revert to the wild courses just abjured:
I must go find them scattered through the
world.

Then, for the principles, they are so simple (Being chiefly of the overturning sort),
That one time is as proper to propound them
As any other—to-morrow at my class,
Or half a century hence embalmed in print.
For if mankind intend to learn at all,
They must begin by giving faith to them
And acting on them: and I do not see
But that my lectures serve indifferent well:
No doubt these dogmas fall not to the earth,
For all their novelty and rugged setting.
I think my class will not forget the day
I let them know the gods of Israel,
Aëtius, Oribasius, Galen, Rhasis,

Serapion, Avicenna, Averröes,
Were blocks!

Festus. And that reminds me, I heard something

About your waywardness: you burned their
books,

It seems, instead of answering those sages.

Paracelsus. And who said that?

Festus. Some I met yesternight With Ecolampadius. As you know, the purpose

Of this short stay at Basil was to learn
His pleasure touching certain missives sent For our Zuinglius and himself. 'Twas he Apprised me that the famous teacher here
Was my old friend.

Paracelsus. Ah, I forgot: you went . . .

Festus. From Zurich with advices for the ear
Of Luther, now at Wittenberg—(you know,
I make no doubt, the differences of late
With Carolostadius)—and returning sought
Basil and . . .

Paracelsus. I remember. Here's a case,
now,
Will teach you why I answer not, but burn
The books you mention. Pray, does Luther
dream

His arguments convince by their own force
The crowds that own his doctrine? No
indeed!

His plain denial of established points
Ages had sanctified and men supposed Could never be oppugned while earth was under

And heaven above them—points which chance or time

Affected not—did more than the array
Of argument which followed. Boldly deny!
There is much breath-stopping, hair-stiffening Awhile; then, amazed glances, mute awaiting The thunderbolt which does not come: and next,

Reproachful wonder and inquiry: those
Who else had never stirred, are able now
To find the rest out for themselves, perhaps
To outstrip him who set the whole at work,
—As never will my wise class its instructor
And you saw Luther?

Festus. 'Tis a wondrous soul !

Paracelsus. True : the so - heavy chain which galled mankind

Is shattered, and the noblest of us all
Must bow to the deliverer—nay, the worker
Of our own project—we who long before
Had burst our trammels, but forgot the crowd,
We should have taugt, still groaned beneath their load :

This he has done and nobly. Speed that may !

Whatever be my chance or my mischance,
What benefits mankind must glad me too ;
And men seem made, though not as I believed,
For something better than the times produce.
Witness these gangs of peasants your new lights

From Suabia have possessed, whom Müt-zer leads,
And whom the duke, the landgrave and the elector

Will calm in blood ! Well, well ; 'tis not my world !

Festus. Hark !

Paracelsus. 'Tis the melancholy wind
astir

Within the trees ; the embers too are grey :
Morn must be near.

Festus. Best ope the casement : see,
The night, late strewn with clouds and flying stars,

Is blank and motionless : how peaceful sleep
The tree-tops altogether ! Like an asp,
The wind slips whispering from bough to bough.

Paracelsus. Ay ; you would gaze on a wind-shaken tree
By the hour, nor count time lost.

Festus. So you shall gaze :
Those happy times will come again.

Paracelsus. Gone, gone,
Those pleasant times ! Does not the moaning
wind

Seem to bewail that we have gained such gains
And bartered sleep for them ?

Festus. It is our trust
That there is yet another world to mend
All error and mischance

Paracelsus. Another world !

And why this world, this common world, to be
A make-shift, a mere foil, how fair soever,
To some fine life to come ? Man must be fed
With angels' food, forsooth ; and some few traces

Of a diviner nature which look out
Through his corporeal baseness, warrant
him

In a supreme contempt of all provision
For his inferior tastes—some straggling marks
Which constitute his essence, just as truly
As here and there a gem would constitute
The rock, their barren bed, one diamond.

But were it so—were man all mind—he gains
A station little enviable. From God
Down to the lowest spirit ministrant,
Intelligence exists which casts our mind
Into immeasurable shade. No, no :

Love, hope, fear, faith—these make humanity ;
These are its sign and note and character,
And these I have lost !—gone, shut from me
for ever,

Like a dead friend safe from unkindness
more !

See, morn at length. The heavy darkness seems

Diluted, grey and clear without the stars ;
The shrubs bestir and rouse themselves as if Some snake, that weighed them down all night, let go

His hold ; and from the East, fuller and fuller,

Day, like a mighty river, flowing in ;
But clouded, wintry, desolate and cold.
Yet see how that broad prickly star-shaped
plant,

Half-down in the crevice, spreads its woolly
leaves

All thick and glistening with diamond dew.
And you depart for Einsiedeln this day,
And we have spent all night in talk like
this !

If you would have me better for your love,
Revert no more to these sad themes.

Festus. One favour,
And I have done. I leave you, deeply moved ;

*Fair usage policy applies

Could yet deceive their topping wits. You heard

Bare truth ; and at my bidding you come here
To speed me on my enterprise, as once
Your lavish wishes sped me, my own friend !

Festus. What is your purpose, Aureole ?

Paracelsus. Oh, for purpose,

There is no lack of precedents in a case
Like mine ; at least, if not precisely mine,
The case of men cast off by those they sought
To benefit.

Festus. They really cast you off ?

I only heard a vague tale of some priest, Cured by your skill, who wrangled at your
claim,
Knowing his life's worth best ; and how the judge

The matter was referred to, saw no cause
To interfere, nor you to hide your full Contempt of him ; nor he, again, to smother
His wrath thereat, which raised so fierce a flame

That Basil soon was made no place for you.

Paracelsus. The affair of Liechtenfels ? the shallowest fable,

The last and silliest outrage—mere pretence !
I knew it, I foretold it from the first,
How soon the stupid wonder you mistook
For genuine loyalty—a cheering promise
Of better things to come—would pall and pass ;
And every word comes true. Saul is among
The prophets ! Just so long as I was pleased
To play off the mere antics of my art,
Fantastic gambols leading to no end,
I got huge praise : but one can ne'er keep
down

Our foolish nature's weakness. There they flocked,

Poor devils, jostling, swearing and perspiring,
Till the walls rang again ; and all for me !
I had a kindness for them, which was right ;
But then I stopped not till I tacked to that
A trust in them and a respect—a sort
Of sympathy for them ; I must needs begin
To teach them, not amaze them, “ to impart
“ The spirit which should instigate the search “ Of truth,” just what you bade me ! I spoke
out.

Forthwith a mighty squadron, in disgust,
Filed off—“ the sifted chaff of the sack,” I
said,

Redoubling my endeavours to secure
The rest. When lo ! one man had tarried so long

Only to ascertain if I supported
This tenet of his, or that ; another loved
To hear impartially before he judged,
And having heard, now judged ; this bland disciple

Passed for my dupe, but all along, it seems,
Spied error where his neighbours marvelled
most ;

That fiery doctor who had hailed me friend,
Did it because my by-paths, once proved
wrong

And beaconed properly, would commend
again

The good old ways our sires jogged safely o'er,
Though not their squeamish sons ; the other worthy

Discovered divers verses of St. John,
Which, read successively, refreshed the soul,
But, muttered backwards, cured the gout,
the stone,

The colic and what not. Quid multa ? The
end

Was a clear class-room, and a quiet leer
From grave folk, and a sour reproachful glance
From those in chief who, cap in hand, installed
The new professor scarce a year before ;

And a vast flourish about patient merit
Obscured awhile by flashy tricks, but sure
Sooner or later to emerge in splendour—
Of which the example was some luckless wight
Whom my arrival had discomfited,

But now, it seems, the general voice recalled
To fill my chair and so efface the stain
Basil had long incurred. I sought no better,
Only a quiet dismissal from my post,
And from my heart I wished them better suited

And better served. Good night to Basil,
then !

But fast as I proposed to rid the tribe
Of my obnoxious back, I could not spare them
The pleasure of a parting kick.

Festus. You smile :
 Despise them as they merit !

Paracelsus. If I smile,
 'Tis with as very contempt as ever turned Flesh into stone. This courteous recompense, This grateful . . . Festus, were your nature fit
 To be defiled, your eyes the eyes to ache
 At gangrene-blotches, eating poison-blains,
 The ulcerous barky scurf of leprosy
 Which finds—a man, and leaves—a hideous
 thing
 That cannot but be mended by hell fire,
 —I would lay bare to you the human heart
 Which God cursed long ago, and devils make
 since
 Their pet nest and their never-tiring home.
 Oh, sages have discovered we are born
 For various ends—to love, to know : has ever
 One stumbled, in his search, on any signs
 Of a nature in us formed to hate? To hate?
 If that be our true object which evokes
 Our powers in fullest strength, be sure 'tis hate !
 Yet men have doubted if the best and bravest
 Of spirits can nourish him with hate alone.
 I had not the monopoly of fools,
 It seems, at Basil.

Festus. But your plans, your plans !
 I have yet to learn your purpose, Aureole !

Paracelsus. Whether to sink beneath such ponderous shame,
 To shrink up like a crushed snail, undergo
 In silence and desist from further toil,
 And so subside into a monument
 Of one their censure blasted? or to bow
 Cheerfully as submissively, to lower
 My old pretensions even as Basil dictates,
 To drop into the rank her wits assign me
 And live as they prescribe, and make that use
 Of my poor knowledge which their rules allow,
 Proud to be patted now and then, and careful
 To practise the true posture for receiving
 The amplest benefit from their hoofs' appliance
 When they shall condescend to tutor me?
 Then, one may feel resentment like a flame

Within, and deck false systems in truth's garb,
 And tangle and entwine mankind with error,
 And give them darkness for a dower and falsehood

For a possession, ages : or one may mope
 Into a shade through thinking, or else drowse
 Into a dreamless sleep and so die off.

But I,—now Festus shall divine !—but I Am merely setting out once more, embracing
 My earliest aims again ! What thinks he now?

Festus. Your aims? the aims?—to Know?
 and where is found

The early trust . . .

Paracelsus. Nay, not so fast ; I say,
 The aims—not the old means. You know they made me

A laughing-stock ; I was a fool ; you know
 The when and the how : hardly those means
 again !

Not but they had their beauty ; who should
 know

Their passing beauty, if not I? Still, dreams
 They were, so let them vanish, yet in beauty
 If that may be. Stay : thus they pass in song !

[He sings.]

Heap cassia, sandal-buds and stripes
 Of labdanum,¹ and aloe-balls,
 Smear'd with dull nard an Indian wipes
 From out her hair : such balsam falls
 Down sea-side mountain pedestals,
 From tree-tops where tired winds are fain,
 Spent with the vast and howling main,
 To treasure half their island-gain.

And strew faint sweetness from some old
 Egyptian's fine worm-eaten shroud
 Which breaks to dust when once unrolled ;
 Or shredded perfume, like a cloud
 From closet long to quiet vowed,
 With moth'd and dropping arras hung,
 Mouldering her lute and books among,
 As when a queen, long dead, was young.

Mine, every word ! And on such pile shall die
 My lovely fancies, with fair perished things,
 Themselves fair and forgotten ; yes, forgotten,
 Or why abjure them? So, I made this rhyme

That fitting dignity might be preserved ;
No little proud was I ; though the list of drugs
Smacks of my old vocation, and the verse
Halts like the best of Luther's psalms.

Festus. But, Aureole,
Talk not thus wildly and madly. I am here—Did you know all ! I have travelled far, indeed,

To learn your wishes. Be yourself again !
For in this mood I recognize you less
Than in the horrible despondency
I witnessed last. You may account this, joy ;
But rather let me gaze on that despair
Than hear these incoherent words and see
This flushed cheek and intensely-sparkling eye.

Paracelsus. Why, man, I was light-hearted in my prime,
I am light-hearted now ; what would you have ?
Aprile was a poet, I make songs—
'Tis the very augury of success I want !
Why should I not be joyous now as then ?

Festus. Joyous ! and how ? and what remains for joy ?
You have declared the ends (which I am sick
Of naming) are impracticable.

Paracelsus. Ay,
Pursued as I pursued them—the arch-fool !
Listen : my plan will please you not, 'tis like,
But you are little versed in the world's ways.
This is my plan—(first drinking its good luck)—

I will accept all helps ; all I despised
So rashly at the outset, equally With early impulses, late years have quenched :

I have tried each way singly : now for both !
All helps ! no one sort shall exclude the rest.
I seek to know and to enjoy at once,
Not one without the other as before.
Suppose my labour should seem God's own
cause

Once more, as first I dreamed,—it shall not balk me
Of the meanest earthliest sensualest delight
That may be snatched ; for every joy is gain,
And gain is gain, however small. My soul
Can die then, nor be taunted—"what was gained ?"

Nor, on the other hand, should pleasure follow
As though I had not spurned her hitherto,
Shall she o'ercloud my spirit's rapt communion

With the tumultuous past, the teeming future,
Glorious with visions of a full success.

Festus. Success !

Paracelsus. And wherefore not ?

Why not prefer
Results obtained in my best state of being,
To those derived alone from seasons dark
As the thoughts they bred ? When I was best, my youth

Unwasted, seemed success not surest too ?
It is the nature of darkness to obscure.
I am a wanderer : I remember well
One journey, how I feared the track was missed,

So long the city I desired to reach
Lay hid ; when suddenly its spires afar
Flashed through the circling clouds ; you may conceive

My transport. Soon the vapours closed again.
But I had seen the city, and one such glance
No darkness could obscure : nor shall the present—

A few dull hours, a passing shame or two,
Destroy the vivid memories of the past.
I will fight the battle out ; a little spent
Perhaps, but still an able combatant.

You look at my grey hair and furrowed brow ?
But I can turn even weakness to account :
Of many tricks I know, 'tis not the least
To push the ruins of my frame, whereon
The fire of vigour trembles scarce alive,
Into a heap, and send the flame aloft.
What should I do with age ? So, sickness lends

An aid ; it being, I fear, the source of all
We boast of : mind is nothing but disease,
And natural health is ignorance.

Festus.

I see
But one good symptom in this notable scheme.
I feared your sudden journey had in view
To wreak immediate vengeance on your foes.
'Tis not so : I am glad.

Paracelsus.

And if I please
To spit on them, to trample them, what then ?

'Tis sorry warfare truly, but the fools
Provoke it. I would spare their self-conceit,
But if they must provoke me, cannot suffer
Forbearance on my part, if I may keep
No quality in the shade, must needs put forth Power to match power, my strength against their strength,

And teach them their own game with their own arms—

Why, be it so and let them take their chance !
I am above them like a god, there's no
Hiding the fact : what idle scruples, then,
Were those that ever bade me soften it,
Communicate it gently to the world,
Instead of proving my supremacy,
Taking my natural station o'er their head,
Then owning all the glory was a man's !
—And in my elevation man's would be.
But live and learn, though life's short, learning, hard !

And therefore, though the wreck of my past
self,

I fear, dear Pütter, that your lecture-room
Must wait awhile for its best ornament,
The penitent empiric, who set up
For somebody, but soon was taught his place ;
Now, but too happy to be let confess
His error, snuff the candles, and illustrate (Fiat experientia corpore vili)

Your medicine's soundness in his person.

Wait,
Good Pütter !

Festus. He who sneers thus, is a god !
Paracelsus. Ay, ay, laugh at me ! I am very glad

You are not gulled by all this swaggering ; you
Can see the root of the matter !—how I strive
To put a good face on the overthrow
I have experienced, and to bury and hide
My degradation in its length and breadth ;
How the mean motives I would make you think

Just mingle as is due with nobler aims,
The appetites I modestly allow
May influence me as being mortal still—
Do goad me, drive me on, and fast supplant
My youth's desires. You are no stupid dupe :
You find me out ! Yes, I had sent for you

To palm these childish lies upon you, Festus !
Laugh—you shall laugh at me !

Festus. The past, then, Aureole,
Proves nothing ? Is our interchange of love
Yet to begin ? Have I to swear I mean
No flattery in this speech or that ? For you,
Whate'er you say, there is no degradation ;
These low thoughts are no inmates of your
mind,

Or wherefore this disorder ? You are vexed
As much by the intrusion of base views,
Familiar to your adversaries, as they Were troubled should your qualities alight
Amid their murky souls ; not otherwise,
A stray wolf which the winter forces down
From our bleak hills, suffices to affright
A village in the vales—while foresters Sleep calm, though all night long the famished troop
Snuff round and scratch against their crazy huts.

These evil thoughts are monsters, and will flee.
Paracelsus. May you be happy, Festus, my own friend !

Festus. Nay, further ; the delights you fain would think

The superseders of your nobler aims,
Though ordinary and harmless stimulants,
Will ne'er content you. . . .

Paracelsus. Hush ! I once despised them,
But that soon passes. We are high at first
In our demand, nor will abate a jot
Of toil's strict value ; but time passes o'er,
And humbler spirits accept what we refuse :
In short, when some such comfort is doled out
As these delights, we cannot long retain Bitter contempt which urges us at first
To hurl it back, but hug it to our breast
And thankfully retire. This life of mine
Must be lived out and a grave thoroughly earned :

I am just fit for that and nought beside.
I told you once, I cannot now enjoy,
Unless I deem my knowledge gains through
joy ;

Nor can I know, but straight warm tears reveal
My need of linking also joy to knowledge :
So, on I drive, enjoying all I can,

And knowing all I can. I speak, of course, Confusedly; this will better explain—feel
here!

Quick beating, is it not?—a fire of the heart
To work off some way, this as well as any.
So, Festus sees me fairly launched; his calm Compassionate look might have disturbed me once,

But now, far from rejecting, I invite
What bids me press the closer, lay myself
Open before him, and be soothed with pity;
I hope, if he command hope, and believe
As he directs me—satiating myself
With his enduring love. And Festus quits me
To give place to some credulous disciple
Who holds that God is wise, but Paracelsus
Has his peculiar merits: I suck in
That homage, chuckle o'er that admiration,
And then dismiss the fool; for night is come,
And I betake myself to study again,
Till patient searchings after hidden lore
Half wring some bright truth from its prison;
my frame

Trembles, my forehead's veins swell out, my hair

Tingles for triumph. Slow and sure the morn Shall break on my pent room and dwindling lamp

And furnace dead, and scattered earths and ores;

When, with a failing heart and throbbing brow,
I must review my captured truth, sum up
Its value, trace what ends to what begins,
Its present power with its eventual bearings,
Latent affinities, the views it opens,
And its full length in perfecting my scheme.
I view it sternly circumscribed, cast down
From the high place my fond hopes yielded it, Proved worthless—which, in getting, yet had cost

Another wrench to this fast-falling frame.
Then, quick, the cup to quaff, that chases sorrow!

I lapse back into youth, and take again
My fluttering pulse for evidence that God Means good to me, will make my cause his
own.

See! I have cast off this remorseless care

Which clogged a spirit born to soar so free,
And my dim chamber has become a tent,
Festus is sitting by me, and his Michal . . .
Why do you start? I say, she listening here,
(For yonder—Würzburg through the orchardbough!)

Motions as though such ardent words should find

No echo in a maiden's quiet soul,
But her pure bosom heaves, her eyes fill fast
With tears, her sweet lips tremble all the while!

Ha, ha!

Festus. It seems, then, you expect to reap
No unreal joy from this your present course,
But rather . . .

Paracelsus. Death! To die! I owe that
much

To what, at least, I was. I should be sad
To live contented after such a fall,
To thrive and fatten after such reverse!
The whole plan is a makeshift, but will last
My time.

Festus. And you have never mused and
said,

“I had a noble purpose, and the strength
“To compass it; but I have stopped half-way,
“And wrongly given the first-fruits of my toil
“To objects little worthy of the gift.
“Why linger round them still? why clench my fault?

“Why seek for consolation in defeat,
“In vain endeavours to derive a beauty
“From ugliness? why seek to make the most “Of what no power can change, nor strive instead

“With mighty effort to redeem the past “And, gathering up the treasures thus cast
down,

“To hold a steadfast course till I arrive
“At their fit destination and my own?”

You have never pondered thus?

Paracelsus. Have I, you ask.

Often at midnight, when most fancies come,
Would some such airy project visit me:
But ever at the end . . . or will you hear
The same thing in a tale, a parable?
You and I, wandering over the world wide,

Chance to set foot upon a desert coast.
Just as we cry, "No human voice before
"Broke the inveterate silence of these rocks!"
—Their querulous echo startles us; we
turn :

What ravaged structure still looks o'er the sea?
Some characters remain, too! While we read,
The sharp salt wind, impatient for the last
Of even this record, wistfully comes and goes,
Or sings what we recover, mocking it.
This is the record; and my voice, the wind's.
[He sings.

Over the sea our galleys went,
With cleaving prows in order brave
To a speeding wind and a bounding wave,
A gallant armament :
Each bark built out of a forest-tree
Left leafy and rough as first it grew,
And nailed all over the gaping sides,
Within and without, with black bull-hides,
Seethed in fat and suppled in flame,
To bear the playful billows' game :
So, each good ship was rude to see,
Rude and bare to the outward view,
But each upbore a stately tent
Where cedar pales in scented row
Kept out the flakes of the dancing brine,
And an awning drooped the mast below,
In fold on fold of the purple fine,
That neither noontide nor starshine
Nor moonlight cold which maketh mad,
Might pierce the regal tenement.
When the sun dawned, oh, gay and glad
We set the sail and plied the oar ;
But when the night-wind blew like breath,
For joy of one day's voyage more,
We sang together on the wide sea,
Like men at peace on a peaceful shore ;
Each sail was loosed to the wind so
free,
Each helm made sure by the twilight star,
And in a sleep as calm as death,
We, the voyagers from afar,
Lay stretched along, each weary crew
In a circle round its wondrous tent
Whence gleamed soft light and curled rich scent,
And with light and perfume, music too :

So the stars wheeled round, and the darkness past,
And at morn we started beside the mast,
And still each ship was sailing fast.

Now, one morn, land appeared—a speck
Dim trembling betwixt sea and sky :
"Avoid it," cried our pilot, "check
"The shout, restrain the eager eye !
But the heaving sea was black behind
For many a night and many a day,
And land, though but a rock, drew nigh ;
So, we broke the cedar pales away,
Let the purple awning flap in the wind,
And a statue bright was on every deck !
We shouted, every man of us,
And steered right into the harbour thus,
With pomp and pæan glorious.

A hundred shapes of lucid stone !
All day we built its shrine for each,
A shrine of rock for every one,
Nor paused till in the westering sun
We sat together on the beach
To sing because our task was done.
When lo ! what shouts and merry songs !
What laughter all the distance stirs !
A loaded raft with happy throngs
Of gentle islanders !
"Our isles are just at hand," they cried,
"Like cloudlets faint in even sleeping ;
"Our temple-gates are opened wide,
"Our olive-groves thick shade are keeping
"For these majestic forms"—they cried.
Oh, then we awoke with sudden start
From our deep dream, and knew, too
late,
How bare the rock, how desolate,
Which had received our precious freight :
Yet we called out—"Depart !
"Our gifts, once given, must here abide.
"Our work is done ; we have no heart
"To mar our work,"—we cried.

Festus. In truth ?

Paracelsus. Nay, wait : all this in tracings faint

On rugged stones strewn here and there, but piled
In order once: then follows—mark what follows!

“The sad rhyme of the men who proudly clung “To their first fault, and withered in their pride.”

Festus. Come back then, Aureole; as you fear God, come!

This is foul sin; come back! Renounce the past,

Forswear the future; look for joy no more,
But wait death's summons amid holy sights,
And trust me for the event—peace, if not joy.
Return with me to Einsiedeln, dear Aureole!

Paracelsus. No way, no way! it would not turn to good.

A spotless child sleeps on the flowering moss—
'Tis well for him; but when a sinful man, Envyng such slumber, may desire to put
His guilt away, shall he return at once
To rest by lying there? Our sires knew well (Spite of the grave discoveries of their sons)
The fitting course for such: dark cells, dim lamps,

A stone floor one may writhe on like a worm:
No mossy pillow blue with violets!

Festus. I see no symptom of these absolute
And tyrannous passions. You are calmer now.
This verse-making can purge you well enough
Without the terrible penance you describe.
You love me still: the lusts you fear will never Outrage your friend. To Einsiedeln, once
more!

Say but the word!

Paracelsus. No, no; those lusts forbid:
They crouch, I know, cowering with half-shut
eye

Beside you; 'tis their nature. Thrust yourself Between them and their prey; let some fool style me

Or king or quack, it matters not—then try Your wisdom, urge them to forego their treat!

No, no; learn better and look deeper, Festus!
If you knew how a devil sneers within me
While you are talking now of this, now that,
As though we differed scarcely save in trifles!

Festus. Do we so differ? True, change must proceed,

Whether for good or ill; keep from me, which!
Do not confide all secrets: I was born
To hope, and you . . .

Paracelsus. To trust: you know the fruits!

Festus. Listen: I do believe, what you call
trust

Was self-delusion at the best: for, see!
So long as God would kindly pioneer
A path for you, and screen you from the world,
Procure you full exemption from man's lot,
Man's common hopes and fears, on the mere pretext

Of your engagement in his service—yield you
A limitless licence, make you God, in fact,
And turn your slave—you were content to say
Most courtly praises! What is it, at last,
But selfishness without example? None Could trace God's will so plain as you, while
yours

Remained implied in it; but now you fail,
And we, who prate about that will, are fools!
In short, God's service is established here
As he determines fit, and not your way,
And this you cannot brook. Such discontent
Is weak. Renounce all creatureship at once!
Affirm an absolute right to have and use Your energies; as though the rivers should
say—

“We rush to the ocean; what have we to do “With feeding streamlets, lingering in the vales,

“Sleeping in lazy pools?” Set up that plea,
That will be bold at least!

Paracelsus. 'Tis like enough.

The serviceable spirits are those, no doubt,
The East produces: lo, the master bids,—
They wake, raise terraces and garden-grounds
In one night's space; and, this done, straight begin

Another century's sleep, to the great praise
Of him that framed them wise and beautiful,
Till a lamp's rubbing, or some chance akin,
Wake them again. I am of different mould.
I would have soothed my lord, and slaved for
him

And done him service past my narrow bond

Paracelsus. Stone dead !—then you have laid her Among the flowers ere this. Now, do you
know,

I can reveal a secret which shall comfort
Even you. I have no julep, as men think,
To cheat the grave ; but a far better secret.
Know, then, you did not ill to trust your love
To the cold earth : I have thought much of it :
For I believe we do not wholly die.

Festus. Aureole !

Paracelsus. Nay, do not laugh ;
there is a reason
For what I say : I think the soul can never Taste death. I am, just now, as you may see,
Very unfit to put so strange a thought
In an intelligible dress of words ;
But take it as my trust, she is not dead.

Festus. But not on this account alone ?
you surely,
—Aureole, you have believed this all along ?

Paracelsus. And Michal sleeps among the roots and dews,
While I am moved at Basil, and full of schemes
For Nuremberg, and hoping and despairing,
As though it mattered how the farce plays out,
So it be quickly played. Away, away !
Have your will, rabble ! while we fight the
prize,
Troop you in safety to the snug back-seats
And leave a clear arena for the brave
About to perish for your sport !—Behold !

V.—PARACELSUS ATTAINS.

SCENE.—Salzburg ; a cell in the Hospital of St. Sebastian. 1541.

FESTUS, PARACELSUS.

Festus. No change ! The weary night is well-nigh spent,
The lamp burns low, and through the casement-bars
Grey morning glimmers feebly : yet no
change !

Another night, and still no sigh has stirred
That fallen discoloured mouth, no pang relit
Those fixed eyes, quenched by the decaying body,

Like torch-flame choked in dust. While all beside

Was breaking, to the last they held out bright,
As a stronghold where life intrenched itself ;
But they are dead now—very blind and dead :
He will drowse into death without a groan.

My Aureole—my forgotten, ruined Aureole !
The days are gone, are gone ! How grand thou wast !

And now not one of those who struck thee
down—

Poor glorious spirit—concerns him even to stay
And satisfy himself his little hand
Could turn God's image to a livid thing.

Another night, and yet no change ! 'Tis
much

That I should sit by him, and bathe his brow,
And chafe his hands ; 'tis much : but he will sure

Know me, and look on me, and speak to me Once more—but only once ! His hollow
cheek

Looked all night long as though a creeping laugh

At his own state were just about to break
From the dying man : my brain swam, my throat swelled,

And yet I could not turn away. In truth,
They told me how, when first brought here,
he seemed

Resolved to live, to lose no faculty ;
Thus striving to keep up his shattered strength.
Until they bore him to this stifling cell :

When straight his features fell, an hour made white

The flushed face, and relaxed the quivering
limb,

Only the eye remained intense awhile
As though it recognized the tomb-like place.
And then he lay as here he lies.

Ay, here !

Here is earth's noblest, nobly garlanded—

Her bravest champion with his well-won
prize—

Her best achievement, her sublime amends
For countless generations fleeting fast
And followed by no trace ;—the creature-god
She instances when angels would dispute
The title of her brood to rank with them.
Angels, this is our angel ! Those bright forms
We clothe with purple, crown and call to thrones,

Are human, but not his ; those are but men Whom other men press round and kneel
before ;

Those palaces are dwelt in by mankind ;
Higher provision is for him you seek
Amid our pomps and glories : see it here !
Behold earth's paragon ! Now, raise thee,
clay !

God ! Thou art love ! I build my faith on
that.

Even as I watch beside thy tortured child
Unconscious whose hot tears fall fast by him,
So doth thy right hand guide us through the
world

Wherein we stumble. God ! what shall we
say ?

How has he sinned ? How else should he have done ?

Surely he sought thy praise—thy praise, for all
He might be busied by the task so much
As half forget awhile its proper end.

Dost thou well, Lord ? Thou canst not but prefer

That I should range myself upon his side—
How could he stop at every step to set
Thy glory forth ? Hadst thou but granted him Success, thy honour would have crowned
success,

A halo round a star. Or, say he erred,— Save him, dear God ; it will be like thee :
bathe him

In light and life ! Thou are not made like us ;
We should be wroth in such a case ; but thou Forgivest — so, forgive these passionate thoughts

Which come unsought and will not pass
away !

I know thee, who hast kept my path, and
made

Light for me in the darkness, tempering
sorrow

So that it reached me like a solemn joy ;
It were too strange that I should doubt thy
love.

But what am I ? Thou madest him and knowest

How he was fashioned. I could never err
That way : the quiet place beside thy feet,
Reserved for me, was ever in my thoughts :
But he—thou shouldst have favoured him as
well !

Ah ! he wakens ! Aureole, I am here ! 'tis Festus !

I cast away all wishes save one wish—
Let him but know me, only speak to me !
He mutters ; louder and louder ; any other
Than I, with brain less laden, could collect What he pours forth. Dear Aureole, do but look !

Is it talking or singing, this he utters fast ?
Misery that he should fix me with his eye,
Quick talking to some other all the while !
If he would husband this wild vehemence
Which frustrates its intent !—I heard, I know
I heard my name amid those rapid words.
Oh, he will know me yet ! Could I divert
This current, lead it somehow gently back
Into the channels of the past !—His eye
Brighter than ever ! It must recognize me !

I am Erasmus : I am here to pray
That Paracelsus use his skill for me.
The schools of Paris and of Padua send
These questions for your learning to resolve.
We are your students, noble master : leave
This wretched cell, what business have you
here ?

Our class awaits you ; come to us once more !
(O agony ! the utmost I can do Touches him not ; how else arrest his ear ?)
I am commissioned . . . I shall craze like
him.

Better be mute and see what God shall send.
Paracelsus. Stay, stay with me !

Festus. I will ; I am come here
To stay with you—Festus, you loved of old ;
Festus, you know, you must know !

Paracelsus. Festus ! Where's
Aprile, then ? Has he not chanted softly
The melodies I heard all night ? I could not Get to him for a cold hand on my breast,
But I made out his music well enough,
O well enough ! If they have filled him full
With magical music, as they freight a star
With light, and have remitted all his sin,
They will forgive me too, I too shall know !

Festus. Festus, your Festus !

Paracelsus. Ask him if Aprile Knows as he Loves—if I shall Love and
Know ?

I try ; but that cold hand, like lead—so cold !

Festus. My hand, see !

Paracelsus. Ah, the curse, Aprile,
Aprile !

We get so near—so very, very near !
'Tis an old tale : Jove strikes the Titans
down,

Not when they set about their mountain-piling

But when another rock would crown the work.
And Phaeton—doubtless his first radiant plunge

Astonished mortals, though the gods were
calm,

And Jove prepared his thunder : all old tales !

Festus. And what are these to you ?

Paracelsus. Ay, fiends must laugh
So cruelly, so well ! most like I never Could tread a single pleasure underfoot,
But they were grinning by my side, were chuckling

To see me toil and drop away by flakes !
Hell-spawn ! I am glad, most glad, that thus I fail !

Your cunning has o'ershot its aim. One year,

One month, perhaps, and I had served your
turn !

You should have curbed your spite awhile.
But now,

Who will believe 'twas you that held me
back ?

Listen : there's shame and hissing and contempt,

And none but laughs who names me, none
but spits

Measureless scorn upon me, me alone,
The quack, the cheat, the liar,—all on me !
And thus your famous plan to sink mankind
In silence and despair, by teaching them
One of their race had probed the inmost truth,
Had done all man could do, yet failed no
less—

Your wise plan proves abortive. Men
despair ?

Ha, ha ! why, they are hooting the empiric,
The ignorant and incapable fool who rushed
Madly upon a work beyond his wits ;

Nor doubt they but the simplest of themselves

Could bring the matter to triumphant issue.
So, pick and choose among them all, accursed !

Try now, persuade some other to slave for
you,

To ruin body and soul to work your ends !

No, no ; I am the first and last, I think.

Festus. Dear friend, who are accursed ?
who has done . . .

Paracelsus. What have I done ? Fiends dare ask that ? or you,

Brave men ? Oh, you can chime in boldly, backed

By the others ! What had you to do, sage peers ?

Here stand my rivals ; Latin, Arab, Jew,
Greek, join dead hands against me : all I ask
Is, that the world enrol my name with theirs,
And even this poor privilege, it seems,
They range themselves, prepared to disallow.
Only observe ! why, fiends may learn from
them !

How they talk calmly of my throes, my fierce Aspirings, terrible watchings, each one claiming

Its price of blood and brain ; how they dissect
And sneeringly disparage the few truths
Got at a life's cost ; they too hanging the while
About my neck, their lies misleading me
And their dead names browbeating me !

Grey crew,

Yet steeped in fresh malevolence from hell,
Is there a reason for your hate? My truths
Have shaken a little the palm about each prince?

Just think, Aprile, all these leering dotards
Were bent on nothing less than to be crowned As we! That yellow blear-eyed wretch in chief

To whom the rest cringe low with feigned
respect,

Galen of Pergamos and hell—nay speak
The tale, old man! We met there face to
face:

I said the crown should fall from thee. Once
more

We meet as in that ghastly vestibule:
Look to my brow! Have I redeemed my pledge?

Festus. Peace, peace; ah, see!

Paracelsus. Oh, emptiness of fame!

Oh Persic Zoroaster, lord of stars!
—Who said these old renowns, dead long ago,
Could make me overlook the living world
To gaze through gloom at where they stood,
indeed,

But stand no longer? What a warm light life
After the shade! In truth, my delicate witch,
My serpent-queen, you did but well to hide
The juggles I had else detected. Fire
May well run harmless o'er a breast like
yours!

The cave was not so darkened by the smoke
But that your white limbs dazzled me: oh,
white,

And panting as they twinkled, wildly dancing!

I cared not for your passionate gestures then,
But now I have forgotten the charm of charms,

The foolish knowledge which I came to seek,
While I remember that quaint dance; and
thus

I am come back, not for those mummeries,
But to love you, and to kiss your little feet
Soft as an ermine's winter coat!

Festus. A light

Will struggle through these thronging words
at last.

As in the angry and tumultuous West
A soft star trembles through the drifting
clouds.

These are the strivings of a spirit which hates
So sad a vault should coop it, and calls up
The past to stand between it and its fate.
Were he at Einsiedeln—or Michal here!

Paracelsus. Cruel! I seek her now—I kneel—I shriek—

I clasp her vesture—but she fades, still fades;
And she is gone; sweet human love is gone!
'Tis only when they spring to heaven that angels

Reveal themselves to you; they sit all day
Beside you, and lie down at night by you
Who care not for their presence, muse or sleep,
And all at once they leave you, and you know
them!

We are so fooled, so cheated! Why, even
now

I am not too secure against foul play;
The shadows deepen and the walls contract:
No doubt some treachery is going on.

'Tis very dusk. Where are we put, Aprile?
Have they left us in the lurch? This murky loathsome

Death-trap, this slaughter-house, is not the hall

In the golden city! Keep by me, Aprile!
There is a hand groping amid the blackness
To catch us. Have the spider-fingers got you, Poet? Hold on me for your life! If once
They pull you!—Hold!

'Tis but a dream—no more!

I have you still; the sun comes out again;
Let us be happy: all will yet go well!

Let us confer: is it not like, Aprile,
That spite of trouble, this ordeal passed,
The value of my labours ascertained,
Just as some stream foams long among the rocks

But after glideth glassy to the sea,
So, full content shall henceforth be my lot?
What think you, poet? Louder! Your clear voice

Vibrates too like a harp-string. Do you ask
How could I still remain on earth, should God
Grant me the great approval which I seek?

I, you, and God can comprehend each other,
But men would murmur, and with cause
enough ;

For when they saw me, stainless of all sin,
Preserved and sanctified by inward light,
They would complain that comfort, shut from
them,

I drank thus unespied ; that they live on,
Nor taste the quiet of a constant joy,
For ache and care and doubt and weariness,
While I am calm ; help being vouchsafed to me,
And hid from them.—'Twere best consider
that !

You reason well, Aprile ; but at least
Let me know this, and die ! Is this too much ?
I will learn this, if God so please, and die !

If thou shalt please, dear God, if thou shalt please !

We are so weak, we know our motives least
In their confused beginning. If at first I sought . . . but wherefore bare my heart to thee ?

I know thy mercy ; and already thoughts
Flock fast about my soul to comfort it,
And intimate I cannot wholly fail,
For love and praise would clasp me willingly
Could I resolve to seek them. Thou art good,
And I should be content. Yet—yet first show
I have done wrong in daring ! Rather give
The supernatural consciousness of strength
Which fed my youth ! Only one hour of that With thee to help—O what should bar me
then !

Lost, lost ! Thus things are ordered here !
God's creatures,

And yet he takes no pride in us !—none, none !
Truly there needs another life to come !
If this be all—(I must tell Festus that)
And other life await us not—for one,
I say 'tis a poor cheat, a stupid bungle,
A wretched failure. I, for one, protest Against it, and I hurl it back with scorn.

Well, onward though alone ! Small time
remains,

And much to do : I must have fruit, must reap

Some profit from my toils. I doubt my body Will hardly serve me through ; while I have laboured

It has decayed ; and now that I demand
Its best assistance, it will crumble fast :
A sad thought, a sad fate ! How very full
Of wormwood 'tis, that just at altar-service,
The rapt hymn rising with the rolling smoke,
When glory dawns and all is at the best,
The sacred fire may flicker and grow faint
And die for want of a wood-piler's help !
Thus fades the flagging body, and the soul
Is pulled down in the overthrow. Well,
well—

Let men catch every word, let them lose
nought

Of what I say ; something may yet be done.

They are ruins ! Trust me who am one of you !
All ruins, glorious once, but lonely now.

It makes my heart sick to behold you crouch
Beside your desolate fane : the arches dim,
The crumbling columns grand against the moon,

Could I but rear them up once more—but that May never be, so leave them ! Trust me,
friends,

Why should you linger here when I have built
A far resplendent temple, all your own ?
Trust me, they are but ruins ! See, Aprile,
Men will not heed ! Yet were I not prepared
With better refuge for them, tongue of mine
Should ne'er reveal how blank their dwelling is :

I would sit down in silence with the rest.

Ha, what ? you spit at me, you grin and shriek
Contempt into my ear—my ear which drank God's accents once ? you curse me ? Why men, men,

I am not formed for it ! Those hideous eyes
Will be before me sleeping, waking, praying,
They will not let me even die. Spare, spare
me,

Sinning or no, forget that, only spare me
The horrible scorn ! You thought I could support it.

But now you see what silly fragile creature

Cowers thus. I am not good nor bad enough,
Not Christ nor Cain, yet even Cain was saved
From Hate like this. Let me but totter back !
Perhaps I shall elude those jeers which creep
Into my very brain, and shut these scorched
Eyelids and keep those mocking faces out.

Listen, Aprile ! I am very calm :
Be not deceived, there is no passion here
Where the blood leaps like an imprisoned
thing :

I am calm : I will exterminate the race !
Enough of that : 'tis said and it shall be.
And now be merry : safe and sound am I Who broke through their best ranks to get at you.

And such a havoc, such a rout, Aprile !

Festus. Have you no thought, no memory
for me,

Aureole ? I am so wretched—my pure Michal
Is gone, and you alone are left me now,
And even you forget me. Take my hand—
Lean on me thus. Do you not know me, Aureole ?

Paracelsus. Festus, my own friend, you are come at last ?

As you say, 'tis an awful enterprise ;
But you believe I shall go through with it :
'Tis like you, and I thank you. Thank him
for me,

Dear Michal ! See how bright St. Saviour's
spire

Flames in the sunset ; all its figures quaint Gay in the glancing light : you might conceive them

A troop of yellow-vested white-haired Jews
Bound for their own land where redemption dawns.

Festus. Not that blest time—not our youth's time, dear God !

Paracelsus. Ha—stay ! true, I forget—all is done since,

And he is come to judge me. How he speaks,
How calm, how well ! yes, it is true, all true ;
All quackery ; all deceit ; myself can laugh
The first at it, if you desire : but still
You know the obstacles which taught me tricks
So foreign to my nature—envy and hate,

Blind opposition, brutal prejudice,
Bald ignorance—what wonder if I sunk
To humour men the way they most approved ?
My cheats were never palmed on such as you,
Dear Festus ! I will kneel if you require me,
Impart the meagre knowledge I possess,
Explain its bounded nature, and avow
My insufficiency—whate'er you will :
I give the fight up : let there be an end,
A privacy, an obscure nook for me.
I want to be forgotten even by God.

But if that cannot be, dear Festus, lay me,
When I shall die, within some narrow grave,
Not by itself—for that would be too proud—
But where such graves are thickest ; let it look
Nowise distinguished from the hillocks round,
So that the peasant at his brother's bed
May tread upon my own and know it not ;
And we shall all be equal at the last,
Or classed according to life's natural ranks,
Fathers, sons, brothers, friends—not rich,
nor wise,

Nor gifted : lay me thus, then say, "He lived
"Too much advanced before his brother men ;
"They kept him still in front : 'twas for their good

"But yet a dangerous station. It were strange "That he should tell God he had never ranked
"With men : so, here at least he is a man."

Festus. That God shall take thee to his breast, dear spirit,

Unto his breast, be sure ! and here on earth
Shall splendour sit upon thy name for ever.
Sun ! all the heaven is glad for thee : what
care

If lower mountains light their snowy phares
At thine effulgence, yet acknowledge not The source of day ? Their theft shall be their bale :

For after-ages shall retrack thy beams,
And put aside the crowd of busy ones
And worship thee alone—the master-mind,
The thinker, the explorer, the creator !
Then, who should sneer at the convulsive throes

With which thy deeds were born, would scorn as well

The sheet of winding subterraneous fire

Which, pent and writhing, sends no less at last Huge islands up amid the simmering sea.
Behold thy might in me ! thou hast infused
Thy soul in mine ; and I am grand as thou,
Seeing I comprehend thee—I so simple,
Thou so august. I recognize thee first ;
I saw thee rise, I watched thee early and late,
And though no glance reveal thou dost accept
My homage—thus no less I proffer it,
And bid thee enter gloriously thy rest.

Paracelsus. Festus !

Festus. I am for noble Aureole, God !
I am upon his side, come weal or woe.
His portion shall be mine. He has done well.
I would have sinned, had I been strong enough,
As he has sinned. Reward him or I waive Reward ! If thou canst find no place for him,
He shall be king elsewhere, and I will be
His slave for ever. There are two of us.

Paracelsus. Dear Festus !

Festus. Here, dear Aureole ! ever by you !

Paracelsus. Nay, speak on, or I dream again. Speak on !

Some story, anything—only your voice.
I shall dream else. Speak on ! ay, leaning so !

Festus. Thus the Mayne glideth
Where my Love abideth.

Sleep's no softer : it proceeds
On through lawns, on through meads,
On and on, whate'er befall,
Meandering and musical,
Though the niggard pasturage
Bears not on its shaven ledge
Aught but weeds and waving grasses
To view the river as it passes,
Save here and there a scanty patch
Of primroses too faint to catch
A weary bee.

Paracelsus. More, more ; say on !

Festus. And scarce it pushes
Its gentle way through strangling rushes
Where the glossy kingfisher
Flutters when noon-heats are near,
Glad the shelving banks to shun,
Red and steaming in the sun,
Where the shrew-mouse with pale throat
Burrows, and the speckled stoat ;

Where the quick sandpipers flit
In and out the marl and grit
That seems to breed them, brown as they :
Nought disturbs its quiet way,
Save some lazy stork that springs,
Trailing it with legs and wings,
Whom the shy fox from the hill
Rouses, creep he ne'er so still.

Paracelsus. My heart ! they loose my heart, those simple words ;
Its darkness passes, which nought else could touch :

Like some dark snake that force may not expel,
Which glideth out to music sweet and low.
What were you doing when your voice broke
through

A chaos of ugly images ? You, indeed !
Are you alone here ?

Festus. All alone : you know me ?
This cell ?

Paracelsus. An unexceptionable vault :
Good brick and stone : the bats kept out,
the rats
Kept in : a snug nook : how should I mistake it ?

Festus. But wherefore am I here ?

Paracelsus. Ah, well remembered !
Why, for a purpose—for a purpose, Festus !
'Tis like me : here I trifle while time fleets,
And this occasion, lost, will ne'er return.
You are here to be instructed. I will tell
God's message ; but I have so much to say,
I fear to leave half out. All is confused
No doubt ; but doubtless you will learn in
time.

He would not else have brought you here :
no doubt

I shall see clearer soon.

Festus. Tell me but this—
You are not in despair ?

Paracelsus. I ? and for what ?

Festus. Alas, alas ! he knows not, as I feared !

Paracelsus. What is it you would ask me with that earnest
Dear searching face ?

Festus. How feel you, Aureole ?

Paracelsus. Well :

Not even your hand. So! there, I stand
once more!

Speak from a couch? I never lectured thus.
My gown—the scarlet lined with fur; now put

The chain about my neck; my signet-ring
Is still upon my hand, I think—even so;
Last, my good sword; ah, trusty Azoth, leapest

Beneath thy master's grasp for the last time?
This couch shall be my throne: I bid these walls

Be consecrate, this wretched cell become A shrine, for here God speaks to men through
me.

Now, Festus, I am ready to begin.

Festus. I am dumb with wonder.

Paracelsus. Listen, therefore, Festus!
There will be time enough, but none to spare.
I must content myself with telling only
The most important points. You doubtless feel

That I am happy, Festus; very happy.

Festus. 'Tis no delusion which uplifts him
thus!

Then you are pardoned, Aureole, all your sin?

Paracelsus. Ay, pardoned: yet why pardoned?

Festus. 'Tis God's praise

That man is bound to seek, and you . . .

Paracelsus. Have lived!

We have to live alone to set forth well
God's praise. 'Tis true, I sinned much, as I thought,

And in effect need mercy, for I strove
To do that very thing; but, do your best
Or worst, praise rises, and will rise for ever.
Pardon from him, because of praise denied—
Who calls me to himself to exalt himself?
He might laugh as I laugh!

Festus. But all comes
To the same thing. 'Tis fruitless for mankind
To fret themselves with what concerns them
not;

They are no use that way: they should lie
down

Content as God has made them, nor go mad
In thriveless cares to better what is ill.

Paracelsus. No, no; mistake me not; let me not work

More harm than I have worked! This is my case:

If I go joyous back to God, yet bring
No offering, if I render up my soul
Without the fruits it was ordained to bear,
If I appear the better to love God
For sin, as one who has no claim on him,—
Be not deceived! It may be surely thus
With me, while higher prizes still await
The mortal persevering to the end.

Beside I am not all so valueless:
I have been something, though too soon I left
Following the instincts of that happy time.

Festus. What happy time? For God's sake, for man's sake,

What time was happy? All I hope to know
That answer will decide. What happy time?

Paracelsus. When but the time I vowed myself to man?

Festus. Great God, thy judgments are inscrutable!

Paracelsus. Yes, it was in me; I was born for it—

I, Paracelsus: it was mine by right.
Doubtless a searching and impetuous soul Might learn from its own motions that some
task

Like this awaited it about the world;
Might seek somewhere in this blank life of ours

For fit delights to stay its longings vast;
And, grappling Nature, so prevail on her
To fill the creature full she dared thus frame
Hungry for joy; and, bravely tyrannous,
Grow in demand, still craving more and more,
And make each joy conceded prove a pledge
Of other joy to follow—bating nought
Of its desires, still seizing fresh pretence
To turn the knowledge and the rapture wring

As an extreme, last boon, from destiny,
Into occasion for new covetings,
New strifes, new triumphs:—doubtless a strong soul,

Alone, unaided might attain to this,
So glorious is our nature, so august

Man's inborn uninstructed impulses,
 His naked spirit so majestic !
 But this was born in me ; I was made so ;
 Thus much time saved : the feverish appetites,
 The tumult of unproved desire, the unaimed
 Uncertain yearnings, aspirations blind,
 Distrust, mistake, and all that ends in tears
 Were saved me ; thus I entered on my course.
 You may be sure I was not all exempt
 From human trouble ; just so much of doubt
 As bade me plant a surer foot upon
 The sun-road, kept my eye unruined 'mid
 The fierce and flashing splendour, set my
 heart

Trembling so much as warned me I stood
 there

On sufferance—not to idly gaze, but cast
 Light on a darkling race ; save for that doubt,
 I stood at first where all aspire at last
 To stand : the secret of the world was mine.
 I knew, I felt, (perception unexpressed,
 Uncomprehended by our narrow thought,
 But somehow felt and known in every shift
 And change in the spirit,—nay, in every pore
 Of the body, even,)—what God is, what we
 are,

What life is—how God tastes an infinite joy
 In infinite ways—one everlasting bliss,
 From whom all being emanates, all power
 Proceeds ; in whom is life for evermore,
 Yet whom existence in its lowest form Includes ; where dwells enjoyment there is
 he :

With still a flying point of bliss remote,
 A happiness in store afar, a sphere
 Of distant glory in full view ; thus climbs
 Pleasure its heights for ever and for ever.
 The centre-fire heaves underneath the earth,
 And the earth changes like a human face ;
 The molten ore bursts up among the rocks,
 Winds into the stone's heart, outbranches
 bright

In hidden mines, spots barren river-beds, Crumbles into fine sand where sunbeams
 task—

God joys therein. The wroth sea's waves are edged

With foam, white as the bitten lip of hate,

When, in the solitary waste, strange groups
 Of young volcanos come up, cyclops-like,
 Staring together with their eyes on flame—
 God tastes a pleasure in their uncouth pride.
 Then all is still ; earth is a wintry clod :
 But spring-wind, like a dancing psaltress, passes

Over its breast to waken it, rare verdure
 Buds tenderly upon rough banks, between The withered tree-roots and the cracks of frost,

Like a smile striving with a wrinkled face ;
 The grass grows bright, the boughs are swoln with blooms

Like chrysalids impatient for the air,
 The shining dorrs are busy, beetles run
 Along the furrows, ants make their ado ;
 Above, birds fly in merry flocks, the lark
 Soars up and up, shivering for very joy ;
 Afar the ocean sleeps ; white fishing-gulls
 Flit where the strand is purple with its tribe
 Of nested limpets ; savage creatures seek Their loves in wood and plain—and God renews

His ancient rapture. Thus he dwells in all,
 From life's minute beginnings, up at last
 To man—the consummation of this scheme
 Of being, the completion of this sphere
 Of life : whose attributes had here and there
 Been scattered o'er the visible world before,
 Asking to be combined, dim fragments meant
 To be united in some wondrous whole,
 Imperfect qualities throughout creation,
 Suggesting some one creature yet to make,
 Some point where all those scattered rays should meet

Convergent in the faculties of man.
 Power—neither put forth blindly, nor controlled

Calmly by perfect knowledge ; to be used
 At risk, inspired or checked by hope and fear :
 Knowledge—not intuition, but the slow
 Uncertain fruit of an enhancing toil,
 Strengthened by love: love—not serenely pure,
 But strong from weakness, like a chance-sown
 plant

Which, cast on stubborn soil, puts forth changed buds

And softer stains, unknown in happier climes ;
Love which endures and doubts and is oppressed

And cherished, suffering much and much sustained,

And blind, oft-failing, yet believing love,
A half-enlightened, often-chequered trust :—
Hints and previsions of which faculties,
Are strewn confusedly everywhere about
The inferior natures, and all lead up higher,
All shape out dimly the superior race,
The heir of hopes too fair to turn out false,
And man appears at last. So far the seal
Is put on life ; one stage of being complete,
One scheme wound up : and from the grand result

A supplementary reflux of light,
Illustrates all the inferior grades, explains
Each back step in the circle. Not alone
For their possessor dawn those qualities,
But the new glory mixes with the heaven
And earth ; man, once descried, imprints for ever

His presence on all lifeless things : the winds
Are henceforth voices, wailing or a shout,
A querulous mutter or a quick gay laugh,
Never a senseless gust now man is born.
The herded pines commune and have deep
thoughts,

A secret they assemble to discuss
When the sun drops behind their trunks which glare

Like grates of hell : the peerless cup afloat
Of the lake-lily is an urn, some nymph
Swims bearing high above her head : no bird
Whistles unseen, but through the gaps above
That let light in upon the gloomy woods,
A shape peeps from the breezy forest-top,
Arch with small puckered mouth and mocking
eye.

The morn has enterprise, deep quiet droops
With evening, triumph takes the sunset hour,
Voluptuous transport ripens with the corn
Beneath a warm moon like a happy face :
—And this to fill us with regard for man.
With apprehension of his passing worth,
Desire to work his proper nature out,
And ascertain his rank and final place,

For these things tend still upward, progress is
The law of life, man is not Man as yet.
Nor shall I deem his object served, his end Attained, his genuine strength put fairly
forth,

While only here and there a star dispels
The darkness, here and there a towering mind
O'erlooks its prostrate fellows : when the host
Is out at once to the despair of night,
When all mankind alike is perfected,
Equal in full-blown powers—then, not till
then,

I say, begins man's general infancy.
For wherefore make account of feverish starts
Of restless members of a dormant whole,
Impatient nerves which quiver while the body
Slumbers as in a grave? Oh long ago
The brow was twitched, the tremulous lids
astir,

The peaceful mouth disturbed ; half-uttered
speech
Ruffled the lip, and then the teeth were set,
The breath drawn sharp, the strong right-hand
clenched stronger,
As it would pluck a lion by the jaw ;
The glorious creature laughed out even in sleep !

But when full roused, each giant-limb awake,
Each sinew strung, the great heart pulsing fast,
He shall start up and stand on his own earth,
Then shall his long triumphant march begin,
Thence shall his being date,—thus wholly roused,

What he achieves shall be set down to him.
When all the race is perfected alike
As man, that is ; all tended to mankind,
And, man produced, all has its end thus far :
But in completed man begins anew
A tendency to God. Prognostics told
Man's near approach ; so in man's self arise
August anticipations, symbols, types
Of a dim splendour ever on before
In that eternal circle life pursues.
For men begin to pass their nature's bound,
And find new hopes and cares which fast supplant
Their proper joys and griefs ; they grow too great

For narrow creeds of right and wrong, which fade
Before the unmeasured thirst for good : while
peace
Rises within them ever more and more.
Such men are even now upon the earth,
Serene amid the half-formed creatures round
Who should be saved by them and joined with them.
Such was my task, and I was born to it—
Free, as I said but now, from much that chains
Spirits, high-dowered but limited and vexed
By a divided and delusive aim,
A shadow mocking a reality
Whose truth avails not wholly to disperse
The fitting mimic called up by itself,
And so remains perplexed and nigh put out
By its fantastic fellow's wavering gleam.
I, from the first, was never cheated thus ;
I never fashioned out a fancied good
Distinct from man's ; a service to be done,
A glory to be ministered unto
With powers put forth at man's expense, withdrawn
From labouring in his behalf ; a strength Denied that might avail him. I cared not Lest his success ran counter to success
Elsewhere : for God is glorified in man,
And to man's glory vowed I soul and limb.
Yet, constituted thus, and thus endowed,
I failed : I gazed on power till I grew blind.
Power ; I could not take my eyes from that :
That only, I thought, should be preserved, increased
At any risk, displayed, struck out at once—
The sign and note and character of man.
I saw no use in the past : only a scene
Of degradation, ugliness and tears,
The record of disgraces best forgotten,
A sullen page in human chronicles
Fit to erase. I saw no cause why man
Should not stand all-sufficient even now,
Or why his annals should be forced to tell
That once the tide of light, about to break
Upon the world, was sealed within its spring :
I would have had one day, one moment's space,
Change man's condition, push each slumbering claim

Of mastery o'er the elemental world
At once to full maturity, then roll
Oblivion o'er the work, and hide from man
What night had ushered morn. Not so, dear child
Of after-days, wilt thou reject the past
Big with deep warnings of the proper tenure
By which thou hast the earth : for thee the present
Shall have distinct and trembling beauty, seen
Beside that past's own shade when, in relief,
Its brightness shall stand out : nor yet on thee
Shall burst the future, as successive zones
Of several wonder open on some spirit
Flying secure and glad from heaven to heaven :
But thou shalt painfully attain to joy,
While hope and fear and love shall keep thee
man !
All this was hid from me : as one by one
My dreams grew dim, my wide aims circum-scribed,
As actual good within my reach decreased,
While obstacles sprung up this way and that
To keep me from effecting half the sum,
Small as it proved ; as objects, mean within
The primal aggregate, seemed, even the least,
Itself a match for my concentrated strength—
What wonder if I saw no way to shun Despair? The power I sought for man, seemed God's.
In this conjuncture, as I prayed to die,
A strange adventure made me know, one sin
Had spotted my career from its uprise ;
I saw Aprile—my Aprile there !
And as the poor melodious wretch dis-burthened
His heart, and moaned his weakness in my ear,
I learned my own deep error ; love's undoing
Taught me the worth of love in man's estate,
And what proportion love should hold with power
In his right constitution ; love preceding Power, and with much power, always much more love ;
Love still too straitened in his present means,
And earnest for new power to set love free.

I learned this, and supposed the whole was learned :

And thus, when men received with stupid wonder

My first revealings, would have worshipped me,
And I despised and loathed their proffered
praise—

When, with awakened eyes, they took revenge
For past credulity in casting shame

On my real knowledge, and I hated them—

It was not strange I saw no good in man,

To overbalance all the wear and waste

Of faculties, displayed in vain, but born

To prosper in some better sphere : and why ?

In my own heart love had not been made wise

To trace love's faint beginnings in mankind,

To know even hate is but a mask of love's,

To see a good in evil, and a hope

In ill-success ; to sympathize, be proud

Of their half-reasons, faint aspirings, dim

Struggles for truth, their poorest fallacies,

Their prejudice and fears and cares and doubts ;

All with a touch of nobleness, despite

Their error, upward tending all though weak,

Like plants in mines which never saw the sun,

But dream of him, and guess where he may be,

And do their best to climb and get to him.

All this I knew not, and I failed. Let men

Regard me, and the poet dead long ago

Who loved too rashly ; and shape forth a third

And better-tempered spirit, warned by both :

As from the over-radiant star too mad

To drink the life-springs, beamless thence itself—

And the dark orb which borders the abyss,

Ingulfed in icy night,—might have its course

A temperate and equidistant world.

Meanwhile, I have done well, though not all well.

As yet men cannot do without contempt ;

'Tis for their good, and therefore fit awhile

That they reject the weak, and scorn the false,

Rather than praise the strong and true, in me :

But after, they will know me. If I stoop

Into a dark tremendous sea of cloud,

It is but for a time ; I press God's lamp

Close to my breast ; its splendour, soon or late,

Will pierce the gloom : I shall emerge one day.

You understand me ? I have said enough ?

Festus. Now die, dear Aureole !

Paracelsus. Festus, let my hand—

This hand, lie in your own, my own true
friend !

Aprile ! Hand in hand with you, Aprile !

Festus. And this was Paracelsus !

NOTE.

THE liberties I have taken with my subject are very trifling ; and the reader may slip the foregoing scenes between the leaves of any memoir of Paracelsus he pleases, by way of commentary. To prove this, I subjoin a popular account, translated from the " Biographie Universelle, Paris," 1822, which I select, not as the best, certainly, but as being at hand, and sufficiently concise for my purpose. I also append a few notes, in order to correct those parts which do not bear out my own view of the character of Paracelsus ; and have incorporated with them a notice or two, illustrative of the poem itself.

" PARACELSUS (Philippus Aureolus Theophrastus Bombastus ab Hohenheim) was born in 1493 at Einsiedeln, ⁽¹⁾ a little town in the canton of Schwyz, some leagues distant from Zurich. His father, who exercised the profession of medicine at Villach in Carinthia, was nearly related to George Bombast de Hohenheim, who became afterward Grand Prior of the Order of Malta : consequently Paracelsus could not spring from the dregs of the people, as Thomas Erastus, his sworn enemy, pretends.* It appears that his elementary education was much neglected, and that he spent part of his youth in pursuing the life common to the travelling literati of the age ; that is to say, in wandering from country to country, predicting the future by astrology and cheiromancy, evoking apparitions, and practising the

* I shall disguise M. Renauldin's next sentence a little. " Hic (Erastus sc.) Paracelsum trimum a milite quodam, alii a sue exectum ferunt : constat imberbem illum, mulierumque osorem fuisse." A standing High-Dutch joke in those days at the expense of a number of learned men, as may be seen by referring to such rubbish at Melander's " Jocoseria," etc. In the prints from his portrait by Tintoretto, painted a year before his death, Paracelsus is barbatulus, at all events. But Erastus was never without a good reason for his faith—e.g. " Helvetium fuisse (Paracelsum) vix credo, vix enim ea regio tale monstrum ediderit." (De Medicina Nova.) different operations of magic and alchemy, in which he had been initiated whether by his father or by various ecclesiastics, among the number of whom he particularizes the Abbot Tritheim, (2) and many German bishops.

"As Paracelsus displays everywhere an ignorance of the rudiments of the most ordinary knowledge, it is not probable that he ever studied seriously in the schools: he contented himself with visiting the Universities of Germany, France, and Italy; and in spite of his boasting himself to have been the ornament of those institutions, there is no proof of his having legally acquired the title of Doctor, which he assumes. It is only known that he applied himself long, under the direction of the wealthy Sigismond Fugger of Schwatz, to the discovery of the Magnum Opus.

"Paracelsus travelled among the mountains of Bohemia, in the East, and in Sweden, in order to inspect the labours of the miners, to be initiated in the mysteries of the oriental adepts, and to observe the secrets of nature and the famous mountain of loadstone. (3) He professes also to have visited Spain, Portugal, Prussia, Poland, and Transylvania; everywhere communicating freely, not merely with the physicians, but the old women, charlatans and conjurers of these several lands. It is even believed that he extended his journeyings as far as Egypt and Tartary, and that he accompanied the son of the Khan of the Tartars to Constantinople, for the purpose of obtaining the secret of the tincture of Trismegistus from a Greek who inhabited that capital.

"The period of his return to Germany is unknown: it is only certain that, at about the age of thirty-three, many astonishing cures which he wrought on eminent personages procured him such a celebrity, that he was called in 1526, on the recommendation of Œcolampadius, (4) to fill a chair of physic and surgery at the University of Basil. There Paracelsus began by burning publicly in the amphitheatre the works of Avicenna and Galen, assuring his auditors that the latches of his shoes were more instructed than those two physicians; that all Universities, all writers put together, were less gifted than the hairs of his beard and of the crown of his head; and that, in a word, he was to be regarded as the legitimate monarch of medicine. 'You shall follow me,' cried he, 'you, Avicenna, Galen, Rhasis, Montagnana, Mesues, you, gentlemen of Paris, Montpellier, Germany, Cologne, Vienna,* and whomsoever

* Erastus, who relates this, here oddly remarks, "mirum quod non et Garamantos, Indos et Anglos adjunxit." Not so wonderful neither, if we believe what another adversary "had heard somewhere,"—that all Paracelsus' system came of his pillaging "Anglum quendam, Rogerium Bacchonem."

the Rhine and Danube nourish; you who inhabit the isles of the sea; you, likewise, Dalmatians, Athenians; thou, Arab; thou, Greek; thou, Jew: all shall follow me, and the monarchy shall be mine.' †

"But at Basil it was speedily perceived that the new Professor was no better than an egregious quack. Scarcely a year elapsed before his lectures had fairly driven away an audience incapable of comprehending their emphatic jargon. That which above all contributed to sully his reputation was the debauched life he led. According to the testimony of Oporinus, who lived two years in his intimacy, Paracelsus scarcely ever ascended the lecture-desk unless half drunk, and only dictated to his secretaries when in a state of intoxication: if summoned to attend the sick, he rarely proceeded thither without previously drenching himself with wine. He was accustomed to retire to bed without changing his clothes; sometimes he spent the night in pot-houses with peasants, and in the morning knew no longer what he was about; and, nevertheless, up to the age of twenty-five his only drink had been water. (5)

"At length, fearful of being punished for a serious outrage on a magistrate, (6) he fled from Basil towards the end of the year 1527, and took refuge in Alsatia, whither he caused Oporinus to follow with his chemical apparatus.

"He then entered once more upon the career of ambulatory theosophist. ‡ Accordingly we find him at Colmar in 1528; at Nuremberg in 1529; at St. Gall in 1531; at Pseffers in 1535; and at Augsburg in 1536: he next made some stay in Moravia, where he still further compromised his reputation by the loss of many distinguished patients, which compelled him

† See his works passim. I must give one specimen:—Somebody had been styling him "Luther alter." "And why not?" (he asks, as he well might). "Luther is abundantly learned, therefore you hate him and me; but we are at least a match for you.—Nam et contra vos et vestros universos principes Avicennam, Galenum, Aristotelem, etc. me satis superque munitum esse novi. Et vertex iste meus calvus ac depilis multo plura et sublimiora novit quam vester vel Avicenna vel universæ academiz. Prodate, et signum date, qui viri sitis, quid roboris habeatis? quid autem sitis? Doctores et magistri, pediculos pectentes et fricantes podicem." (Frag. Med.)

‡ "So migratory a life could afford Paracelsus but little leisure for application to books, and accordingly he informs us that for the space of ten years he never opened a single volume, and that his whole medical library was not composed of six sheets: in effect, the inventory drawn up after his death states that the only books which he left were the Bible, the New Testament, the Commentaries of St. Jerome on the Gospels, a printed volume on Medicine, and seven manuscripts."

to betake himself to Vienna; from thence he passed into Hungary; and in 1538 was at Villach, where he dedicated his 'Chronicle' to the States of Carinthia, in gratitude for the many kindnesses with which they had honoured his father. Finally, from Mindelheim, which he visited in 1540, Paracelsus proceeded to Salzburg, where he died in the Hospital of St. Stephen (Sebastian is meant), Sept. 24, 1541." —(Here follows a criticism on his writings, which I omit.)

(1) Paracelsus would seem to be a fantastic version of Von Hohenheim; Einsiedeln is the Latinized Eremus, whence Paracelsus is sometimes called, as in the correspondence of Erasmus, Eremita; Bombast, his proper name, probably acquired, from the characteristic phraseology of his lectures, that unlucky signification which it has ever since retained.

(2) Then Bishop of Spanheim, and residing at Würzburg in Franconia; a town situated in a grassy fertile country, whence its name, Herbipolis. He was much visited there by learned men, as may be seen by his "Epistolæ Familiæres," Hag. 1536: among others, by his staunch friend Cornelius Agrippa, to whom he dates thence, in 1510, a letter in answer to the dedicatory epistle prefixed to the treatise De Occult. Philosoph., which last contains the following ominous allusion to Agrippa's sojourn: "Quum nuper tecum, R. P. in cœnobio tuo apud Herbipolim aliquamdiu conversatus, multa de chymicis, multa de magicis, multa de cabalisticis, cæterisque quæ adhuc in occulto delitescunt, arcanis scientiis atque artibus una contulissemus," etc.

(3) "Inexplebilis illa aviditas naturæ perscrutandi secreta et reconditarum supellectile scientiarum animum locupletandi, uno eodemque loco diu persistere non patiebatur, sed Mercurii instar, omnes terras, nationes et urbes perlustrandi igniculos supponebat, ut cum viris naturæ scrutatoribus, chymicis præsertim, ore tenus conferret, et quæ diuturnis laboribus nocturnisque vigiliis invenerant una vel altera communicatione obtineret." (Bitiskius in Præfat.) "Patris auxilio primum, deinde propria industria doctissimos viros in Germania, Italia, Gallia, Hispania, aliisque Europæ regionibus, nactus est præceptores; quorum liberali doctrina, et potissimum propria inquisitione ut qui esset ingenio acutissimo ac fere divino, tantum profecit, ut multi testati sint, in universa philosophia, tam ardua, tam arcana et abdita eruisse mortalium neminem." (Melch. Adam. in Vit. Germ. Medic.) "Paracelsus qui in intima naturæ viscera sic penitus introierit, metallorum stirpiumque vires et facultates tam incredibili ingenii acumine exploraverit ac perviderit, ad morbos omnes vel desperatos et opinione hominum insanabiles percurandum; ut cum Theophrasto nata primum medicina perfecta que videtur." (Petri Rami Orat. de Basilea.) His passion for wandering is best described in his own words: "Ecce amatorem adolescentem difficillimi itineris haud piget, ut venustam saltem puellam vel foeminam aspiciat: quanto minus nobilissimarum artium amore laboris ac cujuslibet tædii pigebit?" etc. ("Defensiones Septem adversus æmulos suos." 1573. Def. 4ta. "De peregrinationibus et exilio.")

(4) The reader may remember that it was in conjunction with Æcolampadius, then Divinity Professor at Basil, that Zuinglius published in 1528 an answer to Luther's Confession of Faith; and that both proceeded in company to the subsequent conference with Luther and Melanchthon at Marpurg. Their letters fill a large volume.—"D. D. Johannis Æcolampadii et Huldrichi Zuinglii Epistolarum lib. quatuor." Bas. 1536. It must be also observed that Zuinglius began to preach in 1516, and at Zurich in 1519, and that in 1525 the Mass was abolished in the cantons. The tenets of Æcolampadius were supposed to be more evangelical than those up to that period maintained by the glorious German, and our brave Bishop Fisher attacked them as the fouler heresy:—"About this time arose out of Luther's school one Æcolampadius, like a mighty and fierce giant; who, as his master had gone beyond the Church, went beyond his master (or else it had been impossible he could have been reputed the better scholar), who denied the real presence; him, this worthy champion (the Bishop) sets upon, and with five books (like so many smooth stones taken out of the river that doth always run with living water) slays the Philistine; which five books were written in the year of our Lord 1526, at which time he had governed the see of Rochester twenty years." (Life of Bishop Fisher, 1655.) Now, there is no doubt of the Protestantism of Paracelsus, Erasmus, Agrippa, etc., but the nonconformity of Paracelsus was always scandalous. L. Crasso ("Elogj d'Humini Letterati," Ven. 1666) informs us that his books were excommunicated by the Church. Quenstedt (de Patr. Doct.) affirms "nec tantum novæ medicinæ, verum etiam novæ theologiæ autor est." Delrio, in his Disquisit. Magicar., classes him among those "partim atheos, partim hæreticos" (lib. i. cap. 3). "Omnino tamen multa theologica in ejusdem scriptis plane atheismum olent, ac duriuscule sonant in auribus vere Christiani." (D. Gabrielis Clauderi Schediasma de Tinct. Univ. Norimb. 1736.) I shall only add one more authority:—"Oporinus dicit se (Paracel-

Lavater quotes a passage from his work "De Natura Rerum," on practical Physiognomy, in which the definitions and axioms are precise enough: he adds, "though an astrological enthusiast, a man of prodigious genius." See Holcroft's translation, vol. iii. p. 179—"The Eyes." While on the subject of the writings of Paracelsus, I may explain a passage in the third part of the Poem. He was, as I have said, unwilling to publish his works, but in effect did publish a vast number. Valentius (in Præfat. in Paramyr.) declares "quod ad librorum Paracelsi copiam attinet, audio, a Germanis prope trecentos recenseri." "O fœcunditas ingenii!" adds he, appositely. Many of these were, however, spurious; and Fred. Bitiskius gives his good edition (3 vols. fol. Gen. 1658) "rejectis suppositis solo ipsius nomine superbientibus quorum ingens circumfertur numerus." The rest were "charissimum et pretiosissimum authoris pignus, extorsum potius ab illo quam obtentum." "Jam minime eo volente atque jubente hæc ipsius scripta in lucem prodisse videntur; quippe quæ muro inclusa ipso absente, servi cujusdam indicio, furto surrepta atque sublata sunt," says Valen-tius. These have been the study of a host of commentators, amongst whose labours are most notable, Petri Severini, "Idea Medicinæ Philosophiæ. Bas. 1571;" Mic. Toxetis, "Onomastica Arg. 1574;" Dornei, "Dict. Parac. Franc. 1584;" and "Pⁱ Philos^æ Compendium cum scholiis auctore Leone Suavio. Paris.' (This last, a good book.)

(6) A disgraceful affair. One Liechtenfels, a canon, having been rescued in extremis by the "laudanum" of Paracelsus, refused the stipulated fee, and was supported in his meanness by the authorities, whose interference Paracelsus would not brook. His own liberality was allowed by his bitterest foes, who found a ready solution of his indifference to profit in the aforesaid sword-handle and its guest. His freedom from the besetting sin of a profession he abhorred—(as he curiously says somewhere. "Quis quæso deinceps honorem deferat professione tali, quæ a tam facinorosis nebulonibus obitur et administratur?")—is recorded in his epitaph, which affirms—"Bona sua in pauperes distribuenda collocandaque erogavit," honoravit, or ordinavit—for accounts differ.

Vane. I say, if he be here—

Rudyard.

(And he is here!)

Hollis. For England's sake let every man be still

Nor speak of him, so much as say his name,
Till Pym rejoin us! Rudyard! Henry Vane!
One rash conclusion may decide our course
And with it England's fate—think—England's fate!

Hampden, for England's sake they should be
still!

Vane. You say so, Hollis? Well, I must be still.

It is indeed too bitter that one man,
Any one man's mere presence, should suspend

England's combined endeavour: little need
To name him!

Rudyard. For you are his brother, Hollis!

Hampden. Shame on you, Rudyard! time to tell him that,

When he forgets the Mother of us all.

Rudyard. Do I forget her?

Hampden. You talk idle hate
Against her foe: is that so strange a thing?
Is hating Wentworth all the help she needs?

A Puritan. The Philistine strode, cursing as he went:

But David—five smooth pebbles from the brook

Within his scrip . . .

Rudyard. Be you as still as David!

Fiennes. Here's Rudyard not ashamed to wag a tongue

Stiff with ten years' disuse of Parliaments ;
Why, when the last sat, Wentworth sat with us !

Rudyard. Let's hope for news of them now he returns—

He that was safe in Ireland, as we thought !
—But I'll abide Pym's coming.

Vane. Now, by Heaven,
Then may be cool who can, silent who will—
Some have a gift that way! Wentworth is here,
Here, and the King's safe closeted with him
Ere this. And when I think on all that's past
Since that man left us, how his single arm
Rolled the advancing good of England back
And set the woeful past up in its place,
Exalting Dagon where the Ark should be,—
How that man has made firm the fickle King (Hampden, I will speak out !)—in aught he feared

To venture on before ; taught tyranny
Her dismal trade, the use of all her tools,
To ply the scourge yet screw the gag so close
That strangled agony bleeds mute to death ;
How he turns Ireland to a private stage
For training infant villanies, new ways
Of wringing treasure out of tears and blood,
Unheard oppressions nourished in the dark
To try how much man's nature can endure
—If he dies under it, what harm? if not,
Why, one more trick is added to the rest
Worth a king's knowing, and what Ireland bears

England may learn to bear:—how all this while

That man has set himself to one dear task,
The bringing Charles to relish more and more Power, power without law, power and blood
too

—Can I be still?

Hampden. For that you should be still.

Vane. Oh Hampden, then and now ! The year he left us,
The People in full Parliament could wrest
The Bill of Rights from the reluctant King ;
And now, he'll find in an obscure small room
A stealthy gathering of great-hearted men
That take up England's cause : England is
here !

Hampden. And who despairs of England ?

Rudyard. That do I,
If Wentworth comes to rule her. I am sick
To think her wretched masters, Hamilton,
The muckworm Cottington, the maniac Laud,
May yet be longed-for back again. I say,
I do despair.

Vane. And, Rudyard, I'll say this—
Which all true men say after me, not loud
But solemnly and as you'd say a prayer !
This King, who treads our England underfoot,
Has just so much . . . it may be fear or craft,
As bids him pause at each fresh outrage ;
friends,

He needs some sterner hand to grasp his own,
Some voice to ask, "Why shrink? Am I not by?"

Now, one whom England loved for serving
her,

Found in his heart to say, "I know where best
"The iron heel shall bruise her, for she leans
"Upon me when you trample." Witness, you!
So Wentworth heartened Charles, so England
fell.

But inasmuch as life is hard to take
From England . . .

Many Voices. Go on, Vane ! 'Tis well said, Vane !

Vane. —Who has not so forgotten Runny-mead !—

Voices. 'Tis well and bravely spoken, Vane ! Go on !

Vane. —There are some little signs of late she knows

The ground no place for her. She glances round,

Wentworth has dropped the hand, is gone his way

On other service : what if she arise ?

No ! the King beckons, and beside him stands
The same bad man once more, with the same
smile

And the same gesture. Now shall England crouch,

Or catch at us and rise ?

Voices. The Renegade !

Haman ! Ahithophel !

Hampden. Gentlemen of the North,

It was not thus the night your claims were urged,

And we pronounced the League and Covenant,
The cause of Scotland, England's cause as well:

Vane there, sat motionless the whole night through.

Vane. Hampden!

Fiennes. Stay, Vane!

Loudon. Be just and patient, Vane!

Vane. Mind how you counsel patience,
Loudon! you

Have still a Parliament, and this your League
To back it; you are free in Scotland still:

While we are brothers, hope's for England yet.
But know you wherefore Wentworth comes?
to quench

This last of hopes? that he brings war with
him?

Know you the man's self? what he dares?

Loudon. We know,

All know—'tis nothing new.

Vane. And what's new, then,
In calling for his life? Why, Pym himself—
You must have heard—ere Wentworth dropped our cause

He would see Pym first; there were many more Strong on the people's side and friends of his,
Eliot that's dead, Rudyard and Hampden here,
But for these Wentworth cared not; only, Pym
He would see—Pym and he were sworn, 'tis
said,

To live and die together; so, they met
At Greenwich. Wentworth, you are sure, was long,

Specious enough, the devil's argument
Lost nothing on his lips; he'd have Pym own
A patriot could not play a purer part
Than follow in his track; they two combined Might put down England. Well, Pym heard him out;

One glance—you know Pym's eye—one word was all:

"You leave us, Wentworth! while your head is on,

"I'll not leave you."

Hampden. Has he left Wentworth,
then?

Has England lost him? Will you let him
speak,

Or put your crude surmises in his mouth?

Away with this! Will you have Pym or Vane?

Voices. Wait Pym's arrival! Pym shall speak.

Hampden.

Meanwhile

Let Loudon read the Parliament's report
From Edinburgh: our last hope, as Vane says,
Is in the stand it makes. Loudon!

Vane. No, no!

Silent I can be: not indifferent!

Hampden. Then each keep silence, praying God to spare

His anger, cast not England quite away
In this her visitation!

A Puritan. Seven years long

The Midianite drove Israel into dens
And caves. Till God sent forth a mighty man,

PYM enters.

Even Gideon!

Pym. Wentworth's come: nor sickness,
care,

The ravaged body nor the ruined soul,
More than the winds and waves that beat his ship,

Could keep him from the King. He has not reached

Whitehall: they've hurried up a Council there
To lose no time and find him work enough.

Where's Loudon? your Scots' Parliament . . .

Loudon. Holds firm:
We were about to read reports.

Pym. The King
Has just dissolved your Parliament.

Loudon and other Scots. Great God!
An oath-breaker! Stand by us, England,
then!

Pym. The King's too sanguine; doubtless Wentworth's here;

But still some little form might be kept up.

Hampden. Now speak, Vane! Rudyard, you had much to say!

Hollis. The rumour's false, then . . .

Pym. Ay, the Court gives out
His own concerns have brought him back:
I know

Tis the King calls him. Wentworth super-sedes

The tribe of Cottingtons and Hamiltons
Whose part is played; there's talk enough, by this,—

Merciful talk, the King thinks: time is now
To turn the record's last and bloody leaf
Which, chronicling a nation's great despair,
Tells they were long rebellious, and their lord
Indulgent, till, all kind expedients tried,
He drew the sword on them and reigned in
peace.

Laud's laying his religion on the Scots
Was the last gentle entry: the new page Shall run, the King thinks, "Wentworth thrust it down

"At the sword's point."

A Puritan. I'll do your bidding, Pym,
England's and God's—one blow!

Pym. A goodly thing—
We all say, friends, it is a goodly thing
To right that England. Heaven grows dark
above:

Let's snatch one moment ere the thunder fall,
To say how well the English spirit comes out
Beneath it! All have done their best, indeed,
From lion Eliot, that grand Englishman,
To the least here: and who, the least one here,
When she is saved (for her redemption dawns Dimly, most dimly, but it dawns—it dawns)
Who'd give at any price his hope away
Of being named along with the Great Men?
We would not—no, we would not give that up!

Hampden. And one name shall be dearer than all names.

When children, yet unborn, are taught that name

After their fathers',—taught what matchless
man . . .

Pym. . . . Saved England? What if Wentworth's should be still
That name?

Rudyard and others. We have just said it,
Pym! His death
Saves her! We said it—there's no way beside!
I'll do God's bidding, Pym! They struck down Joab
And purged the land.

Vane. No villanous striking-down!
Rudyard. No, a calm vengeance: let the whole land rise

And shout for it. No Feltons!

Pym. Rudyard, no!
England rejects all Feltons; most of all Since Wentworth . . . Hampden, say the trust again

Of England in her servants—but I'll think
You know me, all of you. Then, I believe,
Spite of the past, Wentworth rejoins you,
friends!

Vane and others. Wentworth? Apostate!
Judas! Double-dyed
A traitor! Is it Pym, indeed . . .

Pym. . . . Who says
Vane never knew that Wentworth, loved that
man,

Was used to stroll with him, arm locked in arm,
Along the streets to see the people pass,
And read in every island-countenance
Fresh argument for God against the King,—
Never sat down, say, in the very house
Where Eliot's brow grew broad with noble
thoughts,
(You've joined us, Hampden—Hollis, you as well,)

And then left talking over Gracchus' death . . .

Vane. To frame, we know it well, the choicest clause

In the Petition of Right: he framed such clause
One month before he took at the King's hand
His Northern Presidency, which that Bill Denounced.

Pym. Too true! Never more, never
more

Walked we together! Most alone I went.
I have had friends—all here are fast my
friends—

But I shall never quite forget that friend.
And yet it could not but be real in him!
You, Vane,—you, Rudyard, have no right to
trust

To Wentworth: but can no one hope with me?
Hampden, will Wentworth dare shed English
blood

Like water?

Hampden. Ireland is Acedama.

Pym. Will he turn Scotland to a hunting-ground
To please the King, now that he knows the King?

The People or the King? and that King,
Charles!

Hampden. Pym, all here know you: you'll not set your heart
On any baseless dream. But say one deed
Of Wentworth's since he left us . . .

[Shouting without.

Vane. There! he comes,
And they shout for him! Wentworth's at Whitehall,
The King embracing him, now, as we speak,
And he, to be his match in courtesies,
Taking the whole war's risk upon himself,
Now, while you tell us here how changed he is!

Hear you?

Pym. And yet if 'tis a dream, no more,
That Wentworth chose their side, and brought
the King

To love it as though Laud had loved it first,
And the Queen after;—that he led their cause
Calm to success, and kept it spotless through,
So that our very eyes could look upon
The travail of our souls, and close content
That violence, which something mars even right

Which sanctions it, had taken off no grace
From its serene regard. Only a dream!

Hampden. We meet here to accomplish certain good

By obvious means, and keep tradition up
Of free assemblages, else obsolete,
In this poor chamber: nor without effect
Has friend met friend to counsel and confirm,
As, listening to the beats of England's heart,
We spoke its wants to Scotland's prompt reply
By these her delegates. Remains alone
That word grow deed, as with God's help it shall—

But with the devil's hindrance, who doubts too?
Looked we or no that tyranny should turn
Her engines of oppression to their use?
Whereof, suppose the worst be Wentworth
here—

VOL. I.

Shall we break off the tactics which succeed
In drawing out our formidablest foe,
Let bickering and disunion take their place?
Or count his presence as our conquest's proof,
And keep the old arms at their steady play?
Proceed to England's work! Fiennes, read the list!

Fiennes. Ship-money is refused or fiercely paid
In every county, save the northern parts
Where Wentworth's influence . . .

[Shouting.

Vane. I, in England's name,
Declare her work, this way, at end! Till now,
Up to this moment, peaceful strife was best.
We English had free leave to think; till now,
We had a shadow of a Parliament
In Scotland. But all's changed: they change the first,

They try brute-force for law, they, first of
all . . .

Voices. Good! Talk enough! The old true hearts with Vane!

Vane. Till we crush Wentworth for her,
there's no act
Serves England!

Voices. Vane for England!

Pym. Pym should be Something to England. I seek Wentworth,
friends.

SCENE II.—Whitehall.

Lady CARLISLE and WENTWORTH.

Wentworth. And the King?

Lady Carlisle. Wentworth, lean on me! Sit then!
I'll tell you all; this horrible fatigue
Will kill you.

Wentworth. No;—or, Lucy, just your arm;
I'll not sit till I've cleared this up with him:
After that, rest. The King?

Lady Carlisle. Confides in you.

Wentworth. Why? or, why now?—They have kind throats, the knaves!
Shout for me—they!

Lady Carlisle. You come so strangely soon :

Yet we took measures to keep off the crowd—
Did they shout for you?

Wentworth. Wherefore should they not?
Does the King take such measures for himself?
Beside, there's such a dearth of malcontents,
You say!

Lady Carlisle. I said but few dared carp
at you.

Wentworth. At me? at us, I hope! The King and I!

He's surely not disposed to let me bear
The fame away from him of these late deeds
In Ireland? I am yet his instrument
Be it for well or ill? He trusts me, too!

Lady Carlisle. The King, dear Wentworth, purposes, I said,
To grant you, in the face of all the Court . . .

Wentworth. All the Court! Evermore the Court about us!

Savile and Holland, Hamilton and Vane
About us,—then the King will grant me—
what?

That he for once put these aside and say—
“Tell me your whole mind, Wentworth!”

Lady Carlisle. You professed
You would be calm.

Wentworth. Lucy, and I am calm!
How else shall I do all I come to do,
Broken, as you may see, body and mind,
How shall I serve the King? Time wastes
meanwhile,

You have not told me half. His footstep! No.
Quick, then, before I meet him,—I am calm—
Why does the King distrust me?

Lady Carlisle. He does not Distrust you.

Wentworth. Lucy, you can help me; you
Have even seemed to care for me: one word!
Is it the Queen?

Lady Carlisle. No, not the Queen: the party
That poisons the Queen's ear, Savile and Holland.

Wentworth. I know, I know: old Vane, too, he's one too?

Go on—and he's made Secretary. Well?

Or leave them out and go straight to the charge—

The charge!

Lady Carlisle. Oh, there's no charge,
no precise charge;

Only they sneer, make light of—one may say,
Nibble at what you do.

Wentworth. I know! but, Lucy,
I reckoned on you from the first!—Go on!
—Was sure could I once see this gentle friend
When I arrived, she'd throw an hour away
To help her . . . what am I?

Lady Carlisle. You thought of me,
Dear Wentworth?

Wentworth. But go on! The party here!

Lady Carlisle. They do not think your Irish government

Of that surpassing value . . .

Wentworth. The one thing

Of value! The one service that the crown
May count on! All that keeps these very Vanes

In power, to vex me—not that they do vex,
Only it might vex some to hear that service
Decried, the sole support that's left the King!

Lady Carlisle. So the Archbishop says.

Wentworth. Ah? well, perhaps

The only hand held up in my defence
May be old Laud's! These Hollands then, these Saviles

Nibble? They nibble?—that's the very word!

Lady Carlisle. Your profit in the Customs,
Bristol says,

Exceeds the due proportion: while the tax . . .

Wentworth. Enough! 'tis too unworthy,—
I am not

So patient as I thought. What's Pym about?

Lady Carlisle. Pym?

Wentworth. Pym and the People.

Lady Carlisle. Oh, the Faction!

Extinct—of no account: there'll never be Another Parliament.

Wentworth. Tell Savile that!

You may know—(ay, you do—the creatures
here

Never forget!) that in my earliest life
I was not . . . much that I am now! The
King

Ah, Wentworth, one thing for acquaintance' sake,

Just to decide a question ; have you, now,
Felt your old self since you forsook us ?

Wentworth. Sir !

Pym. Spare me the gesture ! you misapprehend.

Think not I mean the advantage is with me.
I was about to say that, for my part,
I never quite held up my head since then—
Was quite myself since then : for first, you see,
I lost all credit after that event

With those who recollect how sure I was Wentworth would outdo Eliot on our side.
Forgive me : Savile, old Vane, Holland here,
Eschew plain-speaking : 'tis a trick I keep.

Wentworth. How, when, where, Savile,
Vane, and Holland speak,
Plainly or otherwise, would have my scorn,
All of my scorn, sir . . .

Pym. . . . Did not my poor thoughts
Claim somewhat ?

Wentworth. Keep your thoughts ! believe the King
Mistrusts me for their prattle, all these Vanes
And Saviles ! make your mind up, o' God's
love,

That I am discontented with the King !

Pym. Why, you may be : I should be,
that I know,
Were I like you.

Wentworth. Like me ?

Pym. I care not much
For titles : our friend Eliot died no lord,
Hampden's no lord, and Savile is a lord ;
But you care, since you sold your soul for one.
I can't think, therefore, your soul's purchaser
Did well to laugh you to such utter scorn
When you twice prayed so humbly for its price,

The thirty silver pieces . . . I should say,
The Earldom you expected, still expect,
And may. Your letters were the movingest !
Console yourself : I've borne him prayers
just now

From Scotland not to be oppressed by Laud,
Words moving in their way : he'll pay, be sure,
As much attention as to those you sent.

Wentworth. False, sir ! Who showed them you ? Suppose it so,
The King did very well . . . nay, I was glad
When it was shown me : I refused, the first !
John Pym, you were my friend—forbear me
once !

Pym. Oh, Wentworth, ancient brother of my soul,
That all should come to this !

Wentworth. Leave me !

Pym. My friend,
Why should I leave you ?

Wentworth. To tell Rudyard this,
And Hampden this !

Pym. Whose faces once were bright
At my approach, now sad with doubt and fear,
Because I hope in you—yes, Wentworth, you
Who never mean to ruin England—you Who shake off, with God's help, an obscene
dream

In this Ezekiel chamber, where it crept
Upon you first, and wake, yourself, your true
And proper self, our Leader, England's Chief,
And Hampden's friend !

This is the proudest day !
Come, Wentworth ! Do not even see the King !

The rough old room will seem itself again !
We'll both go in together : you've not seen Hampden so long : come : and there's Fiennes : you'll have To know young Vane. This is the proudest
day !

[The KING enters. WENTWORTH lets fall PYM's hand.

Charles. Arrived, my lord ?—This gentleman, we know
Was your old friend.

The Scots shall be informed
What we determine for their happiness.

[PYM goes out.
You have made haste, my lord.

Wentworth. Sir, I am come . . .

Charles. To see an old familiar—nay, 'tis
well ;

Aid us with his experience : this Scots' League
And Covenant spreads too far, and we have proofs

That they intrigue with France : the Faction
too,

Whereof your friend there is the head and front,

Abets them,—as he boasted, very like.

Wentworth. Sir, trust me ! but for this once, trust me, sir !

Charles. What can you mean ?

Wentworth. That you should trust me,
sir !

Oh—not for my sake ! but 'tis sad, so sad
That for distrusting me, you suffer—you Whom I would die to serve : sir, do you think

That I would die to serve you ?

Charles. But rise, Wentworth !

Wentworth. What shall convince you ?
What does Savile do

To prove him . . . Ah, one can't tear out one's heart

And show it, how sincere a thing it is !

Charles. Have I not trusted you ?

Wentworth. Say aught but that !

There is my comfort, mark you : all will be
So different when you trust me—as you shall !
It has not been your fault,—I was away, Mistook, maligned, how was the King to
know ?

I am here, now—he means to trust me, now—
All will go on so well !

Charles. Be sure I do—

I've heard that I should trust you : as you
came,

Your friend, the Countess, told me . . .

Wentworth. No,—hear nothing—

Be told nothing about me !—you're not told
Your right-hand serves you, or your children love you !

Charles. You love me, Wentworth : rise !

Wentworth. I can speak now.

I have no right to hide the truth. 'Tis I Can save you : only I. Sir, what must be ?

Charles. Since Laud's assured (the minutes are within)

—Loath as I am to spill my subjects'
blood . . .

Wentworth. That is, he'll have a war :
what's done is done !

Charles. They have intrigued with France ;
that's clear to Laud.

Wentworth. Has Laud suggested any way to meet

The war's expense ?

Charles. He'd not decide so far

Until you joined us.

Wentworth. Most considerate !

He's certain they intrigue with France, these Scots ?

The People would be with us.

Charles. Pym should know.

Wentworth. The People for us—were the People for us !

Sir, a great thought comes to reward your
trust :

Summon a Parliament ! in Ireland first,
Then, here.

Charles. In truth ?

Wentworth. That saves us ! that puts off
The war, gives time to right their grievances—
To talk with Pym. I know the Faction,— Laud

So styles it,—tutors Scotland : all their plans
Suppose no Parliament : in calling one
You take them by surprise. Produce the proofs
Of Scotland's treason ; then bid England help :
Even Pym will not refuse.

Charles. You would begin With Ireland ?

Wentworth. Take no care for that : that's sure

To prosper.

Charles. You shall rule me. You were
best

Return at once : but take this ere you go !
Now, do I trust you ? You're an Earl : my
Friend

Of Friends : yes, while . . . You hear me not !

Wentworth. Say it all o'er again—but once
again :

The first was for the music : once again !

Charles. Strafford, my friend, there may have been reports,

Vain rumours. Henceforth touching Strafford
is

To touch the apple of my sight : why gaze
So earnestly ?

Wentworth. I am grown young again,
And foolish. What was it we spoke of?

Charles. Ireland,
The Parliament,—

Wentworth. I may go when I will?
—Now?

Charles. Are you tired so soon of us?

Wentworth. My King!
But you will not so utterly abhor
A Parliament? I'd serve you any way.

Charles. You said just now this was the only way.

Wentworth. Sir, I will serve you.

Charles. Strafford, spare yourself:
You are so sick, they tell me.

Wentworth. 'Tis my soul
That's well and prospers now.

This Parliament—
We'll summon it, the English one—I'll
care

For everything. You shall not need them
much.

Charles. If they prove restive . . .

Wentworth. I shall be with you.

Charles. Ere they assemble?

Wentworth. I will come, or else
Deposit this infirm humanity
I' the dust. My whole heart stays with you, my King! [As WENTWORTH goes out,

the QUEEN enters.

Charles. That man must love me.

Queen. Is it over then?
Why, he looks yellower than ever! Well,
At least we shall not hear eternally
Of service—services: he's paid at least.

Charles. Not done with: he engages to surpass
All yet performed in Ireland.

Queen. I had thought
Nothing beyond was ever to be done.
The war, Charles—will he raise supplies
enough?

Charles. We've hit on an expedient; he
. . . that is,
I have advised . . . we have decided on
The calling—in Ireland—of a Parliament.

Queen. O truly! You agree to that? Is
that

The first fruit of his counsel? But I guessed
As much.

Charles. This is too idle, Henriette!
I should know best. He will strain every nerve,

And once a precedent established . . .

Queen. Notice
How sure he is of a long term of favour!
He'll see the next, and the next after that;
No end to Parliaments!

Charles. Well, it is done.
He talks it smoothly, doubtless. If, indeed,
The Commons here . . .

Queen. Here! you will summon them
Here? Would I were in France again to see A King!

Charles. But, Henriette . . .

Queen. Oh, the Scots see clear!
Why should they bear your rule?

Charles. But listen, sweet!

Queen. Let Wentworth listen—you confide in him!

Charles. I do not, love,—I do not so confide!

The Parliament shall never trouble us
. . . Nay, hear me! I have schemes, such schemes: we'll buy
The leaders off: without that, Wentworth's counsel

Had ne'er prevailed on me. Perhaps I call it
To have excuse for breaking it for ever,
And whose will then the blame be? See you
not?

Come, dearest!—look, the little fairy, now,
That cannot reach my shoulder! Dearest,
come!

ACT II.

SCENE I.—(As in Act I. Scene I.)

The same Party enters.

Rudyard. Twelve subsidies!

Vane. Oh, Rudyard, do not laugh
At least!

Rudyard. True: Strafford called the Parliament—
'Tis he should laugh!

“ We, England, are no party to our shame :
 “ Our day will come ! ” Congratulate with
 me !

PYM enters.

Vane. Pym, Strafford called this Parliament, you say,
 But we'll not have our Parliaments like those In Ireland, Pym !

Rudyard. Let him stand forth, your
 friend !

One doubtful act hides far too many sins ;
 It can be stretched no more, and, to my mind,
 Begins to drop from those it covered.

Other Voices. Good !

Let him avow himself ! No fitter time !
 We wait thus long for you.

Rudyard. Perhaps, too long !
 Since nothing but the madness of the Court,

In thus unmasking its designs at once,
 Has saved us from betraying England. Stay—
 This Parliament is Strafford's : let us vote
 Our list of grievances too black by far
 To suffer talk of subsidies : or best,
 That ship-money's disposed of long ago
 By England : any vote that's broad enough :
 And then let Strafford, for the love of it,
 Support his Parliament !

Vane. And vote as well
 No war to be with Scotland ! Hear you, Pym ?
 We'll vote, no war ! No part nor lot in it
 For England !

Many Voices. Vote, no war ! Stop the new levies !
 No Bishops' war ! At once ! When next we meet !

Pym. Much more when next we meet !
 Friends, which of you
 Since first the course of Strafford was in doubt,
 Has fallen the most away in soul from me ?

Vane. I sat apart, even now under God's eye, Pondering the words that should denounce
 you, Pym,
 In presence of us all, as one at league
 With England's enemy.

Pym. You are a good
 And gallant spirit, Henry. Take my hand

And say you pardon me for all the pain
 Till now ! Strafford is wholly ours.

Many Voices. Sure ? sure ?

Pym. Most sure : for Charles dissolves the Parliament

While I speak here.

—And I must speak, friends, now !
 Strafford is ours. The King detects the
 change,

Casts Strafford off for ever, and resumes
 His ancient path : no Parliament for us,
 No Strafford for the King !

Come, all of you,
 To bid the King farewell, predict success
 To his Scots' expedition, and receive Strafford, our comrade now. The next will be Indeed a Parliament !

Vane. Forgive me, Pym !

Voices. This looks like truth : Strafford can have, indeed,

No choice.

Pym. Friends, follow me ! He's with
 the King.

Come, Hampden, and come, Rudyard, and come, Vane !

This is no sullen day for England, sirs !
 Strafford shall tell you !

Voices. To Whitehall then ! Come !

SCENE II.—Whitehall.

CHARLES and STRAFFORD.

Charles. Strafford !

Strafford. Is it a dream ? my papers,
 here—

Thus, as I left them, all the plans you found
 So happy—(look ! the track you pressed my
 hand

For pointing out)—and in this very room,
 Over these very plans, you tell me, sir,
 With the same face, too—tell me just one thing That ruins them ! How's this ? What may this mean ?

Sir, who has done this ?

Charles. Strafford, who but I ?

You bade me put the rest away : indeed
 You are alone.

Strafford. Alone, and like to be !
No fear, when some unworthy scheme grows ripe,
Of those, who hatched it, leaving me to loose
The mischief on the world ! Laud hatches war,
Falls to his prayers, and leaves the rest to me,
And I'm alone.

Charles. At least, you knew as much
When first you undertook the war.

Strafford. My liege,
Was this the way ? I said, since Laud would lap
A little blood, 'twere best to hurry over
The loathsome business, not to be whole months
At slaughter—one blow, only one, then, peace,
Save for the dreams. I said, to please you both I'd lead an Irish army to the West,
While in the South an English . . . but you
look

As though you had not told me fifty times
'Twas a brave plan ! My army is all raised,
I am prepared to join it . . .

Charles. Hear me, Strafford !

Strafford. . . . When, for some little thing, my whole design
Is set aside—(where is the wretched paper ?)
I am to lead—(ay, here it is)—to lead
The English army : why ? Northumberland
That I appointed, chooses to be sick—
Is frightened : and, meanwhile, who answers
for

The Irish Parliament ? or army, either ?
Is this my plan ?

Charles. So disrespectful, sir ?

Strafford. My liege, do not believe it ! I am yours,
Yours ever : 'tis too late to think about :
To the death, yours. Elsewhere, this untoward step
Shall pass for mine ; the world shall think it
mine.

But here ! But here ! I am so seldom here,
Seldom with you, my King ! I, soon to rush
Alone upon a giant in the dark !

Charles. My Strafford !

Strafford [examines papers awhile]. "Seize the passes of the Tyne !"

But, sir, you see—see all I say is true ?
My plan was sure to prosper, so, no cause
To ask the Parliament for help ; whereas
We need them frightfully.

Charles. Need the Parliament ?

Strafford. Now, for God's sake, sir, not one error more !

We can afford no error ; we draw, now,
Upon our last resource : the Parliament
Must help us !

Charles. I've undone you, Strafford !

Strafford. Nay—Nay—why despond, sir, 'tis not come to
that !

I have not hurt you ? Sir, what have I said
To hurt you ? I unsay it ! Don't despond !
Sir, do you turn from me ?

Charles. My friend of friends !

Strafford. We'll make a shift. Leave me
the Parliament !

Help they us ne'er so little and I'll make Sufficient out of it. We'll speak them fair.
They're sitting, that's one great thing ; that half gives

Their sanction to us ; that's much : don't despond !

Why, let them keep their money, at the worst !
The reputation of the People's help
Is all we want : we'll make shift yet !

Charles. Good Strafford !

Strafford. But meantime, let the sum be ne'er so small

They offer, we'll accept it : any sum—
For the look of it : the least grant tells the Scots

The Parliament is ours—their staunch ally Turned ours : that told, there's half the blow to strike !

What will the grant be ? What does Glanville think ?

Charles. Alas !

Strafford. My liege ?

Charles. Strafford !

Strafford. But answer me !

Have they . . . O surely not refused us half ?
Half the twelve subsidies ? We never looked For all of them. How many do they give ?

Charles. You have not heard . . .

Strafford. (What has he done?)—Heard what?

But speak at once, sir, this grows terrible!

[The KING continuing silent.]

You have dissolved them!—I'll not leave this man.

Charles. 'Twas old Vane's ill-judged vehemence.

Strafford. Old Vane?

Charles. He told them, just about to vote the half,

That nothing short of all twelve subsidies would serve our turn, or be accepted.

Strafford. Vane!

Vane! Who, sir, promised me, that very Vane . . .

O God, to have it gone, quite gone from me, The one last hope—I that despair, my hope—That I should reach his heart one day, and cure

All bitterness one day, be proud again And young again, care for the sunshine too, And never think of Eliot any more,— God, and to toil for this, go far for this, Get nearer, and still nearer, reach this heart And find Vane there!

[Suddenly taking up a paper, and continuing with a forced calmness.]

Northumberland is sick: Well, then, I take the army: Wilmot leads The horse, and he, with Conway, must secure The passes of the Tyne: Ormond supplies My place in Ireland. Here, we'll try the City: If they refuse a loan—debase the coin And seize the bullion! we've no other choice.

Herbert . . .

And this while I am here! with you! And there are hosts such, hosts like Vane! I go, And, I once gone, they'll close around you, sir,

When the least pique, pettiest mistrust, is sure To ruin me—and you along with me!

Do you see that? And you along with me!

—Sir, you'll not ever listen to these men,

And I away, fighting your battle? Sir,

If they—if She—charge me, no matter how—

Say you, "At any time when he returns

"His head is mine!" Don't stop me there!

You know

My head is yours, but never stop me there!

Charles. Too shameful, Strafford! You advised the war,

And . . .

Strafford. I! I! that was never spoken with

Till it was entered on! That loathe the war!

That say it is the maddest, wickedest . . .

Do you know, sir, I think within my heart,

That you would say I did advise the war;

And if, through your own weakness, or what's worse,

These Scots, with God to help them, drive me back,

You will not step between the raging People And me, to say . . .

I knew it! from the first I knew it! Never was so cold a heart!

Remember that I said it—that I never Believed you for a moment!

—And, you loved me?

You thought your perfidy profoundly hid

Because I could not share the whisperings

With Vane, with Savile? What, the face was masked?

I had the heart to see, sir! Face of flesh,

But heart of stone—of smooth cold frightful stone!

Ay, call them! Shall I call for you? The Scots

Goaded to madness? Or the English—Pym—

Shall I call Pym, your subject? Oh, you think

I'll leave them in the dark about it all?

They shall not know you? Hampden, Pym shall not?

PYM, HAMPDEN, VANE, etc., enter.

[Dropping on his knee.] Thus favoured with your gracious countenance

What shall a rebel League avail against

Your servant, utterly and ever yours?

So, gentlemen, the King's not even left

The privilege of bidding me farewell

Who haste to save the People—that you style

Your People—from the mercies of the Scots

And France their friend?

In your contempt. You'll vanquish Pym?
Old Vane

Can vanquish you. And Vane you think to fly?
Rush on the Scots! Do nobly! Vane's slight sneer

Shall test success, adjust the praise, suggest
The faint result: Vane's sneer shall reach you
there.

—You do not listen!

Strafford. Oh,—I give that up!
There's fate in it: I give all here quite up.
Care not what old Vane does or Holland does Against me! 'Tis so idle to withstand!
In no case tell me what they do!

Lady Carlisle. But, Strafford . . .

Strafford. I want a little strife, beside; real strife;

This petty palace-warfare does me harm:
I shall feel better, fairly out of it.

Lady Carlisle. Why do you smile?

Strafford. I got to fear them, child!
I could have torn his throat at first, old Vane's,
As he leered at me on his stealthy way
To the Queen's closet. Lord, one loses heart!
I often found it on my lips to say
“Do not traduce me to her!”

Lady Carlisle. But the King . . .

Strafford. The King stood there, 'tis not so long ago,
—There; and the whisper, Lucy, “Be my
friend

“Of friends!”—My King! I would have . . .

Lady Carlisle. . . . Died for him?

Strafford. Sworn him true, Lucy: I can die for him.

Lady Carlisle. But go not, Strafford! But you must renounce

This project on the Scots! Die, wherefore die?
Charles never loved you.

Strafford. And he never will.

He's not of those who care the more for men
That they're unfortunate.

Lady Carlisle. Then wherefore die
For such a master?

Strafford. You that told me first
How good he was—when I must leave true
friends

To find a truer friend!—that drew me here

From Ireland,—“I had but to show myself “And Charles would spurn Vane, Savile, and the rest”—

You, child, to ask me this?

Lady Carlisle.

(If he have set

His heart abidingly on Charles!)

Then, friend,

I shall not see you any more.

Strafford.

Yes, Lucy.

There's one man here I have to meet.

Lady Carlisle.

(The King!

What way to save him from the King?

My soul—

That lent from its own store the charmed disguise

Which clothes the King—he shall behold my
soul!)

Strafford.—I shall speak best if you'll not gaze
Upon me: I had never thought, indeed,
To speak, but you would perish too, so sure!
Could you but know what 'tis to bear, my
friend,

One image stamped within you, turning blank
The else imperial brilliance of your mind,—
A weakness, but most precious,—like a flaw
I' the diamond, which should shape forth some sweet face

Yet to create, and meanwhile treasured there
Lest nature lose her gracious thought for ever!

Strafford. When could it be? no! Yet . . .

was it the day

We waited in the anteroom, till Holland

Should leave the presence-chamber?

Lady Carlisle.

What?

Strafford.

—That I

Described to you my love for Charles?

Lady Carlisle.

(Ah, no—

One must not lure him from a love like that!
Oh, let him love the King and die! 'Tis past.
I shall not serve him worse for that one brief

And passionate hope, silent for ever now!)

And you are really bound for Scotland then?

I wish you well: you must be very sure

Of the King's faith, for Pym and all his crew
Will not be idle—setting Vane aside!

Strafford. If Pym is busy,—you may write of Pym.

Lady Carlisle. What need, since there's your King to take your part?
He may endure Vane's counsel; but for
Pym—

Think you he'll suffer Pym to . . .

Strafford. Child, your hair
Is glossier than the Queen's!

Lady Carlisle. Is that to ask
A curl of me?

Strafford. Scotland—the weary way!

Lady Carlisle. Stay, let me fasten it.
—A rival's, Strafford?

Strafford [showing the George]. He hung it there: twine yours around it, child!

Lady Carlisle. No—no—another time—I trifle so!

And there's a masque on foot. Farewell.
The Court

Is dull; do something to enliven us
In Scotland: we expect it at your hands.

Strafford. I shall not fail in Scotland.

Lady Carlisle. Prosper—if You'll think of me sometimes!

Strafford. How think of him
And not of you? of you, the lingering streak
(A golden one) in my good fortune's eve.

Lady Carlisle. Strafford . . . Well, when the eve has its last streak

The night has its first star. [She goes out.]

Strafford. That voice of hers—
You'd think she had a heart sometimes!

His voice
Is soft too.

Only God can save him now.
Be Thou about his bed, about his path!
His path! Where's England's path? Diverging wide,
And not to join again the track my foot
Must follow—whither? All that forlorn way
Among the tombs! Far—far—till . . .

What, they do
Then join again, these paths? For, huge in the dusk,
There's—Pym to face!

Why then, I have a foe
To close with, and a fight to fight at last Worthy my soul! What, do they beard the King,

And shall the King want Strafford at his need?
Am I not here?

Not in the market-place,
Pressed on by the rough artisans, so proud To catch a glance from Wentworth! They lie down

Hungry yet smile "Why, it must end some
day:

"Is he not watching for our sake?" Not
there!

But in Whitehall, the whited sepulchre,
The . . .

Curse nothing to-night! Only one name

They'll curse in all those streets to-night.
Whose fault?

Did I make kings? set up, the first, a man
To represent the multitude, receive

All love in right of them—supplant them so,
Until you love the man and not the king—

The man with the mild voice and mournful
eyes

Which send me forth.

—To breast the bloody sea
That sweeps before me: with one star for guide.

Night has its first, supreme, forsaken star.

ACT III.

SCENE I.—Opposite Westminster Hall.

SIR HENRY VANE, LORD SAVILE, LORD
HOLLAND and others of the Court.

Sir H. Vane. The Commons thrust you
out?

Savile. And what kept you
From sharing their civility?

Sir H. Vane. Kept me?
Fresh news from Scotland, sir! worse than the last,

If that may be. All's up with Strafford there:
Nothing to bar the mad Scots marching hither Next Lord's-day morning. That detained me, sir!

Well now, before they thrust you out,—go
on,—

Their Speaker—did the fellow Lenthal say
All we set down for him?

Holland. Not a word missed.
Ere he began, we entered, Savile, I
And Bristol and some more, with hope to breed

A wholesome awe in the new Parliament.
But such a gang of graceless ruffians, Vane,
As glared at us!

Vane. So many?

Savile. Not a bench
Without its complement of burly knaves;
Your hopeful son among them: Hampden leant
Upon his shoulder—think of that!

Vane. I'd think
On Lenthal's speech, if I could get at it.
Urged he, I ask, how grateful they should prove

For this unlooked-for summons from the King?
Holland. Just as we drilled him.

Vane. That the Scots will march
On London?

Holland. All, and made so much of it,
A dozen subsidies at least seemed sure
To follow, when . . .

Vane. Well?

Holland. 'Tis a strange thing, now!
I've a vague memory of a sort of sound,
A voice, a kind of vast unnatural voice—
Pym, sir, was speaking! Savile, help me out:
What was it all?

Savile. Something about "a matter"—
No,—"work for England."

Holland. "England's great revenge"
He talked of.

Savile. How should I get used to Pym
More than yourselves?

Holland. However that be,
'Twas something with which we had nought
to do,
For we were "strangers" and 'twas "England's work"—

(All this while looking us straight in the face)
In other words, our presence might be spared.
So, in the twinkling of an eye, before
I settled to my mind what ugly brute
Was likest Pym just then, they yelled us out,
Locked the doors after us, and here are we.

Vane. Eliot's old method . . .

Savile. Prithee, Vane, a truce
To Eliot and his times, and the great Duke,
And how to manage Parliaments! 'Twas you
Advised the Queen to summon this: why,
Strafford

(To do him justice) would not hear of it.

Vane. Say rather, you have done the best of turns

To Strafford: he's at York, we all know why.
I would you had not set the Scots on Strafford
Till Strafford put down Pym for us, my lord!

Savile. Was it I altered Strafford's plans?
did I . . .

A Messenger enters.

Messenger. The Queen, my lords—she sends me: follow me

At once; 'tis very urgent! she requires
Your counsel: something perilous and strange
Occasions her command.

Savile. We follow, friend!
Now, Vane;—your Parliament will plague us all!

Vane. No Strafford here beside!

Savile. If you dare hint
I had a hand in his betrayal, sir . . .

Holland. Nay, find a fitter time for quarrels
—Pym

Will overmatch the best of you; and, think,
The Queen!

Vane. Come on, then: understand, I
loathe

Strafford as much as any—but his use!
To keep off Pym, to screen a friend or two,
I would we had reserved him yet awhile.

SCENE II.—Whitehall.

The QUEEN and Lady CARLISLE.

Queen. It cannot be.

Lady Carlisle. It is so.

Queen. Why, the House
Have hardly met.

Lady Carlisle. They met for that.

Queen. No, no!
Meet to impeach Lord Strafford? 'Tis a jest.

Be wholly ruled by him ! What's the result ?
The North that was to rise, Ireland to help,—
What came of it ? In my poor mind, a fright
Is no prodigious punishment.

Lady Carlisle. A fright ?

Pym will fail worse than Strafford if he thinks
To frighten him. [To the QUEEN.] You will not save him then ?

Savile. When something like a charge is made, the King

Will best know how to save him : and 'tis clear,
While Strafford suffers nothing by the matter,
The King may reap advantage : this in question,

No dinning you with ship-money complaints !

Queen [to Lady CARLISLE]. If we dissolve them, who will pay the army ?

Protect us from the insolent Scots ?

Lady Carlisle. In truth,

I know not, madam. Strafford's fate concerns
Me little : you desired to learn what course
Would save him : I obey you.

Vane. Notice, too,
There can't be fairer ground for taking full Revenge—(Strafford's revengeful)—than he'll have

Against his old friend Pym.

Queen. Why, he shall claim Vengeance on Pym !

Vane. And Strafford, who is he
To 'scape unscathed amid the accidents
That harass all beside ? I, for my part,
Should look for something of discomfiture
Had the King trusted me so thoroughly
And been so paid for it.

Holland. He'll keep at York :
All will blow over : he'll return no worse,
Humbled a little, thankful for a place
Under as good a man. Oh, we'll dispense
With seeing Strafford for a month or two !

STRAFFORD enters.

Queen. You here !

Strafford. The King sends for me, madam.

Queen. Sir,
The King . . .

Strafford. An urgent matter that imports the King !

[To Lady CARLISLE.] Why, Lucy, what's in agitation now,
That all this muttering and shrugging, see,
Begins at me ? They do not speak !

Lady Carlisle. 'Tis welcome !

For we are proud of you—happy and proud To have you with us, Strafford ! You were staunch

At Durham : you did well there ! Had you
not

Been stayed, you might have . . . we said, even now,

Our hope's in you !

Vane [to Lady CARLISLE]. The Queen would speak with you.

Strafford. Will one of you, his servants here, vouchsafe

To signify my presence to the King ?

Savile. An urgent matter ?

Strafford. None that touches you,

Lord Savile ! Say, it were some treacherous
Sly pitiful intriguing with the Scots—

You would go free, at least ! (They half divine

My purpose !) Madam, shall I see the King ?
The service I would render, much concerns
His welfare.

Queen. But his Majesty, my lord,
May not be here, may . . .

Strafford. Its importance, then,
Must plead excuse for this withdrawal,
madam,

And for the grief it gives Lord Savile here.

Queen [who has been conversing with VANE and HOLLAND]. The King will see you, sir !

[To Lady CARLISLE.] Mark me :
Pym's worst

Is done by now : he has impeached the Earl,
Or found the Earl too strong for him, by now.

Let us not seem instructed ! We should work
No good to Strafford, but deform ourselves

With shame in the world's eye. [To STRAF-
FORD.] His Majesty

Has much to say with you.

Strafford. Time fleeting, too !

[To Lady CARLISLE.] No means of getting them away ? And She—

What does she whisper? Does she know my purpose?

What does she think of it? Get them away!

Queen [to Lady CARLISLE]. He comes to baffle Pym—he thinks the danger far off: tell him no word of it! a time for help will come; we'll not be wanting then.
Keep him in play, Lucy—you, self-possessed and calm! [To STRAFFORD.] To spare your lordship some delay

I will myself acquaint the King. [To Lady CARLISLE.] Beware!

[The QUEEN, VANE, HOLLAND, and SAVILE go out.]

Strafford. She knows it?

Lady Carlisle. Tell me, Strafford!

Strafford. Afterward!

This moment's the great moment of all time.
She knows my purpose?

Lady Carlisle. Thoroughly: just now she bade me hide it from you.

Strafford. Quick, dear child, the whole o' the scheme?

Lady Carlisle. (Ah, he would learn if they connive at Pym's procedure! Could they but have once apprised the King! But there's no time for falsehood, now.) Strafford, the whole is known.

Strafford. Known and approved?

Lady Carlisle. Hardly discountenanced.

Strafford. And the King—say, the King consents as well?

Lady Carlisle. The King's not yet informed, but will not dare to interpose.

Strafford. What need to wait him, then?
He'll sanction it! I stayed, child, tell him, long!
It vexed me to the soul—this waiting here.
You know him, there's no counting on the King.
Tell him I waited long!

Lady Carlisle. (What can he mean?
Rejoice at the King's hollowness?)

Strafford. I knew they would be glad of it,—all over once,
I knew they would be glad: but he'd contrive,
The Queen and he, to mar, by helping it,
An angel's making.

Lady Carlisle. (Is he mad?) Dear
Strafford,

You were not wont to look so happy.

Strafford. Sweet,

I tried obedience thoroughly. I took The King's wild plan: of course, ere I could reach

My army, Conway ruined it. I drew
The wrecks together, raised all heaven and
earth,

And would have fought the Scots: the King
at once

Made truce with them. Then, Lucy, then,
dear child,

God put it in my mind to love, serve, die for Charles, but never to obey him more!

While he endured their insolence at Ripon
I fell on them at Durham. But you'll tell

The King I waited? All the anteroom is filled with my adherents.

Lady Carlisle. Strafford—Strafford,
What daring act is this you hint?

Strafford. No, no!
'Tis here, not daring if you knew? all here!

[Drawing papers from his breast.]
Full proof, see, ample proof—does the Queen
know

I have such damning proof? Bedford and Essex,

Brooke, Warwick, Savile (did you notice
Savile?

The simper that I spoilt?), Saye, Mandeville—
Sold to the Scots, body and soul, by Pym!

Lady Carlisle. Great heaven!

Strafford. From Savile and his lords, to Pym

and his losels, crushed!—Pym shall no ward the blow

Nor Savile creep aside from it! The Crew and the Cabal—I crush them!

Lady Carlisle. And you go—
Strafford,—and now you go?—

Strafford. —About no work in the background, I promise you! I go straight to the House of Lords to claim these knaves.

Mainwaring!

Lady Carlisle. Stay—stay, Strafford!

Strafford. She'll return,
The Queen—some little project of her own !
No time to lose : the King takes fright
perhaps.

Lady Carlisle. Pym's strong, remember !

Strafford. Very strong, as fits
The Faction's head—with no offence to Hampden,

Vane, Rudyard and my loving Hollis : one
And all they lodge within the Tower to-night
In just equality. Bryan ! Mainwaring !

[Many of his Adherents enter.

The Peers debate just now (a lucky chance)
On the Scots' war ; my visit's opportune
When all is over, Bryan, you proceed
To Ireland : these dispatches, mark me,
Bryan,

Are for the Deputy, and these for Ormond :
We want the army here—my army, raised
At such a cost, that should have done such good,

And was inactive all the time ! no matter,
We'll find a use for it. Willis . . . or, no
—you !

You, friend, make haste to York : bear this,
at once . . .

Or,—better stay for form's sake, see yourself
The news you carry. You remain with me
To execute the Parliament's command, Mainwaring ! Help to seize these lesser
knaves,

Take care there's no escaping at backdoors :
I'll not have one escape, mind me—not one !
I seem revengeful, Lucy ? Did you know
What these men dare !

Lady Carlisle. It is so much they dare !

Strafford. I proved that long ago ; my turn is now.

Keep sharp watch, Goring, on the citizens !
Observe who harbours any of the brood
That scramble off : be sure they smart for it !
Our coffers are but lean.

And you, child, too,
Shall have your task ; deliver this to Laud.
Laud will not be the slowest in my praise :
“Thorough” he'll cry !—Foolish, to be so glad !

This life is gay and glowing, after all :

'Tis worth while, Lucy, having foes like mine
Just for the bliss of crushing them. To-day
Is worth the living for.

Lady Carlisle. That reddening brow !
You seem . . .

Strafford. Well—do I not ? I would be well—

I could not but be well on such a day !
And, this day ended, 'tis of slight import
How long the ravaged frame subjects the soul
In Strafford.

Lady Carlisle. Noble Strafford !

Strafford. No farewell !
I'll see you anon, to-morrow—the first thing.
—If She should come to stay me !

Lady Carlisle. Go—'tis nothing—
Only my heart that swells : it has been thus Ere now : go, Strafford !

Strafford. To-night, then, let it be.
I must see Him : you, the next after Him.
I'll tell you how Pym looked. Follow me,
friends !

You, gentlemen, shall see a sight this hour
To talk of all your lives. Close after me !
“My friend of friends !”

[STRAFFORD and the rest go out.

Lady Carlisle. The King—ever the King !
No thought of one beside, whose little word
Unveils the King to him—one word from me,
Which yet I do not breathe !

Ah, have I spared
Strafford a pang, and shall I seek reward
Beyond that memory ? Surely too, some way
He is the better for my love. No, no—
He would not look so joyous—I'll believe
His very eye would never sparkle thus,
Had I not prayed for him this long, long while.

SCENE III.—The Ante-chamber of the House of Lords.

Many of the Presbyterian Party. The Adherents of STRAFFORD, etc.

A Group of Presbyterians.—I. I tell you he struck Maxwell : Maxwell sought To stay the Earl : he struck him and passed
on.

The Puritan. How hath the oppressor ceased!

The Lord hath broken the staff of the wicked!
The sceptre of the rulers, he who smote
The people in wrath with a continual stroke,
That ruled the nations in his anger—he
Is persecuted and none hindereth!

[The doors open, and STRAFFORD issues in the greatest disorder, and amid cries from within of "Void the House!"

Strafford. Impeach me! Pym! I never struck, I think,

The felon on that calm insulting mouth
When it proclaimed—Pym's mouth proclaimed me . . . God!

Was it a word, only a word that held
The outrageous blood back on my heart—which beats!

Which beats! Some one word—"Traitor," did he say,

Bending that eye, brimful of bitter fire,
Upon me?

Maxwell. In the Commons' name, their servant

Demands Lord Strafford's sword.

Strafford. What did you say?

Maxwell. The Commons bid me ask your lordship's sword.

Strafford. Let us go forth: follow me,
gentlemen!

Draw your swords too: cut any down that bar us.

On the King's service! Maxwell, clear the way! [The Presbyterians prepare to dispute his passage.

Strafford. I stay: the King himself shall see me here.

Your tablets, fellow!

[To MAINWARING.] Give that to the King!
Yes, Maxwell, for the next half-hour, let be!
Nay, you shall take my sword!

[MAXWELL advances to take it.

Or, no—not that!

Their blood, perhaps, may wipe out all thus far,

All up to that—not that! Why, friend, you see

When the King lays your head beneath my
foot

It will not pay for that. Go, all of you!

Maxwell. I dare, my lord, to disobey:
none stir!

Strafford. This gentle Maxwell!—Do not touch him, Bryan!

[To the Presbyterians.] Whichever cur of you will carry this Escapes his fellow's fate. None saves his life?
None?

[Cries from within of "STRAFFORD!"

Slingsby, I've loved you at least:
make haste!

Stab me! I have not time to tell you why.

You then, my Bryan! Mainwaring, you then!

Is it because I spoke so hastily

At Allerton? The King had vexed me.

[To the Presbyterians.] You!

—Not even you? If I live over this,

The King is sure to have your heads, you
know!

But what if I can't live this minute through?

Pym, who is there with his pursuing smile!

[Louder cries of "STRAFFORD!"

The King! I troubled him, stood in the way

Of his negotiations, was the one

Great obstacle to peace, the Enemy

Of Scotland: and he sent for me, from York,

My safety guaranteed—having prepared

A Parliament—I see! And at Whitehall

The Queen was whispering with Vane—I see

The trap! [Tearing off the George.

I tread a gewgaw underfoot,

And cast a memory from me. One stroke,
now!

[His own Adherents disarm him.

Renewed cries of "STRAFFORD!"

England! I see thy arm in this and yield.

Pray you now—Pym awaits me—pray you
now!

[STRAFFORD reaches the doors: they open wide. HAMPDEN and a crowd discovered, and, at the bar, PYM standing apart. As STRAFFORD kneels, the scene shuts.

ACT IV.

SCENE I.—Whitehall.

The KING, the QUEEN, HOLLIS, Lady CARLISLE. (VANE, HOLLAND, SAVILE, in the background.)

Lady Carlisle. Answer them, Hollis, for his sake ! One word !

Charles. [To HOLLIS.] You stand, silent and cold, as though I were Deceiving you—my friend, my playfellow Of other times. What wonder after all ? Just so, I dreamed my People loved me.

Hollis. Sir, It is yourself that you deceive, not me. You'll quit me comforted, your mind made up That, since you've talked thus much and grieved thus much, All you can do for Strafford has been done.

Queen. If you kill Strafford—(come, we grant you leave, Suppose)—

Hollis. I may withdraw, sir ?

Lady Carlisle. Hear them out 'Tis the last chance for Strafford ! Hear them out !

Hollis. "If we kill Strafford"—on the eighteenth day Of Strafford's trial—"We !"

Charles. Pym, my good Hollis—Pym, I should say !

Hollis. Ah, true—sir, pardon me ! You witness our proceedings every day ; But the screened gallery, I might have guessed, Admits of such a partial glimpse at us, Pym takes up all the room, shuts out the view. Still, on my honour, sir, the rest of the place Is not unoccupied. The Commons sit—That's England ; Ireland sends, and Scotland too, Their representatives ; the Peers that judge Are easily distinguished ; one remarks The People here and there : but the close curtain Must hide so much !

Queen. Acquaint your insolent crew, This day the curtain shall be dashed aside ! It served a purpose.

Hollis. Think ! This very day ? Ere Strafford rises to defend himself ?

Charles. I will defend him, sir !—sanction the past

This day : it ever was my purpose. Rage At me, not Strafford !

Lady Carlisle. Nobly !—will he not Do nobly ?

Hollis. Sir, you will do honestly ; And, for that deed, I too would be a king.

Charles. Only, to do this now !—"deaf" (in your style)

"To subjects' prayers,"—I must oppose them now !

It seems their will the trial should proceed,— So palpably their will !

Hollis. You peril much, But it were no bright moment save for that. Strafford, your prime support, the sole roof-tree

Which props this quaking House of Privilege, (Floods come, winds beat, and see—the treacherous sand !)

Doubtless, if the mere putting forth an arm Could save him, you'd save Strafford.

Charles. And they dare Consummate calmly this great wrong ! No hope ?

This ineffaceable wrong ! No pity then ?

Hollis. No plague in store for perfidy ?— Farewell !

You called me, sir—[To Lady CARLISLE.] you, lady, bade me come

To save the Earl : I came, thank God for it, To learn how far such perfidy can go !

You, sir, concert with me on saving him Who have just ruined Strafford !

Charles. I ?—and how ?

Hollis. Eighteen days long he throws, one after one,

Pym's charges back : a blind moth-eaten law ! —He'll break from it at last : and whom to thank ?

The mouse that gnawed the lion's net for him Got a good friend,—but he, the other mouse,

That looked on while the lion freed himself—

Fared he so well, does any fable say?

Charles. What can you mean?

Hollis. Pym never could have proved

Strafford's design of bringing up the troops
To force this kingdom to obedience: Vane—
Your servant, not our friend, has proved it.

Charles. Vane?

Hollis. This day. Did Vane deliver up or no

Those notes which, furnished by his son to Pym,

Seal Strafford's fate?

Charles. Sir, as I live, I know Nothing that Vane has done! What treason
next?

I wash my hands of it. Vane, speak the
truth!

Ask Vane himself!

Hollis. I will not speak to Vane,
Who speak to Pym and Hampden every day.

Queen. Speak to Vane's master then!
What gain to him
Were Strafford's death?

Hollis. Ha? Strafford cannot turn
As you, sir, sit there—bid you forth, demand
If every hateful act were not set down
In his commission?—whether you contrived
Or no, that all the violence should seem His work, the gentle ways—your own,—his
part,

To counteract the King's kind impulses—
While . . . but you know what he could say! And then
He might produce,—mark, sir!—a certain
charge

To set the King's express command aside,
If need were, and be blameless. He might add . . .

Charles. Enough!

Hollis. —Who bade him break
the Parliament,
Find some pretence for setting up sword-law!

Queen. Retire!

Charles. Once more, whatever Vane dared do,

I know not: he is rash, a fool—I know
Nothing of Vane!

Hollis. Well—I believe you. Sir,
Believe me, in return, that . . .

[Turning to Lady CARLISLE.] Gentle lady,
The few words I would say, the stones might hear

Sooner than these,—I rather speak to you,
You, with the heart! The question, trust me, takes

Another shape, to-day: not, if the King
Or England shall succumb,—but, who shall pay
The forfeit, Strafford or his master. Sir,
You loved me once: think on my warning
now! [Goes out.]

Charles. On you and on your warning both!—Carlisle!

That paper!

Queen. But consider!

Charles. Give it me!

There, signed—will that content you? Do not speak!

You have betrayed me, Vane! See! any day,
According to the tenor of that paper,
He bids your brother bring the army up,
Strafford shall head it and take full revenge.
Seek Strafford! Let him have the same, before
He rises to defend himself!

Queen. In truth?

That your shrewd Hollis should have worked a change

Like this! You, late reluctant . . .

Charles. Say, Carlisle,

Your brother Percy brings the army up,
Falls on the Parliament—(I'll think of you,
My Hollis!) say, we plotted long—'tis mine,
The scheme is mine, remember! Say, I cursed Vane's folly in your hearing! If the Earl Does rise to do us shame, the fault shall lie
With you, Carlisle!

Lady Carlisle. Nay, fear not me! but
still

That's a bright moment, sir, you throw away.
Tear down the veil and save him!

Queen. Go, Carlisle!

Lady Carlisle, (I shall see Strafford—speak to him: my heart

Must never beat so, then! And if I tell

An Officer. Stand back, I say!

2nd Spectator. Who's the veiled woman that he talks with?

Many Spectators. Hush—

The Earl! the Earl!

[Enter STRAFFORD, SLINGSBY, and other Secretaries, HOLLIS, Lady CARLISLE, MAXWELL, BALFOUR, etc. STRAFFORD converses with Lady CARLISLE.]

Hollis. So near the end! Be patient—
Return!

Strafford [to his Secretaries]. Here—anywhere—or, 'tis freshest here!

To spend one's April here, the blossom-month:
Set it down here!

[They arrange a table, papers, etc.]

So, Pym can quail, can cower
Because I glance at him, yet more's to do?

What's to be answered, Slingsby? Let us end!

[To Lady CARLISLE.] Child, I refuse his offer; whatsoe'er

It be! Too late! Tell me no word of him!

'Tis something, Hollis, I assure you that—

To stand, sick as you are, some eighteen days

Fighting for life and fame against a pack

Of very curs, that lie through thick and thin,

Eat flesh and bread by wholesale, and can't

say

“Strafford” if it would take my life!

Lady Carlisle. Be moved!

Glance at the paper!

Strafford. Already at my heels!

Pym's faulting bloodhounds scent the track
again.

Peace, child! Now, Slingsby!

[Messengers from LANE and other of STRAFFORD'S Counsel within the Hall are coming and going during the Scene.]

Strafford [setting himself to write and dictate]. I shall beat you, Hollis!

Do you know that? In spite of St. John's tricks,

In spite of Pym—your Pym who shrank from me!

Eliot would have contrived it otherwise.

[To a Messenger.] In truth? This slip, tell

Lane, contains as much

As I can call to mind about the matter.

Eliot would have disdained . . .

[Calling after the Messenger.] And Radcliffe, say,

The only person who could answer Pym,

Is safe in prison, just for that.

Well, well!

It had not been recorded in that case,

I baffled you.

[To Lady CARLISLE.] Nay, child, why look so grieved?

All's gained without the King! You saw Pym quail?

What shall I do when they acquit me, think you,

But tranquilly resume my task as though

Nothing had intervened since I proposed

To call that traitor to account! Such tricks,

Trust me, shall not be played a second time,

Not even against Laud, with his grey hair—

Your good work, Hollis! Peace! To make amends,

You, Lucy, shall be here when I impeach

Pym and his fellows.

Hollis. Wherefore not protest

Against our whole proceeding, long ago?

Why feel indignant now? Why stand this while Enduring patiently?

Strafford. Child, I'll tell you—

You, and not Pym—you, the slight graceful girl

Tall for a flowering lily, and not Hollis—

Why I stood patient! I was fool enough

To see the will of England in Pym's will;

To fear, myself had wronged her, and to wait

Her judgment: when, behold, in place of it . . .

[To a Messenger who whispers.] Tell Lane to answer no such question! Law,—

I grapple with their law! I'm here to try

My actions by their standard, not my own!

Their law allowed that levy: what's the rest

To Pym, or Lane, any but God and me?

Lady Carlisle. The King's so weak! Secure this chance! 'Twas Vane,
Never forget, who furnished Pym the notes . . .
Strafford. Fit,—very fit, those precious notes of Vane,
To close the Trial worthily! I feared
Some spice of nobleness might linger yet
And spoil the character of all the past.
Vane eased me . . . and I will go back and
say
As much—to Pym, to England! Follow me!
I have a word to say! There, my defence
Is done!

Stay! why be proud? Why care to own
My gladness, my surprise?—Nay, not surprise!
Wherefore insist upon the little pride
Of doing all myself, and sparing him
The pain? Child, say the triumph is my King's!
When Pym grew pale, and trembled, and sank down,
One image was before me: could I fail?
Child, care not for the past, so indistinct,
Obscure—there's nothing to forgive in it
'Tis so forgotten! From this day begins
A new life, founded on a new belief
In Charles.

Hollis. In Charles? Rather believe in
Pym!
And here he comes in proof! Appeal to
Pym!
Say how unfair . . .

Strafford. To Pym? I would say nothing!
I would not look upon Pym's face again.

Lady Carlisle. Stay, let me have to think
I pressed your hand!

[STRAFFORD and his friends go out.]

Enter HAMPDEN and VANE.

Vane. O Hampden, save the great misguided man!
Plead Strafford's cause with Pym! I have remarked
He moved no muscle when we all declaimed

Against him: you had but to breathe—he turned
Those kind calm eyes upon you.

[*Enter PYM, the Solicitor-General
ST. JOHN, the Managers of the Trial, FIENNES, RUDYARD, etc.*

Rudyard. Horrible!
Till now all hearts were with you: I withdraw
For one. Too horrible! But we mistake
Your purpose, Pym: you cannot snatch away
The last spar from the drowning man.

Fiennes. He talks
With St. John of it—see, how quietly!
[To other Presbyterians.] You'll join us?
Strafford may deserve the worst:
But this new course is monstrous. Vane, take heart!
This Bill of his Attainder shall not have
One true man's hand to it.

Vane. Consider, Pym!
Confront your Bill, your own Bill: what is it?
You cannot catch the Earl on any charge,—
No man will say the law has hold of him
On any charge; and therefore you resolve
To take the general sense on his desert,
As though no law existed, and we met
To found one. You refer to Parliament
To speak its thought upon the abortive mass
Of half-borne-out assertions, dubious hints
Hereafter to be cleared, distortions—ay,
And wild inventions. Every man is saved
The task of fixing any single charge
On Strafford: he has but to see in him
The enemy of England.

Pym. A right scruple!
I have heard some called England's enemy
With less consideration.

Vane. Pity me!
Indeed you made me think I was your friend!
I who have murdered Strafford, how remove
That memory from me?

Pym. I absolve you, Vane.
Take you no care for aught that you have
done!

Vane. John Hampden, not this Bill!
Reject this Bill!

He staggers through the ordeal : let him go, Strew no fresh fire before him ! Plead for us !

When Strafford spoke, your eyes were thick with tears !

Hampden. England speaks louder : who are we, to play

The generous pardoner at her expense,
Magnanimously waive advantages,

And, if he conquer us, applaud his skill ?

Vane. He was your friend.

Pym. I have heard that before.

Fiennes. And England trusts you.

Hampden. Shame be his, who turns
The opportunity of serving her
She trusts him with, to his own mean account—

Who would look nobly frank at her expense !

Fiennes. I never thought it could have come to this.

Pym. But I have made myself familiar,
Fiennes,

With this one thought—have walked, and sat, and slept,

This thought before me. I have done such
things,

Being the chosen man that should destroy
The traitor. You have taken up this thought
To play with, for a gentle stimulant,
To give a dignity to idler life

By the dim prospect of emprise to come,
But ever with the softening, sure belief,
That all would end some strange way right
at last.

Fiennes. Had we made out some weightier charge !

Pym. You say

That these are petty charges : can we come
To the real charge at all ? There he is safe
In tyranny's stronghold. Apostasy
Is not a crime, treachery not a crime :

The cheek burns, the blood tingles, when you speak

The words, but where's the power to take revenge

Upon them ? We must make occasion serve,—
The oversight shall pay for the main sin
That mocks us.

Rudyard. But this unexampled course,
This Bill !

Pym. By this, we roll the clouds away
Of precedent and custom, and at once
Bid the great beacon-light God sets in all,
The conscience of each bosom, shine upon
The guilt of Strafford : each man lay his hand
Upon his breast, and judge !

Vane. I only see
Strafford, nor pass his corpse for all beyond !

Rudyard and others. Forgive him ! He would join us, now he finds
What the King counts reward ! The pardon,
too,

Should be your own. Yourself should bear to Strafford

The pardon of the Commons.

Pym. Meet him ? Strafford ?
Have we to meet once more, then ? Be it so !
And yet—the prophecy seemed half fulfilled
When, at the Trial, as he gazed, my youth,
Our friendship, divers thoughts came back
at once

And left me, for a time . . . 'Tis very sad !
To-morrow we discuss the points of law
With Lane—to-morrow ?

Vane. Not before to-morrow—
So, time enough ! I knew you would relent !

Pym. The next day, Haselrig, you introduce
The Bill of his Attainder. Pray for me !

SCENE III.—Whitehall.

The KING.

Charles. My loyal servant ! To defend himself

Thus irresistibly,—withholding aught
That seemed to implicate us !

We have done
Less gallantly by Strafford. Well, the future
Must recompense the past.

She tarries long.
I understand you, Strafford, now !

The scheme—
Carlisle's mad scheme—he'll sanction it, I
fear,

After this trial, alone, as man to man—
I might say something, warn you, pray you,
save—

Mark me, King Charles, save—you !
But God must do it. Yet I warn you, sir—
(With Strafford's faded eyes yet full on me)
As you would have no deeper question moved —"How long the Many must endure the
One,"

Assure me, sir, if England give assent
To Strafford's death, you will not interfere !
Or—

Charles. God forsakes me. I am in a net
And cannot move. Let all be as you say !

Enter Lady CARLISLE.

Lady Carlisle. He loves you—looking beautiful with joy
Because you sent me ! he would spare you all The pain ! he never dreamed you would forsake

Your servant in the evil day—nay, see Your scheme returned ! That generous heart of his !

He needs it not—or, needing it, disdains
A course that might endanger you—you, sir,
Whom Strafford from his inmost soul . . .

[Seeing Pym.] Well met !

No fear for Strafford ! All that's true and brave

On your own side shall help us : we are now
Stronger than ever.

Ha—what, sir, is this ?
All is not well ! What parchment have you
there ?

Pym. Sir, much is saved us both.

Lady Carlisle. This Bill ! Your lip
Whitens—you could not read one line to me
Your voice would falter so !

Pym. No recreant yet !
The great word went from England to my
soul,

And I arose. The end is very near.

Lady Carlisle. I am to save him ! All have shrunk beside ;

'Tis only I am left. Heaven will make strong
The hand now as the heart. Then let both die !

ACT V.

SCENE I.—Whitehall.

HOLLIS, Lady CARLISLE.

Hollis. Tell the King then ! Come in with me !

Lady Carlisle. Not so !

He must not hear till it succeeds.

Hollis. Succeed ?

No dream was half so vain—you'd rescue
Strafford

And outwit Pym ! I cannot tell you . . . lady,
The block pursues me, and the hideous show.
To-day . . . is it to-day ? And all the while He's sure of the King's pardon. Think, I have

To tell this man he is to die. The King
May rend his hair, for me ! I'll not see Strafford !

Lady Carlisle. Only, if I succeed, remember—Charles

Has saved him. He would hardly value life
Unless his gift. My staunch friends wait.
Go in—

You must go in to Charles !

Hollis. And all beside

Left Strafford long ago. The King has signed
The warrant for his death ! the Queen was sick .

Of the eternal subject. For the Court,—

The Trial was amusing in its way,
Only too much of it : the Earl withdrew
In time. But you, fragile, alone, so young Amid rude mercenaries—you devise

A plan to save him ! Even though it fails,
What shall reward you ?

Lady Carlisle. I may go, you think,
To France with him ? And you reward me,
friend,

Who lived with Strafford even from his youth
Before he set his heart on state-affairs

And they bent down that noble brow of his.
I have learned somewhat of his latter life,

And all the future I shall know : but, Hollis,
I ought to make his youth my own as well.

Tell me,—when he is saved !

Hollis. My gentle friend,
He should know all and love you, but 'tis
vain!

Lady Carlisle. Love? no—too late now!
Let him love the King!

'Tis the King's scheme! I have your word, remember!

We'll keep the old delusion up. But, quick!
Quick! Each of us has work to do, beside!

Go to the King! I hope—Hollis—I hope!
Say nothing of my scheme! Hush, while we speak

Think where he is! Now for my gallant
friends!

Hollis. Where he is? Calling wildly upon
Charles,
Guessing his fate, pacing the prison-floor.
Let the King tell him! I'll not look on Strafford.

SCENE II.—The Tower.

They sing.

*O bell' andare
Per barca in mare,
Verso la sera
Di Primavera!*

William. The boat's in the broad moonlight all this while—

*Verso la sera
Di Primavera!*

And the boat shoots from underneath the moon
Into the shadowy distance; only still
You hear the dipping oar—

Verso la sera,

And faint, and fainter, and then all's quite
gone,
Music and light and all, like a lost star.

Anne. But you should sleep, father: you were to sleep.

Strafford. I do sleep, Anne; or if not—you must know
There's such a thing as . . .

William. You're too tired to sleep?

Strafford. It will come by-and-by and all day long,

In that old quiet house I told you of:

We sleep safe there.

Anne. Why not in Ireland?

Strafford. No!

Too many dreams!—That song's for Venice,
William:

You know how Venice looks upon the map—
Isles that the mainland hardly can let go?

William. You've been to Venice, father?

Strafford. I was young, then.

William. A city with no King; that's why I like

Even a song that comes from Venice.

Strafford. William!

William. Oh, I know why! Anne, do you love the King?

But I'll see Venice for myself one day.

Strafford. See many lands, boy—England last of all,—

That way you'll love her best.

William. Why do men say
You sought to ruin her then?

Strafford. Ah,—they say that.

William. Why?

Strafford. I suppose they must have words to say,

As you to sing.

Anne. But they make songs beside:
Last night I heard one, in the street beneath,
That called you . . . Oh, the names!

William. Don't mind her, father!
They soon left off when I cried out to them.

Strafford. We shall so soon be out of it,
my boy!

'Tis not worth while: who heeds a foolish
song?

William. Why, not the King.

Strafford. Well: it has been the fate
Of better; and yet,—wherefore not feel sure That Time, who in the twilight comes to mend

All the fantastic day's caprice, consign

To the low ground once more the ignoble Term,
And raise the Genius on his orb again,—
That Time will do me right?

Anne. (Shall we sing, William?
He does not look thus when we sing.)

Strafford. For Ireland,
Something is done: too little, but enough
To show what might have been.

William. (I have no heart
To sing now! Anne, how very sad he looks!
Oh, I so hate the King for all he says!)

Strafford. Forsook them! What, the common songs will run
That I forsook the People? Nothing more?
Ay, Fame, the busy scribe, will pause, no
doubt,

Turning a deaf ear to her thousand slaves
Noisy to be enrolled,—will register
The curious glosses, subtle notices,
Ingenious clearings-up one fain would see
Beside that plain inscription of The Name—
The Patriot Pym, or the Apostate Strafford!

[The Children resume their song timidly, but break off.]

Enter HOLLIS and an Attendant.

Strafford. No,—Hollis? in good time!—
Who is he?

Hollis. One
That must be present.

Strafford. Ah—I understand.
They will not let me see poor Laud alone.
How politic! They'd use me by degrees
To solitude: and, just as you came in,
I was solicitous what life to lead
When Strafford's "not so much as Constable
"In the King's service." Is there any means
To keep oneself awake? What would you do
After this bustle, Hollis, in my place?

Hollis. Strafford!

Strafford. Observe, not but that
Pym and you

Will find me news enough—news I shall hear
Under a quince-tree by a fish-pond side
At Wentworth. Garrard must be re-engaged
My newsman. Or, a better project now—
What if when all's consummated, and the Saints

Reign, and the Senate's work goes swim-mingly,—

What if I venture up, some day, unseen,
To saunter through the Town, notice how
Pym,

Your Tribune, likes Whitehall, drop quietly
Into a tavern, hear a point discussed,
As, whether Strafford's name were John or James—

And be myself appealed to—I, who shall Myself have near forgotten!

Hollis. I would speak . . .

Strafford. Then you shall speak,—not
now. I want just now,
To hear the sound of my own tongue. This place

Is full of ghosts.

Hollis. Nay, you must hear me,
Strafford!

Strafford. Oh, readily! Only, one rare thing more,—

The minister! Who will advise the King,
Turn his Sejanus, Richelieu and what not,
And yet have health—children, for aught I
know—

My patient pair of traitors! Ah,—but,
William—

Does not his cheek grow thin?

William. 'Tis you look thin,
Father!

Strafford. A scamper o'er the breezy wolds
Sets all to-rights.

Hollis. You cannot sure forget
A prison-roof is o'er you, Strafford?

Strafford. No,
Why, no. I would not touch on that, the first.

I left you that. Well, Hollis? Say at once,
The King can find no time to set me free!
A mask at Theobald's? ¹

Hollis. Hold: no such affair
Detains him.

Strafford. True: what needs so great a matter?

The Queen's lip may be sore. Well: when he pleases,—

¹ A house near Cheshunt in Herts.

You'll not believe her, even should the Queen
Think they take after one they rarely saw.
I had intended that my son should live
A stranger to these matters : but you are So utterly deprived of friends ! He too Must serve you—will you not be good to
him ?

Or, stay, sir, do not promise—do not swear !
You, Hollis—do the best you can for me !
I've not a soul to trust to : Wandesford's dead,
And you've got Radcliffe safe, Laud's turn comes next :

I've found small time of late for my affairs,
But I trust any of you, Pym himself—
No one could hurt them : there's an infant,
too.

These tedious cares ! Your Majesty could spare them.

Nay—pardon me, my King ! I had forgotten
Your education, trials, much temptation,
Some weakness : there escaped a peevish
word—

'Tis gone : I bless you at the last. You know
All's between you and me : what has the world
To do with it ? Farewell !

Charles [at the door]. Balfour ! Balfour !

Enter BALFOUR.

The Parliament !—go to them : I grant all Demands. Their sittings shall be permanent :
Tell them to keep their money if they will :
I'll come to them for every coat I wear
And every crust I eat : only I choose To pardon Strafford. As the Queen shall choose !

—You never heard the People howl for blood,
Beside !

Balfour. Your Majesty may hear them now :
The walls can hardly keep their murmurs out :
Please you retire !

Charles. Take all the troops, Balfour !

Balfour. There are some hundred thousand of the crowd.

Charles. Come with me, Strafford ! You'll not fear, at least !

Strafford. Balfour, say nothing to the world of this !

I charge you, as a dying man, forget

You gazed upon this agony of one . . .
Of one . . . or if . . . why you may say,
Balfour,

The King was sorry : 'tis no shame in him :
Yes, you may say he even wept, Balfour,
And that I walked the lighter to the block
Because of it. I shall walk lightly, sir !

Earth fades, heaven breaks on me : I shall stand next

Before God's throne : the moment's close at
hand

When man the first, last time, has leave to lay
His whole heart bare before its Maker, leave
To clear up the long error of a life
And choose one happiness for evermore.

With all mortality about me, Charles,
The sudden wreck, the dregs of violent death—
What if, despite the opening angel-song,
There penetrate one prayer for you ? Be saved Through me ! Bear witness, no one could prevent

My death ! Lead on ! ere he awake—best,
now !

All must be ready : did you say, Balfour,
The crowd began to murmur ? They'll be kept

Too late for sermon at St. Antholin's !
Now ! But tread softly—children are at play
In the next room. Precede ! I follow—

Enter Lady CARLISLE, with many Attendants.

Lady Carlisle.

Me !

Follow me, Strafford, and be saved ! The King ?

[To the KING.] Well—as you ordered, they are ranged without,

The convoy . . . [seeing the KING's state.]

[To STRAFFORD.] You know all, then !
Why, I thought

It looked best that the King should save you,
—Charles

Alone ; 'tis a shame that you should owe me aught.

Or no, not shame ! Strafford, you'll not feel shame

At being saved by me ?

Hollis.

All true ! Oh Strafford,

She saves you! all her deed! this lady's deed!

And is the boat in readiness? You, friend, Are Billingsley, no doubt. Speak to her, Strafford!

See how she trembles, waiting for your voice! The world's to learn its bravest story yet.

Lady Carlisle. Talk afterward! Long nights in France enough, To sit beneath the vines and talk of home.

Strafford. You love me, child? Ah, Strafford can be loved

As well as Vane! I could escape, then?

Lady Carlisle. Haste!
Advance the torches, Bryan!

Strafford. I will die.
They call me proud: but England had no right,

When she encountered me—her strength to mine—

To find the chosen foe a craven. Girl, I fought her to the utterance, I fell, I am her's now, and I will die. Beside,

The lookers-on! Eliot is all about This place, with his most uncomplaining brow.

Lady Carlisle. Strafford!

Strafford. I think if you could know how much

I love you, you would be repaid, my friend!

Lady Carlisle. Then, for my sake!

Strafford. Even for your sweet sake, I stay.

Hollis. For their sake!

Strafford. To bequeath a stain?
Leave me! Girl, humour me and let me die!

Lady Carlisle. Bid him escape—wake, King! Bid him escape!

Strafford. True, I will go! Die, and forsake the King?

I'll not draw back from the last service.

Lady Carlisle. Strafford!

Strafford. And, after all, what is disgrace to me?

Let us come, child! That it should end this way!

Lead then! but I feel strangely: it was not To end this way.

Lady Carlisle. Lean—lean on me!

Strafford. My King!
Oh, had he trusted me—his friend of friends!

Lady Carlisle. I can support him, Hollis!
Strafford. Not this way!

This gate—I dreamed of it, this very gate.

Lady Carlisle. It opens on the river: our good boat

Is moored below, our friends are there.

Strafford. The same:
Only with something ominous and dark,
Fatal, inevitable.

Lady Carlisle. Strafford! Strafford!

Strafford. Not by this gate! I feel what will be there!

I dreamed of it, I tell you: touch it not!

Lady Carlisle. To save the King,—Strafford, to save the King!

[As STRAFFORD opens the door, PYM is discovered with HAMPDEN, VANE, etc. STRAFFORD falls back; PYM follows slowly and confronts him.]

Pym. Have I done well? Speak, England!
Whose sole sake

I still have laboured for, with disregard
To my own heart,—for whom my youth was made

Barren, my manhood waste, to offer up
Her sacrifice—this friend, this Wentworth here—

Who walked in youth with me, loved me, it may be,

And whom, for his forsaking England's cause,
I hunted by all means (trusting that she Would sanctify all means) even to the block
Which waits for him. And saying this, I feel

No bitterer pang than first I felt, the hour
I swore that Wentworth might leave us, but I Would never leave him: I do leave him now.

I render up my charge (be witness, God!)
To England who imposed it. I have done
Her bidding—poorly, wrongly,—it may be,
With ill effects—for I am weak, a man:

Still, I have done my best, my human best,
Not faltering for a moment. It is done.

And this said, if I say . . . yes, I will say
I never loved but one man—David not More Jonathan! Even thus, I love him now:

And look for my chief portion in that world
Where great hearts led astray are turned again, (Soon it may be, and, certes, will be soon :
My mission over, I shall not live long,)—
Ay, here I know I talk—I dare and must,
Of England, and her great reward, as all
I look for there ; but in my inmost heart,
Believe, I think of stealing quite away
To walk once more with Wentworth—my youth's friend

Purged from all error, gloriously renewed,
And Eliot shall not blame us. Then indeed . . .

This is no meeting, Wentworth ! Tears increase

Too hot. A thin mist—is it blood?—enwraps
The face I loved once. Then, the meeting be !

Strafford. I have loved England too ;
we'll meet then, Pym.

As well die now ! Youth is the only time
To think and to decide on a great course :
Manhood with action follows ; but 'tis dreary,
To have to alter our whole life in age—
The time past, the strength gone ! As well die now.

When we meet, Pym, I'd be set right—not
now !

Best die. Then if there's any fault, fault too Dies, smothered up. Poor grey old little Laud Maydream his dream out, of a perfect Church,
In some blind corner. And there's no one left.
I trust the King now wholly to you, Pym !
And yet, I know not : I shall not be there :
Friends fail—if he have any. And he's weak,
And loves the Queen, and . . . Oh, my fate is nothing—

Nothing ! But not that awful head—not that !

Pym. If England shall declare such will to me . . .

Strafford. Pym, you help England ! I,
that am to die,

What I must see ! 'tis here—all here ! My
God,

Let me but gasp out, in one word of fire,
How thou wilt plague him, satiating hell !
What? England that you help, become through you

A green and putrefying charnel, left
Our children . . . some of us have children,
Pym—

Some who, without that, still must ever wear
A darkened brow, an over-serious look,
And never properly be young ! No word?
What if I curse you? Send a strong curse
forth

Clothed from my heart, lapped round with horror till

She's fit with her white face to walk the world
Scaring kind natures from your cause and
you—

Then to sit down with you at the board-head,
The gathering for prayer . . . O speak, but speak !

. . . Creep up, and quietly follow each one
home,

You, you, you, be a nestling care for each
To sleep with,—hardly moaning in his dreams,
She gnaws so quietly,—till, lo he starts,
Gets off with half a heart eaten away !

Oh, shall you 'scape with less if she's my child?

You will not say a word—to me—to Him ?

Pym. If England shall declare such will
to me . . .

Strafford. No, not for England now, not for Heaven now,—

See, Pym, for my sake, mine who kneel to
you !

There, I will thank you for the death, my
friend !

This is the meeting : let me love you well !

Pym. England,—I am thine own ! Dost thou exact

That service? I obey thee to the end.

Strafford. O God, I shall die first—I shall die first !

And shaming her ; 'tis not for fate to choose
 Silence or song because she can refuse
 Real eyes to glisten more, real hearts to ache Less oft, real brows turn smoother for our
 sake :

I have experienced something of her spite ;
 But there's a realm wherein she has no right
 And I have many lovers. Say, but few Friends fate accords me? Here they are :
 now view

The host I muster ! Many a lighted face
 Foul with no vestige of the grave's disgrace ;
 What else should tempt them back to taste
 our air

Except to see how their successors fare?
 My audience ! and they sit, each ghostly man
 Striving to look as living as he can,
 Brother by breathing brother ; thou art set,
 Clear-witted critic, by . . . but I'll not fret
 A wondrous soul of them, nor move death's spleen

Who loves not to unlock them. Friends ! I mean

The living in good earnest—ye elect
 Chiefly for love—suppose not I reject
 Judicious praise, who contrary shall peep,
 Some fit occasion, forth, for fear ye sleep,
 To glean your bland approvals. Then,
 appear,

Verona ! stay—thou, spirit, come not near
 Now—not this time desert thy cloudy place
 To scare me, thus employed, with that pure
 face !

I need not fear this audience, I make free
 With them, but then this is no place for thee !
 The thunder-phrase of the Athenian,¹ grown
 Up out of memories of Marathon,
 Would echo like his own sword's griding screech

Braying a Persian shield,—the silver speech
 Of Sidney's self, the starry paladin,
 Turn intense as a trumpet sounding in
 The knights to tilt,—wert thou to hear !

What heart
 Have I to play my puppets, bear my part
 Before these worthies ?

¹ Æschylus.

Lo, the past is hurled
 In twain : up-thrust, out-staggering on the
 world.

Subsiding into shape, a darkness rears
 Its outline, kindles at the core, appears
 Verona. 'Tis six hundred years and more
 Since an event. The Second Friedrich wore
 The purple, and the Third Honorius filled
 The holy chair. That autumn eve was stilled:
 A last remains of sunset dimly burned
 O'er the far forests, like a torch-flame turned
 By the wind back upon its bearer's hand
 In one long flare of crimson ; as a brand,
 The woods beneath lay black. A single
 eye

From all Verona cared for the soft sky.
 But, gathering in its ancient market-place,
 Talked group with restless group ; and not a
 face

But wrath made livid, for among them were Death's staunch purveyors, such as have in care

To feast him. Fear had long since taken root
 In every breast, and now these crushed its fruit,

The ripe hate, like a wine : to note the way
 It worked while each grew drunk ! Men grave and grey

Stood, with shut eyelids, rocking to and fro,
 Letting the silent luxury trickle slow

About the hollows where a heart should be ;
 But the young gulped with a delirious glee
 Some foretaste of their first debauch in blood

At the fierce news : for, be it understood,
 Envoys apprised Verona that her prince

Count Richard of Saint Boniface, joined since
 A year with Azzo, Este's Lord, to thrust

Taurello Salinguerra, prime in trust
 With Ecelin Romano, from his seat

Ferrara,—over zealous in the feat
 And stumbling on a peril unaware,

Was captive, trammelled in his proper snare,
 They phrase it, taken by his own intrigue.

Immediate succour from the Lombard League
 Of fifteen cities that affect the Pope,

For Azzo, therefore, and his fellow-hope
 Of the Guelf cause, a glory overcast !

Men's faces, late agape, are now aghast.

" Prone is the purple pavis ;¹ Este makes " Mirth for the devil when he undertakes
 " To play the Ecelin ; as if it cost
 " Merely your pushing-by to gain a post
 " Like his ! The patron tells ye, once for all,
 " There be sound reasons that preferment fall
 " On our beloved " . . .

" Duke o' the Rood, why not ?"
 Shouted an Estian, " grudge ye such a lot ?
 " The hill-cat boasts some cunning of her
 own,
 " Some stealthy trick to better beasts unknown,
 " That quick with prey enough her hunger
 blunts,
 " And feeds her fat while gaunt the lion hunts."

" Taurello," quoth an envoy, " as in wane
 " Dwelt at Ferrara. Like an osprey fain
 " To fly but forced the earth his couch to
 make
 " Far inland, till his friend the tempest wake,
 " Waits he the Kaiser's coming ; and as yet
 " That fast friend sleeps, and he too sleeps :
 but let
 " Only the billow freshen, and he snuffs
 " The aroused hurricane ere it enrougths
 " The sea it means to cross because of him.
 " Sinketh the breeze ? His hope-sick eye grows dim ;

" Creep closer on the creature ! Every day
 " Strengthens the Pontiff ; Ecelin, they say,
 " Dozes now at Oliero, with dry lips
 " Telling upon his perished finger-tips
 " How many ancestors are to depose
 " Ere he be Satan's Viceroy when the doze
 " Deposits him in hell. So, Guelfs rebuilt
 " Their houses ; not a drop of blood was spilt
 " When Cino Bocchimpane chanced to meet
 " Buccio Virtù—God's wafer, and the street
 " Is narrow ! Tutti Santi, think, a-swarm
 " With Ghibellins, and yet he took no harm !
 " This could not last. Off Salinguerra went " To Padua, Podestà, ' with pure intent,'
 " Said he, ' my presence, judged the single bar
 " ' To permanent tranquillity, may jar

¹ Shield.

" ' No longer '—so ! his back is fairly turned ?
 " The pair of goodly palaces are burned,
 " The gardens ravaged, and our Guelfs laugh,
 drunk
 " A week with joy. The next, their laughter sunk
 " In sobs of blood, for they found, some strange way,
 " Old Salinguerra back again—I say,
 " Old Salinguerra in the town once more
 " Uprooting, overturning, flame before,
 " Blood fetlock-high beneath him. Azzo fled ;
 " Who 'scaped the carnage followed ; then the dead
 " Were pushed aside from Salinguerra's throne,
 " He ruled once more Ferrara, all alone,
 " Till Azzo, stunned awhile, revived, would pounce
 " Coupled with Boniface, like lynx and ounce,
 " On the gorged bird. The burghers ground their teeth
 " To see troop after troop encamp beneath
 " I' the standing corn thick o'er the scanty patch
 " It took so many patient months to snatch
 " Out of the marsh ; while just within their walls
 " Men fed on men. At length Taurello calls
 " A parley : ' let the Count wind up the war !'
 " Richard, light-hearted as a plunging star,
 " Agrees to enter for the kindest ends
 " Ferrara, flanked with fifty chosen friends,
 " No horse-boy more, for fear your timid sort
 " Should fly Ferrara at the bare report.
 " Quietly through the town they rode, jog-jog ;
 " ' Ten, twenty, thirty,—curse the catalogue
 " ' Of burnt Guelf houses ! Strange, Taurello shows
 " ' Not the least sign of life '—whereat arose
 " A general growl : ' How ? With his victors by ?
 " ' I and my Veronese ? My troops and I ?
 " ' Receive us, was your word ?' So jogged they on,
 " Nor laughed their host too openly : once
 gone
 " Into the trap !—"

Six hundred years ago !
 Such the time's aspect and peculiar woe (Yourselves may spell it yet in chronicles,
 Albeit the worm, our busy brother, drills
 His sprawling path through letters anciently
 Made fine and large to suit some abbot's
 eye)
 When the new Hohenstauffen dropped the mask,
 Flung John of Brienne's favour from his
 casque,
 Forswore crusading, had no mind to leave
 Saint Peter's proxy leisure to retrieve
 Losses to Otho and to Barbaross,
 Or make the Alps less easy to recross ;
 And, thus confirming Pope Honorius' fear,
 Was excommunicate that very year.
 "The triple-bearded Teuton come to life !"
 Groaned the Great League ; and, arming for
 the strife,
 Wide Lombardy, on tiptoe to begin,
 Took up, as it was Guelf or Ghibellin,
 Its cry : what cry ?
 "The Emperor to come !"
 His crowd of feudatories, all and some,
 That leapt down with a crash of swords,
 spears, shields,
 One fighter on his fellow, to our fields,
 Scattered anon, took station here and there,
 And carried it, till now, with little care—
 Cannot but cry for him ; how else rebut
 Us longer ?—cliffs, an earthquake suffered jut
 In the mid-sea, each domineering crest
 Which nought save such another throe can wrest
 From out (conceive) a certain chokeweed grown
 Since o'er the waters, twine and tangle thrown
 Too thick, too fast accumulating round,
 Too sure to over-riot and confound
 Ere long each brilliant islet with itself,
 Unless a second shock save shoal and shelf,
 Whirling the sea-drift wide : alas, the bruised
 And sullen wreck ! Sunlight to be diffused
 For that !—sunlight, 'neath which, a scum at
 first,
 The million fibres of our chokeweed nurst

Dispread themselves, mantling the troubled main,
 And, shattered by those rocks, took hold
 again,
 So kindly blazed it—that same blaze to brood
 O'er every cluster of the multitude
 Still hazarding new clasps, ties, filaments,
 An emulous exchange of pulses, vents
 Of nature into nature ; till some growth
 Unfancied yet, exuberantly clothe
 A surface solid now, continuous, one :
 "The Pope, for us the People, who begun
 "The People, carries on the People thus,
 "To keep that Kaiser off and dwell with us !"
 See you ?

Or say, Two Principles that live
 Each fitly by its Representative.
 "Hill-cat"—who called him so ?—the grace-fullest
 Adventurer, the ambiguous stranger-guest
 Of Lombardy (sleek but that ruffling fur, Those talons to their sheath !) whose velvet purr
 Soothes jealous neighbours when a Saxon scout —Arpo or Yoland, is it ?—one without
 A country or a name, presumes to couch
 Beside their noblest ; until men avouch
 That, of all Houses in the Trevisan,
 Conrad descries no fitter, rear or van,
 Than Ecelo ! They laughed as they enrolled
 That name at Milan on the page of gold, Godego's lord,—Ramon, Marostica,
 Cartiglion, Bassano, Loria,
 And every sheep-cote on the Suabian's fief !
 No laughter when his son, "the Lombard
 Chief"
 Forsooth, as Barbarossa's path was bent
 To Italy along the Vale of Trent, Welcomed him at Roncaglia ! Sadness
 now—
 The hamlets nested on the Tyrol's brow,
 The Asolan and Euganean hills,
 The Rhetian and the Julian, sadness fills
 Them all, for Ecelin vouchsafes to stay
 Among and care about them ; day by day
 Choosing this pinnacle, the other spot,
 A castle building to defend a cot,

For he—for he,
 Gate-vein of this hearts' blood of Lombardy,
 (If I should falter now)—for he is thine !
 Sordello, thy forerunner, Florentine !
 A herald-star I know thou didst absorb
 Relentless into the consummate orb
 That scared it from its right to roll along
 A sempiternal path with dance and song
 Fulfilling its allotted period,
 Serenest of the progeny of God—
 Who yet resigns it not ! His darling stoops
 With no quenched lights, desponds with no blank troops
 Of disenfranchised brilliances, for, blent
 Utterly with thee, its shy element
 Like thine upburneth prosperous and clear.
 Still, what if I approach the august sphere
 Named now with only one name, disentwine
 That under-current soft and argentine
 From its fierce mate in the majestic mass Leavened as the sea whose fire was mixt with glass
 In John's transcendent vision,—launch once
 more
 That lustre ? Dante, pacer of the shore
 Where glutton hell disgorgeth filthiest gloom,
 Unbitten by its whirring sulphur-spume—
 Or whence the grieved and obscure waters slope
 Into a darkness quieted by hope ;
 Plucker of amaranths grown beneath God's
 eye
 In gracious twilights where his chosen lie,—
 I would do this ! If I should falter now !
 In Mantua territory half is slough,
 Half pine-tree forest ; maples, scarlet oaks
 Breed o'er the river-beds ; even Mincio chokes
 With sand the summer through : but 'tis morass
 In winter up to Mantua walls. There was,
 Some thirty years before this evening's coil,
 One spot reclaimed from the surrounding spoil,
 Goito ; just a castle built amid
 A few low mountains ; firs and larches hid
 Their main defiles, and rings of vineyard bound
 The rest. Some captured creature in a pound,

Whose artless wonder quite precludes distress,
 Secure beside in its own loveliness,
 So peered with airy head, below, above,
 The castle at its toils, the lapwings love
 To glean among at grape-time. Pass within.
 A maze of corridors contrived for sin,
 Dusk winding-stairs, dim galleries got past,
 You gain the inmost chambers, gain at last
 A maple-panelled room : that haze which seems
 Floating about the panel, if there gleams
 A sunbeam over it, will turn to gold
 And in light-graven characters unfold
 The Arab's wisdom everywhere ; what shade Marred them a moment, those slim pillars
 made,
 Cut like a company of palms to prop
 The roof, each kissing top entwined with top,
 Leaning together ; in the carver's mind
 Some knot of bacchanals, flushed cheek combined
 With straining forehead, shoulders purpled,
 hair
 Diffused between, who in a goat-skin bear
 A vintage ; graceful sister-palms ! But quick
 To the main wonder, now. A vault, see ;
 thick
 Black shade about the ceiling, though fine slits
 Across the buttress suffer light by fits
 Upon a marvel in the midst. Nay, stoop—
 A dullish grey-streaked cumbrous font, a group
 Round it,—each side of it, where'er one sees,—
 Upholds it ; shrinking Caryatides
 Of just-tinged marble like Eve's liliated flesh
 Beneath her maker's finger when the fresh
 First pulse of life shot brightening the snow.
 The font's edge burthens every shoulder, so They muse upon the ground, eyelids half closed ;
 Some, with meek arms behind their backs disposed,
 Some, crossed above their bosoms, some, to veil
 Their eyes, some, propping chin and cheek
 so pale,

Some, hanging slack an utter helpless length
 Dead as a buried vestal whose whole strength
 Goes when the grate above shuts heavily.
 So dwell these noiseless girls, patient to see,
 Like priestesses because of sin impure
 Penanced for ever, who resigned endure, Having that once drunk sweetness to the dregs.

And every eve, Sordello's visit begs
 Pardon for them : constant as eve he came
 To sit beside each in her turn, the same
 As one of them, a certain space : and awe
 Made a great indistinctness till he saw Sunset slant cheerful through the buttresschinks,

Gold seven times globed ; surely our maiden
 shrinks

And a smile stirs her as if one faint grain
 Her load were lightened, one shade less the stain

Obscured her forehead, yet one more bead slipt

From off the rosary whereby the crypt
 Keeps count of the contritions of its charge ?
 Then with a step more light, a heart more large,

He may depart, leave her and every one
 To linger out the penance in mute stone.
 Ah, but Sordello? 'Tis the tale I mean
 To tell you.

In this castle may be seen,
 On the hill-tops, or underneath the vines,
 Or eastward by the mound of firs and pines
 That shuts out Mantua, still in loneliness,
 A slender boy in a loose page's dress,
 Sordello : do but look on him awhile
 Watching ('tis autumn) with an earnest smile
 The noisy flock of thievish birds at work
 Among the yellowing vineyards ; see him lurk
 ('Tis winter with its sullenest of storms)
 Beside that arras length of broidered forms,
 On tiptoe, lifting in both hands a light
 Which makes yon warrior's visage flutter bright

—Ecelo, dismal father of the brood,
 And Ecelin, close to the girl he wooed,
 Anria, and their Child, with all his wives
 From Agnes to the Tuscan that survives,

Lady of the castle, Adelaide. His face —Look, now he turns away ! Yourselves shall trace

(The delicate nostril swerving wide and fine,
 A sharp and restless lip, so well combine
 With that calm brow) a soul fit to receive Delight at every sense ; you can believe
 Sordello foremost in the regal class
 Nature has broadly severed from her mass
 Of men, and framed for pleasure, as she frames
 Some happy lands, that have luxurious names,
 For loose fertility ; a footfall there
 Suffices to upturn to the warm air
 Half-germinating spices ; mere decay
 Produces richer life ; and day by day
 New pollen on the lily-petal grows,
 And still more labyrinthine buds the rose.

You recognise at once the finer dress
 Of flesh that amply lets in loveliness
 At eye and ear, while round the rest is furled (As though she would not trust them with her world)

A veil that shows a sky not near so blue,
 And lets but half the sun look fervid through.
 How can such love?—like souls on each full-fraught

Discovery brooding, blind at first to aught
 Beyond its beauty, till exceeding love
 Becomes an aching weight ; and, to remove A curse that haunts such natures—to preclude

Their finding out themselves can work no good
 To what they love nor make it very blest
 By their endeavour,—they are fain invest
 The lifeless thing with life from their own soul,
 Availing it to purpose, to control,
 To dwell distinct and have peculiar joy
 And separate interests that may employ
 That beauty fitly, for its proper sake.
 Nor rest they here ; fresh births of beauty
 wake

Fresh homage, every grade of love is past,
 With every mode of loveliness : then cast
 Inferior idols off their borrowed crown
 Before a coming glory. Up and down Runs arrowy fire, while earthly forms combine

To throb the secret forth ; a touch divine—

And the scaled eyeball owns the mystic rod ;
Visibly through his garden walketh God.

So fare they. Now revert. One character Denotes them through the progress and the stir,—

A need to blend with each external charm,
Bury themselves, the whole heart wide and warm,—

In something not themselves ; they would belong
To what they worship—stronger and more strong

Thus prodigally fed—which gathers shape
And feature, soon imprisons past escape
The votary framed to love and to submit
Nor ask, as passionate he kneels to it,
Whence grew the idol's empery. So runs
A legend ; light had birth ere moons and suns,

Flowing through space a river and alone,
Till chaos burst and blank the spheres were strown

Hither and thither, foundering and blind :
When into each of them rushed light—to
find

Itself no place, foiled of its radiant chance.
Let such forego their just inheritance !
For there's a class that eagerly looks, too,
On beauty, but, unlike the gentler crew,
Proclaims each new revealment born a twin
With a distinctest consciousness within,
Referring still the quality, now first Revealed, to their own soul—its instinct nursed

In silence, now remembered better, shown
More thoroughly, but not the less their own ;
A dream come true ; the special exercise
Of any special function that implies
The being fair, or good, or wise, or strong,
Dormant within their nature all along—
Whose fault ? So, homage, other souls direct Without, turns inward. "How should this deject

"Thee, soul?" they murmur ; "wherefore strength be quelled

"Because, its trivial accidents withheld,
"Organs are missed that clog the world, inert,
"Wanting a will, to quicken and exert,

"Like thine—existence cannot satiate,
"Cannot surprise? Laugh thou at envious
fate,

"Who, from earth's simplest combination stamp

"With individuality—uncrampt
"By living its faint elemental life,

"Dost soar to heaven's complexest essence, rife

"With grandeurs, unaffronted to the last,
"Equal to being all!"

In truth? Thou hast
Life, then—wilt challenge life for us : our race
Is vindicated so, obtains its place
In thy ascent, the first of us ; whom we May follow, to the meanest, finally,
With our more bounded wills?

Ah, but to find
A certain mood enervate such a mind,
Counsel it slumber in the solitude
Thus reached nor, stooping, task for mankind's good

Its nature just as life and time accord
"—Too narrow an arena to reward
"Emprize—the world's occasion worthless
since

"Not absolutely fitted to evince
"Its mastery!" Or if yet worse befall,
And a desire possess it to put all
That nature forth, forcing our straitened
sphere

Contain it,—to display completely here
The mastery another life should learn,
Thrusting in time eternity's concern,—
So that Sordello . . .

Fool, who spied the mark
Of leprosy upon him, violet-dark
Already as he loiters? Born just now,
With the new century, beside the glow
And efflorescence out of barbarism ;
Witness a Greek or two from the abysm
That stray through Florence-town with studious air,

Calming the chisel of that Pisan pair :
If Nicolo should carve a Christus yet !
While at Siena is Guidone set,
Forehead on hand ; a painful birth must be Matured ere Saint Eufemia's sacristy

To climb with clinking step the northern stair
Up to the solitary chambers where Sordello never came. Thus thrall reached thrall :

He o'er-festooning every interval,
As the adventurous spider, making light
Of distance, shoots her threads from depth to height,
From barbican to battlement : so flung
Fantasies forth and in their centre swung
Our architect,—the breezy morning fresh
Above, and merry,—all his waving mesh Laughing with lucid dew-drops rainbow-edged.

This world of ours by tacit pact is pledged
To laying such a spangled fabric low
Whether by gradual brush or gallant blow.
But its abundant will was balked here : doubt
Rose tardily in one so fenced about
From most that nurtures judgment,—care and pain :

Judgment, that dull expedient we are fain,
Less favoured, to adopt betimes and force
Stead us, diverted from our natural course
Of joys—contrive some yet amid the dearth,
Vary and render them, it may be, worth
Most we forego. Suppose Sordello hence
Selfish enough, without a moral sense
However feeble ; what informed the boy
Others desired a portion in his joy ?
Or say a ruthless chance broke woof and warp—

A heron's nest beat down by March winds sharp,

A fawn breathless beneath the precipice,
A bird with unsoiled breast and unfiled
eyes

Warm in the brake—could these undo the trance

Lapping Sordello ? Not a circumstance
That makes for you, friend Naddo ! Eat fern-seed¹

And peer beside us and report indeed
If (your word) "genius" dawned with throes and stings

And the whole fiery catalogue, while springs,

Summers, and winters quietly came and went.

Time put at length that period to content,
By right the world should have imposed :
bereft

Of its good offices, Sordello, left
To study his companions, managed rip
Their fringe off, learn the true relationship, Core with its crust, their nature with his
own :

Amid his wild-wood sights he lived alone.
As if the poppy felt with him ! Though he Partook the poppy's red effrontery Till Autumn spoiled their fleeing quite with rain,

And, turbanless, a coarse brown rattling crane

Lay bare. That's gone : yet why renounce, for that,

His disenchanted tributaries—flat
Perhaps, but scarce so utterly forlorn,
Their simple presence might not well be borne

Whose parley was a transport once : recall
The poppy's gifts, it flaunts you, after all,
A poppy :—why distrust the evidence
Of each soon satisfied and healthy sense ?
The new-born judgment answered, "little boots

"Beholding other creatures' attributes
"And having none !" or, say that it sufficed,
"Yet, could one but possess, oneself," (enticed

Judgment) "some special office !" Nought
beside

Serves you ? "Well then, be somehow justified

"For this ignoble wish to circumscribe
"And concentrate, rather than swell, the tribe

"Of actual pleasures : what, now, from with-
out

"Effects it?—proves, despite a lurking doubt,
"Mere sympathy sufficient, trouble spared ?

"That, tasting joys by proxy thus, you fared
"The better for them ?" Thus much craved his soul.

Alas, from the beginning love is whole

And true ; if sure of nought beside, most sure
 Of its own truth at least ; nor may endure
 A crowd to see its face, that cannot know
 How hot the pulses throb its heart below :
 While its own helplessness and utter want
 Of means to worthily be ministrant
 To what it worships, do but fan the more
 Its flame, exalt the idol far before
 Itself as it would have it ever be.
 Souls like Sordello, on the contrary,
 Coerced and put to shame, retaining will,
 Care little, take mysterious comfort still,
 But look forth tremblingly to ascertain
 If others judge their claims not urged in vain,
 And say for them their stifled thoughts aloud.
 So, they must ever live before a crowd :
 —“Vanity,” Naddo tells you.

Whence contrive

A crowd, now? From these women just alive,
 That archer-troop? Forth glided—not alone
 Each painted warrior, every girl of stone,
 Nor Adelaide (bent double o'er a scroll,
 One maiden at her knees, that eve, his soul
 Shook as he stumbled through the arras'd glooms
 On them, for, 'mid quaint robes and weird perfumes,
 Started the meagre Tuscan up,—her eyes,
 The maiden's, also, bluer with surprise) .
 —But the entire out-world : whatever, scraps
 And snatches, song and story, dreams
 perhaps,
 Conceited the world's offices, and he
 Had hitherto transferred to flower or tree,
 Not counted a befitting heritage
 Each, of its own right, singly to engage Some man, no other,—such now dared to stand Alone. Strength, wisdom, grace on every
 hand
 Soon disengaged' themselves, and he discerned
 A sort of human life : at least, was turned
 A stream of lifelike figures through his brain.
 Lord, liegeman, valvassor¹ and suzerain,

¹ Vassal.

Ere he could choose, surrounded him ; a stuff
 To work his pleasure on ; there, sure enough :
 But as for gazing, what shall fix that gaze ?
 Are they to simply testify the ways
 He who convoked them sends his soul along With the cloud's thunder or a dove's brood-
 song ?
 —While they live each his life, boast each
 his own
 Peculiar dower of bliss, stand each alone
 In some one point where something dearest loved
 Is easiest gained—far worthier to be proved
 Than aught he envies in the forest-wights !
 No simple and self-evident delights,
 But mixed desires of unimagined range,
 Contrasts or combinations, new and strange,
 Irksome perhaps, yet plainly recognized
 By this, the sudden company—loves prized
 By those who are to prize his own amount Of loves. Once care because such make account,
 Allow that foreign recognitions stamp
 The current value, and his crowd shall vamp
 Him counterfeits enough ; and so their print
 Be on the piece, 'tis gold, attests the mint,
 And “good,” pronounce they whom his new appeal
 Is made to : if their casual print conceal—
 This arbitrary good of theirs o'ergloss
 What he has lived without, nor felt the loss—
 Qualities strange, ungainly, wearisome, —What matter? So must speech expand the dumb
 Part-sigh, part-smile with which Sordello, late
 Whom no poor woodland-sights could satiate,
 Betakes himself to study hungrily
 Just what the puppets his crude phantasy
 Supposes notablest, — popes, kings, priests, knights,—
 May please to promulgate for appetites ;
 Accepting all their artificial joys
 Not as he views them, but as he employs
 Each shape to estimate the other's stock
 Of attributes, whereon—a marshalled flock
 Of authorized enjoyments—he may spend
 Himself, be men, now, as he used to blend

With tree and flower—nay more entirely, else
'Twere mockery: for instance, "How excels
"My life that chieftain's?" (who apprised
the youth

Ecelin, here, becomes this month, in truth,
Imperial Vicar?) "Turns he in his tent
"Remissly? Be it so—my head is bent
"Deliciously amid my girls to sleep.
"What if he stalks the Trentine-pass? Yon steep

"I climbed an hour ago with little toil:
"We are alike there. But can I, too, foil
"The Guelf's paid stabber, carelessly afford "Saint Mark's a spectacle, the sleight o' the sword

"Baffling the treason in a moment?" Here
No rescue! Poppy he is none, but peer
To Ecelin, assuredly: his hand,
Fashioned no otherwise, should wield a brand
With Ecelin's success—try, now! He soon
Was satisfied, returned as to the moon

From earth; left each abortive boy's-attempt
For feats, from failure happily exempt,
In fancy at his beck. "One day I will "Accomplish it! Are they not older still "—Not grown-up men and women? 'Tis
beside

"Only a dream; and though I must abide "With dreams now, I may find a thorough vent

"For all myself, acquire an instrument
"For acting what these people act; my
soul

"Hunting a body out may gain its whole
"Desire some day!" How else express chagrin

And resignation, show the hope steal in
With which he let sink from an aching wrist
The rough-hewn ash-bow? Straight, a gold shaft hissed

Into the Syrian air, struck Malek down Superbly! "Crosses to the breach! God's
Town

"Is gained him back!" Why bend rough ash-bows more?

Thus lives he: if not careless as before,
Comforted: for one may anticipate,
Rehearse the future, be prepared when fate

Shall have prepared in turn real men whose names

Startle, real places of enormous fames,
Este abroad and Ecelin at home
To worship him,—Mantua, Verona, Rome
To witness it. Who grudges time so spent?
Rather test qualities to heart's content—
Summon them, thrice selected, near and far—
Compress the starriest into one star,
And grasp the whole at once!

The pageant thinned
Accordingly; from rank to rank, like wind
His spirit passed to winnow and divide;
Back fell the simpler phantasms; every side
The strong clave to the wise; with either classed

The beauteous; so, till two or three amassed
Mankind's beseemingnesses, and reduced
Themselves eventually,—graces loosed,
Strengths lavished,—all to heighten up One
Shape

Whose potency no creature should escape.
Can it be Friedrich of the bowmen's talk?
Surely that grape-juice, bubbling at the stalk,
Is some grey scorching Saracenic wine
The Kaiser quaffs with the Miramoline¹—Those swarthy hazel-clusters, seamed and chapped,

Or filberts russet-sheathed and velvet-capped,
Are dates plucked from the bough John Brienne sent

To keep in mind his sluggish armament
Of Canaan:—Friedrich's, all the pomp and fierce

Demeanour! But harsh sounds and sights transpierce

So rarely the serene cloud where he dwells
Whose looks enjoin, whose lightest words are spells

On the obdurate! That right arm indeed
Has thunder for its slave; but where's the need

Of thunder if the stricken multitude
Hearkens, arrested in its angriest mood,
While songs go up exulting, then dispread,
Dispart, disperse, lingering overhead

Turn with so frank a triumph, for she meets
Apollo's gaze in the pine glooms.

Time fleets :

That's worst ! Because the pre-appointed age
Approaches. Fate is tardy with the stage
And crowd she promised. Lean he grows and pale,

Though restlessly at rest. Hardly avail Fancies to soothe him. Time steals, yet
alone

He tarries here ! The earnest smile is gone.
How long this might continue matters not ;
—For ever, possibly ; since to the spot
None come : our lingering Taurello quits
Mantua at last, and light our lady flits
Back to her place disburthened of a care.
Strange—to be constant here if he is there !
Is it distrust ? Oh, never ! for they both Goad Ecelin alike, Romano's growth
Is daily manifest, with Azzo dumb
And Richard wavering : let but Friedrich
come,

Find matter for the minstrelsy's report —Lured from the Isle and its young Kaiser's
court

To sing us a Messina morning up,
And, double rillet of a drinking cup,
Sparkle along to ease the land of drouth,
Northward to Provence that, and thus far south

The other ! What a method to apprise
Neighbours of births, espousals, obsequies,
Which in their very tongue the Troubadour Records ! and his performance makes a tour,

For Trouveres bear the miracle about,
Explain its cunning to the vulgar rout,
Until the Formidable House is famed
Over the country—as Taurello aimed,
Whò introduced, although the rest adopt,
The novelty. Such games, her absence stopped,

Begin afresh now Adelaide, recluse
No longer, in the light of day pursues
Her plans at Mantua : whence an accident
Which, breaking on Sordello's mixed content
Opened, like any flash that cures the blind,
The veritable business of mankind.

BOOK THE SECOND.

THE woods were long austere with snow : at
last

Pink leaflets budded on the beech, and fast
Larches, scattered through pine-tree solitudes, Brightened, “ as in the slumbrous heart o' the woods

“ Our buried year, a witch, grew young again
“ To placid incantations, and that stain
“ About were from her cauldron, green smoke blent

“ With those black pines ”—so Eglamor gave vent

To a chance fancy. Whence a just rebuke
From his companion ; brother Naddo shook
The solemnest of brows : “ Beware,” he said,
“ Of setting up conceits in nature's stead ! ”
Forth wandered our Sordello. Nought so sure
As that to-day's adventure will secure
Palma, the visioned lady—only pass
O'er yon damp mound and its exhausted grass, Under that brake where sundawn feeds the stalks

Of withered fern with gold, into those walks
Of pine and take her ! Buoyantly he went.
Again his stooping forehead was besprent
With dew-drops from the skirting ferns. Then wide

Opened the great morass, shot every side
With flashing water through and through ;
a-shine,

Thick-steaming, all-alive. Whose shape
divine,
Quivered i' the farthest rainbow-vapour, glanced

Athwart the flying herons ? He advanced,
But warily ; though Mincio leaped no more,
Each foot-fall burst up in the marish-floor
A diamond jet : and if he stopped to pick Rose-lichen, or molest the leeches quick,
And circling blood-worms, minnow, newt or loach,

A sudden pond would silently encroach
This way and that. On Palma passed. The verge

Of a new wood was gained. She will emerge

Flushed, now, and panting,—crowds to see,— will own

She loves him—Boniface to hear, to groan,
To leave his suit! One screen of pine-trees
still

Opposes: but—the startling spectacle—
Mantua, this time! Under the walls—a crowd

Indeed, real men and women, gay and loud
Round a pavilion. How he stood!

In truth

No prophecy had come to pass: his youth
In its prime now—and where was homage poured

Upon Sordello?—born to be adored,
And suddenly discovered weak, scarce made
To cope with any, cast into the shade
By this and this. Yet something seemed to prick

And tingle in his blood; a sleight—a trick—
And much would be explained. It went for
nought—

The best of their endowments were ill bought
With his identity: nay, the conceit,
That this day's roving led to Palma's feet
Was not so vain—list! The word, "Palma!"
Steal

Aside, and die, Sordello; this is real,
And this—abjure!

What next? The curtains see Dividing! She is there; and presently
He will be there—the proper You, at length—
In your own cherished dress of grace and
strength:

Most like, the very Boniface!

Not so.

It was a showy man advanced; but though
A glad cry welcomed him, then every sound Sank and the crowd disposed themselves around,

—"This is not he," Sordello felt; while,
"Place

"For the best Troubadour of Boniface!" Hollaed the Jongleurs,—"Eglamor,¹ whose lay

"Concludes his patron's Court of Love today!"

Obsequious Naddo strung the master's lute
With the new lute-string, "Elys," named to suit

The song: he stealthily at watch, the while,
Biting his lip to keep down a great smile
Of pride: then up he struck. Sordello's brain
Swam; for he knew a sometime deed again;
So, could supply each foolish gap and chasm
The minstrel left in his enthusiasm,
Mistaking its true version—was the tale
Not of Apollo? Only, what avail
Luring her down, that Elys an he pleased,
If the man dared no further? Has he ceased
And, lo, the people's frank applause half
done,

Sordello was beside him, had begun (Spite of indignant twitchings from his friend
The Trouvere) the true lay with the true end,
Taking the other's names and time and place
For his. On flew the song, a giddy race,
After the flying story; word made leap Out word, rhyme—rhyme; the lay could barely keep

Pace with the action visibly rushing past:
Both ended. Back fell Naddo more aghast
Than some Egyptian from the harassed bull
That wheeled abrupt and, bellowing, fronted full

His plague, who spied a scarab 'neath the tongue,

And found 'twas Apis' flank his hasty prong
Insulted. But the people—but the cries,
The crowding round, and proffering the prize!
—For he had gained some prize. He seemed to shrink

Into a sleepy cloud, just at whose brink
One sight withheld him. There sat Adelaide,
Silent; but at her knees the very maid
Of the North Chamber, her red lips as rich,
The same pure fleecy hair; one weft of which,
Golden and great, quite touched his cheek
as o'er

She leant, speaking some six words and no
more.

He answered something, anything; and she Unbound a scarf and laid it heavily Upon him, her neck's warmth and all. Again
Moved the arrested magic; in his brain

Noises grew, and a light that turned to glare,
And greater glare, until the intense flare Engulfed him, shut the whole scene from his sense.

And when he woke 'twas many a furlong
thence,

At home; the sun shining his ruddy wont;
The customary birds'-chirp; but his front
Was crowned—was crowned! Her scented scarf around

His neck! Whose gorgeous vesture heaps the ground?

A prize? He turned, and peeringly on him
Brooded the women-faces, kind and dim,

Ready to talk—"The Jongleurs in a troop
"Had brought him back, Naddo and Squarcialupe

"And Tagliafer; how strange! a childhood
spent

"In taking, well for him, so brave a bent!

"Since Eglamor," they heard, "was dead with spite,

"And Palma chose him for her minstrel."

Light

Sordello rose—to think, now; hitherto
He had perceived. Sure, a discovery grew Out of it all! Best live from first to last
The transport o'er again. A week he passed,
Sucking the sweet out of each circumstance,
From the bard's outbreak to the luscious trance
Bounding his own achievement. Strange!

A man

Recounted an adventure, but began
Imperfectly; his own task was to fill
The frame-work up, sing well what he sung ill,
Supply the necessary points, set loose
As many incidents of little use

—More imbecile the other, not to see Their relative importance clear as he!

But, for a special pleasure in the act
Of singing—had he ever turned, in fact,
From Elys, to sing Elys?—from each fit
Of rapture to contrive a song of it?

True, this snatch or the other seemed to wind
Into a treasure, helped himself to find

A beauty in himself; for, see, he soared
By means of that mere snatch, to many a hoard

Of fancies; as some falling cone bears soft
The eye along the fir-tree-spire, aloft
To a dove's nest. Then, how divine the cause
Why such performance should exact applause
From men, if they had fancies too? Did fate
Decree they found a beauty separate
In the poor snatch itself?—"Take Elys, there,
"—"Her head that's sharp and perfect like a pear,

"So close and smooth are laid the few fine
locks

"Coloured like honey oozed from topmost
rocks

"Sun-blanced the livelong summer"—if they heard

"Just those two rhymes, assented at my word,
"And loved them as I love them who have run

"These fingers through those pale locks, let the sun

"Into the white cool skin—who first could clutch,

"Then praise—I needs must be a god to such.
"Or what if some, above themselves, and yet

"Beneath me, like their Eglamor, have set "An impress on our gift? So, men believe

"And worship what they know not, nor receive

"Delight from. Have they fancies—slow,
perchance,

"Not at their beck, which indistinctly glance
"Until, by song, each floating part be linked "To each, and all grow palpable, distinct!"

He pondered this.

Meanwhile, sounds low and drear
Stole on him, and a noise of footsteps, near
And nearer, while the underwood was pushed Aside, the larches grazed, the dead leaves
crushed

At the approach of men. The wind seemed laid;

Only, the trees shrunk slightly and a shade
Came o'er the sky although 'twas midday yet:
You saw each half-shut downcast floweret

Flutter—"a Roman bride, when they'd dispart

"Her unbound tresses with the Sabine dart,
"Holding that famous rape in memory still,

"Felt creep into her curls the iron chill,

But, to a man—so quickly runs report—
 Could do no less than leave him, and escort
 His rival. That eve, then, bred many a
 thought :

What must his future life be? was he brought
 So low, who stood so lofty this Spring morn?
 At length he said, "Best sleep now with my scorn,

"And by to-morrow I devise some plain
 "Expedient!" So, he slept, nor woke again.
 They found as much, those friends, when they returned

O'erflowing with the marvels they had learned
 About Sordello's paradise, his roves
 Among the hills and vales and plains and groves,

Wherein, no doubt, this lay was roughly cast,
 Polished by slow degrees, completed last
 To Eglamor's discomfiture and death.

Such form the chanters now, and, out of
 breath,

They lay the beaten man in his abode,
 Naddo reciting that same luckless ode,
 Doleful to hear. Sordello could explore
 By means of it, however, one step more
 In joy; and, mastering the round at length,
 Learnt how to live in weakness as in strength,
 When from his covert forth he stood, addressed
 Eglamor, bade the tender ferns invest,
 Primæval pines o'er canopy his couch,
 And, most of all, his fame—(shall I avouch Eglamor heard it, dead though he might look,
 And laughed as from his brow Sordello took
 The crown, and laid on the bard's breast,
 and said

It was a crown, now, fit for poet's head?)
 —Continue. Nor the prayer quite fruitless fell.

A plant they have, yielding a three-leaved bell¹
 Which whitens at the heart ere noon, and ails
 Till evening; evening gives it to her gales
 To clear away with such forgotten things
 As are an eyesore to the morn: this brings
 Him to their mind, and bears his very name.

So much for Eglamor. My own month
 came;

¹ St. Bruno's lily, the Anthericum Liliastrum.

'Twas a sunrise of blossoming and May.
 Beneath a flowering laurel thicket lay
 Sordello; each new sprinkle of white stars
 That smell fainter of wine than Massic jars
 Dug up at Baïæ, when the south wind shed
 The ripest, made him happier; filleted
 And robed the same, only a lute beside Lay on the turf. Before him far and wide
 The country stretched: Goito slept behind —The castle and its covert, which confined Him with his hopes and fears; so fain of old
 To leave the story of his birth untold.
 At intervals, 'spite the fantastic glow
 Of his Apollo-life, a certain low
 And wretched whisper, winding through the bliss,

Admonished, no such fortune could be his,
 All was quite false and sure to fade one
 day:

The closelier drew he round him his array
 Of brilliance to expel the truth. But when
 A reason for his difference from men
 Surprised him at the grave, he took no rest
 While aught of that old life, superbly dressed
 Down to its meanest incident, remained
 A mystery: alas, they soon explained
 Away Apollo! and the tale amounts
 To this: when at Vicenza both her counts
 Banished the Vivaresi kith and kin,
 Those Maltraversi hung on Ecelin,
 Reviled him as he followed; he for spite
 Must fire their quarter, though that self-same night

Among the flames young Ecelin was born
 Of Adelaide, there too, and barely torn
 From the roused populace hard on the rear,
 By a poor archer when his chieftain's fear
 Grew high; into the thick Elcorte leapt,
 Saved her, and died; no creature left except
 His child to thank. And when the full escape
 Was known—how men impaled from chine to nape

Unlucky Prata, all to pieces spurned
 Bishop Pistore's concubines, and burned
 Taurello's entire household, flesh and fell,
 Missing the sweeter prey—such courage well
 Might claim reward. The orphan, ever since,
 Sordello, had been nurtured by his prince

Within a blind retreat where Adelaide—
 (For, once this notable discovery made,
 The past at every point was understood) —Might harbour easily when times were rude,

When Azzo schemed for Palma, to retrieve
 That pledge of Agnes Este—loth to leave
 Mantua unguarded with a vigilant eye,
 While there Taurello bode ambiguously—
 He who could have no motive now to moil
 For his own fortunes since their utter spoil—
 As it were worth while yet (went the report)
 To disengage himself from her. In short,
 Apollo vanished ; a mean youth, just named
 His lady's minstrel, was to be proclaimed —How shall I phrase it?—Monarch of the World !

For, on the day when that array was furled
 Forever, and in place of one a slave
 To longings, wild indeed, but longings save
 In dreams as wild, suppressed—one daring
 not

Assume the mastery such dreams allot,
 Until a magical equipment, strength,
 Grace, wisdom, decked him too,—he chose at length,

Content with unproved wits and failing frame,
 In virtue of his simple will, to claim
 That mastery, no less—to do his best
 With means so limited, and let the rest
 Go by,—the seal was set : never again
 Sordello could in his own sight remain
 One of the many, one with hopes and cares
 And interests powise distinct from theirs,
 Only peculiar in a thriveless store
 Of fancies, which were fancies and no more ;
 Never again for him and for the crowd
 A common law was challenged and allowed
 If calmly reasoned of, howe'er denied
 By a mad impulse nothing justified
 Short of Apollo's presence. The divorce Is clear : why needs Sordello square his course

By any known example? Men no more Compete with him than tree and flower before.

Himself, inactive, yet is greater far
 Than such as act, each stooping to his star,

Acquiring thence his function ; he has gained
 The same result with meaner mortals trained
 To strength or beauty, moulded to express
 Each the idea that rules him ; since no less
 He comprehends that function, but can still Embrace the others, take of might his fill
 With Richard as of grace with Palma, mix
 Their qualities, or for a moment fix
 On one ; abiding free meantime, uncramped
 By any partial organ, never stamped
 Strong, and to strength turning all energies—
 Wise, and restricted to becoming wise—
 That is, he loves not, nor possesses One Idea that, star-like over, lures him on
 To its exclusive purpose. “Fortunate !
 “This flesh of mine ne'er strove to emulate
 “A soul so various—took no casual mould
 “Of the first fancy and, contracted, cold,
 “Clogged her forever—soul averse to change
 “As flesh : whereas flesh leaves soul free to range,
 “Remains itself a blank, cast into shade,
 “Encumbers little, if it cannot aid.
 “So, range, free soul!—who, by self-consciousness,
 “The last drop of all beauty dost express—
 “The grace of seeing grace, a quintessence “For thee : while for the world, that can dispense “Wonder on men who, themselves, wonder
 —make
 “A shift to love at second-hand, and take
 “For idols those who do but idolize, “Themselves,—the world that counts men strong or wise,
 “Who, themselves, court strength, wisdom,
 —it shall bow
 “Surely in unexampled worship now, “Discerning me !”—

(Dear monarch, I beseech,
 Notice how lamentably wide a breach
 Is here : discovering this, discover too
 What our poor world has possibly to do
 With it ! As pigmy natures as you please—
 So much the better for you ; take your ease,
 Look on, and laugh ; style yourself God
 alone ;
 Strangle some day with a cross olive-stone !

All that is right enough : but why want us
To know that you yourself know thus and
thus ?)

“ The world shall bow to me conceiving all “ Man’s life, who see its blisses, great and small,

“ Afar—not tasting any ; no machine
“ To exercise my utmost will is mine :
“ Be mine mere consciousness ! Let men perceive

“ What I could do, a mastery believe,
“ Asserted and established to the throng
“ By their selected evidence of song “ Which now shall prove, whate’er they are, or seek

“ To be, I am—whose words, not actions
speak,

“ Who change no standards of perfection, vex
“ With no strange forms created to perplex,
“ But just perform their bidding and no more,
“ At their own satiating-point give o’er, “ While each shall love in me the love that leads

“ His soul to power’s perfection.” Song, not deeds,

(For we get tired) was chosen. Fate would brook

Mankind no other organ ; he would look
For not another channel to dispense
His own volition by, receive men’s sense
Of its supremacy—would live content,
Obstructed else, with merely verse for vent.
Nor should, for instance, strength an outlet
seek

And, striving, be admired : nor grace bespeak
Wonder, displayed in gracious attitudes :
Nor wisdom, poured forth, change unseemly moods ;

But he would give and take on song’s one
point.

Like some huge throbbing stone that, poised a-joint,

Sounds, to affect on its basaltic bed,
Must sue in just one accent ; tempests shed Thunder, and raves the windstorm : only let
That key by any little noise be set—
The far benighted hunter’s halloo pitch
On that, the hungry curlew chance to scritch

Or serpent hiss it, rustling through the rift,
However loud, however low—all lift
The groaning monster, stricken to the heart.

Lo ye, the world’s concernment, for its part,
And this, for his, will hardly interfere !
Its businesses in blood and blaze this year
But wile the hour away—a pastime slight
Till he shall step upon the platform : right !
And, now thus much is settled, cast in rough,
Proved feasible, be counselled ! thought
enough,—

Slumber, Sordello ! any day will serve :
Were it a less digested plan ! how swerve
To-morrow ? Meanwhile eat these sun-dried grapes,
And watch the soaring hawk there ! Life escapes Merrily thus.

He thoroughly read o’er
His truchman Naddo’s missive six times more,
Praying him visit Mantua and supply
A famished world.

The evening star was high
When he reached Mantua, but his fame
arrived

Before him : friends applauded, foes connived,
And Naddo looked an angel, and the rest
Angels, and all these angels would be blest
Supremely by a song—the thrice-renowned Goito-manufacture. Then he found (Casting about to satisfy the crowd)
That happy vehicle, so late allowed,
A sore annoyance ; ’twas the song’s effect
He cared for, scarce the song itself : reflect !
In the past life, what might be singing’s use ?
Just to delight his Delians, whose profuse Praise, not the toilsome process which procured

That praise, enticed Apollo : dreams abjured,
No overleaping means for ends—take both
For granted or take neither ! I am loth
To say the rhymes at last were Eglamor’s ;
But Naddo, chuckling, bade competitors
Go pine ; “ the master certes meant to waste
“ No effort, cautiously had probed the taste “ He’d please anon : true bard, in short,— disturb

“ His title if they could ; nor spur nor curb,

To using it ; accordingly he took
An action with its actors, quite forsook
Himself to live in each, returned anon
With the result—a creature, and, by one
And one, proceeded leisurely to equip
Its limbs in harness of his workmanship.

“Accomplished! Listen, Mantuans!” Fond
essay!

Piece after piece that armour broke away,
Because perceptions whole, like that he sought
To clothe, reject so pure a work of thought
As language: thought may take perception’s
place

But hardly co-exist in any case,
Being its mere presentment—of the whole
By parts, the simultaneous and the sole
By the successive and the many. Lacks
The crowd perception? painfully it tacks Thought to thought, which Sordello, needing such,

Has rent perception into: it’s to clutch
And reconstruct—his office to diffuse,
Destroy: as hard, then, to obtain a Muse
As to become Apollo. “For the rest,

“E’en if some wondrous vehicle expressed
“The whole dream, what impertinence in me
“So to express it, who myself can be “The dream! nor, on the other hand, are those

“I sing to, over-likely to suppose
“A higher than the highest I present
“Now, which they praise already: be content
“Both parties, rather—they with the old verse,
“And I with the old praise—far go, fare worse!”

A few adhering rivets loosed, upsprings
The angel, sparkles off his mail, which rings
Whirled from each delicatest limb it warps;
So might Apollo from the sudden corpse
Of Hyacinth¹ have cast his luckless quoits.
He set to celebrating the exploits
Of Montfort o’er the Mountaineers.

Then came
The world’s revenge: their pleasure, now his aim

¹ Accidentally killed by Apollo whilst playing quoits, and changed into the flower.

Merely,—what was it? “Not to play the fool

“So much as learn our lesson in your school!”
Replied the world. He found that, every time
He gained applause by any ballad-rhyme,
His auditory recognised no jot

As he intended, and, mistaking not
Him for his meanest hero, ne’er was dunce
Sufficient to believe him—all, at once.

His will . . . conceive it caring for his will!
—Mantuans, the main of them, admiring still
How a mere singer, ugly, stunted, weak,
Had Montfort at completely (so to speak)
His fingers’ ends; while past the praise-tide swept

To Montfort, either’s share distinctly kept:
The true meed for true merit!—his abates
Into a sort he most repudiates,
And on them angrily he turns. Who were
The Mantuans, after all, that he should care
About their recognition, ay or no?

In spite of the convention months ago, (Why blink the truth?) was not he forced to help

This same ungrateful audience, every whelp
Of Naddo’s litter, make them pass for peers
With the bright band of old Goito years,
As erst he toiled for flower or tree? Why,
there

Sat Palma! Adelaide’s funereal hair
Ennobled the next corner. Ay, he strewed
A fairy dust upon that multitude,
Although he feigned to take them by themselves;

His giants dignified those puny elves, Sublimed their faint applause. In short, he found

Himself still footing a delusive round,
Remote as ever from the self-display
He meant to compass, hampered every way
By what he hoped assistance. Wherefore
then

Continue, make believe to find in men
A use he found not?

Weeks, months, years went by,
And lo, Sordello vanished utterly,
Sundered in twain; each spectral part at strife
With each; one jarred against another life:

The Poet thwarting hopelessly the Man—
 Who, fooled no longer, free in fancy ran
 Here, there : let slip no opportunities
 As pitiful, forsooth, beside the prize
 To drop on him some no-time and acquit
 His constant faith (the Poet-half's to wit—
 That waiving any compromise between
 No joy and all joy kept the hunger keen Beyond most methods)—of incurring scoff
 From the Man-portion—not to be put off
 With self-reflectings by the Poet's scheme, Though ne'er so bright. Who sauntered forth in dream,

Dressed any how, nor waited mystic frames,
 Immeasurable gifts, astounding claims,
 But just his sorry self?—who yet might be Sorrier for aught he in reality
 Achieved, so pinioned Man's the Poet-part,
 Fondling, in turn of fancy, verse ; the Art
 Developing his soul a thousand ways—
 Potent, by its assistance, to amaze
 The multitude with majesties, convince Each sort of nature that the nature's prince Accosted it. Language, the makeshift, grew
 Into a bravest of expedients, too ;
 Apollo, seemed it now, perverse had thrown Quiver and bow away, the lyre alone Sufficed. While, out of dream, his day's work went

To tune a crazy tenzon¹ or sirvent²—
 So hampered him the Man-part, thrust to judge
 Between the bard and the bard's audience, grudge

A minute's toil that missed its due reward !
 But the complete Sordello, Man and Bard,
 John's cloud-girt angel, this foot on the land,
 That on the sea, with, open in his hand,
 A bitter-sweetling of a book—was gone.

Then, if internal struggles to be one,
 Which frittered him incessantly piecemeal,
 Referred, ne'er so obliquely, to the real Intruding Mantuans ! ever with some call
 To action while he pondered, once for all,

² Sirvent. Martial, political, and satirical songs. Both Provençal terms.

Which looked the easier effort—to pursue
 This course, still leap o'er paltry joys, yearn
 through

The present ill-appreciated stage
 Of self-revelment, and compel the age
 Know him—or else, forswearing bard-craft,
 wake

From out his lethargy and nobly shake
 Off timid habits of denial, mix
 With men, enjoy like men. Ere he could fix
 On aught, in rushed the Mantuans ; much they cared

For his perplexity ! Thus unprepared,
 The obvious if not only shelter lay
 In deeds, the dull conventions of his day
 Prescribed the like of him : why not be glad
 'Tis settled Palma's minstrel, good or bad,
 Submits to this and that established rule ?
 Let Vidal change, or any other fool,
 His murrey-coloured³ robe for filamot,⁴
 And crop his hair ; too skin-deep, is it not,
 Such vigour ? Then, a sorrow to the heart,
 His talk ! Whatever topics they might start
 Had to be groped for in his consciousness Straight, and as straight delivered them by guess.

Only obliged to ask himself, "What was,"
 A speedy answer followed ; but, alas,
 One of God's large ones, tardy to condense
 Itself into a period ; answers whence
 A tangle of conclusions must be stripped
 At any risk ere, trim to pattern clipped,
 They matched rare specimens the Mantuan flock

Regaled him with, each talker from his stock
 Of sorted-o'er opinions, every stage,
 Juicy in youth or desiccate with age,
 Fruits like the fig-tree's, rathe-ripe, rotten-rich,

Sweet-sour, all tastes to take : a practice which
 He too had not impossibly attained,
 Once either of those fancy-flights restrained ;
 (For, at conjecture how might words appear

To others, playing there what happened here,

³ Mulberry-colour.

⁴ The colour of a dead leaf.

And occupied abroad by what he spurned
 At home, 'twas slipped, the occasion he returned
 To seize :) he'd strike that lyre adroitly—
 speech,
 Would but a twenty-cubit plectre¹ reach ;
 A clever hand, consummate instrument,
 Were both brought close ; each excellency
 went
 For nothing, else. The question Naddo
 asked,
 Had just a lifetime moderately tasked
 To answer, Naddo's fashion. More disgust
 And more : why move his soul, since move it must
 At minute's notice or as good it failed
 To move at all? The end was, he retailed
 Some ready-made opinion, put to use
 This quip, that maxim, ventured reproduce
 Gestures and tones—at any folly caught
 Serving to finish with, nor too much sought
 If false or true 'twas spoken ; praise and blame
 Of what he said grew pretty nigh the same —Meantime awards to meantime acts : his
 soul,
 Unequal to the compassing a whole,
 Saw, in a tenth part, less and less to strive
 About. And as for men in turn . . . contrive
 Who could to take eternal interest
 In them, so hate the worst, so love the best !
 Though, in pursuance of his passive plan,
 He hailed, decried, the proper way.

As Man

So figured he ; and how as Poet? Verse
 Came only not to a stand-still. The worse,
 That his poor piece of daily work to do
 Was—not sink under any rivals ; who Loudly and long enough, without these qualms,
 Turned, from Bocafoli's stark-naked psalms,
 To Plara's sonnets spoilt by toying with,
 "As knops² that stud some almug³ to the pith

"Beside, Monk Hilary is on his knees
 "Now, sworn to kneel and pray till God shall
 please
 "Exact a punishment for many things
 "You know, and some you never knew ;
 which brings
 "To memory, Azzo's sister Beatrix
 "And Richard's Giglia are my Alberic's
 "And Ecelin's betrothed ; the Count himself
 "Must get my Palma : Ghibellin and Guelf
 "Mean to embrace each other." So began
 Romano's missive to his fighting man
 Taurello—on the Tuscan's death, away
 With Friedrich sworn to sail from Naples' bay
 Next month for Syria. Never thunder-clap
 Out of Vesuvius' throat, like this mishap Startled him. "That accursed Vicenza ! I
 "Absent, and she selects this time to die !
 "Ho, fellows, for Vicenza !" Half a score
 Of horses ridden dead, he stood before
 Romano in his reeking spurs : too late—
 "Boniface urged me, Este could not wait,"
 The chieftain stammered ; "let me die in
 peace—
 "Forget me ! Was it I who craved increase "Of rule ? Do you and Friedrich plot your worst
 "Against the Father : as you found me first
 "So leave me now. Forgive me ! Palma,
 sure,
 "Is at Goito still. Retain that lure—
 "Only be pacified !"

The country rung
 With such a piece of news : on every tongue,
 How Ecelin's great servant, congeed off,
 Had done a long day's service, so, might doff
 The green and yellow, and recover breath
 At Mantua, whither,—since Retrude's death,
 (The girlish slip of a Sicilian bride
 From Otho's house, he carried to reside
 At Mantua till the Ferrarese should pile
 A structure worthy her imperial style,
 The gardens raise, the statues there enshrine,
 She never lived to see)—although his line
 Was ancient in her archives and she took
 A pride in him, that city, nor forsook
 Her child when he forsook himself and spent
 A prowess on Romano surely meant

For his own growth—whither he ne'er resorts
 If wholly satisfied (to trust reports)
 With Ecelin. So, forward in a trice Were shows to greet him. "Take a friend's advice," Quoth Naddo to Sordello, "nor be rash
 "Because your rivals (nothing can abash
 "Some folks) demur that we pronounced you best
 "To sound the great man's welcome ; 'tis a test,
 "Remember ! Strojavacca looks asquint,
 "The rough fat sloven ; and there's plenty hint
 "Your pinions have received of late a shock—
 "Outsoar them, cobswan of the silver flock !
 "Sing well !" A signal wonder, song's no whit Facilitated.

Fast the minutes flit ;
 Another day, Sordello finds, will bring
 The soldier, and he cannot choose but sing ;
 So, a last shift, quits Mantua—slow, alone :
 Out of that aching brain, a very stone,
 Song must be struck. What occupies that front ?
 Just how he was more awkward than his wont
 The night before, when Naddo, who had seen
 Taurello on his progress, praised the mien
 For dignity no crosses could affect—
 Such was a joy, and might not he detect
 A satisfaction if established joys
 Were proved imposture ? Poetry annoys
 Its utmost : wherefore fret ? Verses may come
 Or keep away ! And thus he wandered, dumb Till evening, when he paused, thoroughly
 spent,
 On a blind hill-top : down the gorge he went,
 Yielding himself up as to an embrace.
 The moon came out ; like features of a face,
 A querulous fraternity of pines,
 Sad blackthorn clumps, leafless and grovelling
 vines
 Also came out, made gradually up
 The picture ; 'twas Goito's mountain-cup
 And castle. He had dropped through one defile
 He never dared explore, the Chief erewhile

Had vanished by. Back rushed the dream, enwrapped
 Him wholly. 'Twas Apollo now they lapped,
 Those mountains, not a pettish minstrel meant
 To wear his soul away in discontent,
 Brooding on fortune's malice. Heart and brain
 Swelled; he expanded to himself again,
 As some thin seedling spice-tree starved and frail,
 Pushing between cat's head and ibis' tail
 Crusted into the porphyry pavement smooth, —Suffered remain just as it sprung, to soothe
 The Soldan's pining daughter, never yet
 Well in her chilly green-glazed minaret,—
 When rooted up, the sunny day she died,
 And flung into the common court beside
 Its parent tree. Come home, Sordello! Soon
 Was he low muttering, beneath the moon,
 Of sorrow saved, of quiet evermore,—
 Since from the purpose, he maintained before,
 Only resulted wailing and hot tears.
 Ah, the slim castle! dwindled of late years,
 But more mysterious; gone to ruin—trails
 Of vine through every loop-hole. Nought avails

The night as, torch in hand, he must explore
 The maple chamber: did I say, its floor
 Was made of intersecting cedar beams?
 Worn now with gaps so large, there blew cold streams

Of air quite from the dungeon; lay your ear
 Close and 'tis like, one after one, you hear
 In the blind darkness water drop. The nests
 And nooks retain their long ranged vesturechests

Empty and smelling of the iris root
 The Tuscan grated o'er them to recruit
 Her wasted wits. Palma was gone that day,
 Said the remaining women. Last, he lay Beside the Carian group reserved and still.

The Body, the Machine for Acting Will,
 Had been at the commencement proved unfit;
 That for Demonstrating, Reflecting it,
 Mankind—no fitter: was the Will Itself
 In fault?

His forehead pressed the moonlit shelf
 Beside the youngest marble maid awhile;
 Then, raising it, he thought, with a long smile,

“I shall be king again!” as he withdrew
 The envied scarf; into the font he threw
 His crown.

Next day, no poet! “Wherefore?” asked
 Taurello, when the dance of Jongleurs, masked

As devils, ended; “don't a song come next?”
 The master of the pageant looked perplexed
 Till Naddo's whisper came to his relief.

“His Highness knew what poets were: in brief,

“Had not the tetchy race prescriptive right
 “To peevishness, caprice? or, call it spite,

“One must receive their nature in its length

“And breadth, expect the weakness with the strength!”

—So phrasing, till, his stock of phrases spent,
 The easy-natured soldier smiled assent,
 Settled his portly person, smoothed his chin,
 And nodded that the bull-bait might begin.

BOOK THE THIRD.

AND the font took them: let our laurels lie!
 Braid moonfern now with mystic trifoly
 Because once more Goito gets, once more,
 Sordello to itself! A dream is o'er,
 And the suspended life begins anew;
 Quiet those throbbing temples, then, subdue
 That cheek's distortion! Nature's strict embrace,

Putting aside the past, shall soon efface
 Its print as well—factitious humours grown
 Over the true—loves, hatreds not his own—
 And turn him pure as some forgotten vest
 Woven of painted byssus,¹ silkiest
 Tufting the Tyrrhene whelk's pearl-sheeted lip,
 Left welter where a trireme let it slip
 I' the sea, and vexed a satrap; so the stain
 O' the world forsakes Sordello, with its pain,
 Its pleasure: how the tinct loosening escapes,
 Cloud after cloud! Mantua's familiar shapes
 Die, fair and foul die, fading as they flit,
 Men, women, and the pathos and the wit,

Wise speech and foolish, deeds to smile or sigh
 For, good, bad, seemly or ignoble, die.
 The last face glances through the eglantines,
 The last voice murmurs, 'twixt the blossomed
 vines,

Of Men, of that machine supplied by thought
 To compass self-perception with, he sought
 By forcing half himself—an insane pulse
 Of a god's blood, on clay it could convulse, Never transmute—on human sights and sounds,

To watch the other half with; irksome bounds
 It ebbs from to its source, a fountain sealed
 Forever. Better sure be unrevealed

Than part revealed: Sordello well or ill
 Is finished: then what further use of Will,
 Point in the prime idea not realized,

An oversight? inordinately prized,
 No less, and pampered with enough of each
 Delight to prove the whole above its reach.

“To need become all natures, yet retain

“The law of my own nature—to remain

“Myself, yet yearn . . . as if that chestnut,
 think,

“Should yearn for this first larch-bloom crisp and pink,

“Or those pale fragrant tears where zephyrs stanch

“March wounds along the fretted pine-tree branch!

“Will and the means to show will, great and small,

“Material, spiritual,—abjure them all

“Save any so distinct, they may be left

“To amuse, not tempt become! and, thus bereft,

“Just as I first was fashioned would I be!

“Nor, moon, is it Apollo now, but me

“Thou visitest to comfort and befriend!

“Swim thou into my heart, and there an end,

“Since I possess thee!—nay, thus shut mine
 eyes

“And know, quite know, by this heart's fall and rise,

“When thou dost bury thee in clouds, and when

“Out-standest: wherefore practise upon men

“To make that plainer to myself?”

Slide here

Over a sweet and solitary year
 Wasted; or simply notice change in him—
 How eyes, once with exploring bright, grew dim

And satiate with receiving. Some distress
 Was caused, too, by a sort of consciousness
 Under the imbecility,—nought kept
 That down; he slept, but was aware he slept,
 So, frustrated: as who brainsick made pact
 Erst with the overhanging cataract
 To deafen him, yet still distinguished plain
 His own blood's measured clicking at his brain.

To finish. One declining Autumn day—
 Few birds about the heaven chill and grey,
 No wind that cared trouble the tacit woods—
 He sauntered home complacently, their moods
 According, his and nature's. Every spark
 Of Mantua life was trodden out; so dark
 The embers, that the Troubadour, who sung
 Hundreds of songs, forgot, its trick his tongue,
 Its craft his brain, how either brought to pass
 Singing at all; that faculty might class
 With any of Apollo's now. The year
 Began to find its early promise sere
 As well. Thus beauty vanishes; thus stone
 Outlingers flesh: nature's and his youth gone,
 They left the world to you, and wished you
 joy.

When, stopping his benevolent employ,
 A presage shuddered through the welkin;
 harsh

The earth's remonstrance followed. 'Twas the marsh

Gone of a sudden. Mincio, in its place, Laughed, a broad water, in next morning's
 face,

And, where the mists broke up immense and
 white

I' the steady wind, burned like a spilth of light
 Out of the crashing of a myriad stars.

And here was nature, bound by the same bars
 Of fate with him!

“No! youth once gone is gone:

“Deeds, let escape, are never to be done.

“Leaf-fall and grass-spring for the year;
 for us—

“Oh forfeit I unalterably thus

" 'Twere Happiness to make it one with me :
 " Whereas I must, ere I begin to Be,
 " Include a world, in flesh, I comprehend
 " In spirit now ; and this done, what's to blend " With? Nought is Alien in the world—my Will
 " Owns all already ; yet can turn it—still
 " Less—Native, since my Means to correspond " With Will are so unworthy, 'twas my bond
 " To tread the very joys that tantalize
 " Most now, into a grave, never to rise.
 " I die then ! Will the rest agree to die ?
 " Next Age or no ? Shall its Sordello try
 " Clue after clue, and catch at last the clue
 " I miss ?—that's underneath my finger too,
 " Twice, thrice a day, perhaps,—some yearning traced
 " Deeper, some petty consequence embraced " Closer ! Why fled I Mantua, then ?—complained
 " So much my Will was fettered, yet remained
 " Content within a tether half the range
 " I could assign it ?—able to exchange
 " My ignorance (I felt) for knowledge, and
 " Idle because I could thus understand—
 " Could e'en have penetrated to its core
 " Our mortal mystery, yet—fool—fobore,
 " Preferred elaborating in the dark
 " My casual stuff, by any wretched spark
 " Born of my predecessors, though one stroke
 " Of mine had brought the flame forth !
 Mantua's yoke,
 " My minstrel's-trade, was to behold mankind,—
 " My own concern was just to bring my mind
 " Behold, just extricate, for my acquist,
 " Each object suffered stifle in the mist
 " Which hazard, custom, blindness interpose
 " Betwixt things and myself."

Whereat he rose.

The level wind carried above the firs
 Clouds, the irrevocable travellers, Onward.

" Pushed thus into a drowsy copse,
 " Arms twine about my neck, each eyelid drops
 " Under a humid finger ; while there fleets,
 " Outside the screen, a pageant time repeats

" Never again ! To be deposed, immured
 " Clandestinely—still petted, still assured
 " To govern were fatiguing work—the Sight
 " Fleeting meanwhile ! 'Tis noontide : wreak ere night
 " Somehow my will upon it, rather ! Slake
 " This thirst somehow, the poorest impress
 take
 " That serves ! A blasted bud displays you, torn,
 " Faint rudiments of the full flower unborn ;
 " But who divines what glory coats o'erclasp
 " Of the bulb dormant in the mummy's grasp " Taurello sent ?" . . .

" Taurello ? Palma sent " Your Trouvere," (Naddo interposing leant
 Over the lost bard's shoulder)—"and, believe,
 " You cannot more reluctantly receive
 " Than I pronounce her message : we depart
 " Together. What avail a poet's heart
 " Verona's pomps and gauds ? five blades of grass
 " Suffice him. News ? Why, where your marish was,
 " On its mud-banks smoke rises after smoke
 " I' the valley, like a spout of hell new-broke.
 " Oh, the world's tidings ! small your thanks,
 I guess,
 " For them. The father of our Patroness,
 " Has played Taurello an astounding trick,
 " Parts between Ecelin and Alberic
 " His wealth and goes into a convent : both
 " Wed Guelfs : the Count and Palma plighted troth
 " A week since at Verona : and they want
 " You doubtless to contrive the marriagechant
 " Ere Richard storms Ferrara." Then was told

The tale from the beginning—how, made bold
 By Salinguerra's absence, Guelfs had burned
 And pillaged till he unawares returned
 To take revenge : how Azzo and his friend
 Were doing their endeavour, how the end
 O' the siege was nigh, and how the Count, released
 From further care, would with his marriage-feast

Inaugurate a new and better rule, Absorbing thus Romano.

“ Shall I school

“ My master,” added Naddo, “ and suggest
“ How you may clothe in a poetic vest
“ These doings, at Verona? Your response “ To Palma! Wherefore jest? ‘ Depart at
once?’

“ A good resolve! In truth, I hardly hoped “ So prompt an acquiescence. Have you groped

“ Out wisdom in the wilds here?—thoughts may be

“ Over-poetical for poetry.

“ Pearl-white, you poets liken Palma’s neck;

“ And yet what spoils an orient like some speck

“ Of genuine white, turning its own white grey?

“ You take me? Curse the cicala!”

One more day,

One eve—appears Verona! Many a group,
(You mind) instructed of the osprey’s swoop
On lynx and ounce, was gathering—Christendom

Sure to receive, whate’er the end was, from
The evening’s purpose cheer or detriment,
Since Friedrich only waited some event
Like this, of Ghibellins establishing Themselves within Ferrara, ere, as King
Of Lombardy, he’d glad descend there,
wage

Old warfare with the Pontiff, disengage
His barons from the burghers, and restore
The rule of Charlemagne, broken of yore
By Hildebrand.

I’ the palace, each by each,
Sordello sat and Palma: little speech
At first in that dim closet, face with face
(Despite the tumult in the market-place) Exchanging quick low laughs: now would rush

Word upon word to meet a sudden flush,
A look left off, a shifting lips’ surmise—
But for the most part their two histories Ran best thro’ the locked fingers and linked arms.

And so the night flew on with its alarms

Till in burst one of Palma’s retinue;
“ Now, Lady!” gasped he. Then arose the two

And leaned into Verona’s air, dead-still.

A balcony lay black beneath until

Out, ’mid a gush of torchfire, grey-haired men

Came on it and harangued the people: then

Sea-like that people surging to and fro

Shouted, “ Hale forth the carroch—trumpets, ho,

“ A flourish! Run it in the ancient grooves!

“ Back from the bell! Hammer—that whom behoves

“ May hear the League is up! Peal—learn who list,

“ Verona means not first of towns break tryst

“ To-morrow with the League!”

Enough. Now turn—

Over the eastern cypresses: discern!

Is any beacon set a-glimmer?

Rang

The air with shouts that overpowered the clang
Of the incessant carroch, even: “ Haste—

“ The candle’s at the gateway! ere it waste,

“ Each soldier stand beside it, armed to march

“ With Tiso Sampier through the eastern arch!”

Ferrara’s succoured, Palma!

Once again

They sat together; some strange thing in train

To say, so difficult was Palma’s place

In taking, with a coy fastidious grace

Like the bird’s flutter ere it fix and feed.

But when she felt she held her friend indeed

Safe, she threw back her curls, began implant

Her lessons; telling of another want

Goito’s quiet nourished than his own;

Palma—to serve him—to be served, alone

Importing; Agnes’ milk so neutralized

The blood of Ecelin. Nor be surprised

If, while Sordello fain had captive led Nature, in dream was Palma subjected

To some out-soul, which dawned not though she pined

Delaying, till its advent, heart and mind

Their life. “ How dared I let expand the force

“ Within me, till some out-soul, whose resource

" It grew for, should direct it? Every law
 " Of life, its every fitness, every flaw,
 " Must One determine whose corporeal shape
 " Would be no other than the prime escape
 " And revelation to me of a Will
 " Orb-like o'ershrouded and inscrutable
 " Above, save at the point which, I should
 know,
 " Shone that myself, my powers, might overflow
 " So far, so much; as now it signified
 " Which earthly shape it henceforth chose my guide,
 " Whose mortal lip selected to declare
 " Its oracles, what fleshly garb would wear
 " —The first of intimations, whom to love;
 " The next, how love him. Seemed that orb,
 above
 " The castle-covert and the mountain-close,
 " Slow in appearing?—if beneath it rose
 " Cravings, aversions,—did our green precinct
 " Take pride in me, at unawares distinct
 " With this or that endowment,—how, repressed
 " At once, such jetting power shrank to the rest!
 " Was I to have a chance touch spoil me, leave
 " My spirit thence unfitted to receive
 " The consummating spell?—that spell so near
 " Moreover! 'Waits he not the waking
 year?
 " 'His almond-blossoms must be honey-ripe
 " 'By this; to welcome him, fresh runnels stripe
 " 'The thawed ravines; because of him, the wind
 " 'Walks like a herald. I shall surely find " 'Him now!'

" And chief, that earnest April morn
 " Of Richard's Love-court, was it time, so worn
 " And white my cheek, so idly my blood beat,
 " Sitting that morn beside the Lady's feet
 " And saying as she prompted; till outburst
 " One face from all the faces. Not then first

" I knew it; where in maple chamber glooms,
 " Crowned with what sanguine-heart pomegranate blooms,
 " Advanced it ever? Men's acknowledgment
 " Sanctioned my own: 'twas taken, Palma's
 bent,—
 " Sordello,—recognized, accepted.

" Dumb
 " Sat she still scheming. Ecelin would come
 " Gaunt, scared, 'Cesano baffles me,' he'd
 say:
 " 'Better I fought it out, my father's way!
 " 'Strangle Ferrara in its drowning flats,
 " 'And you and your Taurello yonder!— what's " 'Romano's business there?' An hour's concern
 " To cure the froward Chief!—induce return
 " As heartened from those overmeaning eyes,
 " Wound up to persevere,—his enterprise
 " Marked out anew, its exigent of wit
 " Apportioned,—she at liberty to sit
 " And scheme against the next emergence, I—
 " To covet her Taurello-sprite, made fly
 " Or fold the wing—to con your horoscope
 " For leave command those steely shafts shoot ope,
 " Or straight assuage their blinding eagerness
 " In blank smooth snow. What semblance of success
 " To any of my plans for making you " Mine and Romano's? Break the first wall
 through,
 " Tread o'er the ruins of the Chief, supplant
 " His sons beside, still, vainest were the vaunt:
 " There, Salinguerra would obstruct me sheer,
 " And the insuperable Tuscan, here,
 " Stay me! But one wild eve that Lady died
 " In her lone chamber: only I beside:
 " Taurello far at Naples, and my sire
 " At Padua, Ecelin away in ire
 " With Alberic. She held me thus—a clutch
 " To make our spirits as our bodies touch—
 " And so began flinging the past up, heaps
 " Of uncouth treasure from their sunless sleeps

“ No ; his heart prompted Ecelo, ‘ Confront
 “ ‘ Este, inspect yourself. What’s nature?
 Wont.
 “ ‘ Discard three-parts your nature, and adopt
 “ ‘ The rest as an advantage !’ Old strength propped
 “ The man who first grew Podestà among “ The Vicentines, no less than, while there sprung
 “ His palace up in Padua like a threat,
 “ Their noblest spied a grace, unnoticed yet
 “ In Conrad’s crew. Thus far the object
 gained,
 “ Romano was established—has remained—
 “ ‘ For are you not Italian, truly peers
 “ ‘ With Este? Asso better soothes our ears
 “ ‘ Than Alberic? or is this lion’s-crine “ ‘ From over-mounts’ (this yellow hair of
 mine)
 “ ‘ So weak a graft on Agnes Este’s stock?’
 “ (Thus went he on with something of a mock)
 “ ‘ Wherefore recoil, then, from the very fate “ ‘ Conceded you, refuse to imitate
 “ ‘ Your model farther? Este long since left “ ‘ Being mere Este : as a blade its heft, “ ‘ Este required the Pope to further him :
 “ ‘ And you, the Kaiser—whom your father’s whim
 “ ‘ Foregoes or, better, never shall forego
 “ ‘ If Palma dare pursue what Ecelo “ ‘ Commenced, but Ecelin desists from : just “ ‘ As Adelaide of Susa could intrust
 “ ‘ Her donative,—her Piedmont given the Pope,
 “ ‘ Her Alpine-pass for him to shut or ope
 “ ‘ Twixt France and Italy,—to the superb “ ‘ Matilda’s perfecting,—so, lest aught curb “ ‘ Our Adelaide’s great counter-project for “ ‘ Giving her Trentine to the Emperor “ ‘ With passage here from Germany,—shall
 you “ ‘ Take it,—my slender plodding talent,
 too !’
 “—Urged me Taurello with his half-smile.
 “ He
 “ As Patron of the scattered family
 “ Conveyed me to his Mantua, kept in bruit
 “ Azzo’s alliances and Richard’s suit

“ Until, the Kaiser excommunicate, “ ‘ Nothing remains,’ Taurello said, ‘ but wait
 “ ‘ Some rash procedure : Palma was the link, “ ‘ As Agnes’ child, between us, and they shrink
 “ ‘ From losing Palma : judge if we advance,
 “ ‘ Your father’s method, your inheritance !’
 “ The day I was betrothed to Boniface
 “ At Padua by Taurello’s self, took place
 “ The outrage of the Ferrarese : again,
 “ The day I sought Verona with the train “ Agreed for,—by Taurello’s policy “ Convicting Richard of the fault, since we “ Were present to annul or to confirm,— “ Richard, whose patience had outstayed its term,
 “ Quitted Verona for the siege.
 “ And now
 “ What glory may engird Sordello’s brow “ Through this? A month since at Oliero slunk
 “ All that was Ecelin into a monk ;
 “ But how could Salinguerra so forget
 “ His liege of thirty years as grudge even yet
 “ One effort to recover him? He sent “ Forthwith the tidings of this last event
 “ To Ecelin—declared that he, despite
 “ The recent folly, recognized his right
 “ To order Salinguerra : ‘ Should he wring
 “ ‘ Its uttermost advantage out, or fling
 “ ‘ This chance away? Or were his sons now
 Head
 “ ‘ O’ the House?’ Through me Taurello’s missive sped ;
 “ My father’s answer will by me return.
 “ Behold ! ‘ For him,’ he writes, ‘ no more concern
 “ ‘ With strife than, for his children, with fresh plots
 “ ‘ Of Friedrich. Old engagements out he blots
 “ ‘ For aye : Taurello shall no more subserve, “ ‘ Nor Ecelin impose.’ Lest this unnerve
 “ Taurello at this juncture, slack his grip
 “ Of Richard, suffer the occasion slip,—
 “ I, in his sons’ default (who, mating with “ Este, forsake Romano as the frith

"Its mainsea for that firmland, sea makes
head

"Against) I stand, Romano,—in their stead

"Assume the station they desert, and give

"Still, as the Kaiser's representative,

"Taurello licence he demands. Midnight—

"Morning—by noon to-morrow, making
light

"Of the League's issue, we, in some gay weed

"Like yours, disguised together, may precede

"The arbitrators to Ferrara : reach

"Him, let Taurello's noble accents teach

"The rest ! Then say if I have misconceived

"Your destiny, too readily believed

"The Kaiser's cause your own !"

And Palma's fled.

Though no affirmative disturbs the head,
A dying lamp-flame sinks and rises o'er,
Like the alighted planet Pollux wore,
Until, morn breaking, he resolves to be
Gate-vein of this heart's blood of Lombardy,
Soul of this body—to wield this aggregate
Of souls and bodies, and so conquer fate
Though he should live—a centre of disgust
Even—apart, core of the outward crust
He vivifies, assimilates. For thus
I bring Sordello to the rapturous Exclaim at the crowd's cry, because one
round

Of life was quite accomplished ; and he found

Not only that a soul, whate'er its might,
Is insufficient to its own delight,
Both in corporeal organs and in skill
By means of such to body forth its Will—
And, after, insufficient to apprise
Men of that Will, oblige them recognize The Hid by the Revealed—but that,—the last

Nor lightest of the struggles overpast,—
Will, he bade abdicate, which would not void
The throne, might sit there, suffer he enjoyed Mankind, a varied and divine array
Incapable of homage, the first way,
Nor fit to render incidentally Tribute connived at, taken by the by,
In joys. If thus with warrant to rescind
The ignominious exile of mankind—

Whose proper service, ascertained intact
As yet, (to be by him themselves made act,
Not watch Sordello acting each of them)
Was to secure—if the true diadem
Seemed imminent while our Sordello drank
The wisdom of that golden Palma,—thank Verona's Lady in her citadel
Founded by Gaulish Brennus, legends tell :
And truly when she left him, the sun reared
A head like the first clamberer's who peered
A-top the Capitol, his face on flame
With triumph, triumphing till Manlius came.
Nor slight too much my rhymes—that spring,
dispread,

Dispart, disperse, lingering overhead
Like an escape of angels ! Rather say,
My transcendental platan !¹ mounting gay
(An archimage so courts a novice-queen)
With tremulous silvered trunk, whence branches sheen

Laugh out, thick-foliaged next, a-shiver soon
With coloured buds, then glowing like the moon

One mild flame,—last a pause, a burst, and all
Her ivory limbs are smothered by a fall,
Bloom-flinders and fruit-sparkles and leaf-dust,

Ending the weird work prosecuted just
For her amusement ; he decrepit, stark,
Dozes ; her uncontrolled delight may mark
Apart—

Yet not so, surely never so
Only, as good my soul were suffered go
O'er the lagune : forth fare thee, put aside—
Entrance thy synod, as a god may glide
Out of the world he fills, and leave it mute
For myriad ages as we men compute,
Returning into it without a break
O' the consciousness ! They sleep, and I awake
O'er the lagune, being at Venice.

Note,
In just such songs as Eglamor (say) wrote
With heart and soul and strength, for he believed Himself achieving all to be achieved

By singer—in such songs you find alone
Completeness, judge the song and singer one,
And either purpose answered, his in it
Or its in him : while from true works (to wit Sordello's dream-performances that will Never be more than dreamed) escapes there
still

Some proof, the singer's proper life was 'neath
The life his song exhibits, this a sheath
To that ; a passion and a knowledge far Transcending these, majestic as they are,
Smouldered ; his lay was but an episode
In the bard's life : which evidence you owed
To some slight weariness, some looking-off
Or start-away. The childish skit or scoff
In "Charlemagne," (his poem, dreamed divine
In every point except one silly line
About the restiff daughters)—what may lurk
In that? "My life commenced before this work,"

(So I interpret the significance Of the bard's start aside and look askance)
"My life continues after : on I fare
"With no more stopping, possibly, no care
"To note the undercurrent, the why and how,
"Where, when, o' the deeper life, as thus just now.
"But, silent, shall I cease to live? Alas
"For you ! who sigh, 'When shall it come to pass
" "We read that story? How will he compress
" "The future gains, his life's true business,
" "Into the better lay which—that one flout,
" "Howe'er inopportune it be, lets out—
" "Engrosses him already, though professed
" "To meditate with us eternal rest,
" "And partnership in all his life has found?"
'Tis but a sailor's promise, weather-bound :
"Strike sail, slip cable, here the bark be moored
"For once, the awning stretched, the poles assured !
"Noontide above ; except the wave's crisp dash,
"Or buzz of colibri,¹ or tortoise' splash,

¹ Humming-birds.

"The margin's silent : out with every spoil
"Made in our tracking, coil by mighty coil,
"This serpent of a river to his head
"I' the midst ! Admire each treasure, as we spread
"The bank, to help us tell our history
"Aright : give ear, endeavour to descry
"The groves of giant rushes, how they grew
"Like demons' endlong tresses we sailed
through,
"What mountains yawned, forests to give us
vent
"Opened, each doleful side, yet on we went
"Till . . . may that beetle (shake your cap) attest
"The springing of a land-wind from the West !"
—Wherefore? Ah yes, you frolic it to-
day!

To-morrow, and, the pageant moved away
Down to the poorest tent-pole, we and you
Part company : no other may pursue
Eastward your voyage, be informed what fate
Intends, if triumph or decline await
The tempter of the everlasting steppe.
I muse this on a ruined palace-step
At Venice : why should I break off, nor sit Longer upon my step, exhaust the fit
England gave birth to? Who's adorable Enough reclaim a — no Sordello's Will Alack !—be queen to me? That Bassanese Busied among her smoking fruit-boats? These Perhaps from our delicious Asolo
Who twinkle, pigeons o'er the portico
Not prettier, hind June lilies into sheaves
To deck the bridge-side chapel, dropping leaves
Soiled by their own loose gold-meal? Ah,
beneath
The cool arch stoops she, brownest cheek !
Her wreath
Endures a month—a half-month—if I make
A queen of her, continue for her sake
Sordello's story? Nay, that Paduan girl
Splashes with barer legs where a live whirl
In the dead black Giudecca proves sea-weed Drifting has sucked down three, four, all
indeed

Forth as she'd plant it on a pedestal,
 Now, i' the silent city, seems to fall
 Toward me—no wreath, only a lip's unrest
 To quiet, surcharged eyelids to be pressed
 Dry of their tears upon my bosom. Strange Such sad chance should produce in thee such
 change,

My love! Warped souls and bodies! yet
 God spoke

Of right-hand, foot and eye—selects our yoke,
 Sordello, as your poetship may find!

So, sleep upon my shoulder, child, nor mind
 Their foolish talk; we'll manage reinstate Your old worth; ask moreover, when they prate

Of evil men past hope, "Don't each contrive,
 "Despite the evil you abuse, to live?—

"Keeping, each losel, through a maze of lies,
 "His own conceit of truth? to which he hies

"By obscure windings, tortuous, if you will,
 "But to himself not inaccessible;

"He sees truth, and his lies are for the crowd
 "Who cannot see; some fancied right allowed

"His vilest wrong, empowered the losel
 clutch

"One pleasure from a multitude of such
 "Denied him." Then assert, "All men appear

"To think all better than themselves, by here
 "Trusting a crowd they wrong; but really,"
 say,

"All men think all men stupider than they,
 "Since, save themselves, no other compre-hends

"The complicated scheme to make amends
 "—Evil, the scheme by which, thro' Ignorance,

"Good labours to exist." A slight advance,—

Merely to find the sickness you die through,
 And nought beside! but if one can't eschew
 One's portion in the common lot, at least
 One can avoid an ignorance increased
 Tenfold by dealing out hint after hint
 How nought were like dispensing without stint
 The water of life—so easy to dispense Beside, when one has probed the centre whence

Commotion's born—could tell you of it all!

"—Meantime, just meditate my madrigal
 "O' the mugwort that conceals a dewdrop safe!"

What, dullard? we and you in smothery chafe,
 Babes, baldheads, stumbled thus far into Zin
 The Horrid,¹ getting neither out nor in,

A hungry sun above us, sands that bung
 Our throats,—each dromedary lolls a tongue,

Each camel churns a sick and frothy chap,
 And you, 'twixt tales of Potiphar's mishap,

And sonnets on the earliest ass that spoke,
 —Remark, you wonder any one needs choke

With founts about! Potsherd him, Gibeonites!
 While awkwardly enough your Moses smites

The rock, though he forego his Promised Land Thereby, have Satan claim his carcass, and

Mark ye the dim first oozings? Meribah!²

Then, quaffing at the fount my courage gained,
 Recall—not that I prompt ye—who explained . . .

"Presumptuous!" interrupts one. You,
 not I

'Tis brother, marvel at and magnify

Such office: "office," quotha? can we get
 To the beginning of the office yet?

What do we here? simply experiment

Each on the other's power and its intent

When elsewhere tasked,—if this of mine were trucked

For yours to either's good,—we watch construct,

In short, an engine: with a finished one,

What it can do, is all,—nought, how 'tis done.

But this of ours yet in probation, dusk

A kernel of strange wheelwork through its husk

Grows into shape by quarters and by halves;

Remark this tooth's spring, wonder what that valve's

Fall bodes, presume each faculty's device,

Make out each other more or less precise—

The scope of the whole engine's to be proved:

We die: which means to say, the whole's removed,

² Waters of Meribah, that is, of Strife. See Exodus xvii. 7.

Dismounted wheel by wheel, this complex gin,—

To be set up anew elsewhere, begin
A task indeed, but with a clearer clime
Than the murk lodgment of our building-time.
And then, I grant you, it behoves forget
How 'tis done—all that must amuse us yet
So long: and, while you turn upon your heel,
Pray that I be not busy slitting steel
Or shredding brass, camped on some virgin shore

Under a cluster of fresh stars, before
I name a tithe o' the wheels I trust to do!

So occupied, then, are we: hitherto,
At present, and a weary while to come,
The office of ourselves,—nor blind nor dumb,
And seeing somewhat of man's state,—has
been,

For the worst of us, to say they so have seen;
For the better, what it was they saw; the
best

Impart the gift of seeing to the rest:

"So that I glance," says such an one,
"around,

"And there's no face but I can read profound
"Disclosures in; this stands for hope, that—
fear,

"And for a speech, a deed in proof, look
here!

"Stoop, else the strings of blossom, where the nuts

"O'erarch, will blind thee! Said I not?
She shuts

"Both eyes this time, so close the hazels meet!

"Thus, prisoned in the Piombi, I repeat

"Events one rove occasioned, o'er and o'er,

"Putting 'twixt me and madness evermore

"Thy sweet shape, Zanze! Therefore stoop!

"That's truth!"

"(Adjudge you) 'the incarcerated youth

"Would say that!"

"Youth? Plara the bard? Set down

"That Plara spent his youth in a grim town

"Whose cramped ill-featured streets huddled about

"The minster for protection, never out

"Of its black belfry's shade and its bells' roar.

"The brighter shone the suburb,—all the
more

"Ugly and absolute that shade's reproof

"Of any chance escape of joy,—some roof,

"Taller than they, allowed the rest detect,—

"Before the sole permitted laugh (suspect

"Who could, 'twas meant for laughter, that ploughed cheek's

"Repulsive gleam!) when the sun stopped
both peaks

"Of the cleft belfry like a fiery wedge,

"Then sank, a huge flame on its socket edge,

"With leavings on the grey glass oriel-pane

"Ghastly some minutes more. No fear of rain—

"The minster minded that! in heaps the dust

"Lay everywhere. This town, the minster's
trust,

"Held Plara; who, its denizen, bade hail

"In twice twelve sonnets, Tempe's dewy vale."

"Exact the town, the minster and the street!"

"As all mirth triumphs, sadness means defeat:

"Lust triumphs and is gay, Love's triumphed o'er

"And sad: but Lucio's sad. I said before,

"Love's sad, not Lucio; one who loves may be

"As gay his love has leave to hope, as he

"Downcast that lusts' desire escapes the springe:

"'Tis of the mood itself I speak, what tinge

"Determines it, else colourless,—or mirth,

"Or melancholy, as from heaven or earth."

"Ay, that's the variation's gist!"

"Indeed?"

"Thus far advanced in safety then, proceed!

"And having seen too what I saw, be bold

"And next encounter what I do behold

"(That's sure) but bid you take on trust!"

Attack

The use and purpose of such sights! Alack,

Not so unwisely does the crowd dispense

On Salinguerras praise in preference

To the Sordellos: men of action, these!

Who, seeing just as little as you please.

Yet turn that little to account,—engage
 With, do not gaze at,—carry on, a stage,
 The work o' the world, not merely make report
 The work existed ere their day! In short,
 When at some future no-time a brave band
 Sees, using what it sees, then shake my hand
 In heaven, my brother! Meanwhile where's the hurt

Of keeping the Makers-see on the alert,
 At whose defection mortals stare aghast
 As though heaven's bounteous windows were slammed fast

Incontinent? Whereas all you, beneath,
 Should scowl at, bruise their lips and break
 their teeth

Who ply the pullies, for neglecting you :
 And therefore have I moulded, made anew
 A Man, and give him to be turned and tried,
 Be angry with or pleased at. On your side,
 Have ye times, places, actors of your own?
 Try them upon Sordello when full-grown,
 And then — ah then! If Hercules first parched

His foot in Egypt only to be marched
 A sacrifice for Jove with pomp to suit,
 What chance have I? The demigod was mute
 Till, at the altar, where time out of mind
 Such guests became oblations, chaplets
 twined

His forehead long enough, and he began
 Slaying the slayers, nor escaped a man.
 Take not affront, my gentle audience! whom
 No Hercules shall make his hecatomb, Believe, nor from his brows your chaplet rend—

That's your kind suffrage, yours, my patron-
 friend,

Whose great verse blares unintermittent on Like your own trumpeter at Marathon,—
 You who, Plataea and Salamis being scant,
 Put up with Ætna for a stimulant—

And did well, I acknowledged, as he loomed
 Over the midland sea last month, presumed Long, lay demolished in the blazing West
 At eve, while towards him tilting cloudlets
 pressed

Like Persian ships at Salamis. Friend, wear
 A crest proud as desert while I declare

Had I a flawless ruby fit to wring
 Tears of its colour from that painted king¹
 Who lost it, I, would, for that smile which went

To my heart, fling it in the sea, content,
 Wearing your verse in place, an amulet
 Sovereign against all passion, wear and fret!
 My English Eyebright, if you are not glad
 That, as I stopped my task awhile, the sad
 Dishevelled form, wherein I put mankind
 To come at times and keep my pact in mind,
 Renewed me,—hear no crickets in the hedge.

Nor let a glowworm spot the river's edge
 At home, and may the summer showers gush
 Without a warning from the missel thrush!
 So, to our business, now—the fate of such
 As find our common nature—overmuch
 Despised because restricted and unfit
 To bear the burthen they impose on it—
 Cling when they would discard it; craving
 strength

To leap from the allotted world, at length
 They do leap,—flounder on without a term,
 Each a god's germ, doomed to remain a germ
 In unexpanded infancy, unless . . .

But that's the story—dull enough, confess!
 There might be fitter subjects to allure;
 Still, neither misconceive my portraiture
 Nor undervalue its adornments quaint:
 What seems a fiend perchance may prove a saint.

Ponder a story ancient pens transmit,
 Then say if you condemn me or acquit.

John the Beloved, banished Antioch
 For Patmos, bade collectively his flock
 Farewell, but set apart the closing eve
 To comfort those his exile most would grieve,
 He knew: a touching spectacle, that house
 In motion to receive him! Xanthus' spouse
 You missed, made panther's meat a month since; but

Xanthus himself (his nephew 'twas, they shut
 'Twixt boards and sawed asunder) Polycarp,
 Soft Charicle, next year no wheel could warp
 To swear by Cæsar's fortune, with the rest
 Were ranged; thro' whom the grey disciple
 pressed,

 " Who bade him bloody the spent osprey's

The carrochs² halted in the public square.
 Pennons of every blazon once a-flaunt,
 Men prattled, freelier than the crested gaunt
 White ostrich with a horse-shoe in her beak
 Was missing, and whoever chose might speak

" Ecelin " boldly out : so,—“ Ecelin
 " Needed his wife to swallow half the sin
 " And sickens by himself : the devil's whelp,
 " He styles his son, dwindles away, no help
 " From conserves, your fine triple-curved froth
 " Of virgin's blood, your Venice viper-broth—
 " Eh? Jubilate !”—“ Peace ! no little word

" Like Ecelin, through his witch Adelaide?
 " She managed it so well that, night by night

" At their bed-foot stood up a soldier-sprite,
 " First fresh, pale by-and-by without a wound,
 " And, when it came with eyes filmed as in swoond,

" A crawling hell of carrion—every tank

 " And, making no account of fortune's freaks,
 " Refused to budge from Padua then, but sneaks

" Back now with Concorezzi : 'faith ! they drag
 " Their carroch to San Vitale, plant the flag
 " On his own palace, so adroitly razed
 " He knew it not ; a sort of Guelf folk gazed
 " And laughed apart ; Cino disliked their air—
 " Must pluck up spirit, show he does not care—

" Seats himself on the tank's edge—will begin
 " To hum, sa, sa, Cavalier Ecelin—

" A silence ; he gets warmer, clinks to chime,

 each time,

" At last, sa, sa and up with a fierce kick
 " Comes his own mother's face caught by the thick

" Grey hair about his spur !"

Which means, they lift

The covering, Salinguerra made a shift
 To stretch upon the truth ; as well avoid Further disclosures ; leave them thus employed.

Our dropping Autumn morning clears apace,
 And poor Ferrara puts a softened face
 On her misfortunes. Let us scale this tall
 Huge foursquare line of red brick garden-wall
 Bastioned within by trees of every sort
 On three sides, slender, spreading, long and short ;

Each grew as it contrived, the poplar ramped,
 The fig-tree reared itself,—but stark and cramped,

Made fools of, like tamed lions : whence, on the edge,

Running 'twixt trunk and trunk to smooth one ledge

Ofshade, were shrubs inserted, warp and woof,
 Which smothered up that variance. Scale
 the roof

Of solid tops, and o'er the slope you slide
 Down to a grassy space level and wide,
 Here and there dotted with a tree, but trees
 Of rarer leaf, each foreigner at ease,

¹ Nostril.

² Cars of state.

Set by itself: and in the centre spreads,
 Borne upon three uneasy leopards' heads,
 A laver, broad and shallow, one bright spirt
 Of water bubbles in. The walls begirt
 With trees leave off on either hand; pursue
 Your path along a wondrous avenue
 Those walls abut on, heaped of gleamy stone,
 With aloes leering everywhere, grey-grown From many a Moorish summer: how they
 wind

Out of the fissures! likelier to bind
 The building than those rusted cramps which drop

Already in the eating sunshine. Stop, You fleeting shapes above there! Ah, the
 pride

Or else despair of the whole country-side!
 A range of statues, swarming o'er with wasps,
 God, goddess, woman, man, the Greek rough-rasps

In crumbling Naples marble—meant to look Like those Messina marbles Constance took Delight in, or Taurello's self conveyed
 To Mantua for his mistress, Adelaide,—
 A certain font with caryatides
 Since cloistered at Goito; only, these
 Are up and doing, not abashed, a troop
 Able to right themselves—who see you, stoop
 Their arms o' the instant after you! Unplucked
 By this or that, you pass; for they conduct
 To terrace raised on terrace, and, between,
 Creatures of brighter mould and braver mien
 Than any yet, the choicest of the Isle
 No doubt. Here, left a sullen breathing-
 while,

Up-gathered on himself the Fighter stood
 For his last fight, and, wiping treacherous blood
 Out of the eyelids just held ope beneath
 Those shading fingers in their iron sheath,
 Steadied his strengths amid the buzz and stir
 Of the dusk hideous amphitheatre
 At the announcement of his over-match
 To wind the day's diversion up, dispatch
 The pertinacious Gaul: while, limbs one heap,
 The Slave, no breath in her round mouth, watched leap

Dart after dart forth, as her hero's car
 Clove dizzily the solid of the war

—Let coil about his knees for pride in him.
 We reach the farthest terrace, and the grim
 San Pietro Palace stops us.

Such the state
 Of Salinguerra's plan to emulate
 Sicilian marvels, that his girlish wife
 Retrude still might lead her ancient life
 In her new home: whereat enlarged so much Neighbours upon the novel princely touch
 He took,—who here imprisons Boniface.
 Here must the Envoys come to sue for grace;
 And here, emerging from the labyrinth
 Below, Sordello paused beside the plinth
 Of the door-pillar.

He had really left
 Verona for the cornfields (a poor theft
 From the morass) where Este's camp was
 made;
 The Envoys' march, the Legate's cavalcade—
 All had been seen by him, but scarce as
 when,—

Eager for cause to stand aloof from men
 At every point save the fantastic tie
 Acknowledged in his boyish sophistry,— He made account of such. A crowd,—he meant

To task the whole of it; each part's intent Concerned him therefore: and, the more he pried,
 The less became Sordello satisfied
 With his own figure at the moment. Sought
 He respite from his task? Descried he aught
 Novel in the anticipated sight
 Of all these livers upon all delight?

This phalanx, as of myriad points combined,
 Whereby he still had imaged the mankind
 His youth was passed in dreams of rivalling,
 His age—in plans to prove at least such thing
 Had been so dreamed,—which now he must impress

With his own will, effect a happiness
 By theirs,—supply a body to his soul
 Thence, and become eventually whole
 With them as he had hoped to be without—
 Made these the mankind he once raved about?

Because a few of them were notable,
 Should all be figured worthy note? As well

Expect to find Taurello's triple line
 Of trees a single and prodigious pine.
 Real pines rose here and there ; but, close
 among,
 Thrust into and mixed up with pines, a throng
 Of shrubs, he saw,—a nameless common sort
 O'erpast in dreams, left out of the report
 And hurried into corners, or at best
 Admitted to be fancied like the rest.
 Reckon that morning's proper chiefs—how few !
 And yet the people grew, the people grew,
 Grew ever, as if the many there indeed,
 More left behind and most who should succeed,—
 Simply in virtue of their mouths and eyes,
 Petty enjoyments and huge miseries,—
 Mingled with, and made veritably great
 Those chiefs : he overlooked not Mainard's
 state
 Nor Concorezzi's station, but instead
 Of stopping there, each dwindled to be head
 Of infinite and absent Tyrolese
 Or Paduans ; startling all the more, that these Seemed passive and disposed of, uncared for,
 Yet doubtless on the whole (like Eglamor)
 Smiling ; for if a wealthy man decays
 And out of store of robes must wear, all days,
 One tattered suit, alike in sun and shade,
 'Tis commonly some tarnished gay brocade
 Fit for a feast-night's flourish and no more :
 Nor otherwise poor Misery from her store
 Of looks is fain upgather, keep unfurled
 For common wear as she goes through the
 world,
 The faint remainder of some worn-out smile
 Meant for a feast-night's service merely.
 While
 Crowd upon crowd rose on Sordello thus,— (Crowds no way interfering to discuss,
 Much less dispute, life's joys with one employed
 In envying them,—or, if they aught enjoyed,
 Where lingered something indefinable
 In every look and tone, the mirth as well
 As woe, that fixed at once his estimate
 Of the result, their good or bad estate)—

Old memories returned with new effect :
 And the new body, ere he could suspect,
 Cohered, mankind and he were really fused,
 The new self seemed impatient to be used
 By him, but utterly another way
 Than that anticipated : strange to say,
 They were too much below him, more in thrall
 Than he, the adjunct than the principal.
 What bootied scattered units ?—here a mind
 And there, which might repay his own to find,
 And stamp, and use ?—a few, howe'er august,
 If all the rest were grovelling in the dust ?
 No : first a mighty equilibrium, sure,
 Should he establish, privilege procure For all, the few had long possessed ! He felt
 An error, an exceeding error melt :
 While he was occupied with Mantuan chants, Behoved him think of men, and take their wants,
 Such as he now distinguished every side,
 As his own want which might be satisfied,—
 And, after that, think of rare qualities
 Of his own soul demanding exercise.
 It followed naturally, through no claim
 On their part, which made virtue of the aim
 At serving them, on his,—that, past retrieve,
 He felt now in their toils, theirs—nor could leave
 Wonder how, in the eagerness to rule,
 Impress his will on mankind, he (the fool !)
 Had never even entertained the thought That this his last arrangement might be fraught
 With incidental good to them as well,
 And that mankind's delight would help to swell
 His own. So, if he sighed, as formerly
 Because the merry time of life must fleet,
 'Twas deeper now,—for could the crowds
 repeat
 Their poor experiences ? His hand that shook Was twice to be deplored. “The Legate,
 look !
 “With eyes, like fresh-blown thrush-eggs on a thread,
 “Faint-blue and loosely floating in his head,

"Again: I too have chestnut hair; my kin
 "Hate Azzo and stand up for Ecelin.
 "Here, minstrel, drive bad thoughts away!
 Sing! Take
 "My glove for guerdon!" And for that man's sake
 He turned: "A song of Eglamor's!"— scarce named,
 When, "Our Sordello's rather!"—all ex-
 claimed;
 "Is not Sordello famous for rhyme?"
 He had been happy to deny, this time,—
 Profess as heretofore the aching head
 And failing heart,—suspect that in his stead
 Some true Apollo had the charge of them,
 Was champion to reward or to condemn,
 So his intolerable risk might shift
 Or share itself; but Naddo's precious gift
 Of gifts, he owned, be certain! At the close—
 "I made that," said he to a youth who rose
 As if to hear: 'twas Palma through the band
 Conducted him in silence by her hand.
 Back now for Salinguerra. Tito of Trent Gave place to Palma and her friend, who went
 In turn at Montelungo's visit: one
 After the other were they come and gone,—
 These spokesmen for the Kaiser and the Pope,
 This incarnation of the People's hope,
 Sordello,—all the say of each was said;
 And Salinguerra sat,—himself instead
 Of these to talk with, lingered musing yet.
 'Twas a drear vast presence-chamber roughly set
 In order for the morning's use; full face,
 The Kaiser's ominous sign-mark had first
 place,
 The crowned grim twy-necked eagle, coarselyblacked
 With ochre on the naked wall; nor lacked
 Romano's green and yellow either side;
 But the new token Tito brought had tried
 The Legate's patience—nay, if Palma knew
 What Salinguerra almost meant to do
 Until the sight of her restored his lip
 A certain half-smile, three months' chieftain-
 ship

Had banished! Afterward, the Legate found No change in him, nor asked what badge he wound
 And unwound carelessly. Now sat the Chief
 Silent as when our couple left, whose brief
 Encounter wrought so opportune effect
 In thoughts he summoned not, nor would reject,
 Though time 'twas now if ever, to pause—fix
 On any sort of ending: wiles and tricks
 Exhausted, judge! his charge, the crazy town,
 Just managed to be hindered crashing
 down—
 His last sound troops ranged—care observed to post
 His best of the maimed soldiers innermost—
 So much was plain enough, but somehow struck
 Him not before. And now with this strange luck
 Of Tito's news, rewarding his address
 So well, what thought he of?—how the success
 With Friedrich's rescript there, would either hush
 Old Ecelin's scruples, bring the manly flush
 To his young son's white cheek, or, last, exempt
 Himself from telling what there was to tempt?
 No: that this minstrel was Romano's last Servant—himself the first! Could he contrast
 The whole!—that minstrel's thirty years just spent
 In doing nought, their notablest event
 This morning's journey hither, as I told—
 Who yet was lean, outworn and really old,
 A stammering awkward man that scarce dared raise
 His eye before the magisterial gaze—
 And Salinguerra with his fears and hopes
 Of sixty years, his Emperors and Popes,
 Cares and contrivances, yet, you would say,
 'Twas a youth nonchalantly looked away
 Through the embrasure northward o'er the sick
 Expostulating trees—so agile, quick

And graceful turned the head on the broad chest

Encased in pliant steel, his constant vest,
Whence split the sun off in a spray of fire
Across the room ; and, loosened of its tire
Of steel, that head let breathe the comely
brown

Large massive locks discoloured as if a crown
Encircled them, so frayed the basnet¹ where
A sharp white line divided clean the hair ;
Glossy above, glossy below, it swept Curling and fine about a brow thus kept
Calm, laid coat upon coat, marble and sound :
This was the mystic mark the Tuscan found,
Mused of, turned over books about. Square-faced,

No lion more ; two vivid eyes, enchased
In hollows filled with many a shade and streak
Settling from the bold nose and bearded cheek.
Nor might the half-smile reach them that deformed

A lip supremely perfect else—unwarmed,
Unwidened, less or more ; indifferent
Whether on trees or men his thoughts were bent,
Thoughts rarely, after all, in trim and train
As now a period was fulfilled again :
Of such, a series made his life, compressed
In each, one story serving for the rest—
How his life-streams rolling arrived at last
At the barrier, whence, were it once overpast,
They would emerge, a river to the end,—
Gathered themselves up, paused, bade fate
befriend,

Took the leap, hung a minute at the height,
Then fell back to oblivion infinite :
Therefore he smiled. Beyond stretched garden-grounds

Where late the adversary, breaking bounds,
Had gained him an occasion, That above,
That eagle, testified he could improve Effectually. The Kaiser's symbol lay
Beside his rescript, a new badge by way
Of baldric ; while,—another thing that marred
Alike emprise, achievement and reward,—
Ecelin's missive was conspicuous too.

What past life did those flying thoughts pursue ?

As his, few names in Mantua half so old ;
But at Ferrara, where his sires enrolled
It latterly, the Adelardi spared
No pains to rival them : both factions shared
Ferrara, so that, counted out, 'twould yield
A product very like the city's shield,
Half black and white, or Ghibellin and Guelf
As after Salinguerra styled himself
And Este who, till Marchesalla died,
(Last of the Adelardi)—never tried
His fortune there : with Marchesalla's child Would pass,—could Blacks and Whites be reconciled

And young Taurello wed Linguetta,—wealth
And sway to a sole grasp. Each treats by stealth

Already : when the Guelfs, the Ravennese
Arrive, assault the Pietro quarter, seize Linguetta, and are gone ! Men's first dismay
Abated somewhat, hurries down, to lay
The after indignation, Boniface,
This Richard's father. “ Learn the full disgrace

“ Averted, ere you blame us Guelfs, who rate
“ Your Salinguerra, your sole potentate
“ That might have been, 'mongst Este's valvassors—

“ Ay, Azzo's—who, not privy to, abhors
“ Our step ; but we were zealous.” Azzo then
To do with ! Straight a meeting of old men :
“ Old Salinguerra dead, his heir a boy,
“ What if we change our ruler and decoy
“ The Lombard Eagle of the azure sphere
“ With Italy to build in, fix him here,
“ Settle the city's troubles in a trice ?

“ For private wrong, let public good suffice !”
In fine, young Salinguerra's staunchest friends
Talked of the townsmen making him amends,
Gave him a goshawk, and affirmed there was Rare sport, one morning, over the green grass
A mile or so. He sauntered through the plain,
Was restless, fell to thinking, turned again
In time for Azzo's entry with the bride ;
Count Boniface rode smirking at their side ;
“ She brings him half Ferrara,” whispers flew,
“ And all Ancona ! If the stripling knew !”

Anon the stripling was in Sicily
Where Heinrich ruled in right of Constance ; he

Was gracious nor his guest incapable ;
 Each understood the other. So it fell,
 One Spring, when Azzo, thoroughly at ease,
 Had near forgotten by what precise degrees
 He crept at first to such a downy seat,
 The Count trudged over in a special heat
 To bid him of God's love dislodge from each
 Of Salinguerra's palaces,—a breach
 Might yawn else, not so readily to shut,
 For who was just arrived at Mantua but
 The youngster, sword on thigh and tuft on chin,
 With tokens for Celano, Ecelin,
 Pistore, and the like ! Next news,—no whit
 Do any of Ferrara's domes befit
 His wife of Heinrich's very blood : a band
 Of foreigners assemble, understand
 Garden-constructing, level and surround,
 Build up and bury in. A last news crowned
 The consternation : since his infant's birth,
 He only waits they end his wondrous girth
 Of trees that link San Pietro with Tomà,
 To visit Mantua. When the Podestà
 Ecelin, at Vicenza, called his friend
 Taurello thither, what could be their end
 But to restore the Ghibellins' late Head,
 The Kaiser helping ? He with most to dread
 From vengeance and reprisal, Azzo, there
 With Boniface beforehand, as aware
 Of plots in progress, gave alarm, expelled
 Both plotters : but the Guelfs in triumph yelled
 Too hastily. The burning and the flight,
 And how Taurello, occupied that night
 With Ecelin, lost wife and son, I told :
 —Not how he bore the blow, retained his hold,
 Got friends safe through, left enemies the worst
 O' the fray, and hardly seemed to care at first :
 But afterward men heard not constantly
 Of Salinguerra's House so sure to be !
 Though Azzo simply gained by the event
 A shifting of his plagues—the first, content
 To fall behind the second and estrange
 So far his nature, suffer such a change
 That in Romano sought he wife and child,
 And for Romano's sake seemed reconciled
 To losing individual life, which shrunk
 As the other prospered — mortised in his trunk ;

Like a dwarf palm which wanton Arabs foil
 Of bearing its own proper wine and oil,
 By grafting into it the stranger-vine,
 Which sucks its heart out, sly and serpentine,
 Till forth one vine-palm feathers to the root,
 And red drops moisten the insipid fruit.
 Once Adelaide set on,—the subtle mate
 Of the weak soldier, urged to emulate
 The Church's valiant women deed for deed,
 And paragon her namesake, win the meed
 O' the great Matilda,—soon they overbore
 The rest of Lombardy,—not as before
 By an instinctive truculence, but patched
 The Kaiser's strategy until it matched
 The Pontiff's, sought old ends by novel means.
 “ Only, why is it Salinguerra screens
 “ Himself behind Romano ?—him we bade “ Enjoy our shine i' the front, not seek the shade ! ”
 —Asked Heinrich, somewhat of the tardiest
 To comprehend. Nor Philip acquiesced
 At once in the arrangement ; reasoned, plied
 His friend with offers of another bride,
 A statelier function—fruitlessly : 'twas plain
 Taurello through some weakness must remain Obscure. And Otho, free to judge of both —Ecelin the unready, harsh and loth,
 And this more plausible and facile wight
 With every point a-sparkle—chose the right,
 Admiring how his predecessors harped
 On the wrong man : “ thus,” quoth he, “ wits are warped
 “ By outsides ! ” Carelessly, meanwhile, his
 life
 Suffered its many turns of peace and strife
 In many lands—you hardly could surprise
 The man ; who shamed Sordello (recognize !)
 In this as much beside, that, unconcerned
 What qualities were natural or earned,
 With no ideal of graces, as they came
 He took them, singularly well the same—
 Speaking the Greek's own language, just because
 Your Greek eludes you, leave the least of flaws
 In contracts with him ; while, since Arab lore
 Holds the stars' secret—take one trouble more
 And master it ! 'Tis done, and now deter
 Who may the Tuscan, once Jove trined for her,

A liegeman's challenge, straight he too was calmed :

As if his hate could bear to lie embalmed,
Bricked up, the moody Pharaoh, and survive
All intermediate crumbings, to arrive
At earth's catastrophe—'twas Este's crash
Not Azzo's he demanded, so, no rash
Procedure ! Este's true antagonist
Rose out of Ecelin : all voices whist,
All eyes were sharpened, wits predicted. He
'Twas, leaned in the embrasure absently,
Amused with his own efforts, now, to trace
With his steel-sheathed forefinger Friedrich's
face

I' the dust : but as the trees waved sere, his
smile

Deepened, and words expressed its thought erewhile.

"Ay, fairly housed at last, my old com-
peer ?

"That we should stick together, all the year

"I kept Vicenza !—How old Boniface,

"Old Azzo caught us in its market-place,

"He by that pillar, I at this,—caught each

"In mid swing, more than fury of his speech,

"Egging the rabble on to disavow

"Allegiance to their Marquis—Bacchus, how "They boasted ! Ecelin must turn their drudge,

"Nor, if released, will Salinguerra grudge

"Paying arrears of tribute due long since—

"Bacchus ! My man could promise then,
nor wince :

"The bones-and-muscles ! Sound of wind and limb,

"Spoke he the set excuse I framed for him :

"And now he sits me, slaving and mute,

"Intent on chafing each starved purple foot

"Benumbed past aching with the altar slab :

"Will no vein throb there when some monk shall blab

"Spitefully to the circle of bald scalps,

"'Friedrich's affirmed to be our side the Alps'

"—Eh, brother Lactance, brother Anaclet ?

"Sworn to abjure the world, its fume and fret,

"God's own now ? Drop the dormitory bar,

"Enfold the scanty grey serge scapular¹

"Twice o'er the cowl to muffle memories out !

"So ! But the midnight whisper turns a shout,

"Eyes wink, mouths open, pulses circulate

"In the stone walls : the past, the world you hate

"Is with you, ambush, open field—or see

"The surging flame—we fire Vicenza—glee !

"Follow, let Pilio and Bernardo chafe !

"Bring up the Mantuans — through San Biagio—safe !

"Ah, the mad people waken ? Ah, they writhe

"And reach us ? If they block the gate ?
No tithe

"Can pass — keep back, you Bassanese !
The edge,

"Use the edge—shear, thrust, hew, melt down the wedge,

"Let out the black of those black upturned
eyes !

"Hell—are they sprinkling fire too ? The blood fries

"And hisses on your brass gloves as they tear

"Those upturned faces choking with despair.

"Brave ! Slidder through the reeking gate !
'How now ?

"'You six had charge of her ?' And then the vow

"Comes, and the foam spirts, hair's plucked,
till one shriek

"(I hear it) and you fling—you cannot speak—

"Your gold-flowered basnet to a man who haled

"The Adelaide he dared scarce view unveiled

"This morn, naked across the fire : how crown

"The archer that exhausted lays you down

"Your infant, smiling at the flame, and dies ?

"While one, while mine . . .

"Bacchus ! I think there lies

"More than one corpse there" (and he paced the room)

"—Another cinder somewhere : 'twas my doom

"Beside, my doom! If Adelaide is dead,
 "I live the same, this Azzo lives instead
 "Of that to me, and we pull, any how,
 "Este into a heap: the matter's now
 "At the true juncture slipping us so oft.
 "Ay, Heinrich died and Otho, please you, doffed
 "His crown at such a juncture! Still, if holds
 "Our Friedrich's purpose, if this chain enfolds
 "The neck of . . . who but this same Ecelin
 "That must recoil when the best days begin!
 "Recoil? that's nought; if the recoiler
 leaves
 "His name for me to fight with, no one grieves:
 "But he must interfere, forsooth, unlock
 "His cloister to become my stumbling-block
 "Just as of old! Ay, ay, there 'tis again—
 "The land's inevitable Head—explain
 "The reverences that subject us! Count
 "These Ecelins now! Not to say as fount,
 "Originating power of thought,—from twelve
 "That drop i' the trenches they joined hands to delve,
 "Six shall surpass him, but . . . why men must twine
 "Somehow with something! Ecelin's a fine
 "Clear name! 'Twere simpler, doubtless, twine with me
 "At once: our cloistered friend's capacity
 "Was of a sort! I had to share myself
 "In fifty portions, like an o'ertasked elf
 "That's forced illumine in fifty points the vast "Rare vapour he's environed by. At last
 "My strengths, though sorely frittered, e'en converge
 "And crown . . . no, Bacchus, they have yet to urge
 "The man be crowned!
 "That aloe, an he durst,
 "Would climb! Just such a bloated sprawler first
 "I noted in Messina's castle-court
 "The day I came, when Heinrich asked in sport
 "If I would pledge my faith to win him back
 "His right in Lombardy: 'for, once bid pack

" 'Marauders,' he continued, 'in my stead
 " 'You rule, Taurello!' and upon this head
 " Laid the silk glove of Constance—I see her
 " Too, mantled head to foot in miniver,
 " Retrude following!
 "I am absolved
 " From further toil: the empery devolved
 " On me, 'twas Tito's word: I have to lay
 " For once my plan, pursue my plan my way,
 " Prompt nobody, and render an account
 " Taurello to Taurello! Nay, I mount
 " To Friedrich: he conceives the post I kept,
 " —Who did true service, able or inept,
 " Who's worthy guerdon, Ecelin or I.
 " Me guerdoned, counsel follows: would he vie
 " With the Pope really? Azzo, Boniface
 " Compose a right-arm Hohenstauffen's race
 " Must break ere govern Lombardy. I point
 " How easy 'twere to twist, once out of joint,
 " The socket from the bone: my Azzo's stare
 " Meanwhile! for I, this idle strap to wear,
 " Shall—fret myself abundantly, what end
 " To serve? There's left me twenty years to spend
 " —How better than my old way? Had I one
 " Who laboured to o'erthrow my work—a son
 " Hatching with Azzo superb treachery,
 " To root my pines up and then poison me,
 " Suppose—'twere worth while frustrate that!
 Beside
 " Another life's ordained me: the world's tide
 " Rolls, and what hope of parting from the press
 " Of waves, a single wave though weariness
 " Gently lifted aside, laid upon shore?
 " My life must be lived out in foam and roar,
 " No question. Fifty years the province held
 " Taurello; troubles raised, and troubles quelled,
 " He in the midst—who leaves this quaint stone place,
 " These trees a year or two, then not a trace " Of him! How obtain hold, fetter men's tongues
 " Like this poor minstrel with the foolish songs—

" To which, despite our bustle, he is linked ?
 " —Flowers one may teaze, that never grow extinct.
 " Ay, that patch, surely, green as ever, where
 " I set Her Moorish lentisk, by the stair,
 " To overawe the aloes ; and we trod
 " Those flowers, how call you such?—into the sod ;
 " A stately foreigner—a world of pain
 " To make it thrive, arrest rough winds—all
 vain !
 " It would decline ; these would not be destroyed :
 " And now, where is it ? where can you avoid " The flowers ? I frighten children twenty years
 " Longer !—which way, too, Ecelin appears " To thwart me, for his son's besotted youth
 " Gives promise of the proper tiger-tooth :
 " They feel it at Vicenza ! Fate, fate, fate,
 " My fine Taurello ! Go you, promulgate
 " Friedrich's decree, and here's shall aggran-dise
 " Young Ecelin—your Prefect's badge ! a prize
 " Too precious, certainly.
 " How now ? Compete " With my old comrade ? shuffle from their seat
 " His children ? Paltry dealing ! Don't I
 know
 " Ecelin ? now, I think, and years ago !
 " What's changed—the weakness ? did not I compound
 " For that, and undertake to keep him sound
 " Despite it ? Here's Taurello hankering
 " After a boy's preferment—this plaything
 " To carry, Bacchus ! " And he laughed.

Remark

Why schemes wherein cold-blooded men embark

Prosper, when your enthusiastic sort
Fail : while these last are ever stopping short—
(So much they should—so little they can do !)
The careless tribe see nothing to pursue
If they desist ; meantime their scheme succeeds.

Thoughts were caprices in the course of deeds

Methodic with Taurello ; so, he turned,—
 Enough amused by fancies fairly earned
 Of Este's horror-struck submitted neck,
 And Richard, the cowed braggart, at his beck,—
 To his own petty but immediate doubt
 If he could pacify the League without Conceding Richard ; just to this was brought
 That interval of vain discursive thought !
 As, shall I say, some Ethiop, past pursuit
 Of all enslavers, dips a shackled foot
 Burnt to the blood, into the drowsy black
 Enormous watercourse which guides him back
 To his own tribe again, where he is king ;
 And laughs because he guesses, numbering
 The yellower poison-wattles on the pouch
 Of the first lizard wrested from its couch Under the slime (whose skin, the while, he strips
 To cure his nostril with, and festered lips,
 And eyeballs bloodshot through the desert-blast)
 That he has reached its boundary, at last May breathe ;—thinks o'er enchantments of the South
 Sovereign to plague his enemies, their mouth, Eyes, nails, and hair ; but, these enchantments tried
 In fancy, puts them soberly aside
 For truth, projects a cool return with friends,
 The likelihood of winning mere amends
 Ere long ; thinks that, takes comfort silently,
 Then, from the river's brink, his wrongs and he,
 Hugging revenge close to their hearts, are soon
 Off-striding for the Mountains of the Moon.
 Midnight : the watcher nodded on his spear,
 Since clouds dispersing left a passage clear
 For any meagre and discoloured moon
 To venture forth ; and such was peering soon
 Above the harassed city—her close lanes
 Closer, not half so tapering her fanes,
 As though she shrunk into herself to keep
 What little life was saved, more safely. Heap
 By heap the watch-fires mouldered, and beside
 The blackest spoke Sordello and replied
 Palma with none to listen. "'Tis your cause :
 " What makes a Ghibellin ? There should be laws—

Great act. Rome, dead, forgotten, lived at least

Within that brain, though to a vulgar priest
And a vile stranger,—two not worth a slave
Of Rome's, Pope John, King Otho,—fortune
gave

The rule there : so, Crescentius, haply dressed
In white, called Roman Consul for a jest,
Taking the people at their word, forth stepped
As upon Brutus' heel, nor ever kept
Rome waiting,—stood erect, and from his brain
Gave Rome out on its ancient place again,
Ay, bade proceed with Brutus' Rome, Kings styled

Themselves mere citizens of, and, beguiled
Into great thoughts thereby, would choose the gem

Out of a lapfull, spoil their diadem
—The Senate's cypher was so hard to scratch !
He flashes like a phanal, all men catch
The flame, Rome's just accomplished ! when returned

Otho, with John, the Consul's step had spurned,
And Hugo Lord of Este, to redress
The wrongs of each. Crescentius in the stress
Of adverse fortune bent. "They crucified
"Their Consul in the Forum ; and abide "E'er since such slaves at Rome, that I—(for I
"Was once a brown-sleeve brother, merrily
"Appointed)—I had option to keep wife
"Or keep brown sleeves, and managed in
the strife
"Lose both. A song of Rome !"

And Rome, indeed,
Robed at Goito in fantastic weed,
The Mother-City of his Mantuan days,
Looked an established point of light whence rays

Traversed the world ; for, all the clustered homes

Beside of men, seemed bent on being Romes
In their degree ; the question was, how each
Should most resemble Rome, clean out of reach.
Nor, of the Two, did either principle
Struggle to change, but to possess Rome,—still Guelf Rome or Ghibellin Rome.

Let Rome advance !
Rome, as she struck Sordello's ignorance—

How could he doubt one moment ? Rome's
the Cause !

Rome of the Pandects, all the world's new laws—

Of the Capitol, of Castle Angelo ;
New structures, that inordinately glow,
Subdued, brought back to harmony, made ripe
By many a relic of the archetype
Extant for wonder ; every upstart church
That hoped to leave old temples in the lurch,
Corrected by the Theatre forlorn
That,—as a mundane shell, its world late
born,—

Lay and o'ershadowed it. These hints combined,

Rome typifies the scheme to put mankind
Once more in full possession of their rights.
"Let us have Rome again ! On me it lights
"To build up Rome—on me, the first and last:
"For such a future was endured the past !"
And thus, in the grey twilight, forth he sprung
To give his thought consistency among
The very People—let their facts avail
Finish the dream grown from the archer's tale.

BOOK THE FIFTH.

Is it the same Sordello in the dusk
As at the dawn ?—merely a perished husk
Now, that arose a power fit to build Up Rome again ? The proud conception chilled

So soon ? Ay, watch that latest dream of thine

—A Rome indebted to no Palatine—
Drop arch by arch, Sordello ! Art possessed
Of thy wish now, rewarded for thy quest
To-day among Ferrara's squalid sons ?
Are this and this and this the shining ones
Meet for the Shining City ? Sooth to say,
Your favoured tenantry pursue their way
After a fashion ! This companion slips
On the smooth causeway, t'other blinkard trips
At his mooned sandal. "Leave to lead the brawls

"Here i' the atria ?" No, friend ! He that sprawls

On aught but a stibadium¹ . . . what his dues

Who puts the lustral vase to such an use?
Oh, huddle up the day's disasters! March,
Ye runagates, and drop thou, arch by arch,
Rome!

Yet before they quite disband—a whim—
Study mere shelter, now, for him, and him,
Nay, even the worst,—just house them!
Any cave
Suffices: throw out earth! A loophole?
Brave!

They ask to feel the sun shine, see the grass
Grow, hear the larks sing? Dead art thou,
alas,

And I am dead! But here's our son excels
At hurdle-weaving any Scythian, fells
Oak and devises rafters, dreams and shapes
His dream into a door-post, just escapes
The mystery of hinges. Lie we both Perdue another age. The goodly growth Of brick and stone! Our building-pelt was rough,

But that descendant's garb suits well enough
A portico-contriver. Speed the years—
What's time to us? At last, a city rears
Itself! nay, enter—what's the grave to us?
Lo, our forlorn acquaintance carry thus
The head! Successively sewer, forum, cirque—

Last age, an aqueduct was counted work,
But now they tire the artificer upon Blank alabaster, black obsidion,²
—Careful, Jove's face be duly fulgurant,
And mother Venus' kiss-creased nipples pant

Back into pristine pulpiness, ere fixed
Above the baths. What difference betwixt This Rome and ours—resemblance what, between

That scurvy dumb-show and this pageant sheen—

These Romans and our rabble? Use thy wit!

The work marched: step by step,—a workman fit

² A kind of glass (volcanic).

Took each, nor too fit,—to one task, one
time,—

No leaping o'er the petty to the prime,
When just the substituting osier lithe
For brittle bulrush, sound wood for soft withe,

To further loam-and-roughcast-work a stage,—
Exacts an architect, exacts an age
No tables of the Mauritanian tree
For men whose maple log's their luxury!
That way was Rome built. "Better" (say you) "merge

"At once all workmen in the demiurge,
"All epochs in a lifetime, every task
"In one!" So should the sudden city bask
I' the day—while those we'd feast there, want the knack

Of keeping fresh-chalked gowns from speck and brack,

Distinguish not rare peacock from vile swan,
Nor Mareotic juice from Cæcuban.

"Enough of Rome! 'Twas happy to conceive

"Rome on a sudden, nor shall fate bereave

"Me of that credit: for the rest, her spite

"Is an old story—serves my folly right

"By adding yet another to the dull

"List of abortions—things proved beautiful

"Could they be done, Sordello cannot do."

He sat upon the terrace, plucked and threw
The powdery aloe-cusps away, saw shift
Rome's walls, and drop arch after arch, and drift

Mist-like afar those pillars of all stripe,
Mounds of all majesty. "Thou archetype,
"Last of my dreams and loveliest, depart!"

And then a low voice wound into his heart:

"Sordello!" (low as some old Pythoness

Conceding to a Lydian King's distress

The cause of his long error—one mistake

Of her past oracle) "Sordello, wake!

"God has conceded two sights to a man—

"One, of men's whole work, time's completed plan,

"The other, of the minute's work, man's
first

"Step to the plan's completeness: what's dispersed

" Save hope of that supreme step which,
 descried
 " Earliest, was meant still to remain untried
 " Only to give you heart to take your own
 " Step, and there stay, leaving the rest alone?
 " Where is the vanity? Why count as one " The first step, with the last step? What is gone
 " Except Rome's aëry magnificence,
 " That last step you'd take first?—an evidence
 " You were God: be man now! Let those glances fall!
 " The basis, the beginning step of all,
 " Which proves you just a man—is that gone
 too?
 " Pity to disconcert one versed as you
 " In fate's ill-nature! but its full extent
 " Eludes Sordello, even: the veil rent,
 " Read the black writing—that collective
 man
 " Outstrips the individual. Who began " The acknowledged greatnesses? Ay, your own art
 " Shall serve us: put the poet's mimes apart—
 " Close with the poet's self, and lo, a dim
 " Yet too plain form divides itself from him!
 " Alcamo's song enmeshes the lulled Isle,
 " Woven into the echoes left erewhile
 " By Nina, one soft web of song: no more " Turning his name, then, flower-like o'er and o'er!
 " An elder poet in the younger's place;
 " Nina's the strength, but Alcamo's the grace:
 " Each neutralizes each then! Search your fill;
 " You get no whole and perfect Poet—still
 " New Ninas, Alcamos, till time's mid-night
 " Shrouds all—or better say, the shutting light
 " Of a forgotten yesterday. Dissect
 " Every ideal workman—(to reject
 " In favour of your fearful ignorance
 " The thousand phantasms eager to advance,
 " And point you but to those within your reach)—
 " Were you the first who brought — (in modern speech)
 " The Multitude to be materialized?
 " That loose eternal unrest—who devised

" An apparition i' the midst? The rout
 " Was checked, a breathless ring was formed
 about
 " That sudden flower: get round at any risk
 " The gold-rough pointel, silver-blazing disk

" Or two, of Knowledge, part by Strength and
 part
 " By Knowledge ! Then, indeed, perchance may start
 " Sordello on his race—would time divulge
 " Such secrets ! If one step's awry, one bulge
 " Calls for correction by a step we thought
 " Got over long since, why, till that is wrought,
 " No progress ! And the scaffold in its turn
 " Becomes, its service o'er, a thing to spurn.
 " Meanwhile, if your half-dozen years of life
 " In store dispose you to forego the strife,
 " Who takes exception ? Only bear in mind
 " Ferrara's reached, Goito's left behind :
 " As you then were, as half yourself, desist !
 "—The warrior-part of you may, an it list,
 " Finding real faulchions difficult to poise,
 " Fling them afar and taste the cream of joys
 " By wielding such in fancy,—what is bard
 " Of you may spurn the vehicle that marred
 " Elys so much, and in free fancy glut
 " His sense, yet write no verses—you have but
 " To please yourself for law, and once could

 these

 " Out of a thousand helps, just one or two
 " Can be accomplished presently : but flinch
 " From these (as from the faulchion, raised an inch,
 " Elys, described a couplet) and make proof
 " Of fancy,—then, while one half lolls aloof top—

 " See if, for that, your other half will stop
 " A tear, begin a smile ! The rabble's woes,
 " Ludicrous in their patience as they chose " To sit about their town and quietly
 " Be slaughtered,—the poor reckless soldiery,

" With their ignoble rhymes on Richard, how
 " " Polt-foot,' sang they, ' was in a pitfall now,'
 " Cheering each other from the engine-mounts,—
 " That crippled spawling idiot who recounts
 " How, lopped of limbs, he lay, stupid as stone,
 " Till the pains crept from out him one by one,
 " And wriggles round the archers on his head
 " To earn a morsel of their chestnut bread,—
 " And Cino, always in the self-same place
 " Weeping ; beside that other wretch's case,
 " Eyepits to ear, one gangrene since he plied

 From the pine barrier)—" What if, now the

“Upon the last ! Since talking is your trade,
 “Fail ! then”—

“No—no—which latest chance secure !”

Leaped up and cried Sordello: “this made sure,
 “The past were yet redeemable ; its work
 “Was—help the Guelfs, whom I, howe’er it irk,
 “Thus help !” He shook the foolish aloehaulm

Out of his doublet, paused, proceeded calm
 To the appointed presence. The large head Turned on its socket ; “And your spokesman,” said

The large voice, “is Elcorte’s happy sprout?
 “Few such”—(so finishing a speech no doubt Addressed to Palma, silent at his side)

“—My sober councils have diversified.

“Elcorte’s son ! good : forward as you may,
 “Our lady’s minstrel with so much to say !”

The hesitating sunset floated back,
 Rosily traversed in the wonted track

The chamber, from the lattice o’er the girth
 Of pines, to the huge eagle blacked in earth
 Opposite,—outlined sudden, spur to crest,
 That solid Salinguerra, and caressed
 Palma’s contour ; ’twas day looped back night’s pall ;

Sordello had a chance left spite of all.

And much he made of the convincing
 speech

Meant to compensate for the past and reach
 Through his youth’s daybreak of unprofit, quite

To his noon’s labour, so proceed till night
 Leisurely ! The great argument to bind Taurello with the Guelf Cause, body and
 mind,

—Came the consummate rhetoric to that ?
 Yet most Sordello’s argument dropped flat
 Through his accustomed fault of breaking yoke, Disjoining him who felt from him who spoke.
 Was’t not a touching incident—so prompt
 A rendering the world its just accmpt, Once proved its debtor ? Who’d suppose,
 before

This proof, that he, Goito’s god of yore,

At duty’s instance could demean himself
 So memorably, dwindle to a Guelf ?
 Be sure, in such delicious flattery steeped,
 His inmost self at the out-portion peeped,
 Thus occupied ; then stole a glance at those Appealed to, curious if her colour rose
 Or his lip moved, while he discreetly urged
 The need of Lombardy becoming purged
 At soonest of her barons ; the poor part
 Abandoned thus, missing the blood at heart
 And spirit in brain, unseasonably off Elsewhere ! But, though his speech was worthy scoff,

Good-humoured Salinguerra, famed for tact
 And tongue, who, careless of his phrase, ne’er lacked

The right phrase, and harangued Honorius
 dumb

At his accession,—looked as all fell plumb
 To purpose and himself found interest
 In every point his new instructor pressed —Left playing with the rescript’s white wax seal

To scrutinize Sordello head and heel.
 He means to yield assent sure ? No, alas !
 All he replied was, “What, it comes to pass
 “That poesy, sooner than politics, “Makes fade young hair ?” To think such speech could fix

Taurello !

Then a flash of bitter truth :

So fantasies could break and fritter youth
 That he had long ago lost earnestness,
 Lost will to work, lost power to even express
 The need of working ! Earth was turned a grave :

No more occasions now, though he should crave

Just one, in right of superhuman toil,
 To do what was undone, repair such spoil,
 Alter the past—nothing would give the chance !
 Not that he was to die ; he saw askance
 Protract the ignominious years beyond
 To dream in—time to hope and time despond,
 Remember and forget, be sad, rejoice
 As saved a trouble ; he might, at his choice,
 One way or other, idle life out, drop
 No few smooth verses by the way—for prop,

A thyrsus, these sad people, all the same,
Should pick up, and set store by,—far from
blame,

Plant o'er his hearse, convinced his better
part

Survived him. "Rather tear men out the
heart

"O' the truth!"—Sordello muttered, and renewed

His propositions for the Multitude.

But Salinguerra, who at this attack
Had thrown great breast and ruffling corslet
back

To hear the better, smilingly resumed
His task; beneath, the carroch's warning boomed;

He must decide with Tito; courteously
He turned then, even seeming to agree
With his admonisher—"Assist the Pope,
"Extend Guelf domination, fill the scope
"O' the Church, thus based on All, by All,
for All—

"Change Secular to Evangelical"—
Echoing his very sentence: all seemed lost,
When suddenly he looked up, laughingly almost,

To Palma: "This opinion of your friend's—
"For instance, would it answer Palma's ends?

"Best, were it not, turn Guelf, submit our Strength"—

(Here he drew out his baldric to its length) —"To the Pope's Knowledge—let our captive slip,

"Wide to the walls throw ope our gates, equip

"Azzo with . . . what I hold here! Who'll subscribe

"To a trite censure of the minstrel tribe
"Henceforward? or pronounce, as Heinrich used,

"'Spear-heads for battle, burr-heads for the joust!'

"—When Constance, for his couplets, would promote

"Alcarno, from a parti-coloured coat,
"To holding her lord's stirrup in the wars.

"Not that I see where couplet-making jars

"With common sense: at Mantua I had borne
"This chanted, better than their most forlorn
"Of bull-baits,—that's indisputable!"

Brave!

Whom vanity nigh slew, contempt shall save!
All's at an end: a Troubadour suppose Mankind will class him with their friends or foes?

A puny uncouth ailing vassal think
The world and him bound in some special link?
Abrupt the visionary tether burst.

What were rewarded here, or what amerced
If a poor drudge, solicitous to dream
Deservingly, got tangled by his theme

So far as to conceit the knack or gift
Or whatso'er it be, of verse, might lift
The globe, a lever like the hand and head

Of—"Men of Action," as the Jongleurs said,
—"The Great Men," in the people's dialect?

And not a moment did this scorn affect Sordello: scorn the poet? They, for once,
Asking "what was," obtained a full response.

Bid Naddo think at Mantua—he had but
To look into his promptuary, put Finger on a set thought in a set speech:

But was Sordello fitted thus for each
Conjecture? Nowise; since within his soul,
Perception brooded unexpressed and whole.

A healthy spirit like a healthy frame
Craves aliment in plenty—all the same,
Changes, assimilates its aliment.

Perceived Sordello, on a truth intent?
Next day no formularies more you saw
Than figs or olives in a sated maw.

'Tis Knowledge, whither such perceptions tend;

They lose themselves in that, means to an end,
The many old producing some one new,
A last unlike the first. If lies are true,

The Caliph's wheel-work man¹ of brass receives

A meal, munched millet grains and lettuce
leaves

Together in his stomach rattle loose;
You find them perfect next day to produce:

 "My past career's outrageous vanity,

 "Now I first estimate the boon of life,
 "If death might win compliance—sure, this

 My poor Sordello ! what may we extort
 By this, I wonder ? Palma's lighted eyes
 Turned to Taurello who, long past surprise, Began, "You love him—what you'd say at large
 "Let me say briefly. First, your father's charge
 "To me, his friend, peruse : I guessed indeed
 "You were no stranger to the course decreed
 "He bids me leave his children to the saints :
 "As for a certain project, he acquaints

"The Pope with that, and offers him the best
 "Of your possessions to permit the rest
 "Go peaceably—to Ecelin, a stripe
 "Of soil the cursed Vicentines will gripe,
 "—To Alberic, a patch the Trevisan
 "Clutches already; extricate, who can,
 "Treville, Villarazzi, Puissolo,
 "Loria and Cartiglione!—all must go,
 "And with them go my hopes. 'Tis lost,
 then! Lost
 "This eve, our crisis, and some pains it cost
 "Procuring; thirty years—as good I'd spent
 "Like our admonisher! But each his bent
 "Pursues: no question, one might live absurd
 "Oneself this while, by deed as he by word
 "Persisting to obtrude an influence where
 "'Tis made account of, much as . . . nay, you fare
 "With twice the fortune, youngster!—I submit,
 "Happy to parallel my waste of wit
 "With the renowned Sordello's: you decide
 "A course for me. Romano may abide
 "Romano,—Bacchus! After all, what dearth
 "Of Ecelins and Alberics on earth?
 "Say there's a prize in prospect, must disgrace
 "Betide competitors, unless they style
 "Themselves Romano? Were it worth my
 while
 "To try my own luck! But an obscure place
 "Suits me—there wants a youth to bustle,
 stalk
 "And attitudinize—some fight, more talk,
 "Most flaunting badges—how, I might make clear
 "Since Friedrich's very purposes lie here
 "—Here, pity they are like to lie! For me,
 "With station fixed unceremoniously
 "Long since, small use contesting; I am but
 "The liegeman—you are born the lieges: shut
 "That gentle mouth now! or resume your kin
 "In your sweet self; were Palma Ecelin
 "For me to work with! Could that neck endure
 "This bauble for a cumbrous garniture,
 "She should . . . or might one bear it for her? Stay—
 "I have not been so flattered many a day

"As by your pale friend—Bacchus! The least help
 "Would lick the hind's fawn to a lion's whelp:
 "His neck is broad enough—a ready tongue
 "Beside: too writhled—but, the main thing, young—
 "I could . . . why, look ye!"
 And the badge was thrown Across Sordello's neck: "This badge alone
 "Makes you Romano's Head—becomes superb
 "On your bare neck, which would, on mine, disturb
 "The pauldron," said Taurello. A mad act,
 Nor even dreamed about before—in fact,
 Not when his sportive arm rose for the nonce—
 But he had dallied overmuch, this once,
 With power: the thing was done, and he,
 aware
 The thing was done, proceeded to declare—
 (So like a nature made to serve, excel
 In serving, only feel by service well!)
 —That he would make Sordello that and more.
 "As good a scheme as any. What's to pore
 "At in my face?" he asked—"ponder it stead
 "This piece of news; you are Romano's
 Head!
 "One cannot slacken pace so near the goal,
 "Suffer my Azzo to escape heart-whole
 "This time! For you there's Palma to espouse—
 "For me, one crowning trouble ere I house
 "Like my compeer."
 On which ensued a strange
 And solemn visitation; there came change
 O'er every one of them; each looked on each:
 Up in the midst a truth grew, without speech.
 And when the giddiness sank and the haze
 Subsided, they were sitting, no amaze,
 Sordello with the baldric on, his sire
 Silent, though his proportions seemed aspire
 Momently; and, interpreting the thrill,—
 Night at its ebb,—Palma was found there still Relating somewhat Adelaide confessed
 A year ago, while dying on her breast,—
 Of a contrivance, that Vicenza night
 When Ecelin had birth. "Their convoy's
 flight,

“Himself, reserved on purpose, had not grown

“Old, not too old—’twas best they kept alone

“Till now, and never idly met till now ;”

—Then, in the same breath, told Sordello
how

All intimations of this eve’s event

Were lies, for Friedrich must advance to Trent,

Thence to Verona, then to Rome, there stop,

Tumble the Church down, institute a-top

The Alps a Prefecture of Lombardy :

—“That’s now ! — no prophesying what may be

“Anon, with a new monarch of the clime,

“Native of Gesi, passing his youth’s prime

“At Naples. Tito bids my choice decide

“On whom . . .”

“Embrace him, madman !” Palma cried,
Who through the laugh saw sweat-drops
burst apace,

And his lips blanching : he did not embrace
Sordello, but he laid Sordello’s hand
On his own eyes, mouth, forehead.

. Understand,

This while Sordello was becoming flushed
Out of his whiteness ; thoughts rushed, fancies rushed ;

He pressed his hand upon his head and signed Both should forbear him. “Nay, the best’s behind !”

Taurello laughed—not quite with the same
laugh :

“The truth is, thus we scatter, ay, like chaff

“These Guelfs, a despicable monk recoils

“From : nor expect a fickle Kaiser spoils

“Our triumph !—Friedrich ? Think you,
I intend

“Friedrich shall reap the fruits of blood I spend

“And brain I waste ? Think you, the people clap

“Their hands at my out-hewing this wild gap

“For any Friedrich to fill up ? ’Tis mine—

“That’s yours : I tell you, towards some such design

“Have I worked blindly, yes, and idly, yes,

“And for another, yes—but worked no less

“With instinct at my heart ; I else had swerved,

“While now—look round ! My cunning has preserved

“Samminiato—that’s a central place

“Secures us Florence, boy,—in Pisa’s case.

“By land as she by sea ; with Pisa ours,

“And Florence, and Pistoia, one devours

“The land at leisure ! Gloriously dispersed—

“Brescia, observe, Milan, Piacenza first

“That flanked us (ah, you know not !) in the March ;

“On these we pile, as keystone of our arch,

“Romagna and Bologna, whose first span

“Covered the Trentine and the Valsugan ;

“Sofia’s Egna by Bolgiano’s sure !” . . .

So he proceeded : half of all this, pure
Delusion, doubtless, nor the rest too true,
But what was undone he felt sure to do,
As ring by ring he wrung off, flung away
The pauldron-rings to give his sword-arm
play—

Need of the sword now ! That would soon adjust

Aught wrong at present ; to the sword in-
trust

Sordello’s whiteness, undersize : ’twas plain
He hardly rendered right to his own brain—
Like a brave hound, men educate to pride
Himself on speed or scent nor aught beside,
As though he could not, gift by gift, match
men !

Palma had listened patiently : but when
’Twas time expostulate, attempt withdraw
Taurello from his child, she, without awe
Took off his iron arms from, one by one, Sordello’s shrinking shoulders, and, that
done,

Made him avert his visage and relieve Sordello (you might see his corslet heave
The while) who, loose, rose—tried to speak,
then sank :

They left him in the chamber. All was blank.

And even reeling down the narrow stair

Taurello kept up, as though unaware

Palma was by to guide him, the old device

—Something of Milan—“how we muster thrice

"The Torriani's strength there ; all along
 "Our own Visconti cowed them"—thus the
 song

Continued even while she bade him stoop, Thrid somehow, by some glimpse of arrow-loop,

The turnings to the gallery below,
 Where he stopped short as Palma let him go.
 When he had sat in silence long enough
 Splintering the stone bench, braving a rebuff
 She stopped the truncheon ; only to commence

One of Sordello's poems, a pretence
 For speaking, some poor rhyme of "Elys' hair
 "And head that's sharp and perfect like a pear,

"So smooth and close are laid the few fine
 locks

"Stained like pale honey oozed from topmost
 rocks

"Sun-blanced the livelong summer"—from his worst

Performance, the Goito, as his first :
 And that at end, conceiving from the brow
 And open mouth no silence would serve now,
 Went on to say the whole world loved that
 man

And, for that matter, thought his face, tho'
 wan,
 Eclipsed the Count's—he sucking in each phrase

As if an angel spoke. The foolish praise
 Ended, he drew her on his mailed knees,
 made

Her face a framework with his hands, a shade,
 A crown, an aureole : there must she remain (Her little mouth compressed with smiling pain

As in his gloves she felt her tresses twitch)
 To get the best look at, in fittest niche Dispose his saint. That done, he kissed her
 brow,

—"Lauded her father for his treason now,"
 He told her, "only, how could one suspect
 "The wit in him?—whose clansman, recollect,

"Was ever Salinguerra—she, the same,
 "Romano and his lady—so, might claim

"To know all, as she should"—and thus begun

Schemes with a vengeance, schemes on schemes, "not one

"Fit to be told that foolish boy," he said,

"But only let Sordello Palma wed,

"—Then !"

'Twas a dim long narrow place at best :
 Midway a sole grate showed the fiery West,
 As shows its corpse the world's end some split tomb—

A gloom, a rift of fire, another gloom,
 Faced Palma—but at length Taurello set
 Her free ; the grating held one ragged jet
 Of fierce gold fire : he lifted her within
 The hollow underneath—how else begin
 Fate's second marvellous cycle, else renew
 The ages than with Palma plain in view ?
 Then paced the passage, hands clenched, head erect,

Pursuing his discourse ; a grand unchecked
 Monotony made out from his quick talk
 And the recurring noises of his walk ;
 —Somewhat too much like the o'ercharged assent

Of two resolved friends in one danger blent,
 Who hearten each the other against heart ;
 Boasting there's nought to care for, when,
 apart

The boaster, all's to care for. He, beside
 Some shape not visible, in power and pride Approached, out of the dark, ginglyly near,
 Nearer, passed close in the broad light, his ear Crimson, eyeballs suffused, temples full-
 fraught,

Just a snatch of the rapid speech you caught,
 And on he strode into the opposite dark,
 Till presently the harsh heel's turn, a spark
 I' the stone, and whirl of some loose embossed thong

That crashed against the angle aye so long
 After the last, punctual to an amount Of mailed great paces you could not but count,—

Prepared you for the pacing back again.
 And by the snatches you might ascertain
 That, Friedrich's Prefecture surmounted, left
 By this alone in Italy, they cleft

Asunder, crushed together, at command
Of none, were free to break up Hildebrand,
Rebuild, he and Sordello, Charlemagne—
But garnished, Strength with Knowledge,
“if we deign

“Accept that compromise and stoop to give “Rome law, the Cæsar’s Representative.”
Enough, that the illimitable flood
Of triumphs after triumphs, understood
In its faint reflux (you shall hear) sufficed
Young Ecelin for appanage, enticed
Him on till, these long quiet in their graves,
He found ’twas looked for that a whole life’s braves

Should somehow be made good; so, weak and worn,

Must stagger up at Milan, one grey morn
Of the to-come, and fight his latest fight.
But, Salinguerra’s prophecy at height—
He voluble with a raised arm and stiff,
A blaring voice, a blazing eye, as if He had our very Italy to keep
Or cast away, or gather in a heap
To garrison the better—ay, his word
Was, “run the cucumber into a gourd,
“Drive Trent upon Apulia”—at their pitch
Who spied the continents and islands which Grew mulberry leaves and sickles, in the map—

(Strange that three such confessions so should hap

To Palma, Dante spoke with in the clear
Amorous silence of the Swooning-sphere,— Cunizza, as he called her! Never ask
Of Palma more! She sat, knowing her task
Was done, the labour of it,—for, success
Concerned not Palma, passion’s votaress.)
Triumph at height, and thus Sordello crowned—

Above the passage suddenly a sound
Stops speech, stops walk: back shrinks
Taurello, bids

With large involuntary asking lids,
Palma interpret. “’Tis his own foot-stamp—“Your hand! His summons! Nay, this idle damp

“Befits not!” Out they two reeled dizzily.
“Visconti’s strong at Milan,” resumed he,

In the old, somewhat insignificant way—
(Was Palma wont, years afterward, to say)
As though the spirit’s flight, sustained thus far,
Dropped at that very instant.

Gone they are—

Palma, Taurello; Eglamor anon,
Ecelin,—only Naddo’s never gone!
—Labours, this moonrise, what the Master
meant:

“Is Squarcialupo speckled?—purulent,
“I’d say, but when was Providence put out?
“He carries somehow handily about
“His spite nor fouls himself!” Goito’s vines Stand like a cheat detected—stark rough lines,

The moon breaks through, a grey mean scale against

The vault where, this eve’s Maiden, thou remain’st

Like some fresh martyr, eyes fixed—who can tell?

As Heaven, now all’s at end, did not so well,
Spite of the faith and victory, to leave
Its virgin quite to death in the lone eve.

While the persisting hermit-bee . . . ha! wait
No longer: these in compass, forward fate!

BOOK THE SIXTH.

THE thought of Eglamor’s least like a
thought,

And yet a false one, was, “Man shrinks to
nought

“If matched with symbols of immensity;

“Must quail, forsooth, before a quiet sky

“Or sea, too little for their quietude:”

And, truly, somewhat in Sordello’s mood Confirmed its speciousness, while eve slow sank

Down the near terrace to the farther bank,

And only one spot left from out the night

Glimmered upon the river opposite—

A breadth of watery heaven like a bay,

A sky-like space of water, ray for ray,

And star for star, one richness where they
mixed

As this and that wing of an angel, fixed,

Somehow eludes us ever, still might be
 And is not ! Crave we gems ? No penury
 Of their material round us ! Pliant earth
 And plastic flame—what balks the mage his birth

—Jacinth in balls or lodestone by the block ?
 Flinders enrich the strand, veins swell the rock ;

Nought more ! Seek creatures ? Life's i'
 the tempest, thought Clothes the keen hill-top, mid-day woods are fraught

With fervours : human forms are well enough !
 But we had hoped, encouraged by the stuff
 Profuse at nature's pleasure, men beyond
 These actual men !—and thus are over-fond
 In arguing, from Good—the Best, from force
 Divided—force combined, an ocean's course
 From this our sea whose mere intestine pants
 Might seem at times sufficient to our wants.

External power ! If none be adequate,
 And he stand forth ordained (a prouder fate)
 Himself a law to his own sphere ? “ Remove “ All incompleteness ! ” for that law, that love ?
 Nay, if all other laws be feints,—truth veiled
 Helpfully to weak vision that had failed
 To grasp aught but its special want,—for lure,
 Embodied ? Stronger vision could endure
 The unbodied want : no part—the whole of truth !

The People were himself ; nor, by the ruth
 At their condition, was he less impelled
 To alter the discrepancy beheld,
 Than if, from the sound whole, a sickly part Subtracted were transformed, decked out with art,

Then palmed on him as alien woe—the Guelf
 To succour, proud that he forsook himself.
 All is himself ; all service, therefore, rates
 Alike, nor serving one part, immolates
 The rest : but all in time ! “ That lance of
 yours

“ Makes havoc soon with Malek and his Moors,

“ That buckler's lined with many a giant's beard

“ Ere long, our champion, be the lance up-reared,

“ The buckler wielded handsomely as now !
 “ But view your escort, bear in mind your vow,

“ Count the pale tracts of sand to pass ere
 that,

“ And, if you hope we struggle through the flat,

“ Put lance and buckler by ! Next half-month lacks

“ Mere sturdy exercise of mace and axe

“ To cleave this dismal brake of prickly-pear

“ Which bristling holds Cydippe by the hair, “ Lames barefoot Agathon : this felled, we'll try

“ The picturesque achievements by and by—

“ Next life ! ”

Ay, rally, mock, O People, urge Your claims !—for thus he ventured, to the verge,

Push a vain mummery which perchance distrust

Of his fast-slipping resolution thrust

Likewise : accordingly the Crowd—(as yet

He had unconsciously contrived forget

I' the whole, to dwell o' the points . . . one might assuage

The signal horrors easier than engage

With a dim vulgar vast unobvious grief

Not to be fancied off, nor gained relief

In brilliant fits, cured by a happy quirk,

But by dim vulgar vast unobvious work

To correspond . . .) this Crowd then, forth they stood.

“ And now content thy stronger vision, brood

“ On thy bare want ; uncovered, turf by turf,

“ Study the corpse-face thro' the taint-worms' scurf ! ”

Down sank the People's Then ; uprose their Now.

These sad ones render service to ! And how Piteously little must that service prove

—Had surely proved in any case ! for, move

Each other obstacle away, let youth

Become aware it had surprised a truth

'Twere service to impart—can truth be seized,

Settled forthwith, and, of the captive eased.

Its captor find fresh prey, since this alit

So happily, no guessture luring it,

The earnest of a flock to follow? Vain,
Most vain! a life to spend ere this he chain
To the poor crowd's complacence: ere the crowd

Pronounce it captured, he descries a cloud
Its kin of twice the plume; which he, in turn,
If he shall live as many lives, may learn How to secure: not else. Then Mantua called

Back to his mind how certain bards were thralled

—Buds blasted, but of breath more like perfume

Than Naddo's staring nosegay's carrion
bloom;

Some insane rose that burnt heart out in sweets,

A spendthrift in the spring, no summer greets;
Some Dularete, drunk with truths and wine,
Grown bestial, dreaming how become divine.

Yet to surmount this obstacle, commence
With the commencement, merits crowning!

Hence

Must truth be casual truth, elicited

In sparks so mean, at intervals dispread

So rarely, that 'tis like at no one time

Of the world's story has not truth, the prime

Of truth, the very truth which, loosed, had hurled

The world's course right, been really in the
world

—Content the while with some mean spark by dint

Of some chance-blow, the solitary hint

Of buried fire, which, rip earth's breast, would stream

Sky-ward!

Sordello's miserable gleam

Was looked for at the moment: he would dash
This badge, and all it brought, to earth,— abash

Taurello thus, perhaps persuade him wrest
The Kaiser from his purpose,—would attest
His own belief, in any case. Before

He dashes it however, think once more!

For, were that little, truly service? "Ay,

"I' the end, no doubt; but meantime?

Plain you spy

" Its ultimate effect, but many flaws
" Of vision blur each intervening cause.
" Were the day's fraction clear as the life's sum

" Of service, Now as filled as teems To-come
" With evidence of good—nor too minute

" A share to vie with evil! No dispute,

" 'Twere fittest maintain the Guelfs in rule:

" That makes your life's work: but you have to school

" Your day's work on these natures circumstanced

" Thus variously, which yet, as each advanced

" Or might impede the Guelf rule, must be moved

" Now, for the Then's sake,—hating what you loved,

" Loving old hatreds! Nor if one man bore

" Brand upon temples while his fellow wore

" The aureole, would it task you to decide:

" But, portioned duly out, the future vied

" Never with the unparcelled present! Smite

" Or spare so much on warrant all so slight?

" The present's complete sympathies to break,

" Aversions bear with, for a future's sake

" So feeble? Tito ruined through one speck,

" The Legate saved by his sole lightish fleck?

" This were work, true, but work performed at cost

" Of other work; aught gained here, elsewhere lost.

" For a new segment spoil an orb half-done?

" Rise with the People one step, and sink—
one?

" Were it but one step, less than the whole face

" Of things, your novel duty bids erase!

" Harms to abolish! What, the prophet saith,

" The minstrel singeth vainly then? Old
faith,

" Old courage, only born because of harms,

" Were not, from highest to the lowest,
charms?

" Flame may persist; but is not glare as staunch?

" Where the salt marshes stagnate, crystals
branch;

" Blood dries to crimson ; Evil's beautified
 " In every shape. Thrust Beauty then aside
 " And banish Evil ! Wherefore ? After all,
 " Is Evil a result less natural
 " Than Good ? For overlook the seasons'
 strife
 " With tree and flower,—the hideous animal
 life,
 " (Of which who seeks shall find a grinning
 taunt
 " For his solution, and endure the vaunt
 " Of nature's angel, as a child that knows
 " Himself befooled, unable to propose " Aught better than the fooling)—and but
 care
 " For men, for the mere People then and
 there,—
 " In these, could you but see that Good and Ill
 " Claimed you alike ! Whence rose their claim but still
 " From Ill, as fruit of Ill ? What else could knit
 " You theirs but Sorrow ? Any free from it " Were also free from you ! Whose happiness
 " Could be distinguished in this morning's
 press
 " Of miseries ?—the fool's who passed a gibe
 " " On thee," jeered he, " so wedded to thy tribe,
 " " Thou carriest green and yellow tokens in
 " " Thy very face that thou art Ghibellin !"
 " Much hold on you that fool obtained !
 Nay mount
 " Yet higher—and upon men's own account
 " Must Evil stay : for, what is joy ?—to heave
 " Uponeobstruction more, and common leave
 " What was peculiar, by such act destroy
 " Itself ; a partial death is every joy ;
 " The sensible escape, enfranchisement
 " Of a sphere's essence : once the vexed—
 content,
 " The cramped—at large, the growing circle
 —round,
 " All's to begin again—some novel bound
 " To break, some new enlargement to entreat ;
 " The sphere though larger is not more complete.

" Now for Mankind's experience : who alone
 " Might style the unobstructed world his
 own ?
 " Whom palled Goito with its perfect things ?
 " Sordello's self : whereas for Mankind springs
 " Salvation by each hindrance interposed.
 " They climb ; life's view is not at once disclosed
 " To creatures caught up, on the summit left,
 " Heaven plain above them, yet of wings
 bereft :
 " But lower laid, as at the mountain's foot.
 " So, range on range, the girdling forests shoot who scale

 " Height after height, and pierce mists, veil
 by veil,
 " Heartened with each discovery ; in their
 soul,
 " The Whole they seek by Parts—but, found that Whole,
 " Could they revert, enjoy past gains ? The space
 " Of time you judge so meagre to embrace
 " The Parts were more than plenty, once attained
 " The Whole, to quite exhaust it : nought were gained
 " But leave to look—not leave to do : Beneath

 Give

 " And pasture soul on a voluptuous shame

 " Gold ; then subject, nor scruple, to your

 "Each, well!"

And, as in moments when the past
 Gave partially enfranchisement, he cast
 Himself quite through mere secondary states
 Of his soul's essence, little loves and hates,
 Into the mid deep yearnings overlaid
 By these; as who should pierce hill, plain,
 grove, glade,
 And on into the very nucleus probe
 That first determined there exist a globe.
 As that were easiest, half the globe dissolved,
 So seemed Sordello's closing-truth evolved
 By his flesh-half's break-up; the sudden swell
 Of his expanding soul showed Ill and Well,
 Sorrow and Joy, Beauty and Ugliness,
 Virtue and Vice, the Larger and the Less,
 All qualities, in fine, recorded here,
 Might be but modes of Time and this one
 sphere,
 Urgent on these, but not of force to bind
 Eternity, as Time—as Matter—Mind,
 If Mind, Eternity, should choose assert
 Their attributes within a Life: thus girt

With circumstance, next change beholds them cinct
 Quite otherwise—with Good and Ill distinct,
 Joys, sorrows, tending to a like result—
 Contrived to render easy, difficult,
 This or the other course of . . . what new bond
 In place of flesh may stop their flight beyond Its new sphere, as that course does harm or
 good
 To its arrangements. Once this understood,
 As suddenly he felt himself alone,
 Quite out of Time and this world: all was known.
 What made the secret of his past despair?
 —Most imminent when he seemed most aware
 Of his own self-sufficiency: made mad
 By craving to expand the power he had,
 And not new power to be expanded?—just
 This made it; Soul on Matter being thrust,
 Joy comes when so much Soul is wreaked in
 Time
 On Matter: let the Soul's attempt sublime
 Matter beyond the scheme and so prevent
 By more or less that deed's accomplishment,
 And Sorrow follows: Sorrow how avoid?
 Let the employer match the thing employed,
 Fit to the finite his infinity,
 And thus proceed for ever, in degree
 Changed but in kind the same, still limited
 To the appointed circumstance and dead
 To all beyond. A sphere is but a sphere;
 Small, Great, are merely terms we bandy
 here;
 Since to the spirit's absoluteness all
 Are like. Now, of the present sphere we call Life, are conditions; take but this among Many; the body was to be so long
 Youthful, no longer: but, since no control
 Tied to that body's purposes his soul,
 She chose to understand the body's trade
 More than the body's self—had fain conveyed
 Her boundless to the body's bounded lot.
 Hence, the soul permanent, the body not,— Scarcely its minute for enjoying here,—
 The soul must needs instruct her weak
 compeer,

Run o'er its capabilities and wring
A joy thence, she held worth experiencing :
Which, far from half discovered even,—lo,
The minute gone, the body's power let go
Apportioned to that joy's acquirement !

Broke

Morning o'er earth, he yearned for all it woke—

From the volcano's vapour-flag, winds hoist
Black o'er the spread of sea,—down to the moist

Dale's silken barley-spikes sullied with rain,
Swayed earthwards, heavily to rise again—
The Small, a sphere as perfect as the Great
To the soul's absoluteness. Meditate
Too long on such a morning's cluster-chord
And the whole music it was framed afford,—
The chord's might half discovered, what should pluck

One string, his finger, was found palsy-struck.
And then no marvel if the spirit, shown
A saddest sight—the body lost alone
Through her officious proffered help, deprived
Of this and that enjoyment Fate contrived,— Virtue, Good, Beauty, each allowed slip
hence,—

Vain-gloriously were fain, for recompense,
To stem the ruin even yet, protract
The body's term, supply the power it lacked
From her infinity, compel it learn
These qualities were only Time's concern,
And body may, with spirit helping, barred—Advance the same, vanquished — obtain reward,

Reap joy where sorrow was intended grow,
Of Wrong make Right, and turn Ill Good
below.

And the result is, the poor body soon
Sinks under what was meant a wondrous boon,

Leaving its bright accomplice all aghast.

So much was plain then, proper in the
past ;

To be complete for, satisfy the whole
Series of spheres—Eternity, his soul
Needs must exceed, prove incomplete for, each Single sphere—Time. But does our knowledge reach

No farther? Is the cloud of hindrance broke
But by the failing of the fleshly yoke,
Its loves and hates, as now when death lets soar

Sordello, self-sufficient as before,
Though during the mere space that shall elapse

'Twixt his enthrallment in new bonds perhaps?
Must life be ever just escaped, which should Have been enjoyed?—nay, might have been and would,

Each purpose ordered right—the soul's no
whit

Beyond the body's purpose under it.
Like yonder breadth of watery heaven, a bay,
And that sky-space of water, ray for ray
And star for star, one richness where they
mixed

As this and that wing of an angel, fixed,
Tumultuary splendours folded in
To die—would soul, proportioned thus, begin
Exciting discontent, or surelier quell
The body if, aspiring, it rebel?
But how so order life? Still brutalize
The soul, the sad world's way, with muffled
eyes

To all that was before, all that shall be
After this sphere—all and each quality
Save some sole and immutable Great, Good And Beauteous whither fate has loosed its hood

To follow? Never may some soul see All —The Great Before and After, and the Small
Now, yet be saved by this the simplest lore,
And take the single course prescribed before,
As the king-bird with ages on his plumes
Travels to die in his ancestral glooms?
But where descry the Love that shall select
That course? Here is a soul whom, to affect, Nature has plied with all her means, from trees

And flowers e'en to the Multitude!—and
these,

Decides he save or no? One word to end!

Ah my Sordello, I this once befriend
And speak for you. Of a Power above you
still

Which, utterly incomprehensible,

Once failed the Kaiser's purposes—"we lost
 "Egna last year, and who takes Egna's post—
 "Opens the Lombard gate if Friedrich knock?"

Himself espoused the Lady of the Rock
 In pure necessity, and, so destroyed
 His slender last of chances, quite made void
 Old prophecy, and spite of all the schemes
 Overt and covert, youth's deeds, age's
 dreams,

Was sucked into Romano. And so hushed
 He up this evening's work that, when 'twas brushed

Somehow against by a blind chronicle
 Which, chronicling whatever woe befell
 Ferrara, noted this the obscure woe
 Of "Salinguerra's sole son Giacomo
 "Deceased, fatuous and doting, ere his sire,"
 The townsfolk rubbed their eyes, could but admire

Which of Sofia's five was meant.

The chaps

Of earth's dead hope were tardy to collapse,
 Obliterated not the beautiful
 Distinctive features at a crash: but dull
 And duller these, next year, as Guelfs withdrew

Each to his stronghold. Then (securely too
 Ecelin at Campese slept; close by,
 Who likes may see him in Solagna lie,
 With cushioned head and gloved hand to denote

The cavalier he was)—then his heart smote
 Young Ecelin at last; long since adult.
 And, save Vicenza's business, what result
 In blood and blaze? (So hard to intercept Sordello till his plain withdrawal!) Stepped Then its new lord on Lombardy. I' the nick
 Of time when Ecelin and Alberic
 Closed with Taurello, come precisely news
 That in Verona half the souls refuse Allegiance to the Marquis and the Count—
 Have cast them from a throne they bid him mount,

Their Podestà, thro' his ancestral worth.
 Ecelin flew there, and the town henceforth
 Was wholly his—Taurello sinking back
 From temporary station to a track

That suited. News received of this acquist, Friedrich did come to Lombardy: who missed

Taurello then? Another year: they took Vicenza, left the Marquis scarce a nook
 For refuge, and, when hundreds two or three Of Guelfs conspired to call themselves "The Free,"

Opposing Alberic,—vile Bassanese,—
 (Without Sordello!)—Ecelin at ease
 Slaughtered them so observably, that oft
 A little Salinguerra looked with soft
 Blue eyes up, asked his sire the proper age
 To get appointed his proud uncle's page.
 More years passed, and that sire had dwindled down

To a mere showy turbulent soldier, grown
 Better through age, his parts still in repute,
 Subtle—how else?—but hardly so astute
 As his contemporaneous friends professed;
 Undoubtedly a brawler: for the rest,
 Known by each neighbour, and allowed for, let Keep his incorrigible ways, nor fret
 Men who would miss their boyhood's bug-bear: "trap

"The ostrich, suffer our bald osprey flap
 "A battered pinion!"—was the word. In fine,

One flap too much and Venice's marine
 Was meddled with; no overlooking that!
 She captured him in his Ferrara, fat
 And florid at a banquet, more by fraud
 Than force, to speak the truth; there's slender laud

Ascribed you for assisting eighty years
 To pull his death on such a man; fate shears
 The life-cord prompt enough whose last fine thread

You fritter: so, presiding his board-head,
 The old smile, your assurance all went well
 With Friedrich (as if he were like to tell!)
 In rushed (a plan contrived before) our friends,
 Made some pretence at fighting, some amends
 For the shame done his eighty years—(apart
 The principle, none found it in his heart
 To be much angry with Taurello)—gained Their galleys with the prize, and what remained

But carry him to Venice for a show?
 —Set him, as 'twere, down gently—free to go
 His gait, inspect our square, pretend observe
 The swallows soaring their eternal curve
 'Twixt Theodore and Mark, if citizens
 Gathered importunately, fives and tens,
 To point their children the Magnifico,
 All but a monarch once in firm-land, go
 His gait among them now—"it took, indeed,
 "Fully this Ecelin to supersede
 "That man," remarked the seniors. Singular!
 Sordello's inability to bar
 Rivals the stage, that evening, mainly brought About by his strange disbelief that aught
 Was ever to be done,—this thrust the Twain
 Under Taurello's tutelage,—whom, brain
 And heart and hand, he forthwith in one rod
 Indissolubly bound to baffle God
 Who loves the world—and thus allowed the thin
 Grey wizened dwarfish devil Ecelin,
 And massy-muscled big-boned Alberic
 (Mere man, alas!) to put his problem quick
 To demonstration—prove wherever's will
 To do, there's plenty to be done, or ill
 Or good. Anointed, then, to rend and rip—Kings of the gag and flesh-hook, screw and whip,
 They plagued the world: a touch of Hildebrand
 (So far from obsolete!) made Lombards band
 Together, cross their coats as for Christ's cause,
 And saving Milan win the world's applause.
 Ecelin perished: and I think grass grew
 Never so pleasant as in Valley Rù
 By San Zenon where Alberic in turn
 Saw his exasperated captors burn
 Seven children and their mother; then, regaled
 So far, tied on to a wild horse, was trailed
 To death through raunce and bramble-bush.
 I take
 God's part and testify that 'mid the brake
 Wild o'er his castle on the pleasant knoll,
 You hear its one tower left, a belfry, toll—
 The earthquake spared it last year, laying flat
 The modern church beneath,—no harm in
 that!

Chirrup the contumacious grasshopper,
 Rustles the lizard and the cushats chirre
 Above the ravage: there, at deep of day
 A week since, heard I the old Canon say
 He saw with his own eyes a barrow burst
 And Alberic's huge skeleton unheard
 Only five years ago. He added, "June's
 "The month for carding off our first cocoons
 "The silkworms fabricate"—a double news,
 Nor he nor I could tell the worthier. Choose!
 And Naddo gone, all's gone; not Eglamor!
 Believe, I knew the face I waited for,
 A guest my spirit of the golden courts!
 Oh strange to see how, despite ill-reports,
 Disuse, some wear of years, that face retained
 Its joyous look of love! Suns waxed and waned,
 And still my spirit held an upward flight,
 Spiral on spiral, gyres of life and light
 More and more gorgeous—ever that face there
 The last admitted! crossed, too, with some care
 As perfect triumph were not sure for all,
 But, on a few, enduring damp must fall,
 —A transient struggle, haply a painful sense
 Of the inferior nature's clinging—whence
 Slight starting tears easily wiped away,
 Fine jealousies soon stifled in the play
 Of irrepressible admiration—not
 Aspiring, all considered, to their lot
 Who ever, just as they prepare ascend
 Spiral on spiral, wish thee well, impend
 Thy frank delight at their exclusive track,
 That upturned fervid face and hair put back!
 Is there no more to say? He of the rhymes—
 Many a tale, of this retreat betimes,
 Was born: Sordello die at once for men?
 The Chroniclers of Mantua tired their pen
 Telling how Sordello Prince Visconti saved
 Mantua, and elsewhere notably behaved—
 Who thus, by fortune ordering events,
 Passed with posterity, to all intents,
 For just the god he never could become.
 As Knight, Bard, Gallant, men were never dumb
 In praise of him: while what he should have
 been,
 Could be, and was not—the one step too mean

For him to take,—we suffer at this day
Because of: Ecelin had pushed away
Its chance ere Dante could arrive and take That step Sordello spurned, for the world's
sake:

He did much—but Sordello's chance was gone.

Thus, had Sordello dared that step alone,
Apollo had been compassed: 'twas a fit
He wished should go to him, not he to it —As one content to merely be supposed
Singing or fighting elsewhere, while he dozed
Really at home—one who was chiefly glad
To have achieved the few real deeds he had,
Because that way assured they were not worth Doing, so spared from doing them hence-
forth—

A tree that covets fruitage and yet tastes
Never itself, itself. Had he embraced Their cause then, men had plucked Hesperian fruit

And, praising that, just thrown him in to boot
All he was anxious to appear, but scarce
Solicitous to be. A sorry farce
Such life is, after all! Cannot I say
He lived for some one better thing? this
way.—

Lo, on a heathy brown and nameless hill
By sparkling Asolo, in mist and chill,
Morning just up, higher and higher runs
A child barefoot and rosy. See! the sun's
On the square castle's inner-court's low wall
Like the chine of some extinct animal

Half turned to earth and flowers; and through the haze

(Save where some slender patches of grey maize

Are to be overleaped) that boy has crossed
The whole hill-side of dew and powder-frost
Matting the balm and mountain camomile.

Up and up goes he, singing all the while
Some unintelligible words to beat

The lark, God's poet, swooning at his feet,
So worsted is he at "the few fine locks

"Stained like pale honey oozed from topmost rocks

"Sun-blanced the livelong summer,"—all that's left

Of the Goito lay! And thus bereft,
Sleep and forget, Sordello! In effect

He sleeps, the feverish poet—I suspect
Not utterly companionless; but, friends,

Wake up! The ghost's gone, and the story ends

I'd fain hope, sweetly; seeing, peri or ghoul,
That spirits are conjectured fair or foul,

Evil or good, judicious authors think,
According as they vanish in a stink

Or in a perfume. Friends, be frank! ye snuff Civet, I warrant. Really? Like enough!

Merely the savour's rareness; any nose
May ravage with impunity a rose:

Rifle a musk-pod and 'twill ache like yours!
I'd tell you that same pungency ensures

An after-gust, but that were overbold.
Who would has heard Sordello's story told.

Thy fitful sunshine-minutes, coming, going,
As if earth turned from work in gamesome mood—

All shall be mine ! But thou must treat me
not

As prosperous ones are treated, those who live
At hand here, and enjoy the higher lot,
In readiness to take what thou wilt give,
And free to let alone what thou refusest ;
For, Day, my holiday, if thou ill-usest
Me, who am only Pippa,—old-year's sorrow,
Cast off last night, will come again to-morrow:
Whereas, if thou prove gentle, I shall borrow Sufficient strength of thee for new-year's sorrow.

All other men and women that this earth
Belongs to, who all days alike possess,
Make general plenty cure particular dearth,
Get more joy one way, if another, less :
Thou art my single day, God lends to leaven
What were all earth else, with a feel of heaven,—

Sole light that helps me through the year, thy sun's !

Try now ! Take Asolo's Four Happiest
Ones—

And let thy morning rain on that superb
Great haughty Ottima ; can rain disturb
Her Sebald's homage ? All the while thy rain Beats fiercest on her shrub-house window-pane,

He will but press the closer, breathe more
warm

Against her cheek ; how should she mind the storm ?

And, morning past, if mid-day shed a gloom
O'er Jules and Phene,—what care bride and groom

Save for their dear selves ? 'Tis their marriage-day ;

And while they leave church and go home
their way,

Hand clasping hand, within each breast would be

Sunbeams and pleasant weather spite of thee.
Then, for another trial, obscure thy eve
With mist,—will Luigi and his mother grieve—

The lady and her child, unmatched, forsooth,

She in her age, as Luigi in his youth,
For true content ? The cheerful town, warm, close

And safe, the sooner that thou art morose, Receives them. And yet once again, outbreak

In storm at night on Monsignor, they make Such stir about,—whom they expect from
Rome

To visit Asolo, his brothers' home,
And say here masses proper to release
A soul from pain,—what storm dares hurt his peace ?

Calm would he pray, with his own thoughts to ward

Thy thunder off, nor want the angels' guard.
But Pippa—just one such mischance would spoil

Her day that lightens the next twelvemonth's toil

At wearisome silk-winding, coil on coil !

And here I let time slip for nought !

Aha, you foolhardy sunbeam, caught
With a single splash from my ewer !

You that would mock the best pursuer,
Was my basin over-deep ?

One splash of water ruins you asleep,
And up, up, fleet your brilliant bits

Wheeling and counterwheeling,
Reeling, broken beyond healing :

Now grow together on the ceiling !

That will task your wits.

Whoever it was quenched fire first, hoped to
see

Morsel after morsel flee

As merrily, as giddily . . .

Meantime, what lights my sunbeam on,

Where settles by degrees the radiant cripple ?

Oh, is it surely blown, my martagon ?¹

New-blown and ruddy as St. Agnes' nipple, Plump as the flesh-bunch on some Turk bird's poll !

Be sure if corals, branching 'neath the ripple
Of ocean, bud there,—fairies watch unroll

Such turban-flowers; I say, such lamps disperse
Thick red flame through that dusk green universe!

I am queen of thee, floweret!
And each fleshy blossom Preserve I not—(safer
Than leaves that embower it,
Or shells that embosom)
—From weevil and chafer?
Laugh through my pane then; solicit the bee;
Gibe him, be sure; and, in midst of thy glee,
Love thy queen, worship me!

—Worship whom else? For am I not, this
day,
Whate'er I please? What shall I please to-
day?
My morn, noon, eve and night—how spend my day?
To-morrow I must be Pippa who winds silk,
The whole year round, to earn just bread and milk:

But, this one day, I have leave to go,
And play out my fancy's fullest games;
I may fancy all day—and it shall be so—
That I taste of the pleasures, am called by the names
Of the Happiest Four in our Asolo!

See! Up the hill-side yonder, through the morning,
Some one shall love me, as the world calls love:
I am no less than Ottima, take warning!
The gardens, and the great stone house above,
And other house for shrubs, all glass in front,
Are mine; where Sebald steals, as he is wont,
To court me, while old Luca yet reposes:
And therefore, till the shrub-house door uncloses,

I . . . what now?—give abundant cause for prate
About me—Ottima, I mean—of late,
Too bold, too confident she'll still face down
The spitefullest of talkers in our town.
How we talk in the little town below!
But love, love, love—there's better love,
I know!

This foolish love was only day's first offer;
I choose my next love to defy the scoffer:
For do not our Bride and Bridegroom sally
Out of Possagno church at noon?
Their house looks over Orcana valley:
Why should not I be the bride as soon
As Ottima? For I saw, beside,
Arrive last night that little bride—
Saw, if you call it seeing her, one flash
Of the pale snow-pure cheek and black bright
tresses,

Blacker than all except the black eyelash;
I wonder she contrives those lids no dresses!
—So strict was she, the veil
Should cover close her pale Pure cheeks—a bride to look at and scarce
touch,
Scarce touch, remember, Jules! For are not such
Used to be tended, flower-like, every feature,
As if one's breath would fray the lily of a creature?

A soft and easy life these ladies lead:
Whiteness in us were wonderful indeed.
Oh, save that brow its virgin dimness,
Keep that foot its lady primness,
Let those ankles never swerve
From their exquisite reserve,
Yet have to trip along the streets like me,
All but naked to the knee!
How will she ever grant her Jules a bliss
So startling as her real first infant kiss?
Oh, no—not envy, this!

—Not envy, sure!—for if you gave me
Leave to take or to refuse,
In earnest, do you think I'd choose
That sort of new love to enslave me?
Mine should have lapped me round from the beginning;
As little fear of losing it as winning:
Lovers grow cold, men learn to hate their wives,

And only parents' love can last our lives.
At eve the Son and Mother, gentle pair,
Commune inside our turret: what prevents
My being Luigi? While that mossy lair
Of lizards through the winter-time is stirred

With each to each imparting sweet intents
 For this new-year, as brooding bird to bird—
 (For I observe of late, the evening walk
 Of Luigi and his mother, always ends
 Inside our ruined turret, where they talk, Calmer than lovers, yet more kind than
 friends)

—Let me be cared about, kept out of harm,
 And schemed for, safe in love as with a charm;
 Let me be Luigi! If I only knew

What was my mother's face—my father, too!
 Nay, if you come to that, best love of all
 Is God's; then why not have God's love befall

Myself as, in the palace by the Dome, Monsignor?—who to-night will bless the
 home

Of his dead brother; and God bless in turn
 That heart which beats, those eyes which mildly burn

With love for all men! I, to-night at least,
 Would be that holy and beloved priest.

Now wait!—even I already seem to share
 In God's love: what does New-year's hymn declare?

What other meaning do these verses bear?

*All service ranks the same with God:
 If now, as formerly he trod
 Paradise, his presence fills
 Our earth, each only as God wills
 Can work—God's puppets, best and worst,
 Are we; there is no last nor first.*

*Say not "a small event!" Why "small" ?
 Costs it more pain that this, ye call
 A "great event," should come to pass,
 Than that? Untwine me from the mass
 Of deeds which make up life, one deed
 Power shall fall short in or exceed!*

And more of it, and more of it!—oh yes—
 I will pass each, and see their happiness,
 And envy none—being just as great, no doubt,
 Useful to men, and dear to God, as they!
 A pretty thing to care about
 So mightily, this single holiday!
 But let the sun shine! Wherefore repine?
 —With thee to lead me, O Day of mine,

Down the grass path grey with dew,
 Under the pine-wood, blind with boughs,
 Where the swallow never flew
 Nor yet cicala dared carouse—
 No, dared carouse! [She enters the street.]

L—MORNING.

SCENE.—Up the Hill-side, inside the Shrub-house. LUCA'S wife, OTTIMA, and her paramour, the German SEBALD.

Sebald [sings].

*Let the watching lids wink!
 Day's a-blaze with eyes, think!
 Deep into the night, drink!*

Ottima. Night? Such may be your Rhineland nights perhaps;
 But this blood-red beam through the shutter's chink

—We call such light, the morning: let us see!
 Mind how you grope your way, though!
 How these tall

Naked geraniums straggle! Push the lattice
 Behind that frame!—Nay, do I bid you?—
 Sebald,

It shakes the dust down on me! Why, of course

The slide-bolt catches. Well, are you content,
 Or must I find you something else to spoil?
 Kiss and be friends, my Sebald! Is't full morning?

Oh, don't speak then!

Sebald. Ay, thus it used to be.

Ever your house was, I remember, shut
 Till mid-day; I observed that, as I strolled
 On mornings through the vale here; country girls

Were noisy, washing garments in the brook,
 Hinds drove the slow white oxen up the hills:
 But no, your house was mute, would ope no
 eye.

And wisely: you were plotting one thing there,
 Nature, another outside. I looked up—
 Rough white wood shutters, rusty iron bars,
 Silent as death, blind in a flood of light.

To show I love you—yes, still love you—
love you

In spite of Luca and what's come to him
—Sure sign we had him ever in our thoughts,
White sneering old reproachful face and all!
We'll even quarrel, love, at times, as if We still could lose each other, were not tied
By this: conceive you?

Ottima. Love!

Sebald. Not tied so sure.

Because though I was wrought upon, have struck

His insolence back into him—am I
So surely yours?—therefore forever yours?

Ottima. Love, to be wise, (one counsel pays another)

Should we have—months ago, when first we loved,

For instance that May morning we two stole
Under the green ascent of sycamores—

If we had come upon a thing like that Suddenly . . .

Sebald. “A thing”—there again—
“a thing!”

Ottima. Then, Venus' body, had we come upon

My husband Luca Gaddi's murdered corpse
Within there, at his couch-foot, covered close—

Would you have pored upon it? Why persist
In poring now upon it? For 'tis here

As much as there in the deserted house:

You cannot rid your eyes of it. For me,
Now he is dead I hate him worse: I hate . . .

Dare you stay here? I would go back and hold

His two dead hands, and say, “I hate you worse,

“Luca, than . . .”

Sebald. Off, off—take your hands off mine,

'Tis the hot evening—off! oh, morning is it?

Ottima. There's one thing must be done;
you know what thing.

Come in and help to carry. We may sleep
Anywhere in the whole wide house to-night.

Sebald. What would come, think you, if we let him lie

Just as he is? Let him lie there until
The angels take him! He is turned by this Off from his face beside, as you will see.

Ottima. This dusty pane might serve for looking glass.

Three, four—four grey hairs! Is it so you said
A plait of hair should wave across my neck?
No—this way.

Sebald. Ottima, I would give your neck,
Each splendid shoulder, both those breasts of
yours,

That this were undone! Killing! Kill the
world

So Luca lives again!—ay, lives to sputter
His fulsome dotage on you—yes, and feign
Surprise that I return at eve to sup,

When all the morning I was loitering here—
Bid me despatch my business and begone.

I would . . .

Ottima. See!

Sebald. No, I'll finish. Do
you think

I fear to speak the bare truth once for all?
All we have talked of, is, at bottom, fine

To suffer; there's a recompense in guilt;
One must be venturous and fortunate:

What is one young for, else? In age we'll sigh

O'er the wild reckless wicked days flown
over;

Still, we have lived: the vice was in its place.
But to have eaten Luca's bread, have worn

His clothes, have felt his money swell my purse—

Do lovers in romances sin that way?

Why, I was starving when I used to call

And teach you music, starving while you plucked me

These flowers to smell!

Ottima. My poor lost friend!

Sebald. He gave me

Life, nothing less: what if he did reproach

My perfidy, and threaten, and do more—

Had he no right? What was to wonder at?

He sat by us at table quietly:

Why must you lean across till our cheeks touched?

Could he do less than make pretence to strike?

'Tis not the crime's sake—I'd commit ten crimes

Greater, to have this crime wiped out, undone!
And you—O how feel you? Feel you for me?

Ottima. Well then, I love you better now than ever,

And best (look at me while I speak to you)—
Best for the crime; nor do I grieve, in truth,
This mask, this simulated ignorance,
This affectation of simplicity,
Falls off our crime; this naked crime of ours
May not now be looked over: look it down!
Great? let it be great; but the joys it brought,
Pay they or no its price? Come: they or it!
Speak not! The past, would you give up the past

Such as it is, pleasure and crime together?
Give up that noon I owned my love for you?
The garden's silence: even the single bee
Persisting in his toil, suddenly stopped,
And where he hid you only could surmise
By some campanula chalice set a-swing.
Who stammered—"Yes, I love you?"

Sebald. And I drew
Back; put far back your face with both my hands

Lest you should grow too full of me—your face
So seemed athirst for my whole soul and body!

Ottima. And when I ventured to receive
you here,

Made you steal hither in the mornings—

Sebald. When
I used to look up 'neath the shrub-house here,
Till the red fire on its glazed windows spread
To a yellow haze?

Ottima. Ah—my sign was, the sun
Inflamed the sere side of yon chestnut-tree
Nipped by the first frost.

Sebald. You would always laugh
At my wet boots: I had to stride thro' grass
Over my ankles.

Ottima. Then our crowning night!

Sebald. The July night?

Ottima. The day of it too, Sebald!

When heaven's pillars seemed o'erbowed with heat,

Its black-blue canopy suffered descend
Close on us both, to weigh down each to each,

And smother up all life except our life.
So lay we till the storm came.

Sebald. How it came!

Ottima. Buried in woods we lay, you recollect;

Swift ran the searching tempest overhead;
And ever and anon some bright white shaft
Burned thro' the pine-tree roof, here burned and there,

As if God's messenger thro' the close wood screen

Plunged and replunged his weapon at a venture,

Feeling for guilty thee and me: then broke
The thunder like a whole sea overhead—

Sebald. Yes!

Ottima. —While I stretched myself
upon you, hands

To hands, my mouth to your hot mouth, and shook

All my locks loose, and covered you with
them—

You, Sebald, the same you!

Sebald. Slower, Ottima!

Ottima. And as we lay—

Sebald. Less vehemently! Love me!
Forgive me! Take not words, mere words, to heart!

Your breath is worse than wine! Breathe slow, speak slow!

Do not lean on me!

Ottima. Sebald, as we lay,

Rising and falling only with our pants,
Who said, "Let death come now! 'Tis right to die!

"Right to be punished! Nought completes such bliss

"But woe!" Who said that?

Sebald. How did we ever rise?

Was't that we slept? Why did it end?

Ottima. I felt you

Taper into a point the ruffled ends
Of my loose locks 'twixt both your humid lips.
My hair is fallen now: knot it again!

Sebald. I kiss you now, dear Ottima, now
and now!

This way? Will you forgive me—be once more
My great queen?

Ottima. Bind it thrice about my brow ;
Crown me your queen, your spirit's arbitress,
Magnificent in sin. Say that !

Sebald. I crown you
My great white queen, my spirit's arbitress, Magnificent . . .

[From without is heard the voice
of PIPPA, singing—

*The year's at the spring
And day's at the morn ;
Morning's at seven ;
The hill-side's dew-pearled ;
The lark's on the wing ;
The snail's on the thorn :
God's in his heaven—
All's right with the world !*

[PIPPA passes.

Sebald. God's in his heaven ! Do you hear that ? Who spoke ?
You, you spoke !

Ottima. Oh—that little ragged girl !
She must have rested on the step : we give
them
But this one holiday the whole year round.
Did you ever see our silk-mills—their inside ?
There are ten silk-mills now belong to you.
She stoops to pick my double heartsease
. . . Sh !

She does not hear : call you out louder !

Sebald. Leave me !
Go, get your clothes on—dress those shoulders !

Ottima. Sebald ?

Sebald. Wipe off that paint ! I hate you.

Ottima. Miserable !

Sebald. My God, and she is emptied of it
now !

Outright now !—how miraculously gone
All of the grace—had she not strange grace
once ?

Why, the blank cheek hangs listless as it likes
No purpose holds the features up together,
Only the cloven brow and puckered chin
Stay in their places : and the very hair,
That seemed to have a sort of life in it,
Drops, a dead web !

Ottima. Speak to me—not of me !

Sebald. —That round great full-orbed face,
where not an angle

Broke the delicious indolence—all broken !

Ottima. To me—not of me ! Ungrateful, perjured cheat !

A coward too : but ingrate's worse than all.
Beggar—my slave—a fawning, cringing lie !
Leave me ! Betray me ! I can see your drift !

A lie that walks and eats and drinks !

Sebald. My God !
Those morbid olive faultless shoulder-blades—
I should have known there wa^s no blood
beneath !

Ottima. You hate me then ? You hate me
then ?

Sebald. To think
She would succeed in her absurd attempt,
And fascinate by sinning, show herself
Superior—guilt from its excess superior
To innocence ! That little peasant's voice
Has righted all again. Though I be lost,
I know which is the better, never fear,
Of vice or virtue, purity or lust,
Nature or trick ! I see what I have done,
Entirely now ! Oh I am proud to feel Such torments—let the world take credit thence—

I, having done my deed, pay too its price !
I hate, hate—curse you ! God's in his heaven !

Ottima. —Me !
Me ! no, no, Sebald, not yourself—kill
me !

Mine is the whole crime. Do but kill me—
then

Yourself—then—presently—first hear me
speak !

I always meant to kill myself—wait, you !
Lean on my breast—not as a breast ; don't love me

The more because you lean on me, my
own

Heart's Sebald ! There, there, both deaths
presently !

Sebald. My brain is drowned now—quite drowned : all I feel

Is . . . is, at swift-recurring intervals,
A hurry-down within me, as of waters out of his mouth, somebody!) Will Jules lose the bloom of his youth?

Schramm. Nothing worth keeping is ever lost in this world: look at a blossom—it drops presently, having done its service and lasted its time; but fruits succeed, and where would be the blossom's place could it continue? As well affirm that your eye is no longer in your body, because its earliest favourite, whatever it may have first loved to look on, is dead and done with—as that any affection is lost to the soul when its first object, whatever happened first to satisfy it, is superseded in due course. Keep but ever looking, whether with the body's eye or the mind's, and you will soon find something to look on! Has a man done wondering at women?—there follow men, dead and alive, to wonder at. Has he done wondering at men?—there's God to wonder at: and the faculty of wonder may be, at the same time, old and tired enough with respect to its first object, and yet young and fresh sufficiently, so far as concerns its novel one. Thus . . .

1st Student. Put Schramm's pipe into his mouth again! There, you see! Well, this Jules . . . a wretched fribble—oh, I watched his disportings at Possagno, the other day! Canova's gallery—you know: there he marches first resolvedly past great works by the dozen without vouchsafing an eye: all at once he stops full at the Psiche-fanciulla—cannot pass that old acquaintance without a nod of encouragement—“In your new place, beauty? Then behave yourself as well here as at Munich—I see you!” Next he posts himself deliberately before the unfinished Pietà for half an hour without moving, till up he starts of a sudden, and thrusts his very nose into—I say, into—the group; by which gesture you are informed that precisely the sole point he had not fully mastered in Canova's practice was a certain method of using the drill in the articulation of the knee-joint—and that, likewise, has he mastered at length! Good-bye, therefore, to poor Canova—whose gallery no longer needs detain his successor Jules, the predestinated novel thinker in marble!

5th Student. Tell him about the women: go on to the women!

1st Student. Why, on that matter he could never be supercilious enough. How should we be other (he said) than the poor devils you see, with those debasing habits we cherish? He was not to wallow in that mire, at least: he would wait, and love only at the proper time, and meanwhile put up with the Psiche-fanciulla. Now, I happened to hear of a young Greek—real Greek girl at Malamocco; a true Islander, do you see, with Alciphron's “hair like sea-moss”—Schramm knows!—white and quiet as an apparition, and fourteen years old at farthest,—a daughter of Natalia, so she swears—that hag Natalia, who helps us to models at three lire an hour. We selected this girl for the heroine of our jest. So first, Jules received a scented letter—somebody had seen his Tydeus at the Academy, and my picture was nothing to it: a profound admirer bade him persevere—would make herself known to him ere long. (Paolina, my little friend of the Fenice, transcribes divinely.) And in due time, the mysterious correspondent gave certain hints of her peculiar charms—the pale cheeks, the black hair—whatever, in short, had struck us in our Malamocco model: we retained her name, too—Phene, which is, by interpretation, sea-eagle. Now, think of Jules finding himself distinguished from the herd of us by such a creature! In his very first answer he proposed marrying his mistress: and fancy us over these letters, two, three times a day, to receive and despatch! I concocted the main of it: relations were in the way—secrecy must be observed—in fine, would he wed her on trust, and only speak to her when they were indissolubly united? St—st—Here they come!

6th Student. Both of them! Heaven's love, speak softly, speak within yourselves!

5th Student. Look at the bridegroom! Half his hair in storm and half in calm,—patted down over the left temple,—like a frothy cup one blows on to cool it: and the same old blouse that he murders the marble in 2nd Student. Not a rich vest like yours, Hannibal Scratchy!—rich, that your face may the better set it off.

6th Student. And the bride! Yes, sure enough, our Phene! Should you have known her in her clothes? How magnificently pale!

Gottlieb. She does not also take it for earnest, I hope?

1st Student. Oh, Natalia's concern, that is! We settle with Natalia.

6th Student. She does not speak—has evidently let out no word. The only thing is, will she equally remember the rest of her lesson, and repeat correctly all those verses which are to break the secret to Jules?

Gottlieb. How he gazes on her! Pity—pity!

1st Student. They go in: now, silence! You three,—not nearer the window, mind, than that pomegranate: just where the little girl, who a few minutes ago passed us singing, is seated!

II.—NOON.

SCENE.—Over Orcana. The house of JULES, who crosses its threshold with PHENE: she is silent, on which JULES begins—

Do not die, Phene! I am yours now, you are mine now; let fate reach me how she likes,

If you'll not die: so, never die! Sit here—My work-room's single seat. I over-lean This length of hair and lustrous front; they turn

Like an entire flower upward: eyes, lips, last Your chin—no, last your throat turns: 'tis their scent

Pulls down my face upon you. Nay, look ever This one way till I change, grow you—I could Change into you, beloved!

You by me,
And I by you; this is your hand in mine,
And side by side we sit: all's true. Thank God!

I have spoken: speak you!

O my life to come!

My Tydeus must be carved that's there in clay;

Yet how be carved, with you about the room? Where must I place you? When I think that once

This room-full of rough block-work seemed my heaven

Without you! Shall I ever work again, Get fairly into my old ways again, Bid each conception stand while, trait by trait, My hand transfers its lineaments to stone? Will my mere fancies live near you, their truth—

The live truth, passing and repassing me, Sitting beside me?

Now speak!

Only first, See, all your letters! Was't not well contrived?

Their hiding-place is Psyche's robe; she keeps

Your letters next her skin: which drops out foremost?

Ah,—this that swam down like a first moon-beam

Into my world!

Again those eyes complete Their melancholy survey, sweet and slow, Of all my room holds; to return and rest On me, with pity, yet some wonder too: As if God bade some spirit plague a world, And this were the one moment of surprise And sorrow while she took her station, pausing

O'er what she sees, finds good, and must destroy!

What gaze you at? Those? Books, I told you of;

Let your first word to me rejoice them, too: This minion, a Coluthus, writ in red Bistre and azure by Bessarion's scribe— Read this line . . . no, shame—Homer's be the Greek

First breathed me from the lips of my Greek girl!

This Odyssey in coarse black vivid type With faded yellow blossoms 'twixt page and page,

To mark great places with due gratitude ;
 " He said, and on Antinous directed
 " A bitter shaft" . . . a flower blots out the
 rest !

Again upon your search? My statues, then !
 —Ah, do not mind that—better that will
 look

When cast in bronze—an Almaign Kaiser, that, Swart-green and gold, with truncheon based on hip.

This, rather, turn to ! What, unrecognized?
 I thought you would have seen that here you sit

As I imagined you,—Hippolyta,
 Naked upon her bright Numidian horse.
 Recall you this then? "Carve in bold relief"—

So you commanded—"carve, against I come,
 "A Greek, in Athens, as our fashion was,
 "Feasting, bay-filleted and thunder-free,
 "Who rises 'neath the lifted myrtle-branch.
 " 'Praise those who slew Hipparchus !' cry
 the guests,

" 'While o'er thy head the singer's myrtle waves

" 'As erst above our champion : stand up,
 all !' "

See, I have laboured to express your thought.
 Quite round, a cluster of mere hands and arms,
 (Thrust in all senses, all ways, from all sides,
 Only consenting at the branch's end
 They strain toward) serves for frame to a sole
 face,

The Praiser's, in the centre : who with eyes
 Sightless, so bend they back to light inside
 His brain where visionary forms throng up,
 Sings, minding not that palpitating arch
 Of hands and arms, nor the quick drip of wine
 From the drenched leaves o'erhead, nor crowns cast off,

Violet and parsley crowns to trample on—
 Sings, pausing as the patron-ghosts approve,
 Devoutly their unconquerable hymn.

But you must say a "well" to that—say
 "well !"

Because you gaze—am I fantastic, sweet?
 Gaze like my very life's-stuff, marble—marbly
 Even to the silence ! Why, before I found

The real flesh Phene, I inured myself
 To see, throughout all nature, varied stuff
 For better nature's birth by means of art :
 With me, each substance tended to one form
 Of beauty—to the human archetype.
 On every side occurred suggestive germs
 Of that—the tree, the flower—or take the fruit,—

Some rosy shape, continuing the peach,
 Curved beewise o'er its bough ; as rosy limbs,
 Depending, nestled in the leaves ; and just
 From a cleft rose-peach the whole Dryad sprang.

But of the stuffs one can be master of,
 How I divined their capabilities !
 From the soft-rinded smoothening facile chalk
 That yields your outline to the air's embrace,
 Half-softened by a halo's pearly gloom ;
 Down to the crisp imperious steel, so sure
 To cut its one confided thought clean out Of all the world. But marble !—'neath my tools

More pliable than jelly—as it were Some clear primordial creature dug from depths

In the earth's heart, where itself breeds itself,
 And whence all baser substance may be worked ;

Refine it off to air, you may,—condense it
 Down to the diamond ;—is not metal there,
 When o'er the sudden speck my chisel trips?
 —Not flesh, as flake off flake I scale, approach,
 Lay bare those bluish veins of blood asleep?
 Lurks flame in no strange windings where, surprised

By the swift implement sent home at once,
 Flushes and glowings radiate and hover
 About its track ?

Phene? what—why is this?
 That whitening cheek, those still dilating
 eyes !

Ah, you will die—I knew that you would die !

PHENE begins, on his having long remained silent.

Now the end's coming ; to be sure, it must Have ended sometime ! Tush, why need I
 speak

*But lo, where I flung myself prone, couched
Love
Where the shadow threefold fell.
(The meaning—those black bride's-eyes
above,
Not a painter's lip should tell !)*

“And here,” said he, “Jules probably will ask,
“‘You have black eyes, Love,—you are, sure enough,
“‘My peerless bride,—then do you tell indeed “‘What needs some explanation! What means this?’”
—And I am to go on, without a word—

*So, I grew wise in Love and Hate,
From simple that I was of late.
Once, when I loved, I would enlase
Breast, eyelids, hands, feet, form and face
Of her I loved, in one embrace—
As if by mere love I could love immensely !
Once, when I hated, I would plunge
My sword, and wipe with the first lunge
My foe's whole life out like a sponge—
As if by mere hate I could hate intensely !
But now I am wiser, know better the fashion
How passion seeks aid from its opposite passion :
And if I see cause to love more, hate more
Than ever man loved, ever hated before—
And seek in the Valley of Love,
The nest, or the nook in Haté's Grove,
Where my soul may surely reach
The essence, nought less, of each,
The Hate of all Hates, the Love
Of all Loves, in the Valley or Grove,—
I find them the very warders
Back of the other's borders.
When I love most, Love is disguised
In Hate ; and when Hate is surprised
In Love, then I hate most : ask How Love smiles through Haté's iron
casque,
Hate grins through Love's rose-braided
mask,—
And how, having hated thee,
I sought long and painfully
To reach thy heart, nor prick
The skin but pierce to the quick—*

*Ask this, my Jules, and be answered straight
By thy bride—how the painter Lutwyche can hate !*

JULES interposes.

Lutwyche ! Who else ? But all of them, no doubt,
Hated me : they at Venice—presently
Their turn, however ! You I shall not meet :
If I dreamed, saying this would wake me.
Keep
What's here, the gold—we cannot meet again,
Consider ! and the money was but meant
For two years' travel, which is over now,
All chance or hope or care or need of it.
This—and what comes from selling these, my casts
And books and medals, except . . . let them go
Together, so the produce keeps you safe
Out of Natalia's clutches ! If by chance (For all's chance here) I should survive the gang
At Venice, root out all fifteen of them,
We might meet somewhere, since the world is wide.

[From without is heard the voice
of PIPPA, singing—

*Give her but a least excuse to love me !
When—where—
How—can this arm establish her above me,
If fortune fixed her as my lady there,
There already, to eternally reprove me ?
("Hist !"—said Kate the Queen ;
But "Oh !"—cried the maiden, binding
her tresses,
" 'Tis only a page that carols unseen,
"Crumbling your hounds their messes !")*

*Is she wronged ?—To the rescue of her honour,
My heart !
Is she poor ?—What costs it to be styled a donor ?
Merely an earth to cleave, a sea to part.
But that fortune should have thrust all this upon her !*

(*"Nay, list!"—bade Kate the Queen;
And still cried the maiden, binding her
tresses,
" 'Tis only a page that carols unseen,
" Fitting your hawks their jesses!"*)

[PIPPA passes.

JULES resumes.

What name was that the little girl sang forth?
Kate? The Cornaro, doubtless, who renounced

The crown of Cyprus to be lady here
At Asolo, where still her memory stays,
And peasants sing how once a certain page
Fined for the grace of her so far above
His power of doing good to, "Kate the Queen—

"She never could be wronged, be poor," he sighed,

"Need him to help her!"

Yes, a bitter thing
To see our lady above all need of us;
Yet so we look ere we will love; not I,
But the world looks so. If whoever loves
Must be, in some sort, god or worshipper,
The blessing or the blest one, queen or page,
Why should we always choose the page's part?
Here is a woman with utter need of me,—
I find myself queen here, it seems!

How strange!
Look at the woman here with the new soul,
Like my own Psyche,—fresh upon her lips
Alit, the visionary butterfly,
Waiting my word to enter and make bright,
Or flutter off and leave all blank as first.
This body had no soul before, but slept
Or stirred, was beautiful or ungainly, free
From taint or foul with stain, as outward things
Fastened their image on its passiveness:
Now, it will wake, feel, live—or die again!
Shall to produce form out of unshaped stuff
Be Art—and further, to evoke a soul From form be nothing? This new soul is
mine!

Now, to kill Lutwyche, what would that do?
—save

A wretched dauber, men will hoot to death

Without me, from their hooting. Oh, to hear
God's voice plain as I heard it first, before They broke in with their laughter! I heard
them

Henceforth, not God.

To Ancona—Greece—some isle!
I wanted silence only; there is clay Everywhere. One may do whate'er one likes

In Art: the only thing is, to make sure That one does like it—which takes pains to
know.

Scatter all this, my Phene—this mad
dream!

Who, what is Lutwyche, what Natalia's
friends,

What the whole world except our love—my
own,

Own Phene? But I told you, did I not,
Ere night we travel for your land—some isle

With the sea's silence on it? Stand aside—
I do but break these paltry models up

To begin Art afresh. Meet Lutwyche, I—
And save him from my statue meeting him?

Some unsuspected isle in the far seas!
Like a god going through his world, there

stands
One mountain for a moment in the dusk,
Whole brotherhoods of cedars on its brow:

And you are ever by me while I gaze
—Are in my arms as now—as now—as now!

Some unsuspected isle in the far seas!
Some unsuspected isle in far-off seas!

Talk by the way, while PIPPA is passing from Orcana to the Turret. Two or three of the Austrian Police loitering with BLUPHOCKS, an English vagabond, just in view of the Turret.

*Bluphocks.*¹ So, that is your Pippa, the little girl who passed us singing? Well, your Bishop's Intendant's money shall be honestly earned:—now, don't make me that

¹ "He maketh his sun to rise on the evil and on the good, and sendeth rain on the just and on the unjust."

sour face because I bring the Bishop's name into the business; we know he can have nothing to do with such horrors: we know that he is a saint and all that a bishop should be, who is a great man beside. Oh were but every worm a maggot, Every fly a grig, Every bough a Christmas faggot, Every tune a jig! In fact, I have abjured all religions; but the last I inclined to, was the Armenian: for I have travelled, do you see, and at Koenigsberg, Prussia Improper (so styled because there's a sort of bleak hungry sun there), you might remark over a venerable house-porch, a certain Chaldee inscription; and brief as it is, a mere glance at it used absolutely to change the mood of every bearded passenger. In they turned, one and all; the young and lightsome, with no irreverent pause, the aged and decrepit, with a sensible alacrity; 'twas the Grand Rabbi's abode, in short. Struck with curiosity, I lost no time in learning Syriac—(these are vowels, you dogs,—follow my stick's end in the mud—Celarent, Darii, Ferio!) and one morning presented myself, spelling-book in hand, a, b, c,—I picked it out letter by letter, and what was the purport of this miraculous posy? Some cherished legend of the past, you'll say—“How Moses hocus-pocussed Egypt's land with fly and locust,”—or, “How to Jonah sounded harshish, Get thee up and go to Tarshish,”—or, “How the angel meeting Balaam, Straight his ass returned a salaam.” In no wise! “Shacka-brack—Boach—somebody or other—Isaach; Re-cci-ver, Pur-cha-ser and Ex-chan-ger of—Stolen Goods!” So, talk to me of the religion of a bishop! I have renounced all bishops save Bishop Beveridge—mean to live so—and die—As some Greek dog-sage, dead and merry, Hellward bound in Charon's wherry, With food for both worlds, under and upper, Lupine-seed and Hecate's supper, And never an obolus . . . (Though thanks to you, or this Intendant through you, or this Bishop through his Intendant—I possess a burning pocketful of swansigers) . . . To pay the Stygian Ferry!

1st Policeman. There is the girl, then; go and deserve them the moment you have pointed out to us Signor Luigi and his mother. [To the rest.] I have been noticing a house yonder, this long while: not a shutter unclosed since morning!

2nd Policeman. Old Luca Gaddi's, that owns the silk-mills here: he dozes by the hour, wakes up, sighs deeply, says he should like to be Prince Metternich, and then dozes again, after having bidden young Sebald, the foreigner, set his wife to playing draughts. Never molest such a household, they mean well.

Bluphocks. Only, cannot you tell me something of this little Pippa, I must have to do with? One could make something of that name. Pippa—that is, short for Felippa—rhyming to Panurge consults Hertrippa—Believest thou, King Agrippa? Something might be done with that name.

2nd Policeman. Put into rhyme that your head and a ripe musk-melon would not be dear at half a swansiger! Leave this fooling, and look out; the afternoon's over or nearly so.

3rd Policeman. Where in this passport of Signor Luigi does our Principal instruct you to watch him so narrowly? There? What's there beside a simple signature? (That English fool's busy watching.)

2nd Policeman. Flourish all round—“Put all possible obstacles in his way;” oblong dot at the end—“Detain him till further advices reach you;” scratch at bottom—“Send him back on pretence of some informality in the above;” ink-spirt on right-hand side (which is the case here)—“Arrest him at once.” Why and wherefore, I don't concern myself, but my instructions amount to this: if Signor Luigi leaves home to-night for Vienna—well and good, the passport deposited with us for our visa is really for his own use, they have misinformed the Office, and he means well; but let him stay over to-night—there has been the pretence we suspect, the accounts of his corresponding and holding intelligence with the Carbonari are correct,

How should one in your state e'er bring to pass

What would require a cool head, a cold heart,
And a calm hand? You never will escape.

Luigi. Escape? To even wish that, would spoil all.

The dying is best part of it. Too much
Have I enjoyed these fifteen years of mine,
To leave myself excuse for longer life :
Was not life pressed down, running o'er with
joy,

That I might finish with it ere my fellows
Who, sparerier feasted, make a longer stay?
I was put at the board-head, helped to all
At first ; I rise up happy and content.
God must be glad one loves his world so
much.

I can give news of earth to all the dead
Who ask me :—last year's sunsets, and great stars

Which had a right to come first and see ebb
The crimson wave that drifts the sun away—
Those crescent moons with notched and burning rims

That strengthened into sharp fire, and there stood,

Impatient of the azure—and that day
In March, a double rainbow stopped the storm—

May's warm slow yellow moonlit summer
nights—

Gone are they, but I have them in my soul !

Mother. (He will not go !)

Luigi. You smile at me?
'Tis true,—

Voluptuousness, grotesqueness, ghastliness,
Environ my devotedness as quaintly
As round about some antique altar wreath
The rose festoons, goats' horns, and oxen's skulls.

Mother. See now : you reach the city, you must cross

His threshold—how ?

Luigi. Oh, that's if we conspired !
Then would come pains in plenty, as you guess—

But guess not how the qualities most fit
For such an office, qualities I have,

Would little stead me, otherwise employed,
Yet prove of rarest merit only here.

Every one knows for what his excellence
Will serve, but no one ever will consider
For what his worst defect might serve : and yet
Have you not seen me range our coppice yonder

In search of a distorted ash?—I find
The wry spoilt branch a natural perfect bow.
Fancy the thrice - sage, thrice -precautioned
man

Arriving at the palace on my errand !

No, no ! I have a handsome dress packed
up—

White satin here, to set off my black hair ;
In I shall march—for you may watch your life out

Behind thick walls, make friends there to betray you ;

More than one man spoils everything.
March straight—

Only, no clumsy knife to fumble for.

Take the great gate and walk (not saunter)
on

Thro' guards and guards——I have rehearsed
it all

Inside the turret here a hundred times.

Don't ask the way of whom you meet, observe !

But where they cluster thickliest is the door
Of doors ; they'll let you pass—they'll never blab

Each to the other, he knows not the favourite,
Whence he is bound and what's his business
now.

Walk in—straight up to him ; you have no
knife :

Be prompt, how should he scream? Then, out with you !

Italy, Italy, my Italy !

You're free, you're free ! Oh mother, I could
dream

They got about me—Andrea from his exile, Pier from his dungeon, Gualtier from his grave !

Mother. Well, you shall go. Yet seems this patriotism

The easiest virtue for a selfish man

To acquire : he loves himself—and next, the world—

If he must love beyond, — but nought between :

As a short-sighted man sees nought midway
His body and the sun above. But you Are my adored Luigi, ever obedient
To my least wish, and running o'er with love :

I could not call you cruel or unkind.
Once more, your ground for killing him !—
then go !

Luigi. Now do you try me, or make sport of me ?

How first the Austrians got these provinces . . .

(If that is all, I'll satisfy you soon)

—Never by conquest but by cunning, for
That treaty whereby . . .

Mother. Well ?

Luigi. (Sure, he's arrived,

The tell-tale cuckoo : spring's his confidant,
And he lets out her April purposes !)

Or . . . better go at once to modern time,
He has . . . they have . . . in fact, I understand

But can't restate the matter ; that's my boast :
Others could reason it out to you, and prove Things they have made me feel.

Mother. Why go to-night ?

Morn's for adventure. Jupiter is now
A morning-star. I cannot hear you, Luigi !

Luigi. "I am the bright and morning-star," saith God—

And, "to such an one I give the morning-star."
The gift of the morning-star ! Have I God's gift

Of the morning-star ?

Mother. Chiara will love to see
That Jupiter an evening-star next June.

Luigi. True, mother. Well for those who live through June !

Great noontides, thunder-storms, all glaring pomps

That triumph at the heels of June the god
Leading his revel through our leafy world.
Yes, Chiara will be here.

Mother. In June : remember,
Yourself appointed that month for her coming.

Luigi. Was that low noise the echo ?

Mother. The night-wind.
She must be grown—with her blue eyes upturned

As if life were one long and sweet surprise :
In June she comes.

Luigi. We were to see together
The Titian at Treviso. There, again !

[From without is heard the voice
of PIPPA, singing—

*A king lived long ago,
In the morning of the world,
When earth was nigher heaven than now :
And the king's locks curled,
Disparting o'er a forehead full
As the milk-white space 'twixt horn and horn*

*Of some sacrificial bull—
Only calm as a babe new-born :
For he was got to a sleepy mood,
So safe from all decrepitude,
Age with its bane, so sure gone by,
(The gods so loved him while he dreamed)
That, having lived thus long, there seemed
No need the king should ever die.*

Luigi. No need that sort of king should ever die !

*Among the rocks his city was :
Before his palace, in the sun,
He sat to see his people pass,
And judge them every one
From its threshold of smooth stone.
They haled him many a valley-thief
Caught in the sheep-pens, robber-chief
Swarthy and shameless, beggar-cheat,
Spy-prowler, or rough pirate found
On the sea-sand left aground ;
And sometimes clung about his feet,
With bleeding lip and burning cheek,
A woman, bitterest wrong to speak
Of one with sullen thickset brows :
And sometimes from the prison-house
The angry priests a pale wretch brought,
Who through some chink had pushed and
pressed
On knees and elbows, belly and breast,
Worm-like into the temple,—caught*

*He was by the very god,
Who ever in the darkness strode
Backward and forward, keeping watch
O'er his brazen bowls, such rogues to catch!
These, all and every one,
The king judged, sitting in the sun.*

Luigi. That king should still judge sitting in the sun !

*His councillors, on left and right,
Looked anxious up,—but no surprise
Disturbed the king's o'd smiling eyes
Where the very blue had turned to white.
'Tis said, a Python scared one day
The breathless city, till he came,
With forky tongue and eyes on flame,
Where the old king sat to judge alway;
But when he saw the sweepy hair
Girt with a crown of berries rare
Which the god will hardly give to wear
To the maiden who singeth, dancing bare
In the altar-smoke by the pine-torch lights,
At his wondrous forest rites,—
Seeing this, he did not dare
Approach that threshold in the sun,
Assault the old king smiling there.
Such grace had kings when the world begun !*

[PIPPA passes.

Luigi. And such grace have they, now that the world ends !

The Python at the city, on the throne,
And brave men, God would crown for slaying him,

Lurk in bye-corners lest they fall his prey.
Are crowns yet to be won in this late time,
Which weakness makes me hesitate to reach?
'Tis God's voice calls: how could I stay?
Farewell !

*Talk by the way, while PIPPA is passing from the Turret to the Bishop's Brother's House, close to the Duomo S. Maria.
Poor Girls sitting on the steps.*

1st Girl. There goes a swallow to Venice
—the stout seafarer !

Seeing those birds fly, makes one wish for wings.

Let us all wish ; you wish first !

2nd Girl. I? This sunset
To finish.

3rd Girl. That old—somebody I know,
Greyer and older than my grandfather,
To give me the same treat he gave last week—
Feeding me on his knee with fig-peckers, Lampreys and red Breganze-wine, and mumbling

The while some folly about how well I fare,
Let sit and eat my supper quietly :
Since had he not himself been late this morning Detained at—never mind where,—had he
not . . .

“Eh, baggage, had I not !”—

2nd Girl. How she can lie !

3rd Girl. Look there—by the nails !

2nd Girl. What makes your fingers red !

3rd Girl. Dipping them into wine to write bad words with

On the bright table : how he laughed !

1st Girl. My turn.

Spring's come and summer's coming. I would wear

A long loose gown, down to the feet and
hands,

With plaits here, close about the throat, all
day ;

And all night lie, the cool long nights, in bed ;

And have new milk to drink, apples to eat,
Deuzans and junetings, leather-coats . . .

ah, I should say,

This is away in the fields—miles !

3rd Girl. Say at once

You'd be at home : she'd always be at home !

Now comes the story of the farm among

The cherry orchards, and how April snowed
White blossoms on her as she ran. Why,

fool,

They've rubbed the chalk-mark out, how tall
you were,

Twisted your starling's neck, broken his cage,
Made a dung-hill of your garden !

1st Girl.

They, destroy

My garden since I left them? well—perhaps !

I would have done so : so I hope they have !

A fig-tree curled out of our cottage wall ;

weather: but I am a Sicilian, you know, and shiver in your Julys here. To be sure, when 'twas full summer at Messina, as we priests used to cross in procession the great square on Assumption Day, you might see our thickest yellow tapers twist suddenly in two, each like a falling star, or sink down on themselves in a gore of wax. But go, my friends, but go! [To the Intendant.] Not you, Ugo! [The others leave the apartment.] I have long wanted to converse with you, Ugo.

Intendant. Uguccio—

Monsignor. . . . 'guccio Stefani, man! of Ascoli, Fermo and Fossombruno;—what I do need instructing about, are these accounts of your administration of my poor brother's affairs. Ugh! I shall never get through a third part of your accounts: take some of these dainties before we attempt it, however. Are you bashful to that degree? For me, a crust and water suffice.

Intendant. Do you choose this especial night to question me?

Monsignor. This night, Ugo. You have managed my late brother's affairs since the death of our elder brother: fourteen years and a month, all but three days. On the Third of December, I find him . . .

Intendant. If you have so intimate an acquaintance with your brother's affairs, you will be tender of turning so far back: they will hardly bear looking into, so far back.

Monsignor. Ay, ay, ugh, ugh,—nothing but disappointments here below! I remark a considerable payment made to yourself on this Third of December. Talk of disappointments! There was a young fellow here, Jules, a foreign sculptor I did my utmost to advance, that the Church might be a gainer by us both: he was going on hopefully enough, and of a sudden he notifies to me some marvellous change that has happened in his notions of Art. Here's his letter, "He never had a clearly conceived Ideal within his brain till to-day. Yet since his hand could manage a chisel, he has practised expressing other men's Ideals; and, in the very perfection he has attained to, he foresees an ultimate failure: his unconscious hand will pursue its prescribed course of old years, and will reproduce with a fatal expertness the ancient types, let the novel one appear never so palpably to his spirit. There is but one method of escape: confiding the virgin type to as chaste a hand, he will turn painter instead of sculptor, and paint, not carve, its characteristics,"—strike out, I dare say, a school like Correggio: how think you, Ugo?

Intendant. Is Correggio a painter?

Monsignor. Foolish Jules! and yet, after all, why foolish? He may—probably will—fail egregiously; but if there should arise a new painter, will it not be in some such way, by a poet now, or a musician (spirits who have conceived and perfected an Ideal through some other channel), transferring it to this, and escaping our conventional roads by pure ignorance of them; eh, Ugo? If you have no appetite, talk at least, Ugo!

Intendant. Sir, I can submit no longer to this course of yours. First, you select the group of which I formed one,—next you thin it gradually,—always retaining me with your smile,—and so do you proceed till you have fairly got me alone with you between four stone walls. And now then? Let this farce, this chatter end now: what is it you want with me?

Monsignor. Ugo!

Intendant. From the instant you arrived, I felt your smile on me as you questioned me about this and the other article in those papers—why your brother should have given me this villa, that podere,—and your nod at the end meant,—what?

Monsignor. Possibly that I wished for no loud talk here. If once you set me coughing, Ugo!—

Intendant. I have your brother's hand and seal to all I possess: now ask me what for! what service I did him—ask me!

Monsignor. I would better not: I should rip up old disgraces, let out my poor brother's weaknesses. By the way, Maffeo of Forli (which, I forgot to observe, is your true name), was the interdict ever taken off you, for robbing that church at Cesena?

Intendant. No, nor needs be: for when I murdered your brother's friend, Pasquale, for him . . .

Monsignor. Ah, he employed you in that business, did he? Well, I must let you keep, as you say, this villa and that podere, for fear the world should find out my relations were of so indifferent a stamp? Maffeo, my family is the oldest in Messina, and century after century have my progenitors gone on polluting themselves with every wickedness under heaven: my own father . . . rest his soul! —I have, I know, a chapel to support that it may rest: my dear two dead brothers were, —what you know tolerably well; I, the youngest, might have rivalled them in vice, if not in wealth: but from my boyhood I came out from among them, and so am not partaker of their plagues. My glory springs from another source; or if from this, by contrast only,—for I, the bishop, am the brother of your employers, Ugo. I hope to repair some of their wrong, however; so far as my brother's ill-gotten treasure reverts to me, I can stop the consequences of his crime: and not one soldo shall escape me. Maffeo, the sword we quiet men spurn away, you shrewd knaves pick up and commit murders with; what opportunities the virtuous forego, the villanous seize. Because, to pleasure myself apart from other considerations, my food would be millet-cake, my dress sackcloth, and my couch straw,—am I therefore to let you, the offscouring of the earth, seduce the poor and ignorant by appropriating a pomp these will be sure to think lessens the abominations so unaccountably and exclusively associated with it? Must I let villas and poderi go to you, a murderer and thief, that you may beget by means of them other murderers and thieves? No—if my cough would but allow me to speak!

Intendant. What am I to expect? You are going to punish me?

Monsignor. —Must punish you, Maffeo. I cannot afford to cast away a chance. I have whole centuries of sin to redeem, and only a month or two of life to do it in. How should I dare to say . . .

Intendant. “Forgive us our trespasses”?

Monsignor. My friend, it is because I avow myself a very worm, sinful beyond measure, that I reject a line of conduct you would applaud perhaps. Shall I proceed, as it were, a-pardoning?—I?—who have no symptom of reason to assume that aught less than my strenuousest efforts will keep myself out of mortal sin, much less keep others out. No: I do trespass, but will not double that by allowing you to trespass.

Intendant. And suppose the villas are not your brother's to give, nor yours to take? Oh, you are hasty enough just now!

Monsignor. 1, 2—N^o 3!—ay, can you read the substance of a letter, N^o 3, I have received from Rome? It is precisely on the ground there mentioned, of the suspicion I have that a certain child of my late elder brother, who would have succeeded to his estates, was murdered in infancy by you, Maffeo, at the instigation of my late younger brother—that the Pontiff enjoins on me not merely the bringing that Maffeo to condign punishment, but the taking all pains, as guardian of the infant's heritage for the Church, to recover it parcel by parcel, howsoever, whensoever, and wheresoever. While you are now gnawing those fingers, the police are engaged in sealing up your papers, Maffeo, and the mere raising my voice brings my people from the next room to dispose of yourself. But I want you to confess quietly, and save me raising my voice. Why, man, do I not know the old story? The heir between the succeeding heir, and this heir's ruffianly instrument, and their complot's effect, and the life of fear and bribes and ominous smiling silence? Did you throttle or stab my brother's infant? Come now!

Intendant. So old a story, and tell it no better? When did such an instrument ever produce such an effect? Either the child smiles in his face; or, most likely, he is not fool enough to put himself in the employer's power so thoroughly: the child is always ready to produce—as you say—howsoever, wheresoever, and whensoever.

Monsignor. Liar!

Intendant. Strike me? Ah, so might a father chastise! I shall sleep soundly to-night at least, though the gallows await me to-morrow; for what a life did I lead! Carlo of Cesena reminds me of his connivance, every time I pay his annuity; which happens commonly thrice a year. If I remonstrate, he will confess all to the good bishop—you!

Monsignor. I see through the trick, caitiff! I would you spoke truth for once. All shall be sifted, however—seven times sifted.

Intendant. And how my absurd riches encumbered me! I dared not lay claim to above half my possessions. Let me but once unbosom myself, glorify Heaven, and die!

Sir, you are no brutal dastardly idiot like your brother I frightened to death: let us understand one another. Sir, I will make away with her for you—the girl—here close at hand; not the stupid obvious kind of killing; do not speak—know nothing of her nor of me! I see her every day—saw her this morning: of course there is to be no killing; but at Rome the courtesans perish off every three years, and I can entice her thither—have indeed begun operations already. There's a certain lusty blue-eyed florid-complexioned English knave, I and the Police employ occasionally. You assent, I perceive—no, that's not it—assent I do not say—but you will let me convert my present havings and holdings into cash, and give me time to cross the Alps? 'Tis but a little black-eyed pretty singing Felippa, gay silk-winding girl. I have kept her out of harm's way up to this present; for I always intended to make your life a plague to you with her. 'Tis as well settled once and for ever. Some women I have procured will pass Bluphocks, my handsome scoundrel, off for somebody; and once Pippa entangled!—you conceive? Through her singing? Is it a bargain?

[From without is heard the voice of PIPPA, singing—

*Overhead the tree-tops meet,
Flowers and grass spring 'neath one's feet;
There was nought above me, nought below,
My childhood had not learned to know:
For, what are the voices of birds
—Ay, and of beasts,—but words, our words,
Only so much more sweet?
The knowledge of that with my life begun.
But I had so near made out the sun,
And counted your stars, the seven and one,
Like the fingers of my hand:
Nay, I could all but understand Wherefore through heaven the white moon ranges;
And just when out of her soft fifty changes
No unfamiliar face might overlook me—
Suddenly God took me.*

[PIPPA passes.

Monsignor [springing up]. My people—one and all—all—within there! Gag this villain—tie him hand and foot! He dares
. . . I know not half he dares—but remove him—quick! Miserere mei, Domine! Quick,
I say!

SCENE.—PIPPA'S chamber again. She enters it.

The bee with his comb,
The mouse at her dray,
The grub in his tomb,
Wile winter away;
But the fire-fly and hedge-shrew and lob-worm, I pray,
How fare they?
Ha, ha, thanks for your counsel, my Zanze!
“Feast upon lampreys, quaff Breganze”—
The summer of life so easy to spend,
And care for to-morrow so soon put away!
But winter hastens at summer's end,
And fire-fly, hedge-shrew, lob-worm, pray,
How fare they?
No bidding me then to . . . what did Zanze
say?

 Adjourn to the oak-stump pantry !

 Now, one thing I should like to really
 know :
 How near I ever might approach all these
 I only fancied being, this long day :
 —Approach, I mean, so as to touch them, so As to . . . in some way . . . move them—
 if you please,
 Do good or evil to them some slight way.
 For instance, if I wind
 Silk to-morrow, my silk may bind

And border Ottima's cloak's hem.
 Ah me, and my important part with them,
 This morning's hymn half promised when I

 True in some sense or other, I suppose.

 God bless me ! I can pray no more to-night.
 No doubt, some way or other, hymns say
 right.

KING VICTOR AND KING CHARLES ;

A TRAGEDY.

1842.

[Victor Amadeus II., originally Duke of Savoy, obtained the title of King of Sardinia in 1720. He was a powerful and self-willed man, and a sagacious sovereign. Saddened by the death of his eldest and favourite son, and of his daughter, the Queen of Spain, he began to meditate abdication in favour of his son Charles. In 1728, after the death of his first wife, and upon his marriage with a second, he carried out his design and withdrew with his lady to his castle at Chambery, where they both soon began to repent their conduct and to be sick of ennui. In 1731 King Charles was told that his father was on his way to Turin to take up his old post as king ; but when father and son met, the former repudiated the notion, and alleged health as the sole ground of his return to the capital. King Charles placed the castle of Moncagliero at his father's disposal, where, however, King Victor resumed his intrigues, and at last demanded that his deed of resignation should be delivered up to be cancelled. King Charles felt the position very keenly, and vacillated a good deal ; but finally he concurred in the opinion of his Council that there was nothing for it but to put the old king under arrest, which was done under the direction of the Marquis D'Ormea. King Victor died shortly afterwards, namely, in October 1732.]

NOTE.

So far as I know, this Tragedy is the first artistic consequence of what Voltaire termed "a terrible event without consequences ;" and although it professes to be historical, I have taken more pains to arrive at the history than most readers would thank me for particularizing : since acquainted, as I will hope them to be, with the chief circumstances of Victor's remarkable European career—nor quite ignorant of the sad and surprising facts I am about to reproduce (a tolerable account of which is to be found, for instance, in Abbé Roman's Récit, or even the fifth of Lord Orrery's Letters from Italy)—I cannot expect them to be versed, nor desirous of becoming so, in all the detail of the memoirs, correspondence, and relations of the time. From these only may be obtained a knowledge of the fiery and audacious temper, unscrupulous selfishness, profound dissimulation, and singular fertility in resources, of Victor—the extreme and painful sensibility, prolonged immaturity of powers, earnest good purpose and vacillating will of Charles—the noble and right woman's manliness of his wife—and the ill-considered rascality and subsequent better-advised rectitude of D'Ormea. When I say, therefore, that I cannot but believe my statement (combining as it does what appears correct in Voltaire and plausible in Condorcet) more true to person and thing than any it has hitherto been my fortune to meet with, no doubt my word will be taken, and my evidence spared as readily. R. B.

LONDON : 1842.

KING VICTOR AND KING CHARLES.

PERSONS.

VICTOR AMADEUS, first King of Sardinia.
CHARLES EMMANUEL, his son, Prince of Piedmont.
POLYXENA, wife of Charles.
D'ORMEA, minister.

TIME, 1730-1731.

FIRST YEAR, 1730.—KING VICTOR.

PART I.

CHARLES, POLYXENA.

Charles. You think so? Well, I do not.

Polyxena. My beloved,

All must clear up ; we shall be happy yet :
This cannot last for ever—oh, may change
To-day or any day !

Charles. —May change? Ah yes—
May change !

Polyxena. Endure it, then.

Charles. No doubt, a life
Like this drags on, now better and now worse.
My father may . . . may take to loving me ;
And he may take D'Ormea closer yet
To counsel him ;—may even cast off her —That bad Sebastian ; but he also may . . . Or no, Polyxena, my only friend,
He may not force you from me ?

Polyxena. Now, force me
From you !—me, close by you as if there gloomed
No Sebastians, no D'Ormeas on our path—
At Rivoli or Turin, still at hand, Arch-counsellor, prime confidant . . . force
me !

Charles. Because I felt as sure, as I feel sure
We clasp hands now, of being happy once.
Young was I, quite neglected, nor concerned
By the world's business that engrossed so
much

My father and my brother : if I peered
From out my privacy,—amid the crash
And blaze of nations, domineered those two.
'Twas war, peace—France our foe, now—
England, friend—

In love with Spain—at feud with Austria !
Well—
I wondered, laughed a moment's laugh for
pride

In the chivalrous couple, then let drop
My curtain—" I am out of it," I said—
When . . .

Polyxena. You have told me, Charles.

Charles. Polyxena—
When suddenly,—a warm March day, just
that !

Just so much sunshine as the cottage child
Basks in delighted, while the cottager
Takes off his bonnet, as he ceases work,
To catch the more of it—and it must fall
Heavily on my brother ! Had you seen
Philip—the lion-featured ! not like me !

Polyxena. I know—

Charles. And Philip's mouth
yet fast to mine,
His dead cheek on my cheek, his arm still
round

My neck,—they bade me rise, " for I was heir
" To the Duke," they said, " the right hand of the Duke : "

Till then he was my father, not the Duke.
So . . . let me finish . . . the whole intricate World's-business their dead boy was born to, I Must conquer,—ay, the brilliant thing he was,
I, of a sudden must be : my faults, my follies,
—All bitter truths were told me, all at once,
To end the sooner. What I simply styled
Their overlooking me, had been contempt :
How should the Duke employ himself, for-
sooth,

With such an one, while lordly Philip rode By him their Turin through? But he was punished,

And must put up with—me ! 'Twas sad
enough

To learn my future portion and submit.
And then the wear and worry, blame on
blame !

For, spring-sounds in my ears, spring-smells
about,

How could I but grow dizzy in their pent
Dim palace-rooms at first? My mother's look
As they discussed my insignificance,

She and my father, and I sitting by,—
I bore ; I knew how brave a son they missed :

Philip had gaily run state-papers through,
While Charles was spelling at them painfully !

But Victor was my father spite of that.
" Duke Victor's entire life has been," I said,

" Innumerable efforts to one end ;
" And on the point now of that end's success,

" Our Ducal turning to a Kingly crown,
" Where's time to be reminded 'tis his child

" He spurns ? " And so I suffered—scarcely suffered,

Since I had you at length !

Polyxena. —To serve in place
Of monarch, minister, and mistress, Charles.

Charles. But, once that crown obtained, then wasn't not like

Head sunk on hand, devoured by slow chagrins

—Then radiant, for a crown had all at once
Seemed possible again! I can behold
Him, whose least whisper ties my spirit fast,
In this sweet brow, nought could divert me from

Save objects like Sebastian's shameless lip,
Or worse, the clipped grey hair and dead
white face

And dwindling eye as if it ached with guile,
D'Ormea wears . . .

[As he kisses her, enter from the KING'S apartment D'ORMEA.]

I said he would divert
My kisses from your brow!

D'Ormea [aside]. Here! So, King
Victor

Spoke truth for once: and who's ordained, but I

To make that memorable? Both in call,
As he declared. Were't better gnash the teeth,

Or laugh outright now?

Charles [to POLYXENA]. What's his visit
for?

D'Ormea [aside]. I question if they even speak to me.

Polyxena [to CHARLES]. Face the man!
He'll suppose you fear him, else.

[Aloud.] The Marquis bears the King's command, no doubt?

D'Ormea [aside]. Precisely!—If I threatened him, perhaps?

Well, this at least is punishment enough!
Men used to promise punishment would come.

Charles. Deliver the King's message,
Marquis!

D'Ormea [aside]. Ah—
So anxious for his fate? [Aloud.] A word,

my Prince,
Before you see your father—just one word
Of counsel!

Charles. Oh, your counsel certainly!

Polyxena, the Marquis counsels us!

Well, sir? Be brief, however!

D'Ormea. What? You know
As much as I?—preceded me, most like,

In knowledge! So! ('Tis in his eye, beside—

His voice: he knows it, and his heart's on flame

Already.) You surmise why you, myself,
Del Borgo, Spava, fifty nobles more,
Are summoned thus?

Charles. Is the Prince used to know,
At any time, the pleasure of the King,
Before his minister?—Polyxena,

Stay here till I conclude my task: I feel
Your presence (smile not) through the walls, and take

Freshheart. The King's within that chamber?

D'Ormea [passing the table whereon a paper lies, exclaims, as he glances at it]. "Spain!"

Polyxena [aside to CHARLES]. Tarry awhile:
what ails the minister?

D'Ormea. Madam, I do not often trouble
you.

The Prince loathes, and you scorn me—let that pass!

But since it touches him and you, not me,
Bid the Prince listen!

Polyxena [to CHARLES]. Surely you will listen!

—Deceit?—those fingers crumpling up his vest?

Charles. Deceitful to the very fingers' ends!

D'Ormea [who has approached them, overlooks the other paper CHARLES continues to hold]. My project for the Fiefs! As I supposed!

Sir, I must give you light upon those measures —For this is mine, and that I spied of Spain,
Mine too!

Charles. Release me! Do you gloze on me
Who bear in the world's face (that is, the world
You make for me at Turin) your contempt?

—Your measures?—When was not a hateful
task

D'Ormea's imposition? Leave my robe!
What post can I bestow, what grant concede?
Or do you take me for the King?

D'Ormea. Not I!
Not yet for King,—not for, as yet, thank God,
One who in . . . shall I say a year, a month?

Ay!—shall be wretcheder than e'er was slave
In his Sardinia.—Europe's spectacle
And the world's bye-word! What? The Prince aggrieved

That I excluded him our counsels? Here

[Touching the paper in CHARLES'S hand.
Accept a method of extorting gold
From Savoy's nobles, who must wring its worth
In silver first from tillers of the soil,
Whose hinds again have to contribute brass
To make up the amount: there's counsel, sir,
My counsel, one year old; and the fruit,
this—

Savoy's become a mass of misery
And wrath, which one man has to meet—
the King:

You're not the King! Another counsel, sir!
Spain entertains a project (here it lies)
Which, guessed, makes Austria offer that same King

Thus much to baffle Spain; he promises;
Then comes Spain, breathless lest she be forestalled,

Her offer follows; and he promises . . .

Charles. —Promises, sir, when he has just agreed

To Austria's offer?

D'Ormea. That's a counsel, Prince!
But past our foresight, Spain and Austria (choosing

To make their quarrel up between themselves
Without the intervention of a friend)

Produce both treaties, and both promises . . .

Charles. How?

D'Ormea. Prince, a counsel! And the fruit of that?

Both parties covenant afresh, to fall
Together on their friend, blot out his name,
Abolish him from Europe. So, take note,
Here's Austria and here's Spain to fight against:

And what sustains the King but Savoy here,
A miserable people mad with wrongs?

You're not the King!

Charles. Polyxena, you said
All would clear up: all does clear up to me.

D'Ormea. Clear up! 'Tis no such thing to envy, then?

VOL. I.

You see the King's state in its length and breadth?

You blame me now for keeping you aloof
From counsels and the fruit of counsels?

Wait

Till I explain this morning's business!

Charles [aside]. No—

Stoop to my father, yes,—D'Ormea, no:

—The King's son, not to the King's counsellor!

I will do something, but at least retain
The credit of my deed. [Aloud.] Then it is
this

You now expressly come to tell me?

D'Ormea. This

To tell! You apprehend me?

Charles. Perfectly.

Further, D'Ormea, you have shown yourself,
For the first time these many weeks and months,

Disposed to do my bidding?

D'Ormea. From the heart!

Charles. Acquaint my father, first, I wait his pleasure:

Next . . . or, I'll tell you at a fitter time.

Acquaint the King!

D'Ormea [aside]. If I 'scape Victor yet!

First, to prevent this stroke at me: if not,—

Then, to avenge it! [To CHARLES.] Gracious sir, I go. [Goes.

Charles. God, I forbore! Which more offends, that man

Or that man's master? Is it come to this?

Have they supposed (the sharpest insult yet)

I needed e'en his intervention? No!

No—dull am I, conceded,—but so dull,

Scarcely! Their step decides me.

Polyxena. How decides?

Charles. You would be freed D'Ormea's eye and hers?

—Could fly the court with me and live content?

So, this it is for which the knights assemble!

The whispers and the closeting of late,

The savageness and insolence of old,

—For this!

Polyxena. What mean you?

Charles. How? You fail to catch

P

Their clever plot? I missed it, but could you?
 These last two months of care to inculcate
 How dull I am,—D'Ormea's present visit
 To prove that, being dull, I might be worse
 Were I a King—as wretched as now dull—
 You recognize in it no winding up
 Of a long plot?

Polyxena. Why should there be a plot?

Charles. The crown's secure now; I should shame the crown—

An old complaint; the point is, how to gain
 My place for one, more fit in Victor's eyes,
 His mistress the Sebastian's child.

Polyxena. In truth?

Charles. They dare not quite dethrone
 Sardinia's Prince:

But they may descant on my dulness till
 They sting me into even praying them
 Grant leave to hide my head, resign my state,
 And end the coil. Not see now? In a word,
 They'd have me tender them myself my rights
 As one incapable;—some cause for that,
 Since I delayed thus long to see their drift!
 I shall apprise the King he may resume
 My rights this moment.

Polyxena. Pause! I dare not think
 So ill of Victor.

Charles. Think no ill of him!

Polyxena.—Nor think him, then, so shallow as to suffer

His purpose be divined thus easily.
 And yet—you are the last of a great line;
 There's a great heritage at stake; new days
 Seemed to await this newest of the realms
 Of Europe:—Charles, you must withstand
 this!

Charles. Ah—

You dare not then renounce the splendid Court
 For one whom all the world despises? Speak!

Polyxena. My gentle husband, speak I will,
 and truth.

Were this as you believe, and I once sure
 Your duty lay in so renouncing rule,
 I could . . . could? Oh what happiness it were—

To live, my Charles, and die, alone with you!

Charles. I grieve I asked you. To the presence, then!

By this, D'Ormea acquaints the King, no
 doubt,

He fears I am too simple for mere hints,
 And that no less will serve than Victor's mouth
 Demonstrating in council what I am.

I have not breathed, I think, these many years!

Polyxena. Why, it may be!—if he desire to wed

That woman, call legitimate her child.

Charles. You see as much? Oh, let his will have way!

You'll not repent confiding in me, love?
 There's many a brighter spot in Piedmont, far,

Than Rivoli. I'll seek him: or, suppose
 You hear first how I mean to speak my mind?

—Loudly and firmly both, this time, be sure!
 I yet may see your Rhine-land, who can tell?

Once away, ever then away! I breathe.

Polyxena. And I too breathe.

Charles. Come, my Polyxena!

KING VICTOR.

PART II.

Enter King VICTOR, bearing the Regalia on a cushion, from his apartment. He calls loudly.

Victor. D'Ormea!—for patience fails me, treading thus

Among the obscure trains I have laid,—my knights

Safe in the hall here—in that anteroom,
 My son,—D'Ormea, where? Of this, one touch— [Laying down the crown.

This fireball to these mute black cold trains
 —then

Outbreak enough!

[Contemplating it.] To lose all, after all!

This, glancing o'er my house for ages—shaped,

Brave meteor, like the crown of Cyprus now,
 Jerusalem, Spain, England, every change

The braver,—and when I have clutched a prize

My ancestry died wan with watching for,

Think to escape the sea's black trough in turn?

Apply this : you have been my minister
—Next me, above me possibly ;—sad post,
Huge care, abundant lack of peace of mind ;
Who would desiderate the eminence ?
You gave your soul to get it ; you'd yet give Your soul to keep it, as I mean you shall,
D'Ormea ! What if the wave ebbed with me ?
Whereas it cants you to another crest ;
I toss you to my son ; ride out your ride !

D'Ormea. Ah, you so much despise me ?

Victor. You, D'Ormea ?

Nowise : and I'll inform you why. A king
Must in his time have many ministers,
And I've been rash enough to part with mine
When I thought proper. Of the tribe, not one (. . . Or wait, did Pianezze ?—ah, just the same !)

Not one of them, ere his remonstrance reached
The length of yours, but has assured me (commonly

Standing much as you stand,—or nearer, say,
The door to make his exit on his speech)

—I should repent of what I did. D'Ormea,
Be candid, you approached it when I bade
you

Prepare the schedules ! But you stopped in
time,

You have not so assured me : how should I
Despise you then ?

Enter CHARLES.

Victor [changing his tone]. Are you instructed ? Do

My order, point by point ! About it, sir !

D'Ormea. You so despise me ! [Aside.]

One last stay remains—

The boy's discretion there.

[To CHARLES.] For your sake, Prince,
I pleaded, wholly in your interest,
To save you from this fate !

Charles [aside]. Must I be told

The Prince was supplicated for—by him ?

Victor [to D'ORMEA]. Apprise Del Borgo,
Spava, and the rest,

Our son attends them ; then return.

D'Ormea. One word !

Charles [aside]. A moment's pause and they would drive me hence,

I do believe !

D'Ormea [aside]. Let but the boy be firm !

Victor. You disobey ?

Charles [to D'ORMEA]. You do not disobey
Me, at least ? Did you promise that or no ?

D'Ormea. Sir, I am yours : what would you ? Yours am I !

Charles. When I have said what I shall say,
'tis like

Your face will ne'er again disgust me. Go !

Through you, as through a breast of glass, I see.

And for your conduct, from my youth till now,

Take my contempt ! You might have spared me much,

Secured me somewhat, nor so harmed your-
self :

That's over now. Go, ne'er to come again !

D'Ormea. As son, the father—father as, the son !

My wits ! My wits ! [Goes.]

Victor [seated]. And you, what meant you, pray,

Speaking thus to D'Ormea ?

Charles. Let us not Waste words upon D'Ormea ! Those I spent

Have half unsettled what I came to say.

His presence vexes to my very soul.

Victor. One called to manage a kingdom,

Charles, needs heart

To bear up under worse annoyances

Than seems D'Ormea—to me, at least.

Charles [aside]. Ah, good !

He keeps me to the point. Then be it so.

[Aloud.] Last night, sir, brought me certain papers—these—

To be reported on,—your way of late.

Is it last night's result that you demand ?

Victor. For God's sake, what has night brought forth ? Pronounce

The . . . what's your word ?—result !

Charles. Sir, that had proved

Quite worthy of your sneer, no doubt :—a few Lame thoughts, regard for you alone could

wring,

Lame as they are, from brains like mine, believe !

As 'tis, sir, I am spared both toil and sneer.
These are the papers.

Victor. Well, sir? I suppose You hardly burned them. Now for your result!

Charles. I never should have done great things of course,
But . . . oh my father, had you loved me
more!

Victor. Loved? [Aside.] Has D'Ormea played me false, I wonder?

[Aloud.] Why, Charles, a king's love is diffused—yourself

May overlook, perchance, your part in it.
Our monarchy is absolutest now

In Europe, or my trouble's thrown away.
I love, my mode, that subjects each and all

May have the power of loving, all and each,
Their mode: I doubt not, many have their sons

To trifle with, talk soft to, all day long:
I have that crown, this chair, D'Ormea,

Charles!

Charles. 'Tis well I am a subject then, not
you.

Victor [aside]. D'Ormea has told him everything.

[Aloud.] Aha!

I apprehend you: when all's said, you take
Your private station to be prized beyond
My own, for instance?

Charles. —Do and ever did
So take it: 'tis the method you pursue
That grieves . . .

Victor. These words! Let me express, my friend,
Your thoughts. You penetrate what I supposed

Secret. D'Ormea plies his trade betimes!
I purpose to resign my crown to you.

Charles. To me?

Victor. Now,—in that chamber.

Charles. You resign
The crown to me?

Victor. And time enough, Charles,
sure?

Confess with me, at four-and-sixty years
A crown's a load. I covet quiet once Before I die, and summoned you for that.

Charles. 'Tis I will speak: you ever hated
me.

I bore it,—have insulted me, borne too—
Now you insult yourself; and I remember
What I believed you, what you really are,
And cannot bear it. What! My life has passed

Under your eye, tormented as you know,—
Your whole sagacities, one after one,
At leisure brought to play on me—to prove me
A fool, I thought and I submitted; now
You'd prove . . . what would you prove me?

Victor. This to me?

I hardly know you!

Charles. Know me? Oh indeed
You do not! Wait till I complain next time
Of my simplicity!—for here's a sage Knows the world well, is not to be deceived,
And his experience and his Macchiavels, D'Ormeas, teach him—what?—that I this
while

Have envied him his crown! He has not smiled,

I warrant,—has not eaten, drunk, nor slept,
For I was plotting with my Princess yonder!
Who knows what we might do or might not do?

Go now, be politic, astound the world!
That sentry in the antechamber—nay,
The varlet who disposed this precious trap [Pointing to the crown.

That was to take me—ask them if they think
Their own sons envy them their posts!—Know
me!

Victor. But you know me, it seems: so,
learn in brief,
My pleasure. This assembly is convened . . .

Charles. Tell me, that woman put it in your head!

You were not sole contriver of the scheme,
My father!

Victor. Now observe me, sir! I jest
Seldom—on these points, never. Here, I say,
The knights assemble to see me concede,
And you accept, Sardinia's crown.

Charles. Farewell!
'Twere vain to hope to change this: I can end it.

Not that I cease from being yours, when sunk
Into obscurity : I'll die for you,
But not annoy you with my presence. Sir,
Farewell ! Farewell !

Enter D'ORMEA.

D'Ormea [aside]. Ha, sure he's changed
again—

Means not to fall into the cunning trap !
Then Victor, I shall yet escape you, Victor !

Victor [suddenly placing the crown upon the head of CHARLES]. D'Ormea, your
King !

[To CHARLES.] My son, obey me !
Charles,

Your father, clearer-sighted than yourself,
Decides it must be so. 'Faith, this looks real !

My reasons after ; reason upon reason
After : but now, obey me ! Trust in me !

By this, you save Sardinia, you save me !
Why, the boy swoons ! [To D'ORMEA.]

Come this side !

D'Ormea [as CHARLES turns from him to VICTOR]. You persist ?

Victor. Yes, I conceive the gesture's meaning. 'Faith,

He almost seems to hate you : how is that ?
Be re-assured, my Charles ! Is't over now ?

Then, Marquis, tell the new King what remains

To do ! A moment's work. Del Borgo reads
The Act of Abdication out, you sign it,

Then I sign ; after that, come back to me.
D'Ormea. Sir, for the last time, pause !

Victor. Five minutes longer
I am your sovereign, Marquis. Hesitate—

And I'll so turn those minutes to account
That . . . Ay, you recollect me ! [Aside.]

Could I bring

My foolish mind to undergo the reading
That Act of Abdication !

[As CHARLES motions D'ORMEA to precede him.

Thanks, dear Charles !

[CHARLES and D'ORMEA retire.

Victor. A novel feature in the boy,—indeed Just what I feared he wanted most. Quite
right,

This earnest tone : your truth, now, for effect !
It answers every purpose : with that look,
That voice,—I hear him : "I began no treaty,"

(He speaks to Spain), "nor ever dreamed of
this

"You show me ; this I from my soul regret ;
"But if my father signed it, bid not me

"Dishonour him—who gave me all, beside :"
And, "True," says Spain, "'twere harsh to visit that "Upon the Prince." Then come the nobles trooping :

"I grieve at these exactions—I had cut
"This hand off ere impose them ; but shall I

"Undo my father's deed?"—and they confer :
"Doubtless he was no party, after all ;

"Give the Prince time !"

Ay, give us time, but time !

Only, he must not, when the dark day comes,
Refer our friends to me and frustrate all.

We'll have no child's play, no desponding fits,
No Charles at each cross turn entreating

Victor
To take his crown again. Guard against that !

Enter D'ORMEA.

Long live King Charles !

No—Charles's counsellor !

Well, is it over, Marquis ? Did I jest ?

D'Ormea. "King Charles !" What then may you be ?

Victor. Anything !

A country gentleman that, cured of bustle,
Now beats a quick retreat toward Chambery,

Would hunt and hawk and leave you noisy folk
To drive your trade without him. I'm Count

Remont—
Count Tende—any little place's Count !

D'Ormea. Then Victor, Captain against Catinat

At Staffarde, where the French beat you ; and Duke

At Turin, where you beat the French ; King
late

Of Savoy, Piedmont, Montferrat, Sardinia, —Now, "any little place's Count"—

Victor. Proceed'

Might prove your lot ; for strength was shut in you
None guessed but I—strength which, untrammelled once,
Had little shamed your vaunted ancestry—
Patience and self-devotion, fortitude,
Simplicity and utter truthfulness
—All which, they shout to lose !

So, now my work
Begins — to save him from regret. Save
Charles
Regret?—the noble nature ! He's not made
Like these Italians : 'tis a German soul.

CHARLES enters crowned.

Oh, where's the King's heir? Gone!—the Crown Prince? Gone!—
Where's Savoy? Gone!—Sardinia? Gone!
But Charles
Is left ! And when my Rhine-land bowers arrive,
If he looked almost handsome yester-twilight
As his grey eyes seemed widening into black
Because I praised him, then how will he
look?
Farewell, you stripped and whited mulberry-
trees
Bound each to each by lazy ropes of vine !
Now I'll teach you my language : I'm not forced
To speak Italian now, Charles?

[She sees the crown.] What is this?
Answer me—who has done this? Answer !
Charles. He !
I am King now.

Polyxena. Oh worst, worst, worst of all !
Tell me ! What, Victor? He has made you
King?
What's he then? What's to follow this?
You, King?

Charles. Have I done wrong? Yes, for you were not by !

Polyxena. Tell me from first to last.

Charles. Hush—a new world
Brightens before me ; he is moved away
—The dark form that eclipsed it, he subsides
Into a shape supporting me like you,

And I, alone, tend upward, more and
more

Tend upward : I am grown Sardinia's King.
Polyxena. Now stop : was not this Victor,
Duke of Savoy

At ten years old ?

Charles. He was.

Polyxena. And the Duke spent
Since then, just four-and-fifty years in toil
To be—what ?

Charles. King.

Polyxena. Then why unking himself?

Charles. Those years are cause enough.

Polyxena. The only cause?

Charles. Some new perplexities.

Polyxena. Which you can solve
Although he cannot ?

Charles. He assures me so.

Polyxena. And this he means shall last—how long ?

Charles. How long ?

Think you I fear the perils I confront ?
He's praising me before the people's face—
My people !

Polyxena. Then he's changed — grown kind, the King ?

Where can the trap be ?

Charles. Heart and soul I pledge !

My father, could I guard the crown you gained,
Transmit as I received it,—all good else
Would I surrender !

Polyxena. Ah, it opens then

Before you, all you dreaded formerly ?

You are rejoiced to be a king, my Charles ?

Charles. So much to dare? The better ;
—much to dread ?

The better. I'll adventure though alone.

Triumph or die, there's Victor still to witness
Who dies or triumphs—either way, alone !

Polyxena. Once I had found my share in triumph, Charles,

Or death.

Charles. But you are I ! But you I call
To take, Heaven's proxy, vows I tendered
Heaven

A moment since. I will deserve the crown !

Polyxena. You will. [Aside.] No doubt it were a glorious thing

For any people, if a heart like his Ruled over it. I would I saw the trap.

Enter VICTOR.

'Tis he must show me.

Victor. So, the mask falls off
An old man's foolish love at last. Spare thanks!

I know you, and Polyxena I know.

Here's Charles—I am his guest now—does he bid me

Be seated? And my light-haired blue-eyed
child

Must not forget the old man far away
At Chambery, who dozes while she reigns.

Polyxena. Most grateful shall we now be, talking least

Of gratitude—indeed of anything

That hinders what yourself must need to say To Charles.

Charles. Pray speak, sir!

Victor. 'Faith, not much to say:
Only what shows itself, you once i' the point Of sight. You're now the King: you'll comprehend

Much you may oft have wondered at—the shifts,

Dissimulation, wiliness I showed.

For what's our post? Here's Savoy and here's Piedmont,

Here's Montferrat—a breadth here, a space
there—

To o'ersweep all these, what's one weapon
worth?

I often think of how they fought in Greece:
(Or Rome, which was it? You're the scholar, Charles!)

You made a front-thrust? But if your shield
too

Were not adroitly planted, some shrewd knave Reached you behind; and him foiled, straight if thong

And handle of that shield were not cast loose,
And you enabled to outstrip the wind,

Fresh foes assailed you, either side; 'scape
these,

And reach your place of refuge—e'en then, odds
If the gate opened unless breath enough

Were left in you to make its lord a speech.
Oh, you will see!

Charles. No: straight on shall I go,
Truth helping; win with it or die with it,

Victor. 'Faith, Charles, you're not made
Europe's fighting-man!

The barrier-guarder, if you please. You clutch
Hold and consolidate, with envious France
This side, with Austria that, the territory
I held—ay, and will hold . . . which you shall hold

Despite the couple! But I've surely earned Exemption from these weary politics,
—The privilege to prattle with my son
And daughter here, though Europe wait the while.

Polyxena. Nay, sir,—at Chambery, away
for ever,
As soon you will be, 'tis farewell we bid
you:

Turn these few fleeting moments to account!
'Tis just as though it were a death.

Victor. Indeed!

Polyxena [aside]. Is the trap there?

Charles. Ay, call this parting—death!
The sacredder your memory becomes.
If I misrule Sardinia, how bring back
My father?

Victor. I mean . . .

Polyxena [who watches VICTOR narrowly this while]. Your father does not mean
You should be ruling for your father's sake:
It is your people must concern you wholly Instead of him. You mean this, sir? (He drops

My hand!)

Charles. That people is now part of me.

Victor. About the people! I took certain measures

Some short time since . . . Oh, I know well, you know

But little of my measures! These affect
The nobles; we've resumed some grants, imposed

A tax or two: prepare yourself, in short,
For clamour on that score. Mark me: you yield

No jot of aught entrusted you!

Polyxena. No jot
You yield!

Charles. My father, when I took the oath,
Although my eye might stray in search of yours,
I heard it, understood it, promised God
What you require. Till from this eminence
He move me, here I keep, nor shall concede
The meanest of my rights.

Victor [aside]. The boy's a fool!
—Or rather, I'm a fool: for, what's wrong
here?

To-day the sweets of reigning: let to-morrow
Be ready with its bitters.

Enter D'ORMEA.

There's beside
Somewhat to press upon your notice first.

Charles. Then why delay it for an instant,
sir?

That Spanish claim perchance? And, now
you speak,

—This morning, my opinion was mature,
Which, boy-like, I was bashful in producing
To one I ne'er am like to fear in future!
My thought is formed upon that Spanish claim.

Victor. Betimes indeed. Not now, Charles!
You require
A host of papers on it.

D'Ormea [coming forward]. Here they are.
[To CHARLES.] I, sir, was minister and much beside

Of the late monarch; to say little, him
I served: on you I have, to say e'en less,
No claim. This case contains those papers:
with them

I tender you my office.

Victor [hastily]. Keep him, Charles!
There's reason for it—many reasons: you
Distrust him, nor are so far wrong there,—but He's mixed up in this matter—he'll desire
To quit you, for occasions known to me:
Do not accept those reasons: have him stay!

Polyxena [aside]. His minister thrust on us!

Charles [to D'ORMEA]. Sir, believe,
In justice to myself, you do not need
E'en this commending: howsoe'er might seem
My feelings toward you, as a private man,
They quit me in the vast and untried field

Of action. Though I shall myself (as late
In your own hearing I engaged to do)
Preside o'er my Sardinia, yet your help
Is necessary. Think the past forgotten
And serve me now!

D'Ormea. I did not offer you
My service—would that I could serve you, sir!
As for the Spanish matter . . .

Victor. But despatch
At least the dead, in my good daughter's phrase,

Before the living! Help to house me safe
Ere with D'Ormea you set the world a-gape!
Here is a paper—will you overlook
What I propose reserving for my needs?
I get as far from you as possible:
Here's what I reckon my expenditure.

Charles [reading]. A miserable fifty thousand crowns—

Victor. Oh, quite enough for country
gentlemen!
Beside the exchequer happens . . . but find
out

All that, yourself!

Charles [still reading]. "Count Tende"
—what means this?

Victor. Me: you were but an infant when
I burst

Through the defile of Tende upon France.
Had only my allies kept true to me!
No matter. Tende's, then, a name I take Just as . . .

D'Ormea. —The Marchioness Sebastian takes
The name of Spigno.

Charles. How, sir?

Victor [to D'ORMEA]. Fool! All that Was for my own detailing. [To CHARLES.]
That anon!

Charles [to D'ORMEA]. Explain what you have said, sir!

D'Ormea. I supposed
The marriage of the King to her I named,
Profoundly kept a secret these few weeks,
Was not to be one, now he's Count.

Polyxena [aside]. With us
The minister—with him the mistress!

Charles [to VICTOR]. No -

Polyxena. By truthfulness.

D'Ormea. Exactly; that shows I had nought to do

With pacifying them. Our foreign perils Also exceed my means to stay: but here 'Tis otherwise, and my pride's piqued. Count Tende

Completes a full year's absence: would you, madam,

Have the old monarch back, his mistress back,

His measures back? I pray you, act upon My counsel, or they will be.

Polyxena. When?

D'Ormea. Let's think.

Home-matters settled—Victor's coming now; Let foreign matters settle—Victor's here Unless I stop him; as I will, this way.

Polyxena [reading the papers he presents]. If this should prove a plot 'twixt you and Victor?

You seek annoyances to give the pretext For what you say you fear.

D'Ormea. Oh, possibly!

I go for nothing. Only show King Charles That thus Count Tende purposes return, And style me his inviter, if you please!

Polyxena. Half of your tale is true; most like, the Count

Seeks to return: but why stay you with us? To aid in such emergencies.

D'Ormea. Keep safe

Those papers: or, to serve me, leave no proof

I thus have counselled! When the Count returns,

And the King abdicates, 'twill stead me little To have thus counselled.

Polyxena. The King abdicate!

D'Ormea. He's good, we knew long since—wise, we discover—

Firm, let us hope:—but I'd have gone to work With him away. Well!

[CHARLES without]. In the Council Chamber?

D'Ormea. All's lost!

Polyxena. Oh, surely not King Charles! He's changed—

That's not this year's care-burthened voice and step:

'Tis last year's step, the Prince's voice!

D'Ormea. I know.

[Enter CHARLES:—D'ORMEA retiring a little.

Charles. Now wish me joy, Polyxena! Wish it me

The old way! [She embraces him.

There was too much cause for that!

But I have found myself again. What news At Turin? Oh, if you but felt the load I'm free of—free! I said this year would end Or it, or me—but I am free, thank God!

Polyxena. How, Charles?

Charles. You do not guess? The day I found

Sardinia's hideous coil, at home, abroad, And how my father was involved in it,— Of course, I vowed to rest and smile no more Until I cleared his name from obloquy.

We did the people right—'twas much to gain That point, redress our nobles' grievance, too— But that took place here, was no crying shame: All must be done abroad,—if I abroad Appeased the justly-angered Powers, destroyed

The scandal, took down Victor's name at last From a bad eminence, I then might breathe And rest! No moment was to lose. Behold The proud result—a Treaty, Austria, Spain Agree to—D'Ormea [aside]. I shall merely stipulate For an experienced headsman.

Charles. Not a soul Is compromised: the blotted past's a blank: Even D'Ormea escapes unquestioned. See! It reached me from Vienna; I remained At Evian to despatch the Count his news; 'Tis gone to Chambery a week ago— And here am I: do I deserve to feel Your warm white arms around me?

D'Ormea [coming forward]. He knows that?

Charles. What, in Heaven's name, means this?

D'Ormea. He knows that matters

Are settled at Vienna? Not too late!
Plainly, unless you post this very hour
Some man you trust (say, me) to Chambery
And take precautions I acquaint you with,
Your father will return here.

Charles. Are you crazed,
D'Ormea? Here? For what? As well return
To take his crown!

D'Ormea. He will return for that.

Charles [to POLYXENA]. You have not listened to this man?

Polyxena. He spoke
About your safety—and I listened.

[He disengages himself from her arms.]

Charles [to D'ORMEA]. What
Apprised you of the Count's intentions?

D'Ormea. Me?
His heart, sir; you may not be used to read

Such evidence however; therefore read
[Pointing to POLYXENA'S papers.]
My evidence.

Charles [to POLYXENA]. Oh, worthy this of you!
And of your speech I never have forgotten,
Though I professed forgetfulness; which haunts me

As if I did not know how false it was;
Which made me toil unconsciously thus long
That there might be no least occasion left
For aught of its prediction coming true!
And now, when there is left no least occasion
To instigate my father to such crime—
When I might venture to forget (I hoped)
That speech and recognize Polyxena—
Oh worthy, to revive, and tenfold worse,
That plague! D'Ormea at your ear, his slanders

Still in your hand! Silent?

Polyxena. As the wronged are.

Charles. And you, D'Ormea, since when have you presumed
To spy upon my father? I conceive
What that wise paper shows, and easily.
Since when?

D'Ormea. The when and where and how belong

To me. 'Tis sad work, but I deal in such.

You oftentimes serve yourself; I'd serve you
here:

Use makes me not so squeamish. In a word,
Since the first hour he went to Chambery,
Of his seven servants, five have I suborned.

Charles. You hate my father?

D'Ormea. Oh, just as you will!

[Looking at POLYXENA.]

A minute since, I loved him—hate him, now!
What matter?—if you ponder just one thing:
Has he that treaty?—he is setting forward
Already. Are your guards here?

Charles. Well for you
They are not! [To POLYXENA]. Him I knew of old, but you—

To hear that pickthank, further his designs!
[To D'ORMEA.

Guards?—were they here, I'd bid them, for your trouble,

Arrest you.

D'Ormea. Guards you shall not want.
I lived

The servant of your choice, not of your need.
You never greatly needed me till now
That you discard me. This is my arrest.
Again I tender you my charge—its duty
Would bid me press you read those documents.

Here, sir! [Offering his badge of office.]

Charles [taking it]. The papers also! Do you think

I dare not read them?

Polyxena. Read them, sir!

Charles. They prove,
My father, still a month within the year
Since he so solemnly consigned it me, Means to resume his crown? They shall prove that,

Or my best dungeon . . .

D'Ormea. Even say, Chambery!
'Tis vacant, I surmise, by this.

Charles. You prove
Your words or pay their forfeit, sir. Go
there!

Polyxena, one chance to rend the veil
Thickening and blackening 'twixt us two!
Do say,

You'll see the falsehood of the charges proved!

Do say, at least, you wish to see them proved False charges—my heart's love of other times !

Polyxena. Ah, Charles !

Charles [to D'ORMEA]. Precede me, sir !

D'Ormea. And I'm at length

A martyr for the truth ! No end, they say,
Of miracles. My conscious innocence !

[As they go out, enter—by the middle door, at which he pauses—VICTOR.

Victor. Sure I heard voices ? No. Well,
I do best

To make at once for this, the heart o' the
place.

The old room ! Nothing changed ! So near my seat,

D'Ormea ? [Pushing away the stool which is by the KING'S chair.

I want that meeting over first,
I know not why. Tush, he, D'Ormea, slow

To hearten me, the supple knave ? That burst

Of spite so eased him ! He'll inform me . . .

What ?

Why come I hither ? All's in rough : let
all

Remain rough. There's full time to draw back—nay,

There's nought to draw back from, as yet ;
whereas,

If reason should be, to arrest a course
Of error—reason good, to interpose

And save, as I have saved so many times,
Our House, admonish my son's giddy youth,

Relieve him of a weight that proves too much—
Now is the time,—or now, or never.

'Faith,

This kind of step is pitiful, not due
To Charles, this stealing back—hither,

because

He's from his capital ! Oh Victor ! Victor !
But thus it is. The age of crafty men

Is loathsome ; youth contrives to carry off
Dissimulation ; we may intersperse

Extenuating passages of strength,
Ardour, vivacity, and wit—may turn

E'en guile into a voluntary grace :

But one's old age, when graces drop away

And leave guile the pure staple of our lives—
Ah, loathsome !

Not so—or why pause I ? Turin

Is mine to have, were I so minded, for

The asking ; all the army's mine—I've witnessed

Each private fight beneath me ; all the Court's

Mine too ; and, best of all, D'Ormea's still

D'Ormea and mine. There's some grace clinging yet.

Had I decided on this step, ere midnight
I'd take the crown.

No. Just this step to rise

Exhausts me. Here am I arrived : the rest

Must be done for me. Would I could sit here

And let things right themselves, the masque unmasque

Of the old King, crownless, grey hair and hot
blood,—

The young King, crowned, but calm before his time,

They say,—the eager mistress with her taunts,—

And the sad earnest wife who motions me

Away—ay, there she knelt to me ! E'en yet

I can return and sleep at Chambery

A dream out.

Rather shake it off at Turin,

King Victor ! Say : to Turin—yes, or no ?

'Tis this relentless noonday-lighted chamber,

Lighted like life but silent as the grave,

That disconcerts me. That's the change must strike.

No silence last year ! Some one flung doors
wide

(Those two great doors which scrutinize me
now)

And out I went 'mid crowds of men—men talking,

Men watching if my lip fell or brow knit,

Men saw me safe forth, put me on my road :

That makes the misery of this return.

Oh had a battle done it ! Had I dropped,

Haling some battle, three entire days old,

Hither and thither by the forehead—dropped

In Spain, in Austria, best of all, in France—

Spurned on its horns or underneath its hooves,

When the spent monster went upon its knees

My crown, were so disposed to plague myself,
What would be warrant for this bitterness?
I gave it—grant I would resume it—well?

Charles. I should say simply—leaving out the why

And how—you made me swear to keep that crown :

And as you then intended . . .

Victor. Fool! What way
Could I intend or not intend? As man,
With a man's will, when I say "I intend,"
I can intend up to a certain point,
No farther. I intended to preserve
The crown of Savoy and Sardinia whole :
And if events arise demonstrating
The way, I hoped should guard it, rather like
To lose it . . .

Charles. Keep within your sphere and mine !

It is God's province we usurp on, else.
Here, blindfold through the maze of things we walk

By a slight clue of false, true, right and
wrong ;

All else is rambling and presumption. I Have sworn to keep this kingdom : there's my truth.

Victor. Truth, boy, is here, within my breast ; and in

Your recognition of it, truth is, too ;
And in the effect of all this tortuous dealing With falsehood, used to carry out the truth,
—In its success, this falsehood turns, again,
Truth for the world. But you are right :

these themes

Are over-subtle. I should rather say
In such a case, frankly,—it fails, my scheme :
I hoped to see you bring about, yourself,
What I must bring about. I interpose

On your behalf—with my son's good in sight—

To hold what he is nearly letting go,
Confirm his title, add a grace perhaps.

There's Sicily, for instance,—granted me
And taken back, some years since : till I give That island with the rest, my work's half
done.

For hissake, therefore, as of those he rules . . .

Charles. Our sakes are one ; and that, you could not say,

Because my answer would present itself
Forthwith :—a year has wrought an age's
change.

This people's not the people now, you once
Could benefit ; nor is my policy

Your policy.

Victor [with an outburst]. I know it! You undo

All I have done—my life of toil and care !
I left you this the absolutest rule

In Europe : do you think I sit and smile,
Bid you throw power to the populace—

See my Sardinia, that has kept apart,
Join in the mad and democratic whirl

Whereto I see all Europe haste full tide?

England casts off her kings ; France mimics England :

This realm I hoped was safe. Yet here I talk,

When I can save it, not by force alone,

But bidding plagues, which follow sons like
you,

Fasten upon my disobedient . . .

[Recollecting himself.] Surely
I could say this—if minded so—my son?

Charles. You could not. Bitterer curses than your curse

Have I long since denounced upon myself
If I misused my power. In fear of these

I entered on those measures—will abide

By them : so, I should say, Count Tende . . .

Victor. No!

But no! But if, my Charles, your—more than old—

Half-foolish father urged these arguments,

And then confessed them futile, but said plainly

That he forgot his promise, found his strength

Fail him, had thought at savage Chambery

Too much of brilliant Turin, Rivoli here,

And Susa, and Veneria, and Superga—

Pined for the pleasant places he had built

When he was fortunate and young—

Charles. My father!

Victor. Stay yet!—and if he said he could not die

Deprived of baubles he had put aside,
He deemed, for ever—of the Crown that binds
Your brain up, whole, sound and impregnable,

Creating kingliness—the Sceptre too,
Whose mere wind, should you wave it, back would beat

Invaders—and the golden Ball which throbs
As if you grasped the palpitating heart
Indeed o' the realm, to mould as choose you
may!

—If I must totter up and down the streets
My sires built, where myself have introduced
And fostered laws and letters, sciences,
The civil and the military arts!

Stay, Charles! I see you letting me pretend
To live my former self once more—King
Victor,

The venturous yet politic: they style me
Again, the Father of the Prince: friends wink
Good-humouredly at the delusion you
So sedulously guard from all rough truths
That else would break upon my dotage!—

You—

Whom now I see preventing my old shame—
I tell not, point by cruel point, my tale—
For is't not in your breast my brow is hid?
Is not your hand extended? Say you not . . .

Enter D'ORMEA, leading in POLYXENA.

*Polyxena [advancing and withdrawing
CHARLES—to VICTOR].* In this conjuncture even, he would say (Though with a moistened eye and quivering lip)

The suppliant is my father. I must save
A great man from himself, nor see him fling
His well-earned fame away: there must not follow

Ruin so utter, a break-down of worth
So absolute: no enemy shall learn,
He thrust his child 'twixt danger and himself,
And, when that child somehow stood danger
out,

Stole back with serpent wiles to ruin Charles —Body, that's much,—and soul, that's more
—and realm,

That's most of all! No enemy shall say . . .

D'Ormea. Do you repent, sir?

Victor [resuming himself]. D'Ormea?

This is well!

Worthily done, King Charles, craftily done!

Judiciously you post these, to o'erhear

The little your importunate father thrusts

Himself on you to say!—Ah, they'll correct

The amiable blind facility

You show in answering his peevish suit.

What can he need to sue for? Thanks,

D'Ormea!

You have fulfilled your office: but for you,

The old Count might have drawn some few more livres

To swell his income! Had you, lady, missed

The moment, a permission might be granted

To buttress up my ruinous old pile!

But you remember properly the list

Of wise precautions I took when I gave

Nearly as much away—to reap the fruits

I should have looked for!

Charles. Thanks, sir: degrade me,

So you remain yourself! Adieu!

Victor.

I'll not

Forget it for the future, nor presume

Next time to slight such mediators! Nay—

Had I first moved them both to intercede,

I might secure a chamber in Moncaglier

—Who knows?

Charles. Adieu!

Victor.

You bid me this adieu

With the old spirit?

Charles.

Adieu!

Victor.

Charles—Charles!

Charles.

Adieu!

[VICTOR goes.]

Charles. You were mistaken, Marquis, as you hear.

'Twas for another purpose the Count came.

The Count desires Moncaglier. Give the order!

D'Ormea [leisurely]. Your minister has lost your confidence,

Asserting late, for his own purposes,

Count Tende would . . .

Charles [flinging his badge back]. Be still the minister!

And give a loose to your insulting joy;

It irks me more thus stifled than expressed :
Loose it !

D'Ormea. There's none to loose, alas !

I see

I never am to die a martyr.

Polyxena. Charles !

Charles. No praise, at least, Polyxena—no
praise !

KING CHARLES.

PART II.

D'ORMEA, seated, folding papers he has been examining.

This at the last effects it : now, King Charles Or else King Victor—that's a balance : but
now,

D'Ormea the arch-culprit, either turn
O' the scale,—that's sure enough. A point to solve,

My masters, moralists, whate'er your style !
When you discover why I push myself
Into a pitfall you'd pass safely by,
Impart to me among the rest ! No matter.

Prompt are the righteous ever with their rede
To us the wrongful ; lesson them this once !

For safe among the wicked are you set,
D'Ormea ! We lament life's brevity,
Yet quarter e'en the threescore years and ten,
Nor stick to call the quarter roundly "life."

D'Ormea was wicked, say, some twenty years ;
A tree so long was stunted ; afterward,
What if it grew, continued growing, till
No fellow of the forest equalled it ?

'Twas a stump then ; a stump it still must be :
While forward saplings, at the outset checked,
In virtue of that first sprout keep their style
Amid the forest's green fraternity.

Thus I shoot up to surely get lopped down
And bound up for the burning. Now for it !

Enter CHARLES and POLYXENA with Attendants.

D'Ormea [rises]. Sir, in the due discharge of this my office—

This enforced summons of yourself from Turin,
And the disclosure I am bound to make

To-night,—there must already be, I feel,
So much that wounds . . .

Charles. Well, sir ?

D'Ormea. —That I, perchance,

May utter also what, another time,
Would irk much,—it may prove less irksome
now.

Charles. What would you utter ?

D'Ormea. That I from my soul

Grieve at to-night's event : for you I grieve, E'en grieve for . . .

Charles. Tush, another time for talk !

My kingdom is in imminent danger ?

D'Ormea. Let

The Count communicate with France—its
King,

His grandson, will have Fleury's aid for
this,

Though for no other war.

Charles. First for the levies :

What forces can I muster presently ?

[D'ORMEA delivers papers which

CHARLES inspects.

Charles. Good—very good. Montorio . . .
how is this ?

—Equips me double the old complement
Of soldiers ?

D'Ormea. Since his land has been relieved
From double imposts, this he manages :
But under the late monarch . . .

Charles. Peace ! I know.

Count Spava has omitted mentioning
What proxy is to head these troops of his.

D'Ormea. Count Spava means to head his troops himself.

Something to fight for now ; "Whereas,"
says he,

"Under the sovereign's father" . . .

Charles. It would seem

That all my people love me.

D'Ormea. Yes.

[To POLYXENA while CHARLES continues to inspect the papers.

A temper

Like Victor's may avail to keep a state ;
He terrifies men and they fall not off ;

Good to restrain : best, if restraint were all.
But, with the silent circle round him, ends

So close related to my father too,
On trifling grounds?

D'Ormea. Oh, as for that, St. George,
President of Chambery's senators,
Is hatching treason! still—

[More troubled.] Sir, Count Cumiane
Is brother to your father's wife! What's
here?

Arrest the wife herself?

Charles. You seem to think
A venial crime this plot against me. Well?

D'Ormea [who has read the last paper].

Wherefore am I thus ruined? Why not take

My life at once? This poor formality
Is, let me say, unworthy you! Prevent it You, madam! I have served you, am prepared

For all disgraces: only, let disgrace
Be plain, be proper—proper for the world
To pass its judgment on 'twixt you and me!
Take back your warrant, I will none of it!

Charles. Here is a man to talk of fickleness!

He stakes his life upon my father's falsehood;
I bid him . . .

D'Ormea. Not you! Were he trebly
false,

You do not bid me . . .

Charles. Is't not written there?
I thought so: give—I'll set it right.

D'Ormea. Is it there?
Oh yes, and plain—arrest him now—drag here
Your father! And were all six times as plain,
Do you suppose I trust it?

Charles. Just one word!
You bring him, taken in the act of flight,
Or else your life is forfeit.

D'Ormea. Ay, to Turin
I bring him, and to-morrow?

Charles. Here and now!
The whole thing is a lie, a hateful lie,
As I believed and as my father said.

I knew it from the first, but was compelled
To circumvent you; and the great D'Ormea,
That baffled Alberoni and tricked Coscia,
The miserable sower of such discord
'Twixt sire and son, is in the toils at last.

Oh I see! you arrive—this plan of yours,
Weak as it is, torments sufficiently
A sick old peevish man—wings hasty speech,
An ill-considered threat from him; that's noted;

Then out you ferret papers, his amusement
In lonely hours of lassitude—examine
The day-by-day report of your paid spies—
And back you come: all was not ripe, you
find,

And, as you hope, may keep from ripening yet,
But you were in bare time! Only, 'twere
best

I never saw my father—these old men
Are potent in excuses: and meanwhile,
D'Ormea's the man I cannot do without!

Polyxena. Charles—

Charles. Ah, no question!

You against me too!

You'd have me eat and drink and sleep, live,
die

With this lie coiled about me, choking me!
No, no, D'Ormea! You venture life, you say,
Upon my father's perfidy: and I

Have, on the whole, no right to disregard
The chains of testimony you thus wind
About me; though I do—do from my soul
Discredit them: still I must authorize
These measures, and I will. Perugia!

[Many Officers enter.] Count—

You and Solar, with all the force you have,
Stand at the Marquis' orders: what he bids,
Implicitly perform! You are to bring
A traitor here; the man that's likest one
At present, fronts me; you are at his beck
For a full hour! he undertakes to show
A fouler than himself,—but, failing that,
Return with him, and, as my father lives,
He dies this night! The clemency you blame
So oft, shall be revoked—rights exercised,
Too long abjured.

[To D'ORMEA.] Now sir, about the work!
To save your king and country! Take the warrant!

D'Ormea. You hear the sovereign's mandate, Count Perugia?

Obey me! As your diligence, expect
Reward! All follow to Moncagliè!

Charles [in great anguish]. D'Ormea !

[D'ORMEA goes.

He goes, lit up with that appalling smile !

[To POLYXENA, after a pause.

At least you understand all this ?

Polyxena. These means
Of our defence—these measures of precaution ?

Charles. It must be the best way ; I should have else

Withered beneath his scorn.

Polyxena. What would you say ?

Charles. Why, do you think I mean to keep the crown,

Polyxena ?

Polyxena. You then believe the story
In spite of all—that Victor comes ?

Charles. Believe it ?

I know that he is coming—feel the strength
That has upheld me leave me at his coming !
Twas mine, and now he takes his own again.
Some kinds of strength are well enough to
have ;

But who's to have that strength ? Let my crown go !

I meant to keep it ; but I cannot—cannot !

Only, he shall not taunt me—he, the first . . .

See if he would not be the first to taunt me
With having left his kingdom at a word.

With letting it be conquered without stroke,

With . . . no—no—'tis no worse than when he left !

I've just to bid him take it, and, that over,

We'll fly away—fly, for I loathe this Turin,

This Rivoli, all titles loathe, all state.

We'd best go to your country—unless God

Send I die now !

Polyxena. Charles, hear me !

Charles. And again

Shall you be my Polyxena—you'll take me

Out of this woe ! Yes, do speak, and keep speaking !

I would not let you speak just now, for fear

You'd counsel me against him : but talk, now,

As we two used to talk in blessed times

Bid me endure all his caprices ; take me

From this mad post above him !

Polyxena. I believe

We are undone, but from a different cause.

All your resources, down to the least guard,
Are at D'Ormea's beck. What if, the while,
He act in concert with your father ? We Indeed were lost. This lonely Rivoli—
Where find a better place for them ?

Charles [pacing the room]. And why Does Victor come ? To undo all that's done,
Restore the past, prevent the future ! Seat
His mistress in your seat, and place in mine
. . . Oh, my own people, whom will you find there,

To ask of, to consult with, to care for,
To hold up with your hands ? Whom ? One that's false—

False—from the head's crown to the foot's sole, false !

The best is, that I knew it in my heart

From the beginning, and expected this,

And hated you, Polyxena, because

You saw thro' him, though I too saw thro'
him,

Saw that he meant this while he crowned me, while

He prayed for me,—nay, while he kissed my
brow,

I saw—

Polyxena. But if your measures take effect,
D'Ormea true to you ?

Charles. Then worst of all !

I shall have loosed that callous wretch on him !

Well may the woman taunt him with his
child—

I, eating here his bread, clothed in his clothes,

Seated upon his seat, let slip D'Ormea

To outrage him ! We talk—perchance he tears

My father from his bed ; the old hands feel

For one who is not, but who should be there,

He finds D'Ormea ! D'Ormea too finds him !

The crowded chamber when the lights go
out—

Closed doors—the horrid scuffle in the dark—

The accursed prompting of the minute ! My guards !

To horse—and after, with me—and prevent !

Polyxena [seizing his hand]. King Charles !

Pause here upon this strip of time

Allotted you out of eternity !

Crowns are from God: you in his name hold
yours.

Your life's no least thing, were it fit your life
Should be abjured along with rule; but now,
Keep both! Your duty is to live and rule—
You, who would vulgarly look fine enough
In the world's eye, deserting your soul's
charge,—

Ay, you would have men's praise, this Rivoli
Would be illumined! While, as 'tis, no doubt,
Something of stain will ever rest on you;
No one will rightly know why you refused
To abdicate; they'll talk of deeds you could Have done, no doubt,—nor do I much expect Future achievement will blot out the past,
Envelope it in haze—nor shall we two Live happy any more. 'Twill be, I feel,
Only in moments that the duty's seen
As palpably as now: the months, the years
Of painful indistinctness are to come,
While daily must we tread these palace-rooms Pregnant with memories of the past: your
eye

May turn to mine and find no comfort there,
Through fancies that beset me, as yourself,
Of other courses, with far other issues,
We might have taken this great night: such bear,

As I will bear! What matters happiness?
Duty! There's man's one moment: this is
yours!

[Putting the crown on his head, and the sceptre in his hand, she places him on his seat: a long pause and silence.]

Enter D'ORMEA and VICTOR, with Guards.

Victor. At last I speak; but once—that once, to you!

'Tis you I ask, not these your varletry,
Who's King of us?

Charles [from his seat]. Count Tende . . .

Victor. What your spies

Assert I ponder in my soul, I say—Here to your face, amid your guards! I choose

To take again the crown whose shadow I gave—

For still its potency surrounds the weak
White locks their felon hands have discomposed.

Or I'll not ask who's King, but simply, who Withholds the crown I claim? Deliver it!
I have no friend in the wide world: nor
France

Nor England cares for me: you see the sum
Of what I can avail. Deliver it!

Charles. Take it, my father!

And now say in turn,
Was it done well, my father—sure not well,
To try me thus! I might have seen much
cause

For keeping it—too easily seen cause!

But, from that moment, e'en more woefully
My life had pined away, than pine it will.
Already you have much to answer for.

My life to pine is nothing,—her sunk eyes
Were happy once! No doubt, my people
think

I am their King still . . . but I cannot strive!

Take it!

Victor [one hand on the crown CHARLES offers, the other on his neck]. So few years give it quietly,

My son! It will drop from me. See you
not?

A crown's unlike a sword to give away—
That, let a strong hand to a weak hand give!
But crowns should slip from palsied brows to heads

Young as this head: yet mine is weak enough,
E'en weaker than I knew. I seek for phrases
To vindicate my right. 'Tis of a piece!

All is alike gone by with me—who beat
Once D'Orleans in his lines—his very lines!
To have been Eugene's comrade, Louis's rival,

And now . . .

Charles [putting the crown on him, to the rest]. The King speaks, yet none kneels, I think!

Victor. I am then King! As I became a
King

Despite the nations, kept myself a King,
So I die King, with Kingship dying too

CAVALIER TUNES.

I. MARCHING ALONG.

I.

KENTISH Sir Byng stood for his King,
Bidding the crop-headed Parliament swing :
And, pressing a troop unable to stoop
And see the rogues flourish and honest folk droop,
Marched them along, fifty-score strong,
Great-hearted gentlemen, singing this song.

II.

God for King Charles ! Pym and such carles
To the Devil that prompts 'em their treasonous paroles !
Cavaliers, up ! Lips from the cup,
Hands from the pasty, nor bite take nor sup Till you're—

CHORUS. — *Marching along, fifty - score
strong,
Great-hearted gentlemen, singing this song.*

III.

Hampden to hell, and his obsequies' knell Serve Hazelrig, Fiennes, and young Harry as well !
England, good cheer ! Rupert is near !
Kentish and loyalists, keep we not here

CHORUS. — *Marching along, fifty - score
strong,
Great-hearted gentlemen, singing this song ?*

IV.

Then, God for King Charles ! Pym and his snarls
To the Devil that pricks on such pestilent carles !

Hold by the right, you double your might ;
So, onward to Nottingham, fresh for the fight,

CHORUS. — *March we along, fifty - score
strong,
Great-hearted gentlemen, singing this song !*

II. GIVE A ROUSE.

I.

King Charles, and who'll do him right now ?
King Charles, and who's ripe for fight now ?
Give a rouse : here's, in hell's despite now,
King Charles !

II.

Who gave me the goods that went since ?
Who raised me the house that sank once ?
Who helped me to gold I spent since ?
Who found me in wine you drank once ?

CHORUS.—*King Charles, and who'll do
him right now ?
King Charles, and who's ripe
for fight now ?
Give a rouse : here's, in hell's
despite now,
King Charles !*

III.

To whom used my boy George quaff else,
By the old fool's side that begot him ?
For whom did he cheer and laugh else,
While Noll's damned troopers shot him ?

CHORUS.—*King Charles, and who'll do
him right now ?
King Charles, and who's ripe
for fight now ?
Give a rouse : here's, in hell's
despite now,
King Charles !*

III. BOOT AND SADDLE.

I.

Boot, saddle, to horse, and away !
 Rescue my castle before the hot day
 Brightens to blue from its silvery grey,

CHORUS.—Boot, saddle, to horse, and away!

II.

Ride past the suburbs, asleep as you'd say ;
 Many's the friend there, will listen and pray
 "God's luck to gallants that strike up the lay—

CHORUS.—"Boot, saddle, to horse, and away!"

III.

Forty miles off, like a roebuck at bay,
 Flouts Castle Brancepeth the Roundheads' array :
 Who laughs, " Good fellows ere this, by my fay,

CHORUS.—"Boot, saddle, to horse, and away!"

IV.

Who? My wife Gertrude ; that, honest and
 gay,
 Laughs when you talk of surrendering,
 "Nay !
 "I've better counsellors ; what counsel they ?

CHORUS.—"Boot, saddle, to horse, and away!"

THE LOST LEADER.

I.

JUST for a handful of silver he left us,
 Just for a riband to stick in his coat—
 Found the one gift of which fortune bereft us,
 Lost all the others she lets us devote ;
 They, with the gold to give, doled him out silver,
 So much was theirs who so little allowed :

How all our copper had gone for his service !

Rags—were they purple, his heart had been proud !

We that had loved him so, followed him,
 honoured him,

Lived in his mild and magnificent eye,
 Learned his great language, caught his clear accents,

Made him our pattern to live and to die !
 Shakespeare was of us, Milton was for us,
 Burns, Shelley, were with us,—they watch from their graves !

He alone breaks from the van and the free-
 men,

—He alone sinks to the rear and the slaves !

II.

We shall march prospering,—not thro' his presence ;

Songs may inspirit us,—not from his lyre ;
 Deeds will be done,—while he boasts his quiescence,

Still bidding crouch whom the rest bade aspire :

Blot out his name, then, record one lost soul
 more,

One task more declined, one more footpath untrod,

One more devils'-triumph and sorrow for angels,

One wrong more to man, one more insult to God !

Life's night begins : let him never come back to us !

There would be doubt, hesitation and
 pain,

Forced praise on our part—the glimmer of twilight,

Never glad confident morning again !

Best fight on well, for we taught him—strike gallantly,

Menace our heart ere we master his own ;
 Then let him receive the new knowledge and wait us,

Pardoned in heaven, the first by the throne !

“HOW THEY BROUGHT THE GOOD

[16—.]

I.

I SPRANG to the stirrup, and Joris, and he ;
I galloped, Dirck galloped, we galloped all three ;

“Good speed !” cried the watch, as the gate-bolts undrew ;

“Speed !” echoed the wall to us galloping
through ;

Behind shut the postern, the lights sank to
rest,

And into the midnight we galloped abreast.

II.

Not a word to each other ; we kept the great pace

Neck by neck, stride by stride, never changing our place ;

I turned in my saddle and made its girths
tight,

Then shortened each stirrup, and set the pique right,

Rebuckled the cheek-strap, chained slacker
the bit,

Nor galloped less steadily Roland a whit.

III.

’Twas moonset at starting ; but while we drew near

Lokeren, the cocks crew and twilight dawned
clear ;

At Boom, a great yellow star came out to see ;
At Düffeld, ’twas morning as plain as could be ;

And from Mecheln church-steeple we heard the half-chime,

So, Joris broke silence with, “Yet there is time !”

IV.

At Aershot, up leaped of a sudden the sun,
And against him the cattle stood black every
one,

To stare thro’ the mist at us galloping past,
And I saw my stout galloper Roland at last,

With resolute shoulders, each butting away
The haze, as some bluff river headland its spray :

V.

And his low head and crest, just one sharp ear bent back

For my voice, and the other pricked out on his track ;

And one eye’s black intelligence,—ever that glance

O’er its white edge at me, his own master, askance !

And the thick heavy spume-flakes which aye
and anon

His fierce lips shook upwards in galloping on.

VI.

By Hasselt, Dirck groaned ; and cried Joris, “Stay spur !

“Your Roos galloped bravely, the fault’s not in her,

“We’ll remember at Aix”—for one heard the quick wheeze

Of her chest, saw the stretched neck and staggering knees,

And sunk tail, and horrible heave of the flank,
As down on her haunches she shuddered and sank.

VII.

So, we were left galloping, Joris and I,
Past Looz and past Tongres, no cloud in the sky ;

The broad sun above laughed a pitiless laugh,
’Neath our feet broke the brittle bright stubble like chaff ;

Till over by Dalhem a dome-spire sprang white,
And “Gallop,” gasped Joris, “for Aix is in sight !”

VIII.

“How they’ll greet us !”—and all in a moment his roan

Rolled neck and croup over, lay dead as a
stone ;

And there was my Roland to bear the whole weight

Of the news which alone could save Aix from her fate,

II.

Our laughing little flask, compelled
 Thro' depth to depth more bleak and shady ;
 As when, both arms beside her held,
 Feet straightened out, some gay French lady
 Is caught up from life's light and motion,
 And dropped into death's silent ocean !

Up jumped Tokay on our table,
 Like a pygmy castle-warder,
 Dwarfish to see, but stout and able,
 Arms and accoutrements all in order ;
 And fierce he looked North, then, wheeling
 South,
 Blew with his bugle a challenge to Drouth,
 Cocked his flap-hat with the tosspot-feather,
 Twisted his thumb in his red moustache,
 Jingled his huge brass spurs together,
 Tightened his waist with its Buda sash,
 And then, with an impudence nought could
 abash,
 Shrugged his hump-shoulder, to tell the beholder,
 For twenty such knaves he should laugh but the bolder :
 And so, with his sword-hilt gallantly jutting,
 And dexter-hand on his haunch abutting,
 Went the little man, Sir Ausbruch, strutting !

Here's to Nelson's memory !
 'Tis the second time that I, at sea,
 Right off Cape Trafalgar here,
 Have drunk it deep in British Beer.
 Nelson for ever—any time
 Am I his to command in prose or rhyme !
 Give me of Nelson only a touch,
 And I save it, be it little or much :
 Here's one our Captain gives, and so
 Down at the word, by George, shall it go !
 He says that at Greenwich they point the beholder
 To Nelson's coat, "still with tar on the shoulder :
 "For he used to lean with one shoulder digging,
 "Jigging, as it were, and zig-zag-zigging
 "Up against the mizen-rigging !"

GARDEN FANCIES.

I. THE FLOWER'S NAME

HERE'S the garden she walked across,
 Arm in my arm, such a short while since :
 Hark, now I push its wicket, the moss
 Hinders the hinges and makes them wince !
 She must have reached this shrub ere she turned,
 As back with that murmur the wicket
 swung ;
 For she laid the poor snail, my chance foot
 spurned,
 To feed and forget it the leaves among.

II.

Down this side of the gravel-walk
 She went while her robe's edge brushed the box :
 And here she paused in her gracious talk
 To point me a moth on the milk-white phlox.
 Roses, ranged in valiant row,
 I will never think that she passed you by !
 She loves you noble roses, I know ;
 But yonder, see, where the rock-plants lie !

III.

This flower she stopped at, finger on lip,
 Stooped over, in doubt, as settling its claim :
 Till she gave me, with pride to make no slip,
 Its soft meandering Spanish name :
 What a name ! Was it love or praise ?
 Speech half-asleep or song half-awake ?
 I must learn Spanish, one of these days,
 Only for that slow sweet name's sake.

IV.

Roses, if I live and do well,
 I may bring her, one of these days,
 To fix you fast with as fine a spell,
 Fit you each with his Spanish phrase ;
 But do not detain me now ; for she lingers
 There, like sunshine over the ground,
 And ever I see her soft white fingers
 Searching after the bud she found.

V.

Flower, you Spaniard, look that you grow
not,
Stay as you are and be loved for ever !
Bud, if I kiss you 'tis that you blow not :
Mind, the shut pink mouth opens never !
For while it pouts, her fingers wrestle,
Twinkling the audacious leaves between,
Till round they turn and down they nestle—
Is not the dear mark still to be seen ?

VI.

Where I find her not, beauties vanish ;
Whither I follow her, beauties flee ;
Is there no method to tell her in Spanish June's twice June since she breathed it with
me ?
Come, bud, show me the least of her traces,
Treasure my lady's lightest footfall !
—Ah, you may flout and turn up your faces—
Roses, you are not so fair after all !

II. SIBRANDUS SCHAFNABURGENSIS.

Plague take all your pedants, say I !
He who wrote what I hold in my hand,
Centuries back was so good as to die,
Leaving this rubbish to cumber the land ;
This, that was a book in its time,
Printed on paper and bound in leather,
Last month in the white of a matin-prime
Just when the birds sang all together.

II.

Into the garden I brought it to read,
And under the arbut and laurustine
Read it, so help me grace in my need,
From title-page to closing line.
Chapter on chapter did I count,
As a curious traveller counts Stonehenge ;
Added up the mortal amount ;
And then proceeded to my revenge.

II

Yonder's a plum-tree with a crevice
An owl would build in, were he but sage ;

For a lap of moss, like a fine pont-levis
In a castle of the Middle Age,
Joins to a lip of gum, pure amber ;
When he'd be private, there might he spend
Hours alone in his lady's chamber :
Into this crevice I dropped our friend.

IV.

Splash, went he, as under he ducked,
—At the bottom, I knew, rain-drippings stagnate :
Next, a handful of blossoms I plucked
To bury him with, my bookshelf's magnate ;
Then I went in-doors, brought out a loaf,
Half a cheese, and a bottle of Chablis ;
Lay on the grass and forgot the oaf
Over a jolly chapter of Rabelais.

V.

Now, this morning, betwixt the moss
And gum that locked our friend in limbo,
A spider had spun his web across,
And sat in the midst with arms akimbo :
So, I took pity, for learning's sake,
And, de profundis, accentibus latis,
Cantate! quoth I, as I got a rake ;
And up I fished his delectable treatise.

VI.

Here you have it, dry in the sun,
With all the binding all of a blister,
And great blue spots where the ink has run,
And reddish streaks that wink and glister
O'er the page so beautifully yellow :
Oh, well have the droppings played their tricks !
Did he guess how toadstools grow, this fellow?
Here's one stuck in his chapter six !

VII.

How did he like it when the live creatures
Tickled and toused and browsed him all
over,
And worm, slug, eft, with serious features,
Came in, each one, for his right of trover ?

—When the water-beetle with great blind deaf face
Made of her eggs the stately deposit,
And the newt borrowed just so much of the preface
As tiled in the top of his black wife's closet?

VIII.

All that life and fun and romping,
All that frisking and twisting and coupling,
While slowly our poor friend's leaves were swamping
And clasps were cracking and covers suppling!
As if you had carried sour John Knox
To the play-house at Paris, Vienna or Munich,
Fastened him into a front-row box,
And danced off the ballet with trousers and tunic.

IX.

Come, old martyr! What, torment enough is it?
Back to my room shall you take your sweet
self.
Good-bye, mother-beetle; husband-eft, sufficit!
See the snug niche I have made on my shelf!
A.'s book shall prop you up, B.'s shall cover
you,
Here's C. to be grave with, or D. to be gay,
And with E. on each side, and F. right over
you,
Dry-rot at ease till the Judgment-day!

SOLILOQUY OF THE SPANISH CLOISTER.

I.

GR-R-R—there go, my heart's abhorrence!
Water your damned flower-pots, do!
If hate killed men, Brother Lawrence,
God's blood, would not mine kill you!
What? your myrtle-bush wants trimming?
Oh, that rose has prior claims—
Needs its leaden vase filled brimming?
Hell dry you up with its flames!

II.

At the meal we sit together:
Salve tibi! I must hear
Wise talk of the kind of weather,
Sort of season, time of year:
*Not a plenteous cork-crop: scarcely
Dare we hope oak-galls, I doubt:
What's the Latin name for "parsley"?*
What's the Greek name for Swine's Snout?

III.

Whew! We'll have our platter burnished,
Laid with care on our own shelf!
With a fire-new spoon we're furnished,
And a goblet for ourself,
Rinsed like something sacrificial
Ere 'tis fit to touch our chaps—
Marked with L. for our initial!
(He-he! There his lily snaps!)

IV.

Saint, forsooth! While brown Dolores
Squats outside the Convent bank
With Sanchicha, telling stories,
Steeping tresses in the tank,
Blue-black, lustrous, thick like horsehairs,
—Can't I see his dead eye glow,
Bright as 'twere a Barbary corsair's?
(That is, if he'd let it show!)

V.

When he finishes refection,
Knife and fork he never lays
Cross-wise, to my recollection,
As do I, in Jesu's praise.
I the Trinity illustrate,
Drinking watered orange-pulp—
In three sips the Arian frustrate;
While he drains his at one gulp.

VI.

Oh, those melons? If he's able
We're to have a feast! so nice!
One goes to the Abbot's table,
All of us get each a slice.
How go on your flowers? None double
Not one fruit-sort can you spy?
Strange!—And I, too, at such trouble,
Keep them close-nipped on the sly!

IX.

For only last night, as they whispered, I brought
My own eyes to bear on her so, that I thought Could I keep them one half minute fixed,
 she would fall
Shrivelled ; she fell not ; yet this does it all !

X.

Not that I bid you spare her the pain ;
Let death be felt and the proof remain :
Brand, burn up, bite into its grace—
He is sure to remember her dying face !

XI.

Is it done? Take my mask off! Nay, be not morose ;
It kills her, and this prevents seeing it close :
The delicate droplet, my whole fortune's fee !
If it hurts her, beside, can it ever hurt me ?

XII.

Now, take all my jewels, gorge gold to your fill,
You may kiss me, old man, on my mouth if you will !
But brush this dust off me, lest horror it brings Ere I know it—next moment I dance at the King's !

THE CONFESSIONAL.

[SPAIN.]

I.

It is a lie—their Priests, their Pope,
Their Saints, their . . . all they fear or hope
Are lies, and lies—there ! through my door
And ceiling, there ! and walls and floor,
There, lies, they lie—shall still be hurled
Till spite of them I reach the world !

II.

You think Priests just and holy men !
Before they put me in this den
I was a human creature too,
With flesh and blood like one of you,
A girl that laughed in beauty's pride
Like lilies in your world outside.

III.

I had a lover—shame avaunt !
This poor wrenched body, grim and gaunt,
Was kissed all over till it burned,
By lips the truest, love e'er turned
His heart's own tint : one night they kissed
My soul out in a burning mist.

IV.

So, next day when the accustomed train
Of things grew round my sense again,
“That is a sin,” I said : and slow
With downcast eyes to church I go,
And pass to the confession-chair,
And tell the old mild father there.

V.

But when I falter Beltran's name,
“Ha?” quoth the father ; “much I blame
“The sin ; yet wherefore idly grieve ?
“Despair not—strenuously retrieve !
“Nay, I will turn this love of thine
“To lawful love, almost divine ;

VI.

“For he is young, and led astray,
“This Beltran, and he schemes, men say,
“To change the laws of church and state ;
“So, thine shall be an angel's fate,
“Who, ere the thunder breaks, should roll
“Its cloud away and save his soul.

VII.

“For, when he lies upon thy breast,
“Thou mayst demand and be possessed
“Of all his plans, and next day steal
“To me, and all those plans reveal,
“That I and every priest, to purge
“His soul, may fast and use the scourge.”

VIII.

That father's beard was long and white,
With love and truth his brow seemed bright ;
I went back, all on fire with joy,
And, that same evening, bade the boy
Tell me, as lovers should, heart-free,
Something to prove his love of me.

IX.

He told me what he would not tell
 For hope of heaven or fear of hell ;
 And I lay listening in such pride !
 And, soon as he had left my side,
 Tripped to the church by morning-light
 To save his soul in his despite.

X.

I told the father all his schemes,
 Who were his comrades, what their dreams ;
 "And now make haste," I said, "to pray
 "The one spot from his soul away ;
 "To-night he comes, but not the same
 "Will look !" At night he never came.

XI.

Nor next night : on the after-morn,
 I went forth with a strength new-born.
 The church was empty ; something drew
 My steps into the street ; I knew
 It led me to the market-place :
 Where, lo, on high, the father's face !

XII.

That horrible black scaffold dressed,
 That stapled block . . . God sink the rest !
 That head strapped back, that blinding vest,
 Those knotted hands and naked breast,
 Till near one busy hangman pressed,
 And, on the neck these arms caressed . . .

XIII.

No part in aught they hope or fear !
 No heaven with them, no hell !—and here,
 No earth, not so much space as pens
 My body in their worst of dens
 But shall bear God and man my cry,
 Lies—lies, again—and still, they lie !

CRISTINA.

I.

SHE should never have looked at me
 If she meant I should not love her !
 There are plenty . . . men, you call such,
 I suppose . . . she may discover

All her soul to, if she pleases,
 And yet leave much as she found them :
 But I'm not so, and she knew it
 When she fixed me, glancing round them.

II.

What? To fix me thus meant nothing?
 But I can't tell (there's my weakness)
 What her look said !—no vile cant, sure,
 About "need to strew the bleakness
 "Of some lone shore with its pearl-seed.
 "That the sea feels"—no "strange yearning
 "That such souls have, most to lavish
 "Where there's chance of least returning."

III.

Oh, we're sunk enough here, God knows !
 But not quite so sunk that moments,
 Sure tho' seldom, are denied us,
 When the spirit's true endowments
 Stand out plainly from its false ones,
 And apprise it if pursuing
 Or the right way or the wrong way,
 To its triumph or undoing.

IV.

There are flashes struck from midnights,
 There are fire-flames noondays kindle,
 Whereby piled-up honours perish,
 Whereby swollen ambitions dwindle,
 While just this or that poor impulse,
 Which for once had play unstified,
 Seems the sole work of a life-time
 That away the rest have trifled.

V.

Doubt you if, in some such moment,
 As she fixed me, she felt clearly,
 Ages past the soul existed,
 Here an age 'tis resting merely,
 And hence fleets again for ages,
 While the true end, sole and single,
 It stops here for is, this love-way,
 With some other soul to mingle?

VI.

Else it loses what it lived for,
 And eternally must lose it ;
 Better ends may be in prospect,
 Deeper blisses (if you choose it),
 But this life's end and this love-bliss
 Have been lost here. Doubt you whether
 This she felt as, looking at me,
 Mine and her souls rushed together ?

VII.

Oh, observe ! Of course, next moment,
 The world's honours, in derision,
 Trampled out the light for ever :
 Never fear but there's provision
 Of the devil's to quench knowledge
 Lest we walk the earth in rapture !
 —Making those who catch God's secret
 Just so much more prize their capture !

VIII.

Such am I : the secret's mine now !
 She has lost me, I have gained her ;
 Her soul's mine : and thus, grown perfect,
 I shall pass my life's remainder.
 Life will just hold out the proving
 Both our powers, alone and blended :
 And then, come next life quickly !
 This world's use will have been ended.

THE LOST MISTRESS.

I.

ALL's over, then : does truth sound bitter
 As one at first believes ?
 Hark, 'tis the sparrows' good-night twitter
 About your cottage eaves !

II.

And the leaf-buds on the vine are woolly,
 I noticed that, to-day ;
 One day more bursts them open fully
 —You know the red turns grey.

III.

To-morrow we meet the same then, dearest ?
 May I take your hand in mine ?
 Mere friends are we,—well, friends the merest
 Keep much that I resign :

IV.

For each glance of the eye so bright and
 black,
 Though I keep with heart's endeavour,—
 Your voice, when you wish the snowdrops
 back,
 Though it stay in my soul for ever !—

V.

Yet I will but say what mere friends say,
 Or only a thought stronger ;
 I will hold your hand but as long as all may,
 Or so very little longer !

EARTH'S IMMORTALITIES.

FAME.

SEE, as the prettiest graves will do in time,
 Our poet's wants the freshness of its prime ;
 Spite of the sexton's browsing horse, the sods
 Have struggled through its binding osier rods ;
 Headstone and half-sunk footstone lean awry,
 Wanting the brick-work promised by-and-by ;
 How the minute grey lichens, plate o'er plate,
 Have softened down the crisp-cut name and date !

LOVE.

So, the year's done with !
 (Love me for ever !)
 All March begun with,
 April's endeavour ;
 May-wreaths that bound me
 June needs must sever ;
 Now snows fall round me,
 Quenching June's fever—
 (Love me for ever !)

VIII.

Meet, if thou require it,
Both demands,
Laying flesh and spirit
In thy hands.

IX.

That shall be to-morrow
Not to-night :
I must bury sorrow
Out of sight :

X.

—Must a little weep, Love,
(Foolish me !)
And so fall asleep, Love,
Loved by thee.

EVELYN HOPE.

I.

BEAUTIFUL Evelyn Hope is dead !
Sit and watch by her side an hour.
That is her book-shelf, this her bed ;
She plucked that piece of geranium-flower,
Beginning to die too, in the glass ;
Little has yet been changed, I think :
The shutters are shut, no light may pass
Save two long rays thro' the hinge's chink.

II.

Sixteen years old when she died !
Perhaps she had scarcely heard my name ;
It was not her time to love ; beside,
Her life had many a hope and aim,
Duties enough and little cares,
And now was quiet, now astir,
Till God's hand beckoned unawares,—
And the sweet white brow is all of her.

III.

Is it too late then, Evelyn Hope ?
What, your soul was pure and true,
The good stars met in your horoscope,
Made you of spirit, fire and dew—

And, just because I was thrice as old
And our paths in the world diverged so wide,
Each was nought to each, must I be told ?
We were fellow mortals, nought beside ?

IV.

No, indeed ! for God above
Is great to grant, as mighty to make,
And creates the love to reward the love :
I claim you still, for my own love's sake !
Delayed it may be for more lives yet,
Through worlds I shall traverse, not a
few :
Much is to learn, much to forget
Ere the time be come for taking you.

V.

But the time will come,—at last it will,
When, Evelyn Hope, what meant (I shall
say)
In the lower earth, in the years long still,
That body and soul so pure and gay ?
Why your hair was amber, I shall divine,
And your mouth of your own geranium's red—
And what you would do with me, in fine,
In the new life come in the old one's stead.

VI.

I have lived (I shall say) so much since then,
Given up myself so many times,
Gained me the gains of various men,
Ransacked the ages, spoiled the climes ;
Yet one thing, one, in my soul's full scope,
Either I missed or itself missed me :
And I want and find you, Evelyn Hope !
What is the issue ? let us see !

VII.

I loved you, Evelyn, all the while.
My heart seemed full as it could hold ?
There was place and to spare for the frank young smile,
And the red young mouth, and the hair's young gold.

So, hush,—I will give you this leaf to keep :
 See, I shut it inside the sweet cold hand !
 There, that is our secret : go to sleep !
 You will wake, and remember, and understand.

LOVE AMONG THE RUINS.

I.

WHERE the quiet-coloured end of evening smiles,
 Miles and miles
 On the solitary pastures where our sheep
 Half-asleep
 Tinkle homeward thro' the twilight, stray or stop
 As they crop—
 Was the site once of a city great and gay,
 (So they say)
 Of our country's very capital, its prince Ages since
 Held his court in, gathered councils, wielding far
 Peace or war.

II.

Now,—the country does not even boast a tree,
 As you see,
 To distinguish slopes of verdure, certain rills
 From the hills
 Intersect and give a name to, (else they run Into one)
 Where the domed and daring palace shot its spires
 Up like fires
 O'er the hundred-gated circuit of a wall
 Bounding all,
 Made of marble, men might march on nor be pressed,
 Twelve abreast.

III.

And such plenty and perfection, see, of grass
 Never was !
 Such a carpet as, this summer-time, o'er-spreads
 And embeds

Every vestige of the city, guessed alone,
 Stock or stone—
 Where a multitude of men breathed joy and woe
 Long ago ;
 Lust of glory pricked their hearts up, dread of shame
 Struck them tame ;
 And that glory and that shame alike, the gold
 Bought and sold.

IV.

Now,—the single little turret that remains
 On the plains,
 By the caper overrooted, by the gourd
 Overscored,
 While the patching houseleek's head of blossom winks
 Through the chinks—
 Marks the basement whence a tower in ancient time
 Sprang sublime,
 And a burning ring, all round, the chariots traced
 As they raced,
 And the monarch and his minions and his dames
 Viewed the games.

V.

And I know, while thus the quiet-coloured eve
 Smiles to leave
 To their folding, all our many-tinkling fleece
 In such peace,
 And the slopes and rills in undistinguished grey Melt away—
 That a girl, with eager eyes and yellow hair
 Waits me there
 In the turret whence the charioteers caught
 soul
 For the goal,
 When the king looked, where she looks now, breathless, dumb
 Till I come.

VI.

But he looked upon the city, every side,
 Far and wide,
 All the mountains topped with temples, all the glades'
 Colonnades,
 All the causeys, bridges, aqueducts,—and
 then,
 All the men !
 When I do come, she will speak not, she will stand,
 Either hand
 On my shoulder, give her eyes the first embrace
 Of my face,
 Ere we rush, ere we extinguish sight and
 speech
 Each on each.

VII.

In one year they sent a million fighters forth
 South and North,
 And they built their gods a brazen pillar high
 As the sky,
 Yet reserved a thousand chariots in full force—
 Gold, of course.
 Oh heart ! oh blood that freezes, blood that burns !
 Earth's returns
 For whole centuries of folly, noise and sin !
 Shut them in,
 With their triumphs and their glories and the rest !
 Love is best.

A LOVERS' QUARREL.

I.

OH, what a dawn of day !
 How the March sun feels like May !
 All is blue again
 After last night's rain,
 And the South dries the hawthorn-spray.
 Only, my Love's away !
 I'd as lief that the blue were grey.

II.

Runnels, which rillets swell,
 Must be dancing down the dell,
 With a foaming head
 On the beryl bed
 Paven smooth as a hermit's cell ;
 Each with a tale to tell,
 Could my Love but attend as well.

III.

Dearest, three months ago !
 When we lived blocked-up with snow,—
 When the wind would edge
 In and in his wedge,
 In, as far as the point could go—
 Not to our ingle, though,
 Where we loved each the other so !

IV.

Laughs with so little cause !
 We devised games out of straws.
 We would try and trace
 One another's face
 In the ash, as an artist draws ;
 Free on each other's flaws,
 How we chattered like two church daws !

V.

What's in the "Times" ?—a scold
 At the Emperor deep and cold ;
 He has taken a bride
 To his gruesome side,
 That's as fair as himself is bold :
 There they sit ermine-stoled,
 And she powders her hair with gold.

VI.

Fancy the Pampas' sheen !
 Miles and miles of gold and green
 Where the sunflowers blow
 In a solid glow,
 And—to break now and then the screen—
 Black neck and eyeballs keen,
 Up a wild horse leaps between !

XVII.

Foul be the world or fair
 More or less, how can I care?
 'Tis the world the same
 For my praise or blame,
 And endurance is easy there.
 Wrong in the one thing rare—
 Oh, it is hard to bear!

XVIII.

Here's the spring back or close,
 When the almond-blossom blows:
 We shall have the word
 In a minor third
 There is none but the cuckoo knows:
 Heaps of the guelder-rose!
 I must bear with it, I suppose.

XIX.

Could but November come,
 Were the noisy birds struck dumb
 At the warning slash
 Of his driver's-lash—
 I would laugh like the valiant Thumb
 Facing the castle glum
 And the giant's fee-faw-fum!

XX.

Then, were the world well stripped
 Of the gear wherein equipped
 We can stand apart,
 Heart dispense with heart
 In the sun, with the flowers unnipped,—
 Oh, the world's hangings ripped,
 We were both in a bare-walled crypt!

XXI.

Each in the crypt would cry
 "But one freezes here! and why?"
 "When a heart, as chill,
 "At my own would thrill
 "Back to life, and its fires out-fly?
 "Heart, shall we live or die?
 "The rest, . . . settle by-and-by!"

XXII.

So, she'd efface the score,
 And forgive me as before.
 It is twelve o'clock:
 I shall hear her knock
 In the worst of a storm's uproar,
 I shall pull her through the door,
 I shall have her for evermore!

UP AT A VILLA—DOWN IN THE CITY.

(AS DISTINGUISHED BY AN ITALIAN PERSON OF QUALITY.)

I.

HAD I but plenty of money, money enough and to spare,
 The house for me, no doubt, were a house
 in the city-square;
 Ah, such a life, such a life, as one leads at the window there!

II.

Something to see, by Bacchus, something to hear, at least!
 There, the whole day long, one's life is a perfect feast;
 While up at a villa one lives, I maintain it,
 no more than a beast.

III.

Well now, look at our villa! stuck like the horn of a bull
 Just on a mountain-edge as bare as the creature's skull,
 Save a mere shag of a bush with hardly a leaf to pull!
 —I scratch my own, sometimes, to see if the hair's turned wool.

IV.

But the city, oh the city—the square with the houses! Why?
 They are stone-faced, white as a curd, there's something to take the eye!

Houses in four straight lines, not a single front awry ;
You watch who crosses and gossips, who saunters, who hurries by ;
Green blinds, as a matter of course, to draw
when the sun gets high ;
And the shops with fanciful signs which are painted properly.

V.

What of a villa? Though winter be over in March by rights,
'Tis May perhaps ere the snow shall have withered well off the heights :
You've the brown ploughed land before,
where the oxen steam and wheeze,
And the hills over-smoked behind by the faint grey olive-trees.

VI.

Is it better in May, I ask you? You've summer all at once ;
In a day he leaps complete with a few strong April suns.
'Mid the sharp short emerald wheat, scarce
risen three fingers well,
The wild tulip, at end of its tube, blows out its great red bell
Like a thin clear bubble of blood, for the children to pick and sell.

VII.

Is it ever hot in the square? There's a fountain to spout and splash !
In the shade it sings and springs ; in the shine such foam-bows flash
On the horses with curling fish-tails, that prance and paddle and pash Round the lady atop in her conch—fifty gazers do not abash,
Though all that she wears is some weeds round her waist in a sort of sash.

VIII.

All the year long at the villa, nothing to see though you linger,
Except yon cypress that points like death's lean lifted forefinger.

Some think fireflies pretty, when they mix
i' the corn and mingle,
Or thrid the stinking hemp till the stalks of it seem a-tingle.

Late August or early September, the stunning cicala is shrill,
And the bees keep their tiresome whine round
the resinous firs on the hill.

Enough of the seasons,—I spare you the months of the fever and chill.

IX.

Ere you open your eyes in the city, the blessed church-bells begin :

No sooner the bells leave off than the diligence rattles in :

You get the pick of the news, and it costs
you never a pin.

By-and-by there's the travelling doctor gives pills, lets blood, draws teeth ;

Or the Pulcinello-trumpet breaks up the market beneath.

At the post-office such a scene-picture—the new play, piping hot !

And a notice how, only this morning, three liberal thieves were shot.

Above it, behold the Archbishop's most fatherly of rebukes,

And beneath, with his crown and his lion,
some little new law of the Duke's !

Or a sonnet with flowery marge, to the Reverend Don So-and-so

Who is Dante, Boccaccio, Petrarca, Saint
Jerome and Cicero,

“And moreover,” (the sonnet goes rhyming,) “the skirts of Saint Paul has
reached,

“Having preached us those six Lent-lectures more unctuous than ever he preached.”

Noon strikes,—here sweeps the procession !
our Lady borne smiling and smart

With a pink gauze gown all spangles, and seven swords stuck in her heart !

Bang-whang-whang goes the drum, *tootle-to-
tootle* the fife ;

No keeping one's haunches still : it's the greatest pleasure in life.

X.

But bless you, it's dear—it's dear ! fowls,
 wine, at double the rate.
 They have clapped a new tax upon salt, and what oil pays passing the gate
 It's a horror to think of. And so, the villa for me, not the city !
 Beggars can scarcely be choosers : but still—ah, the pity, the pity !
 Look, two and two go the priests, then the monks with cowls and sandals,
 And the penitents dressed in white shirts,
 a-holding the yellow candles ;
 One, he carries a flag up straight, and another a cross with handles,
 And the Duke's guard brings up the rear, for the better prevention of scandals :
Bang-whang-whang goes the drum, tootle-te-
tootle the fife.
 Oh, a day in the city-square, there is no such pleasure in life !

A TOCCATA¹ OF GALUPPI'S.

[Galuppi was a famous Italian composer of the eighteenth century. He was in London from 1741 to 1744.]

I.

OH Galuppi, Baldassarro, this is very sad to
 find !
 I can hardly misconceive you ; it would prove me deaf and blind ;
 But although I take your meaning, 'tis with such a heavy mind !

II.

Here you come with your old music, and here's all the good it brings.
 What, they lived once thus at Venice where the merchants were the kings,
 Where Saint Mark's is, where the Doges used to wed the sea with rings ?

¹ An overture—a touch piece.

III.

Ay, because the sea's the street there ; and
 'tis arched by . . . what you call
 . . . Shylock's bridge with houses on it, where they kept the carnival :
 I was never out of England—it's as if I saw it all.

IV.

Did young people take their pleasure when the sea was warm in May ?
 Balls and masks begun at midnight, burning ever to mid-day,
 When they made up fresh adventures for the morrow, do you say ?

V.

Was a lady such a lady, cheeks so round and lips so red,—
 On her neck the small face buoyant, like a bell-flower on its bed,
 O'er the breast's superb abundance where a man might base his head ?

VI.

Well, and it was graceful of them—they'd break talk off and afford
 —She, to bite her mask's black velvet—he,
 to finger on his sword,
 While you sat and played Toccatas, stately at the clavichord ?

VII.

What? Those lesser thirds so plaintive, sixths diminished, sigh on sigh,
 Told them something? Those suspensions, those solutions—"Must we die?"
 Those commiserating sevenths—"Life might last ! we can but try !"

VIII.

"Were you happy?"—"Yes."—"And are you still as happy?"—"Yes. And you?"
 —"Then, more kisses!"—"Did I stop them, when a million seemed so few?"
 Hark, the dominant's persistence till it must be answered to !

And mark through the winter afternoons,
By a gift God grants me now and then,
In the mild decline of those suns like moons,
Who walked in Florence, besides her men.

V.

They might chirp and chaffer, come and go
For pleasure or profit, her men alive—
My business was hardly with them, I trow,
But with empty cells of the human hive;
—With the chapter-room, the cloister-porch.
The church's apsis, aisle or nave,
Its crypt, one fingers along with a torch,
Its face set full for the sun to shave.

VI.

Wherever a fresco peels and drops,
Wherever an outline weakens and wanes
Till the latest life in the painting stops, Stands One whom each fainter pulse-tick pains:
One, wishful each scrap should clutch the brick,
Each tinge not wholly escape the plaster,
—A lion who dies of an ass's kick,
The wronged great soul of an ancient Master.

VII.

For oh, this world and the wrong it does!
They are safe in heaven with their backs
to it,
The Michaels and Rafaels, you hum and buzz
Round the works of, you of the little wit!
Do their eyes contract to the earth's old scope,
Now that they see God face to face,
And have all attained to be poets, I hope?
'Tis their holiday now, in any case.

VIII.

Much they reckon of your praise and you!
But the wronged great souls—can they be quit
Of a world where their work is all to do,
Where you style them, you of the little wit,
Old Master This and Early the Other,
Not dreaming that Old and New are fellows:
A younger succeeds to an elder brother,
Da Vincis derive in good time from Dellos.

IX.

And here where your praise might yield returns,
And a handsome word or two give help,
Here, after your kind, the mastiff grins
And the puppy pack of poodles yelp.
What, not a word for Stefano there,
Of brow once prominent and starry,
Called Nature's Ape and the world's despair
For his peerless painting? (See Vasari.)

X.

There stands the Master. Study, my friends,
What a man's work comes to! So he plans it,
Performs it, perfects it, makes amends
For the toiling and moiling, and then, sic transit!
Happier the thrifty blind-folk labour,
With upturned eye while the hand is busy,
Not sidling a glance at the coin of their neighbour!
'Tis looking downward that makes one dizzy.

XI.

"If you knew their work you would deal your dole."
May I take upon me to instruct you?
When Greek Art ran and reached the goal,
Thus much had the world to boast in fructu—
The Truth of Man, as by God first spoken,
Which the actual generations garble,
Was re-uttered, and Soul (which Limbs betoken)
And Limbs (Soul informs) made new in marble.

XII.

So, you saw yourself as you wished you were,
As you might have been, as you cannot be;
Earth here, rebuked by Olympus there:
And grew content in your poor degree
With your little power, by those statues'
godhead,
And your little scope, by their eyes' full sway,
And your little grace, by their grace embodied,
And your little date, by their forms that stay.

XIII.

You would fain be kinglier, say, than I am?
 Even so, you will not sit like Theseus.
 You would prove a model? The Son of Priam
 Has yet the advantage in arms' and knees'
 use.
 You're wroth—can you slay your snake like Apollo?
 You're grieved—still Niobe's the grander!
 You live—there's the Racers' frieze to follow:
 You die—there's the dying Alexander.

XIV.

So, testing your weakness by their strength,
 Your meagre charms by their rounded
 beauty,
 Measured by Art in your breadth and length,
 You learned—to submit is a mortal's duty.
 —When I say “you” 'tis the common soul,
 The collective, I mean: the race of Man
 That receives life in parts to live in a whole,
 And grow here according to God's clear plan.

XV.

Growth came when, looking your last on them all,
 You turned your eyes inwardly one fine day
 And cried with a start—What if we so small
 Be greater and grander the while than they?
 Are they perfect of lineament, perfect of stature?
 In both, of such lower types are we Precisely because of our wider nature;
 For time, theirs—ours, for eternity.

XVI.

To-day's brief passion limits their range;
 It seethes with the morrow for us and more.
 They are perfect—how else? they shall never
 change:
 We are faulty—why not? we have time in store.
 The Artificer's hand is not arrested
 With us; we are rough-hewn, nowise polished:
 They stand for our copy, and, once invested
 With all they can teach, we shall see them abolished.

XVII.

'Tis a life-long toil till our lump be leaven—
 The better! What's come to perfection perishes.
 Things learned on earth, we shall practise
 in heaven:
 Works done least rapidly, Art most cherishes.
 Thyself shalt afford the example, Giotto!
 Thy one work, not to decrease or diminish,
 Done at a stroke, was just (was it not?) “O!”
 Thy great Campanile is still to finish.

XVIII.

Is it true that we are now, and shall be hereafter,
 But what and where depend on life's minute?
 Hails heavenly cheer or infernal laughter
 Our first step out of the gulf or in it?
 Shall Man, such step within his endeavour,
 Man's face, have no more play and action
 Than joy which is crystallized for ever,
 Or grief, an eternal petrification?

XIX.

On which I conclude, that the early painters,
 To cries of “Greek Art and what more wish you?”—
 Replied, “To become now self-acquainters,
 “And paint man man, whatever the issue!
 “Make new hopes shine through the flesh they fray,
 “New fears aggrandize the rags and tatters:
 “To bring the invisible full into play!
 “Let the visible go to the dogs—what matters?”

XX.

Give these, I exhort you, their guerdon and glory
 For daring so much, before they well did it.
 The first of the new, in our race's story,
 Beats the last of the old; 'tis no idle quiddit.
 The worthies began a revolution,
 Which if on earth you intend to acknowledge,
 Why, honour them now! (ends my allocution)
 Nor confer your degree when the folk leave college.

XXI.

There's a fancy some lean to and others hate—
That, when this life is ended, begins
New work for the soul in another state,
Where it strives and gets weary, loses and wins :

Where the strong and the weak, this world's congeries,
Repeat in large what they practised in small,
Through life after life in unlimited series ;
Only the scale's to be changed, that's all.

XXII.

Yet I hardly know. When a soul has seen
By the means of Evil that Good is best,
And, through earth and its noise, what is heaven's serene,—

When our faith in the same has stood the test—

Why, the child grown man, you burn the rod,
The uses of labour are surely done ;
There remaineth a rest for the people of
God :
And I have had troubles enough, for one.

XXIII.

But at any rate I have loved the season
Of Art's spring-birth so dim and dewy ;
My sculptor is Nicolo¹ the Pisan,
My painter—who but Cimabue ?
Nor ever was man of them all indeed,
From these to Ghiberti² and Ghirlandajo,³
Could say that he missed my critic-meed.
So, now to my special grievance—heigh ho !

XXIV.

Their ghosts still stand, as I said before,
Watching each fresco flaked and ras ed,
Blocked up, knocked out, or whitewashed
o'er :
—No getting again what the church has grasped !

² Died 1455. Designed the bronze gates of the Baptistry at Florence.

³ A painter, died 1498.

The works on the wall must take their chance ;
“ Works never conceded to England's thick clime ! ”

(I hope they prefer their inheritance
Of a bucketful of Italian quick-lime.)

XXV.

When they go at length, with such a shaking
Of heads o'er the old delusion, sadly
Each master his way through the black streets taking,

Where many a lost work breathes though badly—

Why don't they bethink them of who has merited ?

Why not reveal, while their pictures dree
Such doom, how a captive might be outferreted ?

Why is it they never remember me ?

XXVI.

Not that I expect the great Bigordi,
Nor Sandro to hear me, chivalric, bellicose :
Nor the wronged Lippino ;⁴ and not a word I Say of a scrap of Frà Angelico's :

But are you too fine, Taddeo Gaddi,⁵

To grant me a taste of your intonaco,⁶
Some Jerome that seeks the heaven with a sad eye ?

Not a churlish saint, Lorenzo Monaco ?

XXVII.

Could not the ghost with the close red cap,
My Pollajolo,⁷ the twice a craftsman,
Save me a sample, give me the hap
Of a muscular Christ that shows the draughtsman ?

No Virgin by him the somewhat petty,
Of finical touch and tempera⁸ crumbly—
Could not Alesso Baldovinetti
Contribute so much, I ask him humbly ?

⁴ The son of Frà Lippo Lippi. Wronged, because some of his pictures have been attributed to others.

⁵ Died 1366. One of Giotto's pupils and assistants.

⁶ Rough cast.

⁷ Painter, sculptor, and goldsmith.

⁸ Distemper—mixture of water and egg yolk.

And fine as the beak of a young beccaccia
 The Campanile, the Duomo's fit ally,
 Shall soar up in gold full fifty braccia,
 Completing Florence, as Florence Italy.

XXXVI.

Shall I be alive that morning the scaffold
 Is broken away, and the long-pent fire,
 Like the golden hope of the world, unbaffied
 Springs from its sleep, and up goes the spire
 While "God and the People" plain for its motto,

Thence the new tricolour flaps at the sky?
 At least to foresee that glory of Giotto
 And Florence together, the first am I!

"DE GUSTIBUS——"

I.

YOUR ghost will walk, you lover of trees,
 (If our loves remain)

In an English lane,

By a cornfield-side a-flutter with poppies.

Hark, those two in the hazel coppice—

A boy and a girl, if the good fates please,

Making love, say,—

The happier they!

Draw yourself up from the light of the moon,

And let them pass, as they will too soon,

With the bean-flowers' boon,

And the blackbird's tune,

And May, and June!

II.

What I love best in all the world
 Is a castle, precipice-encurled,
 In a gash of the wind-grieved Apennine
 Or look for me, old fellow of mine,
 (If I get my head from out the mouth
 O' the grave, and loose my spirit's bands,
 And come again to the land of lands)—
 In a sea-side house to the farther South,
 Where the baked cicala dies of drouth,
 And one sharp tree—'tis a cypress—stands,

By the many hundred years red-rusted,
 Rough iron-spiked, ripe fruit-o'ercrusted,
 My sentinel to guard the sands
 To the water's edge. For, what expands
 Before the house, but the great opaque
 Blue breadth of sea without a break?
 While, in the house, for ever crumbles
 Some fragment of the frescoed walls,
 From blisters where a scorpion sprawls.
 A girl bare-footed brings, and tumbles
 Down on the pavement, green-flesh melons,
 And says there's news to-day—the king
 Was shot at, touched in the liver-wing,
 Goes with his Bourbon arm in a sling:
 —She hopes they have not caught the felons.

Italy, my Italy!

Queen Mary's saying serves for me—

(When fortune's malice Lost her—Calais)—

Open my heart and you will see

Graved inside of it, "Italy."

Such lovers old are I and she:

So it always was, so shall ever be!

HOME-THOUGHTS, FROM ABROAD

I.

OH, to be in England

Now that April's there,

And whoever wakes in England

Sees, some morning, unaware,

That the lowest boughs and the brushwood sheaf

Round the elm-tree bole are in tiny leaf,

While the chaffinch sings on the orchard
 bough

In England—now!

II.

And after April, when May follows,

And the whitethroat builds, and all the swallows!

Hark, where my blossomed pear-tree in the hedge

Leans to the field and scatters on the clover

Blossoms and dewdrops—at the bent spray's edge—
That's the wise thrush ; he sings each song twice over,
Lest you should think he never could recapture
The first fine careless rapture !
And though the fields look rough with hoary
dew,
All will be gay when noontide wakes anew
The buttercups, the little children's dower
—Far brighter than this gaudy melon-flower !

HOME-THOUGHTS, FROM THE SEA.

NOBLY, nobly Cape Saint Vincent to the North-west died away ;
Sunset ran, one glorious blood-red, reeking into Cadiz Bay ;
Bluish 'mid the burning water, full in face
Trafalgar lay ;
In the dimmest North-east distance dawned
Gibraltar grand and gray ;
"Here and here did England help me : how can I help England ?"—say, Whoso turns as I, this evening, turn to God
to praise and pray,
While Jove's planet rises yonder, silent over Africa.

SAUL.

I.

SAID Abner, "At last thou art come ! Ere
I tell, ere thou speak,
"Kiss my cheek, wish me well !" Then I wished it, and did kiss his cheek.
And he, "Since the King, O my friend, for thy countenance sent,
"Neither drunken nor eaten have we ; nor until from his tent
"Thou return with the joyful assurance the King liveth yet,
"Shall our lip with the honey be bright,
with the water be wet.

VOL. I.

"For out of the black mid-tent's silence, a space of three days,
"Not a sound hath escaped to thy servants,
of prayer nor of praise,
"To betoken that Saul and the Spirit have ended their strife,
"And that, faint in his triumph, the monarch
sinks back upon life.

II.

"Yet now my heart leaps, O beloved ! God's child with his dew
"On thy gracious gold hair, and those lilies still living and blue
"Just broken to twine round thy harp-strings, as if no wild heat
"Were now raging to torture the desert !"

III.

Then I, as was meet,
Knelt down to the God of my fathers, and rose on my feet,
And ran o'er the sand burnt to powder. The tent was unlooped ;
I pulled up the spear that obstructed, and under I stooped ;
Hands and knees on the slippery grass-patch,
all withered and gone,
That extends to the second enclosure, I groped my way on
Till I felt where the foldskirts fly open.
Then once more I prayed,
And opened the foldskirts and entered, and was not afraid
But spoke, "Here is David, thy servant !"
And no voice replied.
At the first I saw nought but the blackness ;
but soon I descried
A something more black than the blackness
—the vast, the upright
Main prop which sustains the pavilion : and slow into sight
Grew a figure against it, gigantic and blackest
of all.
Then a sunbeam, that burst thro' the tent-roof, showed Saul.

Handwritten note:
This is a very fine
poem.

IV.

He stood as erect as that tent-prop, both arms stretched out wide
 On the great cross-support in the centre, that goes to each side ;
 He relaxed not a muscle, but hung there as,
 caught in his pangs
 And waiting his change, the king-serpent all heavily hangs,
 Far away from his kind, in the pine, till deliverance come
 With the spring-time,—so agonized Saul, drear and stark, blind and dumb.

V.

Then I tuned my harp,—took off the lilies
 we twine round its chords
 Lest they snap 'neath the stress of the noon-tide—those sunbeams like swords !
 And I first played the tune all our sheep know, as, one after one,
 So docile they come to the pen-door till folding be done.
 They are white and untorn by the bushes, for lo, they have fed
 Where the long grasses stifle the water within the stream's bed ;
 And now one after one seeks its lodging, as star follows star
 Into eve and the blue far above us,—so blue and so far !

VI.

—Then the tune, for which quails on the cornland will each leave his mate
 To fly after the player ; then, what makes the crickets elate
 Till for boldness they fight one another : and then, what has weight
 To set the quick jerboa¹ a-musing outside his sand house—
 There are none such as he for a wonder, half bird and half mouse !
 God made all the creatures and gave them
 our love and our fear,
 To give sign, we and they are his children,
 one family here.

VII.

Then I played the help-tune of our reapers, their wine-song, when hand
 Grasps at hand, eye lights eye in good friendship, and great hearts expand And grow one in the sense of this world's life.—And then, the last song
 When the dead man is praised on his journey
 —“ Bear, bear him along “ With his few faults shut up like dead flowerets ! Are balm-seeds not here “ To console us ? The land has none left such as he on the bier.
 “ Oh, would we might keep thee, my brother ! ”—And then, the glad chaunt
 Of the marriage,—first go the young maidens, next, she whom we vaunt
 As the beauty, the pride of our dwelling.—
 And then, the great march Wherein man runs to man to assist him and buttress an arch
 Nought can break ; who shall harm them, our friends ?—Then, the chorus intoned
 As the Levites go up to the altar in glory enthroned.
 But I stopped here : for here in the darkness
 Saul groaned.

VIII.

And I paused, held my breath in such silence,
 and listened apart ;
 And the tent shook, for mighty Saul shuddered :
 and sparkles 'gan dart
 From the jewels that woke in his turban, at once with a start,
 All its lordly male-sapphires, and rubies courageous at heart.
 So the head : but the body still moved not,
 still hung there erect.
 And I bent once again to my playing, pursued it unchecked,
 As I sang,—

IX.

“ Oh, our manhood's prime vigour !
 No spirit feels waste,
 “ Not a muscle is stopped in its playing nor sinew unbraced.

At the King's self left standing before me, released and aware.

What was gone, what remained? All to traverse, 'twixt hope and despair;

Death was past, life not come: so he waited.

Awhile his right hand

Held the brow, helped the eyes left too vacant forthwith to remand

To their place what new objects should enter:
'twas Saul as before.

I looked up and dared gaze at those eyes, nor was hurt any more

Than by slow pallid sunsets in autumn, ye watch from the shore,

At their sad level gaze o'er the ocean—a sun's slow decline

Over hills which, resolved in stern silence, o'erlap and entwine

Base with base to knit strength more intensely: so, arm folded arm

O'er the chest whose slow heavings subsided.

XI.

What spell or what charm,
(For, awhile there was trouble within me) what next should I urge

To sustain him where song had restored him?
—Song filled to the verge

His cup with the wine of this life, pressing all that it yields

Of mere fruitage, the strength and the beauty:
beyond, on what fields,

Glean a vintage more potent and perfect to brighten the eye

And bring blood to the lip, and commend them the cup they put by?

He saith, "It is good;" still he drinks not:
he lets me praise life,

Gives assent, yet would die for his own part.

XII.

Then fancies grew rife
Which had come long ago on the pasture,
when round me the sheep

Fed in silence—above, the one eagle wheeled slow as in sleep;

And I lay in my hollow and mused on the world that might lie

'Neath his ken, though I saw but the strip
'twixt the hill and the sky:

And I laughed—"Since my days are ordained to be passed with my flocks,

"Let me people at least, with my fancies,
the plains and the rocks,

"Dream the life I am never to mix with, and image the show

"Of mankind as they live in those fashions
I hardly shall know!

"Schemes of life, its best rules and right uses, the courage that gains,

"And the prudence that keeps what men strive for." And now these old trains

Of vague thought came again; I grew surer;
so, once more the string

Of my harp made response to my spirit, as
thus—

XIII.

"Yea, my King,"
I began—"thou dost well in rejecting mere comforts that spring

"From the mere mortal life held in common by man and by brute:

"In our flesh grows the branch of this life,
in our soul it bears fruit.

"Thou hast marked the slow rise of the tree.
—how its stem trembled first

"Till it passed the kid's lip, the stag's antler;
then safely outburst

"The fan-branches all round; and thou mindest when these too, in turn

"Broke a-bloom and the palm-tree seemed perfect: yet more was to learn,

"E'en the good that comes in with the palm-fruit. Our dates shall we slight,

"When their juice brings a cure for all sorrow?
or care for the plight

"Of the palm's self whose slow growth produced them? Not so! stem and branch

"Shall decay, nor be known in their place, while the palm-wine shall staunch

"Every wound of man's spirit in winter. I pour thee such wine.

"Leave the flesh to the fate it was fit for!
the spirit be thine!

"By the spirit, when age shall o'ercome thee, thou still shalt enjoy
 "More indeed, than at first when unconscious, the life of a boy.
 "Crush that life, and behold its wine running!
 Each deed thou hast done
 "Dies, revives, goes to work in the world;
 until e'en as the sun
 "Looking down on the earth, though clouds spoil him, though tempests efface,
 "Can find nothing his own deed produced not, must everywhere trace
 "The results of his past summer-prime,—so,
 each ray of thy will,
 "Every flash of thy passion and prowess,
 long over, shall thrill
 "Thy whole people, the countless, with ardour, till they too give forth
 "A like cheer to their sons, who in turn, fill the South and the North
 "With the radiance thy deed was the germ
 of. Carouse in the past!
 "But the license of age has its limit; thou diest at last:
 "As the lion when age dims his eyeball, the rose at her height
 "So with man—so his power and his beauty for ever take flight.
 "No! Again a long draught of my soul-wine! Look forth o'er the years!
 "Thou hast done now with eyes for the actual; begin with the seer's!
 "Is Saul dead? In the depth of the vale make his tomb—bid arise
 "A grey mountain of marble heaped foursquare, till, built to the skies,
 "Let it mark where the great First King slumbers: whose fame would ye
 know?
 "Up above see the rock's naked face, where the record shall go
 "In great characters cut by the scribe,—Such was Saul, so he did;
 "With the sages directing the work, by the populace chid,—
 "For not half, they'll affirm, is comprised there! Which fault to amend,

"In the grove with his kind grows the cedar,
 whereon they shall spend
 "(See, in tablets 'tis level before them) their praise, and record
 "With the gold of the graver, Saul's story,
 —the statesman's great word
 "Side by side with the poet's sweet comment. The river's a-wave
 "With smooth paper-reeds grazing each other when prophet-winds rave:
 "So the pen gives unborn generations their due and their part
 "In thy being! Then, first of the mighty, thank God that thou art!"

XIV.

And behold while I sang . . . but O Thou who didst grant me that day,
 And before it not seldom hast granted thy help to essay,
 Carry on and complete an adventure,—my shield and my sword
 In that act where my soul was thy servant,
 thy word was my word,—
 Still be with me, who then at the summit of human endeavour
 And scaling the highest, man's thought could, gazed hopeless as ever
 On the new stretch of heaven above me—till,
 mighty to save,
 Just one lift of thy hand cleared that distance
 —God's throne from man's grave!
 Let me tell out my tale to its ending—my voice to my heart
 Which can scarce dare believe in what mar-vels last night I took part,
 As this morning I gather the fragments, alone with my sheep,
 And still fear lest the terrible glory vanish
 like sleep!
 For I wake in the grey dewy covert, while Hebron¹ upheaves
 The dawn struggling with night on his shoulder, and Kidron² retrieves
 Slow the damage of yesterday's sunshine.

² A brook near Jerusalem.

XV.

I say then,—my song
 While I sang thus, assuring the monarch, and ever more strong
 Made a proffer of good to console him—he slowly resumed
 His old motions and habitudes kingly. The right-hand replumed
 His black locks to their wonted composure, adjusted the swathes
 Of his turban, and see—the huge sweat that his countenance bathes,
 He wipes off with the robe; and he girds
 now his loins as of yore,
 And feels slow for the armlets of price, with the clasp set before.
 He is Saul, ye remember in glory,—ere error had bent
 The broad brow from the daily communion;
 and still, though much spent
 Be the life and the bearing that front you,
 the same, God did choose,
 To receive what a man may waste, desecrate,
 never quite lose.
 So sank he along by the tent-prop till, stayed by the pile
 Of his armour and war-cloak and garments,
 he leaned there awhile,
 And sat out my singing,—one arm round the tent-prop, to raise
 His bent head, and the other hung slack—till I touched on the praise
 I foresaw from all men in all time, to the man patient there;
 And thus ended, the harp falling forward.
 Then first I was 'ware
 That he sat, as I say, with my head just above his vast knees
 Which were thrust out on each side around me, like oak-roots which please To encircle a lamb when it slumbers. I looked up to know
 If the best I could do had brought solace:
 he spoke not, but slow Lifted up the hand slack at his side, till he laid it with care
 Soft and grave, but in mild settled will, on my brow: thro' my hair

The large fingers were pushed, and he bent back my head, with kind power—
 All my face back, intent to peruse it, as men do a flower.

Thus held he me there with his great eyes that scrutinized mine—

And oh, all my heart how it loved him! but where was the sign?

I yearned—"Could I help thee, my father,
 inventing a bliss,

"I would add, to that life of the past, both the future and this;

"I would give thee new life altogether, as good, ages hence,

"As this moment,—had love but the warrant, love's heart to dispense!"

XVI.

Then the truth came upon me. No harp more—no song more! outbroke—

XVII.

"I have gone the whole round of creation:
 I saw and I spoke:

"I, a work of God's hand for that purpose, received in my brain

"And pronounced on the rest of his handwork—returned him again

"His creation's approval or censure: I spoke as I saw:

"I report, as a man may of God's work—
 all's love, yet all's law.

"Now I lay down the judgeship he lent me.
 Each faculty tasked

"To perceive him, has gained an abyss, where a dewdrop was asked.

"Have I knowledge? confounded it shrivels at Wisdom laid bare.

"Have I forethought? how purblind, how blank, to the Infinite Care!

"Do I task any faculty highest, to image success?

"I but open my eyes,—and perfection, no more and no less,

"In the kind I imagined, full-fronts me, and God is seen God

"In the star, in the stone, in the flesh, in the soul and the clod.

"Could I wrestle to raise him from sorrow, grow poor to enrich,
 "To fill up his life, starve my own out, I would—knowing which,
 "I know that my service is perfect. Oh, speak through me now!
 "Would I suffer for him that I love? So wouldst thou—so wilt thou!
 "So shall crown thee the topmost, ineffablest, uttermost crown—
 "And thy love fill infinitude wholly, nor leave up nor down
 "One spot for the creature to stand in! It is by no breath,
 "Turn of eye, wave of hand, that salvation joins issue with death!
 "As thy Love is discovered almighty, almighty be proved
 "Thy power, that exists with and for it, of being Beloved!
 "He who did most, shall bear most; the strongest shall stand the most weak.
 "'Tis the weakness in strength, that I cry for! my flesh, that I seek
 "In the Godhead! I seek and I find it. O
 Saul, it shall be
 "A Face like my face that receives thee; a Man like to me,
 "Thou shalt love and be loved by, for ever:
 a Hand like this hand
 "Shall throw open the gates of new life to thee! See the Christ stand!"

XIX.

I know not too well how I found my way home in the night.
 There were witnesses, cohorts about me, to left and to right,
 Angels, powers, the unuttered, unseen, the alive, the aware:
 I repressed, I got through them as hardly,
 as strugglingly there,
 As a runner beset by the populace famished for news—
 Life or death. The whole earth was awakened, hell loosed with her crews;

And the stars of night beat with emotion,
 and tingled and shot
 Out in fire the strong pain of pent knowledge:
 but I fainted not,
 For the Hand still impelled me at once and supported, suppressed
 All the tumult, and quenched it with quiet, and holy behest,
 Till the rapture was shut in itself, and the earth sank to rest.
 Anon at the dawn, all that trouble had withered from earth—
 Not so much, but I saw it die out in the day's tender birth;
 In the gathered intensity brought to the grey of the hills;
 In the shuddering forests' held breath; in the sudden wind-thrills;
 In the startled wild beasts that bore off, each with eye sidling still Though averted with wonder and dread; in the birds stiff and chill
 That rose heavily, as I approached them, made stupid with awe:
 E'en the serpent that slid away silent,—he felt the new law.
 The same stared in the white humid faces
 upturned by the flowers;
 The same worked in the heart of the cedar and moved the vine-bowers:
 And the little brooks witnessing murmured,
 persistent and low,
 With their obstinate, all but hushed voices—
 "E'en so, it is so!"

MY STAR.

ALL that I know
 Of a certain star
 Is, it can throw
 (Like the angled spar)
 Now a dart of red,
 Now a dart of blue;
 Till my friends have said
 They would fain see, too,
 My star that dartles the red and the blue!

Then it stops like a bird ; like a flower,
hangs furled :
They must solace themselves with the Saturn above it.
What matter to me if their star is a world ?
Mine has opened its soul to me ; therefore I love it.

BY THE FIRE-SIDE.

I.

How well I know what I mean to do
When the long dark autumn-evenings
come :
And where, my soul, is thy pleasant hue ?
With the music of all thy voices, dumb
In life's November too !

II.

I shall be found by the fire, suppose,
O'er a great wise book as beseemeth age,
While the shutters flap as the cross-wind blows
And I turn the page, and I turn the page,
Not verse now, only prose !

III.

Till the young ones whisper, finger on lip,
" There he is at it, deep in Greek :
" Now then, or never, out we slip
" To cut from the hazels by the creek
" A mainmast for our ship ! "

IV.

I shall be at it indeed, my friends :
Greek puts already on either side
Such a branch-work forth as soon extends
To a vista opening far and wide,
And I pass out where it ends.

V.

The outside-frame, like your hazel-trees :
But the inside-archway widens fast,
And a rarer sort succeeds to these,
And we slope to Italy at last
And youth, by green degrees.

VI.

I follow wherever I am led,
Knowing so well the leader's hand :
Oh woman-country, wooed not wed,
Loved all the more by earth's male-lands,
Laid to their hearts instead !

VII.

Look at the ruined chapel again
Half-way up in the Alpine gorge !
Is that a tower, I point you plain,
Or is it a mill, or an iron-forge
Breaks solitude in vain ?

VIII.

A turn, and we stand in the heart of things ;
The woods are round us, heaped and dim ;
From slab to slab how it slips and springs,
The thread of water single and slim,
Through the ravage some torrent brings !

IX.

Does it feed the little lake below ?
That speck of white just on its marge
Is Pella ; see, in the evening-glow,
How sharp the silver spear-heads charge
When Alp meets heaven in snow !

X.

On our other side is the straight-up rock ;
And a path is kept 'twixt the gorge and it
By boulder-stones where lichens mock
The marks on a moth, and small ferns fit
Their teeth to the polished block.

XI.

Oh the sense of the yellow mountain-flowers,
And thorny balls, each three in one,
The chestnuts throw on our path in showers !
For the drop of the woodland fruit's begun,
These early November hours,

XII.

That crimson the creeper's leaf across
Like a splash of blood, intense, abrupt,
O'er a shield else gold from rim to boss,
And lay it for show on the fairy-cupped
Elf-needed mat of moss,

XIII.

By the rose-flesh mushrooms, undivulged
 Last evening—nay, in to-day's first dew
 Yon sudden coral nipple bulged,
 Where a freaked fawn-coloured flaky crew
 Of toadstools peep indulged.

XIV.

And yonder, at foot of the fronting ridge
 That takes the turn to a range beyond,
 Is the chapel reached by the one-arched bridge
 Where the water is stopped in a stagnant pond
 Danced over by the midge.

XV.

The chapel and bridge are of stone alike,
 Blackish-grey and mostly wet ;
 Cut hemp-stalks steep in the narrow dyke.
 See here again, how the lichens fret
 And the roots of the ivy strike !

XVI.

Poor little place, where its one priest comes
 On a festa-day, if he comes at all,
 To the dozen folk from their scattered homes,
 Gathered within that precinct small
 By the dozen ways one roams—

XVII.

To drop from the charcoal-burners' huts,
 Or climb from the hemp-dressers' low shed,
 Leave the grange where the woodman stores
 his nuts,
 Or the wattled cote where the fowlers spread
 Their gear on the rock's bare juts.

XVIII.

It has some pretension too, this front,
 With its bit of fresco half-moon-wise
 Set over the porch, Art's early wont :
 'Tis John in the Desert, I surmise,
 But has borne the weather's brunt—

XIX.

Not from the fault of the builder, though,
 For a pent-house properly projects
 Where three carved beams make a certain show,
 Dating—good thought of our architect's—
 'Five, six, nine, he lets you know.

XX.

And all day long a bird sings there,
 And a stray sheep drinks at the pond at times ;
 The place is silent and aware ;
 It has had its scenes, its joys and crimes,
 But that is its own affair.

XXI.

My perfect wife, my Leonor,
 Oh heart, my own, oh eyes, mine too,
 Whom else could I dare look backward for,
 With whom beside should I dare pursue
 The path grey heads abhor ?

XXII.

For it leads to a crag's sheer edge with them ;
 Youth, flowery all the way, there stops—
 Not they ; age threatens and they contemn,
 Till they reach the gulf wherein youth
 drops,
 One inch from life's safe hem !

XXIII.

With me, youth led . . . I will speak now,
 No longer watch you as you sit
 Reading by fire-light, that great brow
 And the spirit-small hand propping it,
 Mutely, my heart knows how—

XXIV.

When, if I think but deep enough,
 You are wont to answer, prompt as rhyme ;
 And you, too, find without rebuff
 Response your soul seeks many a time
 Piercing its fine flesh-stuff.

XXXIX.

Oh, the little more, and how much it is !
 And the little less, and what worlds away !
 How a sound shall quicken content to bliss,
 Or a breath suspend the blood's best
 play,
 And life be a proof of this !

XL.

Had she willed it, still had stood the screen
 So slight, so sure, 'twixt my love and
 her :
 I could fix her face with a guard between,
 And find her soul as when friends confer,
 Friends—lovers that might have been.

XLI.

For my heart had a touch of the woodland-
 time,
 Wanting to sleep now over its best.
 Shake the whole tree in the summer-prime,
 But bring to the last leaf no such test !
 " Hold the last fast ! " runs the rhyme.

XLII.

For a chance to make your little much,
 To gain a lover and lose a friend,
 Venture the tree and a myriad such,
 When nothing you mar but the year can
 mend :
 But a last leaf—fear to touch !

XLIII.

Yet should it unfasten itself and fall
 Eddying down till it find your face
 At some slight wind—best chance of all !
 Be your heart henceforth its dwelling-
 place
 You trembled to forestall !

XLIV.

Worth how well, those dark grey eyes,
 That hair so dark and dear, how worth
 That a man should strive and agonize,
 And taste a veriest hell on earth
 For the hope of such a prize !

XLV.

You might have turned and tried a man,
 Set him a space to weary and wear,
 And prove which suited more your plan,
 His best of hope or his worst despair,
 Yet end as he began.

XLVI.

But you spared me this, like the heart you are,
 And filled my empty heart at a word.
 If two lives join, there is oft a scar,
 They are one and one, with a shadowy third ;
 One near one is too far.

XLVII.

A moment after, and hands unseen
 Were hanging the night around us fast ;
 But we knew that a bar was broken between Life and life : we were mixed at last
 In spite of the mortal screen.

XLVIII.

The forests had done it ; there they stood ;
 We caught for a moment the powers at play :
 They had mingled us so, for once and good,
 Their work was done—we might go or stay,
 They relapsed to their ancient mood.

XLIX.

How the world is made for each of us !
 How all we perceive and know in it Tends to some moment's product thus,
 When a soul declares itself—to wit,
 By its fruit, the thing it does !

L.

Be hate that fruit or love that fruit,
 It forwards the general deed of man,
 And each of the Many helps to recruit
 The life of the race by a general plan ;
 Each living his own, to boot.

LI.

I am named and known by that moment's feat ;
 There took my station and degree ;
 So grew my own small life complete,
 As nature obtained her best of me—
 One born to love you, sweet !

LII.

And to watch you sink by the fire-side now
 Back again, as you mutely sit
 Musing by fire-light, that great brow
 And the spirit-small hand propping it,
 Yonder, my heart knows how !

LIII.

So, earth has gained by one man the more,
 And the gain of earth must be heaven's gain too ;
 And the whole is well worth thinking o'er
 When autumn comes : which I mean to do
 One day, as I said before.

ANY WIFE TO ANY HUSBAND.

I.

My love, this is the bitterest, that thou—
 Who art all truth, and who dost love me now
 As thine eyes say, as thy voice breaks to
 say—
 Shouldst love so truly, and couldst love me still
 A whole long life through, had but love its will,
 Would death that leads me from thee brook delay.

II.

I have but to be by thee, and thy hand
 Will never let mine go, nor heart withstand
 The beating of my heart to reach its place.
 When shall I look for thee and feel thee gone ?
 When cry for the old comfort and find none ?
 Never, I know ! Thy soul is in thy face.

III.

Oh, I should fade—'tis willed so ! Might I
 save,
 Gladly I would, whatever beauty gave
 Joy to thy sense, for that was precious too.
 It is not to be granted. But the soul Whence the love comes, all ravage leaves
 that whole ;
 Vainly the flesh fades ; soul makes all things new.

IV.

It would not be because my eye grew dim
 Thou couldst not find the love there, thanks to Him
 Who never is dishonoured in the spark
 He gave us from his fire of fires, and bade
 Remember whence it sprang, nor be afraid
 While that burns on, though all the rest grow dark.

V.

So, how thou wouldst be perfect, white and clean
 Outside as inside, soul and soul's demesne
 Alike, this body given to show it by !
 Oh, three-parts through the worst of life's abyss,
 What plaudits from the next world after this,
 Couldst thou repeat a stroke and gain the sky !

VI.

And is it not the bitterer to think
 That, disengage our hands and thou wilt sink
 Although thy love was love in very deed ?
 I know that nature ! Pass a festive day,
 Thou dost not throw its relic-flower away
 Nor bid its music's loitering echo speed.

VII.

Thou let'st the stranger's glove lie where it fell ;
 If old things remain old things all is well,
 For thou art grateful as becomes man best :
 And hadst thou only heard me play one tune,
 Or viewed me from a window, not so soon
 With thee would such things fade as with the rest.

VIII.

I seem to see ! We meet and part ; 'tis brief ;
 The book I opened keeps a folded leaf,
 The very chair I sat on, breaks the rank ;
 That is a portrait of me on the wall—
 Three lines, my face comes at so slight a call :
 And for all this, one little hour to thank !

IX.

But now, because the hour through years was fixed,
Because our inmost beings met and mixed,
Because thou once hast loved me—wilt thou dare
Say to thy soul and Who may list beside,
“Therefore she is immortally my bride;
“Chance cannot change my love, nor time impair.

X.

“So, what if in the dusk of life that’s left,
“I, a tired traveller of my sun bereft,
“Look from my path when, mimicking
the same,
“The fire-fly glimpses past me, come and
gone?
“—Where was it till the sunset? where anon
“It will be at the sunrise! What’s to blame?”

XI.

Is it so helpful to thee? Canst thou take
The mimic up, nor, for the true thing’s sake,
Put gently by such efforts at a beam?
Is the remainder of the way so long,
Thou need’st the little solace, thou the strong?
Watch out thy watch, let weak ones doze and dream!

XII.

—Ah, but the fresher faces! “Is it true,
Thou’lt ask, “some eyes are beautiful and new?
“Some hair,—how can one choose but grasp such wealth?
“And if a man would press his lips to lips
“Fresh as the wilding hedge-rose-cup there slips
“The dew-drop out of, must it be by stealth?”

XIII.

“It cannot change the love still kept for Her,
“More than if such a picture I prefer “Passing a day with, to a room’s bare side:
The painted form takes nothing she possessed,
Yet, while the Titian’s Venus lies at rest,
A man looks. Once more, what is there to chide?”

XIV.

So must I see, from where I sit and watch,
My own self sell myself, my hand attach
Its warrant to the very thefts from me—
Thy singleness of soul that made me proud,
Thy purity of heart I loved aloud,
Thy man’s-truth I was bold to bid God see!

XV.

Love so, then, if thou wilt! Give all thou canst
Away to the new faces—disentranced,
(Say it and think it) obdurate no more:
Re-issue looks and words from the old mint,
Pass them afresh, no matter whose the print
Image and superscription once they bore!

XVI.

Re-coin thyself and give it them to spend,—
It all comes to the same thing at the end,
Since mine thou wast, mine art and mine shalt be,
Faithful or faithless, sealing up the sum
Or lavish of my treasure, thou must come Back to the heart’s place here I keep for thee!

XVII.

Only, why should it be with stain at all?
Why must I, ’twixt the leaves of coronal,
Put any kiss of pardon on thy brow?
Why need the other women know so much,
And talk together, “Such the look and
such
“The smile he used to love with, then as now!”

XVIII.

Might I die last and show thee! Should I find
Such hardship in the few years left behind,
If free to take and light my lamp, and go
Into thy tomb, and shut the door and sit,
Seeing thy face on those four sides of it
The better that they are so blank, I
know!

IX.

I would I could adopt your will,
 See with your eyes, and set my heart
 Beating by yours, and drink my fill
 At your soul's springs,—your part my part
 In life, for good and ill.

X.

No. I yearn upward, touch you close,
 Then stand away. I kiss your cheek,
 Catch your soul's warmth,—I pluck the rose
 And love it more than tongue can speak—
 Then the good minute goes.

XI.

Already how am I so far
 Out of that minute? Must I go
 Still like the thistle-ball, no bar,
 Onward, whenever light winds blow,
 Fixed by no friendly star?

XII.

Just when I seemed about to learn!
 Where is the thread now? Off again!
 The old trick! Only I discern—
 Infinite passion, and the pain
 Of finite hearts that yearn.

MISCONCEPTIONS.

I.

THIS is a spray the Bird clung to,
 Making it blossom with pleasure,
 Ere the high tree-top she sprung to,
 Fit for her nest and her treasure.
 Oh, what a hope beyond measure
 Was the poor spray's, which the flying feet hung to,—
 So to be singled out, built in, and sung to!

II.

This is a heart the Queen leant on,
 Thrilled in a minute erratic,

Ere the true bosom she bent on,
 Meet for love's regal dalmatic.¹
 Oh, what a fancy ecstatic
 Was the poor heart's, ere the wanderer went
 on—
 Love to be saved for it, proffered to, spent on!

A SERENADE AT THE VILLA.

I.

THAT was I, you heard last night,
 When there rose no moon at all,
 Nor, to pierce the strained and tight
 Tent of heaven, a planet small:
 Life was dead and so was light.

II.

Not a twinkle from the fly,
 Not a glimmer from the worm;
 When the crickets stopped their cry,
 When the owls forbore a term,
 You heard music; that was I.

III.

Earth turned in her sleep with pain,
 Sultrily suspired for proof:
 In at heaven and out again,
 Lightning!—where it broke the roof,
 Bloodlike, some few drops of rain.

IV.

What they could my words expressed,
 O my love, my all, my one!
 Singing helped the verses best,
 And when singing's best was done,
 To my lute I left the rest.

V.

So wore night; the East was gray,
 White the broad-faced hemlock-flowers:
 There would be another day;
 Ere its first of heavy hours
 Found me, I had passed away.

¹ A vestment used by ecclesiastics, and formerly by senators and persons of high rank.

VI.

What became of all the hopes,
 Words and song and lute as well?
 Say, this struck you—"When life gropes
 "Feebly for the path where fell
 "Light last on the evening slopes,

VII.

"One friend in that path shall be,
 "To secure my step from wrong;
 "One to count night day for me,
 "Patient through the watches long,
 "Serving most with none to see."

VIII.

Never say—as something bodes—
 "So, the worst has yet a worse!
 "When life halts 'neath double loads,
 "Better the taskmaster's curse
 "Than such music on the roads!

IX.

"When no moon succeeds the sun,
 "Nor can pierce the midnight's tent
 "Any star, the smallest one,
 "While some drops, where lightning rent,
 "Show the final storm begun—

X.

"When the fire-fly hides its spot,
 "When the garden-voices fail
 "In the darkness thick and hot,—
 "Shall another voice avail,
 "That shape be where these are not?

XI.

"Has some plague a longer lease,
 "Proffering its help uncouth?
 "Can't one even die in peace?
 "As one shuts one's eyes on youth,
 "Is that face the last one sees?"

XII.

Oh how dark your villa was,
 Windows fast and obdurate!
 How the garden grudged me grass
 Where I stood—the iron gate
 Ground its teeth to let me pass!

VOL. I.

ONE WAY OF LOVE.

I.

ALL June I bound the rose in sheaves.
 Now, rose by rose, I strip the leaves
 And strew them where Pauline may pass.

She will not turn aside? Alas!
 Let them lie. Suppose they die?
 The chance was they might take her eye.

II.

How many a month I strove to suit
 These stubborn fingers to the lute!
 To-day I venture all I know.
 She will not hear my music? So!
 Break the string; fold music's wing:
 Suppose Pauline had bade me sing!

III.

My whole life long I learned to love.
 This hour my utmost art I prove
 And speak my passion—heaven or hell?
 She will not give me heaven? 'Tis
 well!
 Lose who may—I still can say,
 Those who win heaven, blest are they!

ANOTHER WAY OF LOVE.

I.

JUNE was not over
 Though past the full,
 And the best of her roses
 Had yet to blow,
 When a man I know
 (But shall not discover,
 Since ears are dull,
 And time discloses)
 Turned him and said with a man's true
 air,
 Half sighing a smile in a yawn, as 'twere,—
 "If I tire of your June, will she greatly care?"

II.

Well, dear, in-doors with you !
 True ! serene deadness
 Tries a man's temper.
 What's in the blossom
 June wears on her bosom ?
 Can it clear scores with you ?
 Sweetness and redness.

Eadem semper !

Go, let me care for it greatly or slightly !
 If June mend her bower now, your hand left unsightly
 By plucking the roses,—my June will do rightly.

III.

And after, for pastime,
 If June be refulgent
 With flowers in completeness,
 All petals, no prickles,
 Delicious as trickles
 Of wine poured at mass-time,—
 And choose One indulgent
 To redness and sweetness :

Or if, with experience of man and of spider,
 June use my June-lightning, the strong insect-rider,
 And stop the fresh film-work,—why, June will consider.

A PRETTY WOMAN.

I.

THAT fawn-skin-dappled hair of hers,
 And the blue eye
 Dear and dewy,
 And that infantine fresh air of hers !

II.

To think men cannot take you, Sweet,
 And enfold you,
 Ay, and hold you,
 And so keep you what they make you, Sweet !

III.

You like us for a glance, you know—
 For a word's sake
 Or a sword's sake,
 All's the same, whate'er the chance, you know.

IV.

And in turn we make you ours, we say—
 You and youth too,
 Eyes and mouth too,
 All the face composed of flowers, we say.

V.

All's our own, to make the most of, Sweet—
 Sing and say for,
 Watch and pray for,
 Keep a secret or go boast of, Sweet !

VI.

But for loving, why, you would not, Sweet,
 Though we prayed you,
 Paid you, brayed you
 In a mortar—for you could not, Sweet !

VII.

So, we leave the sweet face fondly there :
 Be its beauty
 Its sole duty !
 Let all hope of grace beyond, lie there !

VIII.

And while the face lies quiet there,
 Who shall wonder
 That I ponder
 A conclusion? I will try it there.

IX.

As,—why must one, for the love foregone,
 Scout mere liking?
 Thunder-striking
 Earth,—the heaven, we looked above for, gone!

X.

Why, with beauty, needs there money be,
 Love with liking?
 Crush the fly-king
 In his gauze, because no honey-bee?

XI.

May not liking be so simple-sweet,
 If love grew there
 'Twould undo there
 All that breaks the cheek to dimples sweet?

As she brushed it, the cornice-wreath
blossomed anew :
Yon looking-glass gleamed at the wave of her feather.

II.

Yet the day wears,
And door succeeds door ;
I try the fresh fortune—
Range the wide house from the wing to the centre.

Still the same chance! she goes out as I enter.

Spend my whole day in the quest,—who cares?

But 'tis twilight, you see,—with such suites to explore,

Such closets to search, such alcoves to impor-
tune !

LIFE IN A LOVE.

ESCAPE me ?

Never—

Beloved !

While I am I, and you are you,

So long as the world contains us both,

Me the loving and you the loth,

While the one eludes, must the other pursue.

My life is a fault at last, I fear :

It seems too much like a fate, indeed !

Though I do my best I shall scarce succeed.

But what if I fail of my purpose here ?

It is but to keep the nerves at strain,

To dry one's eyes and laugh at a fall,
And, baffled, get up and begin again,—

So the chace takes up one's life, that's all.

While, look but once from your farthest
bound

At me so deep in the dust and dark,

No sooner the old hope goes to ground

Than a new one, straight to the self-same mark,

I shape me—

Ever

Removed !

IN THREE DAYS.

I.

So, I shall see her in three days
And just one night, but nights are short,
Then two long hours, and that is morn.
See how I come, unchanged, unworn !
Feel, where my life broke off from thine,
How fresh the splinters keep and fine,—
Only a touch and we combine !

II.

Too long, this time of year, the days !
But nights, at least the nights are short.
As night shows where her one moon is,
A hand's-breadth of pure light and bliss,
So life's night gives my lady birth
And my eyes hold her ! What is worth
The rest of heaven, the rest of earth ?

III.

O loaded curls, release your store
Of warmth and scent, as once before
The tingling hair did, lights and darks
Outbreaking into fairy sparks,
When under curl and curl I pried
After the warmth and scent inside,
Thro' lights and darks how manifold—
The dark inspired, the light controlled !
As early Art embrowns the gold.

IV.

What great fear, should one say, "Three days
"That change the world might change as well
"Your fortune ; and if joy delays,
"Be happy that no worse befell !"
What small fear, if another says,
"Three days and one short night beside
"May throw no shadow on your ways ;
"But years must teem with change untried.
"With chance not easily defied,
"With an end somewhere undescried."
No fear !—or if a fear be born
This minute, it dies out in scorn.
Fear? I shall see her in three days
And one night, now the nights are short,
Then just two hours, and that is morn.

IN A YEAR.

I.

NEVER any more,
 While I live,
 Need I hope to see his face
 As before.
 Once his love grown chill,
 Mine may strive :
 Bitterly we re-embrace,
 Single still.

II.

Was it something said,
 Something done,
 Vexed him ? was it touch of hand,
 Turn of head ?
 Strange ! that very way
 Love begun :
 I as little understand
 Love's decay.

III.

When I sewed or drew,
 I recall
 How he looked as if I sung,
 —Sweetly too.
 If I spoke a word,
 First of all
 Up his cheek the colour sprung,
 Then he heard.

IV.

Sitting by my side,
 At my feet,
 So he breathed but air I breathed,
 Satisfied !
 I, too, at love's brim
 Touched the sweet :
 I would die if death bequeathed
 Sweet to him.

V.

“Speak, I love thee best !”
 He exclaimed :
 “Let thy love my own foretell !”
 I confessed :

“Clasp my heart on thine
 “Now unblamed,
 “Since upon thy soul as well
 “Hangeth mine !”

VI.

Was it wrong to own,
 Being truth ?
 Why should all the giving prove
 His alone ?
 I had wealth and ease,
 Beauty, youth :
 Since my lover gave me love,
 I gave these.

VII.

That was all I meant,
 —To be just,
 And the passion I had raised,
 To content.
 Since he chose to change
 Gold for dust,
 If I gave him what he praised
 Was it strange ?

VIII.

Would he loved me yet,
 On and on,
 While I found some way undreamed
 —Paid my debt !
 Gave more life and more,
 Till, all gone,
 He should smile “She never seemed “Mine before.

IX.

“What, she felt the while,
 “Must I think ?
 “Love's so different with us men !”
 He should smile :
 “Dying for my sake—
 “White and pink !
 “Can't we touch these bubbles then
 “But they break ?”

1903

X.

Dear, the pang is brief,
 Do thy part,
 Have thy pleasure! How perplexed
 Grows belief!
 Well, this cold clay clod
 Was man's heart:
 Crumble it, and what comes next?
 Is it God?

WOMEN AND ROSES.

I.

I DREAM of a red-rose tree.
 And which of its roses three
 Is the dearest rose to me?

II.

Round and round, like a dance of snow
 In a dazzling drift, as its guardians, go
 Floating the women faded for ages,
 Sculptured in stone, on the poet's pages.
 Then follow women fresh and gay,
 Living and loving and loved to-day.
 Last, in the rear, flee the multitude of maidens,
 Beauties yet unborn. And all, to one cadence,
 They circle their rose on my rose tree.

III.

Dear rose, thy term is reached,
 Thy leaf hangs loose and bleached:
 Bees pass it unimpeached.

IV.

Stay then, stoop, since I cannot climb,
 You, great shapes of the antique time!
 How shall I fix you, fire you, freeze you,
 Break my heart at your feet to please you?
 Oh, to possess and be possessed!
 Hearts that beat 'neath each pallid breast!
 Once but of love, the poesy, the passion,
 Drink but once and die!—In vain, the same fashion,
 They circle their rose on my rose tree.

V.

Dear rose, thy joy's undimmed,
 Thy cup is ruby-rimmed,
 Thy cup's heart nectar-brimmed.

VI.

Deep, as drops from a statue's plinth
 The bee sucked in by the hyacinth,
 So will I bury me while burning,
 Quench like him at a plunge my yearning,
 Eyes in your eyes, lips on your lips!
 Fold me fast where the cincture slips,
 Prison all my soul in eternities of pleasure, Girdle me for once! But no—the old measure,
 They circle their rose on my rose tree.

VII.

Dear rose without a thorn,
 Thy bud's the babe unborn:
 First streak of a new morn.

VIII.

Wings, lend wings for the cold, the clear!
 What is far conquers what is near.
 Roses will bloom nor want beholders,
 Sprung from the dust where our flesh moulders.
 What shall arrive with the cycle's change?
 A novel grace and a beauty strange.
 I will make an Eve, be the artist that began
 her,
 Shaped her to his mind!—Alas! in like manner
 They circle their rose on my rose tree.

BEFORE.

I.

LET them fight it out, friend! things have gone too far.
 God must judge the couple: leave them as they are
 —Whichever one's the guiltless, to his glory.
 And whichever one the guilt's with, to my story!

Ha, what avails death to erase
 His offence, my disgrace?
 I would we were boys as of old
 In the field, by the fold:
 His outrage, God's patience, man's scorn
 Were so easily borne!

I stand here now, he lies in his place:
 Cover the face!

THE GUARDIAN-ANGEL.

A PICTURE AT FANO.

I.

DEAR and great Angel, wouldst thou only
 leave
 That child, when thou hast done with him,
 for me!
 Let me sit all the day here, that when eve
 Shall find performed thy special ministry,
 And time come for departure, thou, suspending
 Thy flight, mayst see another child for tending,
 Another still, to quiet and retrieve.

II.

Then I shall feel thee step one step, no more,
 From where thou standest now, to where I gaze,
 —And suddenly my head is covered o'er
 With those wings, white above the child who prays
 Now on that tomb—and I shall feel thee guarding
 Me, out of all the world; for me, discarding Yon heaven thy home, that waits and opes its door.

III.

I would not look up thither past thy head
 Because the door opes, like that child, I
 know,
 For I should have thy gracious face instead,
 Thou bird of God! And wilt thou bend me low
 Like him, and lay, like his, my hands together,
 And lift them up to pray, and gently tether
 Me, as thy lamb there, with thy garment's spread?

IV.

If this was ever granted, I would rest
 My head beneath thine, while thy healing
 hands
 Close-covered both my eyes beside thy breast, Pressing the brain, which too much thought expands,
 Back to its proper size again, and smoothing
 Distortion down till every nerve had soothing,
 And all lay quiet, happy and suppressed.

V.

How soon all worldly wrong would be repaired!
 I think how I should view the earth and skies
 And sea, when once again my brow was bared
 After thy healing, with such different eyes.
 O world, as God has made it! All is beauty:
 And knowing this, is love, and love is duty.
 What further may be sought for or declared?

VI.

Guercino drew this angel I saw teach (Alfred, dear friend!)—that little child to pray,
 Holding the little hands up, each to each Pressed gently,—with his own head turned away
 Over the earth where so much lay before him
 Of work to do, though heaven was opening o'er him,
 And he was left at Fano by the beach.

VII.

We were at Fano, and three times we went
 To sit and see him in his chapel there,
 And drink his beauty to our soul's content
 —My angel with me too: and since I care
 For dear Guercino's fame (to which in power
 And glory comes this picture for a dower, Fraught with a pathos so magnificent)—

VIII.

And since he did not work thus earnestly
 At all times, and has else endured some
 wrong—

I took one thought his picture struck from me,
 And spread it out, translating it to song.
 My love is here. Where are you, dear old friend?
 How rolls the Wairoa at your world's far end?
 This is Ancona, yonder is the sea.

MEMORABILIA.

I.

AH, did you once see Shelley plain,
 And did he stop and speak to you
 And did you speak to him again?
 How strange it seems and new!

II.

But you were living before that,
 And also you are living after;
 And the memory I started at—
 My starting moves your laughter.

III.

I crossed a moor, with a name of its own
 And a certain use in the world no doubt,
 Yet a hand's-breadth of it shines alone
 'Mid the blank miles round about:

IV.

For there I picked up on the heather
 And there I put inside my breast
 A moulted feather, an eagle-feather!
 Well, I forget the rest.

POPULARITY.

I.

STAND still, true poet that you are!
 I know you; let me try and draw you.
 Some night you'll fail us: when afar
 You rise, remember one man saw you,
 Knew you, and named a star!

II.

My star, God's glow-worm! Why extend
 That loving hand of his which leads you
 Yet locks you safe from end to end
 Of this dark world, unless he needs you,
 Just saves your light to spend?

III.

His clenched hand shall uncloset at last,
 I know, and let out all the beauty:
 My poet holds the future fast,
 Accepts the coming ages' duty,
 Their present for this past.

IV.

That day, the earth's feast-master's brow
 Shall clear, to God the chalice raising;
 "Others give best at first, but thou
 "Forever set'st our table praising,
 "Keep'st the good wine till now!"

V.

Meantime, I'll draw you as you stand,
 With few or none to watch and wonder:
 I'll say—a fisher, on the sand
 By Tyre the old, with ocean-plunder,
 A netful, brought to land.

VI.

Who has not heard how Tyrian shells
 Enclosed the blue, that dye of dyes
 Whereof one drop worked miracles,
 And coloured like Astarte's¹ eyes
 Raw silk the merchant sells?

VII.

And each bystander of them all
 Could criticize, and quote tradition
 How depths of blue sublimed some pall
 —To get which, pricked a king's ambition;
 Worth sceptre, crown and ball.

VIII.

Yet there's the dye, in that rough mesh,
 The sea has only just o'erwhispered!
 Live whelks, each lip's beard dripping fresh,
 As if they still the water's lisp heard
 Through foam the rock-weeds thresh.

IX.

Enough to furnish Solomon
 Such hangings for his cedar-house,
 That, when gold-robed he took the throne
 In that abyss of blue, the Spouse
 Might swear his presence shone

X.

Most like the centre-spike of gold
Which burns deep in the blue-bell's womb,
What time, with ardours manifold,
The bee goes singing to her groom,
Drunken and overbold.

XI.

Mere conchs ! not fit for warp or woof !
Till cunning come to pound and squeeze
And clarify,—refine to proof
The liquor filtered by degrees,
While the world stands aloof.

XII.

And there's the extract, flasked and fine,
And priced and saleable at last !
And Hobbs, Nobbs, Stokes and Nokes combine
To paint the future from the past,
Put blue into their line.

XIII.

Hobbs hints blue,—straight he turtle eats :
Nobbs prints blue,—claret crowns his cup :
Nokes outdares Stokes in azure feats,—
Both gorge. Who fished the murex¹ up ?
What porridge had John Keats ?

MASTER HUGUES OF SAXE-GOTHA.

[An imaginary composer.]

I.

HIST, but a word, fair and soft !
Forth and be judged, Master Hugues !
Answer the question I've put you so oft :
What do you mean by your mountainous fugues ?²
See, we're alone in the loft,—

¹ Molluscs from which the famous Tyrian purple dye was obtained.

² A fugue is a short melody.

II.

I, the poor organist here,
Hugues, the composer of note,
Dead though, and done with, this many a year :
Let's have a colloquy, something to quote,
Make the world prick up its ear !

III.

See, the church empties apace :
Fast they extinguish the lights.
Hallo there, sacristan ! Five minutes' grace !
Here's a crank pedal wants setting to rights,
Baulks one of holding the base.

IV.

See, our huge house of the sounds,
Hushing its hundreds at once,
Bids the last loiterer back to his bounds !
—O you may challenge them, not a response
Get the church-saints on their rounds !

V.

(Saints go their rounds, who shall doubt ?
—March, with the moon to admire,
Up nave, down chancel, turn transept about,
Supervise all betwixt pavement and spire,
Put rats and mice to the rout—

VI.

Aloys and Jurien and Just—
Order things back to their place,
Have a sharp eye lest the candlesticks rust,
Rub the church-plate, darn the sacrament-lace,
Clear the desk-velvet of dust.)

VII.

Here's your book, younger folks shelve !
Played I not off-hand and runningly,
Just now, your masterpiece, hard number twelve ?
Here's what should strike, could one handle
it cunningly :
Help the axe, give it a helve !

XIX.

What with affirming, denying,
 Holding, risposting,¹ subjoining,
 All's like . . . it's like . . . for an instance
 I'm trying . . .
 There ! See our roof, its gilt moulding and groining
 Under those spider-webs lying !

XX.

So your fugue broadens and thickens,
 Greatens and deepens and lengthens,
 Till we exclaim—"But where's music, the dickens ?
 "Blot ye the gold, while your spider-web strengthens
 "—Blacked to the stoutest of tickens ?"²

XXI.

I for man's effort am zealous :
 Prove me such censure unfounded !
 Seems it surprising a lover grows jealous—
 Hopes 'twas for something, his organ-pipes sounded,
 Tiring three boys at the bellows ?

XXII.

Is it your moral of Life ?
 Such a web, simple and subtle,
 Weave we on earth here in impotent strife, Backward and forward each throwing his shuttle,
 Death ending all with a knife ?

XXIII.

Over our heads truth and nature—
 Still our life's zigzags and dodges,
 Ins and outs, weaving a new legislature—
 God's gold just shining its last where that lodges,
 Palled beneath man's usurpature.

XXIV.

So we o'ershroud stars and roses,
 Cherub and trophy and garland ;

² A closely woven fabric.

Nothings grow something which quietly closes Heaven's earnest eye : not a glimpse of the far land
 Gets through our comments and glozes.

XXV.

Ah but traditions, inventions,
 (Say we and make up a visage)
 So many men with such various intentions, Down the past ages, must know more than this age !
 Leave we the web its dimensions !

XXVI.

Who thinks Hugues wrote for the deaf,
 Proved a mere mountain in labour ?
 Better submit ; try again ; what's the clef ?
 'Faith, 'tis no trifle for pipe and for tabor—
 Four flats, the minor in F.

XXVII.

Friend, your fugue taxes the finger :
 Learning it once, who would lose it ?
 Yet all the while a misgiving will linger,
 Truth's golden o'er us although we refuse it—
 Nature, thro' cobwebs we string her.

XXVIII.

Hugues ! I advise med pœnâ
 (Counterpoint glares like a Gorgon) Bid One, Two, Three, Four, Five, clear the arena !
 Say the word, straight I unstop the full-organ,
 Blare out the mode Palestrina.³

XXIX.

While in the roof, if I'm right there,
 . . . Lo you, the wick in the socket !
 Hallo, you sacristan, show us a light there !
 Down it dips, gone like a rocket.
 What, you want, do you, to come unawares,
 Sweeping the church up for first morning-prayers,
 And find a poor devil has ended his cares
 At the foot of your rotten-runged rat-riddled stairs ?
 Do I carry the moon in my pocket ?

³ Giovanni P. da Palestrina, celebrated musician (1524-1594).

THE RETURN OF THE DRUSES ;

A TRAGEDY.

1843.

[The Druses still exist on Mount Lebanon, and entertain opinions said to have been first promulgated at the beginning of the eleventh century by an Egyptian caliph who styled himself Hakeem Biamrallah ; that is, He who judges by the order of God. See Holland's " Stories from Browning," p. 172.]

THE RETURN OF THE DRUSES.

PERSONS.

The Grand-Master's Prefect.

The Patriarch's Nuncio.

The Republic's Admiral.

LOYS DE DREUX, Knight-Novice.

Initiated Druses—DJABAL, KHALIL, ANAEL, MAANI, KARSHOOK, RAGHIB, AYOOB, and others.

Uninitiated Druses.

Prefect's Guard. Nuncio's Attendants. Admiral's Force.

TIME, 14—.

PLACE.—An Islet of the Southern Sporades, colonized by Druses of Lebanon, and garrisoned by the Knights-Hospitallers of Rhodes.

SCENE.—A Hall in the Prefect's Palace.

ACT I.

*Enter stealthily KARSHOOK, RAGHIB, AYOOB and other initiated Druses, each as he enters casting off a robe that conceals his distinctive black vest and white turban ;
then, as giving a loose to exultation,—*

Karshook. The moon is carried off in purple fire :

Day breaks at last ! Break glory, with the
day,

On Djabal's dread incarnate mystery
Now ready to resume its pristine shape

Of Hakeem, as the Khalif vanished erst
In what seemed death to uninstructed eyes,
On red Mokattam's verge—our Founder's
flesh,

As he resumes our Founder's function !

Raghib. —Death

Sweep to the Christian Prefect that enslaved
So long us sad Druse exiles o'er the sea !

Ayoob. Most joy be thine, O Mother-mount ! Thy brood

Returns to thee, no outcasts as we left,

But thus—but thus ! Behind, our Prefect's corse ;

Before, a presence like the morning—thine,
Absolute Djabal late,—God Hakeem now
That day breaks !

Karshook. Off then, with disguise
at last !

As from our forms this hateful garb we strip,
Lose every tongue its glozing accent too,
Discard each limb the ignoble gesture ! Cry,
'Tis the Druse Nation, warders on our Mount
Of the world's secret, since the birth of time,
—No kindred slips, no offsets from thy stock,
No spawn of Christians are we, Prefect, we Who rise . . .

Ayoob. Who shout . . .

Raghib. Who seize, a first-fruits, ha—
Spoil of the spoiler ! Brave !

[They begin to tear down, and to dispute for, the decorations of the hall.

Karshook. Hold !

Ayoob. —Mine, I say ;

And mine shall it continue !

Karshook. Just this fringe !
Take anything beside ! Lo, spire on spire,
Curl serpentwise wreathed columns to the top
O' the roof, and hide themselves mysteriously
Among the twinkling lights and darks that haunt

Yon cornice ! Where the huge veil, they suspend

Before the Prefect's chamber of delight,
Floats wide, then falls again as if its slave,
The scented air, took heart now, and anon
Lost heart to buoy its breadths of gorgeousness
Above the gloom they droop in—all the porch
Is jewelled o'er with frostwork character ;
And, see, yon eight-point cross of white flame, winking

Hoar-silvery like some fresh-broke marble
stone :

Raze out the Rhodian cross there, so thou leav'st me

This single fringe !

Ayoob. Ha, wouldst thou, dog-fox ? Help !

—Three hand-breadths of gold fringe, my son was set

To twist, the night he died !

Karshook. Nay, hear the knave !
And I could witness my one daughter borne,
A week since, to the Prefect's couch, yet fold
These arms, be mute, lest word of mine should mar

Our Master's work, delay the Prefect here
A day, prevent his sailing hence for Rhodes—
How know I else ?—Hear me denied my right
By such a knave !

Raghib [interposing]. Each ravage for himself !

Booty enough ! On, Druses ! Be there found
Blood and a heap behind us ; with us, Djabal
Turned Hakeem ; and before us, Lebanon !
Yields the porch ? Spare not ! There his minions dragged

Thy daughter, Karshook, to the Prefect's
couch !

Ayoob ! Thy son, to soothe the Prefect's
pride,

Bent o'er that task, the death-sweat on his
brow,

Carving the spice-tree's heart in scroll-work
there !

Onward in Djabal's name !

As the tumult is at height, enter KHALIL.
A pause and silence.

Khalil. Was it for this,
Djabal hath summoned you ? Deserve you thus
A portion in to-day's event ? What, here—
When most behoves your feet fall soft, your
eyes

Sink low, your tongues lie still,—at Djabal's
side,

Close in his very hearing, who, perchance,
Assumes e'en now God Hakeem's dreaded
shape,—

Dispute you for these gauds ?

Ayoob. How say'st thou, Khalil ?
Doubtless our Master prompts thee ! Take the fringe,

Old Karshook ! I supposed it was a day . . .

Khalil. For pillage ?

Karshook. Hearken, Khalil !
Never spoke

A boy so like a song-bird ; we avouch thee
Prettiest of all our Master's instruments
Except thy bright twin-sister ; thou and Anael
Challenge his prime regard : but we may crave
(Such nothings as we be) a portion too
Of Djabal's favour ; in him we believed,
His bound ourselves, him moon by moon obeyed,

Kept silence till this daybreak—so, may claim
Reward : who grudges me my claim ?

Ayoob. To-day
Is not as yesterday !

Raghib. Stand off !

Khalil. Rebel you ?
Must I, the delegate of Djabal, draw
His wrath on you, the day of our Return ?

Other Druses. Wrench from their grasp the fringe ! Hounds ! must the earth Vomit her plagues on us thro' thee?—and
thee ?

Plague me not, Khalil, for their fault !

Khalil. Oh, shame !
Thus breaks to-day on you, the mystic tribe
Who, flying the approach of Osman, bore

Now, Khalil, wert thou checked as thou aspirest,

Forbidden such or such an honour,—say,
Would silence serve so amply?

Khalil. Karshook thinks
I covet honours? Well, nor idly thinks.
Honours? I have demanded of them all
The greatest.

Karshook. I supposed so.

Khalil. Judge, yourselves!
Turn, thus: 'tis in the alcove at the back
Of yonder columned porch, whose entrance now
The veil hides, that our Prefect holds his state, Receives the Nuncio, when the one, from Rhodes,

The other lands from Syria; there they meet.
Now, I have sued with earnest prayers . . .

Karshook. For what Shall the Bride's brother vainly sue?

Khalil. That mine—
Avenging in one blow a myriad wrongs
—Might be the hand to slay the Prefect there!
Djabal reserves that office for himself.

[A silence.]

Thus far, as youngest of you all, I speak —Scarce more enlightened than yourselves;
since, near

As I approach him, nearer as I trust
Soon to approach our Master, he reveals
Only the God's power, not the glory yet.
Therefore I reasoned with you: now, as servant

To Djabal, bearing his authority,
Hear me appoint your several posts! Till noon
None see him save myself and Anael: once
The deed achieved, our Khalif, casting off
The embodied Awe's tremendous mystery,
The weakness of the flesh disguise, resumes
His proper glory, ne'er to fade again.

Enter a Druse.

The Druse. Our Prefect lands from Rhodes!
—without a sign
That he suspects aught since he left our Isle;
Nor in his train a single guard beyond
The few he sailed with hence: so have we learned
From Loys.

Karshook. Loys? Is not Loys gone
For ever?

Ayoob. Loys, the Frank Knight, returned?

The Druse. Loys, the boy, stood on the leading prow

Conspicuous in his gay attire, and leapt
Into the surf the foremost. Since day-dawn
I kept watch to the Northward; take but note
Of my poor vigilance to Djabal!

Khalil. Peace!
Thou, Karshook, with thy company, receive
The Prefect as appointed: see, all keep
The wonted show of servitude: announce
His entry here by the accustomed peal
Of trumpets, then await the further pleasure
Of Djabal! (Loys back, when Djabal sent To Rhodes that we might spare the single Knight
Worth sparing!)

Enter a second Druse.

The Druse. I espied it first! Say, I
First spied the Nuncio's galley from the South!

Said'st thou a Crossed-keys' flag would flap
the mast?

It nears apace! One galley and no more.
If Djabal chance to ask who spied the flag,
Forget not, I it was!

Khalil. Thou, Ayoob, bring
The Nuncio and his followers hither! Break
One rule prescribed, ye wither in your blood,
Die at your fault!

Enter a third Druse.

The Druse. I shall see home, see home!
—Shall banquet in the sombre groves again!
Hail to thee, Khalil! Venice looms afar;
The argosies of Venice, like a cloud,
Bear up from Candia in the distance!

Khalil. Joy!
Summon our people, Raghib! Bid all forth!
Tell them the long-kept secret, old and young!

Set free the captive, let the trampled raise
Their faces from the dust, because at length
The cycle is complete, God Hakeem's reign
Begins anew! Say, Venice for our guard,

Ere night we steer for Syria! Hear you,
Druses?

Hear you this crowning witness to the claims
Of Djabal? Oh, I spoke of hope and fear,
Reward and punishment, because he bade
Who has the right; for me, what should I say
But, mar not those imperial lineaments,
No majesty of all that rapt regard
Vex by the least omission! Let him rise
Without a check from you!

Druses. Let Djabal rise!

Enter LOYS.—The Druses are silent.

Loys. Who speaks of Djabal?—for I seek him, friends!

[Aside.] Tu Dieu! 'Tis as our Isle broke out in song

For joy, its Prefect-incubus drops off
To-day, and I succeed him in his rule!
But no—they cannot dream of their good fortune!

[Aloud.] Peace to you, Druses! I have tidings for you

But first for Djabal: where's your tall
bewitcher,

With that small Arab thin-lipped silver-mouth?

Khalil [aside to KARSHOOK]. Loys, in truth! Yet Djabal cannot err!

Karshook [to KHALIL]. And who takes charge of Loys? That's forgotten,
Despite thy wariness! Will Loys stand
And see his comrades slaughtered?

Loys [aside]. How they shrink
And whisper, with those rapid faces! What?
The sight of me in their oppressors' garb
Strikes terror to the simple tribe? God's shame
On those that bring our Order ill repute!
But all's at end now; better days begin
For these mild mountaineers from over-sea:
The timidest shall have in me no Prefect
To cower at thus! [Aloud.] I asked for Djabal—

Karshook [aside]. Better
One lured him, ere he can suspect, inside
The corridor; 'twere easy to despatch
A youngster. [To LOYS.] Djabal passed some minutes since
Thro' yonder porch, and . . .

Khalil [aside]. Hold! What, him despatch?

The only Christian of them all we charge
No tyranny upon? Who,—noblest Knight
Of all that learned from time to time their trade

Of lust and cruelty among us,—heir
To Europe's pomp, a truest child of pride,—
Yet stood between the Prefect and ourselves
From the beginning? Loys, Djabal makes Account of, and precisely sent to Rhodes
For safety? I take charge of him!

[To LOYS.] Sir Loys,—

Loys. There, cousins! Does Sir Loys strike you dead?

Khalil [advancing]. Djabal has intercourse with few or none

Till noontide: but, your pleasure?

Loys. "Intercourse "With few or none?"—(Ah, Khalil, when
you spoke

I saw not your smooth face! All health!— and health

To Anael! How fares Anael?)—"Inter-
course

"With few or none?" Forget you, I've been friendly

With Djabal long ere you or any Druse?

—Enough of him at Rennes, I think, beneath
The Duke my father's roof! He'd tell by the hour,

With fixed white eyes beneath his swarthy
brow,

Plausiblest stories . . .

Khalil. Stories, say you?—Ah,
The quaint attire!

Loys. My dress for the last time!
How sad I cannot make you understand,
This ermine, o'er a shield, betokens me
Of Bretagne, ancientest of provinces
And noblest; and, what's best and oldest
there,

See, Dreux', our house's blazon, which the Nuncio

Tacks to an Hospitaller's vest to-day!

Khalil. The Nuncio we await? What brings you back

From Rhodes, Sir Loys?

Loys. How you island-tribe
Forget the world's awake while here you drowse!

What brings me back? What should not bring me, rather!

Our Patriarch's Nuncio visits you to-day—
Is not my year's probation out? I come
To take the knightly vows.

Khalil. What's that you wear?

Loys. This Rhodian cross? The cross your Prefect wore.

You should have seen, as I saw, the full Chapter
Rise, to a man, while they transferred this cross
From that unworthy Prefect's neck to . . .
(fool—

My secret will escape me!) In a word,
My year's probation passed, a Knight ere eve
Am I; bound, like the rest, to yield my wealth
To the common stock, to live in chastity,
(We Knights espouse alone our Order's fame)
—Change this gay weed for the back white-crossed gown,

And fight to death against the Infidel —Not, therefore, against you, you Christians
with

Such partial difference only as befits
The peaceullest of tribes. But Khalil, prithee,
Is not the Isle brighter than wont to-day?

Khalil. Ah, the new sword!

Loys. See now! You handle sword
As 'twere a camel-staff. Pull! That's my motto,

Annealed "Pro fide," on the blade in blue.

Khalil. No curve in it? Surely a blade should curve.

Loys. Straight from the wrist! Loose—it should poise itself!

Khalil [waving with irrepressible exultation the sword]. We are a nation, Loys, of old fame

Among the mountains! Rights have we to keep
With the sword too!

[Remembering himself.] But I forget—you bid me

Seek Djabal?

Loys. What! A sword's sight scares
you not?

(The People I will make of him and them!

Oh let my Prefect-sway begin at once!)

Bring Djabal—say, indeed, that come he must!

Khalil. At noon seek Djabal in the Prefect's Chamber,

And find . . . [Aside.] Nay, 'tis thy cursed race's token,

Frank pride, no special insolence of thine!

[Aloud.] Tarry, and I will do your bidding,
Loys!

[To the rest aside.] Now, forth you! I proceed to Djabal straight.

Leave this poor boy, who knows not what he says!

Oh will it not add joy to even thy joy,
Djabal, that I report all friends were true?

[KHALIL goes, followed by the Druses.

Loys. Tu Dieu! How happy I shall make these Druses!

Was't not surpassingly contrived of me
To get the long list of their wrongs by heart,
Then take the first pretence for stealing off
From these poor islanders, present myself
Sudden at Rhodes before the noble Chapter,
And (as best proof of ardour in its cause
Which ere to-night will have become, too,
mine)

Acquaint it with this plague-sore in its body.
This Prefect and his villanous career?

The princely Synod! All I dared request

Was his dismissal; and they graciously

Consigned his very office to myself—

Myself may cure the Isle diseased!

And well

For them, they did so! Since I never felt

How lone a lot, tho' brilliant, I embrace,

Till now that, past retrieval, it is mine.

To live thus, and thus die! Yet, as I leapt

On shore, so home a feeling greeted me

That I could half believe in Djabal's story,

He used to tempt my father with, at Rennes—

And me, too, since the story brought me
here—

Of some Count Dreux and ancestor of ours

Who, sick of wandering from Bouillon's war,

Left his old name in Lebanon.

Long days

At least to spend in the Isle! and, my news

known

“The Prefect, lead to Lebanon? No Khalif, “But Sheikh once more! Mere Djabal—
not” . . .

Enter KHALIL hastily.

Khalil. —God Hakeem!
'Tis told! The whole Druse nation knows thee, Hakeem,
As we! and mothers lift on high their babes
Who seem aware, so glisten their great eyes, Thou hast not failed us; ancient brows are proud;
Our elders could not earlier die, it seems,
Than at thy coming! The Druse heart is thine!

Take it! my lord and theirs, be thou adored!
Djabal [aside]. Adored!—but I renounce it utterly!

Khalil. Already are they instituting choirs
And dances to the Khalif, as of old
'Tis chronicled thou bad'st them.

Djabal [aside]. I abjure it!
'Tis not mine—not for me!

Khalil. Why pour they wine Flavoured like honey and bruised mountain-herbs,
Or wear those strings of sun-dried cedar-fruit?
Oh, let me tell thee—Esaad, we supposed Doting, is carried forth, eager to see
The last sun rise on the Isle: he can see now!
The shamed Druse women never wept before:
They can look up when we reach home, they
say.

Smell!—sweet cane, saved in Lilith's breast
thus long—

Sweet!—it grows wild in Lebanon. And I
Alone do nothing for thee! 'Tis my office
Just to announce what well thou know'st—but thus

Thou bidst me. At this self-same moment tend

The Prefect, Nuncio and the Admiral
Hither by their three sea-paths: nor forget
Who were the trusty watchers!—thou forget?
Like me, who do forget that Anael bade . . .

Djabal [aside]. Ay, Anael, Anael—is that said at last?

Louder than all, that would be said, I knew!

What does abjuring mean, confessing mean,
To the people? Till that woman crossed my path,

On went I, solely for my people's sake:
I saw her, and I then first saw myself,
And slackened pace: “if I should prove indeed

“Hakeem—with Anael by!”

Khalil [aside]. Ah, he is rapt!
Dare I at such a moment break on him
Even to do my sister's bidding? Yes:
The eyes are Djabal's and not Hakeem's yet,
Though but till I have spoken this, perchance.

Djabal [aside]. To yearn to tell her, and yet have no one

Great heart's word that will tell her! I could gasp

Doubtless one such word out, and die.

[Aloud.] You said
That Anael . . .

Khalil. . . . Fain would see thee,
speak with thee,

Before thou change, discard this Djabal's shape
She knows, for Hakeem's shape she is to know.
Something to say that will not from her mind!
I know not what—“Let him but come!”
she said.

Djabal [half-apart]. My nation—all my Druses—how fare they?

Those I must save, and suffer thus to save,
Hold they their posts? Wait they their Khalif too?

Khalil. All at the signal pant to flock around

That banner of a brow!

Djabal [aside]. And when they flock.
Confess them this: and after, for reward,
Be chased with howlings to her feet perchance!
—Have the poor outraged Druses, deaf and
blind,

Precede me there, forestall my story there,
Tell it in mocks and jeers!

I lose myself.
Who needs a Hakeem to direct him now?
I need the veriest child—why not this child?

[Turning abruptly to KHALIL.
You are a Druse too, Khalil; you were nourished

Like Anael with our mysteries : if she Could vow, so nourished, to love only one Who should avenge the Druses, whence proceeds

Your silence? Wherefore made you no essay,
 Who thus implicitly can execute My bidding? What have I done, you could
 not?

Who, knowing more than Anael the prostration

Of our once lofty tribe, the daily life
 Of this detested . . .

Does he come, you say,
 This Prefect? All's in readiness?

Khalil. The sword,
 The sacred robe, the Khalif's mystic tiar,
 Laid up so long, are all disposed beside
 The Prefect's chamber.

Djabal. —Why did you despair?

Khalil. I know our nation's state? Too surely know,
 As thou who speak'st to prove me! Wrongs like ours
 Should wake revenge: but when I sought the wronged
 And spoke,—“The Prefect stabbed your son —arise!

“Your daughter, while you starve, eats shameless bread

“In his pavilion—then arise!”—my speech
 Fell idly: 'twas, “Be silent, or worse fare!

“Endure till time's slow cycle prove complete!

“Who mayst thou be that takest on thee to thrust

“Into this peril—art thou Hakeem?” No!

Only a mission like thy mission renders
 All these obedient at a breath, subdues
 Their private passions, brings their wills to one.

Djabal. You think so?

Khalil. Even now—when they have witnessed

Thy miracles—had I not threatened all
 With Hakeem's vengeance, they would mar
 the work,

And couch ere this, each with his special prize,
 Safe in his dwelling, leaving our main hope

To perish. No! When these have kissed thy feet

At Lebanon, the past purged off, the present
 Clear,—for the future, even Hakeem's mission
 May end, and I perchance, or any youth,
 Shall rule them thus renewed.—I tutor thee!

Djabal. And wisely. (He is Anael's brother, pure

As Anael's self.) Go say, I come to her.

Haste! I will follow you. [KHALIL goes.

Oh, not confess

To these, the blinded multitude—confess,
 Before at least the fortune of my deed

Half-authorize its means! Only to her

Let me confess my fault, who in my path

Curled up like incense from a Mage-king's tomb

When he would have the wayfarer descend

Through the earth's rift and bear hid treasure
 forth!

How should child's-carelessness prove man-hood's crime

Till now that I, whose lone youth hurried past,

Letting each joy 'scape for the Druses' sake,

At length recover in one Druse all joy?

Were her brow brighter, her eyes richer, still

Would I confess. On the gulf's verge I pause.

How could I slay the Prefect, thus and thus?

Anael, be mine to guard me, not destroy!

[Goes.

Enter ANAEL, and MAANI who is assisting to array her in the ancient dress of the Druses.

Anael. Those saffron vestures of the tabret-girls!

Comes Djabal, think you?

Maani. Doubtless Djabal comes.

Anael. Dost thou snow-swathe thee kinglier, Lebanon,

Than in my dreams?—Nay all the tresses off

My forehead! Look I lovely so? He says

That I am lovely.

Maani. Lovely: nay, that hangs

Awry.

Anael. You tell me how a khandjar hangs?
 The sharp side, thus, along the heart, see,
 marks

The maiden of our class. Are you content
For Djabal as for me?

Maani. Content, my child.

Anael. Oh mother, tell me more of him!

He comes

Even now—tell more, fill up my soul with
him!

Maani. And did I not . . . yes, surely
. . . tell you all?

Anael. What will be changed in Djabal when the Change

Arrives? Which feature? Not his eyes!

Maani. 'Tis writ
Our Hakeem's eyes rolled fire and clove the dark

Superbly.

Anael. Not his eyes! His voice perhaps?
Yet that's no change; for a grave current lived

—Grandly beneath the surface ever lived,
That, scattering, broke as in live silver spray
While . . . ah, the bliss . . . he would discourse to me

In that enforced still fashion, word on word!
'Tis the old current which must swell thro'
that,

For what least tone, Maani, could I lose?

'Tis surely not his voice will change!

—If Hakeem

Only stood by! If Djabal, somehow, passed
Out of the radiance as from out a robe;
Possessed, but was not it!

He lived with you?

Well—and that morning Djabal saw me first
And heard me vow never to wed but one Who saved my People—on that day . . . proceed!

Maani. Once more, then: from the time of his return

In secret, changed so since he left the Isle
That I, who screened our Emir's last of sons,
This Djabal, from the Prefect's massacre —Who bade him ne'er forget the child he was,

—Who dreamed so long the youth he might become—

I knew not in the man that child; the man
Who spoke alone of hope to save our tribe,

How he had gone from land to land to save
Our tribe—allies were sure, nor foes to dread.
And much he mused, days, nights, alone he mused:

But never till that day when, pale and worn
As by a persevering woe, he cried

“Is there not one Druse left me?”—and I showed

The way to Khalil's and your hiding-place
From the abhorred eye of the Prefect here,
So that he saw you, heard you speak—till
then,

Never did he announce—(how the moon
seemed

To ope and shut, the while, above us both!)

—His mission was the mission promised us;

The cycle had revolved; all things renewing,

He was lost Hakeem clothed in flesh to lead

His children home anon, now veiled to work

Great purposes: the Druses now would
change!

Anael. And they have changed! And obstacles did sink,

And furtherances rose! And round his form

Played fire, and music beat her angel wings!

My people, let me more rejoice, oh more

For you than for myself! Did I but watch

Afar the pageant, feel our Khalif pass,

One of the throng, how proud were I—tho' ne'er

Singled by Djabal's glance! But to be chosen

His own from all, the most his own of all,

To be exalted with him, side by side,

Lead the exulting Druses, meet . . . ah, how

Worthily meet the maidens who await

Ever beneath the cedars—how deserve

This honour, in their eyes? So bright are they

Who saffron-vested sound the tabret there,

The girls who throng there in my dream!

One hour

And all is over: how shall I do aught

That may deserve next hour's exalting?

How?—

[Suddenly to MAANI.

Mother, I am not worthy him! I read it

Still in his eyes! He stands as if to tell me

I am not, yet forbears. Why else revert

Enter KHALIL.

Khalil. Loys greets thee !

Djabal. Loys? To drag me back? It cannot be !

Anael [aside]. Loys ! Ah, doubt may not be stifled so !

Khalil. Can I have erred that thou so gazest? Yes,

I told thee not in the glad press of tidings
Of higher import, Loys is returned
Before the Prefect, with, if possible, Twice the light-heartedness of old. As though

On some inauguration he expects,
To-day, the world's fate hung !

Djabal. —And asks for me?

Khalil. Thou knowest all things. Thee in chief he greets,

But every Druse of us is to be happy
At his arrival, he declares : were Loys
Thou, Master, he could have no wider soul
To take us in with. How I love that Loys !

Djabal [aside]. Shame winds me with her tether round and round.

Anael [aside]. Loys? I take the trial ! it is meet,

The little I can do, be done ; that faith,
All I can offer, want no perfecting
Which my own act may compass. Ay, this way

All may go well, nor that ignoble doubt
Be chased by other aid than mine. Advance
Close to my fear, weigh Loys with my Lord,
The mortal with the more than mortal gifts !

Djabal [aside]. Before, there were so few deceived ! and now

There's doubtless not one least Druse in the Isle

But, having learned my superhuman claims,
And calling me his Khalif-God, will clash
The whole truth out from Loys at first word !

While Loys, for his part, will hold me up,
With a Frank's unimaginable scorn
Of such imposture, to my people's eyes !
Could I but keep him longer yet awhile
From them, amuse him here until I plan
How he and I at once may leave the Isle !

Khalil I cannot part with from my side—

My only help in this emergency :

There's Anael !

Anael. Please you?

Djabal. Anael—none but she !

[To ANAEL.] I pass some minutes in the chamber there,

Ere I see Loys : you shall speak with him

Until I join you. Khalil follows me.

Anael [aside]. As I divined : he bids me save myself,

Offers me a probation—I accept.

Let me see Loys !

Loys [without]. Djabal !

Anael [aside]. 'Tis his voice.

The smooth Frank trifier with our people's wrongs,

The self-complacent boy-inquirer, loud

On this and that inflicted tyranny,

—Aught serving to parade an ignorance

Of how wrong feels, inflicted ! Let me close

With what I viewed at distance : let myself

Probe this delusion to the core !

Djabal. He comes.

Khalil, along with me ! while Anael waits

Till I return once more—and but once more.

ACT III.

ANAEL and LOYS.

Anael. Here leave me ! Here I wait another. 'Twas

For no mad protestation of a love

Like this you say possesses you, I came.

Loys. Love? how protest a love I dare not feel?

Mad words may doubtless have escaped me :
you

Are here—I only feel you here !

Anael. No more !

Loys. But once again, whom could you love? I dare,

Alas, say nothing of myself, who am

A Knight now, for when Knighthood we embrace,

Love we abjure : so, speak on safely : speak.

Lest I speak, and betray my faith ! And yet
To say your breathing passes through me, changes

My blood to spirit, and my spirit to you,
As Heaven the sacrificer's wine to it—

This is not to protest my love ! You said
You could love one . . .

Anael. One only ! We are bent
To earth—who raises up my tribe, I love ;
The Prefect bows us—who removes him ; we Have ancient rights—who gives them back to us,

I love. Forbear me ! Let my hand go !

Loys. Him
You could love only ? Where is Djabal ? Stay !
[Aside.] Yet wherefore stay ? Who does this but myself ?

Had I apprised her that I come to do
Just this, what more could she acknowledge ?

No,
She sees into my heart's core ! What is it
Feeds either cheek with red, as Junesome rose ?
Why turns she from me ? Ah fool, over-fond
To dream I could call up . . .

. . . What never dream
Yet feigned ! 'Tis love ! Oh Anael speak to me !

Djabal—

Anael. Seek Djabal by the Prefect's chamber

At noon ! [She paces the room.]

Loys [aside]. And am I not the Prefect now ?
Is it my fate to be the only one
Able to win her love, the only one Unable to accept her love ? The past
Breaks up beneath my footing : came I here
This morn as to a slave, to set her free
And take her thanks, and then spend day by day
Content beside her in the Isle ? What works This knowledge in me now ? Her eye has broken

The faint disguise away : for Anael's sake
I left the Isle, for her espoused the cause
Of the Druses, all for her I thought, till now,
To live without !

—As I must live ! To-day
Ordains me Knight, forbids me . . . never shall

Forbid me to profess myself, heart, arm,
Thy soldier !

Anael. Djabal you demanded, comes.

Loys [aside]. What wouldst thou, Loys ?
See him ? Nought beside

Is wanting : I have felt his voice a spell
From first to last. He brought me here, made known

The Druses to me, drove me hence to seek Redress for them ; and shall I meet him now,
When nought is wanting but a word of his,
To—what ?—induce me to spurn hope, faith,
pride,

Honour away,—to cast my lot among
His tribe, become a proverb in men's mouths,
Breaking my high pact of companionship
With those who graciously bestowed on me
The very opportunities I turn

Against them ! Let me not see Djabal now !

Anael. The Prefect also comes.

Loys [aside]. Him let me see,

Not Djabal ! Him, degraded at a word,
To soothe me,—to attest belief in me—
And after, Djabal ! Yes, ere I return
To her, the Nuncio's vow shall have destroyed
This heart's rebellion, and coerced this will
For ever.

Anael, not before the vows
Irrevocably fix me . . .

Let me fly !
The Prefect, or I lose myself for ever !

[Goes.]
Anael. Yes, I am calm now ; just one way
remains—

One, to attest my faith in him : for, see,
I were quite lost else : Loys, Djabal, stand
On either side—two men ! I balance looks
And words, give Djabal a man's preference,
No more. In Djabal, Hakeem is absorbed !
And for a love like this, the God who saves
My race, selects me for his bride ? One way !

Enter DJABAL.

Djabal [to himself]. No moment is to waste then ; 'tis resolved.

If Khalil may be trusted to lead back
My Druses, and if Loys can be lured
Out of the Isle—if I procure his silence.

Or promise never to return at least,—
All's over. Even now my bark awaits :
I reach the next wild islet and the next,
And lose myself beneath the sun for ever.
And now, to Anael !

Anael. Djabal, I am thine !

Djabal. Mine ? Djabal's ?—As if Hakeem had not been ?

Anael. Not Djabal's ? Say first, do you read my thought ?

Why need I speak, if you can read my thought ?

Djabal. I do not, I have said a thousand times.

Anael. (My secret's safe, I shall surprise him yet !)

Djabal, I knew your secret from the first :

Djabal, when first I saw you . . . (by our porch
You leant, and pressed the tinkling veil away,
And one fringe fell behind your neck—I see !)

. . . I knew you were not human, for I said
“ This dim secluded house where the sea beats
“ Is heaven to me—my people's huts are hell
“ To them ; this august form will follow me, “ Mix with the waves his voice will,—I have
him ;

“ And they, the Prefect ! Oh, my happiness “ Rounds to the full whether I choose or no !
“ His eyes met mine, he was about to speak,
“ His hand grew damp—surely he meant to say
“ He let me love him : in that moment's bliss
“ I shall forget my people pine for home—
“ They pass and they repass with pallid eyes !”
I vowed at once a certain vow ; this vow—
Not to embrace you till my tribe was saved.
Embrace me !

Djabal [apart]. And she loved me ! Nought remained

But that ! Nay, Anael, is the Prefect dead ?

Anael. Ah, you reproach me ! True, his death crowns all,

I know—or should know : and I would do
much,

Believe ! but, death ! Oh, you, who have known death,

Would never doom the Prefect, were death fearful

As we report !

Death !—a fire curls within us

From the foot's palm, and fills up to the brain,
Up, out, then shatters the whole bubble-shell
Of flesh, perchance !

Death !—witness, I would die,
Whate'er death be, would venture now to
die

For Khalil, for Maani—what for thee ?

Nay but embrace me, Djabal, in assurance

My vow will not be broken, for I must

Do something to attest my faith in you,

Be worthy you !

Djabal [avoiding her]. I come for that—to
say

Such an occasion is at hand : 'tis like

I leave you—that we part, my Anael,—part

For ever !

Anael. We part ? Just so ! I have succumbed,—

I am, he thinks, unworthy—and nought less
Will serve than such approval of my faith.

Then, we part not ! Remains there no way
short

Of that ? Oh not that !

Death !—yet a hurt bird
Died in my hands ; its eyes filmed—“ Nay, it sleeps,”

I said, “ will wake to-morrow well : ” 'twas
dead.

Djabal. I stand here and time fleets.
Anael—I come

To bid a last farewell to you : perhaps

We never meet again. But, ere the Prefect
Arrive . . .

Enter KHALIL, breathlessly.

Khalil. He's here ! The Prefect ! Twenty
guards,

No more : no sign he dreams of danger. All Awaits thee only. Ayoob, Karshook, keep Their posts—wait but the deed's accomplishment

To join us with thy Druses to a man.

Still holds his course the Nuncio—near and near

The fleet from Candia steering.

Djabal [aside].

All is lost !

—Or won ?

Khalil. And I have laid the sacred robe,

Loys, a rueful sight, confess, to see
The grey discarded Prefect leave his post,
With tears i' the eye! So, you are Prefect
now?

You depose me—you succeed me? Ha, ha!

Loys. And dare you laugh, whom laughter less becomes

Than yesterday's forced meekness we beheld . . .

Prefect. —When you so eloquently pleaded,
Loys,

For my dismissal from the post? Ah, meek
With cause enough, consult the Nuncio else!
And wish him the like meekness: for so staunch

A servant of the Church can scarce have bought
His share in the Isle, and paid for it, hard pieces!

You've my successor to condole with, Nuncio!
I shall be safe by then i' the galley, Loys!

Loys. You make as you would tell me you rejoice

To leave your scene of . . .

Prefect. Trade in the dear Druses?
Blood and sweat traffic? Spare what yester-
day

We heard enough of! Drove I in the Isle
A profitable game? Learn wit, my son,
Which you'll need shortly! Did it never breed
Suspicion in you, all was not pure profit,
When I, the insatiate . . . and so forth—
was bent

On having a partaker in my rule?
Why did I yield this Nuncio half the gain,
If not that I might also shift—what on him?
Half of the peril, Loys!

Loys. Peril?

Prefect. Hark you!
I'd love you if you'd let me—this for reason,
You save my life at price of . . . well, say risk

At least, of yours. I came a long time since
To the Isle; our Hospitallers bade me tame
These savage wizards, and reward myself—

Loys. The Knights who so repudiate your crime?

Prefect. Loys, the Knights! we doubtless understood

Each other; as for trusting to reward
From any friend beside myself . . . no, no!
I clutched mine on the spot, when it was sweet,

And I had taste for it. I felt these wizards
Alive—was sure they were not on me, only When I was on them: but with age comes caution:

And stinging pleasures please less and sting
more.

Year by year, fear by fear! The girls were brighter

Than ever ('faith, there's yet one Anael left,
I set my heart upon—Oh, prithee, let That brave new sword lie still!)—These joys looked brighter,

But silenter the town, too, as I passed.

With this alcove's delicious memories
Began to mingle visions of gaunt fathers,
Quick-eyed sons, fugitives from the mine,
the oar,

Stealing to catch me. Brief, when I began To quake with fear—(I think I hear the Chapter

Solicited to let me leave, now all Worth staying for was gained and gone!)—I
say,

Just when, for the remainder of my life,
All methods of escape seemed lost—that then
Up should a young hot-headed Loys spring,
Talk very long and loud,—in fine, compel
The Knights to break their whole arrangement, have me

Home for pure shame—from this safehold of
mine

Where but ten thousand Druses seek my life,
To my wild place of banishment, San Gines
By Murcia, where my three fat manors lying,
Purchased by gains here and the Nuncio's
gold,

Are all I have to guard me,—that such fortune
Should fall to me, I hardly could expect.
Therefore I say, I'd love you.

Loys. Can it be?

I play into your hands then? Oh no, no!
The Venerable Chapter, the Great Order
Sunk o' the sudden into fiends of the pit?
But I will back—will yet unveil you!

Prefect. Me?
To whom?—perhaps Sir Galeas, who in Chapter
Shook his white head thrice—and some dozen times
My hand next morning shook, for value
paid!

To that Italian saint, Sir Cosimo?—
Indignant at my wringing year by year
A thousand bezants from the coral-divers,
As you recounted; felt the saint aggrieved?
Well might he—I allowed for his half-share Merely one hundred. To Sir . . .

Loys. See! you dare
Inculcate the whole Order; yet should I,
A youth, a sole voice, have the power to
change

Their evil way, had they been firm in it?
Answer me!

Prefect. Oh, the son of Bretagne's Duke,
And that son's wealth, the father's influence,
too,

And the young arm, we'll even say, my Loys,
—The fear of losing or diverting these
Into another channel, by gainsaying
A novice too abruptly, could not influence
The Order! You might join, for aught they cared,

Their red-cross rivals of the Temple! Well,
I thank you for my part, at all events.
Stay here till they withdraw you! You'll inhabit

My palace—sleep, perchance, in the alcove
Whither I go to meet our holy friend.
Good! and now disbelieve me if you can,—
This is the first time for long years I enter Thus [lifts the arras] without feeling just as if I lifted

The lid up of my tomb.

Loys. They share his crime!
God's punishment will overtake you yet.

Prefect. Thank you it does not! Pardon
this last flash:

I bear a sober visage presently
With the disinterested Nuncio here—
His purchase-money safe at Murcia, too!
Let me repeat—for the first time, no draught
Coming as from a sepulchre salutes me.

When we next meet, this folly may have passed,

We'll hope. Ha, ha!

[Goes through the arras.]

Loys. Assure me but . . . he's gone!
He could not lie. Then what have I escaped,
I, who had so nigh given up happiness
For ever, to be linked with him and them!

Oh, opportunist of discoveries! I
Their Knight? I utterly renounce them all!
Hark! What, he meets by this the Nuncio?

Yes,
The same hyæna-groan-like laughter! Quick—
To Djabal! I am one of them at last,
These simple-hearted Druses—Anael's tribe!
Djabal! She's mine at last. Djabal, I say!
[Goes.]

ACT IV.

Enter DJABAL.

Djabal. Let me but slay the Prefect.
The end now!
To-morrow will be time enough to pry
Into the means I took: suffice, they served,
Ignoble as they were, to hurl revenge
True to its object.

[Seeing the robe, etc. disposed.]

Mine should never so
Have hurried to accomplishment! Thee,
Djabal,
Far other mood befitted! Calm the Robe
Should clothe this doom's awarder!

[Taking the robe.] Shall I dare
Assume my nation's Robe? I am at least
A Druse again, chill Europe's policy
Drops from me: I dare take the Robe.

Why not
The Tiar? I rule the Druses, and what more Betokens it than rule?—yet—yet—

[Lays down the tiar.]
[Footsteps in the alcove.] He comes!

[Taking the sword.]
If the Sword serve, let the Tiar lie! So,
feet
Clogged with the blood of twenty years can fall

Thus lightly! Round me, all ye ghosts!
 He'll lift . . .
 Which arm to push the arras wide?—or both?
 Stab from the neck down to the heart—there
 stay!
 Near he comes—nearer—the next footstep!
 Now! [As he dashes aside the arras,
ANAEL is discovered.
 Ha! Anael! Nay, my Anael, can it be?
 Heard you the trumpet? I must slay him here,
 And here you ruin all. Why speak you not?
 Anael, the Prefect comes! [ANAEL screams.]
 So slow to feel
 'Tis not a sight for you to look upon?
 A moment's work—but such work! Till you go,
 I must be idle—idle, I risk all!
 [Pointing to her hair.
 Those locks are well, and you are beauteous
 thus,
 But with the dagger 'tis, I have to do!
Anael. With mine!
Djabal. Blood—Anael?
Anael. Djabal, 'tis thy deed!
 It must be! I had hoped to claim it mine—
 Be worthy thee—but I must needs confess
 'Twas not I, but thyself . . . not I have . . .
 Djabal!
 Speak to me!
Djabal. Oh, my punishment!
Anael. Speak to me
 While I can speak! touch me, despite the
 blood!
 When the command passed from thy soul to
 mine,
 I went, fire leading me, muttering of thee,
 And the approaching exaltation,—“make “One sacrifice!” I said,—and he sat there,
 Bade me approach; and, as I did approach,
 Thy fire with music burst into my brain.
 'Twas but a moment's work, thou saidst—
 perchance
 It may have been so! Well, it is thy deed.
Djabal. It is my deed.
Anael. His blood all this!
 —this! and . . .
 And more! Sustain me, Djabal! Wait not
 —now

Let flash thy glory! Change thyself and me!
 It must be! Ere the Druses flock to us!
 At least confirm me! Djabal, blood gushed
 forth—
 He was our tyrant—but I looked he'd fall
 Prone as asleep—why else is death called sleep?
 Sleep? He bent o'er his breast! 'Tis sin,
 I know,—
 Punish me, Djabal, but wilt thou let him?
 Be it thou that punishest, not he—who creeps
 On his red breast—is here! 'Tis the small groan
 Of a child—no worse! Bestow the new life,
 then!
 Too swift it cannot be, too strange, surpassing! [Following him as he retreats.
 Now! Change us both! Change me and change thou!
Djabal [sinks on his knees]. Thus!
 Behold my change! You have done nobly.
 I!—
Anael. Can Hakeem kneel?
Djabal. No Hakeem,
 and scarce Djabal!
 I have dealt falsely, and this woe is come.
 No—hear me ere scorn blast me! Once and
 ever,
 The deed is mine. Oh think upon the past!
Anael [to herself]. Did I strike once, or twice, or many times?
Djabal. I came to lead my tribe where,
 bathed in glooms,
 Doth Bahumid the Renovator sleep:
 Anael, I saw my tribe: I said, “Without “A miracle this cannot be”—I said
 “Be there a miracle!”—for I saw you.
Anael. His head lies south the portal.
Djabal. —Weighed with this
 The general good, how could I choose my
 own?
 What matter was my purity of soul?
 Little by little I engaged myself—
 Heaven would accept me for its instrument,
 I hoped: I said Heaven had accepted me.
Anael. Is it this blood breeds dreams in me? Who said
 You were not Hakeem? And your miracles—

'Tis come on me at last! His blood on her—

What memories will follow that! Her eye, Her fierce distorted lip and ploughed black brow!

Ah, fool! Has Europe then so poorly tamed The Syrian blood from out thee? Thou, presume

To work in this foul earth by means not foul? Scheme, as for heaven,—but, on the earth, be glad

If a least ray like heaven's be left thee!

Thus I shall be calm—in readiness—no way Surprised. [A noise without.]

This should be Khalil and my Druses. Venice is come then! Thus I grasp thee, sword!

Druses, 'tis Hakeem saves you! In! Behold Your Prefect!

Enter LOYS. DJABAL hides the khandjar in his robe.

Loys. Oh, well found, Djabal!—but no time for words.

You know who waits there?

[Pointing to the alcove.]

Well!—and that 'tis there He meets the Nuncio? Well? Now, a surprise—

He there—

Djabal. I know—

Loys. —is now no mortal's lord, Is absolutely powerless—call him, dead— He is no longer Prefect—you are Prefect! Oh, shrink not! I do nothing in the dark, Nothing unworthy Breton blood, believe! I understood at once your urgency That I should leave this isle for Rhodes; I felt What you were loath to speak—your need of help.

I have fulfilled the task, that earnestness Imposed on me: have, face to face, confronted

The Prefect in full Chapter, charged on him The enormities of his long rule; he stood Mute, offered no defence, no crime denied. On which, I spoke of you, and of your tribe,

Your faith so like our own, and all you urged Of old to me: I spoke, too, of your goodness, Your patience—brief, I hold henceforth the Isle

In charge, am nominally lord,—but you, You are associated in my rule—

Are the true Prefect! Ay, such faith had they

In my assurance of your loyalty (For who insults an imbecile old man?)

That we assume the Prefecture this hour.

You gaze at me? Hear greater wonders yet— I cast down all the fabric I have built.

These Knights, I was prepared to worship but

Of that another time; what's now to say, Is—I shall never be a Knight! Oh, Djabal, Here first I throw all prejudice aside, And call you brother! I am Druse like you: My wealth, my friends, my power, are wholly yours,

Your people's, which is now my people: for There is a maiden of your tribe, I love— She loves me—Khalil's sister—Djabal. Anael?

Loys. Start you?

Seems what I say, unknighly? Thus it chanced:

When first I came, a novice, to the isle . . .

Enter one of the NUNCIO'S Guards from the alcove.

Guard. Oh horrible! Sir Loys! Here is Loys!

And here— [Others enter from the alcove.]

[Pointing to DJABAL.] Secure him, bind him—this is he! [They surround DJABAL.]

Loys. Madmen—what is't you do? Stand from my friend,

And tell me!

Guard. Thou canst have no part in this— Surely no part! But slay him not! The Nuncio Commanded, slay him not!

Loys. Speak, or . . .

Guard. The Prefect Lies murdered there by him thou dost embrace.

Loys. By Djabal? Miserable fools! How Djabal?

[A Guard lifts DJABAL'S robe; DJABAL stings down the khanajar.

Loys [after a pause]. Thou hast received some insult worse than all, Some outrage not to be endured—

[To the Guards.] Stand back! He is my friend—more than my friend. Thou hast slain him upon that provocation.

Guard. No! No provocation! 'Tis a long devised conspiracy: the whole tribe is involved. He is their Khalif—'tis on that pretence—Their mighty Khalif who died long ago, And now comes back to life and light again! All is just now revealed, I know not how, By one of his confederates—who, struck with horror at this murder, first apprised The Nuncio. As 'twas said, we find this Djabal

Here where we take him.

Djabal [aside]. Who broke faith with me?

Loys [to DJABAL]. Hear'st thou? Speak!

Till thou speak, I keep off these, Or die with thee. Deny this story! Thou A Khalif, an impostor? Thou, my friend, Whose tale was of an inoffensive tribe, With . . . but thou know'st—on that tale's truth I pledged

My faith before the Chapter: what art thou?

Djabal. Loys, I am as thou hast heard. All's true.

No more concealment! As these tell thee, all Was long since planned. Our Druses are enough

To crush this handful: the Venetians land Even now in our behalf. Loys, we part. Thou, serving much, wouldst fain have served me more;

It might not be. I thank thee. As thou hearest,

We are a separated tribe: farewell!

Loys. Oh where will truth be found now? Canst thou so

Belie the Druses? Do they share thy crime? Those thou professest of our Breton stock,

Are partners with thee? Why, I saw but now Khalil, my friend: he spoke with me—no word Of this! and Anael—whom I love, and who Loves me—she spoke no word of this.

Djabal. Poor boy! Anael, who loves thee? Khalil, fast thy friend?

We, offsets from a wandering Count of Dreux? No: older than the oldest, princelier Than Europe's princeliest race, our tribe: enough

For thine, that on our simple faith we found A monarchy to shame your monarchies At their own trick and secret of success. The child of this our tribe shall laugh upon The palace-step of him whose life ere night Is forfeit, as that child shall know, and yet

Shall laugh there! What, we Druses wait forsooth

The kind interposition of a boy—Can only save ourselves if thou concede:—Khalil admire thee? He is my right-hand, My delegate!—Anael accept thy love? She is my bride!

Loys. Thy bride? She one of them?

Djabal. My bride!

Loys. And she retains her glorious eyes!

She, with those eyes, has shared this miscreant's guilt!

Ah—who but she directed me to find Djabal within the Prefect's chamber? Khalil Bade me seek Djabal there, too. All is truth.

What spoke the Prefect worse of them than this?

Did the Church ill to institute long since Perpetual warfare with such serpentry? And I—have I desired to shift my part, Evade my share in her design? 'Tis well.

Djabal. Loys, I wronged thee—but unwittingly:

I never thought there was in thee a virtue That could attach itself to what thou deemest

A race below thine own. I wronged thee, Loys,

But that is over : all is over now,
Save the protection I ensure against My people's anger. By their Khalif's side, Thou art secure and mayst depart : so,
come !

Loys. Thy side ? I take protection at thy
hand ?

Enter other Guards.

Guards. Fly with him ! Fly, Sir Loys !

'Tis too true :

And only by his side thou mayst escape.
The whole tribe is in full revolt : they flock
About the palace—will be here—on thee—
And there are twenty of us, we the Guards
O' the Nuncio, to withstand them ! Even we Had stayed to meet our death in ignorance,
But that one Druse, a single faithful Druse,
Made known the horror to the Nuncio. Fly !
The Nuncio stands aghast. At least let us Escape thy wrath, O Hakeem ! We are
nought

In thy tribe's persecution ! [To LOYS.]
Keep by him !

They hail him Hakeem, their dead Prince
returned :

He is their God, they shout, and at his beck
Are life and death !

Loys [springing at the khandjar DJABAL had thrown down, seizes him by the throat].

Thus by his side am I !

Thus I resume my knighthood and its warfare,
Thus end thee, miscreant, in thy pride of
place !

Thus art thou caught. Without, thy dupes may cluster :

Friends aid thee, foes avoid thee,—thou art
Hakeem,

How say they ?—God art thou ! but also here
Is the least, youngest, meanest the Church calls

Her servant, and his single arm avails
To aid her as she lists. I rise, and thou Art crushed. Hordes of thy Druses flock without :

Here thou hast me, who represent the Cross, Honour and Faith, 'gainst Hell, Mahound
and thee.

Die ! [DJABAL remains calm.] Implore my mercy, Hakeem, that my scorn
May help me ! Nay, I cannot ply thy trade ;
I am no Druse, no stabber : and thine eye, Thy form, are too much as they were—my
friend

Had such. Speak ! Beg for mercy at my foot ! [DJABAL still silent.]

Heaven could not ask so much of me—not,
sure,

So much. I cannot kill him so.

[After a pause.] Thou art
Strong in thy cause, then—dost outbrave us,
then.

Heardst thou that one of thine accomplices,
Thy very people, has accused thee ? Meet
His charge ! Thou hast not even slain the Prefect

As thy own vile creed warrants. Meet that Druse !

Come with me and disprove him—be thou tried

By him, nor seek appeal ! Promise me this,
Or I will do God's office. What, shalt thou Boast of assassins at thy beck, yet truth
Want even an executioner ? Consent,
Or I will strike—look in my face—I will !

Djabal. Give me again my khandjar, if thou darest ! [LOYS gives it.]

Let but one Druse accuse me, and I plunge
This home. A Druse betray me ? Let us go !
[Aside.] Who has betrayed me ?

[Shouts without.]

Hearst thou ? I hear
No plainer than long years ago I heard That shout—but in no dream now. They return !

Wilt thou be leader with me, Loys ? Well.

ACT V.

The Uninitiated Druses, filling the hall tumultuously, and speaking together.

Here flock we, obeying the summons. Lo.
Hakeem hath appeared, and the Prefect is dead, and we return to Lebanon ! My manu-

How by his spells the demons were allured
To seize you : not that these be aught save lies
And mere illusions. Is this clear? I say,
By measures such as these, he would have led you

Into a monstrous ruin : follow ye?
Say, shall ye perish for his sake, my sons?

Druses. Hark ye!

Nuncio. —Be of one privilege amerced?
No! Infinite the Patriarch's mercies are!
No! With the Patriarch's licence, still I bid

Tear him to pieces who misled you! Haste!

Druses. The old man's beard shakes, and his eyes are white fire! After all, I know nothing of Djabal beyond what Karshook says; he knows but what Khalil says, who knows just what Djabal says himself. Now, the little Copht Prophet, I saw at Cairo in my youth, began by promising each bystander three full measures of wheat . . .

Enter KHALIL and the initiated DRUSES.

Khalil. Venice and her deliverance are at
hand :

Their fleet stands through the harbour. Hath he slain

The Prefect yet? Is Djabal's change come
yet?

Nuncio [to Attendants]. What's this of Venice? Who's this boy?

[Attendants whisper.] One Khalil?

Djabal's accomplice, Loys called, but now,
The only Druse, save Djabal's self, to fear?

[To the Druses.] I cannot hear ye with these aged ears :

Is it so? Ye would have my troops assist?
Doth he abet him in his sorceries?

Down with the cheat, guards, as my children bid! [They spring at KHALIL; as he beats them back,

Stay! No more bloodshed! Spare deluded
youth!

Whom seek'st thou? (I will teach him)— whom, my child?

Thou know'st not what these know, what these declare.

I am an old man as thou seest—have done

With life; and what should move me but the truth?

Art thou the only fond one of thy tribe?
'Tis I interpret for thy tribe.

Khalil.

Oh, this

Is the expected Nuncio! Druses, hear—
Endure ye this? Unworthy to partake
The glory Hakeem gains you! While I speak,
The ships touch land: who makes for Lebanon?

They plant the winged lion in these halls!

Nuncio [aside]. If it be true! Venice?

Oh, never true!

Yet Venice would so gladly thwart our Knights,
So fain get footing here, stand close by Rhodes!

Oh, to be duped this way!

Khalil.

Ere he appear

And lead you gloriously, repent, I say!

Nuncio [aside]. Nor any way to stretch the arch-wizard stark

Ere the Venetians come? Cut off the head.
The trunk were easily stilled. [To the Druses.] He? Bring him forth!

Since so you needs will have it, I assent.

You'd judge him, say you, on the spot—
confound

The sorcerer in his very circle? Where's

Our short black-bearded sallow friend who swore

He'd earn the Patriarch's guerdon by one stab?

Bring Djabal forth at once!

Druses.

Ay, bring him forth!

The Patriarch drives a trade in oil and silk,
And we're the Patriarch's children—true men, we!

Where is the glory? Show us all the glory!

Khalil. You dare not so insult him!

What, not see . . .

(I tell thee, Nuncio, these are uninstructed, Untrusted: they know nothing of our Khalif!)

—Not see that if he lets a doubt arise

'Tis but to give yourselves the chance of seeming

To have some influence in your own Return!

That all may say ye would have trusted him

Without the all-convincing glory—ay,
And did! Embrace the occasion, friends!
For, think—
What wonder when his change takes place?
But now
For your sakes, he should not reveal himself.
No: could I ask and have, I would not ask
The change yet!

Enter DJABAL and LOYS.

Spite of all, reveal thyself!
I had said, pardon them for me—for Anael—
For our sakes pardon these besotted men—
Ay, for thine own—they hurt not thee! Yet
now
One thought swells in me and keeps down all else.

This Nuncio couples shame with thee, has called

Imposture thy whole course, all bitter things
Has said: he is but an old fretful man!

Hakeem—nay, I must call thee Hakeem now—
Reveal thyself! See! Where is Anael? See!

Loys [to DJABAL]. Here are thy people.

Keep thy word to me!

Djabal. Who of my people hath accused me?

Nuncio. So!

So this is Djabal, Hakeem, and what not?

A fit deed, Loys, for thy first Knight's day!

May it be augury of thy after-life!

Ever prove truncheon of the Church as now

That, Nuncio of the Patriarch, having
charge

Of the Isle here, I claim thee [turning to
DJABAL] as these bid me,

Forfeit for murder done thy lawful prince,

Thou conjurer that peep'st and mutterest!

Why should I hold thee from their hands?

(Spells, children?

But hear how I dispose of all his spells!)

Thou art a prophet?—wouldst entice thy tribe

From me?—thou workest miracles? (Attend!

Let him but move me with his spells!) I,

Nuncio . . .

Djabal. . . Which how thou camest to be,

I say not now,

Though I have also been at Stamboul, Luke!

Ply thee with spells, forsooth! What need of spells?

If Venice, in her Admiral's person, stoop

To ratify thy compact with her foe,

The Hospitallers, for this Isle—withdraw

Her warrant of the deed which reinstates

My people in their freedom, tricked away

By him I slew,—refuse to convoy us

To Lebanon and keep the Isle we leave—

Then will be time to try what spells can do!

Dost thou dispute the Republic's power?

Nuncio. Lo ye!

He tempts me too, the wily exorcist!

No! The renowned Republic was and is

The Patriarch's friend: 'tis not for courting

Venice

That I—that these implore thy blood of me.

Lo ye, the subtle miscreant! Ha, so subtle?

Ye, Druses, hear him. Will ye be deceived?

How he evades me! Where's the miracle

He works? I bid him to the proof—fish up

Your galley-full of bezants that he sank!

That were a miracle! One miracle!

Enough of trifling, for it chafes my years.

I am the Nuncio, Druses! I stand forth

To save you from the good Republic's rage

When she shall find her fleet was summoned

here

To aid the mummeries of a knave like this.

[As the Druses hesitate, his Attendants whisper.

Ah, well suggested! Why, we hold the while

One who, his close confederate till now,

Confesses Djabal at the last a cheat,

And every miracle a cheat. Who throws me

His head? I make three offers, once I offer,—

And twice . . .

Djabal. Let who moves perish at my foot!

Khalil. Thanks, Hakeem. thanks! Oh,
Anael, Maani,

Why tarry they?

Druses [to each other]. He can! He can!
Live fire—

[To the NUNCIO.] I say he can, old man!
Thou know'st him not.

Live fire like that thou seest now in his eyes,

Plays fawning round him. See ! The change begins.

All the brow lightens as he lifts his arm.

Look not at me ! It was not I !

Djabal. What Druse
Accused me, as he saith ? I bid each bone Crumble within that Druse ! None, Loys,
none

Of my own people, as thou said'st, have raised

A voice against me.

Nuncio [aside]. Venice to come ! Death !

Djabal [continuing]. Confess and go unscathed, however false !

Seest thou my Druses, Luke ? I would submit

To thy pure malice did one Druse confess !

How said I, Loys ?

Nuncio [to his Attendants who whisper].

Ah, ye counsel so ?

[Aloud.] Bring in the witness, then, who,
first of all,

Disclosed the treason ! Now I have thee, wizard !

Ye hear that ? If one speaks, he bids you tear him

Joint after joint : well then, one does speak !
One,

Befooled by Djabal, even as yourselves,

But who hath voluntarily proposed

To expiate, by confessing thus, the fault

Of having trusted him.

[They bring in a veiled Druse.]

Loys. Now, Djabal, now !

Nuncio. Friend, Djabal fronts thee ! Make a ring, sons. Speak !

Expose this Djabal—what he was, and
how :

The wiles he used, the aims he cherished : all,

Explicitly as late 'twas spoken to these

My servants : I absolve and pardon thee.

Loys. Thou hast the dagger ready, Djabal ?

Djabal. Speak,
Recreant !

Druses. Stand back, fool ! farther ! Suddenly

You shall see some huge serpent glide from under

The empty vest, or down will thunder crash !
Back, Khalil !

Khalil. I go back ? Thus go I back !
[To ANAEL.] Unveil ! Nay, thou shalt face the Khalif ! Thus !

[*He tears away ANAEL'S veil; DJABAL folds his arms and bows his head;
the Druses fall back; LOYS springs from the side of DJABAL and the
NUNCIO.*]

Loys. Then she was true—she only of them all !

True to her eyes—may keep those glorious
eyes,

And now be mine, once again mine ! Oh,
Anael !

Dared I think thee a partner in his crime—

That blood could soil that hand ? nay, 'tis mine—Anael,

—Not mine?—who offer thee before all
these

My heart, my sword, my name—so thou wilt
say

That Djabal, who affirms thou art his bride,

Lies—say but that he lies !

Djabal. Thou, Anael ?

Loys. Nay, Djabal, nay, one chance for me—the last !

Thou hast had every other ; thou hast spoken Days, nights, what falsehood listed thee—let

me

Speak first now ; I will speak now !

Nuncio. Loys, pause !

Thou art the Duke's son, Bretagne's choicest
stock,

Loys of Dreux, God's sepulchre's first sword :

This wilt thou spit on, this degrade, this trample

To earth ?

Loys [to ANAEL]. Who had foreseen that one day Loys

Would stake these gifts against some other
good

In the whole world ? I give them thee ! I would

My strong will might bestow real shape on
them,

That I might see, with my own eyes, thy foot

Go not without her to the cedars, lord !
Or leave us both—I cannot go alone !
I have obeyed thee, if I dare so speak :
Hath Hakeem thus forgot all Djabal knew ?
Thou feelest then my tears fall hot and fast
Upon thy hand, and yet thou speakest not ?
Ere the Venetian trumpet sound—ere thou
Exalt thyself, O Hakeem ! save thou her !

Nuncio. And the accursed Republic will arrive
And find me in their toils—dead, very like,
Under their feet !

What way—not one way yet
To foil them ? None ?

[Observing DJABAL'S face.
What ails the Khalif? Ah,
That ghastly face ! A way to foil them yet !
[To the Druses.] Look to your Khalif, Druses !

Is that face
God Hakeem's ? Where is triumph,—where is . . . what

Said he of exaltation—hath he promised
So much to-day ? Why then, exalt thyself !
Cast off that husk, thy form, set free thy soul
In splendour ! Now, bear witness ! here I
stand—

I challenge him exalt himself, and I
Become, for that, a Druse like all of you !

The Druses. Exalt thyself ! Exalt thyself,
O Hakeem !

Djabal [advances]. I can confess now all from first to last.

There is no longer shame for me. I am . . .

[*Here the Venetian trumpet sounds :
the Druses shout, DJABAL'S eye catches the expression of those about him, and, as the old dream comes back, he is again confident and inspired.*

—Am I not Hakeem ? And ye would have crawled

But yesterday within these impure courts
Where now ye stand erect ! Not grand enough ?
—What more could be conceded to such beasts
As all of you, so sunk and base as you,
Than a mere man ? A man among such beasts
Was miracle enough : yet him you doubt,
Him you forsake, him fain would you destroy—

With the Venetians at your gate, the Nuncio
Thus—(see the baffled hypocrite !) and, best,
The Prefect there !

Druses. No, Hakeem, ever thine !

Nuncio. He lies—and twice he lies—and thrice he lies !

Exalt thyself, Mahound ! Exalt thyself !

Djabal. Druses ! we shall henceforth be far away—

Out of mere mortal ken—above the cedars—
But we shall see ye go, hear ye return,
Repeopling the old solitudes,—through thee,
My Khalil ! Thou art full of me : I fill Thee full—my hands thus fill thee ! Yestereve, —Nay, but this morn, I deemed thee ignorant
Of all to do, requiring word of mine
To teach it : now, thou hast all gifts in one,
With truth and purity go other gifts,
All gifts come clustering to that. Go,
lead

My people home whate'er betide !

[Turning to the Druses.] Ye take
This Khalil for my delegate ? To him
Bow as to me ? He leads to Lebanon—
Ye follow ?

Druses. We follow ! Now exalt thyself !

Djabal [raises LOYS]. Then to thee, Loys !
How I wronged thee, Loys !

Yet, wronged, no less thou shalt have full
revenge,

Fit for thy noble self, revenge—and thus.
Thou, loaded with such wrongs, the princely
soul,

The first sword of Christ's sepulchre—thou shalt

Guard Khalil and my Druses home again !
Justice, no less, God's justice and no more,
For those I leave ! To seeking this, devote Some few days out of thy Knight's brilliant
life :

And, this obtained them, leave their Lebanon,
My Druses' blessing in thine ears—(they shall

Bless thee with blessing sure to have its way)

—One cedar-blossom in thy ducal cap,
One thought of Anael in thy heart,—per-
chance,

One thought of him who thus, to bid thee
speed,

His last word to the living speaks! This
done,

Resume thy course, and, first amidst the
first

In Europe, take my heart along with thee!

Go boldly, go serenely, go augustly—

What shall withstand thee then?

[He bends over ANAEL.] And last to
thee!

Ah, did I dream I was to have, this day,

Exalted thee? A vain dream: hast thou
not

Won greater exaltation? What remains

But press to thee, exalt myself to thee?

Thus I exalt myself, set free my soul!

[He stabs himself. As he falls, supported by KHALIL and LOYS, the Venetians enter; the ADMIRAL advances.]

Admiral. God and St. Mark for Venice!

Plant the Lion!

[At the clash of the planted standard, the Druses shout and move tumultuously forward, LOYS drawing his sword.]

Djabal [leading them a few steps between KHALIL and LOYS]. On to the Mountain! At the Mountain, Druses! [Dies.]

PERSONS.

MILDRED TRESHAM.
GUENDOLEN TRESHAM.
THOROLD, Earl Tresham.
AUSTIN TRESHAM.
HENRY, Earl Mertoun.
GERARD, and other retainers of Lord Tresham.

TIME, 17—.

ACT I.

SCENE I.—The interior of a lodge in LORD TRESHAM'S park. Many Retainers crowded at the window, supposed to command a view of the entrance to his mansion. GERARD, the warrener, his back to a table on which are flagons, etc.

1st Retainer. Ay, do! push, friends, and then you'll push down me!

—What for? Does any hear a runner's foot Or a steed's trample or a coach-wheel's cry?

Is the Earl come or his least poursuivant? But there's no breeding in a man of you Save Gerard yonder: here's a half-place yet, Old Gerard!

Gerard. Save your courtesies, my friend. Here is my place.

2nd Retainer. Now, Gerard, out with it! What makes you sullen, this of all the days I' the year? To-day that young rich bountiful Handsome Earl Mertoun, whom alone they match

With our Lord Tresham through the country-side,

Is coming here in utmost bravery To ask our master's sister's hand?

Gerard. What then?

2nd Retainer. What then? Why, you, she speaks to, if she meets

Your worship, smiles on as you hold apart The boughs to let her through her forest walks,

You, always favourite for your no-deserts, You've heard, these three days, how Earl Mertoun sues

To lay his heart and house and broad lands too

At Lady Mildred's feet: and while we squeeze Ourselves into a mousehole lest we miss One congee of the least page in his train, You sit o' one side—"there's the Earl," say I—

"What then?" say you!

3rd Retainer. I'll wager he has let Both swans he tamed for Lady Mildred swim Over the falls and gain the river!

Gerard. Ralph,

Is not to-morrow my inspecting-day For you and for your hawks?

4th Retainer. Let Gerard be! He's coarse-grained, like his carved black cross-bow stock.

Ha, look now, while we squabble with him, look!

Well done, now—is not this beginning, now, To purpose?

1st Retainer. Our retainers look as fine— That's comfort. Lord, how Richard holds himself

With his white staff! Will not a knave behind Prick him upright?

4th Retainer. He's only bowing, fool! The Earl's man bent us lower by this much.

1st Retainer. Our retainers look as fine—That's comfort. Lord, how Richard holds
himself

With his white staff! Will not a knave behind Prick him upright?

4th Retainer. He's only bowing, fool!
The Earl's man bent us lower by this much.

1st Retainer. That's comfort. Here's a very cavalcade!

3rd Retainer. I don't see wherefore Richard, and his troop

Of silk and silver varlets there, should find
Their perfumed selves so indispensable
On high days, holidays! Would it so disgrace
Our family, if I, for instance, stood—
In my right hand a cast of Swedish hawks,
A leash of greyhounds in my left?—

Gerard. —With Hugh
The logman for supporter, in his right
The bill-hook, in his left the brushwoodshears!

3rd Retainer. Out on you, crab! What next, what next? The Earl!

1st Retainer. Oh Walter, groom, our horses, do they match

The Earl's? Alas, that first pair of the six—
They paw the ground—Ah Walter! and that brute

Just on his haunches by the wheel!

6th Retainer. Ay—ay!

You, Philip, are a special hand, I hear,
At soups and sauces: what's a horse to you?
D'ye mark that beast they've slid into the midst

So cunningly?—then, Philip, mark this further;

No leg has he to stand on!

1st Retainer. No? That's comfort.

2nd Retainer. Peace, Cook! The Earl descends. Well, Gerard, see

The Earl at least! Come, there's a proper man,

I hope! Why, Ralph, no falcon, Pole or Swede,

Has got a starrier eye.

3rd Retainer. His eyes are blue:

But leave my hawks alone!

4th Retainer. So young, and yet

So tall and shapely!

5th Retainer. Here's Lord Tresham's self!

There now—there's what a nobleman should be!

He's older, graver, loftier, he's more like A House's head.

2nd Retainer. But you'd not have a boy—
—And what's the Earl beside?—possess too soon

That stateliness?

1st Retainer. Our master takes his hand—
Richard and his white staff are on the move—
Back fall our people—(tsh!—there's Timothy
Sure to get tangled in his ribbon-ties,
And Peter's cursed rosette's a-coming off!)
—At last I see our lord's back and his friend's;

And the whole beautiful bright company
Close round them—in they go! [Jumping down from the window-bench, and making for the table and its jugs.]

Good health, long life,
Great joy to our Lord Tresham and his House!

6th Retainer. My father drove his father first to court,

After his marriage-day—ay, did he!

2nd Retainer. God bless Lord Tresham, Lady Mildred, and the Earl!
Here, Gerard, reach your beaker!

Gerard. Drink, my boys!
Don't mind me—all's not right about me—
drink!

2nd Retainer [aside]. He's vexed, now, that he let the show escape!

[To GERARD.] Remember that the Earl returns this way.

Gerard. That way?

2nd Retainer. Just so.

Gerard. Then my way's here.

[Goes.]
2nd Retainer. Old Gerard

Will die soon—mind, I said it! He was used
To care about the pitifullest thing

That touched the House's honour, not an eye
But his could see wherein: and on a cause

Of scarce a quarter this importance, Gerard
Fairly had fretted flesh and bone away

In cares that this was right, nor that was wrong,

Such point decorous, and such square by rule—

He knew such niceties, no herald more:
And now—you see his humour: die he will!

2nd Retainer. God help him! Who's for the great servants'-hall
To hear what's going on inside? They'd follow
Lord Tresham into the saloon.

3rd Retainer. I!—

4th Retainer. I!—
Leave Frank alone for catching, at the door,
Some hint of how the parley goes inside!
Prosperity to the great House once more!
Here's the last drop!

1st Retainer. Have at you! Boys, hurrah!

SCENE II.—A Saloon in the Mansion.

Enter LORD TRESHAM, LORD MERTOUN, AUSTIN, and GUENDOLEN.

Tresham. I welcome you, Lord Mertoun, yet once more,
To this ancestral roof of mine. Your name
—Noble among the noblest in itself,
Yet taking in your person, fame avers,
New price and lustre,—(as that gem you
wear,
Transmitted from a hundred knightly breasts,
Fresh chased and set and fixed by its last lord,
Seems to re-kindle at the core)—your name
Would win you welcome!—

Mertoun. Thanks!

Tresham. —But add to that,
The worthiness and grace and dignity
Of your proposal for uniting both
Our Houses even closer than respect Unites them now—add these, and you must grant

One favour more, nor that the least,—to think
The welcome I should give;—'tis given!

My lord,
My only brother, Austin: he's the king's.
Our cousin, Lady Guendolen—betrothed
To Austin: all are yours.

Mertoun. I thank you—less
For the expressed commendings which your seal,

And only that, authenticates—forbids
My putting from me . . . to my heart I take

Your praise . . . but praise less claims my gratitude,

Than the indulgent insight it implies
Of what must needs be uppermost with one Who comes, like me, with the bare leave to ask,

In weighed and measured unimpassioned
words,

A gift, which, if as calmly 'tis denied,
He must withdraw, content upon his cheek,
Despair within his soul. That I dare ask
Firmly, near boldly, near with confidence
That gift, I have to thank you. Yes, Lord
Tresham,

I love your sister—as you'd have one love
That lady . . . oh more, more I love her!

Wealth,
Rank, all the world thinks me, they're yours,
you know,

To hold or part with, at your choice—but grant

My true self, me without a rood of land,
A piece of gold, a name of yesterday,
Grant me that lady, and you . . . Death or
life?

Guendolen [apart to AUSTIN]. Why, this is loving, Austin!

Austin. He's so young!

Guendolen. Young? Old enough, I think, to half surmise

He never had obtained an entrance here,
Were all this fear and trembling needed.

Austin. Hush!

He reddens.

Guendolen. Mark him, Austin; that's true
love!

Ours must begin again.

Tresham. We'll sit, my lord.
Ever with best desert goes diffidence.

I may speak plainly nor be misconceived.
That I am wholly satisfied with you
On this occasion, when a falcon's eye
Were dull compared with mine to search out faults,

Is somewhat. Mildred's hand is hers to give
Or to refuse.

Mertoun. But you, you grant my suit?
I have your word if hers?

I should have prayed the brother, "speak
this speech,

"For Heaven's sake urge this on her—put in
this—

"Forget not, as you'd save me, t'other
thing,—

"Then set down what she says, and how she looks,

"And if she smiles, and" (in an under breath)

"Only let her accept me, and do you

"And all the world refuse me, if you dare!"

Guendolen. That way you'd take, friend
Austin? What a shame

I was your cousin, tamely from the first

Your bride, and all this fervour's run to waste!

Do you know you speak sensibly to-day?

The Earl's a fool.

Austin. Here's Thorold. Tell him so!

Tresham [returning]. Now, voices, voices!

'St! the lady's first!

How seems he?—seems he not . . . come,
faith give fraud

The mercy-stroke whenever they engage!

Down with fraud, up with faith! How seems the Earl?

A name! a blazon! if you knew their worth,
As you will never! come—the Earl?

Guendolen. He's young.

Tresham. What's she? an infant save in heart and brain.

Young! Mildred is fourteen, remark! And
you . . .

Austin, how old is she?

Guendolen. There's tact for you!

I meant that being young was good excuse

If one should tax him . . .

Tresham. Well?

Guendolen. —With lacking wit.

Tresham. He lacked wit? Where might he lack wit, so please you?

Guendolen. In standing straighter than the steward's rod

And making you the tiresomest harangue,

Instead of slipping over to my side

And softly whispering in my ear, "Sweet lady,

"Your cousin there will do me detriment

"He little dreams of: he's absorbed, I see,

"In my old name and fame—be sure he'll leave

"My Mildred, when his best account of me

"Is ended, in full confidence I wear

"My grandsire's periwig down either cheek.

"I'm lost unless your gentleness vouch-safes" . . .

Tresham. . . . "To give a best of best accounts, yourself,

"Of me and my demerits." You are right!

He should have said what now I say for him.

Yon golden creature, will you help us all?

Here's Austin means to vouch for much, but
you

—You are . . . what Austin only knows!

Come up,

All three of us: she's in the library

No doubt, for the day's wearing fast. Precede!

Guendolen. Austin, how we must—!

Tresham. Must what? Must speak
truth,

Malignant tongue! Detect one fault in him!
I challenge you!

Guendolen. Witchcraft's a fault in him,

For you're bewitched.

Tresham. What's urgent we obtain

Is, that she soon receive him—say, tomorrow—

Next day at furthest.

Guendolen. Ne'er instruct me!

Tresham. Come!

—He's out of your good graces, since forsooth,

He stood not as he'd carry us by storm

With his perfections! You're for the composed

Manly assured becoming confidence!

—Get her to say, "to-morrow," and I'll give you . . .

I'll give you black Urganda, to be spoiled

With petting and snail-paces. Will you?
Come!

SCENE III.—MILDRED'S chamber. A painted window overlooks the park.
MILDRED and GUENDOLEN

Guendolen. Now, Mildred, spare those pains. I have not left

Our talkers in the library, and climbed

The wearisome ascent to this your bower
In company with you,—I have not dared . . .
Nay, worked such prodigies as sparing you
Lord Mertoun's pedigree before the flood,
Which Thorold seemed in very act to tell —Or bringing Austin to pluck up that most Firm-rooted heresy—your suitor's eyes,
He would maintain, were grey instead of blue—

I think I brought him to contrition!—Well,
I have not done such things, (all to deserve
A minute's quiet cousin's talk with you,
To be dismissed so coolly.

Mildred. Guendolen!

What have I done? what could suggest . . .

Guendolen. There, there!

Do I not comprehend you'd be alone
To throw those testimonies in a heap,
Thorold's enlargings, Austin's brevities,
With that poor silly heartless Guendolen's
Ill-timed misplaced attempted smartnesses—
And sift their sense out? now, I come to spare you

Nearly a whole night's labour. Ask and have!
Demand, be answered! Lack I ears and eyes?
Am I perplexed which side of the rock-table
The Conqueror dined on when he landed
first,

Lord Mertoun's ancestor was bidden take—
The bow-hand or the arrow-hand's great
meed?

Mildred, the Earl has soft blue eyes!

Mildred. My brother—

Did he . . . you said that he received him
well?

Guendolen. If I said only "well" I said not much.

Oh, stay—which brother?

Mildred. Thorold! who—who else?

Guendolen. Thorold (a secret) is too proud by half,—

Nay, hear me out—with us he's even gentler
Than we are with our birds. Of this great
House

The least retainer that e'er caught his glance
Would die for him, real dying—no mere talk:
And in the world, the court, if men would cite

The perfect spirit of honour, Thorold's name
Rises of its clear nature to their lips.

But he should take men's homage, trust in it,
And care no more about what drew it down.
He has desert, and that, acknowledgment;
Is he content?

Mildred. You wrong him, Guendolen.

Guendolen. He's proud, confess; so proud with brooding o'er

The light of his interminable line,
An ancestry with men all paladins,
And women all . . .

Mildred. Dear Guendolen, 'tis late!

When yonder purple pane the climbing moon
Pierces, I know 'tis midnight.

Guendolen. Well, that Thorold

Should rise up from such musings, and receive
One come audaciously to graft himself
Into this peerless stock, yet find no flaw,
No slightest spot in such an one . . .

Mildred. Who finds

A spot in Mertoun?

Guendolen. Not your brother; therefore,
Not the whole world.

Mildred. I am weary, Guendolen.

Bear with me!

Guendolen. I am foolish.

Mildred. Oh no, kind!

But I would rest.

Guendolen. Good night and rest to you!
I said how gracefully his mantle lay
Beneath the rings of his light hair?

Mildred. Brown hair.

Guendolen. Brown? why, it is brown: how could you know that?

Mildred. How? did not you—Oh, Austin
'twas, declared

His hair was light, not brown—my head!—
and look,

The moon-beam purpling the dark chamber!
Sweet,

Good night!

Guendolen. Forgive me—sleep the soundlier for me!

[Going, she turns suddenly.]

Mildred!

Perdition! all's discovered! Thorold finds —That the Earl's greatest of all grandmothers

Was grander daughter still—to that fair dame
Whose garter slipped down at the famous dance ! [Goes.

Mildred. Is she—can she be really gone
at last ?

My heart ! I shall not reach the window.
Needs

Must I have sinned much, so to suffer.

[She lifts the small lamp which is suspended before the Virgin's image in the window, and places it by the purple pane.

There !

[She returns to the seat in front.

Mildred and Mertoun ! Mildred, with consent

Of all the world and Thorold, Mertoun's bride !

Too late ! 'Tis sweet to think of, sweeter
still

To hope for, that this blessed end soothes up
The curse of the beginning ; but I know
It comes too late : 'twill sweetest be of all
To dream my soul away and die upon.

[A noise without.

The voice ! Oh why, why glided sin the snake

Into the paradise Heaven meant us both ?

[The window opens softly.

A low voice sings.

There's a woman like a dew-drop, she's so purer than the purest ;

And her noble heart's the noblest, yes, and her sure faith's the surest :

And her eyes are dark and humid, like the depth on depth of lustre

Hid i' the harebell, while her tresses, sunnier than the wild-grape cluster,

Gush in golden-tinted plenty down her neck's rose-misted marble :

Then her voice's music . . . call it the well's bubbling the bird's warble !

[A figure wrapped in a mantle appears at the window.

And this woman says, " My days were sunless and my nights were moonless,

" Parched the pleasant April herbage, and the lark's heart's outbreak tuneless,

*" If you loved me not !" And I who—(ah, for words of flame !) adore her,
Who am mad to lay my spirit prostrate palpably before her—*

[He enters, approaches her seat, and bends over her.

I may enter at her portal soon, as now her lattice takes me,

*And by noontide as by midnight make her mine,
as hers she makes me !*

[The Earl throws off his slouched hat and long cloak.

My very heart sings, so I sing, Beloved !

Mildred. Sit, Henry—do not take my hand !

Mertoun. 'Tis mine.

The meeting that appalled us both so much
Is ended.

Mildred. What begins now ?

Mertoun. Happiness

Such as the world contains not.

Mildred. That is it.

Our happiness would, as you say, exceed
The whole world's best of blisses : we—do we Deserve that ? Utter to your soul, what
mine

Long since, Beloved, has grown used to hear,
Like a death-knell, so much regarded once,
And so familiar now ; this will not be !

Mertoun. Oh, Mildred, have I met your brother's face ?

Compelled myself—if not to speak untruth,
Yet to disguise, to shun, to put aside
The truth, as—what had e'er prevailed on me
Save you, to venture ? Have I gained at last
Your brother, the one scarer of your dreams,
And waking thoughts' sole apprehension too ?
Does a new life, like a young sunrise, break
On the strange unrest of our night, confused
With rain and stormy flaw—and will you see
No dripping blossoms, no fire-tinted drops
On each live spray, no vapour steaming up,
And no expressless glory in the East ?

When I am by you, to be ever by you,
When I have won you and may worship you,
Oh, Mildred, can you say "this will not be" ?

Mildred. Sin has surprised us, so will punishment.

Resolved the treasure of a first and last Heart's love shall have been bartered at its
worth,

—That now I think upon your purity
And utter ignorance of guilt—your own
Or other's guilt—the girlish undisguised
Delight at a strange novel prize—(I talk
A silly language, but interpret, you !)
If I, with fancy at its full, and reason
Scarce in its germ, enjoined you secrecy,
If you had pity on my passion, pity
On my protested sickness of the soul
To sit beside you, hear you breathe, and watch
Your eyelids and the eyes beneath—if you Accorded gifts and knew not they were gifts—

If I grew mad at last with enterprise
And must behold my beauty in her bower
Or perish—(I was ignorant of even My own desires—what then were you?) if sorrow—

Sin—if the end came—must I now renounce
My reason, blind myself to light, say truth
Is false and lie to God and my own soul?
Contempt were all of this !

Mildred. Do you believe . . .
Or, Henry, I'll not wrong you—you believe
That I was ignorant. I scarce grieve o'er
The past. We'll love on ; you will love me
still.

Mertoun. Oh, to love less what one has injured ! Dove,
Whose pinion I have rashly hurt, my breast—Shall my heart's warmth not nurse thee into
strength ?

Flower I have crushed, shall I not care for thee?
Bloom o'er my crest, my fight-mark and device !

Mildred, I love you and you love me.

Mildred. Go !
Be that your last word. I shall sleep to-night.

Mertoun. This is not our last meeting ?

Mildred. One night more.

Mertoun. And then—think, then !

Mildred. Then, no
sweet courtship-days,
No dawning consciousness of love for us,
No strange and palpitating births of sense

From words and looks, no innocent fears and hopes,

Reserves and confidences : morning's over !
Mertoun. How else should love's perfected noontide follow ?

All the dawn promised shall the day perform Mildred. So may it be ! but—

You are cautious, Love ?
Are sure that unobserved you scaled the walls ?

Mertoun. Oh, trust me ! Then our final meeting's fixed
To-morrow night ?

Mildred. Farewell ! Stay, Henry
. . . wherefore ?

His foot is on the yew-tree bough ; the turf
Receives him : now the moonlight as he runs
Embraces him—but he must go—is gone.

Ah, once again he turns—thanks, thanks, my
Love !

He's gone. Oh, I'll believe him every word !
I was so young, I loved him so, I had
No mother, God forgot me, and I fell.

There may be pardon yet : all's doubt beyond
Surely the bitterness of death is past.

ACT II.

SCENE.—The Library.

Enter LORD TRESHAM, hastily.

Tresham. This way ! In, Gerard, quick !

[As GERARD enters, TRESHAM secures the door.

Now speak ! or, wait—
I'll bid you speak directly. [Sits himself.

Now repeat
Firmly and circumstantially the tale
You just now told me ; it eludes me ; either
I did not listen, or the half is gone Away from me. How long have you lived
here ?

Here in my house, your father kept our woods
Before you ?

Gerard. —As his father did, my lord.
I have been eating, sixty years almost,
Your bread.

Tresham. Yes, yes. You ever were of all

The servants in my father's house, I know,
The trusted one. You'll speak the truth.

Gerard. I'll speak
God's truth. Night after night . . .

Tresham. Since when?

Gerard. At least
A month—each midnight has some man access
To Lady Mildred's chamber.

Tresham. Tush, "access"—
No wide words like "access" to me!

Gerard. He runs
Along the woodside, crosses to the South,
Takes the left tree that ends the avenue . . .

Tresham. The last great yew-tree?

Gerard. You might stand upon
The main boughs like a platform. Then
he . . .

Tresham. Quick!

Gerard. Climbs up, and, where they lessen at the top,

—I cannot see distinctly, but he throws,
I think—for this I do not vouch—a line
That reaches to the lady's casement—

Tresham. —Which
He enters not! Gerard, some wretched fool
Dares pry into my sister's privacy!
When such are young, it seems a precious thing
To have approached,—to merely have approached,
Got sight of, the abode of her they set Their frantic thoughts upon. He does not enter?

Gerard?

Gerard. There is a lamp that's full i' the midst,
Under a red square in the painted glass
Of Lady Mildred's . . .

Tresham. Leave that name out! Well?
That lamp?

Gerard. —Is moved at midnight higher up
To one pane—a small dark-blue pane; he waits
For that among the boughs: at sight of that,
I see him, plain as I see you, my lord,
Open the lady's casement, enter there . . .

Tresham. —And stay?

Gerard. An hour, two hours.

Tresham. And this you saw
Once?—twice?—quick!

Gerard. Twenty times.

Tresham. And what brings you
Under the yew-trees?

Gerard. The first night I left
My range so far, to track the stranger stag
That broke the pale, I saw the man.

Tresham. Yet sent
No cross-bow shaft through the marauder?

Gerard. But
He came, my lord, the first time he was seen,
In a great moonlight, light as any day,
From Lady Mildred's chamber.

Tresham [after a pause]. You have no cause

—Who could have cause to do my sister
wrong?

Gerard. Oh, my lord, only once—let me
this once

Speak what is on my mind! Since first I noted

All this, I've groaned as if a fiery net
Plucked me this way and that—fire if I turned
To her, fire if I turned to you, and fire
If down I flung myself and strove to die.
The lady could not have been seven years old

When I was trusted to conduct her safe
Through the deer-herd to stroke the snow-white fawn

I brought to eat bread from her tiny hand
Within a month. She ever had a smile
To greet me with—she . . . if it could undo
What's done, to lop each limb from off this trunk . . .

All that is foolish talk, not fit for you—
I mean, I could not speak and bring her hurt For Heaven's compelling. But when I was fixed

To hold my peace, each morsel of your food
Eaten beneath your roof, my birth-place
too,

Choked me. I wish I had grown mad in doubts

What it behoved me do. This morn it seemed

Either I must confess to you, or die:

Now it is done, I seem the vilest worm
That crawls, to have betrayed my lady.

Tresham. No—
 No, Gerard !
Gerard. Let me go !
Tresham. A man, you say :
 What man ? Young ? Not a vulgar hind ?
 What dress ?
Gerard. A slouched hat and a large dark foreign cloak
 Wraps his whole form ; even his face is hid ;
 But I should judge him young : no hind, be
 sure !
Tresham. Why ?
Gerard. He is ever armed : his sword projects
 Beneath the cloak.
Tresham. Gerard,—I will not say
 No word, no breath of this !
Gerard. Thanks, thanks, my lord !
 [Goes.]
Tresham [paces the room. After a pause.]
 Oh, thought's absurd !—as with some monstrous fact
 Which, when ill thoughts beset us, seems to give
 Merciful God that made the sun and stars,
 The waters and the green delights of earth,
 The lie ! I apprehend the monstrous fact—
 Yet know the maker of all worlds is good,
 And yield my reason up, inadequate
 To reconcile what yet I do behold—Blasting my sense ! There's cheerful day outside :
 This is my library, and this the chair
 My father used to sit in carelessly
 After his soldier-fashion, while I stood
 Between his knees to question him : and here
 Gerard our grey retainer,—as he says,
 Fed with our food, from sire to son, an age,—
 Has told a story—I am to believe !
 That Mildred . . . oh, no, no ! both tales are true,
 Her pure cheek's story and the forester's !
 Would she, or could she, err—much less,
 confound
 All guilts of treachery, of craft, of . . .
 Heaven
 Keep me within its hand !—I will sit here

Until thought settle and I see my course.
 Avert, oh God, only this woe from me !
 [As he sinks his head between his arms on the table, GUENDOLEN'S voice is heard at the door.]
 Lord Tresham ! [She knocks.] Is Lord
 Tresham there ?
 [TRESHAM, hastily turning, pulls down the first book above him and opens it.]
Tresham. Come in ! [She enters.]
 Ha, Guendolen !—good morning.
Guendolen. Nothing more ?
Tresham. What should I say more ?
Guendolen. Pleasant question ! more ?
 This more. Did I besiege poor Mildred's brain
 Last night till close on morning with "the Earl,"
 "The Earl"—whose worth did I asseverate
 Till I am very fain to hope that . . . Thorold,
 What is all this ? You are not well !
Tresham. Who, I ?
 You laugh at me.
Guendolen. Has what I'm fain to hope, Arrived then ? Does that huge tome show some blot
 In the Earl's 'scutcheon come no longer back
 Than Arthur's time ?
Tresham. When left you Mildred's chamber ?
Guendolen. Oh, late enough, I told you !
 The main thing
 To ask is, how I left her chamber,—sure,
 Content yourself, she'll grant this paragon
 Of Earls no such ungracious . . .
Tresham. Send her here !
Guendolen. Thorold ?
Tresham. I mean—acquaint her, Guendolen,
 —But mildly !
Guendolen. Mildly ?
Tresham. Ah, you guessed aright !
 I am not well : there is no hiding it.
 But tell her I would see her at her leisure—
 That is, at once ! here in the library !
 The passage in that old Italian book
 We hunted for so long is found, say, found—

Tresham. This, Mildred, is it for !
Or, no, I cannot go to it so soon !
That's one of many points my haste left out—
Each day, each hour throws forth its silk-slight film
Between the being tied to you by birth,
And you, until those slender threads compose
A web that shrouds her daily life of hopes
And fears and fancies, all her life, from yours :
So close you live and yet so far apart !
And must I rend this web, tear up, break
down
The sweet and palpitating mystery
That makes hersacred? You—for you I mean,
Shall I speak, shall I not speak ?

Mildred. Speak !

Tresham. I will.
Is there a story men could—any man Could tell of you, you would conceal from
me ?

I'll never think there's falsehood on that lip.
Say "There is no such story men could tell,"
And I'll believe you, though I disbelieve
The world—the world of better men than I,
And women such as I suppose you. Speak !
[After a pause.] Not speak? Explain then !

Clear it up then ! Move
Some of the miserable weight away
That presses lower than the grave ! Not speak?
Some of the dead weight, Mildred ! Ah, if I Could bring myself to plainly make their
charge

Against you ! Must I, Mildred? Silent still?
[After a pause.] Is there a gallant that has night by night

Admittance to your chamber ?

[After a pause.] Then, his name !

Till now, I only had a thought for you :
But now,—his name !

Mildred. Thorold, do you devise
Fit expiation for my guilt, if fit
There be ! 'Tis nought to say that I'll endure

And bless you,—that my spirit yearns to purge

Her stains off in the fierce renewing fire :

But do not plunge me into other guilt !

Oh, guilt enough ! I cannot tell his name.

Tresham. Then judge yourself ! How should I act? Pronounce !

Mildred. Oh, Thorold, you must never tempt me thus !

To die here in this chamber by that sword
Would seem like punishment : so should I glide,

Like an arch-cheat, into extremest bliss !
'Twere easily arranged for me : but you—
What would become of you ?

Tresham. And what will now Become of me? I'll hide your shame and
mine

From every eye ; the dead must heave their hearts

Under the marble of our chapel-floor ;
They cannot rise and blast you. You may wed

Your paramour above our mother's tomb ;
Our mother cannot move from 'neath your
foot.

We too will somehow wear this one day out :
But with to-morrow hastens here—the Earl !
The youth without suspicion face can come From Heaven, and heart from . . . whence proceed such hearts ?

I have despatched last night at your command

A missive bidding him present himself
To-morrow—here—thus much is said ; the
rest

Is understood as if 'twere written down—
"His suit finds favour in your eyes." Now dictate

This morning's letter that shall countermand
Last night's—do dictate that !

Mildred. But, Thorold—
if I will receive him as I said ?

Tresham. The Earl ?

Mildred. I will receive him.

Tresham [starting up]. Ho there !
Guendolen !

GUENDOLEN and AUSTIN enter.

And, Austin, you are welcome, too ! Look
there !

The woman there !

Austin and Guendolen. How? Mildred?

Tresham. Mildred once !
Now the receiver night by night, when sleep
Blesses the inmates of her father's house,
—I say, the soft sly wanton that receives Her guilt's accomplice 'neath this roof which holds

You, Guendolen, you, Austin, and has held
A thousand Treshams—never one like her !
No lighter of the signal-lamp her quick
Foul breath near quenches in hot eagerness
To mix with breath as foul ! no loosener
O' the lattice, practised in the stealthy tread,
The low voice and the noiseless come-and-go !
Not one composer of the bacchant's mien
Into—what you thought Mildred's, in a word !
Know her !

Guendolen. Oh, Mildred, look to me, at least !
Thorold—she's dead, I'd say, but that she stands

Rigid as stone and whiter !

Tresham. You have heard . . .

Guendolen. Too much ! You must proceed no further.

Mildred. Yes—

Proceed ! All's truth. Go from me !

Tresham. All is truth,

She tells you ! Well, you know, or ought to
know,

All this I would forgive in her. I'd con
Each precept the harsh world enjoins, I'd take
Our ancestors' stern verdicts one by one,
I'd bind myself before them to exact
The prescribed vengeance—and one word of hers,

The sight of her, the bare least memory
Of Mildred, my one sister, my heart's pride
Above all prides, my all in all so long,
Would scatter every trace of my resolve.

What were it silently to waste away
And see her waste away from this day forth,
Two scathed things with leisure to repent,
And grow acquainted with the grave, and die
Tired out if not at peace, and be forgotten ?
It were not so impossible to bear.

But this—that, fresh from last night's pledge renewed

Of love with the successful gallant there,

She calmly bids me help her to entice,
Inveigle an unconscious trusting youth
Who thinks her all that's chaste and good and pure,

—Invites me to betray him . . . who so fit
As honour's self to cover shame's arch-deed ?
—That she'll receive Lord Mertoun—(her own phrase)—

This, who could bear ? Why, you have heard of thieves,
Stabbers, the earth's disgrace, who yet have laughed,

“Talk not to me of torture—I'll betray “No comrade I've pledged faith to !”—you have heard

Of wretched women—all but Mildreds—tied
By wild illicit ties to losels vile You'd tempt them to forsake ; and they'll reply

“Gold, friends, repute, I left for him, I find “In him, why should I leave him then for
gold,

“Repute or friends ?”—and you have felt your heart

Respond to such poor outcasts of the world
As to so many friends ; bad as you please, You've felt they were God's men and women
still,

So, not to be disowned by you. But she
That stands there, calmly gives her lover up
As means to wed the Earl that she may hide
Their intercourse the surelier : and, for this,
I curse her to her face before you all.

Shame hunt her from the earth ! Then Heaven do right

To both ! It hears me now—shall judge her then ! [As MILDRED faints and falls,

TRESHAM rushes out.

Austin. Stay, Tresham, we'll accompany
you !

Guendolen. We ?

What, and leave Mildred ? We ? Why, where's my place

But by her side, and where yours but by mine ?
Mildred—one word ! Only look at me, then !

Austin. No, Guendolen ! I echo Thorold's
voice.

She is unworthy to behold . . .

Guendolen. Us two?
 If you spoke on reflection, and if I Approved your speech—if you (to put the
 thing
 At lowest) you the soldier, bound to make The king's cause yours and fight for it, and throw
 Regard to others of its right or wrong,
 —If with a death-white woman you can help,
 Let alone sister, let alone a Mildred,
 You left her—or if I, her cousin, friend
 This morning, playfellow but yesterday,
 Who said, or thought at least a thousand
 times,
 “I'd serve you if I could,” should now face
 round
 And say, “Ah, that's to only signify “I'd serve you while you're fit to serve yourself:
 “So long as fifty eyes await the turn
 “Of yours to forestall its yet half-formed wish,
 “I'll proffer my assistance you'll not need—
 “When every tongue is praising you, I'll join “The praisers' chorus—when you're hemmed
 about
 “With lives between you and detraction—
 lives
 “To be laid down if a rude voice, rash eye,
 “Rough hand should violate the sacred ring “Their worship throws about you,—then
 indeed,
 “Who'll stand up for you stout as I?” If so
 We said, and so we did,—not Mildred there Would be unworthy to behold us both,
 But we should be unworthy, both of us,
 To be beheld by—by—your meanest dog,
 Which, if that sword were broken in your face Before a crowd, that badge torn off your
 breast,
 And you cast out with hooting and contempt,
 —Would push his way thro' all the hooters,
 gain
 Your side, go off with you and all your shame
 To the next ditch you choose to die in!
Austin,
 Do you love me? Here's Austin, Mildred, —here's
 Your brother says he does not believe half—

No, nor half that—of all he heard! He says,
 Look up and take his hand!

Austin. Look up and take
 My hand, dear Mildred!

Mildred. I—I was so young!
 Beside, I loved him, Thorold—and I had No mother; God forgot me: so, I fell.

Guendolen. Mildred!

Mildred. Require no further!
 Did I dream

That I could palliate what is done? All's true.
 Now, punish me! A woman takes my hand?
 Let go my hand! You do not know, I see.
 I thought that Thorold told you.

Guendolen. What is this?

Where start you to?

Mildred. Oh, Austin, loosen me!
 You heard the whole of it—your eyes were
 worse,

In their surprise, than Thorold's! Oh, unless
 You stay to execute his sentence, loose
 My hand! Has Thorold gone, and are you
 here?

Guendolen. Here, Mildred, we two friends of yours will wait

Your bidding; be you silent, sleep or muse!
 Only, when you shall want your bidding done,
 How can we do it if we are not by?

Here's Austin waiting patiently your will!
 One spirit to command, and one to love
 And to believe in it and do its best,

Poor as that is, to help it—why, the world
 Has been won many a time, its length and breadth,

By just such a beginning!

Mildred. I believe
 If once I threw my arms about your neck
 And sunk my head upon your breast, that I Should weep again.

Guendolen. Let go her hand now,
Austin!

Wait for me. Pace the gallery and think
 On the world's seemings and realities,
 Until I call you. [AUSTIN goes.]

Mildred. No—I cannot weep.
 No more tears from this brain—no sleep—no
 tears!

O Guendolen, I love you!

Were nothing: all men hope, and see their hopes

Frustrate, and grieve awhile, and hope anew.
But I . . . to hope that from a line like ours
No horrid prodigy like this would spring,
Were just as though I hoped that from these old
Confederates against the sovereign day,
Children of older and yet older sires,
Whose living coral berries dropped, as now
On me, on many a baron's surcoat once,
On many a beauty's whimple—would proceed
No poison-tree, to thrust, from hell its root,
Hither and thither its strange snaky arms.
Why came I here? What must I do? [A bell strikes.] A bell?

Midnight! and 'tis at midnight . . . Ah, I catch —Woods, river, plains, I catch your meaning now,

And I obey you! Hist! This tree will serve.

[He retires behind one of the trees.

After a pause, enter MERTOUN cloaked as before.

Mertoun. Not time! Beat out thy last voluptuous beat

Of hope and fear, my heart! I thought the clock

I' the chapel struck as I was pushing through
The ferns. And so I shall no more see rise
My love-star! Oh, no matter for the past!
So much the more delicious task to watch
Mildred revive: to pluck out, thorn by thorn,
All traces of the rough forbidden path
My rash love lured her to! Each day must see
Some fear of hers effaced, some hope renewed:
Then there will be surprises, unforeseen
Delights in store. I'll not regret the past.

[The light is placed above in the purple pane.

And see, my signal rises, Mildred's star!

I never saw it lovelier than now

It rises for the last time. If it sets,

'Tis that the re-assuring sun may dawn.

[As he prepares to ascend the last tree of the avenue, TRESHAM arrests his arm.

Unhand me—peasant, by your grasp! Here's gold.

'Twas a mad freak of mine. I said I'd pluck

A branch from the white-blossomed shrub beneath

The casement there. Take this, and hold your peace.

Tresham. Into the moonlight yonder, come with me!

Out of the shadow!

Mertoun. I am armed, fool!

Tresham. Yes,

Or no? You'll come into the light, or no?

My hand is on your throat—refuse!—

Mertoun. That voice!

Where have I heard . . . no—that was mild and slow.

I'll come with you. [They advance.

Tresham. You're armed: that's well.

Declare

Your name: who are you?

Mertoun. (Tresham!—she is lost!)

Tresham. Oh, silent? Do you know, you bear yourself

Exactly as, in curious dreams I've had
How felons, this wild earth is full of, look
When they're detected, still your kind has looked!

The bravo holds an assured countenance,

The thief is voluble and plausible,

But silently the slave of lust has crouched

When I have fancied it before a man.

Your name!

Mertoun. I do conjure Lord Tresham—ay,

Kissing his foot, if so I might prevail—

That he for his own sake forbear to ask

My name! As heaven's above, his future weal

Or woe depends upon my silence! Vain!

I read your white inexorable face.

Know me, Lord Tresham!

[He throws off his disguises.

Tresham. Mertoun!

[After a pause.] Draw now!

Mertoun. Hear me

But speak first!

Tresham. Not one least word on your life!

Be sure that I will strangle in your throat

The least word that informs me how you live

And yet seem what you seem! No doubt

'twas you

Taught Mildred still to keep that face and sin.
We should join hands in frantic sympathy
If you once taught me the unteachable,
Explained how you can live so, and so lie.
With God's help I retain, despite my sense,
The old belief—a life like yours is still Impossible. Now draw!

Mertoun. Not for my sake,
Do I entreat a hearing—for your sake,
And most, for her sake!

Tresham. Ha ha, what should I Know of your ways? A miscreant like your-
self,
How must one rouse his ire? A blow?—
that's pride
No doubt, to him! One spurns him, does one not?

Or sets the foot upon his mouth, or spits Into his face! Come! Which, or all of these?

Mertoun. 'Twixt him and me and Mildred,
Heaven be judge!

Can I avoid this? Have your will, my lord!

[He draws and, after a few passes, falls.]

Tresham. You are not hurt?

Mertoun. You'll hear me now!

Tresham. But rise!

Mertoun. Ah, Tresham, say I not "you'll hear me now!"

And what procures a man the right to speak
In his defence before his fellow man,
But—I suppose—the thought that presently
He may have leave to speak before his God
His whole defence?

Tresham. Not hurt? It cannot be!
You made no effort to resist me. Where Did my sword reach you? Why not have returned

My thrusts? Hurt where?

Mertoun. My lord—

Tresham. How young he is!

Mertoun. Lord Tresham, I am very young, and yet

I have entangled other lives with mine.
Do let me speak, and do believe my speech!
That when I die before you presently,— Tresham. Can you stay here till I return with help?

Mertoun. Oh, stay by me! When I was less than boy
I did you grievous wrong and knew it not—
Upon my honour, knew it not! Once known,
I could not find what seemed a better way
To right you than I took: my life—you feel
How less than nothing were the giving you
The life you've taken! But I thought my way

The better—only for your sake and hers:
And as you have decided otherwise,
Would I had an infinity of lives
To offer you! Now say—instruct me—think!
Can you, from the brief minutes I have left,
Eke out my reparation? Oh think—think!
For I must wring a partial—dare I say,
Forgiveness from you, ere I die?

Tresham. I do
Forgive you.

Mertoun. Wait and ponder that great word!
Because, if you forgive me, I shall hope
To speak to you of—Mildred!

Tresham. Mertoun, haste
And anger have undone us. 'Tis not you Should tell me for a novelty you're young,
Thoughtless, unable to recall the past.
Be but your pardon ample as my own!

Mertoun. Ah, Tresham, that a sword-stroke and a drop
Of blood or two, should bring all this about!
Why, 'twas my very fear of you, my love
Of you—(what passion like a boy's for one Like you?)—that ruined me! I dreamed of
you—

You, all accomplished, courted everywhere,
The scholar and the gentleman. I burned
To knit myself to you: but I was young,
And your surpassing reputation kept me
So far aloof! Oh, wherefore all that love?
With less of love, my glorious yesterday
Of praise and gentlest words and kindest
looks,

Had taken place perchance six months ago.
Even now, how happy we had been! And
yet

I know the thought of this escaped you,
Tresham!

Let me look up into your face; I feel

'Tis changed above me: yet my eyes are glazed.

Where? where?

[As he endeavours to raise himself, his eye catches the lamp.]

Ah, Mildred! What will

Mildred do?

Tresham, her life is bound up in the life
That's bleeding fast away! I'll live—must live,

There, if you'll only turn me I shall live
And save her! Tresham—oh, had you but heard!

Had you but heard! What right was yours to set

The thoughtless foot upon her life and mine,

And then say, as we perish, "Had I thought,
"All had gone otherwise"? We've sinned and die:

Never you sin, Lord Tresham! for you'll die,
And God will judge you.

Tresham. Yes, be satisfied!
That process is begun.

Mertoun. And she sits there Waiting for me! Now, say you this to her—
You, not another—say, I saw him die
As he breathed this, "I love her"—you don't know

What those three small words mean! Say, loving her

Lowers me down the bloody slope to death
With memories . . . I speak to her, not you,
Who had no pity, will have no remorse, Perchance intend her . . . Die along with
me,

Dear Mildred! 'tis so easy, and you'll 'scape
So much unkindness! Can I lie at rest,
With rude speech spoken to you, ruder
deeds

Done to you?—heartless men shall have my
heart,

And I tied down with grave-clothes and the worm,

Aware, perhaps, of every blow—oh God!—
Upon those lips—yet of no power to tear

The felon stripe by stripe! Die, Mildred!
Leave

Their honourable world to them! For God
We're good enough, though the world casts us out. [A whistle is heard.]

Tresham. Ho, Gerard!

Enter GERARD, AUSTIN and GUENDOLEN, with lights.

No one speak!

You see what's done.

I cannot bear another voice.

Mertoun. There's light—

Light all about me, and I move to it.

Tresham, did I not tell you—did you not Just promise to deliver words of mine
To Mildred?

Tresham. I will bear those words to her.

Mertoun. Now?

Tresham. Now. Lift you the body, and leave me

The head.

[As they have half raised MERTOUN, he turns suddenly.]

Mertoun. I knew they turned me: turn me not from her!

There! stay you! there! [Dies.]

Guendolen [after a pause]. Austin, remain
you here

With Thorold until Gerard comes with help:
Then lead him to his chamber. I must go
To Mildred.

Tresham. Guendolen, I hear each word
You utter. Did you hear him bid me give His message? Did you hear my promise? I,
And only I, see Mildred.

Guendolen. She will die.

Tresham. Oh no, she will not die! I dare not hope

She'll die. What ground have you to think she'll die?

Why, Austin's with you!

Austin. Had we but arrived
Before you fought!

Tresham. There was no fight at all He let me slaughter him—the boy! I'll
trust

The body there to you and Gerard—thus!
Now bear him on before me.

Austin. Whither bear him?

For once more reaching the relinquished prize!
How idle thoughts are, some men's, dying men's!

Mildred,—

Mildred. You call me kindlier by my name
Than even yesterday: what is in that?

Tresham. It weighs so much upon my mind
that I

This morning took an office not my own!
I might . . . of course, I must be glad or grieved,

Content or not, at every little thing
That touches you. I may with a wrung
heart

Even reprove you, Mildred; I did more:
Will you forgive me?

Mildred. Thorold? do you mock?
Or no . . . and yet you bid me . . . say that word!

Tresham. Forgive me, Mildred!—are you silent, Sweet?

Mildred [starting up]. Why does not
Henry Mertoun come to-night?
Are you, too, silent?

[Dashing his mantle aside, and pointing to his scabbard, which is empty.

Ah, this speaks for you!
You've murdered Henry Mertoun! Now proceed!

What is it I must pardon? This and all?
Well, I do pardon you—I think I do.
Thorold, how very wretched you must be!

Tresham. He bade me tell you . . .

Mildred. What I do forbid
Your utterance of! So much that you may tell

And will not—how you murdered him . . .
but, no!

You'll tell me that he loved me, never more Than bleeding out his life there: must I say
"Indeed," to that? Enough! I pardon you.

Tresham. You cannot, Mildred! for the harsh words, yes:

Of this last deed Another's judge: whose doom

I wait in doubt, despondency and fear.

Mildred. Oh, true! There's nought for me to pardon! True!

You loose my soul of all its cares at once.
Death makes me sure of him for ever! You Tell me his last words? He shall tell me
them,

And take my answer—not in words, but reading

Himself the heart I had to read him late,
Which death . . .

Tresham. Death? You are dying too? Well said

Of Guendolen! I dared not hope you'd die:
But she was sure of it.

Mildred. Tell Guendolen
I loved her, and tell Austin . . .

Tresham. Him you loved:
And me?

Mildred. Ah, Thorold! Was't not rashly
done

To quench that blood, on fire with youth and hope

And love of me—whom you loved too, and
yet

Suffered to sit here waiting his approach
While you were slaying him? Oh, doubtlessly
You let him speak his poor confused boy's
speech

—Do his poor utmost to disarm your wrath
And respite me!—you let him try to give
The story of our love and ignorance,
And the brief madness and the long despair—
You let him plead all this, because your code

Of honour bids you hear before you strike:
But at the end, as he looked up for life
Into your eyes—you struck him down!

Tresham. No! No!

Had I but heard him—had I let him speak Half the truth—less—had I looked long at
him

I had desisted! Why, as he lay there,
The moon on his flushed cheek, I gathered all
The story ere he told it: I saw through
The troubled surface of his crime and yours

A depth of purity immovable,
Had I but glanced, where all seemed turbidest
Had gleamed some inlet to the calm beneath:
I would not glance: my punishment's at
hand.

There, Mildred, is the truth ! and you—say
on—

You curse me ?

Mildred. As I dare approach that Heaven
Which has not bade a living thing despair,
Which needs no code to keep its grace from
stain,

But bids the vilest worm that turns on it
Desist and be forgiven,—I—forgive not,
But bless you, Thorold, from my soul of souls !

[Falls on his neck.]

There ! Do not think too much upon the past !
The cloud that's broke was all the same a cloud
While it stood up between my friend and you ;
You hurt him 'neath its shadow : but is that
So past retrieve ? I have his heart, you know ;
I may dispose of it : I give it you !

It loves you as mine loves ! Confirm me,
Henry ! [Dies.]

Tresham. I wish thee joy, Beloved ! I am glad

In thy full gladness !

Guendolen [without]. Mildred ! Tresham !
[Entering with AUSTIN.] Thorold,
I could desist no longer. Ah, she swoons !
That's well.

Tresham. Oh, better far than that !

Guendolen. She's dead !

Let me unlock her arms !

Tresham. She threw them thus
About my neck, and blessed me, and then died :

You'll let them stay now, Guendolen !

Austin. Leave her
And look to him ! What ails you, Thorold ?

Guendolen. White
As she, and whiter ! Austin ! quick—this side !

Austin. A froth is oozing through his clenched teeth ;

Both lips, where they're not bitten through,
are black :

Speak, dearest Thorold !

Tresham. Something does weigh down
My neck beside her weight : thanks : I should fall

But for you, Austin, I believe !—there, there,
'Twill pass away soon !—ah,—I had forgotten :

I am dying.

Guendolen. Thorold—Thorold—why was
this ?

Tresham. I said, just as I drank the poison
off,

The earth would be no longer earth to me,
The life out of all life was gone from me.
There are blind ways provided, the foredone
Heart-weary player in this pageant-world
Drops out by, letting the main masque defile
By the conspicuous portal : I am through—Just through !

Guendolen. Don't leave him, Austin !
Death is close.

Tresham. Already Mildred's face is peacefuller.

I see you, Austin—feel you : here's my hand,
Put yours in it—you, Guendolen, yours too !
You're lord and lady now—you're Treshams ;
name

And fame are yours : you hold our 'scutcheon
up.

Austin, no blot on it ! You see how blood Must wash one blot away : the first blot
came

And the first blood came. To the vain world's eye

All's gules again : no care to the vain world,
From whence the red was drawn !

Austin. No blot shall come !

Tresham. I said that : yet it did come.
Should it come,

Vengeance is God's, not man's. Remember me ! [Dies.]

Guendolen [letting fall the pulseless arm].
Ah, Thorold, we can but—remember
you !

COLOMBE'S BIRTHDAY;

A PLAY.

1844.

NO ONE LOVES AND HONOURS BARRY CORNWALL MORE THAN DOES ROBERT BROWNING; WHO, HAVING NOTHING BETTER THAN THIS PLAY
TO GIVE HIM IN PROOF OF IT, MUST SAY SO.

LONDON: 1844.

COLOMBE'S BIRTHDAY.

Ivy and violet, what do ye here
With blossom and shoot in the warm spring-weather,
Hiding the arms of Monchenci and Vere?
—Hammer.

PERSONS.

COLOMBE OF RAVESTEIN, Duchess of Juliers and Cleves.

SABYNE, ADOLF, her attendants.

GUIBERT, GAUCELME, MAUFROY, CLUG-NET, courtiers.

VALENCE, advocate of Cleves.

PRINCE BERTHOLD, claimant of the Duchy.

MELCHIOR, his confidant.

PLACE.—The Palace at Juliers.

TIME, 16 —.

ACT I.

MORNING.

SCENE.—A corridor leading to the Audience-chamber.

GAUCELME, CLUGNET, MAUFROY *and other
Courtiers, round GUIBERT, who is silently reading a paper: as he drops it at the end—*

Guibert. That this should be her birthday; and the day
We all invested her, twelve months ago,

As the late Duke's true heiress and our liege;
And that this also must become the day . . .

Oh, miserable lady!

1st Courtier. Ay, indeed?

2nd Courtier. Well, Guibert?

3rd Courtier. But your news, my friend, your news!

The sooner, friend, one learns Prince Berthold's pleasure,

The better for us all: how writes the Prince?
Give me! I'll read it for the common good.

Guibert. In time, sir,—but till time comes, pardon me!

Our old Duke just disclosed his child's retreat,
Declared her true succession to his rule,
And died: this birthday was the day, last
year,

We convoyed her from Castle Ravestein—
That sleeps out trustfully its extreme age
On the Meuse' quiet bank, where she lived queen

Over the water-buds,—to Juliers' court
With joy and bustle. Here again we stand:
Sir Gaucelme's buckle's constant to his cap:
To-day's much such another sunny day!

Gaucelme. Come, Guibert, this outgrows a jest, I think!

You're hardly such a novice as to need
The lesson, you pretend.

Guibert. What lesson, sir?

That everybody, if he'd thrive at court,
Should, first and last of all, look to himself?

That one, confessed her father's cousin's
child,
And, she away, indisputable heir,
Against our choice protesting and the Duke's, Claimed Juliers?—nor, as he preferred his
claim,
That first this, then another potentate,
Inclined to its allowance?—I or you,
Or any one except the lady's self?
Oh, it had been the direst cruelty
To break the business to her! Things might
change :
At all events, we'd see next masque at end,
Next mummery over first : and so the edge
Was taken off sharp tidings as they came,
Till here's the Prince upon us, and there's she —Wreathing her hair, a song between her lips,
With just the faintest notion possible
That some such claimant earns a livelihood
About the world, by feigning grievances—
Few pay the story of, but grudge its price,
And fewer listen to, a second time.
Your method proves a failure; now try mine!
And, since this must be carried . . .
Guibert [snatching the paper from him].
By your leave!
Your zeal transports you! 'Twill not serve the Prince
So much as you expect, this course you'd take.
If she leaves quietly her palace,—well;
But if she died upon its threshold,—no :
He'd have the trouble of removing her.
Come, gentles, we're all—what the devil knows!
You, Gaucelme, won't lose character, beside :
You broke your father's heart superiorly
To gather his succession—never blush!
You're from my province, and, be comforted,
They tell of it with wonder to this day.
You can afford to let your talent sleep.
We'll take the very worst supposed, as true :
There, the old Duke knew, when he hid his
child
Among the river-flowers at Ravestein,
With whom the right lay! Call the Prince our Duke!
There, she's no Duchess, she's no anything

More than a young maid with the bluest eyes :
And now, sirs, we'll not break this young maid's heart
Coolly as Gaucelme could and would! No
haste!
His talent's full-blown, ours but in the bud :
We'll not advance to his perfection yet—
Will we, Sir Maufroy? See, I've ruined
Maufroy
For ever as a courtier!
Gaucelme. Here's a coil!
And, count us, will you? Count its residue,
This boasted convoy, this day last year's crowd!
A birthday, too, a gratulation day!
I'm dumb : bid that keep silence!
Maufroy and others. Eh, Sir Guibert?
He's right : that does say something : that's bare truth.
Ten—twelve, I make : a perilous dropping off!
Guibert. Pooh—is it audience hour? The vestibule
Swarms too, I wager, with the common sort
That want our privilege of entry here.
Gaucelme. Adolf! [Re-enter ADOLF.]
Who's outside?
Guibert. Oh, your looks suffice!
Nobody waiting?
Maufroy [looking through the door-folds].
Scarce our number!
Guibert. 'Sdeath!
Nothing to beg for, to complain about?
It can't be! Ill news spreads, but not so fast
As thus to frighten all the world!
Gaucelme. The world
Lives out of doors, sir—not with you and me
By presence-chamber porches, state-room
stairs,
Wherever warmth's perpetual : outside's free
To every wind from every compass-point,
And who may get nipped needs be weatherwise.
The Prince comes and the lady's People go ;
The snow-goose settles down, the swallows flee—
Why should they wait for winter-time? 'Tis instinct.
Don't you feel somewhat chilly?

Guibert. That's their craft ?
 And last year's crowd-ers-round and criers-forth
 That strewed the garlands, overarched the roads,
 Lighted the bonfires, sang the loyal songs !
 Well 'tis my comfort, you could never call me
 The People's Friend ! The People keep their word—
 I keep my place : don't doubt I'll entertain
 The People when the Prince comes, and the People
 Are talked of ! Then, their speeches—no one tongue
 Found respite, not a pen had holiday
 —For they wrote, too, as well as spoke,
 these knaves !
 Now see : we tax and tithe them, pill and poll,
 They wince and fret enough, but pay they must
 —We manage that,—so, pay with a good
 grace
 They might as well, it costs so little more.
 But when we've done with taxes, meet folk next
 Outside the toll-booth and the rating-place,
 In public—there they have us if they will,
 We're at their mercy after that, you see !
 For one tax not ten devils could extort—
 Over and above necessity, a grace ;
 This prompt disbosoming of love, to wit—
 Their vine-leaf wrappage of our tribute penny,
 And crowding attestation, all works well.
 Yet this precisely do they thrust on us !
 These cappings quick, these crook-and-cring-ings low,
 Hand to the heart, and forehead to the knee,
 With grin that shuts the eyes and opes the mouth—
 So tender they their love ; and, tender made,
 Go home to curse us, the first doit we ask.
 As if their souls were any longer theirs !
 As if they had not given ample warrant
 To who should clap a collar on their neck,
 Rings in their nose, a goad to either flank,
 And take them for the brute they boast
 themselves !
 Stay—there's a bustle at the outer door—

And somebody entreating . . . that's my name !
 Adolf,—I heard my name !
Adolf. 'Twas probably
 The suitor.
Guibert. Oh, there is one ?
Adolf. With a suit
 He'd fain enforce in person.
Guibert. The good heart —And the great fool ! Just ope the middoor's fold !
 Is that a lappet of his cloak, I see ?
Adolf. If it bear plenteous sign of travel
 . . . ay,
 The very cloak my comrades tore !
Guibert. Why tore ?
Adolf. He seeks the Duchess' presence in that trim :
 Since daybreak, was he posted hereabouts
 Lest he should miss the moment.
Guibert. Where's he now ?
Adolf. Gone for a minute possibly, not
 more :
 They have ado enough to thrust him back.
Guibert. Ay—but my name, I caught ?
Adolf. Oh, sir—he said
 —What was it ?—You had known him formerly,
 And, he believed, would help him did you guess
 He waited now ; you promised him as much :
 The old plea ! 'Faith, he's back,—renews
 the charge !
 [Speaking at the door.] So long as the man parleys, peace outside—
 Nor be too ready with your halberts, there !
Gaucelme. My horse bespattered, as he blocked the path
 A thin sour man, not unlike somebody.
Adolf. He holds a paper in his breast, whereon
 He glances when his cheeks flush and his
 brow
 At each repulse—
Gaucelme. I noticed he'd a brow.
Adolf. So glancing, he grows calmer, leans awhile
 Over the balustrade, adjusts his dress,

And presently turns round, quiet again,
With some new pretext for admittance.—

Back !

[To GUIBERT.]—Sir, he has seen you ! Now cross halberts ! Ha—

Pascal is prostrate—there lies Fabian too !
No passage ! Whither would the madman
press ?

Close the doors quick on me !

Guibert. Too late ! He's here.

Enter, hastily and with discomposed dress, VALENCE.

Valence. Sir Guibert, will you help me ?—
me, that come

Charged by your townsmen, all who starve
at Cleves,

To represent their heights and depths of woe
Before our Duchess and obtain relief !

Such errands barricade such doors, it seems :
But not a common hindrance drives me back

On all the sad yet hopeful faces, lit
With hope for the first time, which sent me
forth.

Cleves, speak for me ! Cleves' men and women, speak !

Who followed me—your strongest—many a mile

That I might go the fresher from their ranks,
—Who sit—your weakest—by the city gates,

To take me fuller of what news I bring

As I return—for I must needs return !

—Can I ? 'Twere hard, no listener for their
wrongs,

To turn them back upon the old despair—

Harder, Sir Guibert, than imploring thus—

So, I do—any way you please—implore !

If you . . . but how should you remember
Cleves ?

Yet they of Cleves remember you so well !

Ay, comment on each trait of you they keep,
Your words and deeds caught up at second

hand,—

Proud, I believe, at bottom of their hearts,

O' the very levity and recklessness

Which only prove that you forget their wrongs.

Cleves, the grand town, whose men and women starve,

Is Cleves forgotten ? Then, remember me !
You promised me that you would help me
once,

For other purpose : will you keep your word ?

Guibert. And who may you be, friend ?

Valence. Valence of Cleves.

Guibert. Valence of . . . not the advocate of Cleves,

I owed my whole estate to, three years back ?

Ay, well may you keep silence ! Why, my lords,

You've heard, I'm sure, how, Pentecost
three years,

I was so nearly ousted of my land

By some knave's-pretext—(eh ? when you refused me

Your ugly daughter, Clugnet !)—and you've heard

How I recovered it by miracle

—(When I refused her !) Here's the very
friend,

—Valence of Cleves, all parties have to thank !

Nay, Valence, this procedure's vile in you !

I'm no more grateful than a courtier should,

But politic am I—I bear a brain,

Can cast about a little, might require

Your services a second time. I tried

To tempt you with advancement here to court

—“No !”—well, for curiosity at least

To view our life here—“No !”—our Duchess,
then,—

A pretty woman's worth some pains to see,

Nor is she spoiled, I take it, if a crown

Complete the forehead pale and tresses pure . . .

Valence. Our city trusted me its miseries,
And I am come.

Guibert. So much for taste ! But “come,”—

So may you be, for anything I know,

To beg the Pope's cross, or Sir Clugnet's daughter,

And with an equal chance you get all three.

If it was ever worth your while to come,

Was not the proper way worth finding too ?

Valence. Straight to the palace-portal, sir,
I came—

Guibert. —And said ?—

Adolf. Her Grace receives the court.

Guibert [aside]. Now, sursum corda, quoth the mass-priest! Do—

Whoever's my kind saint, do let alone
These pushings to and fro, and pullings
back;

Peaceably let me hang o' the devil's arm
The downward path, if you can't pluck me off
Completely! Let me live quite his, or yours!
[The Courtiers begin to range themselves, and move toward the door.]

After me, Valence! So, our famous Cleves Lacks bread? Yet don't we gallants buy their lace?

And dear enough—it beggars me, I know,
To keep my very gloves fringed properly.
This, Valence, is our Great State Hall you
cross;

Yon grey urn's veritable marcasite,
The Pope's gift: and those salvers testify
The Emperor. Presently you'll set your
foot

. . . But you don't speak, friend Valence!

Valence. I shall speak.

Gaucelme [aside to GUIBERT]. Guibert—it were no such ungraceful thing

If you and I, at first, seemed horror-struck With the bad news. Look here, what you shall do.

Suppose you, first, clap hand to sword and cry “Yield strangers our allegiance? First I'll perish

“Beside your Grace!”—and so give me the cue
To . . .

Guibert. —Clap your hand to note-book and jot down

That to regale the Prince with? I conceive.
[To VALENCE.] Do, Valence, speak, or I shall half suspect

You're plotting to supplant us, me the first,
I' the lady's favour! Is't the grand harangue
You mean to make, that thus engrosses
you?

—Which of her virtues you'll apostrophize?
Or is't the fashion you aspire to start,
Of that close-curved, not unbecoming hair?
Or what else ponder you?

Valence. My townsmen's wrongs.

ACT II.

NOON.

SCENE.—The Presence-chamber.The DUCHESS and SABYNE.

The Duchess. Announce that I am ready for the court!

Sabyne. 'Tis scarcely audience-hour, I think; your Grace

May best consult your own relief, no doubt,
And shun the crowd: but few can have arrived.

The Duchess. Let those not yet arrived, then, keep away!

'Twas me, this day last year at Ravestein,
You hurried. It has been full time, beside,
This half-hour. Do you hesitate?

Sabyne. Forgive me!

The Duchess. Stay, Sabyne; let me hasten to make sure

Of one true thanker: here with you begins
My audience, claim you first its privilege!
It is my birth's event they celebrate:

You need not wish me more such happy days,
But—ask some favour! Have you none to ask?
Has Adolf none, then? this was far from least

Of much I waited for impatiently,
Assure yourself! It seemed so natural
Your gift, beside this bunch of river-bells,

Should be the power and leave of doing good
To you, and greater pleasure to myself.
You ask my leave to-day to marry Adolf?

The rest is my concern.

Sabyne. Your Grace is ever
Our lady of dear Ravestein,—but, for Adolf . . .

The Duchess. “But”? You have not, sure, changed in your regard
And purpose towards him?

Sabyne. We change?

The Duchess. Well then? Well?

Sabyne. How could we two be happy, and,
most like,
Leave Juliers, when—when . . . but 'tis audience-time!

The Duchess. "When, if you left me, I were left indeed!"

Would you subjoin that?—Bid the court approach!

—Why should we play thus with each other, Sabyne?

Do I not know, if courtiers prove remiss, If friends detain me, and get blame for it, There is a cause? Of last year's fervid throng Scarce one half comes now.

Sabyne [aside]. One half? No, alas!

The Duchess. So can the mere suspicion of a cloud

Over my fortunes, strike each loyal heart. They've heard of this Prince Berthold; and, forsooth,

Some foolish arrogant pretence he makes, May grow more foolish and more arrogant, They please to apprehend! I thank their love.

Admit them!

Sabyne [aside]. How much has she really learned?

The Duchess. Surely, whoever's absent, Tristan waits?

—Or at least Romuald, whom my father raised From nothing—come, he's faithful to me, come!

(Sabyne, I should but be the prouder—yes, The fitter to comport myself aright)

Not Romuald? Xavier—what said he to that?

For Xavier hates a parasite, I know!

[SABYNE goes out.]

The Duchess. Well, sunshine's everywhere, and summer too.

Next year 'tis the old place again, perhaps—The water-breeze again, the birds again.

—It cannot be! It is too late to be!

What part had I, or choice in all of it?

Hither they brought me; I had not to think Nor care, concern myself with doing good

Or ill, my task was just—to live,—to live, And, answering ends there was no need explain,

To render Juliers happy—so they said.

All could not have been falsehood: some was love,

And wonder and obedience. I did all They looked for: why then cease to do it now?

Yet this is to be calmly set aside, And—ere next birthday's dawn, for aught I know,

Things change, a claimant may arrive, and I . . .

It cannot nor it shall not be! His right? Well then, he has the right, and I have not,

—But who bade all of you surround my life And close its growth up with your ducal crown

Which, plucked off rudely, leaves me perishing?

I could have been like one of you,—loved, hoped,

Feared, lived and died like one of you—but you

Would take that life away and give me this, And I will keep this! I will face you!

Come!

Enter the COURTIERs and VALENCE.

The Courtiers. Many such happy mornings to your Grace!

The Duchess [aside, as they pay their devoir]. The same words, the same faces,—the same love!

I have been overfearful. These are few; But these, at least, stand firmly: these are mine.

As many come as may; and if no more, 'Tis that these few suffice—they do suffice!

What succour may not next year bring me? Plainly,

I feared too soon. [To the Courtiers.] I thank you, sirs: all thanks!

Valence [aside, as the DUCHESS passes from one group to another, conversing]. 'Tis she—the vision this day last year brought,

When, for a golden moment at our Cleves, She tarried in her progress hither. Cleves

Chose me to speak its welcome, and I spoke —Not that she could have noted the recluse —Ungainly, old before his time—who gazed. Well, Heaven's gifts are not wasted, and that gaze

Kept, and shall keep me to the end, her own!

She was above it—but so would not sink
My gaze to earth! The People caught it,
hers—

Thenceforward, mine; but thus entirely mine,
Who shall affirm, had she not raised my soul Ere she retired and left me—them? She turns—

There's all her wondrous face at once! The ground

Reels and . . . [suddenly occupying himself with his paper]

These wrongs of theirs I have to plead!
The Duchess [to the Courtiers]. Nay, compliment enough! and kindness' self Should pause before it wish me more such years.

'Twas fortunate that thus, ere youth escaped,
I tasted life's pure pleasure—one such, pure,
Is worth a thousand, mixed—and youth's for pleasure:

Mine is received; let my age pay for it.

Gaucelme. So, pay, and pleasure paid for,
thinks your Grace,
Should never go together?

Guibert. How, Sir Gaucelme?
Hurry one's feast down unenjoyingly
At the snatched breathing-intervals of work?
As good you saved it till the dull day's-end
When, stiff and sleepy, appetite is gone.

Eat first, then work upon the strength of food!

The Duchess. True: you enable me to risk
my future,

By giving me a past beyond recall.

I lived, a girl, one happy leisure year:

Let me endeavour to be the Duchess now!

And so,—what news, Sir Guibert, spoke you of?

[As they advance a little, and

GUIBERT speaks—

—That gentleman?

Valence [aside]. I feel her eyes on me.

Guibert [to VALENCE]. The Duchess, sir, inclines to hear your suit.

Advance! He is from Cleves.

Valence [coming forward. Aside]. Their wrongs—their wrongs!

The Duchess. And you, sir, are from Cleves? How fresh in mind,

The hour or two I passed at queenly Cleves!
She entertained me bravely, but the best
Of her good pageant seemed its standers-by
With insuppressive joy on every face!

What says my ancient famous happy Cleves?

Valence. Take the truth, lady—you are made for truth!

So think my friends: nor do they less deserve
The having you to take it, you shall think,

When you know all—nay, when you only know
How, on that day you recollect at Cleves,

When the poor acquiescing multitude

Who thrust themselves with all their woes
apart

Into unnoticed corners, that the few,
Their means sufficed to muster trappings for,

Might fill the foreground, occupy your sight
With joyous faces fit to bear away

And boast of as a sample of all Cleves

—How, when to daylight these crept out
once more,

Clutching, unconscious, each his empty rags
Whence the scant coin, which had not half bought bread,

That morn he shook forth, counted piece by piece,

And, well-advisedly, on perfumes spent them
To burn, or flowers to strew, before your path

—How, when the golden flood of music and
bliss

Ebbed, as their moon retreated, and again
Left the sharp black-point rocks of misery bare

—Then I, their friend, had only to suggest

“Saw she the horror as she saw the pomp!”

And as one man they cried “He speaks the
truth:

“Show her the horror! Take from our own mouths

“Our wrongs and show them, she will see them too!”

This they cried, lady! I have brought the wrongs.

The Duchess. Wrongs? Cleves has wrongs —apparent now and thus?

I thank you! In that paper? Give it me!

Valence. (There, Cleves!) In this! (What did I promise, Cleves?)

Our weavers, clothiers, spinners are reduced

A speedier ruin—I shall not deny,
 Saving myself indubitable pain,
 I thought to give you pleasure (who might say?)
 By showing that your only subject found
 To carry the sad notice, was the man
 Precisely ignorant of its contents ;
 A nameless, mere provincial advocate ;
 One whom 'twas like you never saw before,
 Never would see again. All has gone wrong ;
 But I meant right, God knows, and you, I trust !

The Duchess. A nameless advocate, this gentleman ?

—(I pardon you, Sir Guibert !)

Guibert [rising, to VALENCE]. Sir, and you ?

Valence. —Rejoice that you are lightened of a load.

Now, you have only me to reckon with.

The Duchess. One I have never seen, much less obliged ?

Valence. Dare I speak, lady ?

The Duchess. Dare you !

Heard you not

I rule no longer ?

Valence. Lady, if your rule

Were based alone on such a ground as these [Pointing to the Courtiers.

Could furnish you,—abjure it ! They have hidden

A source of true dominion from your sight.

The Duchess. You hear them—no such source is left . . .

Valence. Hear Cleves !

Whose haggard craftsmen rose to starve this day,

Starve now, and will lie down at night to starve,

Sure of a like to-morrow—but as sure

Of a most unlike morrow-after-that,

Since end things must, end howsoe'er things may.

What curbs the brute-force instinct in its hour ?

What makes—instead of rising, all as one,

And teaching fingers, so expert to wield

Their tool, the broadsword's play or carbine's trick,

—What makes that there's an easier help, they think,

For you, whose name so few of them can spell,

Whose face scarce one in every hundred saw,—

You simply have to understand their wrongs,
 And wrongs will vanish—so, still trades are plied,

And swords lie rusting, and myself stand here ?

There is a vision in the heart of each

Of justice, mercy, wisdom, tenderness

To wrong and pain, and knowledge of its cure :

And these embodied in a woman's form

That best transmits them, pure as first received,

From God above her, to mankind below.

Will you derive your rule from such a ground,

Or rather hold it by the suffrage, say,

Of this man—this—and this ?

The Duchess [after a pause]. You come from Cleves :

How many are at Cleves of such a mind ?

Valence [from his paper]. “We, all the manufacturers of Cleves—”

The Duchess. Or stay, sir—lest I seem too covetous—

Are you my subject ? such as you describe,

Am I to you, though to no other man ?

Valence [from his paper]. —“Valence, ordained your Advocate at Cleves”—

The Duchess [replacing the coronet]. Then I remain Cleves' Duchess ! Take you note,

While Cleves but yields one subject of this stamp,

I stand her lady till she waves me off !

For her sake, all the Prince claims I withhold ;

Laugh at each menace ; and, his power defying,

Return his missive with its due contempt !

[Casting it away.

Guibert [picking it up]. —Which to the Prince I will deliver, lady, (Note it down, Gaucelme)—with your message too !

The Duchess. I think the office is a subject's, sir !

—Either . . . how style you him ?—my special guarder

The Marshal's—for who knows but violence

May follow the delivery ?—Or, perhaps,

My Chancellor's—for law may be to urge

On its receipt !—Or, even my Chamberlain's—

For I may violate established form !

[To VALENCE.] Sir,—for the half-hour till this service ends,

Will you become all these to me?

Valence [falling on his knee]. My liege!

The Duchess. Give me!

[The Courtiers present their badges of office.

[Putting them by.] Whatever was their virtue once,

They need new consecration. [*Raising
VALENCE.*] Are you mine?

I will be Duchess yet! [She retires.

The Courtiers. Our Duchess yet!

A glorious lady! Worthy love and dread!

I'll stand by her,—And I, whate'er betide!

Guibert [to VALENCE]. Well done, well done, sir! I care not who know,

You have done nobly and I envy you—

Tho' I am but unfairly used, I think:

For when one gets a place like this I hold,

One gets too the remark that its mere wages,

The pay and the preferment, make our
prize.

Talk about zeal and faith apart from these,

We're laughed at—much would zeal and faith subsist

Without these also! Yet, let these be stopped,

Our wages discontinue,—then, indeed,

Our zeal and faith, (we hear on every side,)

Are not released—having been pledged away

I wonder, for what zeal and faith in turn?

Hard money purchased me my place! No,
no—

I'm right, sir—but your wrong is better still,

If I had time and skill to argue it.

Therefore, I say, I'll serve you, how you
please—

If you like,—fight you, as you seem to wish—

(The kinder of me that, in sober truth,

I never dreamed I did you any harm) . . .

Gaucelme. —Or, kinder still, you'll introduce, no doubt,

His merits to the Prince who's just at hand,

And let no hint drop he's made Chancellor

And Chamberlain and Heaven knows what beside!

Clugnet [to VALENCE]. You stare, young sir, and threaten! Let me say,

That at your age, when first I came to court,
I was not much above a gentleman;

While now . . .

Valence. —You are Head-Lackey?

With your office

I have not yet been graced, sir!

Other Courtiers [to CLUGNET]. Let him talk!

Fidelity, disinterestedness,

Excuse so much! Men claim my worship ever

Who staunchly and steadfastly . . .

Enter ADOLF.

Adolf. The Prince arrives.

Courtiers. Ha? How?

Adolf. He leaves his guard a stage behind
At Aix, and enters almost by himself.

1st Courtier. The Prince! This foolish business puts all out.

2nd Courtier. Let Gaucelme speak first!

3rd Courtier. Better I began
About the state of Juliers: should one say
All's prosperous and inviting him?

4th Courtier. —Or rather,
All's prostrate and imploring him?

5th Courtier. That's best
Where's the Cleves' paper, by the way?

4th Courtier [to VALENCE]. Sir—sir—
If you'll but lend that paper—trust it me,
I'll warrant . . .

5th Courtier. Softly, sir—the Marshal's duty!

Clugnet. Has not the Chamberlain a hearing first
By virtue of his patent?

Gaucelme. Patents?—Duties?
All that, my masters, must begin again!

One word composes the whole controversy:
We're simply now—the Prince's!

The Others. Ay—the Prince's!

Enter SABYNE.

Sabynne. Adolf! Bid . . . Oh, no time for ceremony!
Where's whom our lady calls her only subject?
She needs him. Who is here the Duchess's?
Valence [starting from his reverie]. Most gratefully I follow to her feet.

ACT III.

AFTERNOON.

SCENE.—The Vestibule.Enter PRINCE BERTHOLD and MELCHIOR.Berthold. A thriving little burgh this Juliers looks.[Half-apart.] Keep Juliers, and as good you kept Cologne :

Better try Aix, though !—

Melchior. Please 't your Highness speak ?Berthold [as before]. Aix, Cologne, Frankfurt,—Milan ;—Rome !—Melchior. The Grave.More weary seems your Highness, I remark,
Than sundry conquerors whose path I've watchedThrough fire and blood to any prize they gain.
I could well wish you, for your proper sake,
Had met some shade of opposition here
—Found a blunt seneschal refuse unlock,
Or a scared usher lead your steps astray.
You must not look for next achievement's palm

So easily : this will hurt your conquering.

Berthold. My next ? Ay, as you say, my next and next !Well, I am tired, that's truth, and moody too,
This quiet entrance-morning : listen why !
Our little burgh, now, Juliers—'tis indeed
One link, however insignificant,
Of the great chain by which I reach my hope,
—A link I must secure ; but otherwise,
You'd wonder I esteem it worth my grasp.
Just see what life is, with its shifts and turns !
It happens now—this very nook—to be
A place that once . . . not a long while since, neither—When I lived an ambiguous hanger-on
Of foreign courts, and bore my claims about,
Discarded by one kinsman, and the other
A poor priest merely,—then, I say, this place
Shone my ambition's object ; to be Duke—
Seemed then, what to be Emperor seems now.
My rights were far from judged as plain and sureIn those days as of late, I promise you :
And 'twas my day-dream, Lady Colombe here
Might e'en compound the matter, pity me,
Be struck, say, with my chivalry and grace
(I was a boy !)—bestow her hand at length,
And make me Duke, in her right if not mine.
Here am I, Duke confessed, at Juliers now.
Hearken : if ever I be Emperor,
Remind me what I felt and said to-day !Melchior. All this consoles a bookish man like me.—And so will weariness cling to you. Wrong,
Wrong ! Had you sought the lady's court yourself,—Faced the redoubtables composing it, Flattered this, threatened that man, bribed the other,—Pleaded by writ and word and deed, your cause,—Conquered a footing inch by painful inch,—
And, after long years' struggle, pounced at last
On her for prize,—the right life had been lived,
And justice done to divers faculties
Shut in that brow. Yourself were visible
As you stood victor, then ; whom now—
(your pardon !)I am forced narrowly to search and see,
So are you hid by helps—this Pope, your uncle—Your cousin, the other King ! You are a mind,—They, body : too much of mere legs-and-arms Obstructs the mind so ! Match these with their like :

Match mind with mind !

Berthold. And where's your mind to match ?They show me legs-and-arms to cope withal !
I'd subjugate this city—where's its mind ?[The Courtiers enter slowly.]Melchior. Got out of sight when you came troops and all !And in its stead, here greets you flesh-and-
blood :

A smug œconomy of both, this first !

[As CLUGNET bows obsequiously.]

Well done, gout, all considered !—I may go ?

Berthold. Help me receive them !

What title's reservation, appanage's Allowance? I heard all at Treves, last week.

Gaucelme [to GUIBERT]. "Give it him as she gave it!"

Guibert. And why not?
[To BERTHOLD.] The lady crushed your summons thus together,

And bade me, with the very greatest scorn
So fair a frame could hold, inform you . . .

Courtiers. Stop—Idiot!

Guibert. —Inform you she denied your claim,
Defied yourself! (I tread upon his heel,
The blustering advocate!)

Berthold. By heaven and earth!
Dare you jest, sir?

Guibert. Did they at Treves, last week?

Berthold [starting up]. Why then, I look much bolder than I knew,
And you prove better actors than I thought:
Since, as I live, I took you as you entered
For just so many dearest friends of mine,
Fled from the sinking to the rising power
—The sneaking'st crew, in short, I e'er despised!

Whereas, I am alone here for the moment,
With every soldier left behind at Aix!
Silence? That means the worst? I thought
as much!

What follows next then?

Courtiers. Gracious Prince, he raves!

Guibert. He asked the truth and why not get the truth?

Berthold. Am I a prisoner? Speak, will somebody?

—But why stand paltering with imbeciles?
Let me see her, or . . .

Guibert. Her, without her leave,
Shall no one see: she's Duchess yet!

Courtiers [footsteps without, as they are disputing]. Good chance!

She's here—the Lady Colombe's self!

Berthold. 'Tis well!
[Aside.] Array a handful thus against my world?

Not ill done, truly! Were not this a mind

To match one's mind with? Colombe! Let us wait!

I failed so, under that grey convent wall!
She comes.

Guibert. The Duchess! Strangers, range yourselves!

[As the DUCHESS enters in conversation with VALENCE, BERTHOLD and the Courtiers fall back a little.]

The Duchess. Presagefully it beats, presagefully,

My heart: the right is Berthold's and not mine.

Valence. Grant that he has the right, dare I mistrust

Your power to acquiesce so patiently
As you believe, in such a dream-like change
Of fortune—change abrupt, profound, complete?

The Duchess. Ah, the first bitterness is over now!

Bitter I may have felt it to confront
The truth, and ascertain those natures' value
I had so counted on; that was a pang:
But I did bear it, and the worst is over.
Let the Prince take them!

Valence. And take Juliers too?

—Your people without crosses, wands and chains—

Only with hearts?

The Duchess. There I feel guilty, sir!

I cannot give up what I never had:
For I ruled these, not them—these stood between.

Shall I confess, sir? I have heard by stealth
Of Berthold from the first; more news and more:

Closer and closer swam the thundercloud,
But I was safely housed with these, I knew.
At times when to the casement I would turn,
At a bird's passage or a flower-trail's play,
I caught the storm's red glimpses on its edge—
Yet I was sure some one of all these friends
Would interpose: I followed the bird's flight
Or plucked the flower: some one would interpose!

Valence. Not one thought on the People—and Cleves there!

The Duchess. Now, sadly conscious my real sway was missed,
Its shadow goes without so much regret :
Else could I not again thus calmly bid you, Answer Prince Berthold !

Valence. Then you acquiesce?

The Duchess. Remember over whom it was I ruled !

Guibert [stepping forward]. Prince Berthold, yonder, craves an audience, lady !

The Duchess [to VALENCE]. I only have to turn, and I shall face

Prince Berthold ! Oh, my very heart is sick !
It is the daughter of a line of Dukes

This scornful insolent adventurer
Will bid depart from my dead father's halls !

I shall not answer him—dispute with him—
But, as he bids, depart ! Prevent it, sir !

Sir—but a mere day's respite ! Urge for me —What I shall call to mind I should have urged

When time's gone by : 'twill all be mine, you urge !

A day—an hour—that I myself may lay
My rule down ! 'Tis too sudden—must not be !

The world's to hear of it ! Once done—for ever !

How will it read, sir ? How be sung about ?
Prevent it !

Berthold [approaching]. Your frank indignation, lady,

Cannot escape me. Overbold I seem ;
But somewhat should be pardoned my surprise

At this reception,—this defiance, rather.

And if, for their and your sake, I rejoice

Your virtues could inspire a trusty few

To make such gallant stand in your behalf,

I cannot but be sorry, for my own,

Your friends should force me to retrace my steps :

Since I no longer am permitted speak

After the pleasant peaceful course prescribed

No less by courtesy than relationship—

Which I remember, if you once forgot.

But never must attack pass unrepelled.

Suffer that, through you, I demand of these,

Who controverts my claim to Juliers ?

The Duchess.

—Me

You say, you do not speak to—

Berthold. Of your subjects

I ask, then : whom do you accredit ? Where Stand those should answer ?

Valence [advancing]. The lady is alone.

Berthold. Alone, and thus ? So weak and yet so bold ?

Valence. I said she was alone—

Berthold. And weak,
I said.

Valence. When is man strong until he feels
alone ?

It was some lonely strength at first, be sure,
Created organs, such as those you seek,

By which to give its varied purpose shape :

And, naming the selected ministrants,

Took sword, and shield, and sceptre,—each,
a man !

That strength performed its work and passed its way :

You see our lady : there, the old shapes
stand !

—A Marshal, Chamberlain, and Chancellor—“ Be helped their way, into their death put
life

“ And find advantage ! ”—so you counsel us.

But let strength feel alone, seek help itself,—

And, as the inland-hatched sea-creature hunts
The sea's breast out,—as, littered 'mid the

waves

The desert-brute makes for the desert's joy,

So turns our lady to her true resource,

Passing o'er hollow fictions, worn-out types,

—And I am first her instinct fastens on.

And prompt I say, as clear as heart can speak,

The People will not have you ; nor shall have !

It is not merely I shall go bring Cleves

And fight you to the last,—though that does
much,

And men and children,—ay, and women too,

Fighting for home, are rather to be feared

Than mercenaries fighting for their pay—

But, say you beat us, since such things have
been,

And, where this Juliers laughed, you set your
foot

Upon a steaming bloody splash—what then ?

Stand you the more our lord that there you stand?
 Lord it o'er troops whose force you concentrate,
 A pillared flame whereto all ardours tend—
 Lord it 'mid priests whose schemes you amplify,
 A cloud of smoke 'neath which all shadows brood—
 But never, in this gentle spot of earth,
 Can you become our Colombe, our play-queen,
 For whom, to furnish lilies for her hair,
 We'd pour our veins forth to enrich the soil.
 —Our conqueror? Yes!—Our despot? Yes!
 —Our Duke?
 Know yourself, know us!
Berthold [who has been in thought]. Know your lady, also!
[Very deferentially.]—To whom I needs must exculpate myself
 For having made a rash demand, at least.
 Wherefore to you, sir, who appear to be Her chief adviser, I submit my claims, [Giving papers.]
 But, this step taken, take no further step,
 Until the Duchess shall pronounce their worth.
 Here be our meeting-place; at night, its time:
 Till when I humbly take the lady's leave!
[He withdraws. As the DUCHESS turns to VALENCE, the Courtiers interchange glances and come forward a little.]
1st Courtier. So, this was their device!
2nd Courtier. No bad device!
3rd Courtier. You'd say they love each other, Guibert's friend
 From Cleves, and she, the Duchess!
4th Courtier. —And moreover,
 That all Prince Berthold comes for, is to help Their loves!
5th Courtier. Pray, Guibert, what is next to do?
Guibert [advancing]. I laid my office at the Duchess' foot—
Others. And I—and I—and I!

The Duchess. I took them, sirs.
Guibert [apart to VALENCE]. And now, sir, I am simple knight again—
 Guibert, of the great ancient house, as yet That never bore affront; whate'er your birth,—
 As things stand now, I recognize yourself (If you'll accept experience of some date)
 As like to be the leading man o' the time,
 Therefore as much above me now, as I Seemed above you this morning. Then, I offered
 To fight you: will you be as generous
 And now fight me?
Valence. Ask when my life is mine:
Guibert. ('Tis hers now!)
Clugnet [apart to VALENCE, as GUIBERT turns from him]. You, sir, have insulted me Grossly,—will grant me, too, the selfsame favour You've granted him, just now, I make no question?
Valence. I promise you, as him, sir.
Clugnet. Do you so?
 Handsomely said! I hold you to it, sir.
 You'll get me reinstated in my office
 As you will Guibert!
The Duchess. I would be alone!
[They begin to retire slowly; as VALENCE is about to follow—]
 Alone, sir—only with my heart: you stay!
Gaucelme. You hear that? Ah, light breaks upon me! Cleves—
 It was at Cleves some man harangued us all—
 With great effect,—so those who listened said,
 My thoughts being busy elsewhere: was this he?
 Guibert,—your strange, disinterested man!
 Your uncorrupted, if uncourtly friend!
 The modest worth you mean to patronize!
 He cares about no Duchesses, not he—
 His sole concern is with the wrongs of Cleves!
 What, Guibert? What, it breaks on you at last?
Guibert. Would this hall's floor were a mine's roof! I'd back
 And in her very face . . .

ACT IV.

EVENING.

SCENE.—An Antechamber.Enter the Courtiers.

Maufroy. Now, then, that we may speak
—how spring this mine?

Gaucelme. Is Guibert ready for its match?
He cools!

Not so friend Valence with the Duchess there!
“Stay, Valence! Are not you my better
self?”

And her cheek mantled—

Guibert. Well, she loves him, sir:
And more,—since you will have it I grow cool,—

She's right: he's worth it.

Gaucelme. For his deeds to-day?
Say so!

Guibert. What should I say beside?

Gaucelme. Not this—
For friendship's sake leave this for me to say—
That we're the dupes of an egregious cheat!
This plain unpractised suitor, who found way
To the Duchess through the merest die's turn-up

A year ago, had seen her and been seen,
Loved and been loved.

Guibert. Impossible!

Gaucelme. —Nor say,
How sly and exquisite a trick, moreover,
Was this which—taking not their stand on facts

Boldly, for that had been endurable,
But worming on their way by craft, they choose

Resort to, rather,—and which you and we,
Sheep-like, assist them in the playing-off!
The Duchess thus parades him as preferred,
Not on the honest ground of preference,
Seeing first, liking more, and there an end—
But as we all had started equally,
And at the close of a fair race he proved
The only valiant, sage and loyal man.
Herself, too, with the pretty fits and starts,—

The careless, winning, candid ignorance
Of what the Prince might challenge or forego—
She had a hero in reserve! What risk
Ran she? This deferential easy Prince
Who brings his claims for her to ratify
—He's just her puppet for the nonce!
You'll see,—

Valence pronounces, as is equitable,
Against him: off goes the confederate:
As equitably, Valence takes her hand!

The Chancellor. You run too fast: her hand, no subject takes.

Do not our archives hold her father's will?
That will provides against such accident,
And gives next heir, Prince Berthold, the reversion

Of Juliers, which she forfeits, wedding so.

Gaucelme. I know that, well as you,—but does the Prince?

Knows Berthold, think you, that this plan,
he helps,

For Valence's ennoblement,—would end,
If crowned with the success which seems its due,

In making him the very thing he plays,
The actual Duke of Juliers? All agree
That Colombe's title waived or set aside,
He is next heir.

The Chancellor. Incontrovertibly.

Gaucelme. Guibert, your match, now, to the train!

Guibert. Enough!

I'm with you: selfishness is best again.
I thought of turning honest—what a dream!
Let's wake now!

Gaucelme. Selfish, friend, you never
were:

'Twas but a series of revenges taken
On your unselfishness for prospering ill.
But now that you're grown wiser, what's our
course?

Guibert. —Wait, I suppose, till Valence weds our lady,

And then, if we must needs revenge ourselves,
Apprise the Prince.

Gaucelme. —The Prince, ere then dismissed

With thanks for playing his mock part so well?

Tell the Prince now, sir ! Ay, this very night,
Ere he accepts his dole and goes his way,
Explain how such a marriage makes him Duke,
Then trust his gratitude for the surprise !

Guibert. —Our lady wedding Valence all
the same

As if the penalty were undisclosed ?

Good ! If she loves, she'll not disown her
love,

Throw Valence up. I wonder you see that.

Gaucelme. The shame of it—the suddenness and shame !

Within her, the inclining heart—without,

A terrible array of witnesses—

And Valence by, to keep her to her word,

With Berthold's indignation or disgust !

We'll try it !—Not that we can venture much.

Her confidence we've lost for ever : Berthold's

Is all to gain.

Guibert. To-night, then, venture we !
Yet—if lost confidence might be renewed ?

Gaucelme. Never in noble natures ! With the base ones,—

Twist off the crab's claw, wait a smarting-
while,

And something grows and grows and gets to be

A mimic of the lost joint, just so like

As keeps in mind it never, never will Replace its predecessor ! Crabs do that :

But lop the lion's foot—and . . .

Guibert. To the Prince !

Gaucelme [aside]. And come what will to the lion's foot, I pay you,

My cat's-paw, as I long have yearned to pay.

[Aloud.] Footsteps ! Himself ! 'Tis Valence breaks on us,

Exulting that their scheme succeeds. We'll
hence—

And perfect ours ! Consult the archives, first—

Then, fortified with knowledge, seek the Hall !

Clugnet [to GAUCELME as they retire].

You have not smiled so since your father
died !

As they retire, enter VALENCE with papers.

Valence. So must it be ! I have examined
these

With scarce a palpitating heart—so calm,

Keeping her image almost wholly off,

Setting upon myself determined watch,

Repelling to the uttermost his claims :

And the result is—all men would pronounce

And not I, only, the result to be—

Berthold is heir ; she has no shade of right

To the distinction which divided us,

But, suffered to rule first, I know not why,

Her rule connived at by those Kings and

Popes,

To serve some devil's-purpose,—now 'tis
gained,

Whate'er it was, the rule expires as well.

—Valence, this rapture . . . selfish can it be ?

Eject it from your heart, her home !—It stays !

Ah, the brave world that opens on us both !

—Do my poor townsmen so esteem it ?

Cleves,—

I need not your pale faces ! This, reward

For service done to you ? Too horrible !

I never served you : 'twas myself I served—

Nay, served not—rather saved from punishment

Which, had I failed you then, would plague me now.

My life continues yours, and your life, mine.

But if, to take God's gift, I swerve no step—

Cleves ! If I breathe no prayer for it—if she, [Footsteps without.

Colombe, that comes now, freely gives her-
self—

Will Cleves require, that, turning thus to her,
I . . .

Enter Prince BERTHOLD.

Pardon, sir ! I did not look for you Till night, i' the Hall ; nor have as yet declared

My judgment to the lady.

Berthold. So I hoped.

Valence. And yet I scarcely know why that should check

The frank disclosure of it first to you—

What her right seems, and what, in consequence,

She will decide on.

Berthold. That I need not ask.

Valence. You need not : I have proved the lady's mind :

And, justice being to do, dare act for her.

Berthold. Doubtless she has a very noble mind.

Valence. Oh, never fear but she'll in each conjuncture

Bear herself bravely ! She no whit depends
On circumstance ; as she adorns a throne,
She had adorned . . .

Berthold. A cottage—in what book
Have I read that, of every queen that lived ?
A throne ! You have not been instructed,
sure,

To forestall my request ?

Valence. 'Tis granted, sir !
My heart instructs me. I have scrutinized
Your claims . . .

Berthold. Ah—claims, you mean,
at first preferred ?

I come, before the hour appointed me,
To pray you let those claims at present rest,
In favour of a new and stronger one.

Valence. You shall not need a stronger :
on the part
O' the lady, all you offer I accept,
Since one clear right suffices : yours is clear.
Propose !

Berthold. I offer her my hand.

Valence. Your hand ?

Berthold. A Duke's, yourself say ; and, at no far time,
Something here whispers me—an Emperor's.
The lady's mind is noble : which induced
This seizure of occasion ere my claims
Were—settled, let us amicably say !

Valence. Your hand !

Berthold. (He will fall down and kiss it next !)

Sir, this astonishment's too flattering,
Nor must you hold your mistress' worth so cheap.

Enhance it, rather,—urge that blood is blood—
The daughter of the Burgraves, Landgraves, Markgraves,
Remains their daughter ! I shalt scarce gain-
say.

Elsewhere or here, the lady needs must rule :
Like the imperial crown's great chrysoprase,¹
They talk of—somewhat out of keeping there,
And yet no jewel for a meaner cap.

Valence. You wed the Duchess ?

Berthold. Cry you mercy, friend !
Will the match also influence fortunes here ?
A natural solicitude enough.

Be certain, no bad chance it proves for you !
However high you take your present stand,
There's prospect of a higher still remove—
For Juliers will not be my resting-place,
And, when I have to choose a substitute
To rule the little burgh, I'll think of you
Who need not give your mates a character.
And yet I doubt your fitness to supplant
The grey smooth Chamberlain : he'd hesitate
A doubt his lady could demean herself
So low as to accept me. Courage, sir !
I like your method better : feeling's play
Is franker much, and flatters me beside.

Valence. I am to say, you love her ?

Berthold. Say that too !
Love has no great concernment, thinks the
world,

With a Duke's marriage. How go precedents
In Juliers' story—how use Juliers' Dukes ?
I see you have them here in goodly row ;
Yon must be Luitpold—ay, a stalwart sire !
Say, I have been arrested suddenly
In my ambition's course, its rocky course,
By this sweet flower : I fain would gather it
And then proceed : so say and speedily —(Nor stand there like Duke Luitpold's brazen self !)

Enough, sir : you possess my mind, I think.
This is my claim, the others being withdrawn,
And to this be it that, i' the Hall to-night,
Your lady's answer comes ; till when, farewell ! [He retires.]

Valence [after a pause]. The heavens and earth stay as they were ; my heart
Beats as it beat : the truth remains the truth.
What falls away, then, if not faith in her ?
Was it my faith, that she could estimate
Love's value, and, such faith still guiding me,

Valence. He is all of this.

The Duchess. Thanks, Berthold, for my father's sake! No hand

Degrades me.

Valence. You accept the proffered hand?

The Duchess. That he should love me!

Valence. "Loved" I did not say.

Had that been—love might so incline the Prince

To the world's good, the world that's at his foot,—

I do not know, this moment, I should dare Desire that you refused the world—and Cleves—

The sacrifice he asks.

The Duchess. Not love me, sir?

Valence. He scarce affirmed it.

The Duchess. May not deeds affirm?

Valence. What does he? . . . Yes, yes, very much he does!

All the shame saved, he thinks, and sorrow saved—

Immitigable sorrow, so he thinks,—

Sorrow that's deeper than we dream, perchance.

The Duchess. Is not this love?

Valence. So very much he does!

For look, you can descend now gracefully:

All doubts are banished, that the world might have,

Or worst, the doubts yourself, in after-time, May call up of your heart's sincereness now.

To such, reply, "I could have kept my rule—

"Increased it to the utmost of my dreams—

"Yet I abjured it." This, he does for you:

It is munificently much.

The Duchess. Still "much!"

But why is it not love, sir? Answer me!

Valence. Because not one of Berthold's words and looks

Had gone with love's presentment of a flower

To the beloved: because bold confidence,

Open superiority, free pride—

Love owns not, yet were all that Berthold owned:

Because where reason, even, finds no flaw,

Unerringly a lover's instinct may.

The Duchess. You reason, then, and doubt?

Valence. I love, and know.

The Duchess. You love? How strange!

I never cast a thought

On that. Just see our selfishness! You seemed

So much my own . . . I had no ground—and yet,

I never dreamed another might divide

My power with you, much less exceed it.

Valence. Lady,

I am yours wholly.

The Duchess. Oh, no, no, not mine!

'Tis not the same now, never more can be.

—Your first love, doubtless. Well, what's gone from me?

What have I lost in you?

Valence. My heart replies—

No loss there! So, to Berthold back again:

This offer of his hand, he bids me make—

Its obvious magnitude is well to weigh.

The Duchess. She's . . . yes, she must be very fair for you!

Valence. I am a simple advocate of Cleves.

The Duchess. You! With the heart and brain that so helped me,

I fancied them exclusively my own,

Yet find are subject to a stronger sway!

She must be . . . tell me, is she very fair?

Valence. Most fair, beyond conception or belief.

The Duchess. Black eyes?—no matter!

Colombe, the world leads

Its life without you, whom your friends professed

The only woman: see how true they spoke!

One lived this while, who never saw your face.

Nor heard your voice—unless . . . Is she from Cleves?

Valence. Cleves knows her well.

The Duchess. Ah—just a fancy, now!

When you poured forth the wrongs of Cleves,

—I said,

—Thought, that is, afterward . . .

Valence. You thought of me?

The Duchess. Of whom else? Only such great cause, I thought,

For such effect : see what true love can do !
Cleves is his love. I almost fear to ask
. . . And will not. This is idling : to our work !

Admit before the Prince, without reserve,
My claims misgrounded ; then may follow
better

. . . When you poured out Cleves' wrongs impetuously,

Was she in your mind ?

Valence. All done was done for her —To humble me !

The Duchess. She will be proud at least.

Valence. She ?

The Duchess. When you tell her.

Valence. That will never be.

The Duchess. How — are there sweeter things you hope to tell ?

No, sir ! You counselled me, — I counsel you
In the one point I — any woman — can.

Your worth, the first thing ; let her own come next —

Say what you did through her, and she
through you —

The praises of her beauty afterward !

Will you ?

Valence. I dare not.

The Duchess. Dare not ?

Valence. She I love

Suspects not such a love in me.

The Duchess. You jest.

Valence. The lady is above me and away.
Not only the brave form, and the bright mind,
And the great heart, combine to press me
low —

But all the world calls rank divides us.

The Duchess. Rank !

Now grant me patience ! Here's a man declares

Oracularly in another's case —

Sees the true value and the false, for them —
Nay, bids them see it, and they straight do
see.

You called my court's love worthless — so it turned :

I threw away as dross my heap of wealth,
And here you stickle for a piece or two !

First — has she seen you ?

Valence. Yes.

The Duchess. She loves you, then.

Valence. One flash of hope burst ; then succeeded night :

And all's at darkest now. Impossible !

The Duchess. We'll try : you are — so to speak — my subject yet ?

Valence. As ever — to the death.

The Duchess. Obey me, then !

Valence. I must.

The Duchess. Approach her, and . . .
no ! first of all

Get more assurance. "My instructress," say,
"Was great, descended from a line of kings,
"And even fair" — (wait why I say this folly) —

"She said, of all men, none for eloquence,
"Courage, and (what cast even these to shade)
"The heart they sprung from, — none deserved like him

"Who saved her at her need : if she said this,
"What should not one I love, say ?"

Valence. Heaven — this hope —
Oh, lady, you are filling me with fire !

The Duchess. Say this ! — nor think I bid you cast aside

One touch of all the awe and reverence ;
Nay, make her proud for once to heart's content

That all this wealth of heart and soul's her
own !

Think you are all of this, — and, thinking it,
. . . (Obey !)

Valence. I cannot choose.

The Duchess. Then, kneel to her
[VALENCE sinks on his knee.]

I dream !

Valence. Have mercy ! Yours, unto the death, —

I have obeyed. Despise, and let me die !

The Duchess. Alas, sir, is it to be ever
thus ?

Even with you as with the world ? I know

This morning's service was no vulgar deed

Whose motive, once it dares avow itself,

Explains all done and infinitely more,

So, takes the shelter of a nobler cause.

Your service named its true source, — loyalty !

The rest's unsaid again. The Duchess bids you,

Rise, sir! The Prince's words were in debate.

Valence [rising]. Rise? Truth, as ever, lady, comes from you!

I should rise—I who spoke for Cleves, can speak

For Man—yet tremble now, who stood firm then.

I laughed—for 'twas past tears—that Cleves should starve

With all hearts beating loud the infamy,

And no tongue daring trust as much to air:

Yet here, where all hearts speak, shall I be mute?

Oh, lady, for your own sake look on me!

On all I am, and have, and do—^{heart} heart, brain,

Body and soul,—this Valence and his gifts!

I was proud once: I saw you, and they sank,

So that each, magnified a thousand times,

Were nothing to you—but such nothingness,

Would a crown gild it, or a sceptre prop,

A treasure speed, a laurel-wreath enhance?

What is my own desert? But should your love

Have . . . there's no language helps here . . . singled me,—

Then—oh, that wild word “then!”—be just to love,

In generosity its attribute!

Love, since you pleased to love! All's cleared—a stage

For trial of the question kept so long:

Judge you—Is love or vanity the best?

You, solve it for the world's sake—you, speak first

What all will shout one day—you, vindicate

Our earth and be its angel! All is said.

Lady, I offer nothing—I am yours:

But, for the cause' sake, look on me and him, And speak!

The Duchess. I have received the Prince's message:

Say, I prepare my answer!

Valence.

Take me, Cleves!

[He withdraws.]

The Duchess. Mournful—that nothing's what it calls itself!

Devotion, zeal, faith, loyalty—mere love!

And, love in question, what may Berthold's be?

I did ill to mistrust the world so soon:

Already was this Berthold at my side.

The valley-level has its hawks no doubt:

May not the rock-top have its eagles, too?

Yet Valence . . . let me see his rival then!

ACT V.

NIGHT.

SCENE.—The Hall.

Enter BERTHOLD and MELCHIOR.

Melchior. And here you wait the matter's issue?

Berthold. Here.

Melchior. I don't regret I shut Amelius, then.

But tell me, on this grand disclosure,—how Behaved our spokesman with the forehead?

Berthold. Oh,

Turned out no better than the foreheadless—Was dazzled not so very soon, that's all!

For my part, this is scarce the hasty showy Chivalrous measure you give me credit of.

Perhaps I had a fancy,—but 'tis gone.

—Let her commence the unfriended innocent And carry wrongs about from court to court?

No, truly! The least shake of fortune's sand,—My uncle-Pope chokes in a coughing fit,

King-cousin takes a fancy to blue eyes,—

And wondrously her claims would brighten up;

Forth comes a new gloss on the ancient law,

O'er-looked provisoes, o'er-past premises,

Follow in plenty. No: 'tis the safe step.

The hour beneath the convent-wall is lost:

Juliers and she, once mine, are ever mine.

Melchior. Which is to say, you, losing heart already,

Elude the adventure.

Berthold. Not so—or, if so—

Why not confess at once that I advise

None of our kingly craft and guild just now

While I career on all the world for stage,
There needs at home my representative.

The Duchess. —Such, rather, would some warrior-woman be—

One dowered with lands and gold, or rich in
friends—

One like yourself.

Berthold. Lady, I am myself,
And have all these: I want what's not myself, Nor has all these. Why give one hand two swords?

Here's one already: be a friend's next gift
A silk glove, if you will—I have a sword.

The Duchess. You love me, then?

Berthold. Your lineage I revere,
Honour your virtue, in your truth believe,
Do homage to your intellect, and bow
Before your peerless beauty.

The Duchess. But, for love—

Berthold. A further love I do not understand.

Our best course is to say these hideous truths,
And see them, once said, grow endurable:
Like waters shuddering from their central bed,
Black with the midnight bowels of the earth,
That, once up-spouted by an earthquake's
throe,

A portent and a terror—soon subside,
Freshen apace, take gold and rainbow hues
In sunshine, sleep in shadow, and at last Grow common to the earth as hills or trees—
Accepted by all things they came to scare.

The Duchess. You cannot love, then?

Berthold. —Charlemagne, perhaps!
Are you not over-curious in love-lore?

The Duchess. I have become so, very recently.

It seems, then, I shall best deserve esteem,
Respect, and all your candour promises,
By putting on a calculating mood—
Asking the terms of my becoming yours?

Berthold. Let me not do myself injustice, neither.

Because I will not condescend to fictions
That promise what my soul can ne'er acquit,
It does not follow that my guarded phrase
May not include far more of what you seek,
Than wide profession of less scrupulous men.

You will be Empress, once for all: with me
The Pope disputes supremacy—you stand,
And none gainsays, the earth's first woman.

The Duchess. That—

Or simple Lady of Ravestein again?

Berthold. The matter's not in my arbitra-
ment:

Now I have made my claims—which I regret—

Cede one, cede all.

The Duchess. This claim then, you enforce?

Berthold. The world looks on.

The Duchess. And when must I decide?

Berthold. When, lady? Have I said thus much so promptly

For nothing?—Poured out, with such pains,
at once

What I might else have suffered to ooze forth
Droplet by droplet in a lifetime long—

For aught less than as prompt an answer,
too?

All's fairly told now: who can teach you
more?

The Duchess. I do not see him.

Berthold. I shall ne'er deceive.

This offer should be made befittingly
Did time allow the better setting forth
The good of it, with what is not so good,
Advantage, and disparagement as well:
But as it is, the sum of both must serve.
I am already weary of this place;
My thoughts are next stage on to Rome.
Decide!

The Empire—or,—not even Juliers now!
Hail to the Empress—farewell to the Duchess!

[The Courtiers, who have been drawing nearer and nearer, interpose.

Gaucelme. —“Farewell,” Prince? when we break in at our risk—

Clugnet. Almost upon court-licence trespassing—

Gaucelme. —To point out how your claims are valid yet!

You know not, by the Duke her father's will,
The lady, if she weds beneath her rank,
Forfeits her Duchy in the next heir's favour—
So 'tis expressly stipulate. And if
It can be shown 'tis her intent to wed

A subject, then yourself, next heir, by right Succeed to Juliers.

Berthold. What insanity?—

Guibert. Sir, there's one Valence, the pale fiery man
You saw and heard this morning—thought,
no doubt,

Was of considerable standing here :
I put it to your penetration, Prince,
If aught save love, the truest love for her
Could make him serve the lady as he did !
He's simply a poor advocate of Cleves
—Creeps here with difficulty, finds a place
With danger, gets in by a miracle,
And for the first time meets the lady's face—
So runs the story : is that credible ?
For, first—no sooner in, than he's apprised Fortunes have changed ; you are all-powerful
here,

The lady as powerless : he stands fast by her !

The Duchess [aside]. And do such deeds spring up from love alone ?

Guibert. But here occurs the question, does the lady

Love him again ? I say, how else can she ?
Can she forget how he stood singly forth
In her defence, dared outrage all of us,
Insult yourself—for what, save love's reward ?

The Duchess [aside]. And is love then the sole reward of love ?

Guibert. But, love him as she may and must—you ask,
Means she to wed him ? “Yes,” both natures answer !

Both, in their pride, point out the sole result ;
Nought less would he accept nor she propose.
For each conjecture was she great enough
—Will be, for this.

Clugnet. Though, now that this is known,

Policy, doubtless, urges she deny . . .

The Duchess. —What, sir, and wherefore ?
—since I am not sure

That all is any other than you say !
You take this Valence, hold him close to
me,

Him with his actions : can I choose but look ?
I am not sure, love trulier shows itself

Than in this man, you hate and would degrade,

Yet, with your worst abatement, show me
thus.

Nor am I—(thus made look within myself, Ere I had dared)—now that the look is dared—

Sure that I do not love him !

Guibert. Hear you, Prince ?

Berthold. And what, sirs, please you, may this prattle mean

Unless to prove with what alacrity
You give your lady's secrets to the world ?
How much indebted, for discovering
That quality, you make me, will be found
When there's a keeper for my own to seek.

Courtiers. “Our lady ?”

Berthold. —She assuredly remains.

The Duchess. Ah, Prince—and you too can be generous ?

You could renounce your power, if this were so,

And let me, as these phrase it, wed my love
Yet keep my Duchy ? You perhaps exceed Him, even, in disinterestedness !

Berthold. How, lady, should all this affect my purpose ?

Your will and choice are still as ever, free.
Say, you have known a worthier than myself
In mind and heart, of happier form and face—
Others must have their birthright : I have gifts,
To balance theirs, not blot them out of sight.
Against a hundred alien qualities,
I lay the prize I offer. I am nothing :
Wed you the Empire ?

The Duchess. And my heart away ?

Berthold. When have I made pretension to your heart ?

I give none. I shall keep your honour safe ;
With mine I trust you, as the sculptor trusts
Yon marble woman with the marble rose,
Loose on her hand, she never will let fall,
In graceful, slight, silent security.

You will be proud of my world-wide career,
And I content in you the fair and good.

What were the use of planting a few seeds
The thankless climate never would mature—
Affections all repelled by circumstance ?

Enough : to these no credit I attach,—
To what you own, find nothing to object.
Write simply on my requisition's face
What shall content my friends—that you admit,
As Colombe of Ravestein, the claims therein,
Or never need admit them, as my wife—
And either way, all's ended !

The Duchess. Let all end !

Berthold. The requisition !

Guibert. —Valence holds, of course !

Berthold. Desire his presence !

[ADOLF goes out.]

Courtiers [to each other]. Out it all comes
yet ;

He'll have his word against the bargain yet ;
He's not the man to tamely acquiesce.

One passionate appeal—upbraiding even,
May turn the tide again. Despair not yet !

[They retire a little.]

Berthold [to MELCHIOR]. The Empire has its old success, my friend !

Melchior. You've had your way : before the spokesman speaks,

Let me, but this once, work a problem out,
And ever more be dumb ! The Empire wins ?
To better purpose have I read my books !

Enter VALENCE.

Melchior [to the Courtiers]. Apart, my masters !

[To VALENCE.] Sir, one word with you !
I am a poor dependant of the Prince's—
Pitched on to speak, as of slight consequence.
You are no higher, I find : in other words,
We two, as probably the wisest here,
Need not hold diplomatic talk like fools.
Suppose I speak, divesting the plain fact
Of all their tortuous phrases, fit for them ?
Do you reply so, and what trouble saved !
The Prince, then—an embroiled strange heap of news

This moment reaches him—if true or false,
All dignity forbids he should inquire
In person, or by worthier deputy ;
Yet somehow must inquire, lest slander come :
And so, 'tis I am pitched on. You have heard
His offer to your lady ?

Valence. Yes.

Melchior. —Conceive

Her joy thereat ?

Valence. I cannot.

Melchior. No one can.

All draws to a conclusion, therefore.

Valence [aside]. So !

No after-judgment—no first thought revised—
Her first and last decision !—me, she leaves,
Takes him ; a simple heart is flung aside,
The ermine o'er a heartless breast embraced.
Oh Heaven, this mockery has been played too oft !

Once, to surprise the angels—twice, that fiends
Recording, might be proud they chose not so—Thrice, many thousand times, to teach the
world

All men should pause, misdoubt their strength, since men

Can have such chance yet fail so signally,
—But ever, ever this farewell to Heaven,
Welcome to earth—this taking death for life—
This spurning love and kneeling to the world—
Oh Heaven, it is too often and too old !

Melchior. Well, on this point, what but an absurd rumour

Arises—these, its source—its subject, you !
Your faith and loyalty misconstruing,
They say, your service claims the lady's hand !
Of course, nor Prince nor lady can respond :
Yet something must be said : for, were it true
You made such claim, the Prince would . . .

Valence. Well, sir,—would ?

Melchior. —Not only probably withdraw his suit,

But, very like, the lady might be forced Accept your own. Oh, there are reasons
why !

But you'll excuse at present all save one,—
I think so. What we want is, your own witness,
For, or against—her good, or yours : decide !

Valence [aside]. Be it her good if she accounts it so !

[After a contest.] For what am I but hers, to choose as she ?

Who knows how far, beside, the light from her
May reach, and dwell with, what she looks upon ?

Melchior [to the Prince]. Now to him, you !

Berthold [after a pause]. Lady, well rewarded! Sir, as well deserved! I could not imitate—I hardly envy—I do admire you. All is for the best. Too costly a flower were this, I see it now, To pluck and set upon my barren helm To wither—any garish plume will do. I'll not insult you and refuse your Duchy— You can so well afford to yield it me, And I were left, without it, sadly lorn. As it is—for me—if that will flatter you, A somewhat wearier life seems to remain Than I thought possible where . . . 'faith, their life Begins already! They're too occupied To listen: and few words content me best. [Abruptly to the Courtiers.] I am your Duke, though! Who obey me here?
The Duchess. Adolf and Sabyne follow us—
Guibert [starting from the Courtiers].
 —And I?

Do I not follow them, if I mayn't you?
 Shall not I get some little duties up
 At Ravestein and emulate the rest?
 God save you, Gaucelme! 'Tis my Birthday,
 too!
Berthold. You happy handful that remain with me
 . . . That is, with Dietrich the black Barna-bite
 I shall leave over you—will earn your wages
 Or Dietrich has forgot to ply his trade!
 Meantime,—go copy me the precedents
 Of every installation, proper styles
 And pedigrees of all your Juliers' Dukes—
 While I prepare to plod on my old way,
 And somewhat wearily, I must confess!
The Duchess [with a light joyous laugh as she turns from them]. Come, Valence, to our friends, God's earth . . .
Valence [as she falls into his arms].
 —And thee'

DRAMATIC ROMANCES.

184— 185—

INCIDENT OF THE FRENCH CAMP.

I.

You know, we French stormed Ratisbon :
A mile or so away,
On a little mound, Napoleon
Stood on our storming-day ;
With neck out-thrust, you fancy how,
Legs wide, arms locked behind,
As if to balance the prone brow
Oppressive with its mind.

II.

Just as perhaps he mused " My plans
" That soar, to earth may fall,
" Let once my army-leader Lannes
" Waver at yonder wall,"—
Out 'twixt the battery-smokes there flew
A rider, bound on bound
Full-galloping ; nor bridle drew
Until he reached the mound.

III.

Then off there flung in smiling joy,
And held himself erect
By just his horse's mane, a boy :
You hardly could suspect—
(So tight he kept his lips compressed, Scarce any blood came through)
You looked twice ere you saw his breast
Was all but shot in two.

IV.

" Well," cried he, " Emperor, by God's grace
" We've got you Ratisbon !
" The Marshal's in the market-place,
" And you'll be there anon
" To see your flag-bird flap his vans
" Where I, to heart's desire,
" Perched him !" The chief's eye flashed ;
his plans
Soared up again like fire.

v.

The chief's eye flashed ; but presently
Softened itself, as sheathes
A film the mother-eagle's eye
When her bruised eaglet breathes ;
" You're wounded !" " Nay," the soldier's pride
Touched to the quick, he said :
" I'm killed, Sire !" And his chief beside Smiling the boy fell dead.

THE PATRIOT.

AN OLD STORY.

I.

It was roses, roses, all the way,
With myrtle mixed in my path like mad :
The house-roofs seemed to heave and sway,
The church-spires flamed, such flags they had,
A year ago on this very day.

II.

The air broke into a mist with bells,
The old walls rocked with the crowd and cries.
Had I said, " Good folk, mere noise repels—
" But give me your sun from yonder
skies !"
They had answered, " And afterward, what else ?"

III.

Alack, it was I who leaped at the sun
To give it my loving friends to keep !
Nought man could do, have I left un-
done :
And you see my harvest, what I reap
This very day, now a year is run.

IV.

There's nobody on the house-tops now—
 Just a palsied few at the windows set ;
 For the best of the sight is, all allow,
 At the Shambles' Gate—or, better yet,
 By the very scaffold's foot, I trow.

V.

I go in the rain, and, more than needs,
 A rope cuts both my wrists behind ;
 And I think, by the feel, my forehead bleeds,
 For they fling, whoever has a mind,
 Stones at me for my year's misdeeds.

VI.

Thus I entered, and thus I go !
 In triumphs, people have dropped down
 dead.
 "Paid by the world, what dost thou owe
 "Me?"—God might question ; now instead,
 'Tis God shall repay : I am safer so.

MY LAST DUCHESS.

FERRARA.

THAT'S my last Duchess painted on the wall,
 Looking as if she were alive. I call
 That piece a wonder, now: Frà Pandolf's hands
 Worked busily a day, and there she stands.
 Will 't please you sit and look at her? I said
 "Frà Pandolf" by design, for never read
 Strangers like you that pictured countenance,
 The depth and passion of its earnest glance,
 But to myself they turned (since none puts by The curtain I have drawn for you, but I)
 And seemed as they would ask me, if they durst, How such a glance came there ; so, not the
 first

Are you to turn and ask thus. Sir, 'twas not
 Her husband's presence only, called that spot
 Of joy into the Duchess' cheek : perhaps Frà Pandolf chanced to say "Her mantle laps

"Over my lady's wrist too much," or "Paint
 "Must never hope to reproduce the faint

"Half-flush that dies along her throat :"
 such stuff

Was courtesy, she thought, and cause enough
 For calling up that spot of joy. She had A heart—how shall I say?—too soon made glad,
 Too easily impressed ; she liked whate'er
 She looked on, and her looks went everywhere.
 Sir, 'twas all one ! My favour at her breast,
 The dropping of the daylight in the West,
 The bough of cherries some officious fool
 Broke in the orchard for her, the white mule
 She rode with round the terrace—all and each
 Would draw from her alike the approving
 speech,

Or blush, at least. She thanked men,— good ! but thanked

Somehow—I know not how—as if she ranked
 My gift of a nine-hundred-years-old name
 With anybody's gift. Who'd stoop to blame
 This sort of trifling? Even had you skill
 In speech—(which I have not)—to make your will

Quite clear to such an one, and say, "Just this
 "Or that in you disgusts me ; here you miss,
 "Or there exceed the mark"—and if she let Herself be lessoned so, nor plainly set
 Her wits to yours, forsooth, and made excuse, —E'en then would be some stooping ; and I
 choose

Never to stoop. Oh sir, she smiled, no doubt, Whene'er I passed her ; but who passed without

Much the same smile? This grew ; I gave commands ;

Then all smiles stopped together. There she stands

As if alive. Will 't please you rise? We'll meet

The company below, then. I repeat,
 The Count your master's known munificence
 Is ample warrant that no just pretence
 Of mine for dowry will be disallowed ;
 Though his fair daughter's self, as I avowed
 At starting, is my object. Nay, we'll go Together down, sir. Notice Neptune, though,
 Taming a sea-horse, thought a rarity,
 Which Claus of Innsbruck cast in bronze for me !

XII.

Till out strode Gismond ; then I knew
That I was saved. I never met
His face before, but, at first view,
I felt quite sure that God had set Himself to Satan ; who would spend
A minute's mistrust on the end ?

XIII.

He strode to Gauthier, in his throat
Gave him the lie, then struck his mouth
With one back-handed blow that wrote
In blood men's verdict there. North, South, East, West, I looked. The lie was dead,
And damned, and truth stood up instead.

XIV.

This glads me most, that I enjoyed
The heart of the joy, with my content
In watching Gismond unalloyed
By any doubt of the event :
God took that on him—I was bid
Watch Gismond for my part : I did.

XV.

Did I not watch him while he let
His armourer just brace his greaves,
Rivet his hauberk, on the fret
The while ! His foot . . . my memory leaves
No least stamp out, nor how anon
He pulled his ringing gauntlets on.

XVI.

And e'en before the trumpet's sound
Was finished, prone lay the false knight,
Prone as his lie, upon the ground :
Gismond flew at him, used no sleight
O' the sword, but open-breasted drove,
Cleaving till out the truth he clove.

XVII.

Which done, he dragged him to my feet
And said " Here die, but end thy breath
" In full confession, lest thou fleet
" From my first, to God's second death !
" Say, hast thou lied ? " And, " I have lied
" To God and her," he said, and died.

XVIII.

Then Gismond, kneeling to me, asked —What safe my heart holds, though no
word
Could I repeat now, if I tasked
My powers for ever, to a third
Dear even as you are. Pass the rest
Until I sank upon his breast.

XIX.

Over my head his arm he flung Against the world ; and scarce I felt
His sword (that dripped by me and swung)
A little shifted in its belt :
For he began to say the while
How South our home lay many a mile.

XX.

So 'mid the shouting multitude
We two walked forth to never more
Return. My cousins have pursued
Their life, untroubled as before
I vexed them. Gauthier's dwelling-place
God lighten ! May his soul find grace !

XXI.

Our elder boy has got the clear
Great brow ; tho' when his brother's black
Full eye shows scorn, it . . . Gismond here?
And have you brought my tercel¹ back?
I just was telling Adela
How many birds it struck since May.

THE BOY AND THE ANGEL

MORNING, evening, noon and night,
" Praise God ! " sang Theocrite.

Then to his poor trade he turned,
Whereby the daily meal was earned.

Hard he laboured, long and well ;
O'er his work the boy's curls fell.

¹ A male of the peregrine falcon.

But ever, at each period,
He stopped and sang, "Praise God!"

Then back again his curls he threw,
And cheerful turned to work anew.

Said Blaise, the listening monk, "Well done ;
"I doubt not thou art heard, my son :

"As well as if thy voice to-day
"Were praising God, the Pope's great way.

"This Easter Day, the Pope at Rome
"Praises God from Peter's dome."

Said Theocrite, "Would God that I "Might praise him, that great way, and die!"

Night passed, day shone,
And Theocrite was gone.

With God a day endures alway,
A thousand years are but a day.

God said in heaven, "Nor day nor night
"Now brings the voice of my delight."

Then Gabriel, like a rainbow's birth,
Spread his wings and sank to earth ;

Entered, in flesh, the empty cell,
Lived there, and played the craftsman well ;

And morning, evening, noon and night,
Praised God in place of Theocrite.

And from a boy, to youth he grew :
The man put off the stripling's hue :

The man matured and fell away
Into the season of decay :

And ever o'er the trade he bent,
And ever lived on earth content.

(He did God's will ; to him, all one
If on the earth or in the sun.)

God said, "A praise is in mine ear ;
"There is no doubt in it, no fear :

"So sing old worlds, and so
"New worlds that from my footstool go.

"Clearer loves sound other ways :
"I miss my little human praise."

Then forth sprang Gabriel's wings, off fell
The flesh disguise, remained the cell.

'Twas Easter Day : he flew to Rome,
And paused above Saint Peter's dome.

In the tiring-room close by
The great outer gallery,

With his holy vestments dight,
Stood the new Pope, Theocrite :

And all his past career
Came back upon him clear,

Since when, a boy, he plied his trade,
Till on his life the sickness weighed ;

And in his cell, when death drew near,
An angel in a dream brought cheer :

And rising from the sickness drear
He grew a priest, and now stood here.

To the East with praise he turned,
And on his sight the angel burned.

"I bore thee from thy craftsman's cell
"And set thee here ; I did not well.

"Vainly I left my angel-sphere,
"Vain was thy dream of many a year.

"Thy voice's praise seemed weak ; it dropped—
"Creation's chorus stopped !

"Go back and praise again
"The early way, while I remain.

“ With that weak voice of our disdain,
 “ Take up creation’s pausing strain.

“ Back to the cell and poor employ :
 “ Resume the craftsman and the boy !”

Theocrite grew old at home ;
 A new Pope dwelt in Peter’s dome.

One vanished as the other died :
 They sought God side by side.

INSTANS TYRANNUS.

I.

OF the million or two, more or less,
 I rule and possess,
 One man, for some cause undefined,
 Was least to my mind.

II.

I struck him, he grovelled of course—
 For, what was his force ?
 I pinned him to earth with my weight
 And persistence of hate :
 And he lay, would not moan, would not curse,
 As his lot might be worse.

III.

“ Were the object less mean, would he stand
 “ At the swing of my hand !
 “ For obscurity helps him and blots
 “ The hole where he squats.”
 So, I set my five wits on the stretch
 To inveigle the wretch.
 All in vain ! Gold and jewels I threw,
 Still he couched there perdue ;
 I tempted his blood and his flesh,
 Hid in roses my mesh,
 Choicest cates and the flagon’s best spilth :
 Still he kept to his filth.

IV.

Had he kith now or kin, were access
 To his heart, did I press :
 Just a son or a mother to seize !
 No such booty as these.

Were it simply a friend to pursue
 ’Mid my million or two,
 Who could pay me in person or pelf
 What he owes me himself !
 No : I could not but smile through my chafe :
 For the fellow lay safe
 As his mates do, the midge and the nit,
 —Through minuteness, to wit.

V.

Then a humour more great took its place
 At the thought of his face,
 The droop, the low cares of the mouth,
 The trouble uncouth
 ’Twi’xt the brows, all that air one is fain
 To put out of its pain.
 And, “ no !” I admonished myself,
 “ Is one mocked by an elf,
 “ Is one baffled by toad or by rat ?
 “ The gravamen’s in that !
 “ How the lion, who crouches to suit
 “ His back to my foot,
 “ Would admire that I stand in debate !
 “ But the small turns the great
 “ If it vexes you,—that is the thing !
 “ Toad or rat vex the king ?
 “ Though I waste half my realm to unearth
 “ Toad or rat, ’tis well worth !”

VI.

So, I soberly laid my last plan
 To extinguish the man.
 Round his creep-hole, with never a break
 Ran my fires for his sake ;
 Over-head, did my thunder combine
 With my underground mine :
 Till I looked from my labour content
 To enjoy the event.

VII.

When sudden . . . how think ye, the end ?
 Did I say “ without friend ” ?
 Say rather, from marge to blue marge
 The whole sky grew his targe
 With the sun’s self for visible boss,
 While an Arm ran across
 Which the earth heaved beneath like a breast
 Where the wretch was safe prest !

Steadfast and still the same
 On my object bent,
 While the hands give vent
 To my ardour and my aim
 And break into very flame—

XIV.

Then I reach, I must believe,
 Not her soul in vain,
 For to me again
 It reaches, and past retrieve
 Is wound in the toils I weave ;

XV.

And must follow as I require,
 As befits a thrall,
 Bringing flesh and all,
 Essence and earth-attire,
 To the source of the tractile fire :

XVI.

Till the house called hers, not mine,
 With a growing weight
 Seems to suffocate
 If she break not its leaden line
 And escape from its close confine.

XVII.

Out of doors into the night !
 On to the maze
 Of the wild wood-ways,
 Not turning to left nor right
 From the pathway, blind with sight—

XVIII.

Making thro' rain and wind
 O'er the broken shrubs,
 'Twixt the stems and stubs,
 With a still, composed, strong mind,
 Nor a care for the world behind—

XIX.

Swifter and still more swift,
 As the crowding peace
 Doth to joy increase
 In the wide blind eyes uplift
 Thro' the darkness and the drift !

XX.

While I—to the shape, I too
 Feel my soul dilate
 Nor a whit abate,
 And relax not a gesture due,
 As I see my belief come true.

XXI.

For, there ! have I drawn or no
 Life to that lip ?
 Do my fingers dip
 In a flame which again they throw
 On the cheek that breaks a-glow ?

XXII.

Ha ! was the hair so first ?
 What, unfileted,
 Made alive, and spread
 Through the void with a rich outburst,
 Chestnut gold-interspersed ?

XXIII.

Like the doors of a casket-shrine,
 See, on either side,
 Her two arms divide
 Till the heart betwixt makes sign,
 Take me, for I am thine !

XXIV.

“ Now—now ”—the door is heard !
 Hark, the stairs ! and near—
 Nearer—and here—
 “ Now ! ” and at call the third
 She enters without a word.

XXV.

On doth she march and on
 To the fancied shape ;
 It is, past escape,
 Herself, now : the dream is done
 And the shadow and she are one.

XXVI.

First I will pray. Do Thou
 That ownest the soul,
 Yet wilt grant control
 To another, nor disallow
 For a time, restrain me now !

XXVII.

I admonish me while I may,
Not to squander guilt,
Since require Thou wilt
At my hand its price one day !
What the price is, who can say ?

THE GLOVE.

(PETER RONSARD loquitur.)

“HEIGHO !” yawned one day King Francis, “Distance all value enhances !
“When a man’s busy, why, leisure
“Strikes him as wonderful pleasure :
“Faith, and at leisure once is he ?
“Straightway he wants to be busy.
“Here we’ve got peace ; and aghast I’m “Caught thinking war the true pastime.
“Is there a reason in metre ?
“Give us your speech, master Peter !”
I who, if mortal dare say so,
Ne’er am at loss with my Naso,
“Sire,” I replied, “joys prove cloudlets :
“Men are the merest Ixions”—
Here the King whistled aloud, “Let’s “—Heigho—go look at our lions !”
Such are the sorrowful chances
If you talk fine to King Francis.

And so, to the courtyard proceeding,
Our company, Francis was leading,
Increased by new followers tenfold
Before he arrived at the penfold ;
Lords, ladies, like clouds which bedizen
At sunset the western horizon.
And Sir De Lorge pressed ’mid the foremost
With the dame he professed to adore most.
Oh, what a face ! One by fits eyed
Her, and the horrible pitside ;
For the penfold surrounded a hollow
Which led where the eye scarce dared follow,
And shelved to the chamber secluded
Where Bluebeard, the great lion, brooded.
The King hailed his keeper, an Arab
As glossy and black as a scarab,¹

And bade him make sport and at once stir
Up and out of his den the old monster.
They opened a hole in the wire-work
Across it, and dropped there a firework,
And fled : one’s heart’s beating redoubled ;
A pause, while the pit’s mouth was troubled,
The blackness and silence so utter,
By the firework’s slow sparkling and sputter ;
Then earth in a sudden contortion
Gave out to our gaze her abortion.
Such a brute ! Were I friend Clement
Marot

(Whose experience of nature’s but narrow,
And whose faculties move in no small mist
When he versifies David the Psalmist)
I should study that brute to describe you Illum Juda Leonem de Tribu.
One’s whole blood grew curdling and creepy
To see the black mane, vast and heapy,
The tail in the air stiff and straining,
The wide eyes, nor waxing nor waning,
As over the barrier which bounded
His platform, and us who surrounded
The barrier, they reached and they rested
On space that might stand him in best stead :
For who knew, he thought, what the amaze-
ment,
The eruption of clatter and blaze meant,
And if, in this minute of wonder,
No outlet, ’mid lightning and thunder,
Lay broad, and, his shackles all shivered,
The lion at last was delivered ?
Ay, that was the open sky o’erhead !
And you saw by the flash on his forehead,
By the hope in those eyes wide and steady,
He was leagues in the desert already,
Driving the flocks up the mountain,
Or catlike couched hard by the fountain
To waylay the date-gathering negress :
So guarded he entrance or egress.
“How he stands !” quoth the King : “we may well swear,
 (“No novice, we’ve won our spurs elsewhere
“And so can afford the confession,)
“We exercise wholesome discretion
“In keeping aloof from his threshold ; “Once hold you, those jaws want no fresh
hold,

“ Their first would too pleasantly purloin
 “ The visitor’s brisket or surloin :
 “ But who’s he would prove so fool-hardy ?
 “ Not the best man of Marignan, pardie !”

The sentence no sooner was uttered,
 Than over the rails a glove fluttered,
 Fell close to the lion, and rested :
 The dame ’twas, who flung it and jested
 With life so, De Lorge had been wooing
 For months past ; he sat there pursuing
 His suit, weighing out with nonchalance
 Fine speeches like gold from a balance.

Sound the trumpet, no true knight’s a tarrier !
 De Lorge made one leap at the barrier, Walked straight to the glove,—while the lion

Ne’er moved, kept his far-reaching eye on
 The palm-tree-edged desert-spring’s sapphire,
 And the musky oiled skin of the Kaffir,—
 Picked it up, and as calmly retreated,
 Leaped back where the lady was seated,
 And full in the face of its owner
 Flung the glove.

“ Your heart’s queen, you dethrone her ?
 “ So should I !”—cried the King—“ ’twas mere vanity,
 “ Not love, set that task to humanity !”
 Lords and ladies alike turned with loathing
 From such a proved wolf in sheep’s clothing.

Not so, I ; for I caught an expression
 In her brow’s undisturbed self-possession
 Amid the Court’s scoffing and merriment,—
 As if from no pleasing experiment
 She rose, yet of pain not much heedful
 So long as the process was needful,—
 As if she had tried in a crucible,
 To what “ speeches like gold” were reducible,
 And, finding the finest prove copper,
 Felt the smoke in her face was but proper ;
 To know what she had not to trust to,
 Was worth all the ashes and dust too.
 She went out ’mid hooting and laughter ;
 Clement Marot stayed ; I followed after,

And asked, as a grace, what it all meant ?
 If she wished not the rash deed’s recalment ?
 “ For I”—so I spoke—“ am a poet :
 “ Human nature,—behoves that I know it !”

She told me, “ Too long had I heard “ Of the deed proved alone by the word :
 “ For my love—what De Lorge would not dare !
 “ With my scorn—what De Lorge could compare !
 “ And the endless descriptions of death
 “ He would brave when my lip formed a
 breath,
 “ I must reckon as braved, or, of course,
 “ Doubt his word—and moreover, perforce,
 “ For such gifts as no lady could spurn,
 “ Must offer my love in return.
 “ When I looked on your lion, it brought “ All the dangers at once to my thought,
 “ Encountered by all sorts of men,
 “ Before he was lodged in his den,—
 “ From the poor slave whose club or bare
 hands
 “ Dug the trap, set the snare on the sands,
 “ With no King and no Court to applaud,
 “ By no shame, should he shrink, overawed,

And feasted with love's perfect feast,
 To think I kill for her, at least,
 Body and soul and peace and fame,
 Alike youth's end and manhood's aim,
 —So is my spirit, as flesh with sin,
 Filled full, eaten out and in
 With the face of her, the eyes of her,
 The lips, the little chin, the stir
 Of shadow round her mouth ; and she —I'll tell you,—calmly would decree
 That I should roast at a slow fire,
 If that would compass her desire
 And make her one whom they invite
 To the famous ball to-morrow night.

There may be heaven ; there must be hell ;
 Meantime, there is our earth here—well !

THE ITALIAN IN ENGLAND.

THAT second time they hunted me
 From hill to plain, from shore to sea,
 And Austria, hounding far and wide
 Her blood-hounds thro' the country-side,
 Breathed hot and instant on my trace,—
 I made six days a hiding-place
 Of that dry green old aqueduct
 Where I and Charles, when boys, have plucked
 The fire-flies from the roof above,
 Bright creeping thro' the moss they love :
 —How long it seems since Charles was lost !
 Six days the soldiers crossed and crossed
 The country in my very sight ;
 And when that peril ceased at night,
 The sky broke out in red dismay
 With signal fires ; well, there I lay
 Close covered o'er in my recess,
 Up to the neck in ferns and cress,
 Thinking on Metternich our friend,
 And Charles's miserable end,
 And much beside, two days ; the third,
 Hunger o'ercame me when I heard
 The peasants from the village go
 To work among the maize ; you know,
 With us in Lombardy, they bring Provisions packed on mules, a string

With little bells that cheer their task,
 And casks, and boughs on every cask
 To keep the sun's heat from the wine ;
 These I let pass in jingling line,
 And, close on them, dear noisy crew,
 The peasants from the village, too ;
 For at the very rear would troop
 Their wives and sisters in a group
 To help, I knew. When these had passed,
 I threw my glove to strike the last,
 Taking the chance : she did not start,
 Much less cry out, but stooped apart,
 One instant rapidly glanced round,
 And saw me beckon from the ground.
 A wild bush grows and hides my crypt ;
 She picked my glove up while she stripped
 A branch off, then rejoined the rest
 With that ; my glove lay in her breast.
 Then I drew breath ; they disappeared :
 It was for Italy I feared.

An hour, and she returned alone
 Exactly where my glove was thrown.
 Meanwhile came many thoughts : on me
 Rested the hopes of Italy.
 I had devised a certain tale
 Which, when 'twas told her, could not fail
 Persuade a peasant of its truth ;
 I meant to call a freak of youth
 This hiding, and give hopes of pay,
 And no temptation to betray.
 But when I saw that woman's face,
 Its calm simplicity of grace,
 Our Italy's own attitude
 In which she walked thus far, and stood,
 Planting each naked foot so firm,
 To crush the snake and spare the worm—
 At first sight of her eyes, I said,
 “ I am that man upon whose head
 “ They fix the price, because I hate
 “ The Austrians over us : the State
 “ Will give you gold—oh, gold so much !—
 “ If you betray me to their clutch,
 “ And be your death, for aught I know,
 “ If once they find you saved their foe.
 “ Now, you must bring me food and drink,
 “ And also paper, pen and ink,

" And carry safe what I shall write
 " To Padua, which you'll reach at night
 " Before the duomo shuts ; go in,
 " And wait till Tenebræ begin ;
 " Walk to the third confessional,
 " Between the pillar and the wall,
 " And kneeling whisper, Whence comes peace ?
 " Say it a second time, then cease ;
 " And if the voice inside returns,
 " From Christ and Freedom ; what con- cerns
 " The cause of Peace ?—for answer, slip
 " My letter where you placed your lip ;
 " Then come back happy we have done
 " Our mother service—I, the son,
 " As you the daughter of our land ! "

Three mornings more, she took her stand
 In the same place, with the same eyes :
 I was no surer of sun-rise
 Than of her coming. We conferred
 Of her own prospects, and I heard
 She had a lover—stout and tall,
 She said—then let her eyelids fall,
 " He could do much "—as if some doubt
 Entered her heart,—then, passing out,
 " She could not speak for others, who
 " Had other thoughts ; herself she knew : "
 And so she brought me drink and food.
 After four days, the scouts pursued
 Another path ; at last arrived
 The help my Paduan friends contrived
 To furnish me : she brought the news.
 For the first time I could not choose
 But kiss her hand, and lay my own
 Upon her head—" This faith was shown " To Italy, our mother ; she " Uses my hand and blesses thee."
 She followed down to the sea-shore ;
 I left and never saw her more.

How very long since I have thought Concerning—much less wished for—ought Beside the good of Italy,
 For which I live and mean to die !
 I never was in love ; and since Charles proved false, what shall now convince.

My inmost heart I have a friend ?
 However, if I pleased to spend Real wishes on myself—say, three—
 I know at least what one should be.
 I would grasp Metternich until
 I felt his red wet throat distil
 In blood thro' these two hands. And next,
 —Nor much for that am I perplexed—
 Charles, perjured traitor, for his part,
 Should die slow of a broken heart
 Under his new employers. Last —Ah, there, what should I wish? For fast

Do I grow old and out of strength.
 If I resolved to seek at length
 My father's house again, how scared
 They all would look, and unprepared !
 My brothers live in Austria's pay
 —Disowned me long ago, men say ;
 And all my early mates who used
 To praise me so—perhaps induced
 More than one early step of mine—
 Are turning wise : while some opine
 " Freedom grows license," some suspect
 " Haste breeds delay," and recollect
 They always said, such premature
 Beginnings never could endure !
 So, with a sullen " All's for best,"
 The land seems settling to its rest.
 I think then, I should wish to stand
 This evening in that dear, lost land,
 Over the sea the thousand miles,
 And know if yet that woman smiles
 With the calm smile ; some little farm
 She lives in there, no doubt : what harm
 If I sat on the door-side bench,
 And, while her spindle made a trench
 Fantastically in the dust,
 Inquired of all her fortunes—just
 Her children's ages and their names,
 And what may be the husband's aims
 For each of them. I'd talk this out,
 And sit there, for an hour about,
 Then kiss her hand once more, and lay
 Mine on her head, and go my way.

So much for idle wishing—how
 It steals the time ! To business now.

THE ENGLISHMAN IN ITALY.

PIANO DI SORRENTO

FORTÙ, Fortù, my beloved one,
 Sit here by my side,
 On my knees put up both little feet !
 I was sure, if I tried,
 I could make you laugh spite of Scirocco.
 Now, open your eyes,
 Let me keep you amused till he vanish
 In black from the skies,
 With telling my memories over
 As you tell your beads ;
 All the Plain saw me gather, I garland
 —The flowers or the weeds.

Time for rain ! for your long hot dry Autumn
 Had net-worked with brown
 The white skin of each grape on the bunches,
 Marked like a quail's crown,
 Those creatures you make such account of,
 Whose heads,—speckled white
 Over brown like a great spider's back,
 As I told you last night,—
 Your mother bites off for her supper.
 Red-ripe as could be,
 Pomegranates were chapping and splitting
 In halves on the tree :
 And betwixt the loose walls of great flint-
 stone,
 Or in the thick dust
 On the path, or straight out of the rock-
 side,
 Wherever could thrust
 Some burnt sprig of bold hardy rock-flower
 Its yellow face up,
 For the prize were great butterflies fighting,
 Some five for one cup.
 So, I guessed, ere I got up this morning,
 What change was in store,
 By the quick rustle-down of the quail-nets
 Which woke me before
 I could open my shutter, made fast
 With a bough and a stone,
 And look thro' the twisted dead vine-twigs,
 Sole lattice that's known.

Quick and sharp rang the rings down the net-poles,
 While, busy beneath,
 Your priest and his brother tugged at them,
 The rain in their teeth.
 And out upon all the flat house-roofs
 Where split figs lay drying,
 The girls took the frails under cover :
 Nor use seemed in trying
 To get out the boats and go fishing,
 For, under the cliff,
 Fierce the black water frothed o'er the blind-
 rock.
 No seeing our skiff
 Arrive about noon from Amalfi,
 —Our fisher arrive,
 And pitch down his basket before us,
 All trembling alive
 With pink and grey jellies, your sea-fruit ;
 You touch the strange lumps,
 And mouths gape there, eyes open, all manner
 Of horns and of humps,
 Which only the fisher looks grave at,
 While round him like imps
 Cling screaming the children as naked
 And brown as his shrimps ;
 Himself too as bare to the middle
 —You see round his neck
 The string and its brass coin suspended,
 That saves him from wreck.
 But to-day not a boat reached Salerno,
 So back, to a man,
 Came our friends, with whose help in the vineyards
 Grape-harvest began.
 In the vat, halfway up in our house-side,
 Like blood the juice spins,
 While your brother all bare-legged is dancing
 Till breathless he grins
 Dead-beaten in effort on effort
 To keep the grapes under,
 Since still when he seems all but master,
 In pours the fresh plunder
 From girls who keep coming and going
 With basket on shoulder,
 And eyes shut against the rain's driving ;
 Your girls that are older,—

Was above me, and round me the mountains,
 And under, the sea,
 And within me my heart to bear witness
 What was and shall be.
 Oh, heaven and the terrible crystal !
 No rampart excludes
 Your eye from the life to be lived
 In the blue solitudes.
 Oh, those mountains, their infinite movement !
 Still moving with you ;
 For, ever some new head and breast of them
 Thrusts into view
 To observe the intruder ; you see it
 If quickly you turn
 And, before they escape you surprise them.
 They grudge you should learn
 How the soft plains they look on, lean over
 And love (they pretend) —Cower beneath them, the flat sea-pine crouches,
 The wild fruit-trees bend,
 E'en the myrtle-leaves curl, shrink and shut :
 All is silent and grave :
 'Tis a sensual and timorous beauty,
 How fair ! but a slave.
 So, I turned to the sea ; and there slumbered
 As greenly as ever
 Those isles of the siren, your Galli ;
 No ages can sever
 The Three, nor enable their sister
 To join them,—halfway
 On the voyage, she looked at Ulysses—
 No farther to-day,
 Tho' the small one, just launched in the wave,
 Watches breast-high and steady
 From under the rock, her bold sister
 Swum halfway already.
 Fortù, shall we sail there together
 And see from the sides
 Quite new rocks show their faces, new haunts
 Where the siren abides ?
 Shall we sail round and round them, close over
 The rocks, tho' unseen,
 That ruffle the grey glassy water
 To glorious green ?
 Then scramble from splinter to splinter,
 Reach land and explore,

On the largest, the strange square black turret
 With never a door,
 Just a loop to admit the quick lizards ;
 Then, stand there and hear
 The birds' quiet singing, that tells us
 What life is, so clear ?
 —The secret they sang to Ulysses
 When, ages ago,
 He heard and he knew this life's secret
 I hear and I know.
 Ah, see ! The sun breaks o'er Calvano ;
 He strikes the great gloom
 And flutters it o'er the mount's summit
 In airy gold fume.
 All is over. Look out, see the gipsy,
 Our tinker and smith,
 Has arrived, set up bellows and forge,
 And down-squatted forthwith
 To his hammering, under the wall there ;
 One eye keeps aloof
 The urchins that itch to be putting
 His jews'-harps to proof,
 While the other, thro' locks of curled wire,
 Is watching how sleek
 Shines the hog, come to share in the windfall
 —Chew, abbot's own cheek !
 All is over. Wake up and come out now,
 And down let us go,
 And see the fine things got in order
 At church for the show
 Of the Sacrament, set forth this evening.
 To-morrow's the Feast
 Of the Rosary's Virgin, by no means
 Of Virgins the least,
 As you'll hear in the off-hand discourse
 Which (all nature, no art)
 The Dominican brother, these three weeks,
 Was getting by heart.
 Not a pillar nor post but is dizened
 With red and blue papers ;
 All the roof waves with ribbons, each altar
 A-blaze with long tapers ;
 But the great masterpiece is the scaffold
 Rigged glorious to hold
 All the fiddlers and fifers and drummers
 And trumpeters bold,

Not afraid of Bellini nor Auber,
 Who, when the priest's hoarse,
 Will strike us up something that's brisk
 For the feast's second course.
 And then will the flaxen-wigged Image
 Be carried in pomp
 Thro' the plain, while in gallant procession
 The priests mean to stomp.
 All round the glad church lie old bottles
 With gunpowder stopped,
 Which will be, when the Image re-enters,
 Religiously popped ;
 And at night from the crest of Calvano
 Great bonfires will hang,
 On the plain will the trumpets join chorus,
 And more poppers bang.
 At all events, come—to the garden
 As far as the wall ;
 See me tap with a hoe on the plaster
 Till out there shall fall
 A scorpion with wide angry nippers !

—“Such trifles !” you say ?
 Fortù, in my England at home,
 Men meet gravely to-day
 And debate, if abolishing Corn-laws
 Be righteous and wise
 —If 'twere proper, Scirocco should vanish
 In black from the skies !

IN A GONDOLA.

He sings.

I SEND my heart up to thee, all my heart
 In this my singing.
 For the stars help me, and the sea bears part ;
 The very night is clinging
 Closer to Venice' streets to leave one space
 Above me, whence thy face
 May light my joyous heart to thee its dwelling-
 place.

She speaks.

Say after me, and try to say
 My very words, as if each word
 Came from you of your own accord,
 In your own voice, in your own way :

“This woman's heart and soul and brain
 “Are mine as much as this gold chain
 “She bids me wear ; which” (say again)
 “I choose to make by cherishing
 “A precious thing, or choose to fling
 “Over the boat-side, ring by ring.”
 And yet once more say . . . no word more !
 Since words are only words. Give o'er !

Unless you call me, all the same,
 Familiarly by my pet name,
 Which if the Three should hear you call,
 And me reply to, would proclaim
 At once our secret to them all.
 Ask of me, too, command me, blame—
 Do, break down the partition-wall
 'Twixt us, the daylight world beholds
 Curtained in dusk and splendid folds !
 What's left but—all of me to take ?
 I am the Three's : prevent them, slake
 Your thirst ! 'Tis said, the Arab sage,
 In practising with gems, can loose
 Their subtle spirit in his cruce
 And leave but ashes : so, sweet mage,
 Leave them my ashes when thy use
 Sucks out my soul, thy heritage !

He sings.

I.

Past we glide, and past, and past !
 What's that poor Agnese doing
 Where they make the shutters fast ?
 Grey Zanobi's just a-wooing
 To his couch the purchased bride :
 Past we glide !

II.

Past we glide, and past, and past !
 Why's the Pucci Palace flaring
 Like a beacon to the blast ?
 Guests by hundreds, not one caring
 If the dear host's neck were wried :
 Past we glide !

She sings.

I.

The moth's kiss, first !
 Kiss me as if you made believe
 You were not sure, this eve,

How my face, your flower, had pursed
Its petals up ; so, here and there
You brush it, till I grow aware
Who wants me, and wide ope I burst.

II.

The bee's kiss, now !
Kiss me as if you entered gay
My heart at some noonday,
A bud that dares not disallow
The claim, so all is rendered up,
And passively its shattered cup
Over your head to sleep I bow.

He sings.

I.

What are we two ?
I am a Jew,
And carry thee, farther than friends can pursue,
To a feast of our tribe ;
Where they need thee to bribe
The devil that blasts them unless he imbibe Thy . . . Scatter the vision for ever ! And
now,
As of old, I am I, thou art thou !

II.

Say again, what we are ?
The sprite of a star,
I lure thee above where the destinies bar
My plumes their full play
Till a ruddier ray
Than my pale one announce there is withering away
Some . . . Scatter the vision for ever ! And
now,
As of old, I am I, thou art thou !

He muses.

Oh, which were best, to roam or rest ?
The land's lap or the water's breast ?
To sleep on yellow millet-sheaves,
Or swim in lucid shallows just Eluding water-lily leaves,
An inch from Death's black fingers, thrust
To lock you, whom release he must ;
Which life were best on Summer eves ?

He speaks, musing.

Lie back ; could thought of mine improve
you ?
From this shoulder let there spring
A wing ; from this, another wing ;
Wings, not legs and feet, shall move you !
Snow-white must they spring, to blend
With your flesh, but I intend
They shall deepen to the end,
Broader, into burning gold,
Till both wings crescent-wise enfold
Your perfect self, from 'neath your feet
To o'er your head, where, lo, they meet
As if a million sword-blades hurled
Defiance from you to the world !

Rescue me thou, the only real !
And scare away this mad ideal
That came, nor motions to depart !
Thanks ! Now, stay ever as thou art !

Still he muses.

I.

What if the Three should catch at last Thy serenader ? While there's cast
Paul's cloak about my head, and fast
Gian pinions me, Himself has past
His stylet thro' my back ; I reel ;
And . . . is it thou I feel ?

II.

They trail me, these three godless knaves,
Past every church that saints and saves,
Nor stop till, where the cold sea raves
By Lido's wet accursed graves,
They scoop mine, roll me to its brink,
And . . . on thy breast I sink !

She replies, musing.

Dip your arm o'er the boat-side, elbow-deep,
As I do : thus : were death so unlike sleep,
Caught this way ? Death's to fear from flame or steel,
Or poison doubtless ; but from water-
feel !

Contrive your Zorzi somehow meets
My Zanze! If the ribbon's black,
The Three are watching: keep away!

II.

Your gondola—let Zorzi wreath
A mesh of water-weeds about
Its prow, as if he unaware
Had struck some quay or bridge-foot stair!
That I may throw a paper out
As you and he go underneath.

There's Zanze's vigilant taper; safe are we.
Only one minute more to-night with me?
Resume your past self of a month ago!
Be you the bashful gallant, I will be
The lady with the colder breast than snow.
Now bow you, as becomes, nor touch my hand
More than I touch yours when I step to land,
And say, "All thanks, Siora!"—

Heart to heart

And lips to lips! Yet once more, ere we part,
Clasp me and make me thine, as mine thou art! [He is surprised, and stabbed.]
It was ordained to be so, sweet!—and best
Comes now, beneath thine eyes, upon thy breast.
Still kiss me! Care not for the cowards! Care
Only to put aside thy beauteous hair
My blood will hurt! The Three, I do not scorn
To death, because they never lived: but I Have lived indeed, and so—(yet one more kiss)—can die!

W A R I N G.

[Mr. Alfred Domett, C.M.G., author of "Ranolf and Amohia," full of descriptions of
New Zealand scenery.]

I.

I.

WHAT'S become of Waring
Since he gave us all the slip,
Chose land-travel or seafaring,
Boots and chest or staff and scrip,
Rather than pace up and down
Any longer London town?

II.

Who'd have guessed it from his lip
Or his brow's accustomed bearing,
On the night he thus took ship
Or started landward?—little caring
For us, it seems, who supped together
(Friends of his too, I remember)
And walked home thro' the merry weather,
The snowiest in all December.
I left his arm that night myself
For what's-his-name's, the new prose-poet
Who wrote the book there, on the shelf—
How, forsooth, was I to know it
If Waring meant to glide away
Like a ghost at break of day?
Never looked he half so gay!

III.

He was prouder than the devil:
How he must have cursed our revel!
Ay and many other meetings,
Indoor visits, outdoor greetings,
As up and down he paced this London,
With no work done, but great works undone,
Where scarce twenty knew his name.
Why not, then, have earlier spoken,
Written, bustled? Who's to blame
If your silence kept unbroken?
"True, but there were sundry jottings,
"Stray-leaves, fragments, blurs and blottings,
"Certain first steps were achieved
"Already which"—(is that your meaning?)
"Had well borne out who'er believed
"In more to come!" But who goes gleaning
Hedgeside chance-glades, while full-sheaved
Stand cornfields by him? Pride, o'erweening
Pride alone, puts forth such claims
O'er the day's distinguished names.

IV.

Meantime, how much I loved him,
I find out now I've lost him.
I who cared not if I moved him,
Who could so carelessly accost him,
Henceforth never shall get free
Of his ghostly company,

His eyes that just a little wink
 As deep I go into the merit
 Of this and that distinguished spirit—
 His cheeks' raised colour, soon to sink,
 As long I dwell on some stupendous
 And tremendous (Heaven defend us !)
 Monstr'-inform'-ingens-horrend-ous
 Demoniaco-seraphic
 Penman's latest piece of graphic.
 Nay, my very wrist grows warm
 With his dragging weight of arm.
 E'en so, swimmingly appears,
 Through one's after-supper musings,
 Some lost lady of old years
 With her beauteous vain endeavour
 And goodness unrepaid as ever ;
 The face, accustomed to refusings,
 We, puppies that we were . . . Oh never Surely, nice of conscience, scrupled
 Being aught like false, forsooth, to ?
 Telling aught but honest truth to ?
 What a sin, had we centupled
 Its possessor's grace and sweetness !
 No ! she heard in its completeness
 Truth, for truth's a weighty matter,
 And truth, at issue, we can't flatter !
 Well, 'tis done with ; she's exempt
 From damning us thro' such a sally ;
 And so she glides, as down a valley,
 Taking up with her contempt,
 Past our reach ; and in, the flowers
 Shut her unregarded hours.

v.

Oh, could I have him back once more,
 This Waring, but one half-day more !
 Back, with the quiet face of yore,
 So hungry for acknowledgment
 Like mine ! I'd fool him to his bent.
 Feed, should not he, to heart's content ?
 I'd say, "to only have conceived,
 "Planned your great works, apart from progress,
 "Surpasses little works achieved !"
 I'd lie so, I should be believed.
 I'd make such havoc of the claims
 Of the day's distinguished names
 To feast him with, as feasts an ogress

Her feverish sharp-toothed gold-crowned
 child !
 Or as one feasts a creature rarely
 Captured here, unreconciled
 To capture ; and completely gives
 Its pettish humours license, barely
 Requiring that it lives.

VI.

Ichabod, Ichabod,
 The glory is departed !
 Travels Waring East away ?
 Who, of knowledge, by hearsay,
 Reports a man upstarted
 Somewhere as a god,
 Hordes grown European-hearted,
 Millions of the wild made tame
 On a sudden at his fame ?
 In Vishnu-land what Avatar ?
 Or who in Moscow, toward the Czar,
 With the demurest of footfalls
 Over the Kremlin's pavement bright
 With serpentine and syenite,¹
 Steps, with five other Generals
 That simultaneously take snuff,
 For each to have pretext enough
 And kerchiefwise unfold his sash
 Which, softness' self, is yet the stuff
 To hold fast where a steel chain snaps,
 And leave the grand white neck no gash ?
 Waring in Moscow, to those rough
 Cold northern natures born perhaps,
 Like the lambwhite maiden dear
 From the circle of mute kings
 Unable to repress the tear,
 Each as his sceptre down he flings,
 To Dian's fane at Taurica,
 Where now a captive priestess, she alway
 Mingles her tender grave Hellenic speech
 With theirs, tuned to the hailstone-beaten beach
 As pours some pigeon, from the myrrhy lands
 Rapt by the whirlblast to fierce Scythian strands
 Where breed the swallows, her melodious cry
 Amid their barbarous twitter !
 In Russia ? Never ! Spain were fitter !

Ay, most likely 'tis in Spain
 That we and Waring meet again
 Now, while he turns down that cool narrow lane
 Into the blackness, out of grave Madrid
 All fire and shine, abrupt as when there's slid
 Its stiff gold blazing pall
 From some black coffin-lid.
 Or, best of all,
 I love to think
 The leaving us was just a feint ;
 Back here to London did he slink,
 And now works on without a wink
 Of sleep, and we are on the brink
 Of something great in fresco-paint :
 Some garret's ceiling, walls and floor,
 Up and down and o'er and o'er
 He splashes, as none splashed before
 Since great Caldara Polidore.¹
 Or Music means this land of ours
 Some favour yet, to pity won
 By Purcell from his Rosy Bowers,—
 "Give me my so-long promised son,
 "Let Waring end what I begun!"
 Then down he creeps and out he steals
 Only when the night conceals
 His face ; in Kent 'tis cherry-time,
 Or hops are picking : or at prime
 Of March he wanders as, too happy,
 Years ago when he was young,
 Some mild eve when woods grew sappy
 And the early moths had sprung
 To life from many a trembling sheath
 Woven the warm boughs beneath ;
 While small birds said to themselves
 What should soon be actual song,
 And young gnats, by tens and twelves,
 Made as if they were the throng
 That crowd around and carry aloft
 The sound they have nursed, so sweet and
 pure,
 Out of a myriad noises soft,
 Into a tone that can endure
 Amid the noise of a July noon
 When all God's creatures crave their boon,
 All at once and all in tune,

And get it, happy as Waring then,
 Having first within his ken
 What a man might do with men :
 And far too glad, in the even-glow,
 To mix with the world he meant to take Into his hand, he told you, so—
 And out of it his world to make,
 To contract and to expand
 As he shut or oped his hand.
 Oh Waring, what's to really be ?
 A clear stage and a crowd to see !
 Some Garrick, say, out shall not he
 The heart of Hamlet's mystery pluck ?
 Or, where most unclean beasts are rife,
 Some Junius—am I right?—shall tuck
 His sleeve, and forth with flaying-knife !
 Some Chatterton shall have the luck
 Of calling Rowley into life !
 Some one shall somehow run a muck
 With this old world for want of strife
 Sound asleep. Contrive, contrive
 To rouse us, Waring ! Who's alive ?
 Our men scarce seem in earnest now.
 Distinguished names !—but 'tis, somehow,
 As if they played at being names
 Still more distinguished, like the games
 Of children. Turn our sport to earnest
 With a visage of the sternest !
 Bring the real times back, confessed
 Still better than our very best !

II.

I.

"WHEN I last saw Waring . . ."
 (How all turned to him who spoke !
 You saw Waring ? Truth or joke ?
 In land-travel or sea-faring ?)

II.

"We were sailing by Triest
 "Where a day or two we harboured :
 "A sunset was in the West,
 "When, looking over the vessel's side,
 "One of our company espied
 "A sudden speck to larboard.

A LIGHT WOMAN.

I.

So far as our story approaches the end,
Which do you pity the most of us three?—
My friend, or the mistress of my friend
With her wanton eyes, or me?

II

My friend was already too good to lose,
And seemed in the way of improvement yet,
When she crossed his path with her huntingnoose
And over him drew her net.

III.

When I saw him tangled in her toils,
A shame, said I, if she adds just him
To her nine-and-ninety other spoils,
The hundredth for a whim!

IV.

And before my friend be wholly hers,
How easy to prove to him, I said,
An eagle's the game her pride prefers,
Though she snaps at a wren instead!

V.

So, I gave her eyes my own eyes to take,
My hand sought hers as in earnest need,
And round she turned for my noble sake,
And gave me herself indeed.

VI.

The eagle am I, with my fame in the world,
The wren is he, with his maiden face.
—You look away and your lip is curled?
Patience, a moment's space!

VII.

For see, my friend goes shaking and white;
He eyes me as the basilisk:
I have turned, it appears, his day to night,
Eclipsing his sun's disk.

VIII.

And I did it, he thinks, as a very thief:
“Though I love her—that, he compre-
hends—
“One should master one's passions, (love, in chief)
“And be loyal to one's friends!”

IX.

And she,—she lies in my hand as tame
As a pear late basking over a wall;
Just a touch to try and off it came;
'Tis mine,—can I let it fall?

X.

With no mind to eat it, that's the worst!
Were it thrown in the road, would the case assist?
'Twas quenching a dozen blue-flies' thirst
When I gave its stalk a twist.

XI.

And I,—what I seem to my friend, you see:
What I soon shall seem to his love, you
guess:
What I seem to myself, do you ask of me?
No hero, I confess.

XII.

'Tis an awkward thing to play with souls,
And matter enough to save one's own:
Yet think of my friend, and the burning coals
He played with for bits of stone!

XIII.

One likes to show the truth for the truth;
That the woman was light is very true:
But suppose she says,—Never mind that
youth!
What wrong have I done to you?

XIV.

Well, any how, here the story stays,
So far at least as I understand;
And, Robert Browning, you writer of plays,
Here's a subject made to your hand!

THE LAST RIDE TOGETHER.

I.

I SAID—Then, dearest, since 'tis so,
 Since now at length my fate I know,
 Since nothing all my love avails,
 Since all, my life seemed meant for, fails, Since this was written and needs must
 be—

My whole heart rises up to bless
 Your name in pride and thankfulness !
 Take back the hope you gave,—I claim
 Only a memory of the same,
 —And this beside, if you will not blame,
 Your leave for one more last ride with me.

II.

My mistress bent that brow of hers ;
 Those deep dark eyes where pride demurs
 When pity would be softening through,
 Fixed me a breathing-while or two

With life or death in the balance : right !
 The blood replenished me again ;
 My last thought was at least not vain :
 I and my mistress, side by side
 Shall be together, breathe and ride,
 So, one day more am I deified.

Who knows but the world may end tonight ?

III.

Hush ! if you saw some western cloud
 All billowy-bosomed, over-bowed
 By many benedictions—sun's
 And moon's and evening-star's at once—

And so, you, looking and loving best,
 Conscious grew, your passion drew
 Cloud, sunset, moonrise, star-shine too,
 Down on you, near and yet more near,
 Till flesh must fade for heaven was here !—
 Thus leant she and lingered—joy and fear !
 Thus lay she a moment on my breast.

IV.

Then we began to ride. My soul
 Smoothed itself out, a long-cramped scroll

Freshening and fluttering in the wind.
 Past hopes already lay behind.

What need to strive with a life awry ?
 Had I said that, had I done this,
 So might I gain, so might I miss.
 Might she have loved me ? just as well
 She might have hated, who can tell !
 Where had I been now if the worst befell ?
 And here we are riding, she and I.

V.

Fail I alone, in words and deeds ?
 Why, all men strive and who succeeds ?
 We rode ; it seemed my spirit flew,
 Saw other regions, cities new,
 As the world rushed by on either side.
 I thought,—All labour, yet no less
 Bear up beneath their unsuccess.
 Look at the end of work, contrast
 The petty done, the undone vast,
 This present of theirs with the hopeful
 past !

I hoped she would love me ; here we ride.

VI.

What hand and brain went ever paired ?
 What heart alike conceived and dared ?
 What act proved all its thought had
 been ?

What will but felt the fleshly screen ?

We ride and I see her bosom heave.
 There's many a crown for who can reach.
 Ten lines, a statesman's life in each !
 The flag stuck on a heap of bones,
 A soldier's doing ! what atones ?
 They scratch his name on the Abbey-
 stones.

My riding is better, by their leave.

VII.

What does it all mean, poet ? Well,
 Your brains beat into rhythm, you tell
 What we felt only ; you expressed
 You hold things beautiful the best,
 And pace them in rhyme so, side by side.

'Tis something, nay 'tis much : but then,
 Have you yourself what's best for men?
 Are you—poor, sick, old ere your time—
 Nearer one whit your own sublime
 Than we who never have turned a rhyme?
 Sing, riding's a joy! For me, I ride.

VIII.

And you, great sculptor—so, you gave
 A score of years to Art, her slave,
 And that's your Venus, whence we turn
 To yonder girl that fords the burn!
 You acquiesce, and shall I repine?
 What, man of music, you grown grey
 With notes and nothing else to say,
 Is this your sole praise from a friend,
 "Greatly his opera's strains intend,
 "Put in music we know how fashions
 end!"
 I gave my youth; but we ride, in fine.

IX.

Who knows what's fit for us? Had fate
 Proposed bliss here should sublimate
 My being—had I signed the bond—
 Still one must lead some life beyond,
 Have a bliss to die with, dim-descried.
 This foot once planted on the goal,
 This glory-garland round my soul,
 Could I descry such? Try and test!
 I sink back shuddering from the quest.
 Earth being so good, would heaven seem
 best?
 Now, heaven and she are beyond this ride.

X.

And yet—she has not spoke so long!
 What if heaven be that, fair and strong
 At life's best, with our eyes upturned
 Whither life's flower is first discerned,
 We, fixed so, ever should so abide?
 What if we still ride on, we two
 With life for ever old yet new,
 Changed not in kind but in degree,
 The instant made eternity,—
 And heaven just prove that I and she Ride, ride together, for ever ride?

THE PIED PIPER OF HAMELIN; A CHILD'S STORY.

(Written for, and inscribed to, W. M. the Younger.)

I.

HAMELIN Town's in Brunswick,
 By famous Hanover city;
 The river Weser, deep and wide,
 Washes its wall on the southern side;
 A pleasanter spot you never spied;
 But, when begins my ditty,
 Almost five hundred years ago,
 To see the townsfolk suffer so
 From vermin, was a pity.

II.

Rats!
 They fought the dogs and killed the cats,
 And bit the babies in the cradles,
 And ate the cheeses out of the vats,
 And licked the soup from the cooks' own ladles,
 Split open the kegs of salted sprats,
 Made nests inside men's Sunday hats,
 And even spoiled the women's chats
 By drowning their speaking
 With shrieking and squeaking
 In fifty different sharps and flats.

III.

At last the people in a body
 To the Town Hall came flocking:
 "'Tis clear," cried they, "our Mayor's a noddy;
 "And as for our Corporation—shocking
 "To think we buy gowns lined with ermine
 "For dolts that can't or won't determine
 "What's best to rid us of our vermin!
 "You hope, because you're old and obese,
 "To find in the furry civic robe ease?
 "Rouse up, sirs! Give your brains a racking
 "To find the remedy we're lacking,
 "Or, sure as fate, we'll send you packing!"
 At this the Mayor and Corporation
 Quaked with a mighty consternation.

From street to street he piped advancing,
 And step for step they followed dancing,
 Until they came to the river Weser,
 Wherein all plunged and perished !
 —Save one who, stout as Julius Cæsar,
 Swam across and lived to carry
 (As he, the manuscript he cherished)
 To Rat-land home his commentary :
 Which was, “At the first shrill notes of the pipe,
 “I heard a sound as of scraping tripe,
 “And putting apples, wondrous ripe,
 “Into a cider-press’s gripe :
 “And a moving away of pickle-tub-boards,
 “And a leaving ajar of conserve-cupboards,
 “And a drawing the corks of train-oil-flasks,
 “And a breaking the hoops of butter-casks :
 “And it seemed as if a voice “(Sweeter far than by harp or by psaltery
 “Is breathed) called out, ‘Oh rats, rejoice !
 “‘The world is grown to one vast drysal-tery !
 “‘So munch on, crunch on, take your nuncheon,
 “‘Breakfast, supper, dinner, luncheon !’
 “And just as a bulky sugar-puncheon,
 “All ready staved, like a great sun shone
 “Glorious scarce an inch before me,
 “Just as methought it said, ‘Come, bore me !’
 “—I found the Weser rolling o’er me.”

VIII.

You should have heard the Hamelin people
 Ringing the bells till they rocked the steeple.
 “Go,” cried the Mayor, “and get long poles,
 “Poke out the nests and block up the holes !
 “Consult with carpenters and builders,
 “And leave in our town not even a trace
 “Of the rats !”—when suddenly, up the face
 Of the Piper perked in the market-place,
 With a, “First, if you please, my thousand guilders !”

IX.

A thousand guilders ! The Mayor looked
 blue ;
 So did the Corporation too.
 For council dinners made rare havoc
 With Claret, Moselle, Vin-de-Grave, Hock ;

And half the money would replenish
 Their cellar’s biggest butt with Rhenish.
 To pay this sum to a wandering fellow
 With a gipsy coat of red and yellow !
 “Beside,” quoth the Mayor with a knowing wink,
 “Our business was done at the river’s brink ;
 “We saw with our eyes the vermin sink,
 “And what’s dead can’t come to life, I think.
 “So, friend, we’re not the folks to shrink “From the duty of giving you something for drink,
 “And a matter of money to put in your poke ;
 “But as for the guilders, what we spoke
 “Of them, as you very well know, was in joke.
 “Beside, our losses have made us thrifty.
 “A thousand guilders ! Come, take fifty !”

X.

The Piper’s face fell, and he cried
 “No trifling ! I can’t wait, beside !
 “I’ve promised to visit by dinnertime “Bagdat, and accept the prime “Of the Head-Cook’s pottage, all he’s rich in,
 “For having left, in the Caliph’s kitchen,
 “Of a nest of scorpions no survivor :
 “With him I proved no bargain-driver,
 “With you, don’t think I’ll bate a stiver !
 “And folks who put me in a passion
 “May find me pipe after another fashion.”

XI.

“How ?” cried the Mayor, “d’ye think I brook
 “Being worse treated than a Cook ?
 “Insulted by a lazy ribald
 “With idle pipe and vesture piebald ?
 “You threaten us, fellow ? Do your worst,
 “Blow your pipe there till you burst !”

XII.

Once more he stepped into the street
 And to his lips again
 Laid his long pipe of smooth straight cane ;
 And ere he blew three notes (such sweet
 Soft notes as yet musician’s cunning
 Never gave the enraptured air)

There was a rustling that seemed like a bustling
Of merry crowds justling at pitching and hustling,
Small feet were pattering, wooden shoes
clattering,
Little hands clapping and little tongues chattering,
And, like fowls in a farm-yard when barley
is scattering,
Out came the children running.
All the little boys and girls,
With rosy cheeks and flaxen curls,
And sparkling eyes and teeth like pearls,
Tripping and skipping, ran merrily after
The wonderful music with shouting and laughter.

XIII.

The Mayor was dumb, and the Council stood
As if they were changed into blocks of wood,
Unable to move a step, or cry
To the children merrily skipping by,
—Could only follow with the eye
That joyous crowd at the Piper's back.
But how the Mayor was on the rack,
And the wretched Council's bosoms beat,
As the Piper turned from the High Street
To where the Weser rolled its waters
Right in the way of their sons and daughters !
However he turned from South to West,
And to Koppelberg Hill his steps addressed,
And after him the children pressed ;
Great was the joy in every breast.
" He never can cross that mighty top !
" He's forced to let the piping drop,
" And we shall see our children stop !"
When, lo, as they reached the mountain-
side,
A wondrous portal opened wide,
As if a cavern was suddenly hollowed ;
And the Piper advanced and the children followed,
And when all were in to the very last,
The door in the mountain-side shut fast.
Did I say, all? No ! One was lame,
And could not dance the whole of the way ;
And in after years, if you would blame
His sadness, he was used to say,—

" It's dull in our town since my playmates left !
" I can't forget that I'm bereft
" Of all the pleasant sights they see,
" Which the Piper also promised me.
" For he led us, he said, to a joyous land,
" Joining the town and just at hand,
" Where waters gushed and fruit-trees grew
" And flowers put forth a fairer hue,
" And everything was strange and new ;
" The sparrows were brighter than peacocks
here,
" And their dogs outran our fallow deer,
" And honey-bees had lost their stings,
" And horses were born with eagles' wings :
" And just as I became assured
" My lame foot would be speedily cured,
" The music stopped and I stood still,
" And found myself outside the hill,
" Left alone against my will,
" To go now limping as before,
" And never hear of that country more !"

XIV.

Alas, alas for Hamelin !

There came into many a burgher's pate
A text which says that heaven's gate
Opes to the rich at as easy rate
As the needle's eye takes a camel in !
The mayor sent East, West, North and South,
To offer the Piper, by word of mouth,
Wherever it was men's lot to find him,
Silver and gold to his heart's content,
If he'd only return the way he went,
And bring the children behind him.
But when they saw 'twas a lost endeavour,
And Piper and dancers were gone for ever,
They made a decree that lawyers never Should think their records dated duly
If, after the day of the month and year,
These words did not as well appear,
" And so long after what happened here
" On the Twenty-second of July,
" Thirteen hundred and seventy-six :"
And the better in memory to fix
The place of the children's last retreat,
They called it, the Pied Piper's Street—
Where any one playing on pipe or tabor
Was sure for the future to lose his labour.

Nor suffered they hostelry or tavern
 To shock with mirth a street so solemn ;
 But opposite the place of the cavern
 They wrote the story on a column,
 And on the great church-window painted
 The same, to make the world acquainted
 How their children were stolen away,
 And there it stands to this very day.
 And I must not omit to say
 That in Transylvania there's a tribe
 Of alien people who ascribe
 The outlandish ways and dress
 On which their neighbours lay such stress,
 To their fathers and mothers having risen
 Out of some subterraneous prison
 Into which they were trepanned
 Long time ago in a mighty band
 Out of Hamelin town in Brunswick land,
 But how or why, they don't understand.

XV.

So, Willy, let me and you be wipers
 Of scores out with all men—especially pipers !
 And, whether they pipe us free from rats or from mice,
 If we've promised them aught, let us keep our promise !

THE FLIGHT OF THE DUCHESS.

I.

YOU'RE my friend :
 I was the man the Duke spoke to ;
 I helped the Duchess to cast off his yoke, too ;
 So here's the tale from beginning to end,
 My friend !

II.

Ours is a great wild country :
 If you climb to our castle's top,
 I don't see where your eye can stop ;
 For when you've passed the cornfield country,
 Where vineyards leave off, flocks are packed,
 And sheep-range leads to cattle-tract,
 And cattle-tract to open-chase,
 And open-chase to the very base
 Of the mountain where, at a funeral pace,

Round about, solemn and slow,
 One by one, row after row,
 Up and up the pine-trees go,
 So, like black priests up, and so
 Down the other side again
 To another greater, wilder country,
 That's one vast red drear burnt-up plain,
 Branched through and through with many a vein
 Whence iron's dug, and copper's dealt ;
 Look right, look left, look straight before,— Beneath they mine, above they smelt,
 Copper-ore and iron-ore,
 And forge and furnace mould and melt,
 And so on, more and ever more,
 Till at the last, for a bounding belt,
 Comes the salt sand hoar of the great sea-
 shore,
 —And the whole is our Duke's country.

III.

I was born the day this present Duke was—
 (And O, says the song, ere I was old !)
 In the castle where the other Duke was—
 (When I was happy and young, not old !)
 I in the kennel, he in the bower :
 We are of like age to an hour.
 My father was huntsman in that day ;
 Who has not heard my father say
 That, when a boar was brought to bay,
 Three times, four times out of five,
 With his huntspear he'd contrive
 To get the killing-place transfixed,
 And pin him true, both eyes betwixt ?
 And that's why the old Duke would rather
 He lost a salt-pit than my father,
 And loved to have him ever in call ;
 That's why my father stood in the hall
 When the old Duke brought his infant out
 To show the people, and while they passed
 The wondrous bantling round about,
 Was first to start at the outside blast
 As the Kaiser's courier blew his horn
 Just a month after the babe was born.
 " And," quoth the Kaiser's courier, " since
 " The Duke has got an heir, our Prince
 " Needs the Duke's self at his side :"
 The Duke looked down and seemed to wince,
 But he thought of wars o'er the world wide,

Up she looked, down she looked, round at the mead,
Straight at the castle, that's best indeed
To look at from outside the walls :
As for us, styled the "serfs and thralls,"
She as much thanked me as if she had said it,
(With her eyes, do you understand ?)
Because I patted her horse while I led it ;
And Max, who rode on her other hand,
Said, no bird flew past but she inquired
What its true name was, nor ever seemed tired—

If that was an eagle she saw hover,
And the green and grey bird on the field was the plover.

When suddenly appeared the Duke :
And as down she sprung, the small foot pointed

On to my hand,—as with a rebuke,
And as if his backbone were not jointed,
The Duke stepped rather aside than forward,
And welcomed her with his grandest
smile ;

And, mind you, his mother all the while
Chilled in the rear, like a wind to Nor'ward ;
And up, like a weary yawn, with its pullies
Went, in a shriek, the rusty portcullis ;
And, like a glad sky the north-wind sullies,
The lady's face stopped its play,
As if her first hair had grown grey ;
For such things must begin some one day.

VII.

In a day or two she was well again ;
As who should say, " You labour in vain !
" This is all a jest against God, who meant
" I should ever be, as I am, content " And glad in his sight ; therefore, glad I will be."

So, smiling as at first went she.

VIII.

She was active, stirring, all fire—
Could not rest, could not tire—
To a stone she might have given life !
(I myself loved once, in my day)
—For a shepherd's, miner's, huntsman's wife,
(I had a wife, I know what I say)

Never in all the world such an one !
And here was plenty to be done,
And she that could do it, great or small,
She was to do nothing at all.
There was already this man in his post,
This in his station, and that in his office,
And the Duke's plan admitted a wife, at most,
To meet his eye, with the other trophies,
Now outside the hall, now in it,
To sit thus, stand thus, see and be seen,
At the proper place in the proper minute,
And die away the life between.
And it was amusing enough, each infraction
Of rule—(but for after-sadness that came)
To hear the consummate self-satisfaction
With which the young Duke and the old dame
Would let her advise, and criticise,
And, being a fool, instruct the wise,
And, child-like, parcel out praise or blame :
They bore it all in complacent guise,
As though an artificer, after contriving
A wheel-work image as if it were living,
Should find with delight it could motion to strike him !
So found the Duke, and his mother like him :
The lady hardly got a rebuff—
That had not been contemptuous enough,
With his cursed smirk, as he nodded applause,
And kept off the old mother-cat's claws.

IX.

So, the little lady grew silent and thin,
Paling and ever paling,
As the way is with a hid chagrin ;
And the Duke perceived that she was ailing,
And said in his heart, " 'Tis done to spite me.
" But I shall find in my power to right me !"
Don't swear, friend ! The old one, many a
year,
Is in hell, and the Duke's self . . . you shall hear.

X.

Well, early in autumn, at first winter-warning,
When the stag had to break with his foot, of a morning,
A drinking-hole out of the fresh tender ice
That covered the pond till the sun, in a trice,

Loosening it, let out a ripple of gold,
 And another and another, and faster and faster,
 Till, dimpling to blindness, the wide water rolled :
 Then it so chanced that the Duke our master
 Asked himself what were the pleasures in season,
 And found, since the calendar bade him be hearty,
 He should do the Middle Age no treason
 In resolving on a hunting-party.
 Always provided, old books showed the way
 of it !
 What meant old poets by their strictures ?
 And when old poets had said their say of it,
 How taught old painters in their pictures ?
 We must revert to the proper channels,
 Workings in tapestry, paintings on panels,
 And gather up woodcraft's authentic traditions :
 Here was food for our various ambitions,
 As on each case, exactly stated—
 To encourage your dog, now, the properest
 chirrup,
 Or best prayer to Saint Hubert on mounting your stirrup—
 We of the household took thought and debated.
 Blessed was he whose back ached with the jerkin
 His sire was wont to do forest-work in ;
 Blessed er he who nobly sunk " ohs "
 And " ahs " while he tugged on his grand-sire's trunk-hose ;
 What signified hats if they had no rims on,
 Each slouching before and behind like the scallop,
 And able to serve at sea for a shallop,
 Loaded with lacquer and looped with crimson ?
 So that the deer now, to make a short rhyme
 on't,
 What with our Venerers, Prickers and Verderers,
 Might hope for real hunters at length and not murderers,
 And oh the Duke's tailor, he had a hot time
 on't !

XI.

Now you must know that when the first dizziness
 Of flap-hats and buff-coats and jack-boots subsided,
 The Duke put this question, " The Duke's part provided,
 " Had not the Duchess some share in the business ? "
 For out of the mouth of two or three witnesses
 Did he establish all fit-or-unfitnesses :
 And, after much laying of heads together,
 Somebody's cap got a notable feather
 By the announcement with proper unction
 That he had discovered the lady's function ;
 Since ancient authors gave this tenet,
 " When horns wind a mort and the deer
 is at siege,
 " Let the dame of the castle prick forth on her jennet,
 " And, with water to wash the hands of her liege
 " In a clean ewer with a fair toweling,
 " Let her preside at the disemboweling."
 Now, my friend, if you had so little religion
 As to catch a hawk, some falcon-lanner,
 And thrust her broad wings like a banner
 Into a coop for a vulgar pigeon ;
 And if day by day and week by week
 You cut her claws, and sealed her eyes,
 And clipped her wings, and tied her beak,
 Would it cause you any great surprise
 If, when you decided to give her an airing,
 You found she needed a little preparing ?
 —I say, should you be such a curmudgeon,
 If she clung to the perch, as to take it in dudgeon ?
 Yet when the Duke to his lady signified,
 Just a day before, as he judged most dignified,
 In what a pleasure she was to participate,—
 And, instead of leaping wide in flashes,
 Her eyes just lifted their long lashes,
 As if pressed by fatigue even he could not dissipate,
 And duly acknowledged the Duke's fore-
 thought,
 But spoke of her health, if her health were worth aught,

Of the weight by day and the watch by night,
And much wrong now that used to be right,
So, thanking him, declined the hunting,—
Was conduct ever more affronting?

With all the ceremony settled—

With the towel ready, and the sewer
Polishing up his oldest ewer,
And the jennet pitched upon, a piebald,
Black-barred, cream-coated and pink eyeballed,—

No wonder if the Duke was nettled !
And when she persisted nevertheless,—
Well, I suppose here's the time to confess
That there ran half round our lady's chamber
A balcony none of the hardest to clamber ;
And that Jacynth the tire-woman, ready in waiting,

Stayed in call outside, what need of relating ?
And since Jacynth was like a June rose, why,
a fervent

Adorer of Jacynth of course was your servant ;
And if she had the habit to peep through the casement,

How could I keep at any vast distance ?

And so, as I say, on the lady's persistence,
The Duke, dumb-stricken with amazement,
Stood for a while in a sultry smother,

And then, with a smile that partook of the awful,

Turned her over to his yellow mother

To learn what was held decorous and lawful ;

And the mother smelt blood with a cat-like
instinct,

As her cheek quick whitened thro' all its quince-tinct.

Oh, but the lady heard the whole truth at once !

What meant she?—Who was she?—Her duty and station,

The wisdom of age and the folly of youth, at
once,

Its decent regard and its fitting relation—

In brief, my friend, set all the devils in hell
free

And turn them out to carouse in a belfry
And treat the priests to a fifty-part canon,
And then you may guess how that tongue of hers ran on !

Well, somehow or other it ended at last
And, licking her whiskers, out she passed ;
And after her,—making (he hoped) a face
Like Emperor Nero or Sultan Saladin,
Stalked the Duke's self with the austere grace
Of ancient hero or modern paladin,
From door to staircase—oh such a solemn Unbending of the vertebral column !

XII.

However, at sunrise our company mustered :
And here was the huntsman bidding un-kennel,

And there 'neath his bonnet the pricker
blustered,

With feather dank as a bough of wet fennel ;
For the court-yard walls were filled with fog

You might have cut as an axe chops a log—
Like so much wool for colour and bulkiness ;
And out rode the Duke in a perfect sulkiness, Since, before breakfast, a man feels but queasily,

And a sinking at the lower abdomen
Begins the day with indifferent omen.

And lo, as he looked around uneasily,
The sun ploughed the fog up and drove it asunder

This way and that from the valley under ;

And, looking through the court-yard arch,
Down in the valley, what should meet him

But a troop of Gipsies on their march ?
No doubt with the annual gifts to greet him.

XIII.

Now, in your land, Gipsies reach you, only After reaching all lands beside ;

North they go, South they go, trooping or lonely,

And still, as they travel far and wide,
Catch they and keep now a trace here, a trace there,

That puts you in mind of a place here, a place there.

But with us, I believe they rise out of the
ground,

And nowhere else, I take it, are found
With the earth-tint yet so freshly embrowned :

And who so fit a teacher of trouble
 As this sordid crone bent well-nigh double?
 So, glancing at her wolf-skin vesture,
 (If such it was, for they grow so hirsute
 That their own fleece serves for natural fur-suit)
 He was contrasting, 'twas plain from his gesture,
 The life of the lady so flower-like and delicate
 With the loathsome squalor of this helicat.
 I, in brief, was the man the Duke beckoned
 From out of the throng, and while I drew near
 He told the crone—as I since have reckoned
 By the way he bent and spoke into her
 ear
 With circumspection and mystery—
 The main of the lady's history,
 Her frowardness and ingratitude :
 And for all the crone's submissive attitude
 I could see round her mouth the loose plaits tightening,
 And her brow with assenting intelligence
 brightening,
 As though she engaged with hearty goodwill
 Whatever he now might enjoin to fulfil,
 And promised the lady a thorough frightening.
 And so, just giving her a glimpse
 Of a purse, with the air of a man who imp's
 The wing of the hawk that shall fetch the hernshaw,
 He bade me take the Gipsy mother
 And set her telling some story or other
 Of hill or dale, oak-wood or fernshaw,
 To wile away a weary hour
 For the lady left alone in her bower,
 Whose mind and body craved exertion
 And yet shrank from all better diversion.

XIV.

Then clapping heel to his horse, the mere curveter,
 Out rode the Duke, and after his hollo Horses and hounds swept, huntsman and servitor,
 And back I turned and bade the crone
 follow.

And what makes me confident what's to be told you
 Had all along been of this crone's devising,
 Is, that, on looking round sharply, behold
 you,
 There was a novelty quick as surprising :
 For first, she had shot up a full head in stature,
 And her step kept pace with mine nor faltered,
 As if age had foregone its usurpature,
 And the ignoble mien was wholly altered,
 And the face looked quite of another nature,
 And the change reached too, whatever the change meant,
 Her shaggy wolf-skin cloak's arrangement :
 For where its tatters hung loose like sedges,
 Gold coins were glittering on the edges,
 Like the band-roll strung with tomans
 Which proves the veil a Persian woman's :
 And under her brow, like a snail's horns newly
 Come out as after the rain he paces,
 Two unmistakeable eye-points duly
 Live and aware looked out of their places.
 So, we went and found Jacynth at the entry
 Of the lady's chamber standing sentry ;
 I told the command and produced my companion,
 And Jacynth rejoiced to admit any one,
 For since last night, by the same token,
 Not a single word had the lady spoken :
 They went in both to the presence together,
 While I in the balcony watched the weather.

XV.

And now, what took place at the very first
 of all,
 I cannot tell, as I never could learn it :
 Jacynth constantly wished a curse to fall
 On that little head of hers and burn it
 If she knew how she came to drop so soundly
 Asleep of a sudden and there continue
 The whole time sleeping as profoundly
 As one of the boars my father would pin you
 'Twixt the eyes where life holds garrison,
 —Jacynth forgive me the comparisor :
 But where I begin my own narration
 Is a little after I took my station

To breathe the fresh air from the balcony,
 And, having in those days a falcon eye,
 To follow the hunt thro' the open country,
 From where the bushes thinlier crested
 The hillocks, to a plain where's not one tree.

When, in a moment, my ear was arrested
 By—was it singing, or was it saying,
 Or a strange musical instrument playing
 In the chamber?—and to be certain
 I pushed the lattice, pulled the curtain,
 And there lay Jacynth asleep,
 Yet as if a watch she tried to keep,
 In a rosy sleep along the floor
 With her head against the door ;
 While in the midst, on the seat of state,
 Was a queen—the Gipsy woman late,
 With head and face downbent
 On the lady's head and face intent :
 For, coiled at her feet like a child at ease,
 The lady sat between her knees
 And o'er them the lady's clasped hands met,
 And on those hands her chin was set,
 And her upturned face met the face of the crone

Wherein the eyes had grown and grown
 As if she could double and quadruple
 At pleasure the play of either pupil
 —Very like, by her hands' slow fanning,
 As up and down like a gor-crow's flappers
 They moved to measure, or bell-clappers.

I said " Is it blessing, is it banning,
 " Do they applaud you or burlesque you—
 " Those hands and fingers with no flesh
 on ? "

But, just as I thought to spring in to the rescue,
 At once I was stopped by the lady's expression :

For it was life her eyes were drinking
 From the crone's wide pair above unwinking,
 —Life's pure fire received without shrinking,
 Into the heart and breast whose heaving
 Told you no single drop they were leaving,
 —Life, that filling her, passed redundant
 Into her very hair, back swerving
 Over each shoulder, loose and abundant,
 As her head thrown back showed the white throat curving ;

And the very tresses shared in the pleasure,
 Moving to the mystic measure,
 Bounding as the bosom bounded.
 I stopped short, more and more confounded,
 As still her cheeks burned and eyes glistened,
 As she listened and she listened :
 When all at once a hand detained me,
 The selfsame contagion gained me,
 And I kept time to the wondrous chime,
 Making out words and prose and rhyme,
 Till it seemed that the music furled
 Its wings like a task fulfilled, and dropped
 From under the words it first had propped,
 And left them midway in the world :
 Word took word as hand takes hand,
 I could hear at last, and understand,
 And when I held the unbroken thread,
 The Gipsy said :—

" And so at last we find my tribe.
 " And so I set thee in the midst,
 " And to one and all of them describe
 " What thou saidst and what thou didst,
 " Our long and terrible journey through,
 " And all thou art ready to say and do
 " In the trials that remain :
 " I trace them the vein and the other vein
 " That meet on thy brow and part again,
 " Making our rapid mystic mark ;
 " And I bid my people prove and probe
 " Each eye's profound and glorious globe
 " Till they detect the kindred spark
 " In those depths so dear and dark,
 " Like the spots that snap and burst and flee,
 " Circling over the midnight sea.
 " And on that round young cheek of thine
 " I make them recognize the tinge,
 " As when of the costly scarlet wine
 " They drip so much as will impinge
 " And spread in a thinnest scale afloat
 " One thick gold drop from the olive's coat
 " Over a silver plate whose sheen
 " Still thro' the mixture shall be seen.
 " For so I prove thee, to one and all,
 " Fit, when my people ope their breast,
 " To see the sign, and hear the call,
 " And take the vow, and stand the test
 " Which adds one more child to the rest—

" When the breast is bare and the arms are wide,
 " And the world is left outside.
 " For there is probation to decree,
 " And many and long must the trials be
 " Thou shalt victoriously endure,
 " If that brow is true and those eyes are sure ;
 " Like a jewel-finder's fierce assay
 " Of the prize he dug from its mountain-
 tomb—
 " Let once the vindicating ray
 " Leap out amid the anxious gloom,
 " And steel and fire have done their part
 " And the prize falls on its finder's heart ;
 " So, trial after trial past,
 " Wilt thou fall at the very last
 " Breathless, half in trance
 " With the thrill of the great deliverance,
 " Into our arms for evermore ;
 " And thou shalt know, those arms once curled
 " About thee, what we knew before,
 " How love is the only good in the world.
 " Henceforth be loved as heart can love,
 " Or brain devise, or hand approve !
 " Stand up, look below,
 " It is our life at thy feet we throw
 " To step with into light and joy ;
 " Not a power of life but we employ
 " To satisfy thy nature's want ;
 " Art thou the tree that props the plant,
 " Or the climbing plant that seeks the tree—
 " Canst thou help us, must we help thee ?
 " If any two creatures grew into one,
 " They would do more than the world has
 done :
 " Though each apart were never so weak,
 " Ye vainly through the world should seek
 " For the knowledge and the might
 " Which in such union grew their right :
 " So, to approach at least that end,
 " And blend,—as much as may be, blend
 " Thee with us or us with thee,—
 " As climbing plant or propping tree,
 " Shall some one deck thee, over and down,
 " Up and about, with blossoms and leaves ?
 " Fix his heart's fruit for thy garland-crown,
 " Cling with his soul as the gourd-vine
 cleaves,

" Die on thy boughs and disappear
 " While not a leaf of thine is sere ?
 " Or is the other fate in store,
 " And art thou fitted to adore,
 " To give thy wondrous self away,
 " And take a stronger nature's sway ?
 " I foresee and could foretell
 " Thy future portion, sure and well :
 " But those passionate eyes speak true, speak
 true,
 " Let them say what thou shalt do !
 " Only be sure thy daily life,
 " In its peace or in its strife,
 " Never shall be unobserved ;
 " We pursue thy whole career,
 " And hope for it, or doubt, or fear,—
 " Lo, hast thou kept thy path or swerved,
 " We are beside thee in all thy ways,
 " With our blame, with our praise,
 " Our shame to feel, our pride to show,
 " Glad, angry—but indifferent, no !
 " Whether it be thy lot to go,
 " For the good of us all, where the haters meet
 " In the crowded city's horrible street ;
 " Or thou step alone through the morass
 " Where never sound yet was
 " Save the dry quick clap of the stork's bill.
 " For the air is still, and the water still,
 " When the blue breast of the dipping cool
 " Dives under, and all is mute.
 " So, at the last shall come old age,
 " Decrepit as befits that stage ;
 " How else wouldst thou retire apart
 " With the hoarded memories of thy heart,
 " And gather all to the very least
 " Of the fragments of life's earlier feast,
 " Let fall through eagerness to find
 " The crowning dainties yet behind ?
 " Ponder on the entire past
 " Laid together thus at last,
 " When the twilight helps to fuse
 " The first fresh with the faded hues,
 " And the outline of the whole,
 " As round eve's shades their framework roll,
 " Grandly fronts for once thy soul.
 " And then as, 'mid the dark, a gleam
 " Of yet another morning breaks,

I suppose with a voice of less steadiness
 Than usual, for my feeling exceeded me, —Something to the effect that I was in readiness

Whenever God should please she needed
 me,—

Then, do you know, her face looked down on me
 With a look that placed a crown on me,
 And she felt in her bosom,—mark, her bosom—
 And, as a flower-tree drops its blossom,
 Dropped me . . . ah, had it been a purse
 Of silver, my friend, or gold that's worse,
 Why, you see, as soon as I found myself
 So understood,—that a true heart so may gain

Such a reward,—I should have gone home
 again,

Kissed Jacynth, and soberly drowned myself!
 It was a little plait of hair

Such as friends in a convent make
 To wear, each for the other's sake,—
 This, see, which at my breast I wear,
 Ever did (rather to Jacynth's grudging),
 And ever shall, till the Day of Judgment.
 And then,—and then,—to cut short,—this is idle,

These are feelings it is not good to foster,—
 I pushed the gate wide, she shook the bridle,
 And the palfrey bounded,—and so we lost
 her.

XVI.

When the liquor's out why clink the cannikin?
 I did think to describe you the panic in
 The redoubtable breast of our master the mannikin,

And what was the pitch of his mother's yellow-
 ness,

How she turned as a shark to snap the spare-rib

Clean off, sailors say, from a pearl-diving
 Carib,

When she heard, what she called the flight of the feloness

—But it seems such child's play,
 What they said and did with the lady away!
 And to dance on, when we've lost the music,
 Always made me—and no doubt makes you
 —sick.

Nay, to my mind, the world's face looked so stern

As that sweet form disappeared through the postern,

She that kept it in constant good humour,
 It ought to have stopped; there seemed nothing to do more.

But the world thought otherwise and went on,
 And my head's one that its spite was spent on:
 Thirty years are fled since that morning,
 And with them all my head's adorning.

Nor did the old Duchess die outright,
 As you expect, of suppressed spite,

The natural end of every adder
 Not suffered to empty its poison-bladder:

But she and her son agreed, I take it,
 That no one should touch on the story to wake it,

For the wound in the Duke's pride rankled fiery,

So, they made no search and small inquiry—
 And when fresh Gipsies have paid us a visit,
 I've

Noticed the couple were never inquisitive,
 But told them they're folks the Duke don't want here,

And bade them make haste and cross the frontier.

Brief, the Duchess was gone and the Duke
 was glad of it,

And the old one was in the young one's
 stead,

And took, in her place, the household's
 head,

And a blessed time the household had of it!
 And were I not, as a man may say, cautious
 How I trench, more than needs, on the nauseous,

I could favour you with sundry touches
 Of the paint-smutches with which the Duchess Heightened the mellowness of her cheek's yellowness

(To get on faster) until at last her
 Cheek grew to be one master-plaster
 Of mucus and fucus from mere use of ceruse:

In short, she grew from scalp to udder
 Just the object to make you shudder.

XVII.

You're my friend—
 What a thing friendship is, world without end !
 How it gives the heart and soul a stir-up
 As if somebody broached you a glorious runlet,
 And poured out, all lovelily, sparkingly,
 sunlit,
 Our green Moldavia, the streaky syrup,
 Cotnar as old as the time of the Druids—Friendship may match with that monarch of fluids ;
 Each supples a dry brain, fills you its ins-and-outs,
 Gives your life's hour-glass a shake when the thin sand doubts
 Whether to run on or stop short, and guarantees
 Age is not all made of stark sloth and arrant ease.
 I have seen my little lady once more,
 Jacynth, the Gipsy, Berold, and the rest
 of it,
 For to me spoke the Duke, as I told you
 before ;
 I always wanted to make a clean breast
 of it :
 And now it is made—why, my heart's blood,
 that went trickle,
 Trickle, but anon, in such muddy driblets,
 Is pumped up brisk now, through the main ventricle,
 And genially floats me about the giblets.
 I'll tell you what I intend to do :
 I must see this fellow his sad life through—
 He is our Duke, after all,
 And I, as he says, but a serf and thrall.
 My father was born here, and I inherit
 His fame, a chain he bound his son with ;
 Could I pay in a lump I should prefer it,
 But there's no mine to blow up and get done with :
 So, I must stay till the end of the chapter.
 For, as to our middle-age-manners-adapted,
 Be it a thing to be glad on or sorry on,
 Some day or other, his head in a morion
 And breast in a hauberck, his heels he'll kick up,
 Slain by an onslaught fierce of hiccup.

And then, when red doth the sword of our Duke rust,
 And its leathern sheath lie o'ergrown with a blue crust,
 Then I shall scrape together my earnings ;
 For, you see, in the churchyard Jacynth reposes,
 And our children all went the way of the roses :
 It's a long lane that knows no turnings.
 One needs but little tackle to travel in ;
 So, just one stout cloak shall I indue :
 And for a staff, what beats the javelin
 With which his boars my father pinned you ?
 And then, for a purpose you shall hear
 presently,
 Taking some Cotnar, a tight plump skinful,
 I shall go journeying, who but I, pleasantly !
 Sorrow is vain and despondency sinful.
 What's a man's age ? He must hurry more,
 that's all ;
 Cram in a day, what his youth took a year to hold :
 When we mind labour, then only, we're too old—
 What age had Methusalem when he begat
 Saul ?
 And at last, as its haven some buffeted ship
 sees,
 (Come all the way from the north-parts with sperm oil)
 I hope to get safely out of the turmoil
 And arrive one day at the land of the Gipsies,
 And find my lady, or hear the last news of
 her
 From some old thief and son of Lucifer,
 His forehead chapleted green with wreathy hop,
 Sunburned all over like an Æthiop.
 And when my Cotnar begins to operate
 And the tongue of the rogue to run at a proper rate,
 And our wine-skin, tight once, shows each
 flaccid dent,
 I shall drop in with—as if by accident—
 “ You never knew, then, how it all ended,
 “ What fortune good or bad attended
 “ The little lady your Queen befriended ? ”

—And when that's told me, what's remaining?

This world's too hard for my explaining.

The same wise judge of matters equine

Who still preferred some slim four-year-old
To the big-boned stock of mighty Berold,
And, for strong Cotnar, drank French weak
wine,

He also must be such a lady's scerner!

Smooth Jacob still robs homely Esau:

Now up, now down, the world's one see-saw.

—So, I shall find out some snug corner

Under a hedge, like Orson the wood-knight,
Turn myself round and bid the world good
night;

And sleep a sound sleep till the trumpet's blowing

Wakes me (unless priests cheat us laymen)
To a world where will be no further throwing Pearls before swine that can't value them.

Amen!

A GRAMMARIAN'S FUNERAL,

SHORTLY AFTER THE REVIVAL OF LEARNING IN EUROPE.

LET us begin and carry up this corpse,
Singing together.

Leave we the common crofts, the vulgar thorpes

Each in its tether

Sleeping safe on the bosom of the plain,

Cared-for till cock-crow:

Look out if yonder be not day again

Rimming the rock-row!

That's the appropriate country; there, man's thought,

Rarer, intenser,

Self-gathered for an outbreak, as it ought,

Chafes in the censer.

Leave we the unlettered plain its herd and crop;

Seek we sepulture

On a tall mountain, citted to the top,

Crowded with culture!

All the peaks soar, but one the rest excels:

Clouds overcome it;

No! yonder sparkle is the citadel's

Circling its summit.

Thither our path lies; wind we up the heights:

Wait ye the warning?

Our low life was the level's and the night's;

He's for the morning.

Step to a tune, square chests, erect each
head,

'Ware the beholders!

This is our master, famous calm and dead,

Borne on our shoulders.

Sleep, crop and herd! sleep, darkling thorpe and croft,

Safe from the weather!

He, whom we convoy to his grave aloft,

Singing together,

He was a man born with thy face and throat,

Lyric Apollo!

Long he lived nameless: how should spring take note

Winter would follow?

Till lo, the little touch, and youth was gone!

Cramped and diminished,

Moaned he, "New measures, other feet anon!

"My dance is finished?"

No, that's the world's way: (keep the mountain-side,

Make for the city!)

He knew the signal, and stepped on with pride

Over men's pity;

Left play for work, and grappled with the world

Bent on escaping:

"What's in the scroll," quoth he, "thou keepst furred?"

"Show me their shaping,

"Theirs who most studied man, the bard and sage,—

"Give!"—So, he gowned him,

Straight got by heart that book to its last page:

Learned, we found him.

Yea, but we found him bald too, eyes like lead.

Accents uncertain:

"Time to taste life," another would have said,

'Up with the curtain!'

Here—here's his place, where meteors shoot, clouds form,
 Lightnings are loosened,
 Stars come and go! Let joy break with the storm,
 Peace let the dew send!
 Lofty designs must close in like effects:
 Loftily lying,
 Leave him—still loftier than the world suspects,
 Living and dying.

THE HERETIC'S TRAGEDY.

A MIDDLE-AGE INTERLUDE.

ROSA MUNDI; SEU, FULCITE ME FLORIBUS.
 A CONCEIT OF MASTER GYSBRECHT, CANON-REGULAR OF SAINT JODOCUS-BY-
 THE-BAR, YPRES CITY. CANTUQUE, Vir-gilius. AND HATH OFTEN BEEN SUNG
 AT HOCK-TIDE AND FESTIVALS. GAVISUS
 ERAM, Jessides.

(It would seem to be a glimpse from the burning of Jacques du Bourg-Molay, at Paris,
 A.D. 1314; as distorted by the refraction from Flemish brain to brain, during the course of a couple of centuries.)

[Molay was Grand Master of the Templars when that order was suppressed in 1312.]

I.

PREADMONISHETH THE ABBOT DEODAET.

THE Lord, we look to once for all,
 Is the Lord we should look at, all at
 once:
 He knows not to vary, saith Saint Paul,
 Nor the shadow of turning, for the nonce.
 See him no other than as he is!
 Give both the infinitudes their due—
 Infinite mercy, but, I wis,
 As infinite a justice too.
 [Organ: plagal-cadence.
 As infinite a justice too.

II.

ONE SINGETH.

John, Master of the Temple of God,
 Falling to sin the Unknown Sin,
 What he bought of Emperor Aldabrod,
 He sold it to Sultan Saladin:
 Till, caught by Pope Clement, a-buzzing there,
 Hornet-prince of the mad wasps' hive,
 And clipt of his wings in Paris square,
 They bring him now to be burned alive.
 [And wanteth there grace of lute or clavicithern, ye shall say to confirm him who singeth—
 We bring John now to be burned alive.

III.

In the midst is a goodly gallows built;
 'Twixt fork and fork, a stake is stuck;
 But first they set divers tumbrils a-tilt,
 Make a trench all round with the city muck;
 Inside they pile log upon log, good store;
 Faggots no few, blocks great and small,
 Reach a man's mid-thigh, no less, no more,—
 For they mean he should roast in the sight
 of all.

CHORUS.

We mean he should roast in the sight of all.

IV.

Good sappy bavins¹ that kindle forthwith;
 Billets that blaze substantial and slow;
 Pine-stump split deftly, dry as pith;
 Larch-heart that chars to a chalk-whiteglow:
 Then up they hoist me John in a chafe,
 Sling him fast like a hog to scorch,
 Spit in his face, then leap back safe,
 Sing "Laudes" and bid clap-to the torch.

CHORUS.

Laus Deo—who bids clap-to the torch.

V.

John of the Temple, whose fame so bragged,
 Is burning alive in Paris square!
 How can he curse, if his mouth is gagged?
 Or wriggle his neck, with a collar there?

¹ Faggots.

Or heave his chest, which a band goes round ?
 Or threat with his fist, since his arms are spliced ?
 Or kick with his feet, now his legs are bound ?
 —Thinks John, I will call upon Jesus Christ.
[Here one crosseth himself.]

VI.

Jesus Christ—John had bought and sold,
 Jesus Christ—John had eaten and drunk ;
 To him, the Flesh meant silver and gold.
(Salvâ reverentiâ.)
 Now it was, “Saviour, bountiful lamb,
 “I have roasted thee Turks, though men roast me !
 “See thy servant, the plight wherein I am !
 “Art thou a saviour? Save thou me !”

CHORUS.

’Tis John the mocker cries, “Save thou me !”

VII.

Who maketh God’s menace an idle word ?
 —Saith, it no more means what it proclaims,
 Than a damsel’s threat to her wanton bird ?—
 For she too prattles of ugly names.
 —Saith, he knoweth but one thing,—what he knows ?
 That God is good and the rest is breath ;
 Why else is the same stiled Sharon’s rose ?
 Once a rose, ever a rose, he saith.

CHORUS.

O, John shall yet find a rose, he saith !

VIII.

Alack, there be roses and roses, John !
 Some, honied of taste like your leman’s
 tongue :
 Some, bitter ; for why? (roast gaily on !)
 Their tree struck root in devil’s-dung.
 When Paul once reasoned of righteousness
 And of temperance and of judgment to come,
 Good Felix trembled, he could no less :
 John, snickering, crook’d his wicked thumb.

CHORUS.

What cometh to John of the wicked thumb ?

IX.

Ha ha, John plucketh now at his rose
 To rid himself of a sorrow at heart !
 Lo,—petal on petal, fierce rays unclose ;
 Anther on anther, sharp spikes outstart ;
 And with blood for dew, the bosom boils ;
 And a gust of sulphur is all its smell ;
 And lo, he is horribly in the toils
 Of a coal-black giant flower of hell !

CHORUS.

What maketh heaven, That maketh hell.

X.

So, as John called now, through the fire amain,
 On the Name, he had cursed with, all his
 life—
 To the Person, he bought and sold again—
 For the Face, with his daily buffets rife—
 Feature by feature It took its place :
 And his voice, like a mad dog’s choking bark,
 At the steady whole of the Judge’s face—
 Died. Forth John’s soul flared into the dark.

SUBJOINETH THE ABBOT DEODAET.

God help all poor souls lost in the dark !

HOLY-CROSS DAY.

ON WHICH THE JEWS WERE FORCED TO ATTEND AN ANNUAL CHRISTIAN SER-MON IN ROME.

[“Now was come about Holy-Cross Day, and now must my lord preach his first sermon to the Jews : as it was of old cared for in the merciful bowels of the Church, that, so to speak, a crumb at least from her conspicuous table here in Rome should be, though but once yearly, cast to the famishing dogs, under-trampled and bespitten-upon beneath the feet of the guests. And a moving sight in truth, this, of so many of the besotted blind restif and ready-to-perish Hebrews ! now maternally brought—nay (for He saith, ‘Compel them to come in’) haled, as it were, by the head and hair, and against their obstinate hearts, to partake of the heavenly grace. What a awakening, what striving with tears, what working of a yeasty conscience ! Nor was my lord wanting to himself on so apt an occasion ; witness the abundance of conversions which did incontinently reward him : though not to my lord be altogether the glory."—Diary by the Bishop's Secretary, 1600.]

What the Jews really said, on thus being driven to church, was rather to this effect :—

I.

FEE, faw, fum ! bubble and squeak !
Blessedest Thursday's the fat of the week.
Rumble and tumble, sleek and rough,
Stinking and savoury, smug and gruff,
Take the church-road, for the bell's due chime
Gives us the summons—'tis sermon-time !

II.

Boh, here's Barnabas ! Job, that's you ?
Up stumps Solomon—bustling too ?
Shame, man ! greedy beyond your years
To handsel the bishop's shaving-shears ?
Fair play's a jewel ! Leave friends in the lurch ?
Stand on a line ere you start for the church !

III.

Higgledy piggedy, packed we lie,
Rats in a hamper, swine in a stye,
Wasps in a bottle, frogs in a sieve,
Worms in a carcase, fleas in a sleeve.
Hist ! square shoulders, settle your thumbs
And buzz for the bishop—here he comes.

IV.

Bow, wow, wow—a bone for the dog !
I liken his Grace to an acorned hog.
What, a boy at his side, with the bloom of a lass,
To help and handle my lord's hour-glass !
Didst ever behold so lithe a chine ?
His cheek hath laps like a fresh-singed swine.

V.

Aaron's asleep—shove hip to haunch,
Or somebody deal him a dig in the paunch !

Look at the purse with the tassel and knob,
And the gown with the angel and thingumbob !

What's he at, quotha ? reading his text !
Now you've his curtsey—and what comes next ?

VI.

See to our converts—you doomed black dozen—

No stealing away—nor cog nor cozen !

You five, that were thieves, deserve it fairly ;
You seven, that were beggars, will live less sparely ;

You took your turn and dipped in the hat,
Got fortune—and fortune gets you ; mind that !

VII.

Give your first groan—compunction's at work ;
And soft ! from a Jew you mount to a Turk.
Lo, Micah,—the selfsame beard on chin
He was four times already converted in !
Here's a knife, clip quick—it's a sign of grace—
Or he ruins us all with his hanging-face.

VIII.

Whom now is the bishop a-leering at ?
I know a point where his text falls pat.
I'll tell him to-morrow, a word just now
Went to my heart and made me vow
I meddle no more with the worst of trades—
Let somebody else pay his serenades.

IX.

Groan all together now, whee—hee—hee !
It's a-work, it's a-work, ah, woe is me !
It began, when a herd of us, picked and placed.
Were spurred through the Corso, stripped to the waist ;
Jew brutes, with sweat and blood well spent
To usher in worthily Christian Lent.

X.

It grew, when the hangman entered our bounds,
Yelled, pricked us out to his church like hounds :

“ Thy face took never so deep a shade
 “ But we fought them in it, God our aid !
 “ A trophy to bear, as we march, thy band,
 “ South, East, and on to the Pleasant Land ! ”

[Pope Gregory XVI. abolished this bad business of the Sermon.—R. B.]

PROTUS.

[This poem is without warrant of history.]

AMONG these latter busts we count by scores,
 Half-emperors and quarter-emperors,
 Each with his bay-leaf fillet, loose-thonged
 vest,
 Loric and low-browed Gorgon on the breast,—
 One loves a baby face, with violets there,
 Violets instead of laurel in the hair,
 As those were all the little locks could bear.

Now read here. “ Protus ends a period
 “ Of empery beginning with a god ;
 “ Born in the porphyry chamber at Byzant,
 “ Queens by his cradle, proud and ministrant :
 “ And if he quickened breath there, ’twould like fire
 “ Pantingly through the dim vast realm transpire.
 “ A fame that he was missing spread afar :
 “ The world from its four corners, rose in
 war,
 “ Till he was borne out on a balcony
 “ To pacify the world when it should see.
 “ The captains ranged before him, one, his
 hand
 “ Made baby points at, gained the chief command.
 “ And day by day more beautiful he grew
 “ In shape, all said, in feature and in hue, “ While young Greek sculptors, gazing on the child,
 “ Became with old Greek sculpture reconciled.
 “ Already sages laboured to condense
 “ In easy tomes a life’s experience :
 “ And artists took grave counsel to impart “ In one breath and one hand-sweep, all their art—

“ To make his graces prompt as blossoming
 “ Of plentifully-watered palms in spring :
 “ Since well beseems it, whoso mounts the
 throne,
 “ For beauty, knowledge, strength, should stand alone,
 “ And mortals love the letters of his name.”

—Stop ! Have you turned two pages ? Still
 the same.

New reign, same date. The scribe goes on to say

How that same year, on such a month and
 day,

“ John the Pannonian, groundedly believed “ A blacksmith’s bastard, whose hard hand reprieved

“ The Empire from its fate the year before,— “ Came, had a mind to take the crown, and wore

“ The same for six years (during which the Huns

“ Kept off their fingers from us), till his sons
 “ Put something in his liquor”—and so forth.

Then a new reign. Stay—“ Take at its just
 worth ”

(Subjoins an annotator) “ what I give

“ As hearsay. Some think, John let Protus live

“ And slip away. ’Tis said, he reached man’s age

“ At some blind northern court ; made, first a page,

“ Then tutor to the children ; last, of use

“ About the hunting-stables. I deduce

“ He wrote the little tract ‘On worming dogs,’

“ Whereof the name in sundry catalogues

“ Is extant yet. A Protus of the race

“ Is rumoured to have died a monk in Thrace,—

“ And if the same, he reached senility.”

Here’s John the Smith’s rough-hammered head. Great eye,
 Gross jaw and griped lips do what granite can
 To give you the crown-grasper. What a
 man !

THE STATUE AND THE BUST.

THERE'S a palace in Florence, the world knows well,
And a statue watches it from the square,
And this story of both do our townsmen tell.

Ages ago, a lady there,
At the farthest window facing the East
Asked, "Who rides by with the royal air?"

The bridesmaids' prattle around her ceased ;
She leaned forth, one on either hand ;
They saw how the blush of the bride increased—

They felt by its beats her heart expand—
As one at each ear and both in a breath
Whispered, "The Great-Duke Ferdinand."

That self-same instant, underneath,
The Duke rode past in his idle way,
Empty and fine like a swordless sheath.

Gay he rode, with a friend as gay,
Till he threw his head back—"Who is she?"
—"A bride the Riccardi brings home to-day."

Hair in heaps lay heavily
Over a pale brow spirit-pure—
Carved like the heart of a coal-black tree,

Crisped like a war-steed's encolure¹—
And vainly sought to dissemble her eyes
Of the blackest black our eyes endure.

And lo, a blade for a knight's emprise
Filled the fine empty sheath of a man,—
The Duke grew straightway brave and wise.

He looked at her, as a lover can ;
She looked at him, as one who awakes :
The past was a sleep, and her life began.

Now, love so ordered for both their sakes,
A feast was held that selfsame night
In the pile which the mighty shadow makes.

(For Via Larga is three-parts light,
But the palace overshadows one,
Because of a crime which may God requite !

To Florence and God the wrong was done,
Through the first republic's murder there
By Cosimo and his cursed son.)

The Duke (with the statue's face in the square)
Turned in the midst of his multitude
At the bright approach of the bridal pair.

Face to face the lovers stood
A single minute and no more,
While the bridegroom bent as a man subdued—

Bowed till his bonnet brushed the floor—
For the Duke on the lady a kiss conferred,
As the courtly custom was of yore.

In a minute can lovers exchange a word?
If a word did pass, which I do not think,
Only one out of the thousand heard.

That was the bridegroom. At day's brink
He and his bride were alone at last
In a bedchamber by a taper's blink.

Calmly he said that her lot was cast,
That the door she had passed was shut on
her
Till the final catafalk² repassed.

The world meanwhile, its noise and stir,
Through a certain window facing the East,
She could watch like a convent's chronicler.

Since passing the door might lead to a feast,
And a feast might lead to so much beside,
He, of many evils, chose the least.

"Freely I choose too," said the bride—
"Your window and its world suffice,"
Replied the tongue, while the heart replied—

² The stage or scaffolding for a coffin whilst in the church.

“ If I spend the night with that devil twice,
 “ May his window serve as my loop of hell
 “ Whence a damned soul looks on paradise !

“ I fly to the Duke who loves me well,
 “ Sit by his side and laugh at sorrow
 “ Ere I count another ave-bell,

“ ’Tis only the coat of a page to borrow,
 “ And tie my hair in a horse-boy’s trim,
 “ And I save my soul—but not to-morrow ”—

(She checked herself and her eye grew dim)
 “ My father tarries to bless my state :
 “ I must keep it one day more for him.

“ Is one day more so long to wait ?
 “ Moreover the Duke rides past, I know ;
 “ We shall see each other, sure as fate.”

She turned on her side and slept. Just so !
 So we resolve on a thing and sleep :
 So did the lady, ages ago.

That night the Duke said, “ Dear or cheap
 “ As the cost of this cup of bliss may prove
 “ To body or soul, I will drain it deep.”

And on the morrow, bold with love,
 He beckoned the bridegroom (close on call,
 As his duty bade, by the Duke’s alcove)

And smiled “ ’Twas a very funeral,
 “ Your lady will think, this feast of ours,—
 “ A shame to efface, whate’er befall !

“ What if we break from the Arno bowers,
 “ And try if Petraja, cool and green, “ Cure last night’s fault with this morning’s flowers ? ”

The bridegroom, not a thought to be seen
 On his steady brow and quiet mouth,
 Said, “ Too much favour for me so mean !

“ But, alas ! my lady leaves the South ;
 “ Each wind that comes from the Apennine
 “ Is a menace to her tender youth :

“ Nor a way exists, the wise opine,
 “ If she quits her palace twice this year,
 “ To avert the flower of life’s decline.”

Quoth the Duke, “ A sage and a kindly
 fear.

“ Moreover Petraja is cold this spring :
 “ Be our feast to-night as usual here ! ”

And then to himself—“ Which night shall bring

“ Thy bride to her lover’s embraces, fool—
 “ Or I am the fool, and thou art the king !

“ Yet my passion must wait a night, nor cool—

“ For to-night the Envoy arrives from France “ Whose heart I unlock with thyself, my tool.

“ I need thee still and might miss perchance.
 “ To-day is not wholly lost, beside,
 “ With its hope of my lady’s countenance :

“ For I ride—what should I do but ride ?
 “ And passing her palace, if I list,
 “ May glance at its window—well betide ! ”

So said, so done : nor the lady missed
 One ray that broke from the ardent brow,
 Nor a curl of the lips where the spirit kissed.

Be sure that each renewed the vow,
 No morrow’s sun should arise and set
 And leave them then as it left them now.

But next day passed, and next day yet,
 With still fresh cause to wait one day more
 Ere each leaped over the parapet.

And still, as love’s brief morning wore,
 With a gentle start, half smile, half sigh,
 They found love not as it seemed before.

They thought it would work infallibly,
 But not in despite of heaven and earth :
 The rose would blow when the storm passed by.

" John of Douay¹ shall effect my plan,
 " Set me on horseback here aloft,
 " Alive, as the crafty sculptor can,

 " In the very square I have crossed so oft :
 " That men may admire, when future suns
 " Shall touch the eyes to a purpose soft,

 " While the mouth and the brow stay brave in bronze—
 " Admire and say, ' When he was alive
 " ' How he would take his pleasure once !'

 " And it shall go hard but I contrive
 " To listen the while, and laugh in my tomb
 " At idleness which aspires to strive."

So ! While these wait the trump of doom,
 How do their spirits pass, I wonder,
 Nights and days in the narrow room ?

Still, I suppose, they sit and ponder
What a gift life was, ages ago,
 Six steps out of the chapel yonder.

Only they see not God, I know,
 Nor all that chivalry of his,
 The soldier-saints who, row on row,

Burn upward each to his point of bliss—
 Since, the end of life being manifest,
 He had burned his way thro' the world to this.

I hear you reproach, " But delay was best,
 " For their end was a crime."—Oh, a crime will do

As well, I reply, to serve for a test,

As a virtue golden through and through,
 Sufficient to vindicate itself
 And prove its worth at a moment's view !

Must a game be played for the sake of pelf?
 Where a button goes, 'twere an epigram
 To offer the stamp of the very Guelph.

The true has no value beyond the sham :
 As well the counter as coin, I submit,
 When your table's a hat, and your prize a dram.

Stake your counter as boldly every whit,
 Venture as warily, use the same skill,
 Do your best, whether winning or losing it,

If you choose to play !—is my principle.
 Let a man contend to the uttermost
 For his life's set prize, be it what it will !

The counter our lovers staked was lost
 As surely as if it were lawful coin :
 And the sin I impute to each frustrate ghost

Is—the unlit lamp and the ungirt loin,
 Though the end in sight was a vice, I say.
 You of the virtue (we issue join)
 How strive you? De te, fabula !

PORPHYRIA'S LOVER.

THE rain set early in to-night,
 The sullen wind was soon awake,
 It tore the elm-tops down for spite,
 And did its worst to vex the lake :
 I listened with heart fit to break.
 When glided in Porphyria ; straight
 She shut the cold out and the storm,
 And kneeled and made the cheerless grate
 Blaze up, and all the cottage warm ;
 Which done, she rose, and from her form
 Withdrew the dripping cloak and shawl,
 And laid her soiled gloves by, untied
 Her hat and let the damp hair fall,
 And, last, she sat down by my side
 And called me. When no voice replied,
 She put my arm about her waist,
 And made her smooth white shoulder bare.
 And all her yellow hair displaced,
 And, stooping, made my cheek lie there,
 And spread, o'er all, her yellow hair,
 Murmuring how she loved me—she Too weak, for all her heart's endeavour,
 To set its struggling passion free
 From pride, and vainer ties dissever,
 And give herself to me for ever.

But passion sometimes would prevail,
 Nor could to-night's gay feast restrain
 A sudden thought of one so pale
 For love of her, and all in vain :
 So, she was come through wind and rain.
 Be sure I looked up at her eyes
 Happy and proud ; at last I knew
 Porphyria worshipped me ; surprise
 Made my heart swell, and still it grew
 While I debated what to do.
 That moment she was mine, mine, fair,
 Perfectly pure and good : I found
 A thing to do, and all her hair
 In one long yellow string I wound
 Three times her little throat around,
 And strangled her. No pain felt she ;
 I am quite sure she felt no pain.
 As a shut bud that holds a bee,
 I warily oped her lids : again
 Laughed the blue eyes without a stain.
 And I untightened next the tress
 About her neck ; her cheek once more
 Blushed bright beneath my burning kiss :
 I propped her head up as before,
 Only, this time my shoulder bore
 Her head, which droops upon it still :
 The smiling rosy little head,
 So glad it has its utmost will,
 That all it scorned at once is fled,
 And I, its love, am gained instead !
 Porphyria's love : she guessed not how
 Her darling one wish would be heard.
 And thus we sit together now,
 And all night long we have not stirred,
 And yet God has not said a word !

“CHILDE ROLAND TO THE DARK TOWER CAME.”

(See Edgar's song in “LEAR.”)

I.

My first thought was, he lied in every
 word,
 That hoary cripple, with malicious eye
 Askance to watch the working of his lie

On mine, and mouth scarce able to afford Suppression of the glee, that pursed and scored
 Its edge, at one more victim gained thereby.

II.

What else should he be set for, with his staff?
 What, save to waylay with his lies, ensnare
 All travellers who might find him posted
 there,
 And ask the road? I guessed what skull-like laugh
 Would break, what crutch 'gin write my epitaph
 For pastime in the dusty thoroughfare,

III.

If at his counsel I should turn aside
 Into that ominous tract which, all agree,
 Hides the Dark Tower. Yet acquiescingly
 I did turn as he pointed : neither pride
 Nor hope rekindling at the end descried,
 So much as gladness that some end might be.

IV.

For, what with my whole world-wide wandering,
 What with my search drawn out thro'
 years, my hope
 Dwindled into a ghost not fit to cope
 With that obstreperous joy success would bring,
 I hardly tried now to rebuke the spring
 My heart made, finding failure in its scope.

V.

As when a sick man very near to death
 Seems dead indeed, and feels begin and end
 The tears and takes the farewell of each
 friend,
 And hears one bid the other go, draw breath Freelier outside, (“since all is o'er,” he saith,
 “And the blow fallen no grieving can amend ;”)

VI.

While some discuss if near the other graves
 Be room enough for this, and when a day
 Suits best for carrying the corpse away,

With care about the banners, scarves and staves :

And still the man hears all, and only craves
He may not shame such tender love and stay.

VII.

Thus, I had so long suffered in this quest,
Heard failure prophesied so oft, been writ
So many times among "The Band"—to wit,

The knights who to the Dark Tower's search addressed

Their steps—that just to fail as they, seemed
best,

And all the doubt was now—should I be fit?

VIII.

So, quiet as despair, I turned from him,
That hateful cripple, out of his highway
Into the path he pointed. All the day
Had been a dreary one at best, and dim
Was settling to its close, yet shot one grim
Red leer to see the plain catch its stray.

IX.

For mark ! no sooner was I fairly found
Pledged to the plain, after a pace or two,
Than, pausing to throw backward a last view

O'er the safe road, 'twas gone ; grey plain all
round :

Nothing but plain to the horizon's bound.

I might go on ; nought else remained to do.

X.

So, on I went. I think I never saw Such starved ignoble nature ; nothing
throve :

For flowers—as well expect a cedar grove !
But cockle, spurge, according to their law
Might propagate their kind, with none to awe,
You'd think ; a burr had been a treasure-trove.

XI.

No ! penury, inertness and grimace,
In some strange sort, were the land's portion. " See

" Or shut your eyes," said Nature peevishly,

" It nothing skills : I cannot help my case :

" 'Tis the Last Judgment's fire must cure
this place,

" Calcine its clods and set my prisoners free."

XII.

If there pushed any ragged thistle-stalk
Above its mates, the head was chopped ;
the bents

Were jealous else. What made those holes and rents

In the dock's harsh swarth leaves, bruised as to baulk

All hope of greenness ? 'tis a brute must walk
Pashing their life out, with a brute's intents.

XIII.

As for the grass, it grew as scant as hair
In leprosy ; thin dry blades pricked the mud
Which underneath looked kneaded up with blood.

One stiff blind horse, his every bone a-stare,
Stood stupefied, however he came there :

Thrust out past service from the devil's stud !

XIV.

Alive ? he might be dead for aught I know,
With that red gaunt and colloped neck
a-strain,

And shut eyes underneath the rusty mane ;
Seldom went such grotesqueness with such
woe ;

I never saw a brute I hated so ;

He must be wicked to deserve such pain.

XV.

I shut my eyes and turned them on my heart.

As a man calls for wine before he fights,

I asked one draught of earlier, happier
sights,

Ere fitly I could hope to play my part.

Think first, fight afterwards—the soldier's art :

One taste of the old time sets all to rights.

XVI.

Not it ! I fancied Cuthbert's reddening face

Beneath its garniture of curly gold,

Dear fellow, till I almost felt him fold

XXVII.

And just as far as ever from the end !
 Nought in the distance but the evening,
 nought
 To point my footstep further ! At the
 thought,
 A great black bird, Apollyon's bosom-friend,
 Sailed past, nor beat his wide wing dragonpanned
 That brushed my cap—perchance the guide
 I sought.

XXVIII.

For, looking up, aware I somehow grew,
 'Spite of the dusk, the plain had given place
 All round to mountains—with such name to grace
 Mere ugly heights and heaps now stolen in view.
 How thus they had surprised me,—solve it,
 you !
 How to get from them was no clearer case.

XXIX.

Yet half I seemed to recognize some trick
 Of mischief happened to me, God knows
 when—
 In a bad dream perhaps. Here ended, then,
 Progress this way. When, in the very nick
 Of giving up, one time more, came a click
 As when a trap shuts—you're inside the den !

XXX.

Burningly it came on me all at once,
 This was the place ! those two hills on the
 right,
 Crouched like two bulls locked horn in horn in fight ;
 While to the left, a tall scalped mountain . . .
 Dunce,
 Dotard, a-doing at the very nonce,
 After a life spent training for the sight !

XXXI.

What in the midst lay but the Tower itself?
 The round squat turret, blind as the fool's
 heart,
 Built of brown stone, without a counter-
 part
 In the whole world. The tempest's mocking elf
 Points to the shipman thus the unseen shelf
 He strikes on, only when the timbers start.

XXXII.

Not see? because of night perhaps?—why,
 day
 Came back again for that ! before it left,
 The dying sunset kindled through a cleft :
 The hills, like giants at a hunting, lay,
 Chin upon hand, to see the game at bay,— “Now stab and end the creature—to the heft !”

XXXIII.

Not hear? when noise was everywhere ! it tolled
 Increasing like a bell. Names in my ears
 Of all the lost adventurers my peers,—
 How such a one was strong, and such was bold,
 And such was fortunate, yet each of old Lost, lost ! one moment knelled the woe of years.

XXXIV.

There they stood, ranged along the hill-sides,
 met
 To view the last of me, a living frame
 For one more picture ! in a sheet of flame
 I saw them and I knew them all. And yet
 Dauntless the slug-horn to my lips I set,
 And blew. “Childe Roland to the Dark Tower came.”

LURIA;
A TRAGEDY
1846.

I DEDICATE THIS LAST ATTEMPT FOR THE PRESENT AT DRAMATIC POETRY TO A GREAT DRAMATIC POET;
“ WISHING WHAT I WRITE MAY BE READ BY HIS LIGHT : ”
IF A PHRASE ORIGINALLY ADDRESSED, BY NOT THE LEAST WORTHY OF HIS CONTEMPORARIES, TO SHAKESPEARE,
MAY BE APPLIED HERE, BY ONE WHOSE SOLE PRIVILEGE IS IN A GRATEFUL ADMIRATION, TO WALTER SAVAGE LANDOR

LONDON : 1846.

LURIA.

PERSONS.

LURIA, a Moor, Commander of the Florentine Forces.

HUSAIN, a Moor, his friend.

PUCCIO, the old Florentine Commander, now LURIA'S chief officer.

BRACCIO, Commissary of the Republic of Florence.

JACOPO (LAPO), his secretary.

TIBURZIO, Commander of the Pisans.

DOMIZIA, a noble Florentine lady.

SCENE.—LURIA'S Camp between Florence and Pisa.

TIME, 14—.

ACT I.

MORNING.

BRACCIO, as dictating to his Secretary ;
PUCCIO standing by.

Braccio [to PUCCIO]. Then, you join battle in an hour ?

Puccio.
Luria, the captain.

Not I ;

Braccio [to the Secretary]. “ In an hour, the battle.”

[To PUCCIO.] Sir, let your eye run o'er this loose digest,

And see if very much of your report
Have slipped away through my civilian phrase.
Does this instruct the Signory aright
How army stands with army ?

Puccio [taking the paper]. All seems here :
—That Luria, seizing with our city's force
The several points of vantage, hill and
plain,

Shuts Pisa safe from help on every side,
And, baffling the Lucchese arrived too late,
Must, in the battle he delivers now,
Beat her best troops and first of chiefs.

Braccio. So sure ?
Tiburzio's a consummate captain too !

Puccio. Luria holds Pisa's fortune in his
hand.

Braccio [to the Secretary]. “ The Signory hold Pisa in their hand.”

Your own proved soldiership's our warrant,
sir :

So, while my secretary ends his task,
Have out two horsemen, by the open roads,
To post with it to Florence !

Puccio [returning the paper]. All seems here ;

Unless . . . Ser Braccio, 'tis my last report !
 Since Pisa's outbreak, and my overthrow,
 And Luria's hastening at the city's call
 To save her, as he only could, no doubt ;
 Till now that she is saved or sure to be,—
 Whatever you tell Florence, I tell you :
 Each day's note you, her Commissary, make
 Of Luria's movements, I myself supply.
 No youngster am I longer, to my cost ;
 Therefore while Florence gloried in her choice
 And vaunted Luria, whom but Luria, still,
 As if zeal, courage, prudence, conduct, faith,
 Had never met in any man before,
 I saw no pressing need to swell the cry.
 But now, this last report and I have done :
 So, ere to-night comes with its roar of praise,
 'Twere not amiss if some one old i' the trade Subscribed with, " True, for once rash counsel's best.

" This Moor of the bad faith and doubtful race,
 " This boy to whose untried sagacity,
 " Raw valour, Florence trusts without reserve
 " The charge to save her,—justifies her choice ;
 " In no point has this stranger failed his friends.
 " Now praise ! " I say this, and it is not here.

Braccio [to the Secretary]. Write, " Puccio, superseded in the charge,

" By Luria, bears full witness to his worth,
 " And no reward our Signory can give
 " Their champion but he'll back it cheerfully." Aught more? Five minutes hence, both messengers ! [PUCCIO goes.]

Braccio [after a pause, and while he slowly tears the paper into shreds]. I think . . .

(pray God, I hold in fit contempt

This warfare's noble art and ordering,
 And,—once the brace of prizers fairly matched, Poleaxe with poleaxe, knife with knife as
 good,—

Spit properly at what men term their skill!—)
 Yet here I think our fighter has the odds.
 With Pisa's strength diminished thus and thus,
 Such points of vantage in our hands and such,
 Lucca still off the stage, too,—all's assured :
 Luria must win this battle. Write the Court,
 That Luria's trial end and sentence pass !

Secretary. Patron,—

Braccio. Ay, Lapo?

Secretary. If you trip, I fall ;

'Tis in self-interest I speak—

Braccio. Nay, nay,

You overshoot the mark, my Lapo ! Nay !

When did I say pure love's impossible ?

I make you daily write those red cheeks thin,
 Load your young brow with what concerns
 it least,

And, when we visit Florence, let you pace

The Piazza by my side as if we talked,

Where all your old acquaintances may see :

You'd die for me, I should not be surprised.

Now then !

Secretary. Sir, look about and love yourself!
 Step after step, the Signory and you
 Tread gay till this tremendous point's to pass:
 Which pass not, pass not, ere you ask your-
 self,—

Bears the brain steadily such draughts of fire,

Or too delicious may not prove the pride

Of this long secret trial you dared plan,

Dare execute, you solitary here,

With the grey-headed toothless fools at home,

Who think themselves your lords, such slaves are they ?

If they pronounce this sentence as you bid,

Declare the treason, claim its penalty,—

And sudden out of all the blaze of life,

On the best minute of his brightest day,

From that adoring army at his back,

Thro' Florence' joyous crowds before his face,

Into the dark you beckon Luria . . .

Braccio. Then—

Why, Lapo, when the fighting-people vaunt,

We of the other craft and mystery,

May we not smile demure, the danger past ?

Secretary. Sir, no, no, no,—the danger, and your spirit

At watch and ward? Where's danger on your part,

With that thin fitting instantaneous steel

'Gainst the blind bull-front of a brute-force
 world ?

If Luria, that's to perish sure as fate,

Should have been really guiltless after all?

Braccio. Ah, you have thought that?

Lest I one minute lose her from my sight—
She who remembering her whole House's
fall,

That nest of traitors strangled in the birth,
Now labours to make Luria (poor device
As plain) the instrument of her revenge —That she is ever at his ear to prompt
Inordinate conceptions of his worth,
Exorbitant belief in worth's reward,
And after, when sure disappointment follows,
Proportionable rage at such a wrong—
Why, all these reasons, while I urge them
most,
Weigh with me less than least—as nothing weigh.

Upon that broad man's-heart of his, I go :
On what I know must be, yet, while I live,
Shall never be, because I live and know.
Brute-force shall not rule Florence ! Intellect
May rule her, bad or good as chance supplies :
But intellect it shall be, pure if bad,
And intellect's tradition so kept up.
Till the good come—'twas intellect that ruled,
Not brute-force bringing from the battle-field
The attributes of wisdom, foresight's graces
We lent it there to lure its grossness on ;
All which it took for earnest and kept safe
To show against us in our market-place,
Just as the plumes and tags and swordsman'sgear

(Fetched from the camp where, at their foolish best,
When all was done they frightened nobody)
Perk in our faces in the street, forsooth,
With our own warrant and allowance. No !
The whole procedure's overcharged,—its end
In too strict keeping with the bad first step.
To conquer Pisa was sheer inspiration ?
Well then, to perish for a single fault,
Let that be simple justice ! There, my Lapo !

A Moorish front ill suits our Duomo's body :
Blot it out—and bid Luria's sentence come !

[LURIA, who, with DOMIZIA, has entered unobserved at the close of the last phrase, now advances.

Luria. And Luria, Luria, what of Luria
now ?

Braccio. Ah, you so close, sir ? Lady Domizia too ?

I said it needs must be a busy moment
For one like you : that you were now i' the thick

Of your duties, doubtless, while we idlers sat . . .

Luria. No—in that paper,—it was in that paper

What you were saying !

Braccio. Oh—my day's despatch !
I censure you to Florence : will you see ?

Luria. See your despatch, your last, for the first time ?

Well, if I should, now ? For in truth,
Domizia,

He would be forced to set about another,
In his sly cool way, the true Florentine,
To mention that important circumstance.
So, while he wrote I should gain time, such
time !

Do not send this !

Braccio. And wherefore ?

Luria. These Lucchese

Are not arrived—they never will arrive !
And I must fight to-day, arrived or not,
And I shall beat Tiburzio, that is sure :
And then will be arriving his Lucchese,
But slowly, oh so slowly, just in time
To look upon my battle from the hills,
Like a late moon, of use to nobody !
And I must break my battle up, send forth,
Surround on this side, hold in check on that.
Then comes to-morrow, we negotiate,
You make me send for fresh instructions home,
—Incompleteness, incompleteness !

Braccio. Ah, we scribes'

Why, I had registered that very point,
The non-appearance of our foes' ally,
As a most happy fortune ; both at once
Were formidable : singly faced, each falls

Luria. So, no great battle for my Florentines !

No crowning deed, decisive and complete,
For all of them, the simple as the wise,
Old, young, alike, that do not understand
Our wearisome pedantic art of war,
By which we prove retreat may be success,

Delay—best speed,—half loss, at times,—
whole gain :

They want results : as if it were their fault !
And you, with warmest wish to be my friend,
Will not be able now to simply say

“Your servant has performed his task—
enough !

“You ordered, he has executed : good !

“Now walk the streets in holiday attire,

“Congratulate your friends, till noon strikes
fierce,

“Then form bright groups beneath the Duomo’s shade !”

No, you will have to argue and explain,

Persuade them, all is not so ill in the end,

Tease, tire them out ! Arrive, arrive, Lucchese !

Domizia. Well, you will triumph for the past enough,

Whatever be the present chance ; no service
Falls to the ground with Florence : she awaits
Her saviour, will receive him fittingly.

Luria. Ah Braccio, you know Florence !

Will she, think you,

Receive one . . . what means “fittingly
receive” ?

—Receive compatriots, doubtless—I am none :
And yet Domizia promises so much !

Braccio. Kind women still give men a woman’s prize.

I know not o’er which gate most boughs will
arch,

Nor if the Square will wave red flags or blue.

I should have judged, the fullest of rewards

Our state gave Luria, when she made him
chief

Of her whole force, in her best captain’s place.

Luria. That, my reward ? Florence on my account

Relieved Ser Puccio?—mark you, my reward !

And Puccio’s having all the fight’s true joy—

Goes here and there, gets close, may fight,
himself,

While I must order, stand aloof, o’ersee.

That was my calling, there was my true place !

I should have felt, in some one over me,

Florence impersonate, my visible head,

As I am over Puccio,—taking life

Directly from her eye ! They give me you :
But do you cross me, set me half to work ?

I enjoy nothing—though I will, for once !

Decide, shall we join battle ? may I wait ?

Braccio. Let us compound the matter ;
wait till noon :

Then, no arrival,—

Luria. Ah, noon comes too fast !

I wonder, do you guess why I delay

Involuntarily the final blow

As long as possible ? Peace follows it !

Florence at peace, and the calm studious heads

Come out again, the penetrating eyes ;

As if a spell broke, all’s resumed, each art

You boast, more vivid that it slept awhile.

’Gainst the glad heaven, o’er the white palace-front

The interrupted scaffold climbs anew ;

The walls are peopled by the painter’s brush :

The statue to its niche ascends to dwell.

The present noise and trouble have retired

And left the eternal past to rule once more ;

You speak its speech and read its records
plain,

Greece lives with you, each Roman breathes
your friend :

But Luria—where will then be Luria’s place ?

Domizia. Highest in honour, for that past’s own sake,

Of which his actions, sealing up the sum

By saving all that went before from wreck,

Will range as part, with which be worshipped
too.

Luria. Then I may walk and watch you in your streets,

Lead the smooth life my rough life helps no
more,

So different, so new, so beautiful—

Nor fear that you will tire to see parade

The club that slew the lion, now that crooks

And shepherd-pipes come into use again ?

For very lone and silent seems my East

In its drear vastness : still it spreads, and still

No Braccios, no Domizias anywhere—

Not ever more ! Well, well, to-day is ours !

Domizia [to BRACCIO]. Should he not have been one of us ?

Luria.

Ob, no !

Not one of you, and so escape the thrill
Of coming into you, of changing thus,— Feeling a soul grow on me that restricts
The boundless unrest of the savage heart !
The sea heaves up, hangs loaded o'er the land, Breaks there and buries its tumultuous
strength ;

Horror, and silence, and a pause awhile :
Lo, inland glides the gulf-stream, miles away,
In rapture of assent, subdued and still,
'Neath those strange banks, those unimagined
skies.

Well, 'tis not sure the quiet lasts for ever !
Your placid heads still find rough hands new
work ;

Some minute's chance—there comes the need of mine :

And, all resolved on, I too hear at last.
Oh, you must find some use for me, Ser Braccio !

You hold my strength ; 'twere best dispose of it :
What you created, see that you find food for—
I shall be dangerous else !

Braccio. How dangerous, sir ?

Luria. There are so many ways, Domizia warns me,

And one with half the power that I possess,
—Grows very formidable. Do you doubt ?
Why, first, who holds the army . . .

Domizia. While we talk,
Morn wears ; we keep you from your proper
place,
The field.

Luria. Nay, to the field I move no more ;
My part is done, and Puccio's may begin :
I cannot trench upon his province longer
With any face.—You think yourselves so safe ?
Why, see—in concert with Tiburzio, now—
One could . . .

Domizia. A trumpet !

Luria. My Lucchese at last !
Arrived, as sure as Florence stands ! Your leave !

[Springs out.]

Domizia. How plainly is true greatness charactered

By such unconscious sport as Luria's here,
Strength sharing least the secret of itself !
Be it with head that schemes or hand that acts,

Such save the world which none but they could save,
Yet think whate'er they did, that world could do.

Braccio. Yes : and how worthy note, that these same great ones

In hand or head, with such unconsciousness
And all its due entailed humility,
Should never shrink, so far as I perceive,
From taking up whatever tool there be
Effects the whole world's safety or mishap,
Into their mild hands as a thing of course !

The statist finds it natural to lead
The mob who might as easily lead him—
The captain marshals troops born skilled in war—

Statist and captain verily believe !
While we poor scribes . . . you catch me thinking now,

That I shall in this very letter write
What none of you are able ! To it, Lapo !

[DOMIZIA goes.]

This last worst all-affected childish fit
Of Luria's, this be-praised unconsciousness.
Convinces me ; the past was no child's play :
It was a man beat Pisa,—not a child.
All's mere dissimulation—to remove
The fear, he best knows we should entertain.

The utmost danger was at hand. Is't written ?
Now make a duplicate, lest this should fail,
And speak your fullest on the other side.

Secretary. I noticed he was busily repairing
My half-effacement of his Duomo sketch,
And, while he spoke of Florence, turned to it,
As the Mage Negro king to Christ the babe.
I judge his childishness the mere relapse
To boyhood of a man who has worked lately,
And presently will work, so, meantime,
plays :

Whence, more than ever I believe in him.

Braccio [after a pause]. The sword ! At best, the soldier, as he says,
In Florence—the black face, the barbarous
name,

For Italy to boast her show of the age,
Her man of men ! To Florence with each letter !

Luria. Admit him ! This will prove the last delay.

Husain. Ay, friend, go on, and die thou going on !

Thou heardst what the grave woman said but now :

To-night rewards thee. That is well to hear ; But stop not therefore : hear it, and go on !

Luria. Oh, their reward and triumph and the rest

They round me in the ears with, all day long ? All that, I never take for earnest, friend !

Well would it suit us,—their triumphal arch Or storied pillar,—thee and me, the Moors !

But gratitude in those Italian eyes— That, we shall get ?

Husain. It is too cold an air.

Our sun rose out of yonder mound of mist : Where is he now ? So, I trust none of them.

Luria. Truly ?

Husain. I doubt and fear. There stands a wall

'Twixt our expansive and explosive race And those absorbing, concentrating men. They use thee.

Luria. And I feel it, Husain ! yes, And care not—yes, an alien force like mine Is only called to play its part outside Their different nature ; where its sole use seems

To fight with and keep off an adverse force, As alien,—which repelled, mine too withdraws :

Inside, they know not what to do with me. Thus I have told them laughingly and oft, But long since am prepared to learn the worst.

Husain. What is the worst ?

Luria. I will forestall them, Husain, Will speak the destiny they dare not speak— Banish myself before they find the heart.

I will be first to say, “ The work rewards !

“ I know, for all your praise, my use is over,

“ So may it prove !—meanwhile 'tis best I go,

“ Go carry safe my memories of you all

“ To other scenes of action, newer lands.”—

Thus leaving them confirmed in their belief

They would not easily have tired of me.

You think this hard to say ?

Husain.

Say or not say,

So thou but go, so they but let thee go !

This hating people, that hate each the other,

And in one blandness to us Moors unite—

Locked each to each like slippery snakes, I say,

Which still in all their tangles, hissing tongue

And threatening tail, ne'er do each other

harm ;

While any creature of a better blood,

They seem to fight for, while they circle safe

And never touch it,—pines without a wound,

Withers away beside their eyes and breath.

See thou, if Puccio come not safely out

Of Braccio's grasp, this Braccio sworn his foe,

As Braccio safely from Domizia's toils

Who hates him most ! But thou, the friend of all,

. . . Come out of them !

Luria.

The Pisan trumpet now !

Husain. Breathe free—it is an enemy, no friend !

[Goes.

Luria. He keeps his instincts, no new culture mars

Their perfect use in him ; just so the brutes

Rest not, are anxious without visible cause,

When change is in the elements at work,

Which man's trained senses fail to apprehend.

But here,—he takes the distant chariot wheel

For thunder, festal flame for lightning's flash,

The finer traits of cultivated life

For treachery and malevolence : I see !

Enter TIBURZIO.

Luria. Quick, sir, your message ! I but wait your message

To sound the charge. You bring no overture

For truce ? I would not, for your General's sake,

You spoke of truce : a time to fight is come,

And, whatso'er the fight's event, he keeps

His honest soldier's-name to beat me with,

Or leaves me all himself to beat, I trust !

Tiburzio. I am Tiburzio.

Luria.

You ? 'Tis—yes

. . . Tiburzio !

You were the last to keep the ford i' the valley

From Puccio, when I threw in succours there

Why, I was on the heights—through the defile
Ten minutes after, when the prey was lost !
You wore an open skull-cap with a twist
Of water-reeds—the plume being hewn away ;
While I drove down my battle from the heights,

I saw with my own eyes !

Tiburzio. And you are Luria
Who sent my cohort, that laid down its arms
In error of the battle-signal's sense,
Back safely to me at the critical time—
One of a hundred deeds. I know you.

Therefore
To none but you could I . . .

Luria. No truce, Tiburzio !
Tiburzio. Luria, you know the peril imminent

On Pisa,—that you have us in the toils,
Us her last safeguard, all that intercepts
The rage of her implacablest of foes
From Pisa : if we fall to-day, she falls.
Tho' Lucca will arrive, yet, 'tis too late.
You have so plainly here the best of it,
That you must feel, brave soldier as you
are,

How dangerous we grow in this extreme,
How truly formidable by despair.
Still, probabilities should have their weight :
The extreme chance is ours, but, that chance failing,

You win this battle. Wherefore say I this ?
To be well apprehended when I add,
This danger absolutely comes from you.
Were you, who threaten thus, a Florentine . . .

Luria. Sir, I am nearer Florence than her sons.

I can, and have perhaps obliged the State,
Nor paid a mere son's duty.

Tiburzio. Even so.
Were you the son of Florence, yet endued
With all your present nobleness of soul,
No question, what I must communicate
Would not detach you from her.

Luria. Me, detach ?

Tiburzio. Time urges. You will ruin
presently
Pisa, you never knew, for Florence' sake

You think you know. I have from time to
time

Made prize of certain secret missives sent
From Braccio here, the Commissary, home :
And knowing Florence otherwise, I piece
The entire chain out, from these its scattered links.

Your trial occupies the Signory ;
They sit in judgment on your conduct now.
When men at home inquire into the acts
Which in the field e'en foes appreciate . . .
Brief, they are Florentines ! You, saving
them,

Seek but the sure destruction saviours find.

Luria. Tiburzio !

Tiburzio. All the wonder is of course.
I am not here to teach you, nor direct,
Only to loyally apprise—scarce that. .
This is the latest letter, sealed and safe,
As it left here an hour ago. One way
Of two thought free to Florence, I command.
The duplicate is on its road ; but this,—
Read it, and then I shall have more to say.

Luria. Florence !

Tiburzio. Now, were yourself a Florentine,

This letter, let it hold the worst it can,
Would be no reason you should fall away.
The mother city is the mother still,
And recognition of the children's service
Her own affair ; reward—there's no reward !
But you are bound by quite another tie.
Nor nature shows, nor reason, why at first
A foreigner, born friend to all alike,
Should give himself to any special State
More than another, stand by Florence' side
Rather than Pisa ; 'tis as fair a city
You war against as that you fight for—famed
As well as she in story, graced no less
With noble heads and patriotic hearts :
Nor to a stranger's eye would either cause,
Stripped of the cumulative loves and hates
Which take importance from familiar view,
Stand as the right and sole to be upheld.
Therefore, should the preponderating gift
Of love and trust, Florence was first to throw,
Which made you hers, not Pisa's, void the scale,—

Old ties dissolving, things resume their place
 And all begins again. Break seal and read !
 At least let Pisa offer for you now !
 And I, as a good Pisan, shall rejoice—
 Though for myself I lose, in gaining you,
 This last fight and its opportunity ;
 The chance it brings of saving Pisa yet,
 Or in the turn of battle dying so
 That shame should want its extreme bitterness.

Luria. Tiburzio, you that fight for Pisa now
 As I for Florence . . . say my chance were
 yours !

You read this letter, and you find . . . no,
 no !

Too mad !

Tiburzio. I read the letter, find they purpose
 When I have crushed their foe, to crush me :
 well ?

Luria. You, being their captain, what is it you do ?

Tiburzio. Why, as it is, all cities are alike ;
 As Florence pays you, Pisa will pay me.
 I shall be as belied, whate'er the event,
 As you, or more : my weak head, they will say,
 Prompted this last expedient, my faint heart
 Entailed on them indelible disgrace,
 Both which defects ask proper punishment.
 Another tenure of obedience, mine !
 You are no son of Pisa's : break and read !

Luria. And act on what I read ? What act were fit ?

If the firm-fixed foundation of my faith
 In Florence, who to me stands for mankind,
 —If that break up and, disimprisoning
 From the abyss . . . Ah friend, it cannot be !
 You may be very sage, yet—all the world
 Having to fail, or your sagacity,
 You do not wish to find yourself alone !
 What would the world be worth ? Whose love be sure ?

The world remains : you are deceived !

Tiburzio. Your hand !
 I lead the vanguard.—If you fall, beside,
 The better : I am left to speak ! For me,
 This was my duty, nor would I rejoice
 If I could help, it misses its effect ;

And after all you will look gallantly Found dead here with that letter in your breast.

Luria. Tiburzio—I would see these people
 once

And test them ere I answer finally !

At your arrival let the trumpet sound :

If mine return not then the wonted cry

It means that I believe—am Pisa's !

Tiburzio.

Well !

[Goes.

Luria. My heart will have it he speaks true ! My blood

Beats close to this Tiburzio as a friend.

If he had stept into my watch-tent, night

And the wild desert full of foes around,

I should have broke the bread and given the salt

Secure, and, when my hour of watch was done,

Taken my turn to sleep between his knees,

Safe in the untroubled brow and honest cheek.

Oh world, where all things pass and nought abides,

Oh life, the long mutation—is it so ?

Is it with life as with the body's change ?

—Where, e'en tho' better follow, good must
 pass,

Nor manhood's strength can mate with boy-hood's grace,

Nor age's wisdom, in its turn, find strength,

But silently the first gift dies away,

And though the new stays, never both at once.

Life's time of savage instinct o'er with me,

It fades and dies away, past trusting more,

As if to punish the ingratitude

With which I turned to grow in these new lights,

And learned to look with European eyes.

Yet it is better, this cold certain way,

Where Braccio's brow tells nothing, Puccio's
 mouth,

Domizia's eyes reject the searcher : yes !

For on their calm sagacity I lean,

Their sense of right, deliberate choice of good,

Sure, as they know my deeds, they deal with me.

Yes, that is better—that is best of all !

Such faith stays when mere wild belief would go.

ACT III.

AFTERNOON.

PUCCIO, as making a report to JACOPO.

Puccio. And here, your captain must report the rest ;

For, as I say, the main engagement over
And Luria's special part in it performed,
How could a subaltern like me expect
Leisure or leave to occupy the field
And glean what dropped from his wide harvesting ?

I thought, when Lucca at the battle's end
Came up, just as the Pisan centre broke,
That Luria would detach me and prevent
The flying Pisans seeking what they found,
Friends in the rear, a point to rally by.
But no, more honourable proved my post !
I had the august captive to escort
Safe to our camp ; some other could pursue,
Fight, and be famous ; gentler chance was
mine—

Tiburzio's wounded spirit must be soothed !
He's in the tent there.

Jacopo. Is the substance down ?
I write—"The vanguard beaten and both wings
"In full retreat, Tiburzio prisoner"—
And now,—"That they fell back and formed
again

"On Lucca's coming." Why then, after all,
'Tis half a victory, no conclusive one ?

Puccio. Two operations where a sole had served.

Jacopo. And Luria's fault was—?

Puccio. Oh, for fault—not much !
He led the attack, a thought impetuously,
—There's commonly more prudence ; now,
he seemed

To hurry measures, otherwise well judged.
By over-concentrating strength at first
Against the enemy's van, both wings escaped :
That's reparable, yet it is a fault.

Enter BRACCIO.

Jacopo. As good as a full victory to Florence,

With the advantage of a fault beside—
What is it, Puccio?—that by pressing forward
With too impetuous . . .

Braccio. The report anon !
Thanks, sir—you have elsewhere a charge, I know. [PUCCIO goes.

There's nothing done but I would do again ;
Yet, Lapo, it may be the past proves nothing,
And Luria has kept faithful to the close.

Jacopo. I was for waiting

Braccio. Yes : so was not I.
He could not choose but tear that letter—
true !

Still, certain of his tones, I mind, and looks :—
You saw, too, with a fresher soul than I.
So, Porzio seemed an injured man, they say !
Well, I have gone upon the broad, sure
ground.

Enter LURIA, PUCCIO, and DOMIZIA

Luria [to PUCCIO]. Say, at his pleasure I will see Tiburzio !
All's at his pleasure.

Domisia [to LURIA]. Were I not forewarned
You would reject, as you do constantly, Praise,—I might tell you how you have deserved

Of Florence by this last and crowning feat :
But words offend.

Luria. Nay, you may praise me now.
I want instruction every hour, I find,
On points where once I saw least need of it ;
And praise, I have been used to slight
perhaps,

Seems scarce so easily dispensed with now.
After a battle half one's strength is gone ;
The glorious passion in us once appeased,
Our reason's calm cold dreadful voice begins.
All justice, power and beauty scarce appear
Monopolized by Florence, as of late,
To me, the stranger : you, no doubt, may know
Why Pisa needs must bear her rival's yoke.
And peradventure I grow nearer you,
For I, too, want to know and be assured.
When a cause ceases to reward itself,
Its friend seeks fresh sustainments ; praise is
one,

And here stand you—you, lady, praise me
well.

But yours — (your pardon) — is unlearned
praise.

To the motive, the endeavour, the heart's self,
Your quick sense looks : you crown and call aright

The soul o' the purpose, ere 'tis shaped as act, Takes flesh i' the world, and clothes itself a
king.

But when the act comes, stands for what 'tis
worth,

—Here's Puccio, the skilled soldier, he's my judge !

Was all well, Puccio ?

Puccio. All was . . . must be well :
If we beat Lucca presently, as doubtless . . .

—No, there's no doubt, we must—all was well done.

Luria. In truth ? Still you are of the trade, my Puccio !

You have the fellow-craftsman's sympathy.

There's none cares, like a fellow of the craft,
For the all-unestimated sum of pains

That go to a success the world can see :

They praise then, but the best they never
know

—While you know ! So, if envy mix with it,
Hate even, still the bottom-praise of all,

Whatever be the dregs, that drop's pure gold !

—For nothing's like it ; nothing else records
Those daily, nightly drippings in the dark

Of the heart's blood, the world lets drop
away

For ever—so, pure gold that praise must be !

And I have yours, my soldier ! yet the best

Is still to come. There's one looks on apart

Whom all refers to, failure or success ;

What's done might be our best, our utmost
work,

And yet inadequate to serve his need.

Here's Braccio now, for Florence—here's our service—

Well done for us, seems it well done for him ?

His chosen engine, tasked to its full strength

Answers the end ? Should he have chosen higher ?

Do we help Florence, now our best is wrought ?

Braccio. This battle, with the foregone services,

Saves Florence.

Luria. Why then, all is very well !

Here am I in the middle of my friends,

Who know me and who love me, one and all.

And yet . . . 'tis like . . . this instant while

I speak

Is like the turning-moment of a dream

When . . . Ah, you are not foreigners like
me !

Well then, one always dreams of friends at
home ;

And always comes, I say, the turning-point

When something changes in the friendly eyes

That love and look on you . . . so slight, so slight . . .

And yet it tells you they are dead and gone,

Or changed and enemies, for all their words,

And all is mockery and a maddening show.

You now, so kind here, all you Florentines,

What is it in your eyes . . . those lips, those brows . . .

Nobody spoke it, yet I know it well !

Come now—this battle saves you, all's at
end,

Your use of me is o'er, for good, for ill,—

Come now, what's done against me, while I
speak,

In Florence ? Come ! I feel it in my blood,

My eyes, my hair, a voice is in my ears

That spite of all this smiling and soft speech

You are betraying me. What is it you do ?

Have it your way, and think my use is over—

Think you are saved and may throw off the mask—

Have it my way, and think more work remains

Which I could do,—so, show you fear me not !

Or prudent be, or daring, as you choose,

But tell me—tell what I refused to know

At noon, lest heart should fail me ! Well ?

That letter ?

My fate is sealed at Florence ! What is it ?

Braccio. Sir, I shall not deny what you divine.

It is no novelty for innocence

To be suspected, but a privilege :

The after certain compensation comes.
Charges, I say not whether false or true,
Have been preferred against you some time
since,

Which Florence was bound, plainly, to receive,
And which are therefore undergoing now
The due investigation. That is all.

I doubt not but your innocence will prove Apparent and illustrious, as to me,
To them this evening, when the trial ends.

Luria. My trial?

Domizia. Florence, Florence to the end,

My whole heart thanks thee!

Puccio [to BRACCIO]. What is "trial,"
sir?

It was not for a trial—surely, no—
I furnished you those notes from time to time?
I held myself aggrieved—I am a man—
And I might speak,—ay, and speak mere truth, too,

And yet not mean at bottom of my heart
What should assist a—trial, do you say?
You should have told me!

Domizia. Nay, go on, go on!
His sentence! Do they sentence him? What is it?

The block—wheel?

Braccio. Sentence there is none as yet,
Nor shall I give my own opinion now
Of what it should be, or is like to be.
When it is passed, applaud or disapprove!
Up to that point, what is there to impugn?

Luria. They are right, then, to try me?

Braccio. I assert,
Maintain and justify the absolute right
Of Florence to do all she can have done
In this procedure,—standing on her guard,
Receiving even services like yours
With utmost fit suspicious wariness.

In other matters, keep the mummery up!
Take all the experiences of all the world,
Each knowledge that broke through a heart
to life,
Each reasoning which, to reach, burnt out a
brain,

—In other cases, know these, warrant these,
And then dispense with these—'tis very well!

Let friend trust friend, and love demand love's like,

And gratitude be claimed for benefits,— There's grace in that,—and when the fresh heart breaks,

The new brain proves a ruin, what of them?

Where is the matter of one moth the more

Singed in the candle, at a summer's end?

But Florence is no simple John or James

To have his toy, his fancy, his conceit

That he's the one excepted man by fate,

And, when fate shows him he's mistaken
there,

Die with all good men's praise, and yield his
place

To Paul and George intent to try their chance!

Florence exists because these pass away.

She's a contrivance to supply a type

Of man, which men's deficiencies refuse;

She binds so many, that she grows out of
them—

Stands steady o'er their numbers, though they
change

And pass away—there's always what upholds,

Always enough to fashion the great show.

As see, yon hanging city, in the sun,

Of shapely cloud substantially the same!

A thousand vapours rise and sink again,

Are interfused, and live their life and die,—

Yet ever hangs the steady show i' the air,

Under the sun's straight influence: that is well,

That is worth heaven should hold, and God should bless!

And so is Florence,—the unseen sun above,

Which draws and holds suspended all of us,

Binds transient vapours into a single cloud

Differing from each and better than they all.

And shall she dare to stake this permanence

On any one man's faith? Man's heart is weak.

And its temptations many: let her prove

Each servant to the very uttermost

Before she grant him her reward, I say!

Domizia. And as for hearts she chances to mistake,

Wronged hearts, not destined to receive
reward,

Though they deserve it, did she only know,

—What should she do for these?

And I believed, the shame they bore and died,
He would not bear, but live and fight against—Seeing he was of other stuff than they.

Luria. Hear them! All these against one foreigner!

And all this while, where is, in the whole world,
To his good faith a single witness?

Tiburzio [who has entered unseen during the preceding dialogue]. Here!

Thus I bear witness, not in word but deed.
I live for Pisa; she's not lost to-day
By many chances—much prevents from that!
Her army has been beaten, I am here,
But Lucca comes at last, one happy chance!
I rather would see Pisa three times lost
Than saved by any traitor, even by you;
The example of a traitor's happy fortune
Would bring more evil in the end than good;—
Pisa rejects the traitor, craves yourself!
I, in her name, resign forthwith to you My charge,—the highest office, sword and shield!

You shall not, by my counsel, turn on Florence
Your army, give her calumny that ground—
Nor bring one soldier: be you all we gain!
And all she'll lose,—a head to deck some
bridge,
And save the cost o' the crown should deck
the head.

Leave her to perish in her perfidy,
Plague-stricken and stripped naked to all eyes,
A proverb and by-word in all mouths!
Go you to Pisa! Florence is my place—
Leave me to tell her of the rectitude,
I, from the first, told Pisa, knowing it.
To Pisa!

Domisia. Ah my Braccio, are you caught?

Braccio. Puccio, good soldier and good citizen,

Whom I have ever kept beneath my eye,
Ready as fit, to serve in this event
Florence, who clear foretold it from the first—Through me, she gives you the command and
charge
She takes, through me, from him who held it
late!

A painful trial, very sore, was yours:
All that could draw out, marshal in array

The selfish passions 'gainst the public good—Sights, scorns, neglects, were heaped on you
to bear:

And ever you did bear and bow the head!
It had been sorry trial, to precede
Your feet, hold up the promise of reward
For luring gleam; your footsteps kept the track
Thro' dark and doubt: take all the light at
once!

Trial is over, consummation shines;
Well have you served, as well henceforth command!

Puccio. No, no . . . I dare not! I am grateful, glad;

But Luria—you shall understand he's wronged:

And he's my captain: this is not the way
We soldiers climb to fortune: think again!
The sentence is not even passed, beside!
I dare not: where's the soldier could?

Luria. Now, Florence—

Is it to be? You will know all the strength
O' the savage—to your neck the proof must go!
You will prove the brute nature? Ah, I see!
The savage plainly is impassible:

He keeps his calm way through insulting words,
Sarcastic looks, sharp gestures—one of which
Would stop you, fatal to your finer sense,
But if he stolidly advance, march mute
Without a mark upon his callous hide,
Through the mere brushwood you grow angry
with,

And leave the tatters of your flesh upon,
—You have to learn that when the true bar
comes,

The murk mid-forest, the grand obstacle,
Which when you reach, you give the labour up,
Nor dash on, but lie down composed before,
—He goes against it, like the brute he is:

It falls before him, or he dies in his course.
I kept my course through past ingratitude:
I saw—it does seem, now, as if I saw,
Could not but see, those insults as they fell.
—Ay, let them glance from off me, very like.
Laughing, perhaps, to think the quality
You grew so bold on, while you so despised
The Moor's dull mute inapprehensive mood,

Was saving you : I bore and kept my course.
Now real wrong fronts me : see if I succumb !
Florence withstands me ? I will punish her.

At night my sentence will arrive, you say.
Till then I cannot, if I would, rebel —Unauthorized to lay my office down,
Retaining my full power to will and do :
After—it is to see. Tiburzio, thanks !
Go ; you are free : join Lucca ! I suspend
All further operations till to-night.
Thank you, and for the silence most of all !
[To BRACCIO.] Let my complacent bland accuser go

Carry his self-approving head and heart
Safe through the army which would trample
him
Dead in a moment at my word or sign !
Go, sir, to Florence ; tell friends what I say—
That while I wait my sentence, theirs waits
them !

[To DOMIZIA.] You, lady,—you have black Italian eyes !

I would be generous if I might : oh, yes—
For I remember how so oft you seemed Inclined at heart to break the barrier down
Which Florence finds God built between us
both.

Alas, for generosity ! this hour
Asks retribution : bear it as you may,
I must—the Moor—the savage,—pardon you !
Puccio, my trusty soldier, see them forth !

ACT IV.

EVENING.

Enter PUCCIO and JACOPO.

Puccio. What Luria will do ? Ah, 'tis yours, fair sir,
Your and your subtle-witted master's part,
To tell me that ; I tell you what he can.

Jacopo. Friend, you mistake my station :
I observe
The game, watch how my betters play, no
more.

Puccio. But mankind are not pieces—
there's your fault !
You cannot push them, and, the first move
made,

Lean back and study what the next shall be,
In confidence that, when 'tis fixed upon,
You find just where you left them, blacks and whites :

Men go on moving when your hand's away.
You build, I notice, firm on Luria's faith
This whole time,—firmlier than I choose to build,

Who never doubted it—of old, that is—
With Luria in his ordinary mind.

But now, oppression makes the wise man
mad :

How do I know he will not turn and stand
And hold his own against you, as he may ?
Suppose he but withdraw to Pisa—well,—
Then, even if all happen to your wish,
Which is a chance . . .

Jacopo. Nay—'twas an oversight,
Not waiting till the proper warrant came :
You could not take what was not ours to give.
But when at night the sentence really comes,
Our city authorizes past dispute
Luria's removal and transfers the charge,
You will perceive your duty and accept ?

Puccio. Accept what ? muster-rolls of soldiers' names ?
An army upon paper ? I want men,
The hearts as well as hands—and where's a
heart

But beats with Luria, in the multitude
I come from walking through by Luria's side ?
You gave them Luria, set him thus to grow,
Head-like, upon their trunk ; one heart feeds
both,

They feel him there, live twice, and well know why.

—For they do know, if you are ignorant,
Who kept his own place and respected theirs, Managed their sweat, yet never spared his
blood.

All was your act : another might have served—
There's peradventure no such dearth of heads—
But you chose Luria : so, they grew one flesh,
And now, for nothing they can understand,

Luria removed, off is to roll the head ;
The body's mine—much I shall do with it !

Jacopo. That's at the worst.

Puccio. No—at the best, it is !
Best, do you hear ? I saw them by his side.
Only we two with Luria in the camp
Are left that keep the secret ? You think that ?
Hear what I know : from rear to van, no heart
But felt the quiet patient hero there
Was wronged, nor in the moveless ranks an eye
But glancing told its fellow the whole story
Of that convicted silent knot of spies
Who passed thro' them to Florence ; they might pass—

No breast but gladlier beat when free of such !
Our troops will catch up Luria, close him round,
Bear him to Florence as their natural lord,
Partake his fortune, live or die with him.

Jacopo. And by mistake catch up along with him

Puccio, no doubt, compelled in self despite
To still continue second in command !

Puccio. No, sir, no second nor so fortunate !
Your tricks succeed with me too well for that !
I am as you have made me, live and die
To serve your end—a mere trained fighting-hack,

With words, you laugh at while they leave your mouth

For my life's rule and ordinance of God !
I have to do my duty, keep my faith,
And earn my praise, and guard against my
blame,

As I was trained. I shall accept your charge,
And fight against one better than myself,
Spite of my heart's conviction of his worth—
That, you may count on !—just as hitherto
I have gone on, persuaded I was wronged,
Slighted, insulted, terms we learn by rote,—
All because Luria superseded me—
Because the better nature, fresh-inspired,
Mounted above me to its proper place !
What mattered all the kindly graciousness,
The cordial brother's-bearing ? This was clear—

I, once the captain, now was subaltern,
And so must keep complaining like a fool !
Go, take the curse of a lost soul, I say !

You neither play your puppets to the end,
Nor treat the real man,—for his realness' sake Thrust rudely in their place,—with such regard

As might console them for their altered rank.
Me, the mere steady soldier, you depose
For Luria, and here's all your pet deserves !
Of what account, then, is your laughing-stock ?
One word for all : whatever Luria does,
—If backed by his indignant troops he turn,
Revenge himself, and Florence go to ground,—
Or, for a signal everlasting shame,
He pardon you, simply seek better friends,
Side with the Pisans and Lucchese for change
—And if I, pledged to ingrates past belief,
Dare fight against a man such fools call false,
Who, inasmuch as he was true, fights me,—
Whichever way he win, he wins for worth,
For every soldier, for all true and good !
Sir, chronicling the rest, omit not this !

As they go, enter LURIA and HUSAIN.

Husain. Saw'st thou ?—For they are gone !
The world lies bare
Before thee, to be tasted, felt and seen
Like what it is, now Florence goes away !
Thou livest now, with men art man again !
Those Florentines were all to thee of old ;
But Braccio, but Domizia, gone is each,
There lie beneath thee thine own multitudes !
Saw'st thou ?

Luria. I saw.

Husain. Then, hold thy course, my king !

The years return. Let thy heart have its
way :

Ah, they would play with thee as with all else,
Turn thee to use, and fashion thee anew,
Find out God's fault in thee as in the rest ?
Oh watch, oh listen only to these fiends
Once at their occupation ! Ere we know,
The free great heaven is shut, their stifling pall
Drops till it frets the very tingling hair,
So weighs it on our head,—and, for the earth,
Our common earth is tethered up and down,
Over and across—"here shalt thou move,"
they cry !

Luria. Ay, Husain ?

As failing of sustainment from thyself,
 —Neither from low revenge, nor selfishness,
 Nor savage lust of power, nor one, nor all,
 Shalt thou abolish Florence! I proclaim
 The angel in thee, and reject the sprites
 Which ineffectual crowd about his strength,
 And mingle with his work and claim a share!
 Inconsciously to the augustest end
 Thou hast arisen: second not in rank
 So much as time, to him who first ordained
 That Florence, thou art to destroy, should be.
 Yet him a star, too, guided, who broke first
 The pride of lonely power, the life apart,
 And made the eminences, each to each,
 Lean o'er the level world and let it lie Safe from the thunder henceforth 'neath their tops;
 So the few famous men of old combined,
 And let the multitude rise underneath,
 And reach them and unite—so Florence grew:
 Braccio speaks true, it was well worth the price.
 But when the sheltered many grew in pride
 And grudged the station of the elected ones,
 Who, greater than their kind, are truly great
 Only in voluntary servitude—
 Time was for thee to rise, and thou art here.
 Such plague possessed this Florence: who can tell
 The mighty girth and greatness at the heart
 Of those so perfect pillars of the grove
 She pulled down in her envy? Who as I,
 The light weak parasite born but to twine Round each of them and, measuring them,
 live?
 My light love keeps the matchless circle safe,
 My slender life proves what has passed away.
 I lived when they departed; lived to cling
 To thee, the mighty stranger; thou wouldst rise
 And burst the thralldom, and avenge, I knew.
 I have done nothing; all was thy strong bole.
 But a bird's weight can break the infant tree
 Which after holds an aery in its arms,
 And 'twas my care that nought should warp thy spire
 From rising to the height; the roof is reached O' the forest, break through, see extend the sky!

Go on to Florence, Luria! 'Tis man's cause!
 Fail thou, and thine own fall were least to dread:

Thou keepest Florence in her evil way,
 Encouragest her sin so much the more—
 And while the ignoble past is justified,
 Thou all the surelier warp'st the future growth,
 The chiefs to come, the Lurias yet unborn,
 That, greater than thyself, are reached o'er
 thee

Who giv'st the vantage-ground their foes require

As o'er my prostrate House thyself wast
 reached.

Man calls thee, God requites thee! All is
 said,

The mission of my House fulfilled at last:
 And the mere woman, speaking for herself,
 Reserves speech—it is now no woman's time.

[DOMIZIA goes.]

Luria. Thus at the last must figure Luria,
 then!

Doing the various work of all his friends,
 And answering every purpose save his own.
 No doubt, 'tis well for them to wish; but
 him—

After the exploit what were left? Perchance
 A little pride upon the swarthy brow,
 At having brought successfully to bear
 'Gainst Florence' self her own especial arms,—
 Her craftiness, impelled by fiercer strength
 From Moorish blood than feeds the northern wit

But after!—once the easy vengeance willed,
 Beautiful Florence at a word laid low
 —(Not in her domes and towers and palaces,
 Not even in a dream, that outrage!)—low,
 As shamed in her own eyes henceforth for ever,

Low, for the rival cities round to laugh,
 Conquered and pardoned by a hireling Moor!
 —For him, who did the irreparable wrong,
 What would be left, his life's illusion fled,—
 What hope or trust in the forlorn wide world?
 How strange that Florence should mistake me
 so!

Whence grew this? What withdrew her faith from me?

Some cause ! These fretful-blooded children
talk

Against their mother,—they are wronged,
they say—

Notable wrongs her smile makes up again !
So, taking fire at each supposed offence,
They may speak rashly, suffer for their speech :
But what could it have been in word or deed
Thus injured me ? Some one word spoken
more

Out of my heart, and all had changed perhaps.
My fault, it must have been,—for, what gain
they ?

Why risk the danger ? See, what I could do !
And my fault, wherefore visit upon them,
My Florentines ? The notable revenge
I meditated ! To stay passively,
Attend their summons, be as they dispose !
Why, if my very soldiers keep the rank,
And if my chieftains acquiesce, what then ?
I ruin Florence, teach her friends mistrust,
Confirm her enemies in harsh belief,
And when she finds one day, as find she must,
The strange mistake, and how my heart was
hers,

Shall it console me, that my Florentines
Walk with a sadder step, in graver guise,
Who took me with such frankness, praised me so,

At the glad outset ? Had they loved me less,
They had less feared what seemed a change in me.

And after all, who did the harm ? Not they !
How could they interpose with those old fools
I' the council ? Suffer for those old fools'
sake—

They, who made pictures of me, sang the songs

About my battles ? Ah, we Moors get blind
Out of our proper world, where we can see !
The sun that guides is closer to us ! There—There, my own orb ! He sinks from out the sky.

Why, there ! a whole day has he blessed the
land,

My land, our Florence all about the hills,
The fields and gardens, vineyards, olive-grounds,

All have been blest : and yet we Florentines
With souls intent upon our battle here,
Found that he rose too soon, or set too late,
Gave us no vantage, or gave Pisa much—Therefore we wronged him ! Does he turn in ire

To burn the earth that cannot understand ?
Or drop out quietly, and leave the sky,
His task once ended ? Night wipes blame
away.

Another morning from my East shall spring
And find all eyes at leisure, all disposed
To watch and understand its work, no doubt.
So, praise the new sun, the successor praise,
Praise the new Luria and forget the old !

Strange ! This is all I brought from my own land

To help me : Europe would supply the
rest,

All needs beside, all other helps save one !
I thought of adverse fortune, battle lost,
The natural upbraiding of the loser,
And then this quiet remedy to seek
At end of the disastrous day. [He drinks.

'Tis sought !

This was my happy triumph-morning : Florence

Is saved : I drink this, and ere night,—die !
Strange !

ACT V.

NIGHT.

LURIA and PUCCIO.

Luria. I thought to do this, not to talk this : well,

Such were my projects for the city's good,
To help her in attack or by defence.
Time, here as elsewhere, soon or late may take

Our foresight by surprise thro' chance and
change ;

But not a little we provide against
—If you see clear on every point.

Puccio.

Most clear.

Luria. Then all is said—not much, if you count words,
Yet to an understanding ear enough
And all that my brief stay permits, beside.
Nor must you blame me, as I sought to teach
My elder in command, or threw a doubt
Upon the very skill, it comforts me
To know I leave,—your steady soldiership
Which never failed me: yet, because it seemed
A stranger's eye might haply note defect
That skill, through use and custom, overlooks—
I have gone into the old cares once more,
As if I had to come and save again
Florence—that May—that morning! 'Tis night now.

Well—I broke off with? . . .

Puccio. Of the past campaign
You spoke—of measures to be kept in mind
For future use.

Luria. True, so . . . but, time—no time!
As well end here: remember this, and me!
Farewell now!

Puccio. Dare I speak?

Luria. South o' the river—
How is the second stream called . . . no,
—the third?

Puccio. Pesa.

Luria. And a stone's cast from the fording-place,
To the east,—the little mount's name?

Puccio. Lupo.

Luria. Ay!
Ay—there the tower, and all that side is safe!
With San Romano, west of Evola,
San Miniato, Scala, Empoli,
Five towers in all,—forget not!

Puccio. Fear not me!

Luria. —Nor to memorialize the Council
now,
I' the easy hour, on those battalions' claim,
Who forced a pass by Staggia on the hills,
And kept the Sienese at check!

Puccio. One word—
Sir, I must speak! That you submit yourself
To Florence' bidding, howsoe'er it prove,
And give up the command to me—is much,

Too much, perhaps: but what you tell me
now,
Even will affect the other course you choose—
Poor as it may be, perils even that!
Refuge you seek at Pisa: yet these plans
All militate for Florence, all conclude
Your formidable work to make her queen
O' the country,—which her rivals rose against
When you began it,—which to interrupt,
Pisa would buy you off at any price!
You cannot mean to sue for Pisa's help,
With this made perfect and on record?

Luria. I—

At Pisa, and for refuge, do you say?

Puccio. Where are you going, then? You must decide

On leaving us, a silent fugitive, Alone, at night—you, stealing through our lines,

Who were this morning's Luria,—you escape
To painfully begin the world once more,
With such a past, as it had never been!
Where are you going?

Luria. Not so far, my Puccio,

But that I hope to hear, enjoy and praise
(If you mind praise from your old captain yet)
Each happy blow you strike for Florence.

Puccio. Ay,—

But ere you gain your shelter, what may come?

For see—though nothing's surely known as
yet,

Still—truth must out—I apprehend the worst.

If mere suspicion stood for certainty
Before, there's nothing can arrest the step
Of Florence toward your ruin, once on foot.

Forgive her fifty times, it matters not!
And having disbelieved your innocence,
How can she trust your magnanimity?

You may do harm to her—why then, you will!
And Florence is sagacious in pursuit.

Have you a friend to count on?

Luria. One sure friend.

Puccio. Potent?

Luria. All-potent.

Puccio. And he is apprised?

Luria. He waits me.

Puccio. So!—Then I, put in your place,

How stigmatized they are, and lost in shame.
 Now Puccio, who succeeds me in command,
 Both served them and succeeded, in due time;
 He knows the way, holds proper documents,
 And has the power to lay the simple truth
 Before an active spirit, as I count yours:
 And also there's Tiburzio, my new friend,
 Will, at a word, confirm such evidence,
 He being the great chivalric soul we know.
 I put it to your tact, sir—were't not well,
 —A grace, though but for contrast's sake,
 no more,—

If you who witness, and have borne a share
 Involuntarily in my mischance,
 Should, of your proper motion, set your skill
 To indicate—that is, investigate
 The right or wrong of what mischance befell
 Those famous citizens, your countrymen?
 Nay, you shall promise nothing: but reflect,
 And if your sense of justice prompt you—
 good!

Jacopo. And if, the trial past, their fame stand clear
 To all men's eyes, as yours, my lord, to
 mine—

Their ghosts may sleep in quiet satisfied!
 For me, a straw thrown up into the air,
 My testimony goes for a straw's worth.
 I used to hold by the instructed brain,
 And move with Braccio as my master-wind;
 The heart leads surelier: I must move with
 you—

As greatest now, who ever were the best.
 So, let the last and humblest of your servants
 Accept your charge, as Braccio's heretofore,
 And tender homage by obeying you!

[JACOPO goes.]

Luria. Another! Luria goes not poorly
 forth.

If we could wait! The only fault's with time;
 All men become good creatures: but so slow!

Enter DOMIZIA.

Luria. Ah, you once more?

Domizia. Domizia, whom you knew,
 Performed her task, and died with it. 'Tis I,
 Another woman, you have never known.
 Let the past sleep now!

Luria. I have done with it.

Domisia. How inexhaustibly the spirit grows!

One object, she seemed erewhile born to reach
 With her whole energies and die content,—
 So like a wall at the world's edge it stood,
 With nought beyond to live for,—is that reached?

Already are new undreamed energies
 Outgrowing under, and extending farther
 To a new object; there's another world.
 See! I have told the purpose of my life;
 'Tis gained: you are decided, well or ill—
 You march on Florence, or submit to her—
 My work is done with you, your brow declares.

But—leave you? More of you seems yet to reach:

I stay for what I just begin to see.

Luria. So that you turn not to the past!

Domisia. You trace

Nothing but ill in it—my selfish impulse,
 Which sought its end and disregarded yours?

Luria. Speak not against your nature:
 best, each keep

His own—you, yours—most, now that I keep
 mine,

—At least, fall by it, having too weakly stood.
 God's finger marks distinctions, all so fine,
 We would confound: the lesser has its use,
 Which, when it apes the greater, is forgone.
 I, born a Moor, lived half a Florentine;
 But, punished properly, can end, a Moor.
 Beside, there's something makes me understand

Your nature: I have seen it.

Domisia. Aught like mine?

Luria. In my own East . . . if you would stoop and help

My barbarous illustration! It sounds ill;
 Yet there's no wrong at bottom: rather,
 praise.

Domisia. Well?

Luria. We have creatures there, which if you saw

The first time, you would doubtless marvel at
 For their surpassing beauty, craft and
 strength.

And though it were a lively moment's shock
When you first found the purpose of forked
tongues

That seem innocuous in their lambent play,
Yet, once made know such grace requires such guard,

Your reason soon would acquiesce, I think,
In wisdom which made all things for the
best—

So, take them, good with ill, contentedly,
The prominent beauty with the latent sting.
I am glad to have seen you wondrous Florentines :

Yet . . .

Domixia. I am here to listen.

Luria. My own East !

How nearer God we were ! He glows above
With scarce an intervention, presses close
And palpitatingly, his soul o'er ours :

We feel him, nor by painful reason know !
The everlasting minute of creation

Is felt there ; now it is, as it was then ;

All changes at his instantaneous will,

Not by the operation of a law

Whose maker is elsewhere at other work.

His hand is still engaged upon his world—

Man's praise can forward it, man's prayer
suspend,

For is not God all-mighty ? To recast

The world, erase old things and make them
new,

What costs it Him ? So, man breathes nobly there.

And inasmuch as feeling, the East's gift,

Is quick and transient—comes, and lo, is
gone—

While Northern thought is slow and durable,
Surely a mission was reserved for me,

Who, born with a perception of the power

And use of the North's thought for us of the East,

Should have remained, turned knowledge to account,

Giving thought's character and permanence
To the too transitory feeling there—

Writing God's message plain in mortal words.

Instead of which, I leave my fated field

For this where such a task is needed least,

Where all are born consummate in the art
I just perceive a chance of making mine,—

And then, deserting thus my early post,

I wonder that the men I come among Mistake me ! There, how all had understood,

Still brought fresh stuff for me to stamp and keep,

Fresh instinct to translate them into law !

Me, who . . .

Domixia. Who here the greater task achieve,

More needful even : who have brought fresh
stuff

For us to mould, interpret and prove right,—
New feeling fresh from God, which, could

we know

O' the instant, where had been our need of it ?

—Whose life re-teaches us what life should be,
What faith is, loyalty and simpleness,

All, once revealed but taught us so long since

That, having mere tradition of the fact,—

Truth copied falteringly from copies faint,

The early traits all dropped away,—we said

On sight of faith like yours, "So looks not
faith

"We understand, described and praised
before."

But still, the feat was dared ; and though at
first

It suffered from our haste, yet trace by trace
Old memories reappear, old truth returns,

Our slow thought does its work, and all's re-known.

Oh noble Luria ! What you have decreed

I see not, but no animal revenge,

No brute-like punishment of bad by worse—

It cannot be, the gross and vulgar way

Traced for me by convention and mistake,

Has gained that calm approving eye and
brow !

Spare Florence, after all ! Let Luria trust

To his own soul, he whom I trust with mine !

Luria. In time !

Domixia. How, Luria ?

Luria. It is midnight now,

And they arrive from Florence with my fate.

Domisia. I hear no step.

Luria. I feel one, as you say.

Enter HUSAIN.

Husain. The man returned from Florence!

Luria. As I knew.

Husain. He seeks thee.

Luria. And I only wait for him.

Aught else?

Husain. A movement of the Lucchese troops
Southward—

Luria. Toward Florence? Have out instantly . . .

Ah, old use clings! Puccio must care hence-
forth.

In—quick—'tis nearly midnight! Bid him
come!

Enter TIBURZIO, BRACCIO, and PUCCIO.

Tiburzio?—not at Pisa?

Tiburzio. I return

From Florence: I serve Pisa, and must think
By such procedure I have served her best.

A people is but the attempt of many

To rise to the completer life of one;

And those who live as models for the mass

Are singly of more value than they all.

Such man are you, and such a time is this,

That your sole fate concerns a nation more

Than much apparent welfare: that to prove

Your rectitude, and duly crown the same,

Imports us far beyond to-day's event,

A battle's loss or gain: man's mass remains,—

Keep but God's model safe, new men will rise

To take its mould, and other days to prove

How great a good was Luria's glory. True—

I might go try my fortune as you urged,
And, joining Lucca, helped by your disgrace,
Repair our harm—so were to-day's work
done;

But where leave Luria for our sons to see?

No, I look farther. I have testified

(Declaring my submission to your arms)

Her full success to Florence, making clear

Your probity, as none else could: I spoke,

And out it shone!

Luria. Ah—until Braccio spoke!

Braccio. Till Braccio told in just a word the whole—

His lapse to error, his return to knowledge:

Which told . . . Nay, Luria, I should droop
the head,

I whom shame rests with! Yet I dare look up,

Sure of your pardon now I sue for it,

Knowing you wholly. Let the midnight
end!

'Tis morn approaches! Still you answer
not?

Sunshine succeeds the shadow past away:

Our faces, which phantasmal grew and false,

Are all that felt it: they change round you,
turn

Truly themselves now in its vanishing.

Speak, Luria! Here begins your true career:

Look up, advance! All now is possible,

Fact's grandeur, no false dreaming! Dare and do!

And every prophecy shall be fulfilled

Save one—(nay, now your word must come
at last)

—That you would punish Florence!

Husain [pointing to LURIA'S dead body]

That is done.

But I do turn to thee. This craven tongue,
These features which refuse the soul its way,
Reclaim thou! Give me truth—truth, power to speak—

And after be sole present to approve
The spoken truth! Or, stay, that spoken truth,
Who knows but you, too, may approve?

Eulalia. Ah, well—

Keep silence then, Chiappino!

Chiappino. You would hear,
You shall now,—why the thing we please to style

My gratitude to you and all your friends
For service done me, is just gratitude
So much as yours was service: no whit more.
I was born here, so was Luitolfo; both
At one time, much with the same circumstance
Of rank and wealth; and both, up to this
night

Of parting company, have side by side
Still fared, he in the sunshine—I, the shadow.
“Why?” asks the world. “Because,” replies
the world

To its complacent self, “these playfellows,
“Who took at church the holy-water drop
“Each from the other’s finger, and so forth,—
“Were of two moods: Luitolfo was the proper “Friend-making, everywhere friend-finding
soul,

“Fit for the sunshine, so, it followed him.
“A happy-tempered bringer of the best “Out of the worst; who bears with what’s past cure,

“And puts so good a face on’t—wisely passive
“Where action’s fruitless, while he remedies
“In silence what the foolish rail against;
“A man to smooth such natures as parade
“Of opposition must exasperate;
“No general gauntlet-gatherer for the weak
“Against the strong, yet over-scrupulous
“At lucky junctures; one who won’t forego
“The after-battle work of binding wounds,
“Because, forsooth he’d have to bring himself “To side with wound-inflictors for their
leave!”

—Why do you gaze, nor help me to repeat
What comes so glibly from the common mouth,
About Luitolfo and his so-styled friend?

Eulalia. Because that friend’s sense is obscured . . .

Chiappino. I thought
You would be readier with the other half
Of the world’s story, my half! Yet, ’tis true.
For all the world does say it. Say your worst!
True, I thank God, I ever said “you sin,”
When a man did sin: if I could not say it,
I glared it at him; if I could not glare it,
I prayed against him; then my part seemed over.

God’s may begin yet: so it will, I trust.

Eulalia. If the world outraged you, did we?

Chiappino. What’s “me”

That you use well or ill? It’s man, in me,
All your successes are an outrage to,
You all, whom sunshine follows, as you say!
Here’s our Faenza birthplace; they send
here

A provost from Ravenna: how he rules,
You can at times be eloquent about.

“Then, end his rule!”—“Ah yes, one stroke does that!

“But patience under wrong works slow and
sure.

“Must violence still bring peace forth? He,
beside,

“Returns so blandly one’s obeisance! ah—

“Some latent virtue may be lingering yet,

“Some human sympathy which, once excite,

“And all the lump were leavened quietly:

“So, no more talk of striking, for this time!”

But I, as one of those he rules, won’t bear

These pretty takings-up and layings-down

Our cause, just as you think occasion suits.

Enough of earnest, is there? You’ll play,
will you?

Diversify your tactics, give submission,

Obsequiousness and flattery a turn,

While we die in our misery patient deaths?

We all are outraged then, and I the first:

I, for mankind, resent each shrug and smirk

Each beck and bend, each . . . all you do and are,

I hate!

Eulalia. We share a common censure, then.

’Tis well you have not poor Luitolfo’s part

Nor mine to point out in the wide offence.

Chiappino. Oh, shall I let you so escape me, lady?

Come, on your own ground, lady,—from yourself,

(Leaving the people's wrong, which most is mine)

What have I got to be so grateful for?

These three last fines, no doubt, one on the other

Paid by Luitolfo?

Eulalia. Shame, Chiappino!

Chiappino. Shame

Fall presently on who deserves it most!

—Which is to see. He paid my fines—my friend,

Your prosperous smooth lover presently,

Then, scarce your wooer,—soon, your husband: well—

I loved you.

Eulalia. Hold!

Chiappino. You knew it, years ago.

When my voice faltered and my eye grew dim

Because you gave me your silk mask to hold—

My voice that greatens when there's need to curse

The people's Provost to their heart's content,

—My eye, the Provost, who bears all men's eyes,

Banishes now because he cannot bear,—

You knew . . . but you do your parts—my part, I:

So be it! You flourish, I decay: all's well.

Eulalia. I hear this for the first time.

Chiappino. The fault's there?

Then my days spoke not, and my nights of fire

Were voiceless? Then the very heart may burst,

Yet all prove nought, because no mincing speech

Tells leisurely that thus it is and thus?

Eulalia, truce with toying for this once!

A banished fool, who troubles you to-night

For the last time—why, what's to fear from me?

You knew I loved you!

Eulalia. Not so, on my faith!

You were my now-affianced lover's friend—

Came in, went out with him, could speak as he.

All praise your ready parts and pregnant wit; See how your words come from you in a crowd!

Luitolfo's first to place you o'er himself

In all that challenges respect and love:

Yet you were silent then, who blame me now.

I say all this by fascination, sure:

I, all but wed to one I love, yet listen!

It must be, you are wronged, and that the wrongs

Luitolfo pities . . .

Chiappino. —You too pity? Do!

But hear first what my wrongs are; so began

This talk and so shall end this talk. I say,

Was't not enough that I must strive (I saw)

To grow so far familiar with your charms

As next contrive some way to win them— which

To do, an age seemed far too brief—for, see!

We all aspire to heaven; and there lies heaven

Above us: go there! Dare we go? no, surely!

How dare we go without a reverent pause,

A growing less unfit for heaven? Just so,

I dared not speak: the greater fool, it seems!

Was't not enough to struggle with such folly,

But I must have, beside, the very man

Whose slight free loose and incapacious soul

Gave his tongue scope to say whate'er he would

—Must have him load me with his benefits

—For fortune's fiercest stroke?

Eulalia. Justice to him

That's now entreating, at his risk perhaps,

Justice for you! Did he once call those acts

Of simple friendship—bounties, benefits?

Chiappino. No: the straight course had been to call them thus.

Then, I had flung them back, and kept myself

Unhampered, free as he to win the prize

We both sought. But "the gold was dross," he said:

"He loved me, and I loved him not: why spurn

"A trifle out of superfluity?

"He had forgotten he had done as much."

So had not I! Henceforth, try as I could

To take him at his word, there stood by you

My benefactor; who might speak and laugh

And urge his nothings, even banter me

Before you—but my tongue was tied. A dream!

Let's wake: your husband . . . how you shake at that!

Good—my revenge!

Eulalia. Why should I shake?
What forced

Or forces me to be Luitolfo's bride?

Chiappino. There's my revenge, that nothing forces you.

No gratitude, no liking of the eye

Nor longing of the heart, but the poor bond

Of habit—here so many times he came,

So much he spoke,—all these compose the tie

That pulls you from me. Well, he paid my fines,

Nor missed a cloak from wardrobe, dish from table;

He spoke a good word to the Provost here,

Held me up when my fortunes fell away

—It had not looked so well to let me drop—

Men take pains to preserve a tree-stump, even,

Whose boughs they played beneath—much more a friend.

But one grows tired of seeing, after the first,

Pains spent upon impracticable stuff

Like me. I could not change: you know
the rest.

I've spoke my mind too fully out, by chance,

This morning to our Provost; so, ere night

I leave the city on pain of death. And
now

On my account there's gallant intercession

Goes forward—that's so graceful!—and anon

He'll noisily come back: "the intercession

"Was made and fails; all's over for us both;

"'Tis vain contending; I would better go."

And I do go—and straight to you he turns

Light of a load; and ease of that permits

His visage to repair the natural bland

Economy, sore broken late to suit

My discontent. Thus, all are pleased—you,
with him,

He with himself, and all of you with me

—"Who," say the citizens, "had done far better

"In letting people sleep upon their woes,

"If not possessed with talent to relieve them

"When once awake;—but then I had,"
they'll say,

"Doubtless some unknown compensating
pride

"In what I did; and as I seem content

"With ruining myself, why, so should they
be."

And so they are, and so be with his prize

The devil, when he gets them speedily!

Why does not your Luitolfo come? I long

To don this cloak and take the Lugo path.

It seems you never loved me, then?

Eulalia.

Chiappino!

Chiappino. Never?

Eulalia.

Never.

Chiappino.

That's sad.

Say what I might,

There was no help from being sure this while

You loved me. Love like mine must have

return,

I thought: no river starts but to some sea

And had you loved me, I could soon devise

Some specious reason why you stifled love,

Some fancied self-denial on your part,

Which made you choose Luitolfo; so, excepting

From the wide condemnation of all here,

One woman. Well, the other dream may break!

If I knew any heart, as mine loved you,

Loved me, though in the vilest breast 'twere lodged,

I should, I think, be forced to love again:

Else there's no right nor reason in the world.

Eulalia. "If you knew," say you,—but I did not know.

That's where you're blind, Chiappino!—a disease

Which if I may remove, I'll not repent

The listening to. You cannot, will not, see

How, place you but in every circumstance

Of us, you are just now indignant at,

You'd be as we.

Chiappino.

I should be? . . . that;

again!

I, to my friend, my country and my love,

Be as Luitolfo and these Faentines?

Eulalia. As we.

That still professed forbearance, still preached
peace,

Could bring yourself . . .

Luitolfo. What was peace for, Chiappino?

I tried peace: did that promise, when peace
failed,

Strife should not follow? All my peaceful days

Were just the prelude to a day like this.

I cried "You call me 'friend': save my true friend!

"Save him, or lose me!"

Chiappino. But you never said
You meant to tell the Provost thus and
thus.

Luitolfo. Why should I say it? What else did I mean?

Chiappino. Well? He persisted?

Luitolfo. —"Would so order it

"You should not trouble him too soon again."

I saw a meaning in his eye and lip;

I poured my heart's store of indignant words

Out on him: then—I know not! He retorted,

And I . . . some staff lay there to hand—I
think

He bade his servants thrust me out—I struck . . .

Ah, they come! Fly you, save yourselves, you two!

The dead back-weight of the beheading axe!

The glowing trip-hook, thumbscrews and the gadge!

Eulalia. They do come! Torches in the Place! Farewell,

Chiappino! You can work no good to us—

Much to yourself; believe not, all the world

Must needs be cursed henceforth!

Chiappino. And you?

Eulalia. I stay.

Chiappino. Ha, ha! Now, listen! I am master here!

This was my coarse disguise; this paper shows

My path of flight and place of refuge—see—

Lugo, Argenta, past San Nicolo,

Ferrara, then to Venice and all's safe!

Put on the cloak! His people have to fetch

A compass round about. There's time enough

Ere they can reach us, so you straightway
make

For Lugo . . . nay, he hears not! On with it—

The cloak, Luitolfo, do you hear me? See—
He obeys he knows not how. Then, if I must—

Answer me! Do you know the Lugo gate?

Eulalia. The north-west gate, over the bridge?

Luitolfo. I know.

Chiappino. Well, there—you are not frightened? all my route

Is traced in that: at Venice you escape

Their power. Eulalia, I am master here!

[Shouts from without. He pushes out LUITOLFO, who complies mechanically.

In time! Nay, help me with him—so!

He's gone.

Eulalia. What have you done? On you, perchance, all know

The Provost's hater, will men's vengeance
fall

As our accomplice.

Chiappino. Mere accomplice? See!

[Putting on LUITOLFO'S vest.

Now, lady, am I true to my profession,

Or one of these?

Eulalia. You take Luitolfo's place?

Chiappino. Die for him.

Eulalia. Well done!

[Shouts increase.

Chiappino. How the people tarry!

I can't be silent; I must speak: or sing—

How natural to sing now!

Eulalia. Hush and pray!

We are to die; but even I perceive

'Tis not a very hard thing so to die.

My cousin of the pale-blue tearful eyes,

Poor Cesca, suffers more from one day's life

With the stern husband; Tisbe's heart goes
forth

Each evening after that wild son of hers,

To track his thoughtless footstep through the streets:

How easy for them both to die like this!

I am not sure that I could live as they.

Chiappino. Here they come, crowds!
They pass the gate? Yes!—No!—
One torch is in the courtyard. Here flock all.

Eulalia. At least Luitolfo has escaped.
What cries!

Chiappino. If they would drag one to the market-place,
One might speak there!

Eulalia. List, list!

Chiappino. They mount the steps.

Enter the Populace.

Chiappino. I killed the Provost!

The Populace [speaking together]. 'Twas Chiappino, friends!

Our saviour! The best man at last as first!
He who first made us feel what chains we
wore,

He also strikes the blow that shatters them,
He at last saves us—our best citizen!

—Oh, have you only courage to speak now?

My eldest son was christened a year since

“Cino” to keep Chiappino’s name in mind—

Cino, for shortness merely, you observe!

The city’s in our hands. The guards are fled.

Do you, the cause of all, come down—come
up—

Come out to counsel us, our chief, our king, Whate’er rewards you! Choose your own reward!

The peril over, its reward begins!

Come and harangue us in the market-place!

Eulalia. Chiappino?

Chiappino. Yes—I understand your
eyes!

You think I should have promptlier disowned

This deed with its strange unforeseen success,

In favour of Luitolfo. But the peril,

So far from ended, hardly seems begun.

To-morrow, rather, when a calm succeeds,

We easily shall make him full amends:

And meantime—if we save them as they pray,

And justify the deed by its effects?

Eulalia. You would, for worlds, you had denied at once.

Chiappino. I know my own intention, be assured!

All’s well. Precede us, fellow-citizens!

ACT II.

SCENE.—The Market-place. LUITOLFO in disguise mingling with the Populace assembled opposite the Provost’s Palace.

1st Bystander [to LUITOLFO]. You, a friend of Luitolfo’s? Then, your friend is vanished, —in all probability killed on the night that his patron the tyrannical Provost was loyally suppressed here, exactly a month ago, by our illustrious fellow-citizen, thrice-noble saviour, and new Provost that is like to be, this very morning,—Chiappino!

Luitolfo. He the new Provost?

2nd Bystander. Up those steps will he go, and beneath yonder pillar stand, while Ogniben, the Pope’s Legate from Ravenna, reads the new dignitary’s title to the people, according to established custom: for which reason, there is the assemblage you inquire
about.

Luitolfo. Chiappino—the late Provost’s successor? Impossible! But tell me of that presently. What I would know first of all is, wherefore Luitolfo must so necessarily have been killed on that memorable night?

3rd Bystander. You were Luitolfo’s friend?
So was I. Never, if you will credit me, did there exist so poor-spirited a milksop. He, with all the opportunities in the world, furnished by daily converse with our oppressor, would not stir a finger to help us: and, when Chiappino rose in solitary majesty and . . .
how does one go on saying? . . . dealt the godlike blow,—this Luitolfo, not unreasonably fearing the indignation of an aroused and liberated people, fled precipitately. He may have got trodden to death in the press at the south-east gate, when the Provost’s guards fled through it to Ravenna, with their wounded master,—if he did not rather hang himself under some hedge.

Luitolfo. Or why not simply have lain perdue in some quiet corner,—such as San Cassiano, where his estate was,—receiving daily intelligence from some sure friend,

meanwhile, as to the turn matters were taking here—how, for instance, the Provost was not dead, after all, only wounded—or, as to-day's news would seem to prove, how Chiappino was not Brutus the Elder, after all, only the new Provost—and thus Luitolfo be enabled to watch a favourable opportunity for returning? Might it not have been so?

3rd Bystander. Why, he may have taken that care of himself, certainly, for he came of a cautious stock. I'll tell you how his uncle, just such another gingerly treader on tiptoes with finger on lip,—how he met his death in the great plague-year: dico vobis! Hearing that the seventeenth house in a certain street was infected, he calculates to pass it in safety by taking plentiful breath, say, when he shall arrive at the eleventh house; then scouring by, holding that breath, till he be got so far on the other side as number twenty-three, and thus elude the danger.—And so did he begin; but, as he arrived at thirteen, we will say,—thinking to improve on his precaution by putting up a little prayer to St. Nepomucene¹ of Prague, this exhausted so much of his lungs' reserve, that at sixteen it was clean spent,—consequently at the fatal seventeen he inhaled with a vigour and persistence enough to suck you any latent venom out of the heart of a stone—Ha, ha!

Luitolfo [aside]. (If I had not lent that man the money he wanted last spring, I should fear this bitterness was attributable to me.) Luitolfo is dead then, one may conclude?

3rd Bystander. Why, he had a house here, and a woman to whom he was affianced; and as they both pass naturally to the new Provost, his friend and heir . . .

Luitolfo. Ah, I suspected you of imposing on me with your pleasantries! I know Chiappino better.

1st Bystander. (Our friend has the bile! After all, I do not dislike finding somebody vary a little this general gape of admiration at Chiappino's glorious qualities.) Pray, how much may you know of what has taken place in Faenza since that memorable night?

Luitolfo. It is most to the purpose, that I know Chiappino to have been by profession a hater of that very office of Provost, you now charge him with proposing to accept.

1st Bystander. Sir, I'll tell you. That night was indeed memorable. Up we rose, a mass of us, men, women, children; out fled the guards with the body of the tyrant; we were to defy the world: but, next grey morning, "What will Rome say?" began everybody. You know we are governed by Ravenna, which is governed by Rome. And quietly into the town, by the Ravenna road, comes on muleback a portly personage, Ogniben by name, with the quality of Pontifical Legate; trots briskly through the streets humming a "Cur fremuere gentes," and makes directly for the Provost's Palace—there it faces you. "One Messer Chiappino is your leader? I have known three-and-twenty leaders of revolts!" (laughing gently to himself)—"Give me the help of your arm from my mule to yonder steps under the pillar—So! And now, my revolters and good friends, what do you want? The guards burst into Ravenna last night bearing your wounded Provost; and, having had a little talk with him, I take on myself to come and try appease the disorderliness, before Rome, hearing of it, resort to another method: 'tis I come, and not another, from a certain love I confess to, of composing differences. So, do you understand, you are about to experience this unheard-of tyranny from me, that there shall be no heading nor hanging, no confiscation nor exile: I insist on your simply pleasing yourselves. And now, pray, what does please you? To live without any government at all? Or having decided for one, to see its minister murdered by the first of your body that chooses to find himself wronged, or disposed for reverting to first principles and a justice anterior to all institutions,—and so will you carry matters, that the rest of the world must at length unite and morning. The Legate's Guard to clear the way! He will follow presently.

Luitolfo [withdrawing a little]. I understand the drift of Eulalia's communications less than ever. Yet she surely said, in so many words, that Chiappino was in urgent danger: wherefore, disregarding her injunction to continue in my retreat and await the result of—what she called, some experiment yet in process—I hastened here without her leave or knowledge: how could I else? But if this they say be true—if it were for such a purpose, she and Chiappino kept me away . . . Oh, no, no! I must confront him and her before I believe this of them. And at the word, see!

Enter CHIAPPINO and EULALIA.

Eulalia. We part here, then? The change in your principles would seem to be complete.

Chiappino. Now, why refuse to see that in my present course I change no principles, only re-adapt them and more adroitly? I had despaired of, what you may call the material instrumentality of life; of ever being able to rightly operate on mankind through such a deranged machinery as the existing modes of government: but now, if I suddenly discover how to inform these perverted institutions with fresh purpose, bring the functionary limbs once more into immediate communication with, and subjection to, the soul I am about to bestow on them—do you see? Why should one desire to invent, as long as it remains possible to renew and transform? When all further hope of the old organization shall be extinct, then, I grant you, it may be time to try and create another.

Eulalia. And there being discoverable some hope yet in the hitherto much-abused old system of absolute government by a Provost here, you mean to take your time about endeavouring to realize those visions of a perfect State, we once heard of?

Chiappino. Say, I would fain realize my conception of a palace, for instance, and that there is, abstractedly, but a single way of erecting one perfectly. Here, in the marketplace is my allotted building-ground; here I stand without a stone to lay, or a labourer to help me,—stand, too, during a short day of life, close on which the night comes. On the other hand, circumstances suddenly offer me (turn and see it!) the old Provost's house to experiment upon—ruinous, if you please, wrongly constructed at the beginning, and ready to tumble now. But materials abound, a crowd of workmen offer their services; here, exists yet a Hall of Audience of originally noble proportions, there a Guest-chamber of symmetrical design enough: and I may restore, enlarge, abolish or unite these to heart's content. Ought I not make the best of such an opportunity, rather than continue to gaze disconsolately with folded arms on the flat pavement here, while the sun goes slowly down, never to rise again? Since you cannot understand this nor me, it is better we should part as you desire.

Eulalia. So, the love breaks away too!

Chiappino. No, rather my soul's capacity for love widens—needs more than one object to content it,—and, being better instructed, will not persist in seeing all the component parts of love in what is only a single part,—nor in finding that so many and so various loves are all united in the love of a woman,—manifold uses in one instrument, as the savage has his sword, staff, sceptre and idol, all in one club-stick. Love is a very compound thing. The intellectual part of my love I shall give to men, the mighty dead or the illustrious living; and determine to call a mere sensual instinct by as few fine names as possible. What do I lose?

Eulalia. Nay, I only think, what do I lose? and, one more word—which shall complete my instruction—does friendship go too? What of Luitolfo, the author of your present prosperity?

Chiappino. How the author?

Eulalia. That blow now called yours . . .

Chiappino. Struck without principle or purpose, as by a blind natural operation: yet to which all my thought and life directly and advisedly tended. I would have struck it, and could not: he would have done his utmost to avoid striking it, yet did so. I dispute his right to that deed of mine—a final action with him, from the first effect of which he fled away,—a mere first step with me, on which I base a whole mighty superstructure of good to follow. Could he get good from it?

Eulalia. So we profess, so we perform!

Enter OGNIBEN. EULALIA stands apart.

Ogniben. I have seen three-and-twenty leaders of revolts. By your leave, sir! Perform? What does the lady say of performing?

Chiappino. Only the trite saying, that we must not trust profession, only performance.

Ogniben. She'll not say that, sir, when she knows you longer; you'll instruct her better. Ever judge of men by their professions! For though the bright moment of promising is but a moment and cannot be prolonged, yet, if sincere in its moment's extravagant goodness, why, trust it and know the man by it, I say—not by his performance; which is half the world's work, interfere as the world needs must, with its accidents and circumstances: the profession was purely the man's own. I judge people by what they might be,—not are, nor will be.

Chiappino. But have there not been found, too, performing natures, not merely promising?

Ogniben. Plenty. Little Bindo of our town, for instance, promised his friend, great ugly Masaccio, once, "I will repay you!"—for a favour done him. So, when his father came to die, and Bindo succeeded to the inheritance, he sends straightway for Masaccio and shares all with him—gives him half the land, half the money, half the kegs of wine in the cellar. "Good," say you: and it is good. But had little Bindo found himself possessor of all this wealth some five years before—on the happy night when Masaccio procured him that interview in the garden with his pretty cousin Lisa—instead of being the beggar he then was,—I am bound to believe that in the warm moment of promise he would have given away all the wine-kegs and all the money and all the land, and only reserved to himself some hut on a hill-top hard by, whence he might spend his life in looking and seeing his friend enjoy himself: he meant fully that much, but the world interfered.—To our business! Did I understand you just now within-doors? You are not going to marry your old friend's love, after all?

Chiappino. I must have a woman that can sympathize with, and appreciate me, I told you.

Ogniben. Oh, I remember! you, the greater nature, needs must have a lesser one (—avowedly lesser—contest with you on that score would never do)—such a nature must comprehend you, as the phrase is, accompany and testify of your greatness from point to point onward. Why, that were being not merely as great as yourself, but greater considerably! Meantime, might not the more bounded nature as reasonably count on your appreciation of it, rather?—on your keeping close by it, so far as you both go together, and then going on by yourself as far as you please? Thus God serves us.

Chiappino. And yet a woman that could understand the whole of me, to whom I could reveal alike the strength and the weakness—

Ogniben. Ah, my friend, wish for nothing so foolish! Worship your love, give her the best of you to see; be to her like the western lands (they bring us such strange news of) to the Spanish Court; send her only your lumps of gold, fans of feathers, your spirit-like birds, and fruits and gems! So shall you, what is unseen of you, be supposed altogether a paradise by her,—as these western lands by Spain: though I warrant there is filth, red baboons, ugly reptiles and squalor enough, which they bring Spain as few samples of as possible. Do you want your mistress to respect your body generally? Offer her your mouth to kiss: don't strip off your boot and put your foot to her lips! You understand my humour by this time? I help men to carry out their own principles: if they please to say two and two make five, I assent, so they will but go on and say, four and four make ten.

Chiappino. But these are my private affairs; what I desire you to occupy yourself about, is my public appearance presently: for when the people hear that I am appointed Provost, though you and I may thoroughly discern—and easily, too—the right principle at bottom of such a movement, and how my republicanism remains thoroughly unaltered, only takes a form of expression hitherto commonly judged (and heretofore by myself) incompatible with its existence,—when thus I reconcile myself to an old form of government instead of proposing a new one . . .

Ogniben. Why, you must deal with people broadly. Begin at a distance from this matter and say,—New truths, old truths! sirs, there is nothing new possible to be revealed to us in the moral world; we know all we shall ever know: and it is for simply reminding us, by their various respective expedients, how we do know this and the other matter, that men get called prophets, poets and the like. A philosopher's life is spent in discovering that, of the half-dozen truths he knew when a child, such an one is a lie, as the world states it in set terms; and then, after a weary lapse of years, and plenty of hard-thinking, it becomes a truth again after all, as he happens to newly consider it and view it in a different relation with the others: and so he restates it, to the confusion of somebody else in good time. As for adding to the original stock of truths,—impossible! Thus, you see the expression of them is the grand business:—you have got a truth in your head about the right way of governing people, and you took a mode of expressing it which now you confess to be imperfect. But what then? There is truth in falsehood, falsehood in truth. No man ever told one great truth, that I know, without the help of a good dozen of lies at least, generally unconscious ones. And as when a child comes in breathlessly and relates a strange story, you try to conjecture from the very falsities in it, what the reality was,—do not conclude that he saw nothing in the sky, because he assuredly did not see a flying horse there as he says,—so, through the contradictory expression, do you see, men should look painfully for, and trust to arrive eventually at, what you call the true principle at bottom. Ah, what an answer is there! to what will it not prove applicable?—“Contradictions? Of course there were,” say you!

Chiappino. Still, the world at large may call it inconsistency, and what shall I urge in reply?

Ogniben. Why, look you, when they tax you with tergiversation or duplicity, you may answer—you begin to perceive that, when all's done and said, both great parties in the State, the advocates of change in the present system of things, and the opponents of it, patriot and anti-patriot, are found working together for the common good; and that in the midst of their efforts for and against its progress, the world somehow or other still advances: to which result they contribute in equal proportions, those who spend their life in pushing it onward, as those who give theirs to the business of pulling it back. Now, if you found the world stand still between the opposite forces, and were glad, I should conceive you: but it steadily advances, you rejoice to see! By the side of such a rejoicer, the man who only winks as he keeps cunning and quiet, and says, “Let yonder hot-headed fellow fight out my battle! I, for one, shall win in the end by the blows he gives, and which I ought to be giving”—even he seems graceful in his avowal, when one considers that he might say, “I shall win quite as much by the blows our antagonist gives him, blows from which he saves me—I thank the antagonist equally!” Moreover, you may enlarge on the loss of the edge of party-animosity with age and experience . . .

Chiappino. And naturally time must wear off such asperities: the bitterest adversaries get to discover certain points of similarity participating in the universal craving after, and deference to, the civil distinctions which represent it. You wonder they pay such undue respect to titles and badges of superior rank.

Ogniben. Not I (always on your own ground and showing, be it noted!) Who doubts that, with a weapon to brandish, a man is the more formidable? Titles and badges are exercised as such a weapon, to which you and I look up wistfully. We could pin lions with it moreover, while in its present owner's hands it hardly prods rats. Nay, better than a mere weapon of easy mastery and obvious use, it is a mysterious divining rod that may serve us in undreamed-of ways. Beauty, strength, intellect—men often have none of these, and yet conceive pretty accurately what kind of advantages they would bestow on the possessor. We know at least what it is we make up our mind to forego, and so can apply the fittest substitute in our power. Wanting beauty, we cultivate good humour; missing wit, we get riches: but the mystic unimaginable operation of that gold collar and string of Latin names which suddenly turned poor stupid little peevish Cecco of our town into natural lord of the best of us—a Duke, he is now—there indeed is a virtue to be revered!

Chiappino. Ay, by the vulgar: not by Messere Stiatta the poet, who pays more assiduous court to him than anybody.

Ogniben. What else should Stiatta pay court to? He has talent, not honour and riches: men naturally covet what they have not.

Chiappino. No, or Cecco would covet talent, which he has not, whereas he covets more riches, of which he has plenty, already.

Ogniben. Because a purse added to a purse makes the holder twice as rich: but just such another talent as Stiatta's, added to what he now possesses, what would that profit him? Give the talent a purse indeed, to do something with! But lo, how we keep the good people waiting! I only desired to do justice to the noble sentiments which animate you, and which you are too modest to duly enforce.

Come, to our main business: shall we ascend the steps? I am going to propose you for Provost to the people; they know your antecedents, and will accept you with a joyful unanimity: whereon I confirm their choice. Rouse up! Are you nerving yourself to an effort? Beware the disaster of Messere Stiatta we were talking of! who, determining to keep an equal mind and constant face on whatever might be the fortune of his last new poem with our townsmen, heard too plainly "hiss, hiss, hiss," increase every moment. Till at last the man fell senseless: not perceiving that the portentous sounds had all the while been issuing from between his own nobly clenched teeth, and nostrils narrowed by resolve.

Chiappino. Do you begin to throw off the mask?—to jest with me, having got me effectually into your trap?

Ogniben. Where is the trap, my friend? You hear what I engage to do, for my part: you, for yours, have only to fulfil your promise made just now within doors, of professing unlimited obedience to Rome's authority in my person. And I shall authorize no more than the simple re-establishment of the Provostship and the conferment of its privileges upon yourself: the only novel stipulation being a birth of the peculiar circumstances of the time.

Chiappino. And that stipulation?

Ogniben. Just the obvious one—that in the event of the discovery of the actual assailant of the late Provost . . .

Chiappino. Ha!

Ogniben. Why, he shall suffer the proper penalty, of course; what did you expect?

Chiappino. Who heard of this?

Ogniben. Rather, who needed to hear of this?

Chiappino. Can it be, the popular rumour never reached you . . .

Ogniben. Many more such rumours reach me, friend, than I choose to receive; those which wait longest have best chance. Has the present one sufficiently waited? Now is its time for entry with effect. See the good people crowding about yonder palace-steps—which we may not have to ascend, after all. My good friends ! (nay, two or three of you will answer every purpose)—who was it fell upon and proved nearly the death of your late Provost ? His successor desires to hear, that his day of inauguration may be graced by the act of prompt bare justice we all anticipate. Who dealt the blow that night, does anybody know ?

Luitolfo [coming forward]. I !

All. Luitolfo !

Luitolfo. I avow the deed, justify and approve it, and stand forth now, to relieve my friend of an unearned responsibility. Having taken thought, I am grown stronger : I shall shrink from nothing that awaits me. Nay, Chiappino—we are friends still : I dare say there is some proof of your superior nature in this starting aside, strange as it seemed at first. So, they tell me, my horse is of the right stock, because a shadow in the path frightens him into a frenzy, makes him dash my brains out. I understand only the dull mule's way of standing stockishly, plodding soberly, suffering on occasion a blow or two with due patience.

Eulalia. I was determined to justify my choice, Chiappino,—to let Luitolfo's nature vindicate itself. Henceforth we are undivided, whatever be our fortune.

Ogniben. Now, in these last ten minutes of silence, what have I been doing, deem you ? Putting the finishing stroke to a homily of mine, I have long taken thought to perfect, on the text, "Let whoso thinketh he standeth, take heed lest he fall." To your house, Luitolfo ! Still silent, my patriotic friend ? Well, that is a good sign however. And you will go aside for a time ? That is better still.

I understand : it would be easy for you to die of remorse here on the spot and shock us all, but you mean to live and grow worthy of coming back to us one day. There, I will tell everybody ; and you only do right to believe you must get better as you get older. All men do so : they are worst in childhood, improve in manhood, and get ready in old age for another world. Youth, with its beauty and grace, would seem bestowed on us for some such reason as to make us partly endurable till we have time for really becoming so of ourselves, without their aid ; when they leave us. The sweetest child we all smile on for his pleasant want of the whole world to break up, or suck in his mouth, seeing no other good in it—would be rudely handled by that world's inhabitants, if he retained those angelic infantine desires when he had grown six feet high, black and bearded. But, little by little, he sees fit to forego claim after claim on the world, puts up with a less and less share of its good as his proper portion ; and when the octogenarian asks barely a sup of gruel and a fire of dry sticks, and thanks you as for his full allowance and right in the common good of life,—hoping nobody may murder him,—he who began by asking and expecting the whole of us to bow down in worship to him,—why, I say he is advanced, far onward, very far, nearly out of sight like our friend Chiappino yonder. And now—(ay, good-bye to you ! He turns round the north-west gate : going to Lugo again ? Good-bye !)—and now give thanks to God, the keys of the Provost's palace to me, and yourselves to profitable meditation at home ! I have known Four-and-twenty leaders of revolts.

CHRISTMAS-EVE AND EASTER-DAY.

1850.

CHRISTMAS EVE.

I.

OUT of the little chapel I burst
Into the fresh night-air again.
Five minutes full, I waited first
In the doorway, to escape the rain
That drove in gusts down the common's
centre

At the edge of which the chapel stands,
Before I plucked up heart to enter.

Heaven knows how many sorts of hands
Reached past me, groping for the latch
Of the inner door that hung on catch
More obstinate the more they fumbled,

Till, giving way at last with a scold
Of the crazy hinge, in squeezed or tumbled

One sheep more to the rest in fold,
And left me irresolute, standing sentry
In the sheepfold's lath-and-plaster entry,
Six feet long by three feet wide,
Partitioned off from the vast inside—

I blocked up half of it at least.
No remedy ; the rain kept driving.

They eyed me much as some wild beast,
That congregation, still arriving,
Some of them by the main road, white
A long way past me into the night,
Skirting the common, then diverging ;
Not a few suddenly emerging
From the common's self thro' the palinggaps,

—They house in the gravel-pits perhaps,
Where the road stops short with its safeguard border

Of lamps, as tired of such disorder ;—
But the most turned in yet more abruptly

From a certain squalid knot of alleys,
Where the town's bad blood once slept corruptly,

Which now the little chapel rallies

And leads into day again,—its priestliness
Lending itself to hide their beastliness
So cleverly (thanks in part to the mason),
And putting so cheery a whitewashed face on Those neophytes too much in lack of it,

That, where you cross the common as I did,

And meet the party thus presided,
“Mount Zion” with Love-lane at the back
of it,

They front you as little disconcerted
As, bound for the hills, her fate averted,
And her wicked people made to mind him,
Lot might have marched with Gomorrah behind him.

II.

Well, from the road, the lanes or the common,

In came the flock : the fat weary woman,
Panting and bewildered, down-clapping

Her umbrella with a mighty report,
Grounded it by me, wry and flapping,

A wreck of whalebones ; then, with a snort,

Like a startled horse, at the interloper
(Who humbly knew himself improper,
But could not shrink up small enough)

—Round to the door, and in,—the gruff
Hinge's invariable scold

Making my very blood run cold.

Prompt in the wake of her, up-pattered
On broken clogs, the many-tattered

Little old-faced peaking sister-turned-mother
Of the sickly babe she tried to smother
Somehow up, with its spotted face,

From the cold, on her breast, the one warm
place ;

She too must stop, wring the poor ends dry
Of a draggled shawl, and add thereby

Her tribute to the door-mat, sopping
Already from my own clothes' dropping,

III.

I very soon had enough of it.

The hot smell and the human noises,
And my neighbour's coat, the greasy cuff of it,
Were a pebble-stone that a child's hand
poises,

Compared with the pig-of-lead-like pressure
Of the preaching man's immense stupidity,
As he poured his doctrine forth, full measure,
To meet his audience's avidity.

You needed not the wit of the Sibyl

To guess the cause of it all, in a twinkling:
No sooner our friend had got an inkling
Of treasure hid in the Holy Bible,

(Whene'er 'twas the thought first struck him,
How death, at unawares, might duck him
Deeper than the grave, and quench
The gin-shop's light in hell's grim drench)

Than he handled it so, in fine irreverence,
As to hug the book of books to pieces:
And, a patchwork of chapters and texts in severance,

Not improved by the private dog's-ears
and creases,
Having clothed his own soul with, he'd fain
see equipt yours,—

So tossed you again your Holy Scriptures.
And you picked them up, in a sense, no
doubt:

Nay, had but a single face of my neighbours
Appeared to suspect that the preacher's labours

Were help which the world could be saved
without,

'Tis odds but I might have borne in quiet
A qualm or two at my spiritual diet,
Or (who can tell?) perchance even mustered

Somewhat to urge in behalf of the sermon:
But the flock sat on, divinely flustered,

Sniffing, methought, its dew of Hermon.
With such content in every snuffle,
As the devil inside us loves to ruffle.

My old fat woman purred with pleasure,
And thumb round thumb went twirling
faster,

While she, to his periods keeping measure,
Maternally devoured the pastor.

The man with the handkerchief untied it,
Showed us a horrible wen inside it,
Gave his eyelids yet another screwing,
And rocked himself as the woman was doing.
The shoemaker's lad, discreetly choking,
Kept down his cough. 'Twas too provoking!
My gorge rose at the nonsense and stuff of it:
So, saying like Eve when she plucked the apple,
"I wanted a taste, and now there's enough
of it,"

I flung out of the little chapel.

IV.

There was a lull in the rain, a lull

In the wind too; the moon was risen,
And would have shone out pure and full,

But for the ramparted cloud-prison,
Block on block built up in the West,
For what purpose the wind knows best,
Who changes his mind continually.

And the empty other half of the sky
Seemed in its silence as if it knew
What, any moment, might look through
A chance gap in that fortress massy:—

Through its fissures you got hints
Of the flying moon, by the shifting tints,
Now, a dull lion-colour, now, brassy
Burning to yellow, and whitest yellow,
Like furnace-smoke just ere flames bellow,
All a-simmer with intense strain

To let her through,—then blank again,
At the hope of her appearance failing.
Just by the chapel, a break in the railing
Shows a narrow path directly across;

'Tis ever dry walking there, on the moss—
Besides, you go gently all the way uphill.

I stooped under and soon felt better;
My head grew lighter, my limbs more supple.

As I walked on, glad to have slipt the fetter.
My mind was full of the scene I had left,

That placid flock, that pastor vociferant,
—How this outside was pure and different!

The sermon, now—what a mingled west
Of good and ill! Were either less,

Its fellow had coloured the whole distinctly;

But alas for the excellent earnestness,
 And the truths, quite true if stated succinctly,
 But as surely false, in their quaint present-
 ment,
 However to pastor and flock's contentment !
 Say rather, such truths looked false to your
 eyes,
 With his provings and parallels twisted and
 twined,
 Till how could you know them, grown double their size

In the natural fog of the good man's mind,
 Like yonder spots of our roadside lamps,
 Haloed about with the common's damps ?
 Truth remains true, the fault's in the prover ;

The zeal was good, and the aspiration ;
 And yet, and yet, yet, fifty times over,
 Pharaoh received no demonstration,
 By his Baker's dream of Baskets Three,
 Of the doctrine of the Trinity,—
 Although, as our preacher thus embellished it,
 Apparently his hearers relished it
 With so unfeigned a gust—who knows if They did not prefer our friend to Joseph ?
 But so it is everywhere, one way with all of
 them !

These people have really felt, no doubt,
 A something, the motion they style the Call of them ;

And this is their method of bringing about,
 By a mechanism of words and tones,
 (So many texts in so many groans)
 A sort of reviving and reproducing,
 More or less perfectly, (who can tell ?)
 The mood itself, which strengthens by using ;
 And how that happens, I understand
 well.

A tune was born in my head last week,
 Out of the thump-thump and shriek-shriek
 Of the train, as I came by it, up from Manchester ;
 And when, next week, I take it back again,
 My head will sing to the engine's clack again,
 While it only makes my neighbour's haunches stir,
 —Finding no dormant musical sprout
 In him, as in me, to be jolted out.

'Tis the taught already that profits by teaching ;
 He gets no more from the railway's preaching Than, from this preacher who does the rail's office, I :
 Whom therefore the flock cast a jealous eye on.
 Still, why paint over their door "Mount Zion,"
 To which all flesh shall come, saith the prophecy ?

v.

But wherefore be harsh on a single case ?
 After how many modes, this Christmas-Eve,
 Does the self-same weary thing take place ?

The same endeavour to make you believe,
 And with much the same effect, no more :
 Each method abundantly convincing,
 As I say, to those convinced before,
 But scarce to be swallowed without wincing
 By the not-as-yet-convinced. For me,
 I have my own church equally :
 And in this church my faith sprang first !
 (I said, as I reached the rising ground,
 And the wind began again, with a burst
 Of rain in my face, and a glad rebound
 From the heart beneath, as if, God speeding
 me,

I entered his church-door, nature leading me)
 —In youth I looked to these very skies,
 And probing their immensities,
 I found God there, his visible power ;
 Yet felt in my heart, amid all its sense
 Of the power, an equal evidence
 That his love, there too, was the nobler dower.

For the loving worm within its clod,
 Were diviner than a loveless god
 Amid his worlds, I will dare to say.

You know what I mean : God's all, man's
 nought :

But also, God, whose pleasure brought
 Man into being, stands away

As it were a handbreadth off, to give
 Room for the newly-made to live,
 And look at him from a place apart,
 And use his gifts of brain and heart,
 Given, indeed, but to keep for ever.
 Who speaks of man, then, must not sever

Man's very elements from man,
 Saying, "But all is God's"—whose plan
 Was to create man and then leave him
 Able, his own word saith, to grieve him,
 But able to glorify him too,
 As a mere machine could never do,
 That prayed or praised, all unaware
 Of its fitness for aught but praise and prayer,
 Made perfect as a thing of course.
 Man, therefore, stands on his own stock
 Of love and power as a pin-point rock :
 And, looking to God who ordained divorce
 Of the rock from his boundless continent,
 Sees, in his power made evident,
 Only excess by a million-fold
 O'er the power God gave man in the mould.
 For, note : man's hand, first formed to carry
 A few pounds' weight, when taught to marry
 Its strength with an engine's, lifts a mountain,
 —Advancing in power by one degree ;
 And why count steps through eternity ?
 But love is the ever-springing fountain :
 Man may enlarge or narrow his bed
 For the water's play, but the water-head—
 How can he multiply or reduce it ?
 As easy create it, as cause it to cease ;
 He may profit by it, or abuse it,
 But 'tis not a thing to bear increase
 As power does : be love less or more
 In the heart of man, he keeps it shut
 Or opens it wide, as he pleases, but Love's sum remains what it was before.
 So, gazing up, in my youth, at love
 As seen through power, ever above
 All modes which make it manifest,
 My soul brought all to a single test—
 That he, the Eternal First and Last,
 Who, in his power, had so surpassed
 All man conceives of what is might,— Whose wisdom, too, showed infinite,
 —Would prove as infinitely good ;
 Would never, (my soul understood,)
 With power to work all love desires,
 Bestow e'en less than man requires ;
 That he who endlessly was teaching,
 Above my spirit's utmost reaching,
 What love can do in the leaf or stone,
 (So that to master this alone,

This done in the stone or leaf for me,
 I must go on learning endlessly)
 Would never need that I, in turn,
 Should point him out defect unheeded,
 And show that God had yet to learn
 What the meanest human creature needed,
 —Not life, to wit, for a few short years,
 Tracking his way through doubts and fears,
 While the stupid earth on which I stay
 Suffers no change, but passive adds
 Its myriad years to myriads,
 Though I, he gave it to, decay,
 Seeing death come and choose about me,
 And my dearest ones depart without me.
 No : love which, on earth, amid all the shows of it,
 Has ever been seen the sole good of life
 in it,
 The love, ever growing there, spite of the strife in it,
 Shall arise, made perfect, from death's repose of it.
 And I shall behold thee, face to face,
 O God, and in thy light retrace
 How in all I loved here, still wast thou !
 Whom pressing to, then, as I fain would
 now,
 I shall find as able to satiate
 The love, thy gift, as my spirit's wonder
 Thou art able to quicken and sublimate,
 With this sky of thine, that I now walk
 under,
 And glory in thee for, as I gaze
 Thus, thus ! Oh, let men keep their ways
 Of seeking thee in a narrow shrine—
 Be this my way ! And this is mine !

VI.

For lo, what think you ? suddenly
 The rain and the wind ceased, and the sky
 Received at once the full fruition
 Of the moon's consummate apparition.
 The black cloud-barricade was riven,
 Ruined beneath her feet, and driven
 Deep in the West ; while, bare and breathless,
 North and South and East lay ready
 For a glorious thing that, dauntless, deathless,
 Sprang across them and stood steady.

" But, all I felt there, right or wrong,
 " What is it to thee, who curest sinning?
 " Am I not weak as thou art strong?
 " I have looked to thee from the beginning,
 " Straight up to thee through all the world
 " Which, like an idle scroll, lay furled
 " To nothingness on either side :
 " And since the time thou wast descried,
 " Spite of the weak heart, so have I " Lived ever, and so fain would die,
 " Living and dying, thee before !
 " But if thou leavest me——"

IX.

Less or more,

I suppose that I spoke thus.
 When,—have mercy, Lord, on us !
 The whole face turned upon me full.
 And I spread myself beneath it,
 As when the bleacher spreads, to seethe it
 In the cleansing sun, his wool,—
 Steeps in the flood of noontide whiteness
 Some defiled, discoloured web—
 So lay I, saturate with brightness.
 And when the flood appeared to ebb,
 Lo, I was walking, light and swift,
 With my senses settling fast and steadying,
 But my body caught up in the whirl and drift
 Of the vesture's amplitude, still eddying
 On, just before me, still to be followed,
 As it carried me after with its motion :
 What shall I say?—as a path were hollowed
 And a man went weltering through the ocean,
 Sucked along in the flying wake
 Of the luminous water-snake.
 Darkness and cold were cloven, as through
 I passed, upborne yet walking too.
 And I turned to myself at intervals,—
 " So he said, so it befalls.
 " God who registers the cup
 " Of mere cold water, for his sake
 " To a disciple rendered up,
 " Disdains not his own thirst to slake
 " At the poorest love was ever offered :
 " And because my heart I proffered,
 " With true love trembling at the brim,
 " He suffers me to follow him

" For ever, my own way,—dispensed
 " From seeking to be influenced " By all the less immediate ways
 " That earth, in worships manifold,
 " Adopts to reach, by prayer and praise,
 " The garment's hem, which, lo, I hold !"

X.

And so we crossed the world and stopped.
 For where am I, in city or plain,
 Since I am 'ware of the world again?
 And what is this that rises propped
 With pillars of prodigious girth?
 Is it really on the earth,
 This miraculous Dome of God?
 Has the angel's measuring-rod
 Which numbered cubits, gem from gem,
 'Twixt the gates of the New Jerusalem,
 Meted it out,—and what he meted,
 Have the sons of men completed?
 —Binding, ever as he bade,
 Columns in the colonnade
 With arms wide open to embrace
 The entry of the human race
 To the breast of . . . what is it, yon building,
 Ablaze in front, all paint and gilding,
 With marble for brick, and stones of price
 For garniture of the edifice?
 Now I see ; it is no dream ;
 It stands there and it does not seem ;
 For ever, in pictures, thus it looks,
 And thus I have read of it in books
 Often in England, leagues away,
 And wondered how these fountains play,
 Growing up eternally
 Each to a musical water-tree,
 Whose blossoms drop, a glittering boon,
 Before my eyes, in the light of the moon,
 To the granite lavers underneath.
 Liar and dreamer in your teeth !
 I, the sinner that speak to you,
 Was in Rome this night, and stood, and knew
 Both this and more. For see, for see,
 The dark is rent, mine eye is free
 To pierce the crust of the outer wall,
 And I view inside, and all there, all,
 As the swarming hollow of a hive,
 The whole Basilica alive !

Men in the chancel, body and nave,
 Men on the pillars' architrave,
 Men on the statues, men on the tombs
 With popes and kings in their porphyry wombs,
 All famishing in expectation
 Of the main-altar's consummation.
 For see, for see, the rapturous moment
 Approaches, and earth's best endowment
 Blends with heaven's; the taper-fires
 Pant up, the winding brazen spires
 Heave loftier yet the baldachin;¹
 The incense-gaspings, long kept in,
 Suspire in clouds; the organ blatant
 Holds his breath and grovels latent,
 As if God's hushing finger grazed him,
 (Like Behemoth when he praised him)
 At the silver bell's shrill tinkling,
 Quick cold drops of terror sprinkling
 On the sudden pavement strewed
 With faces of the multitude.
 Earth breaks up, time drops away,
 In flows heaven, with its new day
 Of endless life, when He who trod,
 Very man and very God,
 This earth in weakness, shame and pain,
 Dying the death whose signs remain
 Up yonder on the accursed tree,—
 Shall come again, no more to be
 Of captivity the thrall,
 But the one God, All in all,
 King of kings, Lord of lords,
 As His servant John received the words,
 "I died, and live for evermore!"

XI.

Yet I was left outside the door.
 "Why sit I here on the threshold-stone
 "Left till He return, alone
 "Save for the garment's extreme fold
 "Abandoned still to bless my hold?"
 My reason, to my doubt, replied,
 As if a book were opened wide,
 And at a certain page I traced
 Every record undefaced,
 Added by successive years,—
 The harvestings of truth's stray ears

Singly gleaned, and in one sheaf
 Bound together for belief.
 Yes, I said—that he will go
 And sit with these in turn, I know.
 Their faith's heart beats, though her head swims
 Too giddily to guide her limbs,
 Disabled by their palsy-stroke
 From propping mine. Though Rome's gross yoke
 Drops off, no more to be endured,
 Her teaching is not so obscured
 By errors and perversities,
 That no truth shines athwart the lies:
 And he, whose eye detects a spark
 Even where, to man's, the whole seems dark,
 May well see flame where each beholder
 Acknowledges the embers smoulder.
 But I, a mere man, fear to quit
 The clue God gave me as most fit
 To guide my footsteps through life's maze,
 Because himself discerns all ways
 Open to reach him: I, a man
 Able to mark where faith began
 To swerve aside, till from its summit
 Judgment drops her damning plummet,
 Pronouncing such a fatal space
 Departed from the founder's base:
 He will not bid me enter too,
 But rather sit, as now I do,
 Awaiting his return outside.
 —'Twas thus my reason straight replied
 And joyously I turned, and pressed
 The garment's skirt upon my breast,
 Until, afresh its light suffusing me,
 My heart cried—What has been abusing me
 That I should wait here lonely and coldly,
 Instead of rising, entering boldly,
 Baring truth's face, and letting drift
 Her veils of lies as they choose to shift?
 Do these men praise him? I will raise
 My voice up to their point of praise!
 I see the error; but above
 The scope of error, see the love.—
 Oh, love of those first Christian days!
 —Fanned so soon into a blaze,
 From the spark preserved by the trampled sect,
 That the antique sovereign Intellect

Which then sat ruling in the world,
 Like a change in dreams, was hurled
 From the throne he reigned upon :
 You looked up and he was gone.
 Gone, his glory of the pen !
 —Love, with Greece and Rome in ken,
 Bade her scribes abhor the trick
 Of poetry and rhetoric,
 And exult with hearts set free,
 In blessed imbecility
 Scrawled, perchance, on some torn sheet
 Leaving Sallust incomplete.
 Gone, his pride of sculptor, painter !
 —Love, while able to acquaint her
 While the thousand statues yet
 Fresh from chisel, pictures wet
 From brush, she saw on every side,
 Chose rather with an infant's pride
 To frame those portents which impart
 Such unction to true Christian Art.
 Gone, music too ! The air was stirred
 By happy wings : Terpander's¹ bird
 (That, when the cold came, fled away)
 Would tarry not the wintry day,—
 As more-enduring sculpture must,
 Till filthy saints rebuked the gust
 With which they chanced to get a sight
 Of some dear naked Aphrodite
 They glanced a thought above the toes of,
 By breaking zealously her nose off.
 Love, surely, from that music's lingering,
 Might have filched her organ-fingering,
 Nor chosen rather to set prayings
 To hog-grunts, praises to horse-neighings.
 Love was the startling thing, the new :
 Love was the all-sufficient too ;
 And seeing that, you see the rest :
 As a babe can find its mother's breast
 As well in darkness as in light,
 Love shut our eyes, and all seemed right.
 True, the world's eyes are open now :
 —Less need for me to disallow
 Some few that keep Love's zone unbuckled,
 Peevish as ever to be suckled,
 Lulled by the same old baby-prattle
 With intermixture of the rattle,

When she would have them creep, stand steady
 Upon their feet, or walk already,
 Not to speak of trying to climb.
 I will be wise another time,
 And not desire a wall between us,
 When next I see a church-roof cover
 So many species of one genus,
 All with foreheads bearing lover
 Written above the earnest eyes of them ;
 All with breasts that beat for beauty,
 Whether sublimed, to the surprise of them,
 In noble daring, steadfast duty,
 The heroic in passion, or in action,—
 Or, lowered for sense's satisfaction,
 To the mere outside of human creatures,
 Mere perfect form and faultless features.
 What? with all Rome here, whence to levy
 Such contributions to their appetite,
 With women and men in a gorgeous bevy,
 They take, as it were, a padlock, clap it tight
 On their southern eyes, restrained from feeding
 On the glories of their ancient reading,
 On the beauties of their modern singing,
 On the wonders of the builder's bringing,
 On the majesties of Art around them,—
 And, all these loves, late struggling incessant,
 When faith has at last united and bound them.
 They offer up to God for a present?
 Why, I will, on the whole, be rather proud
 of it,—
 And, only taking the act in reference To the other recipients who might have allowed it,
 I will rejoice that God had the preference

XII.

So I summed up my new resolves :
 Too much love there can never be.
 And where the intellect devolves
 Its function on love exclusively,
 I, a man who possesses both,
 Will accept the provision, nothing loth,
 —Will feast my love, then depart elsewhere,
 That my intellect may find its share.

Over he bowed, and arranged his notes,
 Till the auditory's clearing of throats
 Was done with, died into a silence ;
 And, when each glance was upward sent,
 Each bearded mouth composed intent,
 And a pin might be heard drop half a mile
 hence,—
 He pushed back higher his spectacles,
 Let the eyes stream out like lamps from cells,
 And giving his head of hair—a hake
 Of undressed tow, for colour and quantity—
 One rapid and impatient shake,
 (As our own Young England adjusts a jaunty tie
 When about to impart, on mature digestion,
 Some thrilling view of the surplice-question)
 —The Professor's grave voice, sweet though hoarse,
 Broke into his Christmas-Eve discourse.

XV.

And he began it by observing
 How reason dictated that men
 Should rectify the natural swerving,
 By a reversion, now and then,
 To the well-heads of knowledge, few
 And far away, whence rolling grew
 The life-stream wide whereat we drink,
 Commingled, as we needs must think,
 With waters alien to the source ;
 To do which, aimed this eve's discourse ;
 Since, where could be a fitter time
 For tracing backward to its prime
 This Christianity, this lake,
 This reservoir, whereat we slake,
 From one or other bank, our thirst ?
 So, he proposed inquiring first
 Into the various sources whence
 This Myth of Christ is derivable ;
 Demanding from the evidence,
 (Since plainly no such life was liveable)
 How these phenomena should class ?
 Whether 'twere best opine Christ was,
 Or never was at all, or whether
 He was and was not, both together—
 It matters little for the name,
 So the idea be left the same.

Only, for practical purpose' sake,
 'Twas obviously as well to take
 The popular story,—understanding
 How the ineptitude of the time,
 And the penman's prejudice, expanding
 Fact into fable fit for the clime,
 Had, by slow and sure degrees, translated it
 Into this myth, this Individuum,—
 Which, when reason had strained and abated it
 Of foreign matter, left, for residuum,
 A Man !—a right true man, however,
 Whose work was worthy a man's endeavour :
 Work, that gave warrant almost sufficient
 To his disciples, for rather believing
 He was just omnipotent and omniscient,
 As it gives to us, for as frankly receiving
 His word, their tradition,—which, though it meant

Something entirely different
 From all that those who only heard it,
 In their simplicity thought and averred it,
 Had yet a meaning quite as respectable :
 For, among other doctrines delectable,
 Was he not surely the first to insist on
 The natural sovereignty of our race ?—
 Here the lecturer came to a pausing-place.
 And while his cough, like a drouthy piston,
 Tried to dislodge the husk that grew to him,
 I seized the occasion of bidding adieu to him,
 The vesture still within my hand.

XVI.

I could interpret its command.
 This time he would not bid me enter
 The exhausted air-bell of the Critic.
 Truth's atmosphere may grow mephitic
 When Papist struggles with Dissenter, Impregnating its pristine clarity,
 —One, by his daily fare's vulgarity,
 Its gust of broken meat and garlic ;
 —One, by his soul's too-much presuming
 To turn the frankincense's fuming
 And vapours of the candle starlike
 Into the cloud her wings she buoys on.
 Each, that thus sets the pure air seething,
 May poison it for healthy breathing—
 But the Critic leaves no air to poison ;

Pumps out with ruthless ingenuity
 Atom by atom, and leaves you—vacuity.
 Thus much of Christ does he reject?
 And what retain? His intellect?
 What is it I must reverence duly?
 Poor intellect for worship, truly,
 Which tells me simply what was told
 (If mere morality, bereft
 Of the God in Christ, be all that's left)
 Elsewhere by voices manifold;
 With this advantage, that the stater
 Made nowise the important stumble
 Of adding, he, the sage and humble,
 Was also one with the Creator.
 You urge Christ's followers' simplicity:
 But how does shifting blame, evade it?
 Have wisdom's words no more felicity?
 The stumbling-block, his speech—who laid
 it?

How comes it that for one found able
 To sift the truth of it from fable,
 Millions believe it to the letter?
 Christ's goodness, then—does that fare better?
 Strange goodness, which upon the score
 Of being goodness, the mere due
 Of man to fellow-man, much more
 To God,—should take another view
 Of its possessor's privilege,
 And bid him rule his race! You pledge
 Your fealty to such rule? What, all—
 From heavenly John and Attic Paul,
 And that brave weather-battered Peter,
 Whose stout faith only stood completer
 For buffets, sinning to be pardoned,
 As, more his hands hauled nets, they hardened,—

All, down to you, the man of men,
 Professing here at Göttingen,
 Compose Christ's flock! They, you and I,
 Are sheep of a good man! And why?
 The goodness,—how did he acquire it?
 Was it self-gained, did God inspire it?
 Choose which; then tell me, on what ground
 Should its possessor dare propound
 His claim to rise o'er us an inch?
 Were goodness all some man's invention,
 Who arbitrarily made mention
 What we should follow, and whence flinch,—

What qualities might take the style
 Of right and wrong,—and had such guessing
 Met with as general acquiescing
 As graced the alphabet erewhile,
 When A got leave an Ox to be,
 No Camel (quoth the Jews) like G,¹—
 For thus inventing thing and title
 Worship were that man's fit requital.
 But if the common conscience must
 Be ultimately judge, adjust
 Its apt name to each quality
 Already known,—I would decree
 Worship for such mere demonstration
 And simple work of nomenclature,
 Only the day I praised, not nature,
 But Harvey, for the circulation.
 I would praise such a Christ, with pride
 And joy, that he, as none beside,
 Had taught us how to keep the mind
 God gave him, as God gave his kind,
 Freer than they from fleshly taint:
 I would call such a Christ our Saint,
 As I declare our Poet, him
 Whose insight makes all others dim:
 A thousand poets pried at life,
 And only one amid the strife
 Rose to be Shakespeare: each shall take
 His crown, I'd say, for the world's sake—
 Though some objected—"Had we seen
 "The heart and head of each, what screen
 "Was broken there to give them light,
 "While in ourselves it shuts the sight,
 "We should no more admire, perchance,
 "That these found truth out at a glance,
 "Than marvel how the bat discerns
 "Some pitch-dark cavern's fifty turns,
 "Led by a finer tact, a gift
 "He boasts, which other birds must shift
 "Without, and grope as best they can."
 No, freely I would praise the man,—
 Nor one whit more, if he contended
 That gift of his, from God descended.
 Ah friend, what gift of man's does not?
 No nearer something, by a jot,

Rise an infinity of nothings

Than one : take Euclid for your teacher :
Distinguish kinds : do crownings, clothings,
Make that creator which was creature ?
Multiply gifts upon man's head,
And what, when all's done, shall be said
But—the more gifted he, I ween !

That one's made Christ, this other, Pilate,
And this might be all that has been,—

So what is there to frown or smile at ?
What is left for us, save, in growth
Of soul, to rise up, far past both,
From the gift looking to the giver,
And from the cistern to the river,
And from the finite to infinity,
And from man's dust to God's divinity ?

XVII.

Take all in a word : the truth in God's breast
Lies trace for trace upon ours impressed :
Though he is so bright and we so dim,
We are made in his image to witness him :
And were no eye in us to tell,

Instructed by no inner sense,
The light of heaven from the dark of hell,
That light would want its evidence,— Though justice, good and truth were still Divine, if, by some demon's will,
Hatred and wrong had been proclaimed
Law through the worlds, and right misnamed.
No mere exposition of morality
Made or in part or in totality,
Should win you to give it worship, therefore :

And, if no better proof you will care for,
—Whom do you count the worst man upon
earth ?

Be sure, he knows, in his conscience, more
Of what right is, than arrives at birth

In the best man's acts that we bow before :
This last knows better—true, but my fact is,
'Tis one thing to know, and another to practise.

And thence I conclude that the real God-function

Is to furnish a motive and injunction
For practising what we know already.
And such an injunction and such a motive

As the God in Christ, do you waive, and “ heady,

“ High-minded,” hang your tablet-votive
Outside the fane on a finger-post ?
Morality to the uttermost,
Supreme in Christ as we all confess,
Why need we prove would avail no jot
To make him God, if God he were not ?
What is the point where himself lays stress ?
Does the precept run “ Believe in good,
“ In justice, truth, now understood
“ For the first time ? ”—or, “ Believe in me,
“ Who lived and died, yet essentially “ Am Lord of Life ? ” Whoever can take
The same to his heart and for mere love's sake
Conceive of the love,—that man obtains
A new truth ; no conviction gains
Of an old one only, made intense
By a fresh appeal to his faded sense.

XVIII.

Can it be that he stays inside ?
Is the vesture left me to commune with ?
Could my soul find aught to sing in tune
with

Even at this lecture, if she tried ?
Oh, let me at lowest sympathize
With the lurking drop of blood that lies
In the desiccated brain's white roots
Without throb for Christ's attributes,
As the lecturer makes his special boast !
If love's dead there, it has left a ghost.
Admire we, how from heart to brain

(Though to say so strike the doctors dumb)
One instinct rises and falls again,
Restoring the equilibrium.

And how when the Critic had done his best,
And the pearl of price, at reason's test,
Lay dust and ashes levigable

On the Professor's lecture-table,—
When we looked for the inference and monition
That our faith, reduced to such condition,
Be swept forthwith to its natural dust-hole,—

He bids us, when we least expect it,
Take back our faith,—if it be not just whole.

Yet a pearl indeed, as his tests affect it,
Which fact pays damage done rewardingly.
So, prize we our dust and ashes accordingly !

My fellows also take their share !
 This constitutes my earthly care :
 God's is above it and distinct.
 For I, a man, with men am linked
 And not a brute with brutes ; no gain
 That I experience, must remain
 Unshared : but should my best endeavour
 To share it, fail—subsisteth ever
 God's care above, and I exult
 That God, by God's own ways occult,
 May—doth, I will believe—bring back
 All wanderers to a single track.
 Meantime, I can but testify
 God's care for me—no more, can I—
 It is but for myself I know ;
 The world rolls witnessing around me
 Only to leave me as it found me ;
 Men cry there, but my ear is slow :
 Their races flourish or decay
 —What boots it, while yon lucid way
 Loaded with stars divides the vault ?
 But soon my soul repairs its fault
 When, sharpening sense's hebetude,
 She turns on my own life ! So viewed,
 No mere mote's-breadth but teems immense
 With witnessings of providence :
 And woe to me if when I look Upon that record, the sole book
 Unsealed to me, I take no heed
 Of any warning that I read !
 Have I been sure, this Christmas-Eve,
 God's own hand did the rainbow weave,
 Whereby the truth from heaven slid
 Into my soul ?—I cannot bid
 The world admit he stooped to heal
 My soul, as if in a thunder-peal
 Where one heard noise, and one saw flame,
 I only knew he named my name :
 But what is the world to me, for sorrow
 Or joy in its censure, when to-morrow
 It drops the remark, with just-turned head
 Then, on again, ' That man is dead ' ?
 Yes, but for me—my name called,—drawn
 As a conscript's lot from the lap's black yawn,
 He has dipt into on a battle-dawn :
 Bid out of life by a nod, a glance,—
 Stumbling, mute-mazed, at nature's chance,—

With a rapid finger circled round,
 Fixed to the first poor inch of ground
 To fight from, where his foot was found ;
 Whose ear but a minute since lay free
 To the wide camp's buzz and gossipry—
 Summoned, a solitary man
 To end his life where his life began,
 From the safe glad rear, to the dreadful van !
 Soul of mine, hadst thou caught and held
 By the hem of the vesture !—

XXI.

And I caught

At the flying robe, and unrepelled
 Was lapped again in its folds full-fraught
 With warmth and wonder and delight,
 God's mercy being infinite.
 For scarce had the words escaped my tongue,
 When, at a passionate bound, I sprung,
 Out of the wandering world of rain,
 Into the little chapel again.

XXII.

How else was I found there, bolt upright
 On my bench, as if I had never left it ?
 —Never flung out on the common at night,
 Nor met the storm and wedge-like cleft it.
 Seen the raree-show of Peter's successor,
 Or the laboratory of the Professor !
 For the Vision, that was true, I wist,
 True as that heaven and earth exist.
 There sat my friend, the yellow and tall,
 With his neck and its wen in the selfsame
 place ;
 Yet my nearest neighbour's cheek showed gall.
 She had slid away a contemptuous space :
 And the old fat woman, late so placable,
 Eyed me with symptoms, hardly mistakable,
 Of her milk of kindness turning rancid.
 In short, a spectator might have fancied
 That I had nodded, betrayed by slumber,
 Yet kept my seat, a warning ghastly,
 Through the heads of the sermon, nine in number,
 And woke up now at the tenth and lastly.

But again, could such disgrace have happened?
 Each friend at my elbow had surely nudged
 it ;
 And, as for the sermon, where did my nap end?
 Unless I heard it, could I have judged it?
 Could I report as I do at the close,
 First, the preacher speaks through his nose :
 Second, his gesture is too emphatic :
 Thirdly, to waive what's pedagogic,
 The subject-matter itself lacks logic :
 Fourthly, the English is ungrammatic.
 Great news ! the preacher is found no Pascal,
 Whom, if I pleased, I might to the task call
 Of making square to a finite eye
 The circle of infinity,
 And find so all-but-just-succeeding !
 Great news ! the sermon proves no reading
 Where bee-like in the flowers I bury me,
 Like Taylor's the immortal Jeremy !
 And now that I know the very worst of him,
 What was it I thought to obtain at first of him ?
 Ha ! Is God mocked, as he asks ?
 Shall I take on me to change his tasks,
 And dare, despatched to a river-head
 For a simple draught of the element,
 Neglect the thing for which he sent,
 And return with another thing instead ?— Saying, " Because the water found
 " Welling up from underground,
 " Is mingled with the taints of earth,
 " While thou, I know, dost laugh at dearth,
 " And couldst, at wink or word, convulse
 " The world with the leap of a river-pulse,—
 " Therefore I turned from the oozings muddy,
 " And bring thee a chalice I found, instead :
 " See the brave veins in the breccia ruddy !
 " One would suppose that the marble bled.
 " What matters the water ? A hope I have nursed :
 " The waterless cup will quench my thirst."
 —Better have knelt at the poorest stream
 That trickles in pain from the straitest rift !
 For the less or the more is all God's gift,
 Who blocks up or breaks wide the granite-seam.
 And here, is there water or not, to drink ?
 I then, in ignorance and weakness,
 Taking God's help, have attained to think
 My heart does best to receive in meekness

That mode of worship, as most to his mind,
 Where earthly aids being cast behind,
 His All in All appears serene
 With the thinnest human veil between,
 Letting the mystic lamps, the seven,
 The many motions of his spirit,
 Pass, as they list, to earth from heaven.
 For the preacher's merit or demerit,
 It were to be wished the flaws were fewer
 In the earthen vessel, holding treasure
 Which lies as safe in a golden ewer ;
 But the main thing is, does it hold good measure ?
 Heaven soon sets right all other matters !—
 Ask, else, these ruins of humanity,
 This flesh worn out to rags and tatters,
 This soul at struggle with insanity,
 Who thence take comfort—can I doubt ?—
 Which an empire gained, were a loss without.
 May it be mine ! And let us hope
 That no worse blessing befall the Pope,
 Turned sick at last of to-day's buffoonery,
 Of posturings and petticoatings,
 Beside his Bourbon bully's gloatings
 In the bloody orgies of drunk poltroonery !
 Nor may the Professor forego its peace
 At Göttingen presently, when, in the dusk
 Of his life, if his cough, as I fear, should increase,
 Prophesied of by that horrible husk—
 When thicker and thicker the darkness fills
 The world through his misty spectacles,
 And he gropes for something more substantial
 Than a fable, myth or personification,—
 May Christ do for him what no mere man
 shall,
 And stand confessed as the God of salvation !
 Meantime, in the still recurring fear
 Lest myself, at unawares, be found,
 While attacking the choice of my neighbours
 round,
 With none of my own made—I choose here !
 The giving out of the hymn reclaims me ;
 I have done : and if any blames me,
 Thinking that merely to touch in brevity
 The topics I dwell on, were unlawful,—
 Or worse, that I trench, with undue levity,
 On the bounds of the holy and the awful,—

I praise the heart, and pity the head of
 him,
 And refer myself to THEE, instead of him,
 Who head and heart alike discernest,
 Looking below light speech we utter,
 When frothy spume and frequent sputter
 Prove that the soul's depths boil in earnest !
 May truth shine out, stand ever before us !
 I put up pencil and join chorus
 To Hepzibah Tune, without further apology,
 The last five verses of the third section
 Of the seventeenth hymn of Whitfield's Collection,
 To conclude with the doxology.

EASTER-DAY.

I.

How very hard it is to be
 A Christian ! Hard for you and me, —Not the mere task of making real
 That duty up to its ideal,
 Effecting thus, complete and whole,
 A purpose of the human soul—
 For that is always hard to do ;
 But hard, I mean, for me and you
 To realize it, more or less,
 With even the moderate success
 Which commonly repays our strife
 To carry out the aims of life.
 “ This aim is greater,” you will say,
 “ And so more arduous every way.”
 —But the importance of their fruits
 Still proves to man, in all pursuits,
 Proportional encouragement.
 “ Then, what if it be God's intent
 “ That labour to this one result “ Should seem unduly difficult ?”
 Ah, that's a question in the dark—
 And the sole thing that I remark
 Upon the difficulty, this ;
 We do not see it where it is,
 At the beginning of the race :
 As we proceed, it shifts its place,
 And where we looked for crowns to fall,
 We find the tug's to come,—that's all.

II.

At first you say, “ The whole, or chief
 “ Of difficulties, is belief.
 “ Could I believe once thoroughly,
 “ The rest were simple. What? Am I
 “ An idiot, do you think,—a beast?
 “ Prove to me, only that the least “ Command of God is God's indeed,
 “ And what injunction shall I need
 “ To pay obedience? Death so nigh,
 “ When time must end, eternity
 “ Begin,—and cannot I compute,
 “ Weigh loss and gain together, suit
 “ My actions to the balance drawn,
 “ And give my body to be sawn “ Asunder, hacked in pieces, tied
 “ To horses, stoned, burned, crucified,
 “ Like any martyr of the list?
 “ How gladly!—if I make acquit,
 “ Through the brief minute's fierce annoy,
 “ Of God's eternity of joy.”

III.

—And certainly you name the point
 Whereon all turns : for could you joint
 This flexile finite life once tight
 Into the fixed and infinite,
 You, safe inside, would spurn what's out,
 With carelessness enough, no doubt—
 Would spurn mere life : but when time brings
 To their next stage your reasonings,
 Your eyes, late wide, begin to wink
 Nor see the path so well, I think.

IV.

You say, “ Faith may be, one agrees,
 “ A touchstone for God's purposes,
 “ Even as ourselves conceive of them.
 “ Could he acquit us or condemn
 “ For holding what no hand can loose,
 “ Rejecting when we can't but choose?
 “ As well award the victor's wreath
 “ To whosoever should take breath
 “ Duly each minute while he lived—
 “ Grant heaven, because a man contrived
 “ To see its sunlight every day
 “ He walked forth on the public way.

" Of snuffbox-fanciers, who possessed
 " A Grignon with the Regent's crest.
 " So that, subduing, as you want,
 " Whatever stands predominant
 " Among my earthly appetites
 " For tastes and smells and sounds and sights,
 " I shall be doing that alone,
 " To gain a palm-branch and a throne.
 " Which fifty people undertake " To do, and gladly, for the sake
 " Of giving a Semitic guess,
 " Or playing pawns at blindfold chess."

VII.

Good : and the next thing is,—look round
 For evidence enough ! 'Tis found,
 No doubt : as is your sort of mind,
 So is your sort of search : you'll find
 What you desire, and that's to be A Christian. What says history ?
 How comforting a point it were
 To find some mummy-scrap declare
 There lived a Moses ! Better still,
 Prove Jonah's whale translatable
 Into some quicksand of the seas,
 Isle, cavern, rock, or what you please,
 That faith might flap her wings and crow
 From such an eminence ! Or, no—
 The human heart's best ; you prefer
 Making that prove the minister
 To truth ; you probe its wants and needs,
 And hopes and fears, then try what creeds
 Meet these most aptly,—resolute
 That faith plucks such substantial fruit
 Wherever these two correspond,
 She little needs to look beyond,
 And puzzle out who Orpheus was,
 Or Dionysius Zagrias.¹
 You'll find súfficient, as I say,
 To satisfy you either way ;
 You wanted to believe ; your pains
 Are crowned—you do : and what remains ?
 " Renounce the world !"—Ah, were it done
 By merely cutting one by one
 Your limbs off, with your wise head last,
 How easy were it !—how soon past,

¹ A name for the god.

If once in the believing mood !
 " Such is man's usual gratitude,
 " Such thanks to God do we return,
 " For not exacting that we spurn
 " A single gift of life, forego
 " One real gain,—only taste them so
 " With gravity and temperance,
 " That those mild virtues may enhance
 " Such pleasures, rather than abstract—
 " Last spice of which, will be the fact " Of love discerned in every gift ;
 " While, when the scene of life shall shift,
 " And the gay heart be taught to ache,
 " As sorrows and privations take " The place of joy,—the thing that seems
 " Mere misery, under human schemes,
 " Becomes, regarded by the light
 " Of love, as very near, or quite " As good a gift as joy before.
 " So plain is it that, all the more
 " A dispensation's merciful,
 " More pettishly we try and cull
 " Briers, thistles, from our private plot,
 " To mar God's ground where thorns are not ! "

VIII.

Do you say this, or I ?—Oh, you !
 Then, what, my friend ?—(thus I pursue
 Our parley)—you indeed opine
 That the Eternal and Divine
 Did, eighteen centuries ago,
 In very truth . . . Enough ! you know
 The all-stupendous tale,—that Birth,
 That Life, that Death ! And all, the earth
 Shuddered at,—all, the heavens grew black
 Rather than see ; all, nature's rack
 And throe at dissolution's brink
 Attested,—all took place, you think,
 Only to give our joys a zest,
 And prove our sorrows for the best ?
 We differ, then ! Where I, still pale
 And heartstruck at the dreadful tale,
 Waiting to hear God's voice declare
 What horror followed for my share,
 As implicated in the deed,
 Apart from other sins,—concede
 That if He blacked out in a blot
 My brief life's pleasantness, 'twere not

So very disproportionate !
 Or there might be another fate—
 I certainly could understand
 (If fancies were the thing in hand)
 How God might save, at that day's price,
 The impure in their impurities,
 Give licence formal and complete
 To choose the fair and pick the sweet.
 But there be certain words, broad, plain,
 Uttered again and yet again,
 Hard to mistake or overgloss—
 Announcing this world's gain for loss,
 And bidding us reject the same :
 The whole world lieth (they proclaim)
 In wickedness,—come out of it !
 Turn a deaf ear, if you think fit,
 But I who thrill through every nerve
 At thought of what deaf ears deserve—
 How do you counsel in the case ?

IX.

“ I'd take, by all means, in your place,
 “ The safe side, since it so appears :
 “ Deny myself, a few brief years,
 “ The natural pleasure, leave the fruit
 “ Or cut the plant up by the root.
 “ Remember what a martyr said
 “ On the rude tablet overhead !
 “ “ I was born sickly, poor and mean,
 “ “ A slave : no misery could screen
 “ “ The holders of the pearl of price
 “ “ From Cæsar's envy ; therefore twice “ “ I fought with beasts, and three times saw
 “ “ My children suffer by his law ;
 “ “ At last my own release was earned :
 “ “ I was some time in being burned,
 “ “ But at the close a Hand came through
 “ “ The fire above my head, and drew “ “ My soul to Christ, whom now I see.
 “ “ Sergius, a brother, writes for me
 “ “ This testimony on the wall—
 “ “ For me, I have forgot it all.’
 “ You say right ; this were not so hard !
 “ And since one nowise is debarred
 “ From this, why not escape some sins
 “ By such a method ?”

X.

Then begins
 To the old point revulsion new—
 (For 'tis just this I bring you to)
 If after all we should mistake,
 And so renounce life for the sake
 Of death and nothing else? You hear
 Each friend we jeered at, send the jeer
 Back to ourselves with good effect—
 “ There were my beetles to collect !
 “ My box—a trifle, I confess,
 “ But here I hold it, ne'ertheless !”
 Poor idiots, (let us pluck up heart
 And answer) we, the better part
 Have chosen, though 'twere only hope,—
 Nor envy moles like you that grope
 Amid your veritable muck,
 More than the grasshoppers would truck,
 For yours, their passionate life away,
 That spends itself in leaps all day
 To reach the sun, you want the eyes
 To see, as they the wings to rise
 And match the noble hearts of them !
 Thus the contemner we contemn,—
 And, when doubt strikes us, thus we ward
 Its stroke off, caught upon our guard,
 —Not struck enough to overturn
 Our faith, but shake it—make us learn
 What I began with, and, I wis,
 End, having proved,—how hard it is To be a Christian !

XI.

“ Proved, or not,
 “ Howe'er you wis, small thanks, I wot,
 “ You get of mine, for taking pains
 “ To make it hard to me. Who gains
 “ By that, I wonder? Here I live
 “ In trusting ease ; and here you drive
 “ At causing me to lose what most “ Yourself would mourn for had you lost !”

XII.

But, do you see, my friend, that thus
 You leave Saint Paul for Æschylus?
 —Who made his Titan's arch-device
 The giving men blind hopes to spice
 The meal of life with, else devoured
 In bitter haste, while lo, death loured

Before them at the platter's edge !
 If faith should be, as I allege,
 Quite other than a condiment
 To heighten flavours with, or meant
 (Like that brave curry of his Grace)
 To take at need the victuals' place ?
 If, having dined, you would digest
 Besides, and turning to your rest
 Should find instead . . .

XIII.

Now, you shall see

And judge if a mere foppery
 Pricks on my speaking ! I resolve
 To utter—yes, it shall devolve
 On you to hear as solemn, strange
 And dread a thing as in the range
 Of facts,—or fancies, if God will—E'er happened to our kind ! I still Stand in the cloud and, while it wraps
 My face, ought not to speak perhaps ;
 Seeing that if I carry through
 My purpose, if my words in you
 Find a live actual listener,
 My story, reason must aver
 False after all—the happy chance !
 While, if each human countenance
 I meet in London day by day,
 Be what I fear,—my warnings fray
 No one, and no one they convert,
 And no one helps me to assert
 How hard it is to really be
 A Christian, and in vacancy
 I pour this story !

XIV.

I commence

By trying to inform you, whence
 It comes that every Easter-night
 As now, I sit up, watch, till light,
 Upon those chimney-stacks and roofs,
 Give, through my window-pane, grey proofs
 That Easter-day is breaking slow.
 On such a night three years ago,
 It chanced that I had cause to cross
 The common, where the chapel was,
 Our friend spoke of, the other day—
 You've not forgotten, I dare say.

I fell to musing of the time
 So close, the blessed matin-prime
 All hearts leap up at, in some guise—
 One could not well do otherwise.
 Insensibly my thoughts were bent
 Toward the main point ; I overwent
 Much the same ground of reasoning
 As you and I just now. One thing
 Remained, however—one that tasked
 My soul to answer ; and I asked,
 Fairly and frankly, what might be
 That History, that Faith, to me
 —Me there—not me in some domain
 Built up and peopled by my brain,
 Weighing its merits as one weighs Mere theories for blame or praise,
 —The kingcraft of the Lucumons,¹
 Or Fourier's scheme, its pros and cons,—
 But my faith there, or none at all.
 “ How were my case, now, did I fall
 “ Dead here, this minute—should I lie “ Faithful or faithless ? ” Note that I Inclined thus ever !—little prone
 For instance, when I lay alone
 In childhood, to go calm to sleep
 And leave a closet where might keep
 His watch perdue some murderer
 Waiting till twelve o'clock to stir,
 As good authentic legends tell :
 “ He might : but how improbable !
 “ How little likely to deserve
 “ The pains and trial to the nerve
 “ Of thrusting head into the dark ! ”—
 Urged my old nurse, and bade me mark
 Beside, that, should the dreadful scout
 Really lie hid there, and leap out
 At first turn of the rusty key,
 Mine were small gain that she could see,
 Killed not in bed but on the floor,
 And losing one night's sleep the more.
 I tell you, I would always burst
 The door ope, know my fate at first.
 This time, indeed, the closet penned
 No such assassin : but a friend
 Rather, peeped out to guard me, fit
 For counsel, Common Sense, to wit,

(The angry scribe of Judgment) "There—
 "Burn it!" And straight I was aware
 That the whole ribwork round, minute
 Cloud touching cloud beyond compute,
 Was tinted, each with its own spot
 Of burning at the core, till clot
 Jammed against clot, and spilt its fire
 Over all heaven, which 'gan suspire
 As fanned to measure equable,—
 Just so great conflagrations kill
 Night overhead, and rise and sink,
 Reflected. Now the fire would shrink
 And wither off the blasted face
 Of heaven, and I distinct might trace
 The sharp black ridgy outlines left
 Unburned like network—then, each cleft
 The fire had been sucked back into,
 Regorged, and out it surging flew Furiously, and night writhed inflamed,
 Till, tolerating to be tamed
 No longer, certain rays world-wide
 Shot downwardly. On every side
 Caught past escape, the earth was lit;
 As if a dragon's nostril split
 And all his famished ire o'erflowed;
 Then, as he winced at his lord's goad,
 Back he inhaled: whereat I found
 The clouds into vast pillars bound,
 Based on the corners of the earth,
 Propping the skies at top: a dearth
 Of fire i' the violet intervals,
 Leaving exposed the utmost walls
 Of time, about to tumble in
 And end the world.

XVI.

I felt begin
 The Judgment-Day: to retrocede
 Was too late now. "In very deed,"
 (I uttered to myself) "that Day!"
 The intuition burned away
 All darkness from my spirit too:
 There, stood I, found and fixed, I knew,
 Choosing the world. The choice was made;
 And naked and disguiseless stayed,
 And unevadable, the fact.
 My brain held all the same compact
 Its senses, nor my heart declined
 Its office; rather, both combined

To help me in this juncture. I Lost not a second,—agony
 Gave boldness: since my life had end
 And my choice with it—best defend,
 Applaud both! I resolved to say,
 "So was I framed by thee, such way
 "I put to use thy senses here!
 "It was so beautiful, so near,
 "Thy world,—what could I then but choose
 "My part there? Nor did I refuse "To look above the transient boon
 "Of time; but it was hard so soon
 "As in a short life, to give up
 "Such beauty: I could put the cup
 "Undrained of half its fulness, by;
 "But, to renounce it utterly,
 "—That was too hard! Nor did the cry
 "Which bade renounce it, touch my brain
 "Authentically deep and plain
 "Enough to make my lips let go.
 "But Thou, who knowest all, dost know "Whether I was not, life's brief while,
 "Endeavouring to reconcile
 "Those lips (too tardily, alas!)
 "To letting the dear remnant pass,
 "One day,—some drops of earthly good
 "Untasted! Is it for this mood,
 "That Thou, whose earth delights so well,
 "Hast made its complement a hell?"

XVII.

A final belch of fire like blood,
 Overbroke all heaven in one flood
 Of doom. Then fire was sky, and sky
 Fire, and both, one brief ecstasy,
 Then ashes. But I heard no noise
 (Whatever was) because a voice
 Beside me spoke thus, "Life is done,
 "Time ends, Eternity's begun,
 "And thou art judged for evermore."

XVIII.

I looked up; all seemed as before;
 Of that cloud-Tophet overhead
 No trace was left: I saw instead
 The common round me, and the sky
 Above, stretched drear and empty

Of life. 'Twas the last watch of night,
 Except what brings the morning quite ;
 When the armed angel, conscience-clear,
 His task nigh done, leans o'er his spear
 And gazes on the earth he guards,
 Safe one night more through all its wards,
 Till God relieve him at his post.

" A dream—a waking dream at most !"
 (I spoke out quick, that I might shake
 The horrid nightmare off, and wake.)

" The world gone, yet the world is here ?

" Are not all things as they appear ?

" Is Judgment past for me alone ?

"—And where had place the great white throne ?

" The rising of the quick and dead ?

" Where stood they, small and great ? Who read

" The sentence from the opened book ?"

So, by degrees, the blood forsook
 My heart, and let it beat afresh ;
 I knew I should break through the mesh
 Of horror, and breathe presently :
 When, lo, again, the voice by me !

XIX.

I saw . . . Oh brother, 'mid far sands
 The palm-tree-cinctured city stands,
 Bright-white beneath, as heaven, bright-blue,
 Leans o'er it, while the years pursue
 Their course, unable to abate
 Its paradisaal laugh at fate !
 One morn,—the Arab staggers blind
 O'er a new tract of death, calcined
 To ashes, silence, nothingness,—
 And strives, with dizzy wits, to guess
 Whence fell the blow. What if, 'twixt skies
 And prostrate earth, he should surprise
 The imaged vapour, head to foot,
 Surveying, motionless and mute,
 Its work, ere, in a whirlwind rapt
 It vanish up again ?—So hapt
 My chance. HE stood there. Like the smoke
 Pillared o'er Sodom, when day broke,—
 I saw Him. One magnific pall
 Mantled in massive fold and fall
 His head, and coiled in snaky swathes
 About His feet : night's black, that bathes

All else, broke, grizzled with despair,
 Against the soul of blackness there.
 A gesture told the mood within—
 That wrapped right hand which based the chin.
 That intense meditation fixed
 On His procedure,—pity mixed
 With the fulfilment of decree.
 Motionless, thus, He spoke to me,
 Who fell before His feet, a mass,
 No man now.

XX.

" All is come to pass.

" Such shows are over for each soul
 " They had respect to. In the roll
 " Of Judgment which convinced mankind
 " Of sin, stood many, bold and blind,
 " Terror must burn the truth into :
 " Their fate for them !—thou hadst to do
 " With absolute omnipotence,
 " Able its judgments to dispense
 " To the whole race, as every one
 " Were its sole object. Judgment done,
 " God is, thou art,—the rest is hurled
 " To nothingness for thee. This world,
 " This finite life, thou hast preferred,
 " In disbelief of God's plain word,
 " To heaven and to infinity.
 " Here the probation was for thee,
 " To show thy soul the earthly mixed
 " With heavenly, it must choose betwixt.
 " The earthly joys lay palpable,—
 " A taint, in each, distinct as well ;
 " The heavenly flitted, faint and rare,
 " Above them, but as truly were
 " Taintless, so, in their nature, best.
 " Thy choice was earth : thou didst attest
 " 'Twas fitter spirit should subserve
 " The flesh, than flesh refine to nerve " Beneath the spirit's play. Advance
 " No claim to their inheritance
 " Who chose the spirit's fugitive
 " Brief gleams, and yearned, 'This were to live
 " ' Indeed, if rays, completely pure
 " ' From flesh that dulls them, could endure,—
 " ' Not shoot in meteor-light athwart
 " ' Our earth, to show how cold and swart
 " ' It lies beneath their fire, but stand
 " ' As stars do, destined to expand,

" ' Prove veritable worlds, our home !'
 " Thou saidst,— ' Let spirit star the dome
 " ' Of sky, that flesh may miss no peak,
 " ' No nook of earth,—I shall not seek
 " ' Its service further !' Thou art shut " Out of the heaven of spirit ; glut
 " Thy sense upon the world : ' tis thine
 " For ever—take it !"

XXI.

" How ? Is mine,
 " The world ?" (I cried, while my soul broke Out in a transport.) " Hast Thou spoke
 " Plainly in that ? Earth's exquisite " Treasures of wonder and delight,
 " For me ?"

XXII.

The austere voice returned,—

" So soon made happy ? Hadst thou learned
 " What God accounteth happiness,
 " Thou wouldst not find it hard to guess
 " What hell may be his punishment
 " For those who doubt if God invent
 " Better than they. Let such men rest
 " Content with what they judged the best.
 " Let the unjust usurp at will :
 " The filthy shall be filthy still :
 " Miser, there waits the gold for thee !
 " Hater, indulge thine enmity !
 " And thou, whose heaven self-ordained
 " Was, to enjoy earth unrestrained,
 " Do it ! Take all the ancient show !
 " The woods shall wave, the rivers flow,
 " And men apparently pursue
 " Their works, as they were wont to do,
 " While living in probation yet.
 " I promise not thou shalt forget
 " The past, now gone to its account ;
 " But leave thee with the old amount
 " Of faculties, nor less nor more,
 " Unvisited, as heretofore,
 " By God's free spirit, that makes an end.
 " So, once more, take thy world ! Expend " Eternity upon its shows,
 " Flung thee as freely as one rose
 " Out of a summer's opulence,
 " Over the Eden-barrier whence
 " Thou art excluded. Knock in vain !"

XXIII.

I sat up. All was still again.
 I breathed free : to my heart, back fled
 The warmth. " But, all the world !"—I said.
 I stooped and picked a leaf of fern,
 And recollected I might learn
 From books, how many myriad sorts
 Of fern exist, to trust reports,
 Each as distinct and beautiful
 As this, the very first I cull.
 Think, from the first leaf to the last !
 Conceive, then, earth's resources ! Vast Exhaustless beauty, endless change
 Of wonder ! And this foot shall range
 Alps, Andes,—and this eye devour
 The bee-bird and the aloe-flower ?

XXIV.

Then the voice, " Welcome so to rate
 " The arras-folds that variegate
 " The earth, God's antechamber, well !
 " The wise, who waited there, could tell
 " By these, what royalties in store
 " Lay one step past the entrance-door.
 " For whom, was reckoned, not too much,
 " This life's munificence ? For such
 " As thou,—a race, whereof scarce one
 " Was able, in a million,
 " To feel that any marvel lay
 " In objects round his feet all day ;
 " Scarce one, in many millions more,
 " Willing, if able, to explore
 " The secreter, minuter charm !
 " —Brave souls, a fern-leaf could disarm
 " Of power to cope with God's intent,—
 " Or scared if the south firmament
 " With north-fire did its wings reflodge !
 " All partial beauty was a pledge " Of beauty in its plenitude :
 " But since the pledge sufficed thy mood,
 " Retain it ! plenitude be theirs
 " Who looked above !"

XXV.

Though sharp despairs
 Shot through me, I held up, bore on.
 " What matter though my trust were gone
 " From natural things ? Henceforth my part
 " Be less with nature than with art !

"Of the poor stunted soul, I nipped
 "Of budding wings, else now equipped "For voyage from summer isle to isle !
 "And though she needs must reconcile
 "Ambition to the life on ground,
 "Still, I can profit by late found
 "But precious knowledge. Mind is best—
 "I will seize mind, forego the rest,
 "And try how far my tethered strength
 "May crawl in this poor breadth and length.
 "Let me, since I can fly no more,
 "At least spin dervish-like about "(Till giddy rapture almost doubt
 "I fly) through circling sciences,
 "Philosophies and histories
 "Should the whirl slacken there, then verse,
 "Fining to music, shall asperse
 "Fresh and fresh fire-dew, till I strain
 "Intoxicate, half-break my chain !
 "Not joyless, though more favoured feet
 "Stand calm, where I want wings to beat
 "The floor. At least earth's bond is broke !"

XXVIII

Then, (sickening even while I spoke)
 "Let me alone ! No answer, pray,
 "To this ! I know what Thou wilt say !
 "All still is earth's,—to know, as much
 "As feel its truths, which if we touch
 "With sense, or apprehend in soul,
 "What matter ? I have reached the goal—
 "'Whereto does knowledge serve !' will burn
 "My eyes, too sure, at every turn !
 "I cannot look back now, nor stake
 "Bliss on the race, for running's sake.
 "The goal's a ruin like the rest !—
 "And so much worse thy latter quest," (Added the voice) "that even on earth—
 "Whenever, in man's soul, had birth
 "Those intuitions, grasps of guess,
 "Which pull the more into the less,
 "Making the finite comprehend
 "Infinity,—the bard would spend
 "Such praise alone, upon his craft,
 "As, when wind-lyres obey the waft,
 "Goes to the craftsman who arranged
 "The seven strings, changed them and re-changed—

"Knowing it was the South that harped.
 "He felt his song, in singing, warped ;
 "Distinguished his and God's part : whence
 "A world of spirit as of sense
 "Was plain to him, yet not too plain,
 "Which he could traverse, not remain
 "A guest in :—else were permanent
 "Heaven on the earth its gleams were meant "To sting with hunger for full light,—
 "Made visible in verse, despite "The veiling weakness,—truth by means "Of fable, showing while it screens,—
 "Since highest truth, man e'er supplied,
 "Was ever fable on outside.
 "Such gleams made bright the earth an age ;
 "Now the whole sun's his heritage !
 "Take up thy world, it is allowed,
 "Thou who hast entered in the cloud !"

XXIX.

Then I—"Behold, my spirit bleeds,
 "Catches no more at broken reeds,—
 "But lilies flower those reeds above :
 "I let the world go, and take love !
 "Love survives in me, albeit those
 "I love be henceforth masks and shows,
 "Not living men and women : still
 "I mind how love repaired all ill,
 "Cured wrong, soothed grief, made earth amends
 "With parents, brothers, children, friends !
 "Some semblance of a woman yet
 "With eyes to help me to forget,
 "Shall look on me ; and I will match
 "Departed love with love, attach "Old memories to new dreams, nor scorn
 "The poorest of the grains of corn
 "I save from shipwreck on this isle,
 "Trusting its barrenness may smile
 "With happy foodful green one day,
 "More precious for the pains. I pray,—
 "Leave to love, only !"

XXX.

At the word,
 The form, I looked to have been stirred
 With pity and approval, rose
 O'er me, as when the headsman throws

Axe over shoulder to make end—
 I fell prone, letting Him expend
 His wrath, while thus the inflicting voice
 Smote me. “Is this thy final choice?
 “Love is the best? ’Tis somewhat late!
 “And all thou dost enumerate
 “Of power and beauty in the world,
 “The mightiness of love was curled “Inextricably round about.
 “Love lay within it and without,
 “To clasp thee,—but in vain! Thy soul “Still shrunk from Him who made the whole,
 “Still set deliberate aside
 “His love!—Now take love! Well betide “Thy tardy conscience! Haste to take “The show of love for the name’s sake, “Remembering every moment Who,
 “Beside creating thee unto “These ends, and these for thee, was said
 “To undergo death in thy stead
 “In flesh like thine: so ran the tale.
 “What doubt in thee could countervail “Belief in it? Upon the ground
 “That in the story had been found “‘Too much love! How could God love
 so?’
 “He who in all his works below
 “Adapted to the needs of man,
 “Made love the basis of the plan,—
 “Did love, as was demonstrated:
 “While man, who was so fit instead
 “To hate, as every day gave proof,—
 “Man thought man, for his kind’s behoof,
 “Both could and did invent that scheme
 “Of perfect love: ’twould well beseem
 “Cain’s nature thou wast wont to praise,
 “Not tally with God’s usual ways!”

XXXI.

And I cowered deprecatingly—
 “Thou Love of God! Or let me die,
 “Or grant what shall seem heaven almost!
 “Let me not know that all is lost,
 “Though lost it be—leave me not tied
 “To this despair, this corpse-like bride!
 “Let that old life seem mine—no more—
 “With limitation as before,

“With darkness, hunger, toil, distress:
 “Be all the earth a wilderness!
 “Only let me go on, go on,
 “Still hoping ever and anon
 “To reach one eve the Better Land!”

XXXII.

Then did the form expand, expand—
 I knew Him through the dread disguise
 As the whole God within His eyes Embraced me.

XXXIII.

When I lived again,
 The day was breaking,—the grey plain
 I rose from, silvered thick with dew.
 Was this a vision? False or true?
 Since then, three varied years are spent,
 And commonly my mind is bent
 To think it was a dream—be sure
 A mere dream and distemperature—
 The last day’s watching: then the night,—
 The shock of that strange Northern Light
 Set my head swimming, bred in me
 A dream. And so I live, you see,
 Go through the world, try, prove, reject,
 Prefer, still struggling to effect
 My warfare; happy that I can
 Be crossed and thwarted as a man,
 Not left in God’s contempt apart,
 With ghastly smooth life, dead at heart,
 Tame in earth’s paddock as her prize.
 Thank God, she still each method tries
 To catch me, who may yet escape,
 She knows,—the fiend in angel’s shape!
 Thank God, no paradise stands barred
 To entry, and I find it hard
 To be a Christian, as I said!
 Still every now and then my head
 Raised glad, sinks mournful—all grows drear
 Spite of the sunshine, while I fear
 And think, “How dreadful to be grudged
 “No ease henceforth, as one that’s judged.
 “Condemned to earth for ever, shut
 “From heaven!”
 But Easter-Day breaks! . But Christ rises! Mercy every way
 Is infinite,—and who can say?

MEN AND WOMEN.

184— 185—

“TRANSCENDENTALISM: A POEM IN TWELVE BOOKS.”

STOP playing, poet! May a brother speak?
'Tis you speak, that's your error. Song's our art:

Whereas you please to speak these naked
thoughts

Instead of draping them in sights and sounds.
—True thoughts, good thoughts, thoughts fit to treasure up!

But why such long proclusion and display,
Such turning and adjustment of the harp,
And taking it upon your breast, at length,
Only to speak dry words across its strings?
Stark-naked thought is in request enough:
Speak prose and hollo it till Europe hears!
The six-foot Swiss tube, braced about with bark,

Which helps the hunter's voice from Alp to Alp—

Exchange our harp for that,—who hinders you?

But here's your fault; grown men want thought, you think;
Thought's what they mean by verse, and seek in verse.

Boys seek for images and melody,
Men must have reason—so, you aim at men.
Quite otherwise! Objects throng our youth,
'tis true;

We see and hear and do not wonder much:
If you could tell us what they mean, indeed!
As German Boehme¹ never cared for plants
Until it happed, a-walking in the fields,
He noticed all at once that plants could speak,
Nay, turned with loosened tongue to talk
with him.

¹ Jacob Boehme, a mystical writer (died 1624), who turned William Law's head.

That day the daisy had an eye indeed—Colloquized with the cowslip on such themes!

We find them extant yet in Jacob's prose.
But by the time youth slips a stage or two While reading prose in that tough book he wrote

(Collating and emendating the same
And settling on the sense most to our
mind),

We shut the clasps and find life's summer
past.

Then, who helps more, pray, to repair our loss—

Another Boehme with a tougher book
And subtler meanings of what roses say,—
Or some stout Mage like him of Halberstadt,² John, who made things Boehme wrote thoughts about?

He with a “look you!” vents a brace of
rhymes,

And in there breaks the sudden rose herself,
Over us, under, round us every side,
Nay, in and out the tables and the chairs
And musty volumes, Boehme's book and
all,—

Buries us with a glory, young once more,
Pouring heaven into this shut house of life.

So come, the harp back to your heart
again!

You are a poem, though your poem's naught.

The best of all you showed before, believe,
Was your own boy-face o'er the finer chords
Bent, following the cherub at the top
That points to God with his paired half-moon
wings.

² John of Halberstadt, a magician botanist and a chymist.

I found no truth in one report at least—
That if you tracked him to his home, down lanes
Beyond the Jewry, and as clean to pace,
You found he ate his supper in a room
Blazing with lights, four Titians on the wall,
And twenty naked girls to change his plate !
Poor man, he lived another kind of life
In that new stuccoed third house by the bridge,
Fresh-painted, rather smart than otherwise !
The whole street might o'erlook him as he sat,
Leg crossing leg, one foot on the dog's back,
Playing a decent cribbage with his maid (Jacynth, you're sure her name was) o'er the cheese
And fruit, three red halves of starved winter-pears,
Or treat of radishes in April. Nine,
Ten, struck the church clock, straight to bed went he.

My father, like the man of sense he was,
Would point him out to me a dozen times ;
“'St—'St,” he'd whisper, “ the Corregidor !”
I had been used to think that personage
Was one with lacquered breeches, lustrous belt,
And feathers like a forest in his hat,
Who blew a trumpet and proclaimed the news,
Announced the bull-fights, gave each church its turn,
And memorized the miracle in vogue !
He had a great observance from us boys ;
We were in error ; that was not the man.

I'd like now, yet had haply been afraid,
To have just looked, when this man came to
die,
And seen who lined the clean gay garret-sides
And stood about the neat low truckle-bed,
With the heavenly manner of relieving guard.
Here had been, mark, the general-in-chief,
Thro' a whole campaign of the world's life
and death,
Doing the King's work all the dim day long,
In his old coat and up to knees in mud,
Smoked like a herring, dining on a crust,—

And, now the day was won, relieved at once!
No further show or need for that old coat,
You are sure, for one thing ! Bless us, all the while

How sprucely we are dressed out, you and I!
A second, and the angels alter that.
Well, I could never write a verse,—could you?
Let's to the Prado and make the most of time.

ARTEMIS PROLOGIZES.

I AM a goddess of the ambrosial courts,
And save by Here, Queen of Pride, surpassed
By none whose temples whiten this the world.
Through heaven I roll my lucid moon along ;
I shed in hell o'er my pale people peace ;
On earth I, caring for the creatures, guard
Each pregnant yellow wolf and fox-bitch sleek,
And every feathered mother's callow brood.
And all that love green haunts and loneliness
Of men, the chaste adore me, hanging crowns
Of poppies red to blackness, bell and stem,
Upon my image at Athenai here ;
And this dead Youth, Asclepios bends above.
Was dearest to me. He, my buskined step
To follow through the wild-wood leafy ways.
And chase the panting stag, or swift with darts
Stop the swift ounce, or lay the leopard low.
Neglected homage to another god :
Whence Aphrodite, by no midnight smoke
Of tapers lulled, in jealousy despatched
A noisome lust that, as the gadbee stings,
Possessed his stepdame Phaidra for himself
The son of Theseus her great absent spouse.
Hippolutos exclaiming in his rage
Against the fury of the Queen, she judged
Life insupportable ; and, pricked at heart
An Amazonian stranger's race should dare
To scorn her, perished by the murderous cord :
Yet, ere she perished, blasted in a scroll
The fame of him her swerving made not swerve.

And Theseus, read, returning, and believed.
And exiled, in the blindness of his wrath,
The man without a crime who, last as first,
Loyal, divulged not to his sire the truth.

Now Theseus from Poseidon had obtained
That of his wishes should be granted three,
And one he imprecated straight—"Alive
"May ne'er Hippolutos reach other lands!"
Poseidon heard, ai ai! And scarce the prince
Had stepped into the fixed boots of the car
That give the feet a stay against the strength
Of the Henetian horses, and around His body flung the rein, and urged their speed

Along the rocks and shingles of the shore,
When from the gaping wave a monster flung
His obscene body in the coursers' path.
These, mad with terror, as the sea-bull sprawled

Wallowing about their feet, lost care of him
That reared them; and the master-chariotpole

Snapping beneath their plunges like a reed,
Hippolutos, whose feet were trammelled fast,
Was yet dragged forward by the circling rein
Which either hand directed; nor they quenched
The frenzy of their flight before each trace,
Wheel-spoke and splinter of the woeful car,
Each boulder-stone, sharp stub and spiny shell,
Huge fish-bone wrecked and wreathed amid the sands

On that detested beach, was bright with blood
And morsels of his flesh: then fell the steeds
Head foremost, crashing in their mooned fronts,

Shivering with sweat, each white eye horror-
fixed.

His people, who had witnessed all afar,
Bore back the ruins of Hippolutos.
But when his sire, too swoln with pride, rejoiced

(Indomitable as a man foredoomed)
That vast Poseidon had fulfilled his prayer,
I, in a flood of glory visible,
Stood o'er my dying votary and, deed
By deed, revealed, as all took place, the
truth.

Then Theseus lay the woofullest of men,
And worthily; but ere the death-veils hid
His face, the murdered prince full pardon
breathed

To his rash sire. Whereat Athenai wails.

So I, who ne'er forsake my votaries,
Lest in the cross-way none the honey-cake
Should tender, nor pour out the dog's hot life;
Lest at my fane the priests disconsolate
Should dress my image with some faded poor
Few crowns, made favours of, nor dare object
Such slackness to my worshippers who turn
Elsewhere the trusting heart and loaded hand,
As they had climbed Olumpos to report
Of Artemis and nowhere found her throne—
I interposed: and, this eventful night,— (While round the funeral pyre the populace Stood with fierce light on their black robes which bound

Each sobbing head, while yet their hair they clipped

O'er the dead body of their withered prince,
And, in his palace, Theseus prostrated
On the cold hearth, his brow cold as the slab
'Twas bruised on, groaned away the heavy grief—

As the pyre fell, and down the cross logs crashed

Sending a crowd of sparkles through the night,
And the gay fire, elate with mastery,
Towered like a serpent o'er the clotted jars
Of wine, dissolving oils and frankincense,
And splendid gums like gold),—my potency
Conveyed the perished man to my retreat
In the thrice-venerable forest here.

And this white-bearded sage who squeezes
now

The berried plant, is Phoibos' son of fame,
Asclepios, whom my radiant brother taught
The doctrine of each herb and flower and root,
To know their secret'st virtue and express
The saving soul of all: who so has soothed
With lavers the torn brow and murdered cheeks,

Composed the hair and brought its gloss
again,

And called the red bloom to the pale skin back,
And laid the strips and jagged ends of flesh
Even once more, and slacked the sinew's knot
Of every tortured limb—that now he lies
As if mere sleep possessed him underneath
These interwoven oaks and pines. Oh cheer
Divine presenter of the healing rod,

Thy snake, with ardent throat and lulling
eye,
Twines his lithe spires around ! I say, much cheer !
Proceed thou with thy wisest pharmacies !
And ye, white crowd of woodland sisternymphs,
Ply, as the sage directs, these buds and leaves
That strew the turf around the twain ! While I Await, in fitting silence, the event.

AN EPISTLE

CONTAINING THE STRANGE MEDICAL EX-PERIENCE OF KARSHISH, THE ARAB PHYSICIAN.

KARSHISH, the picker-up of learning's crumbs,
The not-incurious in God's handiwork
(This man's-flesh he hath admirably made,
Blown like a bubble, kneaded like a paste,
To coop up and keep down on earth a space
That puff of vapour from his mouth, man's
soul)

—To Abib, all-sagacious in our art,
Breeder in me of what poor skill I boast,
Like me inquisitive how pricks and cracks Befall the flesh through too much stress and strain,

Whereby the wily vapour fain would slip
Back and rejoin its source before the term,—
And aptest in contrivance (under God)
To baffle it by deftly stopping such :—
The vagrant Scholar to his Sage at home Sends greeting (health and knowledge, fame with peace)

Three samples of true snakestone—rarer still,
One of the other sort, the melon-shaped,
(But fitter, pounded fine, for charms than drugs)
And writeth now the twenty-second time.

My journeyings were brought to Jericho :
Thus I resume. Who studious in our art
Shall count a little labour unrepaired ?
I have shed sweat enough, left flesh and bone
On many a flinty furlong of this land.
Also, the country-side is all on fire

With rumours of a marching hitherward :
Some say Vespasian cometh, some, his son.
A black lynx snarled and pricked a tufted ear ;
Lust of my blood inflamed his yellow balls :
I cried and threw my staff and he was gone.
Twice have the robbers stripped and beaten me,
And once a town declared me for a spy ;
But at the end, I reach Jerusalem,
Since this poor covert where I pass the night,
This Bethany, lies scarce the distance thence
A man with plague-sores at the third degree Runs till he drops down dead. Thou laughest
here !

'Sooth, it elates me, thus reposed and safe,
To void the stuffing of my travel-scrip
And share with thee whatever Jewry yields.
A viscid choler is observable
In tertians, I was nearly bold to say ;
And falling-sickness hath a happier cure
Than our school wots of: there's a spider here
Weaves no web, watches on the ledge of tombs,
Sprinkled with mottles on an ash-grey back ;
Take five and drop them . . . but who knows his mind,

The Syrian runagate I trust this to ?
His service payeth me a sublimate
Blown up his nose to help the ailing eye.
Best wait : I reach Jerusalem at morn,
There set in order my experiences,
Gather what most deserves, and give thee all—
Or I might add, Judæa's gum-tragacanth¹
Scales off in purer flakes, shines clearer-grained,
Cracks 'twixt the pestle and the porphyry,
In fine exceeds our produce. Scalp-disease
Confounds me, crossing so with leprosy—
Thou hadst admired one sort I gained at Zoar—
But zeal outruns discretion. Here I end.

Yet stay : my Syrian blinketh gratefully,
Protesteth his devotion is my price—
Suppose I write what harms not, though he steal ?

I half resolve to tell thee, yet I blush,
What set me off a-writing first of all.
An itch I had, a sting to write, a tang !

That we too see not with his opened eyes.
Wonder and doubt come wrongly into play,
Preposterously, at cross purposes.

Should his child sicken unto death,—why,
look

For scarce abatement of his cheerfulness,
Or pretermission of the daily craft !
While a word, gesture, glance from that same
child

At play or in the school or laid asleep,
Will startle him to an agony of fear,
Exasperation, just as like. Demand
The reason why—“ ’tis but a word,” object—
“ A gesture ”—he regards thee as our lord
Who lived there in the pyramid alone,
Looked at us (dost thou mind ?) when, being
young,

We both would unadvisedly recite
Some charm's beginning, from that book of his,

Able to bid the sun throb wide and burst
All into stars, as suns grown old are wont.
Thou and the child have each a veil alike Thrown o'er your heads, from under which ye both

Stretch your blind hands and trifle with a match

Over a mine of Greek fire, did ye know !
He holds on firmly to some thread of life—
(It is the life to lead perforce)
Which runs across some vast distracting orb
Of glory on either side that meagre thread,
Which, conscious of, he must not enter yet—
The spiritual life around the earthly life :
The law of that is known to him as this,
His heart and brain move there, his feet stay
here.

So is the man perplexed with impulses
Sudden to start off crosswise, not straight on,
Proclaiming what is right and wrong across,
And not along, this black thread through the blaze—

“ It should be ” baulked by “ here it cannot be.”

And oft the man's soul springs into his face
As if he saw again and heard again
His sage that bade him “ Rise ” and he did
rise,

Something, a word, a tick o' the blood within Admonishes : then back he sinks at once
To ashes, who was very fire before,
In sedulous recurrence to his trade
Whereby he earneth him the daily bread ;
And studiously the humbler for that pride,
Professedly the faultier that he knows God's secret, while he holds the thread of
life.

Indeed the especial marking of the man
Is prone submission to the heavenly will—Seeing it, what it is, and why it is.
'Sayeth, he will wait patient to the last
For that same death which must restore his being

To equilibrium, body loosening soul
Divorced even now by premature full growth :
He will live, nay, it pleaseth him to live
So long as God please, and just how God
please.

He even seeketh not to please God more (Which meaneth, otherwise) than as God
please.

Hence, I perceive not he affects to preach
The doctrine of his sect whate'er it be,
Make proselytes as madmen thirst to do :
How can he give his neighbour the real
ground,

His own conviction ? Ardent as he is—
Call his great truth a lie, why, still the old
“ Be it as God please ” reassureth him.

I probed the sore as thy disciple should :
“ How, beast,” said I, “ this stolid carelessness

“ Sufficeth thee, when Rome is on her march
“ To stamp out like a little spark thy town,
“ Thy tribe, thy crazy tale and thee at once ? ”

He merely looked with his large eyes on me.
The man is apathetic, you deduce ?

Contrariwise, he loves both old and young,
Able and weak, affects the very brutes
And birds—how say I ? flowers of the field—

As a wise workman recognizes tools
In a master's workshop, loving what they make.

Thus is the man as harmless as a lamb :
Only impatient, let him do his best,
At ignorance and carelessness and sin—

An indignation which is promptly curbed :
 As when in certain travel I have feigned
 To be an ignoramus in our art
 According to some preconceived design,
 And happed to hear the land's practitioners
 Steeped in conceit sublimed by ignorance,
 Prattle fantastically on disease,
 Its cause and cure—and I must hold my peace !

Thou wilt object—Why have I not ere this Sought out the sage himself, the Nazarene
 Who wrought this cure, inquiring at the source,

Conferring with the frankness that befits ?
 Alas ! it grieveth me, the learned leech
 Perished in a tumult many years ago,
 Accused,—our learning's fate,—of wizardry,
 Rebellion, to the setting up a rule
 And creed prodigious as described to me.
 His death, which happened when the earthquake fell

(Prefiguring, as soon appeared, the loss
 To occult learning in our lord the sage
 Who lived there in the pyramid alone)
 Was wrought by the mad people—that's their wont !

On vain recourse, as I conjecture it,
 To his tried virtue, for miraculous help—
 How could he stop the earthquake ? That's their way !

The other imputations must be lies :
 But take one, though I loathe to give it
 thee,

In mere respect for any good man's fame.
 (And after all, our patient Lazarus Is stark mad ; should we count on what he says ?

Perhaps not : though in writing to a leech
 'Tis well to keep back nothing of a case.)
 This man so cured regards the curer, then,
 As—God forgive me ! who but God himself,
 Creator and sustainer of the world,
 That came and dwelt in flesh on it awhile !
 —'Sayeth that such an one was born and
 lived,

Taught, healed the sick, broke bread at his own house,

Then died, with Lazarus by, for aught I know,

And yet was . . . what I said nor choose
 repeat,
 And must have so avouched himself, in fact,
 In hearing of this very Lazarus
 Who saith—but why all this of what he saith ?
 Why write of trivial matters, things of price
 Calling at every moment for remark ?
 I noticed on the margin of a pool
 Blue-flowering borage, the Aleppo sort,
 Aboundeth, very nitrous. It is strange !

Thy pardon for this long and tedious case,
 Which, now that I review it, needs must seem Unduly dwelt on, prolixly set forth !
 Nor I myself discern in what is writ
 Good cause for the peculiar interest
 And awe indeed this man has touched me
 with.

Perhaps the journey's end, the weariness
 Had wrought upon me first. I met him thus :
 I crossed a ridge of short sharp broken hills
 Like an old lion's cheek teeth. Out there came

A moon made like a face with certain spots
 Multiform, manifold and menacing :
 Then a wind rose behind me. So we met
 In this old sleepy town at unaware,
 The man and I. I send thee what is writ.
 Regard it as a chance, a matter risked
 To this ambiguous Syrian—he may lose,
 Or steal, or give it thee with equal good.
 Jerusalem's repose shall make amends
 For time this letter wastes, thy time and
 mine ;

Till when, once more thy pardon and farewell !

The very God ! think, Abib ; dost thou
 think ?

So, the All-Great, were the All-Loving too—
 So, through the thunder comes a human voice Saying, " O heart I made, a heart beats here !
 " Face, my hands fashioned, see it in myself !
 " Thou hast no power nor mayst conceive of
 mine,

" But love I gave thee, with myself to love,
 " And thou must love me who have died for thee !"

The madman saith He said so : it is strange.

JOHANNES AGRICOLA IN MEDITATION.

THERE'S heaven above, and night by night
I look right through its gorgeous roof ;
No suns and moons though e'er so bright
Avail to stop me ; splendour-proof
I keep the broods of stars aloof :
For I intend to get to God,
For 'tis to God I speed so fast,
For in God's breast, my own abode,
Those shoals of dazzling glory, passed,
I lay my spirit down at last.
I lie where I have always lain,
God smiles as he has always smiled ;
Ere suns and moons could wax and wane,
Ere stars were thundergirt, or piled
The heavens, God thought on me his
child ;
Ordained a life for me, arrayed
Its circumstances every one
To the minutest ; ay, God said
This head this hand should rest upon
Thus, ere he fashioned star or sun.
And having thus created me,
Thus rooted me, he bade me grow,
Guiltless for ever, like a tree
That buds and blooms, nor seeks to
know
The law by which it prospers so :
But sure that thought and word and deed
All go to swell his love for me,
Me, made because that love had need
Of something irreversibly
Pledged solely its content to be.
Yes, yes, a tree which must ascend,
No poison-gourd foredoomed to stoop !
I have God's warrant, could I blend
All hideous sins, as in a cup,
To drink the mingled venoms up ;
Secure my nature will convert
The draught to blossoming gladness fast :
While sweet dews turn to the gourd's hurt,
And bloat, and while they bloat it, blast,
As from the first its lot was cast.
For as I lie, smiled on, full-fed
By unexhausted power to bless,

I gaze below on hell's fierce bed,
And those its waves of flame oppress,
Swarming in ghastly wretchedness ;
Whose life on earth aspired to be
One altar-smoke, so pure !—to win
If not love like God's love for me,
At least to keep his anger in ;
And all their striving turned to sin.
Priest, doctor, hermit, monk grown white
With prayer, the broken-hearted nun,
The martyr, the wan acolyte,
The incense-swinging child,—undone
Before God fashioned star or sun !
God, whom I praise ; how could I praise,
If such as I might understand,
Make out and reckon on his ways,
And bargain for his love, and stand,
Paying a price, at his right hand ?

PICTOR IGNOTUS.

FLORENCE, 15—.

I COULD have painted pictures like that youth's
Ye praise so. How my soul springs up !
No bar
Stayed me—ah, thought which saddens while it soothes !
—Never did fate forbid me, star by star,
To outburst on your night with all my gift
Of fires from God : nor would my flesh have shrunk
From seconding my soul, with eyes uplift
And wide to heaven, or, straight like thunder, sunk
To the centre, of an instant ; or around
Turned calmly and inquisitive, to scan
The licence and the limit, space and bound.
Allowed to truth made visible in man.
And, like that youth ye praise so, all I saw,
Over the canvas could my hand have flung.
Each face obedient to its passion's law,
Each passion clear proclaimed without a
tongue ;
Whether Hope rose at once in all the blood.
A-tiptoe for the blessing of embrace,

Where sportive ladies leave their doors ajar?
The Carmine's my cloister: hunt it up,
Do,—harry out, if you must show your zeal,
Whatever rat, there, haps on his wrong hole,
And nip each softling of a wee white mouse,
Weke, weke, that's crept to keep him company!
Aha, you know your betters! Then, you'll take

Your hand away that's fiddling on my throat,
And please to know me likewise. Who am I?
Why, one, sir, who is lodging with a friend
Three streets off—he's a certain . . . how d'ye call?

Master—a . . . Cosimo of the Medici,
I' the house that caps the corner. Boh! you were best!

Remember and tell me, the day you're hanged,
How you affected such a gullet's-gripe!
But you, sir, it concerns you that your knaves
Pick up a manner nor discredit you:
Zooks, are we pilchards, that they sweep the
streets

And count fair prize what comes into their net?
He's Judas to a tittle, that man is!

Just such a face! Why, sir, you make amends.
Lord, I'm not angry! Bid your hangdogs go
Drink out this quarter-florin to the health
Of the munificent House that harbours me
(And many more beside, lads! more beside!)
And all's come square again. I'd like his
face—

His, elbowing on his comrade in the door
With the pike and lantern,—for the slave that holds

John Baptist's head a-dangle by the hair
With one hand (“Look you, now,” as who should say)

And his weapon in the other, yet unwiped!
It's not your chance to have a bit of chalk,
A wood-coal or the like? or you should see!
Yes, I'm the painter, since you style me so.
What, brother Lippo's doings, up and down,
You know them and they take you? like
enough!

I saw the proper twinkle in your eye—
'Tell you, I liked your looks at very first.
Let's sit and set things straight now, hip to haunch.

Here's spring come, and the nights one makes up bands

To roam the town and sing out carnival,
And I've been three weeks shut within my mew,
A-painting for the great man, saints and saints
And saints again. I could not paint all night—
Ouf! I leaned out of window for fresh air.
There came a hurry of feet and little feet,
A sweep of lute-strings, laughs, and whiffs of
song,—

Flower o' the broom,

Take away love, and our earth is a tomb!

Flower o' the quince,

I let Lisa go, and what good in life since!

Flower o' the thyme—and so on. Round they went.

Scarce had they turned the corner when a titter
Like the skipping of rabbits by moonlight,— three slim shapes,

And a face that looked up . . . zooks, sir,
flesh and blood,

That's all I'm made of! Into shreds it went,
Curtain and counterpane and coverlet,
All the bed-furniture—a dozen knots,
There was a ladder! Down I let myself,
Hands and feet, scrambling somehow, and so
dropped,

And after them. I came up with the fun
Hard by Saint Laurence, hail fellow, well met,—

Flower o' the rose,

If I've been merry, what matter who knows!

And so as I was stealing back again
To get to bed and have a bit of sleep
Ere I rise up to-morrow and go work
On Jerome knocking at his poor old breast
With his great round stone to subdue the
flesh,

You snap me of the sudden. Ah, I see!
Though your eye twinkles still, you shake your head—

Mine's shaved—a monk, you say—the sting's in that!

If Master Cosimo announced himself,
Mum's the word naturally; but a monk!
Come, what am I a beast for? tell us, now!
I was a baby when my mother died
And father died and left me in the street.

I starved there, God knows how, a year or two

On fig-skins, melon-parings, rinds and shucks,
Refuse and rubbish. One fine frosty day,
My stomach being empty as your hat,
The wind doubled me up and down I went.
Old Aunt Lapaccia trussed me with one hand,
(Its fellow was a stinger as I knew)
And so along the wall, over the bridge,
By the straight cut to the convent. Six words there,

While I stood munching my first bread that month :

“So, boy, you’re minded,” quoth the good fat father

Wiping his own mouth, ’twas refection-time,—

“To quit this very miserable world?

“Will you renounce” . . . “the mouthful of bread?” thought I ;

By no means ! Brief, they made a monk of
me ;

I did renounce the world, its pride and greed,
Palace, farm, villa, shop and banking-house,
Trash, such as these poor devils of Medici
Have given their hearts to—all at eight years old.

Well, sir, I found in time, you may be sure,
’Twas not for nothing—the good bellyful,
The warm serge and the rope that goes all
round,

And day-long blessed idleness beside !

“Let’s see what the urchin’s fit for”—that came next.

Not overmuch their way, I must confess.

Such a to-do ! They tried me with their
books :

Lord, they’d have taught me Latin in pure waste !

Flower o’ the clove,

All the Latin I construe is, “amo” I love !

But, mind you, when a boy starves in the streets

Eight years together, as my fortune was,
Watching folk’s faces to know who will fling
The bit of half-stripped grape-bunch he desires,
And who will curse or kick him for his pains,—
Which gentleman processional and fine,
Holding a candle to the Sacrament,

Will wink and let him lift a plate and catch
The droppings of the wax to sell again,
Or holla for the Eight and have him whipped,—

How say I?—nay, which dog bites, which lets drop

His bone from the heap of offal in the street,—
Why, soul and sense of him grow sharp alike,
He learns the look of things, and none the less
For admonition from the hunger-pinch.

I had a store of such remarks, be sure,
Which, after I found leisure, turned to use.

I drew men’s faces on my copy-books,
Scrawled them within the antiphony’s¹
marge,

Joined legs and arms to the long music-notes,
Found eyes and nose and chin for A’s and B’s,
And made a string of pictures of the world
Betwixt the ins and outs of verb and noun,
On the wall, the bench, the door. The monks looked black.

“Nay,” quoth the Prior, “turn him out, d’ye say ?

“In no wise. Lose a crow and catch a lark.

“What if at last we get our man of parts,

“We Carmelites, like those Camaldolese

“And Preaching Friars, to do our church up fine

“And put the front on it that ought to be !”
And hereupon he bade me daub away.

Thank you ! my head being crammed, the walls a blank,

Never was such prompt disembodying.

First, every sort of monk, the black and white,
I drew them, fat and lean : then, folk at church,

From good old gossips waiting to confess
Their cribs of barrel-droppings, candle-
ends,—

To the breathless fellow at the altar-foot,
Fresh from his murder, safe and sitting there
With the little children round him in a row
Of admiration, half for his beard and half
For that white anger of his victim’s son
Shaking a fist at him with one fierce arm,
Signing himself with the other because of Christ

(Whose sad face on the cross sees only this After the passion of a thousand years)
Till some poor girl, her apron o'er her head,
(Which the intense eyes looked through) came at eve

On tiptoe, said a word, dropped in a loaf,
Her pair of earrings and a bunch of flowers
(The brute took growling), prayed, and so was gone.

I painted all, then cried "'Tis ask and
have ;

"Choose, for more's ready!"—laid the ladder flat,

And showed my covered bit of cloister-wall.
The monks closed in a circle and praised loud Till checked, taught what to see and not to
see,

Being simple bodies,—“That's the very man !

“Look at the boy who stoops to pat the dog !

“That woman's like the Prior's niece who comes

“To care about his asthma : it's the life !”

But there my triumph's straw-fire flared and funked ;

Their betters took their turn to see and say :

The Prior and the learned pulled a face

And stopped all that in no time. “How?
what's here ?

“Quite from the mark of painting, bless us
all !

“Faces, arms, legs and bodies like the true

“As much as pea and pea ! it's devil's-game !

“Your business is not to catch men with show,

“With homage to the perishable clay,

“But lift them over it, ignore it all,

“Make them forget there's such a thing as flesh.

“Your business is to paint the souls of men—

“Man's soul, and it's a fire, smoke . . . no, it's not . . .

“It's vapour done up like a new-born babe—

“ (In that shape when you die it leaves your mouth)

“It's . . . well, what matters talking, it's the soul !

“Give us no more of body than shows soul !

“Here's Giotto, with his Saint a-praising
God,

“That sets us praising,—why not stop with
him ?

“Why put all thoughts of praise out of our head

“With wonder at lines, colours, and what
not ?

“Paint the soul, never mind the legs and arms !

“Rub all out, try at it a second time.

“Oh, that white smallish female with the breasts,

“She's just my niece . . . Herodias, I would say,—

“Who went and danced and got men's heads cut off !

“Have it all out !” Now, is this sense, I ask ?

A fine way to paint soul, by painting body

So ill, the eye can't stop there, must go further

And can't fare worse ! Thus, yellow does for white

When what you put for yellow's simply black,
And any sort of meaning looks intense

When all beside itself means and looks
nought.

Why can't a painter lift each foot in turn,

Left foot and right foot, go a double step,

Make his flesh liker and his soul more like,

Both in their order ? Take the prettiest face,

The Prior's niece . . . patron-saint—is it so pretty

You can't discover if it means hope, fear,

Sorrow or joy ? won't beauty go with these ?

Suppose I've made her eyes all right and blue,

Can't I take breath and try to add life's flash,

And then add soul and heighten them threefold ?

Or say there's beauty with no soul at all—

(I never saw it—put the case the same—)

If you get simple beauty and nought else,

You get about the best thing God invents :

That's somewhat : and you'll find the soul
you have missed,

Within yourself, when you return him thanks.

“Rub all out !” Well, well, there's my life, in short,

And so the thing has gone on ever since.

But why not do as well as say,—paint these
 Just as they are, careless what comes of it?
 God's works—paint anyone, and count it crime
 To let a truth slip. Don't object, "His works
 "Are here already; nature is complete:
 "Suppose you reproduce her—(which you can't)
 "There's no advantage! you must beat her,
 then."

For, don't you mark? we're made so that we
 love

First when we see them painted, things we have passed

Perhaps a hundred times nor cared to see;
 And so they are better, painted—better to us,
 Which is the same thing. Art was given for
 that;

God uses us to help each other so,
 Lending our minds out. Have you noticed,
 now,

Your cullion's hanging face? A bit of chalk,
 And trust me but you should, though! How much more,

If I drew higher things with the same truth!
 That were to take the Prior's pulpit-place,
 Interpret God to all of you! Oh, oh,
 It makes me mad to see what men shall do
 And we in our graves! This world's no blot
 for us,

Nor blank; it means intensely, and means
 good:

To find its meaning is my meat and drink.

"Ay, but you don't so instigate to prayer!"
 Strikes in the Prior: "when your meaning's
 plain

"It does not say to folk—remember matins,
 "Or, mind you fast next Friday!" Why,
 for this

What need of art at all? A skull and bones,
 Two bits of stick nailed crosswise, or, what's
 best,

A bell to chime the hour with, does as well.
 I painted a Saint Laurence six months since
 At Prato, splashed the fresco in fine style:

"How looks my painting, now the scaffold's
 down?"

I ask a brother: "Hugely," he returns—
 "Already not one phiz of your three slaves

"Who turn the Deacon off his toasted side,
 "But's scratched and prodded to our heart's content,

"The pious people have so eased their own
 "With coming to say prayers there in a rage:

"We get on fast to see the bricks beneath.
 "Expect another job this time next year,

"For pity and religion grow i' the crowd—
 "Your painting serves its purpose!" Hang the fools!

—That is—you'll not mistake an idle word
 Spoke in a huff by a poor monk, Got wot,
 Tasting the air this spicy night which turns
 The unaccustomed head like Chianti wine!
 Oh, the church knows! don't misreport me,
 now!

It's natural a poor monk out of bounds
 Should have his apt word to excuse himself:
 And hearken how I plot to make amends.

I have bethought me: I shall paint a piece
 . . . There's for you! Give me six months, then go, see

Something in Sant' Ambrogio's! Bless the nuns!

They want a cast o' my office. I shall paint
 God in the midst, Madonna and her babe,
 Ringed by a bowery flowery angel-brood,
 Lilies and vestments and white faces, sweet
 As puff on puff of grated orris-root

When ladies crowd to Church at midsummer.
 And then i' the front, of course a saint or two—
 Saint John, because he saves the Florentines.

Saint Ambrose, who puts down in black and white

The convent's friends and gives them a long
 day,

And Job, I must have him there past mistake,
 The man of Uz (and Us without the z, Painters who need his patience). Well, all these

Secured at their devotion, up shall come
 Out of a corner when you least expect,
 As one by a dark stair into a great light,

Music and talking, who but Lippo! I!— Mazed, motionless and moonstruck—I'm the
 man!

Back I shrink—what is this I see and hear?

I, caught up with my monk's-things by mistake,
My old serge gown and rope that goes all
round,

I, in this presence, this pure company !
Where's a hole, where's a corner for escape ?
Then steps a sweet angelic slip of a thing
Forward, puts out a soft palm—"Not so fast !"
—Addresses the celestial presence, "nay—
"He made you and devised you, after all,
"Though he's none of you ! Could Saint John there draw—

"His camel-hair make up a painting-brush ?
"We come to brother Lippo for all that,
"Iste perfecit opus !" So, all smile—
I shuffle sideways with my blushing face
Under the cover of a hundred wings
Thrown like a spread of kirtles when you're gay
And play hot cockles, all the doors being shut,
Till, wholly unexpected, in there pops
The hothead husband ! Thus I scuttle off
To some safe bench behind, not letting go
The palm of her, the little lily thing
That spoke the good word for me in the nick,
Like the Prior's niece . . . Saint Lucy, I would say.

And so all's saved for me, and for the church
A pretty picture gained. Go, six months
hence !

Your hand, sir, and good-bye : no lights, no
lights !

The street's hushed, and I know my own way back,

Don't fear me ! There's the grey beginning.
Zooks ! .

ANDREA DEL SARTO.

(CALLED "THE FAULTLESS PAINTER.")

[Famous painter, died 1531, aged 43.]

BUT do not let us quarrel any more,
No, my Lucrezia ; bear with me for once :
Sit down and all shall happen as you wish.
You turn your face, but does it bring your
heart ?

I'll work then for your friend's friend, never
fear,

Treat his own subject after his own way,
Fix his own time, accept too his own price,
And shut the money into this small hand
When next it takes mine. Will it ? tenderly ?
Oh, I'll content him,—but to-morrow, Love !
I often am much wearier than you think,
This evening more than usual, and it seems
As if—forgive now—should you let me sit Here by the window with your hand in mine
And look a half-hour forth on Fiesole,
Both of one mind, as married people use,
Quietly, quietly the evening through,
I might get up to-morrow to my work
Cheerful and fresh as ever. Let us try.
To-morrow, how you shall be glad for this :
Your soft hand is a woman of itself,
And mine the man's bared breast she curls inside.

Don't count the time lost, neither ; you must serve

For each of the five pictures we require :
It saves a model. So ! keep looking so—
My serpentine beauty, rounds on rounds !
—How could you ever prick those perfect ears,
Even to put the pearl there ! oh, so sweet—
My face, my moon, my everybody's moon,
Which everybody looks on and calls his,
And, I suppose, is looked on by in turn,
While she looks—no one's : very dear, no
less.

You smile ? why, there's my picture ready
made,

There's what we painters call our harmony !
A common greyness silvers everything,—
All in a twilight, you and I alike
—You, at the point of your first pride in me (That's gone you know),—but I, at every point ;

My youth, my hope, my art, being all toned
down

To yonder sober pleasant Fiesole.
There's the bell clinking from the chapel-top ;
That length of convent-wall across the way
Holds the trees safer, huddled more inside ;
The last monk leaves the garden ; days decrease,

And autumn grows, autumn in everything.
Eh ? the whole seems to fall into a shape

As if I saw alike my work and self
And all that I was born to be and do,
A twilight-piece. Love, we are in God's
hand.

How strange now, looks the life he makes us
lead ;

So free we seem, so fettered fast we are !

I feel he laid the fetter : let it lie !

This chamber for example—turn your head—
All that's behind us ! You don't understand
Nor care to understand about my art,
But you can hear at least when people speak :
And that cartoon, the second from the door
—It is the thing, Love ! so such things should
be—

Behold Madonna !—I am bold to say.

I can do with my pencil what I know,
What I see, what at bottom of my heart
I wish for, if I ever wish so deep—

Do easily, too—when I say, perfectly,
I do not boast, perhaps : yourself are judge,
Who listened to the Legate's talk last week,
And just as much they used to say in France.
At any rate 'tis easy, all of it !

No sketches first, no studies, that's long past :
I do what many dream of, all their lives,
—Dream ? strive to do, and agonize to do,
And fail in doing. I could count twenty such
On twice your fingers, and not leave this town,
Who strive—you don't know how the others
strive

To paint a little thing like that you smeared
Carelessly passing with your robes afloat,— Yet do much less, so much less, Someone
says,

(I know his name, no matter)—so much less !
Well, less is more, Lucrezia : I am judged.
There burns a truer light of God in them,
In their vexed beating stuffed and stopped-up
brain,

Heart, or whate'er else, than goes on to prompt

This low-pulsed forthright craftsman's hand
of mine.

Their works drop groundward, but themselves, I know,

Reach many a time a heaven that's shut to
me,

Enter and take their place there sure enough,
Though they come back and cannot tell the
world.

My works are nearer heaven, but I sit here.
The sudden blood of these men ! at a word—
Praise them, it boils, or blame them, it boils
too.

I, painting from myself and to myself,
Know what I do, am unmoved by men's
blame

Or their praise either. Somebody remarks
Morello's outline there is wrongly traced,
His hue mistaken ; what of that ? or else,
Rightly traced and well ordered ; what of
that ?

Speak as they please, what does the mountain
care ?

Ah, but a man's reach should exceed his grasp,
Or what's a heaven for ? All is silver-grey Placid and perfect with my art : the worse !
I know both what I want and what might
gain,

And yet how profitless to know, to sigh
“ Had I been two, another and myself, “ Our head would have o'erlooked the world ! ” No doubt.

Yonder's a work now, of that famous youth
The Urbinate who died five years ago.
('Tis copied, George Vasari sent it me.)
Well, I can fancy how he did it all,

Pouring his soul, with kings and popes to see,
Reaching, that heaven might so replenish him,
Above and through his art—for it gives way ;
That arm is wrongly put—and there again—
A fault to pardon in the drawing's lines,
Its body, so to speak : its soul is right,

He means right—that, a child may understand.
Still, what an arm ! and I could alter it :
But all the play, the insight and the stretch—
Out of me, out of me ! And wherefore out ?
Had you enjoined them on me, given me
soul,

We might have risen to Rafael, I and you !
Nay, Love, you did give all I asked, I think—
More than I merit, yes, by many times.
But had you—oh, with the same perfect brow.
And perfect eyes, and more than perfect
mouth,

Ay, but the soul ! he's Rafael ! rub it out !
 Still, all I care for, if he spoke the truth,
 What he? why, who but Michel Agnolo?
 Do you forget already words like those?)
 If really there was such a chance, so lost,—
 Is, whether you're—not grateful—but more pleased.

Well, let me think so. And you smile indeed !
 This hour has been an hour ! Another smile?
 If you would sit thus by me every night
 I should work better, do you comprehend?
 I mean that I should earn more, give you
 more.

See, it is settled dusk now ; there's a star ;
 Morello's¹ gone, the watch-lights show the wall,

The cue-owls speak the name we call them by.
 Come from the window, love,—come in, at
 last,

Inside the melancholy little house
 We built to be so gay with. God is just.
 King Francis may forgive me : oft at nights
 When I look up from painting, eyes tired out,
 The walls become illumined, brick from brick Distinct, instead of mortar, fierce bright
 gold,

That gold of his I did cement them with !
 Let us but love each other. Must you go?
 That Cousin here again ? he waits outside?
 Must see you—you, and not with me ? Those loans ?

More gaming debts to pay ? you smiled for
 that ?

Well, let smiles buy me ! have you more to spend ?

While hand and eye and something of a heart
 Are left me, work's my ware, and what's it
 worth ?

I'll pay my fancy. Only let me sit
 The grey remainder of the evening out,
 Idle, you call it, and muse perfectly
 How I could paint, were I but back in France,
 One picture, just one more—the Virgin's
 face,

Not yours this time ! I want you at my side
 To hear them—that is, Michel Agnolo—

Judge all I do and tell you of its worth.
 Will you ? To-morrow, satisfy your friend.
 I take the subjects for his corridor,
 Finish the portrait out of hand—there,
 there,

And throw him in another thing or two
 If he demurs ; the whole should prove enough
 To pay for this same Cousin's freak. Beside,
 What's better and what's all I care about,
 Get you the thirteen scudi for the ruff !
 Love, does that please you ? Ah, but what does he,
 The Cousin ! what does he to please you
 more ?

I am grown peaceful as old age to-night.
 I regret little, I would change still less.
 Since there my past life lies, why alter it ?
 The very wrong to Francis !—it is true
 I took his coin, was tempted and complied,
 And built this house and sinned, and all is
 said.

My father and my mother died of want.
 Well, had I riches of my own ? you see How one gets rich ! Let each one bear his lot.

They were born poor, lived poor, and poor they died :

And I have laboured somewhat in my time
 And not been paid profusely. Some good
 son

Paint my two hundred pictures—let him
 try !

No doubt, there's something strikes a balance.
 Yes,

You loved me quite enough, it seems to-night.
 This must suffice me here. What would one
 have ?

In heaven, perhaps, new chances, one more
 chance—

Four great walls in the New Jerusalem,
 Meted on each side by the angel's reed,
 For Leonard, Rafael, Agnolo and me
 To cover—the three first without a wife,
 While I have mine ! So—still they overcome
 Because there's still Lucrezia,—as I choose.

Again the Cousin's whistle ! Go, my Love.

THE BISHOP ORDERS HIS TOMB
AT SAINT PRAXED'S CHURCH.

ROME, 15—.

VANITY, saith the preacher, vanity !
Draw round my bed : is Anselm keeping
back ?

Nephews—sons mine . . . ah God, I know not ! Well—

She, men would have to be your mother once,
Old Gandolf envied me, so fair she was !

What's done is done, and she is dead beside,
Dead long ago, and I am Bishop since,
And as she died so must we die ourselves,
And thence ye may perceive the world's a dream.

Life, how and what is it ? As here I lie
In this state-chamber, dying by degrees,
Hours and long hours in the dead night, I ask
"Do I live, am I dead ?" Peace, peace seems all.

Saint Praxed's ever was the church for peace ;
And so, about this tomb of mine. I fought
With tooth and nail to save my niche, ye
know :

—Old Gandolf cozened me, despite my care ;
Shrewd was that snatch from out the corner
South

He graced his carrion with, God curse the
same !

Yet still my niche is not so cramped but thence

One sees the pulpit o' the epistle-side,
And somewhat of the choir, those silent seats,
And up into the aery dome where live
The angels, and a sunbeam's sure to lurk :

And I shall fill my slab of basalt there,
And 'neath my tabernacle take my rest,
With those nine columns round me, two and
two,

The odd one at my feet where Anselm stands :
Peach-blossom marble all, the rare, the ripe
As fresh-poured red wine of a mighty pulse.

—Old Gandolf with his paltry onion-stone, Put me where I may look at him ! True peach,

Rosy and flawless : how I earned the prize !

Draw close : that conflagration of my church
—What then ? So much was saved if aught were missed !

My sons, ye would not be my death ? Go dig
The white-grape vineyard where the oil-press
stood,

Drop water gently till the surface sink,
And if ye find . . . Ah God, I know not,
I ! . . .

Bedded in store of rotten fig-leaves soft,
And corded up in a tight olive-frail,
Some lump, ah God, of lapis lazuli,
Big as a Jew's head cut off at the nape,
Blue as a vein o'er the Madonna's breast . . .

Sons, all have I bequeathed you, villas, all,
That brave Frascati villa with its bath,
So, let the blue lump poise between my knees,
Like God the Father's globe on both his
hands

Ye worship in the Jesu Church so gay,
For Gandolf shall not choose but see and burst !

Swift as a weaver's shuttle fleet our years :
Man goeth to the grave, and where is he ?
Did I say basalt for my slab, sons ? Black—
'Twas ever antique-black I meant ! How else
Shall ye contrast my frieze to come beneath ?
The bas-relief in bronze ye promised me,
Those Pans and Nymphs ye wot of, and
perchance

Some tripod, thyrsus, with a vase or so,
The Saviour at his sermon on the mount,
Saint Praxed in a glory, and one Pan
Ready to twitch the Nymph's last garment off,
And Moses with the tables . . . but I know Ye mark me not ! What do they whisper
thee,

Child of my bowels, Anselm ? Ah, ye hope
To revel down my villas while I gasp
Bricked o'er with beggar's mouldy travertine
Which Gandolf from his tomb-topchuckles at !

Nay, boys, ye love me—all of jasper, then !
'Tis jasper ye stand pledged to, lest I grieve.
My bath must needs be left behind, alas !
One block, pure green as a pistachio-nut,
There's plenty jasper somewhere in the world—
And have I not Saint Praxed's ear to pray
Horses for ye, and brown Greek manuscripts,

And mistresses with great smooth marbly limbs?

—That's if ye carve my epitaph aright,
Choice Latin, picked phrase, Tully's every
word,

No gaudy ware like Gandolf's second line—
Tully, my masters? Ulpian serves his need!
And then how I shall lie through centuries,
And hear the blessed mutter of the mass,
And see God made and eaten all day long,
And feel the steady candle-flame, and taste
Good strong thick stupefying incense-smoke!
For as I lie here, hours of the dead night,
Dying in state and by such slow degrees,
I fold my arms as if they clasped a crook,
And stretch my feet forth straight as stone
can point,

And let the bedclothes, for a mortcloth, drop
Into great laps and folds of sculptor's-work:
And as yon tapers dwindle, and strange
thoughts

Grow, with a certain humming in my ears,
About the life before I lived this life,
And this life too, popes, cardinals and priests,
Saint Praxed at his sermon on the mount,
Your tall pale mother with her talking eyes,
And new-found agate urns as fresh as day,
And marble's language, Latin pure, discreet,
—Aha, ELUCESCEBAT quoth our friend?
No Tully, said I, Ulpian at the best!
Evil and brief hath been my pilgrimage.
All lapis, all, sons! Else I give the Pope
My villas! Will ye ever eat my heart?
Ever your eyes were as a lizard's quick,
They glitter like your mother's for my soul,
Or ye would heighten my impoverished frieze,

Piece out its starved design, and fill my vase
With grapes, and add a vizor and a Term,¹
And to the tripod ye would tie a lynx
That in his struggle throws the thyrsus down,
To comfort me on my entablature
Whereon I am to lie till I must ask “Do I live, am I dead?” There, leave me,
there!

For ye have stabbed me with ingratitude

¹ A bust ending in a square block of stone, like those of the god Terminus.

To death—ye wish it—God, ye wish it!
Stone—

Gritstone, a-crumble! Clammy squares which sweat

As if the corpse they keep were oozing
through—

And no more lapis to delight the world!
Well go! I bless ye. Fewer tapers there,
But in a row: and, going, turn your backs
—Ay, like departing altar-ministrants,
And leave me in my church, the church for
peace,

That I may watch at leisure if he leers—
Old Gandolf, at me, from his onion-stone,
As still he envied me, so fair she was!

BISHOP BLOUGRAM'S APOLOGY.

No more wine? then we'll push back chairs and talk.

A final glass for me, though: cool, i' faith!
We ought to have our Abbey back, you see.
It's different, preaching in basilicas,
And doing duty in some masterpiece
Like this of brother Pugin's, bless his heart!
I doubt if they're half baked, those chalk rosettes,

Ciphers and stucco-twiddlings everywhere;
It's just like breathing in a lime-kiln: eh?
These hot long ceremonies of our church
Cost us a little—oh, they pay the price,
You take me—amply pay it! Now, we'll talk.

So, you despise me, Mr. Gigadibs.
No deprecation,—nay, I beg you, sir!
Beside 'tis our engagement: don't you know,
I promised, if you'd watch a dinner out,
We'd see truth dawn together?—truth that peeps

Over the glasses' edge when dinner's done,
And body gets its sop and holds its noise
And leaves soul free a little. Now's the
time:

Truth's break of day! You do despise me
then.

And if I say, “despise me,”—never fear!

But one, a man, who is man and nothing
more,
May lead within a world which (by your leave)
Is Rome or London, not Fool's-paradise.
Embellish Rome, idealize away,
Make paradise of London if you can,
You're welcome, nay, you're wise.

A simile !

We mortals cross the ocean of this world
Each in his average cabin of a life ;
The best's not big, the worst yields elbow-room.

Now for our six months' voyage—how prepare ?

You come on shipboard with a landsman's list

Of things he calls convenient : so they are !
An India screen is pretty furniture,
A piano-forte is a fine resource,
All Balzac's novels occupy one shelf,
The new edition fifty volumes long ;
And little Greek books, with the funny type
They get up well at Leipsic, fill the next :
Go on ! slabbed marble, what a bath it makes !
And Parma's pride, the Jerome, let us add !
'Twere pleasant could Correggio's fleeting glow

Hang full in face of one where'er one roams,
Since he more than the others brings with him
Italy's self,—the marvellous Modenese !—
Yet was not on your list before, perhaps.
—Alas, friend, here's the agent . . . is't
the name ?

The captain, or whoever's master here—
You see him screw his face up ; what's his cry

Ere you set foot on shipboard ? "Six feet square !"

If you won't understand what six feet mean,
Compute and purchase stores accordingly—
And if, in pique because he overhauls
Your Jerome, piano, bath, you come on board
Bare—why, you cut a figure at the first
While sympathetic landsmen see you off ;
Not afterward, when long ere half seas over,
You peep up from your utterly naked boards

Into some snug and well-appointed berth,
Like mine for instance (try the cooler jug—
Put back the other, but don't jog the ice !)
And mortified you mutter "Well and good ;
" He sits enjoying his sea-furniture ;
" 'Tis stout and proper, and there's store of
it :

" Though I've the better notion, all agree,
" Of fitting rooms up. Hang the carpenter,
" Neat ship-shape fixings and contrivances—
" I would have brought my Jerome, frame and all !"

And meantime you bring nothing : never
mind—

You've proved your artist-nature : what you don't

You might bring, so despise me, as I say.

Now come, let's backward to the starting-
place.

See my way : we're two college friends,
suppose.

Prepare together for our voyage, then ;
Each note and check the other in his work,—
Here's mine, a bishop's outfit ; criticize !
What's wrong ? why won't you be a bishop
too ?

Why first, you don't believe, you don't and can't,

(Not stately, that is, and fixedly
And absolutely and exclusively)

In any revelation called divine.

No dogmas nail your faith ; and what remains
But say so, like the honest man you are ?

First, therefore, overhaul theology !

Nay, I too, not a fool, you please to think,
Must find believing every whit as hard :

And if I do not frankly say as much,
The ugly consequence is clear enough.

Now wait, my friend : well, I do not believe—

If you'll accept no faith that is not fixed,
Absolute and exclusive, as you say.

You're wrong—I mean to prove it in due
time.

Meanwhile, I know where difficulties lie

I could not, cannot solve, nor ever shall,
So give up hope accordingly to solve—
(To you, and over the wine). Our dogmas
then

With both of us, though in unlike degree,
Missing full credence—overboard with them !
I mean to meet you on your own premise :
Good, there go mine in company with yours !

And now what are we? unbelievers both,
Calm and complete, determinately fixed
To-day, to-morrow and for ever, pray?
You'll guarantee me that? Not so, I think !
In no wise ! all we've gained is, that belief,
As unbelief before, shakes us by fits,
Confounds us like its predecessor. Where's
The gain? how can we guard our unbelief,
Make it bear fruit to us?—the problem here.
Just when we are safest, there's a sunset-
touch,

A fancy from a flower-bell, some one's death,
A chorus-ending from Euripides,—
And that's enough for fifty hopes and fears
As old and new at once as nature's self,
To rap and knock and enter in our soul,
Take hands and dance there, a fantastic ring,
Round the ancient idol, on his base again,—
The grand Perhaps ! We look on helplessly.
There the old misgivings, crooked questions
are—

This good God,—what he could do, if he would,
Would, if he could—then must have done
long since :
If so, when, where and how? some way must be,—

Once feel about, and soon or late you hit
Some sense, in which it might be, after all.
Why not, "The Way, the Truth, the Life?"

—That way

Over the mountain, which who stands upon
Is apt to doubt if it be meant for a road ;
While, if he views it from the waste itself,
Up goes the line there, plain from base to
brow,
Not vague, mistakeable ! what's a break or two

Seen from the unbroken desert either side?
And then (to bring in fresh philosophy)
What if the breaks themselves should prove
at last

The most consummate of contrivances
To train a man's eye, teach him what is faith?
And so we stumble at truth's very test !
All we have gained then by our unbelief
Is a life of doubt diversified by faith,
For one of faith diversified by doubt :
We called the chess-board white,—we call it black.

"Well," you rejoin, "the end's no worse,
at least

"We've reason for both colours on the board :
"Why not confess then, where I drop the
faith

"And you the doubt, that I'm as right as
you?"

Because, friend, in the next place, this being so,
And both things even,—faith and unbelief
Left to a man's choice,—we'll proceed a step,
Returning to our image, which I like.

A man's choice, yes—but a cabin-pas-senger's—

The man made for the special life o' the world—
Do you forget him? I remember though !
Consult our ship's conditions and you find
One and but one choice suitable to all ;
The choice, that you unluckily prefer,
Turning things topsy-turvy—they or it
Going to the ground. Belief or unbelief
Bears upon life, determines its whole course,
Begins at its beginning. See the world
Such as it is,—you made it not, nor I ;
I mean to take it as it is,—and you,
Not so you'll take it,—though you get nought
else.

I know the special kind of life I like,
What suits the most my idiosyncrasy,
Brings out the best of me and bears me fruit
In power, peace, pleasantness and length of days.

I find that positive belief does this

For me, and unbelief, no whit of this.
 —For you, it does, however?—that, we'll try!
 'Tis clear, I cannot lead my life, at least,
 Induce the world to let me peaceably,
 Without declaring at the outset, "Friends,
 "I absolutely and peremptorily
 "Believe!"—I say, faith is my waking life:
 One sleeps, indeed, and dreams at intervals,
 We know, but waking's the main point with us,
 And my provision's for life's waking part.
 Accordingly, I use heart, head and hand
 All day, I build, scheme, study, and make
 friends;
 And when night overtakes me, down I lie,
 Sleep, dream a little, and get done with it,
 The sooner the better, to begin afresh.
 What's midnight doubt before the dayspring's
 faith?
 You, the philosopher, that disbelieve,
 That recognize the night, give dreams their weight—
 To be consistent you should keep your bed,
 Abstain from healthy acts that prove you man,
 For fear you drowse perhaps at unawares!
 And certainly at night you'll sleep and dream,
 Live through the day and bustle as you please.
 And so you live to sleep as I to wake,
 To unbelieve as I to still believe?
 Well, and the common sense o' the world calls
 you
 Bed-ridden,—and its good things come to me.
 Its estimation, which is half the fight,
 That's the first-cabin comfort I secure:
 The next . . . but you perceive with half an
 eye!
 Come, come, it's best believing, if we may;
 You can't but own that!

Next, concede again,
 If once we choose belief, on all accounts
 We can't be too decisive in our faith,
 Conclusive and exclusive in its terms,
 To suit the world which gives us the good things.
 In every man's career are certain points
 Whereon he dares not be indifferent;
 The world detects him clearly, if he dare,
 As baffled at the game, and losing life.

He may care little or he may care much
 For riches, honour, pleasure, work, repose,
 Since various theories of life and life's Success are extant which might easily
 Comport with either estimate of these;
 And whoso chooses wealth or poverty,
 Labour or quiet, is not judged a fool
 Because his fellow would choose otherwise:
 We let him choose upon his own account
 So long as he's consistent with his choice.
 But certain points, left wholly to himself,
 When once a man has arbitrated on,
 We say he must succeed there or go hang.
 Thus, he should wed the woman he loves most
 Or needs most, whatso'er the love or need—For he can't wed twice. Then, he must avouch,
 Or follow, at the least, sufficiently,
 The form of faith his conscience holds the best,
 Whate'er the process of conviction was:
 For nothing can compensate his mistake
 On such a point, the man himself being judge:
 He cannot wed twice, nor twice lose his soul.

Well now, there's one great form of Christian faith

I happened to be born in—which to teach
 Was given me as I grew up, on all hands,
 As best and readiest means of living by;
 The same on examination being proved
 The most pronounced moreover, fixed, precise
 And absolute form of faith in the whole world—
 Accordingly, most potent of all forms
 For working on the world. Observe, my friend!
 Such as you know me, I am free to say,
 In these hard latter days which hamper one,
 Myself—by no immoderate exercise
 Of intellect and learning, but the tact
 To let external forces work for me, —Bid the street's stones be bread and they are bread;
 Bid Peter's creed, or rather, Hildebrand's,
 Exalt me o'er my fellows in the world
 And make my life an ease and joy and pride:
 It does so,—which for me's a great point
 gained,
 Who have a soul and body that exact
 A comfortable care in many ways.

The honest thief, the tender murderer,
The superstitious atheist, demirep
That loves and saves her soul in new French
books—

We watch while these in equilibrium keep
The giddy line midway : one step aside,
They're classed and done with. I, then,
keep the line

Before your sages,—just the men to shrink
From the gross weights, coarse scales and labels broad

You offer their refinement. Fool or knave?
Why needs a bishop be a fool or knave
When there's a thousand diamond weights between?

So, I enlist them. Your picked twelve, you'll find,

Profess themselves indignant, scandalized
At thus being held unable to explain
How a superior man who disbelieves
May not believe as well : that's Schelling's way!
It's through my coming in the tail of time,
Nicking the minute with a happy tact.

Had I been born three hundred years ago They'd say, "What's strange? Blougram of course believes ;"

And, seventy years since, "disbelieves of
course."

But now, "He may believe ; and yet, and yet
"How can he?" All eyes turn with interest.
Whereas, step off the line on either side—

You, for example, clever to a fault,
The rough and ready man who write apace,
Read somewhat seldomer, think perhaps even less—

You disbelieve ! Who wonders and who cares?
Lord So-and-so—his coat bedropped with wax,
All Peter's chains about his waist, his back
Brave with the needlework of Noodledom—
Believes ! Again, who wonders and who cares?
But I, the man of sense and learning too,
The able to think yet act, the this, the that,
I, to believe at this late time of day !
Enough ; you see, I need not fear contempt.

—Except it's yours ! Admire me as these
may,
You don't. But whom at least do you admire?

Present your own perfection, your ideal,
Your pattern man for a minute—oh, make
haste,

Is it Napoleon you would have us grow?
Concede the means ; allow his head and hand,
(A large concession, clever as you are)
Good ! In our common primal element
Of unbelief (we can't believe, you know—
We're still at that admission, recollect !)
Where do you find—apart from, towering o'er
The secondary temporary aims
Which satisfy the gross taste you despise—
Where do you find his star ?—his crazy trust
God knows through what or in what ? it's alive
And shines and leads him, and that's all we want.

Have we aught in our sober night shall point
Such ends as his were, and direct the means
Of working out our purpose straight as his,
Nor bring a moment's trouble on success
With after-care to justify the same ?
—Be a Napoleon, and yet disbelieve—
Why, the man's mad, friend, take his light
away !

What's the vague good o' the world, for which you dare

With comfort to yourself blow millions up?
We neither of us see it ! we do see
The blown-up millions—spatter of their brains
And writhing of their bowels and so forth,
In that bewildering entanglement
Of horrible eventualities

Past calculation to the end of time !
Can I mistake for some clear word of God
(Which were my ample warrant for it all)
His puff of hazy instinct, idle talk,
"The State, that's I," quack-nonsense about crowns,

And (when one beats the man to his last hold)
A vague idea of setting things to rights,
Policing people efficaciously,
More to their profit, most of all to his own :
The whole to end that dimmest of ends
By an Austrian marriage, cant to us the Church.
And resurrection of the old régime ?

Would I, who hope to live a dozen years,
Fight Austerlitz for reasons such and such ?
No : for, concede me but the merest chance

Doubt may be wrong—there's judgment, life to come !

With just that chance, I dare not. Doubt proves right ?

This present life is all?—you offer me
Its dozen noisy years, without a chance
That wedding an archduchess, wearing lace,
And getting called by divers new-coined names,
Will drive off ugly thoughts and let me dine,
Sleep, read and chat in quiet as I like !
Therefore I will not.

Take another case ;

Fit up the cabin yet another way.

What say you to the poets? shall we write
Hamlet, Othello—make the world our own,
Without a risk to run of either sort ?

I can't !—to put the strongest reason first.

“ But try,” you urge, “ the trying shall suffice ;
“ The aim, if reached or not, makes great the life :

“ Try to be Shakespeare, leave the rest to fate !”

Spare my self-knowledge—there's no fooling
me !

If I prefer remaining my poor self,

I say so not in self-dispraise but praise.

If I'm a Shakespeare, let the well alone ;

Why should I try to be what now I am ?

If I'm no Shakespeare, as too probable,—

His power and consciousness and self-delight

And all we want in common, shall I find—

Trying for ever? while on points of taste

Wherewith, to speak it humbly, he and I

Are dowered alike—I'll ask you, I or he,

Which in our two lives realizes most ?

Much, he imagined—somewhat, I possess.

He had the imagination ; stick to that !

Let him say, “ In the face of my soul's works

“ Your world is worthless and I touch it not

“ Lest I should wrong them ”—I'll withdraw my plea.

But does he say so? look upon his life !

Himself, who only can, gives judgment there.

He leaves his towers and gorgeous palaces

To build the trimmest house in Stratford town ;

Saves money, spends it, owns the worth of
things,

Giulio Romano's pictures, Dowland's lute ;
Enjoys a show, respects the puppets, too,
And none more, had he seen its entry once,
Than “ Pandulph, of fair Milan cardinal.”

Why then should I who play that personage,
The very Pandulph Shakespeare's fancy made,
Be told that had the poet chanced to start
From where I stand now (some degree like
mine

Being just the goal he ran his race to reach)
He would have run the whole race back,
forsooth,

And left being Pandulph, to begin write plays?
Ah, the earth's best can be but the earth's
best !

Did Shakespeare live, he could but sit at home
And get himself in dreams the Vatican,
Greek busts, Venetian paintings, Roman walls,
And English books, none equal to his own,
Which I read, bound in gold (he never did).

—Terni's fall, Naples' bay and Gothard's top—

Eh, friend? I could not fancy one of these ;

But, as I pour this claret, there they are :

I've gained them—crossed St. Gothard last July

With ten mules to the carriage and a bed

Slung inside ; is my hap the worse for that ?

We want the same things, Shakespeare and
myself,

And what I want, I have : he, gifted more,

Could fancy he too had them when he liked,

But not so thoroughly that, if fate allowed,

He would not have them also in my sense.

We play one game ; I send the ball aloft

No less adroitly that of fifty strokes

Scarce five go o'er the wall so wide and high

Which sends them back to me : I wish and get.

He struck balls higher and with better skill,

But at a poor fence level with his head,

And hit—his Stratford house, a coat of arms,

Successful dealings in his grain and wool,—

While I receive heaven's incense in my nose

And style myself the cousin of Queen Bess.

Ask him, if this life's all, who wins the game ?

Believe—and our whole argument breaks up.
Enthusiasm's the best thing, I repeat ;

Only, we can't command it ; fire and life
 Are all, dead matter's nothing, we agree :
 And be it a mad dream or God's very breath,
 The fact's the same,—belief's fire, once in us,
 Makes of all else mere stuff to show itself :
 We penetrate our life with such a glow
 As fire lends wood and iron—this turns steel,
 That burns to ash—all's one, fire proves its power

For good or ill, since men call flare success.
 But paint a fire, it will not therefore burn.
 Light one in me, I'll find it food enough !
 Why, to be Luther—that's a life to lead,
 Incomparably better than my own.
 He comes, reclaims God's earth for God, he
 says,

Sets up God's rule again by simple means,
 Re-opens a shut book, and all is done.
 He flared out in the flaring of mankind ;
 Such Luther's luck was : how shall such be
 mine ?

If he succeeded, nothing's left to do :
 And if he did not altogether—well, Strauss is the next advance. All Strauss should be

I might be also. But to what result ?
 He looks upon no future : Luther did.
 What can I gain on the denying side ?
 Ice makes no conflagration. State the facts,
 Read the text right, emancipate the world—
 The emancipated world enjoys itself
 With scarce a thank-you : Blougram told it
 first

It could not owe a farthing,—not to him
 More than Saint Paul ! 'twould press its pay,
 you think ?

Then add there's still that plaguy hundredth
 chance

Strauss may be wrong. And so a risk is run—
 For what gain ? not for Luther's, who secured

A real heaven in his heart throughout his life,
 Supposing death a little altered things.

“ Ay, but since really you lack faith,” you
 cry,

“ You run the same risk really on all sides,
 “ In cool indifference as bold unbelief.

“ As well be Strauss as swing 'twixt Paul and
 him.

“ It's not worth having, such imperfect faith,
 “ No more available to do faith's work “ Than unbelief like mine. Whole faith, or none !”

Softly, my friend ! I must dispute that point.

Once own the use of faith, I'll find you faith.
 We're back on Christian ground. You call for faith :

I show you doubt, to prove that faith exists.
 The more of doubt, the stronger faith, I say,
 If faith o'ercomes doubt. How I know it does ?

By life and man's free will, God gave for that !
 To mould life as we choose it, shows our choice :

That's our one act, the previous work's his
 own.

You criticize the soul ? it reared this tree—
 This broad life and whatever fruit it bears !
 What matter though I doubt at every pore, Head-doubts, heart-doubts, doubts at my fingers' ends,

Doubts in the trivial work of every day,
 Doubts at the very bases of my soul
 In the grand moments when she probes her
 self—

If finally I have a life to show,
 The thing I did, brought out in evidence Against the thing done to me underground
 By hell and all its brood, for aught I know ?
 I say, whence sprang this ? shows it faith or
 doubt ?

All's doubt in me ; where's break of faith in
 this ?

It is the idea, the feeling and the love, God means mankind should strive for and show forth

Whatever be the process to that end,—
 And not historic knowledge, logic sound,
 And metaphysical acumen, sure !

“ What think ye of Christ,” friend ? when all's done and said,

Like you this Christianity or not ?

It may be false, but will you wish it true ?

If the Church bid them?—brother Newman asks.

Up with the Immaculate Conception, then—
On to the rack with faith!—is my advice.
Will not that hurry us upon our knees,
Knocking our breasts, “It can’t be—yet it shall!

“Who am I, the worm, to argue with my Pope?

“Low things confound the high things!” and so forth.

That’s better than acquitting God with grace
As some folk do. He’s tried—no case is proved,
Philosophy is lenient—he may go!

You’ll say, the old system’s not so obsolete
But men believe still: ay, but who and where?

King Bomba’s lazzaroni foster yet
The sacred flame, so Antonelli writes;
But even of these, what ragamuffin-saint Believes God watches him continually,
As he believes in fire that it will burn,
Or rain that it will drench him? Break fire’s law,

Sin against rain, although the penalty
Be just a singe or soaking? “No,” he smiles;
“Those laws are laws that can enforce themselves.”

The sum of all is—yes, my doubt is great,
My faith’s still greater, then my faith’s enough.
I have read much, thought much, experienced much,

Yet would die rather than avow my fear
The Naples’ liquefaction may be false,
When set to happen by the palace-clock
According to the clouds or dinner-time.
I hear you recommend, I might at least
Eliminate, decrassify my faith
Since I adopt it; keeping what I must
And leaving what I can—such points as this.
I won’t—that is, I can’t throw one away.
Supposing there’s no truth in what I hold
About the need of trial to man’s faith,
Still, when you bid me purify the same,
To such a process I discern no end.

Clearing off one excrescence to see two,
There’s ever a next in size, now grown as big,
That meets the knife: I cut and cut again!
First cut the Liquefaction, what comes last
But Fichte’s clever cut at God himself?
Experimentalize on sacred things!
I trust nor hand nor eye nor heart nor brain
To stop betimes: they all get drunk alike.
The first step, I am master not to take.

You’d find the cutting-process to your taste
As much as leaving growths of lies unpruned,
Nor see more danger in it,—you retort.
Your taste’s worth mine; but my taste proves more wise

When we consider that the steadfast hold
On the extreme end of the chain of faith
Gives all the advantage, makes the difference
With the rough purblind mass we seek to rule:
We are their lords, or they are free of us,
Just as we tighten or relax our hold.
So, other matters equal, we’ll revert
To the first problem—which, if solved my way
And thrown into the balance, turns the scale—
How we may lead a comfortable life,
How suit our luggage to the cabin’s size.

Of course you are remarking all this time
How narrowly and grossly I view life,
Respect the creature-comforts, care to rule
The masses, and regard complacently
“The cabin,” in our old phrase. Well, I do.
I act for, talk for, live for this world now,
As this world prizes action, life and talk:
No prejudice to what next world may prove,
Whose new laws and requirements, my best pledge

To observe then, is that I observe these now,
Shall do hereafter what I do meanwhile.
Let us concede (gratuitously though)
Next life relieves the soul of body, yields
Pure spiritual enjoyment: well, my friend,
Why lose this life i’ the meantime, since its use
May be to make the next life more intense?

Do you know, I have often had a dream
(Work it up in your next month’s article)
Of man’s poor spirit in its progress, still

Losing true life for ever and a day
 Through ever trying to be and ever being—
 In the evolution of successive spheres—
Before its actual sphere and place of life,
 Halfway into the next, which having reached,
 It shoots with corresponding foolery
 Halfway into the next still, on and off!
 As when a traveller, bound from North to South,
 Scouts fur in Russia: what's its use in France?
 In France spurns flannel: where's its need in Spain?
 In Spain drops cloth, too cumbrous for Algiers!
 Linen goes next, and last the skin itself,
 A superfluity at Timbuctoo.
 When, through his journey, was the fool at ease?
 I'm at ease now, friend; worldly in this world,
 I take and like its way of life; I think
 My brothers, who administer the means,
 Live better for my comfort—that's good too;
 And God, if he pronounce upon such life,
 Approves my service, which is better still.
 If he keep silence,—why, for you or me
 Or that brute beast pulled-up in to-day's
 "Times,"
 What odds is't, save to ourselves, what life
 we lead?

You meet me at this issue: you declare,—
 All special-pleading done with—truth is truth,
 And justifies itself by undreamed ways.
 You don't fear but it's better, if we doubt,
 To say so, act up to our truth perceived
 However feebly. Do then,—act away!
 'Tis there I'm on the watch for you. How one acts
 Is, both of us agree, our chief concern:
 And how you'll act is what I fain would see
 If, like the candid person you appear,
 You dare to make the most of your life's scheme
 As I of mine, live up to its full law
 Since there's no higher law that counter-checks.
 Put natural religion to the test

You've just demolished the revealed with—quick,
 Down to the root of all that checks your will
 All prohibition to lie, kill and thief,
 Or even to be an atheistic priest!
 Suppose a pricking to incontinence—
 Philosophers deduce you chastity
 Or shame, from just the fact that at the first Whoso embraced a woman in the field,
 Threw club down and forewent his brains
 beside,
 So, stood a ready victim in the reach
 Of any brother savage, club in hand;
 Hence saw the use of going out of sight
 In wood or cave to prosecute his loves:
 I read this in a French book t'other day.
 Does law so analysed coerce you much?
 Oh, men spin clouds of fuzz where matters end,
 But you who reach where the first thread begins,
 You'll soon cut that!—which means you can,
 but won't,
 Through certain instincts, blind, unreasoned
 out,
 You dare not set aside, you can't tell why,
 But there they are, and so you let them rule.
 Then, friend, you seem as much a slave as I.
 A liar, conscious coward and hypocrite,
 Without the good the slave expects to get,
 In case he has a master after all!
 You own your instincts? why, what else do I,
 Who want, am made for, and must have a
 God
 Ere I can be aught, do aught?—no mere name Want, but the true thing with what proves its truth,
 To wit, a relation from that thing to me,
 Touching from head to foot—which touch I
 feel,
 And with it take the rest, this life of ours!
 I live my life here; yours you dare not live.

 —Not as I state it, who (you please subjoin)
 Disfigure such a life and call it names.
 While, to your mind, remains another way
 For simple men: knowledge and power have rights,
 But ignorance and weakness have rights too.

There needs no crucial effort to find truth
 If here or there or anywhere about :
 We ought to turn each side, try hard and see,
 And if we can't, be glad we've earned at least
 The right, by one laborious proof the more,
 To graze in peace earth's pleasant pasturage.
 Men are not angels, neither are they brutes :
 Something we may see, all we cannot see.
 What need of lying? I say, I see all,
 And swear to each detail the most minute
 In what I think a Pan's face—you, mere cloud :
 I swear I hear him speak and see him wink,
 For fear, if once I drop the emphasis,
 Mankind may doubt there's any cloud at all.
 You take the simple life—ready to see,
 Willing to see (for no cloud's worth a face)—
 And leaving quiet what no strength can move,
 And which, who bids you move? who has the right?

I bid you; but you are God's sheep, not mine :
 " Pastor est tui Dominus." You find
 In this the pleasant pasture of our life
 Much you may eat without the least offence,
 Much you don't eat because your maw objects,
 Much you would eat but that your fellow-
 flock

Open great eyes at you and even butt,
 And thereupon you like your mates so well
 You cannot please yourself, offending them ;
 Though when they seem exorbitantly sheep,
 You weigh your pleasure with their butts and bleats

And strike the balance. Sometimes certain fears

Restrain you, real checks since you find them so ;

Sometimes you please yourself and nothing
 checks :

And thus you graze through life with not one lie,

And like it best.

But do you, in truth's name?

If so, you beat—which means you are not I—
 Who needs must make earth mine and feed my fill

Not simply unbutted at, unbickered with,
 But motioned to the velvet of the sword

By those obsequious wethers' very selves.
 Look at me, sir ; my age is double yours :
 At yours, I knew beforehand, so enjoyed,
 What now I should be—as, permit the word,
 I pretty well imagine your whole range
 And stretch of tether twenty years to come.
 We both have minds and bodies much alike :
 In truth's name, don't you want my bishopric,
 My daily bread, my influence and my state?
 You're young. I'm old ; you must be old one day ;

Will you find then, as I do hour by hour,
 Women their lovers kneel to, who cut curls
 From your fat lap-dog's ear to grace a brooch—
 Dukes, who petition just to kiss your ring—
 With much beside you know or may conceive?
 Suppose we die to-night : well, here am I,
 Such were my gains, life bore this fruit to me,
 While writing all the same my articles
 On music, poetry, the fictile vase
 Found at Albano, chess, Anacreon's Greek.
 But you—the highest honour in your life,
 The thing you'll crown yourself with, all your
 days,

Is—dining here and drinking this last glass
 I pour you out in sign of amity
 Before we part for ever. Of your power
 And social influence, worldly worth in short.
 Judge what's my estimation by the fact,
 I do not condescend to enjoin, beseech,
 Hint secrecy on one of all these words !
 You're shrewd and know that should you publish one

The world would brand the lie—my enemies
 first,

Who'd sneer—"the bishop's an arch-hypocrite

"And knave perhaps, but not so frank a fool."

Whereas I should not dare for both my ears Breathe one such syllable, smile one such
 smile,

Before the chaplain who reflects myself—
 My shade's so much more potent than your flesh.

What's your reward, self-abnegating friend?
 Stood you confessed of those exceptional
 And privileged great natures that dwarf mine—

And having bought, not cabin-furniture
But settler's-implements (enough for three)
And started for Australia—there, I hope,
By this time he has tested his first plough,
And studied his last chapter of St. John.

CLEON.

“As certain also of your own poets have said”—

[An Imaginary person. The poet quoted by
St. Paul was Aratus, a native of Tarsus.]

CLEON the poet (from the sprinkled isles,
Lily on lily, that o'erlace the sea,
And laugh their pride when the light wave lisps “Greece”)—
To Protus in his Tyranny: much health!

They give thy letter to me, even now:
I read and seem as if I heard thee speak.
The master of thy galley still unlades
Gift after gift; they block my court at last
And pile themselves along its portico
Royal with sunset, like a thought of thee:
And one white she-slave from the group dispersed
Of black and white slaves (like the chequer-
work
Pavement, at once my nation's work and gift,
Now covered with this settle-down of doves),
One lyric woman, in her crocus vest
Woven of sea-wools, with her two white hands
Commends to me the strainer and the cup
Thy lip hath bettered ere it blesses mine.

Well-counselled, king, in thy munificence!
For so shall men remark, in such an act
Of love for him whose song gives life its joy,
Thy recognition of the use of life;
Nor call thy spirit barely adequate
To help on life in straight ways, broad enough
For vulgar souls, by ruling and the rest.
Thou, in the daily building of thy tower,—
Whether in fierce and sudden spasms of toil,
Or through dim lulls of unapparent growth,
Or when the general work 'mid good acclaim

Climbed with the eye to cheer the architect,— Didst ne'er engage in work for mere work's
sake—

Hadst ever in thy heart the luring hope
Of some eventual rest a-top of it,
Whence, all the tumult of the building hushed,
Thou first of men mightst look out to the East:

The vulgar saw thy tower, thou sawest the sun.
For this, I promise on thy festival
To pour libation, looking o'er the sea,
Making this slave narrate thy fortunes, speak
Thy great words, and describe thy royal face—
Wishing thee wholly where Zeus lives the most,
Within the eventual element of calm.

Thy letter's first requirement meets me here.
It is as thou hast heard: in one short life
I, Cleon, have effected all those things
Thou wonderingly dost enumerate.
That epos on thy hundred plates of gold
Is mine,—and also mine the little chant,
So sure to rise from every fishing-bark
When, lights at prow, the seamen haul their net.

The image of the sun-god on the phare,
Men turn from the sun's self to see, is mine:
The Pœcile,¹ o'er-storied its whole length,
As thou didst hear, with painting, is mine too.
I know the true proportions of a man
And woman also, not observed before;
And I have written three books on the soul,
Proving absurd all written hitherto,
And putting us to ignorance again.
Formusic,—why, I have combined the moods,
Inventing one. In brief, all arts are mine;
Thus much the people know and recognize,
Throughout our seventeen islands. Marvel
not.

We of these latter days, with greater mind
Than our forerunners, since more composite,
Look not so great, beside their simple way,
To a judge who only sees one way at once,
One mind-point and no other at a time,—
Compares the small part of a man of us
With some whole man of the heroic age,

Great in his way—not ours, nor meant for ours.
 And ours is greater, had we skill to know :
 For, what we call this life of men on earth,
 This sequence of the soul's achievements here
 Being, as I find much reason to conceive,
 Intended to be viewed eventually
 As a great whole, not analyzed to parts,
 But each part having reference to all,—
 How shall a certain part, pronounced complete,

Endure effacement by another part ?
 Was the thing done?—then, what's to do
 again ?

See, in the chequered pavement opposite,
 Suppose the artist made a perfect rhomb,
 And next a lozenge, then a trapezoid—
 He did not overlay them, superimpose
 The new upon the old and blot it out,
 But laid them on a level in his work,
 Making at last a picture ; there it lies.
 So, first the perfect separate forms were made,
 The portions of mankind ; and after, so,
 Occurred the combination of the same.

For where had been a progress, otherwise ?
 Mankind, made up of all the single men,—
 In such a synthesis the labour ends.

Now mark me ! those divine men of old time
 Have reached, thou sayest well, each at one point

The outside verge that rounds our faculty ;
 And where they reached, who can do more than reach ?

It takes but little water just to touch
 At some one point the inside of a sphere,
 And, as we turn the sphere, touch all the rest
 In due succession : but the finer air
 Which not so palpably nor obviously,
 Though no less universally, can touch
 The whole circumference of that emptied
 sphere,

Fills it more fully than the water did ;
 Holds thrice the weight of water in itself
 Resolved into a subtler element.

And yet the vulgar call the sphere first full
 Up to the visible height—and after, void ;
 Not knowing air's more hidden properties.
 And thus our soul, misknown, cries out to Zeus

To vindicate his purpose in our life :
 Why stay we on the earth unless to grow ?
 Long since, I imaged, wrote the fiction out,
 That he or other god descended here
 And, once for all, showed simultaneously
 What, in its nature, never can be shown,
 Piecemeal or in succession ;—showed, I say,
 The worth both absolute and relative
 Of all his children from the birth of time,
 His instruments for all appointed work.
 I now go on to image,—might we hear
 The judgment which should give the due to each,

Show where the labour lay and where the ease,
 And prove Zeus' self, the latent everywhere !
 This is a dream :—but no dream, let us hope,
 That years and days, the summers and the
 springs,

Follow each other with unwaning powers.
 The grapes which dye thy wine are richer far,
 Through culture, than the wild wealth of the rock ;

The suave plum than the savage-tasted drupe ;
 The pastured honey-bee drops choicer sweet ;
 The flowers turn double, and the leaves turn
 flowers ;

That young and tender crescent-moon, thy slave,

Sleeping above her robe as buoyed by clouds,
 Refines upon the women of my youth.

What, and the soul alone deteriorates ?

I have not chanted verse like Homer, no—
 Nor swept string like Terpander, no—nor carved

And painted men like Phidias and his friend :
 I am not great as they are, point by point.

But I have entered into sympathy
 With these four, running these into one soul,
 Who, separate, ignored each other's art.
 Say, is it nothing that I know them all ?
 The wild flower was the larger ; I have dashed

Rose-blood upon its petals, pricked its cup's
 Honey with wine, and driven its seed to fruit,
 And show a better flower if not so large :
 I stand myself. Refer this to the gods
 Whose gift alone it is ! which, shall I dare
 (All pride apart) upon the absurd pretext

That such a gift by chance lay in my hand,
Discourse of lightly or depreciate?
It might have fallen to another's hand : what
then?
I pass too surely : let at least truth stay !

And next, of what thou followest on to ask.
This being with me as I declare, O king,
My works, in all these varicoloured kinds,
So done by me, accepted so by men—
Thou askest, if (my soul thus in men's hearts)
I must not be accounted to attain
The very crown and proper end of life?
Inquiring thence how, now life closeth up,
I face death with success in my right hand :
Whether I fear death less than dost thyself
The fortunate of men? "For" (writest thou)
"Thou leavest much behind, while I leave
nought.
"Thy life stays, in the poems men shall sing,
"The pictures men shall study ; while my
life,
"Complete and whole now in its power and
joy,
"Dies altogether with my brain and arm,
"Is lost indeed ; since, what survives myself?
"The brazen statue to o'erlook my grave,
"Set on the promontory which I named.
"And that—some supple courtier of my heir
"Shall use its robed and sceptred arm, perhaps,
"To fix the rope to, which best drags it down.
"I go then : triumph thou, who dost not go !"

Nay, thou art worthy of hearing my whole
mind.

Is this apparent, when thou turn'st to muse
Upon the scheme of earth and man in chief,
That admiration grows as knowledge grows?
That imperfection means perfection hid,
Reserved in part, to grace the after-time?
If, in the morning of philosophy,
Ere aught had been recorded, nay perceived,
Thou, with the light now in thee, couldst have looked
On all earth's tenantry, from worm to bird,
Ere man, her last, appeared upon the stage—
Thou wouldst have seen them perfect, and deduced

The perfectness of others yet unseen.
Conceding which,—had Zeus then questioned
thee
"Shall I go on a step, improve on this,
"Do more for visible creatures than is done?"
Thou wouldst have answered, "Ay, by making each
"Grow conscious in himself—by that alone.
"All's perfect else : the shell sucks fast the
rock,
"The fish strikes through the sea, the snake
both swims
"And slides, forth range the beasts, the birds take flight,
"Till life's mechanics can no further go—
"And all this joy in natural life is put
"Like fire from off thy finger into each,
"So exquisitely perfect is the same.
"But 'tis pure fire, and they mere matter are :
"It has them, not they it : and so I choose
"For man, thy last premeditated work
"(If I might add a glory to the scheme)
"That a third thing should stand apart from
both,
"A quality arise within his soul,
"Which, intro-active, made to supervise
"And feel the force it has, may view itself,
"And so be happy." Man might live at first
The animal life : but is there nothing more?
In due time, let him critically learn
How he lives ; and, the more he gets to know
Of his own life's adaptabilities,
The more joy-giving will his life become.
Thus man, who hath this quality, is best.

But thou, king, hadst more reasonably said :
"Let progress end at once,—man make no step
"Beyond the natural man, the better beast,
"Using his senses, not the sense of sense."
In man there's failure, only since he left
The lower and unconscious forms of life.
We called it an advance, the rendering plain Man's spirit might grow conscious of man's life,
And, by new lore so added to the old,
Take each step higher over the brute's head.
This grew the only life, the pleasure-house,
Watch-tower and treasure-fortress of the soul,
Which whole surrounding flats of natural life

The horror quickening still from year to year,
The consummation coming past escape
When I shall know most, and yet least enjoy—
When all my works wherein I prove my worth, Being present still to mock me in men's mouths,

Alive still, in the praise of such as thou,
I, I the feeling, thinking, acting man,
The man who loved his life so over-much,
Sleep in my urn. It is so horrible,
I dare at times imagine to my need
Some future state revealed to us by Zeus,
Unlimited in capability
For joy, as this is in desire for joy,
—To seek which, the joy-hunger forces us :
That, stung by straitness of our life, made strait

On purpose to make prized the life at large—
Freed by the throbbing impulse we call death,
We burst there as the worm into the fly,
Who, while a worm still, wants his wings.
But no !

Zeus has not yet revealed it ; and alas,
He must have done so, were it possible !

Live long and happy, and in that thought
die :

Glad for what was ! Farewell. And for the
rest,

I cannot tell thy messenger aright
Where to deliver what he bears of thine
To one called Paulus ; we have heard his fame

Indeed, if Christus be not one with him—
I know not, nor am troubled much to know.
Thou canst not think a mere barbarian Jew,
As Paulus proves to be, one circumcized,
Hath access to a secret shut from us ?
Thou wrongest our philosophy, O king,
In stooping to inquire of such an one,
As if his answer could impose at all !
He writeth, doth he ? well, and he may write.

Oh, the Jew findeth scholars ! certain slaves
Who touched on this same isle, preached him and Christ ;

And (as I gathered from a bystander)
Their doctrine could be held by no sane man.

RUDEL TO THE LADY OF TRIPOLI.

I.

I KNOW a Mount, the gracious Sun perceives
First, when he visits, last, too, when he leaves
The world ; and, vainly favoured, it repays
The day-long glory of his steadfast gaze
By no change of its large calm front of snow.
And underneath the Mount, a Flower I
know,

He cannot have perceived, that changes ever
At his approach ; and, in the lost endeavour
To live his life, has parted, one by one,
With all a flower's true graces, for the grace
Of being but a foolish mimic sun,
With ray-like florets round a disk-like face.
Men nobly call by many a name the Mount
As over many a land of theirs its large
Calm front of snow like a triumphal targe
Is reared, and still with old names, fresh names vie,

Each to its proper praise and own account :
Men call the Flower, the Sunflower, sportively.

II.

Oh, Angel of the East, one, one gold look Across the waters to this twilight nook,
—The far sad waters, Angel, to this nook !

III.

Dear Pilgrim, art thou for the East indeed ?
Go !—saying ever as thou dost proceed,
That I, French Rudel, choose for my device
A sunflower outspread like a sacrifice
Before its idol. See ! These inexpert
And hurried fingers could not fail to hurt
The woven picture ; 'tis a woman's skill
Indeed ; but nothing baffled me, so, ill
Or well, the work is finished. Say, men feed
On songs I sing, and therefore bask the bees
On my flower's breast as on a platform broad :
But, as the flower's concern is not for these
But solely for the sun, so men applaud
In vain this Rudel, he not looking here
But to the East—the East ! Go, say this,
Pilgrim dear !

ONE WORD MORE.¹

TO E. B. B.

1855.

I.

THERE they are, my fifty men and women
Naming me the fifty poems finished !
Take them, Love, the book and me together :
Where the heart lies, let the brain lie also.

II.

Rafael made a century of sonnets,²
Made and wrote them in a certain volume
Dinted with the silver-pointed pencil
Else he only used to draw Madonnas :
These, the world might view—but one, the volume.

Who that one, you ask? Your heart instructs you.

Did she live and love it all her life-time?
Did she drop, his lady of the sonnets,³
Die, and let it drop beside her pillow
Where it lay in place of Rafael's glory,
Rafael's cheek so duteous and so loving—
Cheek, the world was wont to hail a painter's,
Rafael's cheek, her love had turned a poet's?

III.

You and I would rather read that volume,
(Taken to his beating bosom by it)
Lean and list the bosom-beats of Rafael,
Would we not? than wonder at Madonnas—
Her, San Sisto⁴ names, and Her, Foligno,⁵
Her, that visits Florence⁶ in a vision,
Her, that's left with lilies in the Louvre⁷—
Seen by us and all the world in circle.

¹ [Originally appended to the collection of Poems called "Men and Women," the greater portion of which has now been, more correctly, distributed under the other titles of this edition.—R. B.]

² There is no reason to believe this to be the fact.

³ La Fornarina.

⁴ In Dresden.

⁵ In the Vatican.

⁶ In the Pitti Palace.

⁷ La Belle Jardinière, in the Louvre.

IV.

You and I will never read that volume.⁸
Guido Reni, like his own eye's apple
Guarded long the treasure-book and loved it.
Guido Reni dying, all Bologna Cried, and the world cried too, "Ours, the treasure !"

Suddenly, as rare things will, it vanished.

V.

Dante once prepared to paint an angel :
Whom to please? You whisper "Beatrice."
While he mused and traced it and retraced it, (Peradventure with a pen corroded Still by drops of that hot ink he dipped for,
When, his left-hand i' the hair o' the wicked,
Back he held the brow and pricked its stigma,
Bit into the live man's flesh for parchment,
Loosed him, laughed to see the writing rankle,
Let the wretch go festering through Florence)—

Dante, who loved well because he hated,
Hated wickedness that hinders loving,
Dante standing, studying his angel,—
In there broke the folk of his Inferno.
Says he—"Certain people of importance"
(Such he gave his daily dreadful line to)
"Entered and would seize, forsooth, the poet."
Says the poet—"Then I stopped my painting."

VI.

You and I would rather see that angel,
Painted by the tenderness of Dante,
Would we not?—than read a fresh Inferno.

VII.

You and I will never see that picture.
While he mused on love and Beatrice,
While he softened o'er his outlined angel,
In they broke, those "people of importance :"
We and Bice⁹ bear the loss for ever.

VIII.

What of Rafael's sonnets, Dante's picture?
This : no artist lives and loves, that longs not
Once, and only once, and for one only,

⁸ Really a book of drawings, not sonnets.

⁹ Beatrice.

(Ah, the prize !) to find his love a language
Fit and fair and simple and sufficient—
Using nature that's an art to others,
Not, this one time, art that's turned his nature.

Ay, of all the artists living, loving,
None but would forego his proper dowry,—
Does he paint? he fain would write a poem,—
Does he write? he fain would paint a picture,
Put to proof art alien to the artist's,
Once, and only once, and for one only,
So to be the man and leave the artist,
Gain the man's joy, miss the artist's sorrow.

IX.

Wherefore? Heaven's gift takes earth's abatment !

He who smites the rock and spreads the water,

Bidding drink and live a crowd beneath him,
Even he, the minute makes immortal,
Proves, perchance, but mortal in the minute,
Desecrates, belike, the deed in doing.

While he smites, how can he but remember,
So he smote before, in such a peril,
When they stood and mocked—" Shall smiting help us?"

When they drank and sneered—" A stroke is easy !"

When they wiped their mouths and went their journey,

Throwing him for thanks—" But drought was pleasant."

Thus old memories mar the actual triumph ;
Thus the doing savours of disrelish ;
Thus achievement lacks a gracious somewhat ;

O'er-importuned brows becloud the mandate,
Carelessness or consciousness—the gesture.
For he bears an ancient wrong about him,
Sees and knows again those phalanxed faces,
Hears, yet one time more, the 'customed prelude—

" How shouldst thou, of all men, smite, and save us?"

Guesses what is like to prove the sequel—

" Egypt's flesh-pots—nay, the drought was better."

X.

Oh, the crowd must have emphatic warrant !
Theirs, the Sinai-forehead's cloven brilliance,
Right-arm's rod-sweep, tongue's imperial fiat.
Never dares the man put off the prophet.

XI.

Did he love one face from out the thousands,
(Were she Jethro's daughter, white and wisely,
Were she but the Æthiopian bondslave,)
He would envy yon dumb patient camel,
Keeping a reserve of scanty water
Meant to save his own life in the desert ;
Ready in the desert to deliver
(Kneeling down to let his breast be opened)
Hoard and life together for his mistress.

XII.

I shall never, in the years remaining,
Paint you pictures, no, nor carve you statues.
Make you music that should all-express me :
So it seems : I stand on my attainment.
This of verse alone, one life allows me ;
Verse and nothing else have I to give you.
Other heights in other lives, God willing :
All the gifts from all the heights, your own.
Love !

XIII.

Yet a semblance of resource avails us—
Shade so finely touched, love's sense must seize it.

Take these lines, look lovingly and nearly,
Lines I write the first time and the last time.
He who works in fresco, steals a hair-brush.
Curbs the liberal hand, subservient proudly,
Cramps his spirit, crowds its all in little,
Makes a strange art of an art familiar,
Fills his lady's missal-marge with flowerets.
He who blows thro' bronze, may breathe
thro' silver,
Fitly serenade a slumbrous princess.
He who writes, may write for once as I do.

XIV.

Love, you saw me gather men and women.
Live or dead or fashioned by my fancy,
Enter each and all, and use their service,
Speak from every mouth,—the speech, a poem.

IN A BALCONY.

1855.

IN A BALCONY.

PERSONS.

NORBERT.

CONSTANCE.

THE QUEEN.

CONSTANCE and NORBERT.

Norbert. Now !

Constance. Not now !

Norbert. Give me them again, those hands :

Put them upon my forehead, how it throbs !
Press them before my eyes, the fire comes
through !

You cruellest, you dearest in the world,
Let me ! The Queen must grant whate'er I ask—

How can I gain you and not ask the Queen ?
There she stays waiting for me, here stand
you ;

Some time or other this was to be asked ;
Now is the one time—what I ask, I gain :
Let me ask now, Love !

Constance. Do, and ruin us.

Norbert. Let it be now, Love ! All my soul breaks forth.

How I do love you ! Give my love its way !
A man can have but one life and one death,
One heaven, one hell. Let me fulfil my fate—
Grant me my heaven now ! Let me know you mine,

Prove you mine, write my name upon your
brow,

Hold you and have you, and then die away,
If God please, with completion in my soul !

Constance. I am not yours then ? How content this man !

I am not his—who change into himself,
Have passed into his heart and beat its beats,

Who give my hands to him, my eyes, my
hair,

Give all that was of me away to him—

So well, that now, my spirit turned his own,
Takes part with him against the woman here,

Bids him not stumble at so mere a straw

As caring that the world be cognizant

How he loves her and how she worships him.

You have this woman, not as yet that world.

Go on, I bid, nor stop to care for me

By saving what I cease to care about,

The courtly name and pride of circumstance—

The name you'll pick up and be cumbered
with

Just for the poor parade's sake, nothing
more ;

Just that the world may slip from under you—

Just that the world may cry “ So much for
him—

“ The man predestined to the heap of crowns:

“ There goes his chance of winning one, at least !”

Norbert. The world !

Constance. You love it. Love me quite as well,

And see if I shall pray for this in vain !

Why must you ponder what it knows or thinks ?

Norbert. You pray for—what, in vain ?

Constance. Oh my heart's heart.

How I do love you, Norbert ! That is right .

But listen, or I take my hands away !

You say, “ let it be now ” : you would go now

And tell the Queen, perhaps six steps from us.

You love me—so you do, thank God !

Norbert. Thank God !

Constance. Yes, Norbert,—but you fair
would tell your love,

And, what succeeds the telling, ask of her

My hand. Now take this rose and look at it.

Listening to me. You are the minister,

The Queen's first favourite, nor without a cause.

To-night completes your wonderful year's-
work

(This palace-feast is held to celebrate)

Made memorable by her life's success,

The junction of two crowns, on her sole head,

Her house had only dreamed of anciently :

That this mere dream is grown a stable truth,

To-night's feast makes authentic. Whose the praise ?

Whose genius, patience, energy, achieved

What turned the many heads and broke the hearts ?

You are the fate, your minute's in the heaven.

Next comes the Queen's turn. "Name your own reward !"

With leave to clench the past, chain the to-
come,

Put out an arm and touch and take the sun

And fix it ever full-faced on your earth,

Possess yourself supremely of her life,—

You choose the single thing she will not grant ;

Nay, very declaration of which choice

Will turn the scale and neutralize your work :

At best she will forgive you, if she can.

You think I'll let you choose—her cousin's
hand ?

Norbert. Wait. First, do you retain your old belief

The Queen is generous,—nay, is just ?

Constance. There, there !

So men make women love them, while they
know

No more of women's hearts than . . . look
you here,

You that are just and generous beside,

Make it your own case ! For example now,

I'll say—I let you kiss me, hold my hands—

Why? do you know why? I'll instruct you,
then—

The kiss, because you have a name at court ;

This hand and this, that you may shut in each

A jewel, if you please to pick up such.

That's horrible? Apply it to the Queen—

Suppose I am the Queen to whom you speak :

"I was a nameless man ; you needed me :

"Why did I proffer you my aid? there stood

"A certain pretty cousin at your side.

"Why did I make such common cause with
you ?

"Access to her had not been easy else.

"You give my labour here abundant praise ?

"Faith, labour, which she overlooked, grew
play.

"How shall your gratitude discharge itself?

"Give me her hand !"

Norbert. And still I urge the same.

Is the Queen just? just—generous or no !

Constance. Yes, just. You love a rose ;
no harm in that :

But was it for the rose's sake or mine

You put it in your bosom? mine, you said—

Then, mine you still must say or else be false.

You told the Queen you served her for herself ;

If so, to serve her was to serve yourself,

She thinks, for all your unbelieving face !

I know her. In the hall, six steps from us,

One sees the twenty pictures ; there's a life

Better than life, and yet no life at all.

Conceive her born in such a magic dome,

Pictures all round her ! why, she sees the
world,

Can recognize its given things and facts,

The fight of giants or the feast of gods,

Sages in senate, beauties at the bath,

Chases and battles, the whole earth's display,

Landscape and sea-piece, down to flowers and fruit—

And who shall question that she knows them all,

In better semblance than the things outside ?

Yet bring into the silent gallery

Some live thing to contrast in breath and blood,

Some lion, with the painted lion there—

You think she'll understand composedly ?

—Say, "that's his fellow in the hunting-piece

"Yonder, I've turned to praise a hundred
times ?"

Not so. Her knowledge of our actual earth,

Its hopes and fears, concerns and sympathies,

Must be too far, too mediate, too unreal.

The real exists for us outside, not her :

How should it, with that life in these four walls—

That father and that mother, first to last

No father and no mother—friends, a heap,

Lovers, no lack—a husband in due time,
And every one of them alike a lie !
Things painted by a Rubens out of nought
Into what kindness, friendship, love should be ;
All better, all more grandiose than the life,
Only no life ; mere cloth and surface-paint,
You feel, while you admire. How should she feel ?

Yet now that she has stood thus fifty years
The sole spectator in that gallery,
You think to bring this warm real struggling
love

In to her of a sudden, and suppose She'll keep her state untroubled? Here's the truth—

She'll apprehend truth's value at a glance,
Prefer it to the pictured loyalty ?

You only have to say, "so men are made,
"For this they act ; the thing has many names,
"But this the right one : and now, Queen, be just !"

Your life slips back ; you lose her at the word :
You do not even for amends gain me.
He will not understand ; oh, Norbert, Norbert,
Do you not understand ?

Norbert. The Queen's the Queen :
I am myself—no picture, but alive
In every nerve and every muscle, here
At the palace-window o'er the people's street,
As she in the gallery where the pictures glow :
The good of life is precious to us both.
She cannot love ; what do I want with rule ?
When first I saw your face a year ago
I knew my life's good, my soul heard one voice—

"The woman yonder, there's no use of life
"But just to obtain her ! heap earth's woes in one

"And bear them—make a pile of all earth's joys

"And spurn them, as they help or help not
this ;

"Only, obtain her !" How was it to be ?
I found you were the cousin of the Queen ;
I must then serve the Queen to get to you.
No other way. Suppose there had been one,
And I, by saying prayers to some white star
With promise of my body and my soul,

Might gain you,—should I pray the star or no?
Instead, there was the Queen to serve ! I served,

Helped, did what other servants failed to do.
Neither she sought nor I declared my end.

Her good is hers, my recompense be mine,—
I therefore name you as that recompense.

She dreamed that such a thing could never be?
Let her wake now. She thinks there was more cause

In love of power, high fame, pure loyalty?
Perhaps she fancies men wear out their lives

Chasing such shades. Then, I've a fancy too ;
I worked because I want you with my soul :

I therefore ask your hand. Let it be now !

Constance. Had I not loved you from the very first,

Were I not yours, could we not steal out thus
So wickedly, so wildly, and so well,

You might become impatient. What's conceived

Of us without here, by the folk within?
Where are you now? immersed in cares of state—

Where am I now? intent on festal robes—
We two, embracing under death's spread
hand !

What was this thought for, what that scruple of yours

Which broke the council up?—to bring about
One minute's meeting in the corridor !

And then the sudden sleights, strange secrecies,

Complots inscrutable, deep telegraphs,
Long-planned chance-meetings, hazards of a
look,

"Does she know? does she not know? saved or lost?"

A year of this compression's ecstasy
All goes for nothing ! you would give this up
For the old way, the open way, the world's.
His way who beats, and his who sells his wife !

What tempts you?—their notorious happiness Makes you ashamed of ours? The best you'll gain

Will be—the Queen grants all that you require,

There lived a lavish soul until it starved,
Debarred of healthy food. Look to the soul—
Pity that, stoop to that, ere you begin (The true man's-way) on justice and your rights,

Exactions and acquittance of the past !
Begin so—see what justice she will deal !
We women hate a debt as men a gift.
Suppose her some poor keeper of a school
Whose business is to sit thro' summer months
And dole out children leave to go and play, Herself superior to such lightness—she
In the arm-chair's state and pædagogic pomp—
To the life, the laughter, sun and youth
outside :

We wonder such a face looks black on us ?
I do not bid you wake her tenderness,
(That were vain truly—none is left to wake)
But let her think her justice is engaged
To take the shape of tenderness, and mark
If she'll not coldly pay its warmest debt !
Does she love me, I ask you ? not a whit :
Yet, thinking that her justice was engaged
To help a kinswoman, she took me up—
Did more on that bare ground than other loves
Would do on greater argument. For me,
I have no equivalent of such cold kind
To pay her with, but love alone to give
If I give anything. I give her love :
I feel I ought to help her, and I will.
So, for her sake, as yours, I tell you twice
That women hate a debt as men a gift.
If I were you, I could obtain this grace—
Could lay the whole I did to love's account,
Nor yet be very false as courtiers go—
Declaring my success was recompense ;
It would be so, in fact : what were it else ?
And then, once loose her generosity,—
Oh, how I see it !—then, were I but you,
To turn it, let it seem to move itself,
And make it offer what I really take,
Accepting just, in the poor cousin's hand,
Her value as the next thing to the Queen's—Since none love Queens directly, none dare
that,

And a thing's shadow or a name's mere echo
Suffices those who miss the name and thing !
You pick up just a ribbon she has worn,

To keep in proof how near her breath you
came.

Say, I'm so near I seem a piece of her—
Ask for me that way—(oh, you understand)
You'd find the same gift yielded with a grace,
Which, if you make the least show to extort . . .

—You'll see ! and when you have ruined
both of us,

Dissertate on the Queen's ingratitude !

Norbert. Then, if I turn it that way, you consent ?

'Tis not my way ; I have more hope in truth :
Still, if you won't have truth—why, this
indeed,

Were scarcely false, as I'd express the sense.
Will you remain here ?

Constance. O best heart of mine,
How I have loved you ! then, you take my
way ?

Are mine as you have been her minister,
Work out my thought, give it effect for me,
Paint plain my poor conceit and make it serve ?
I owe that withered woman everything—Life, fortune, you, remember ! Take my part—

Help me to pay her ! Stand upon your rights ?

You, with my rose, my hands, my heart on
you ?

Your rights are mine—you have no rights but
mine.

Norbert. Remain here. How you know
me !

Constance. Ah, but still—

[He breaks from her : she remains.

Dance-music from within.

Enter the QUEEN.

Queen. Constance ? She is here as he said. Speak quick !

Is it so ? Is it true or false ? One word !

Constance. True.

Queen. Mercifullest Mother, thanks to thee !

Constance. Madam ?

Queen. I love you, Constance, from my soul.

Now say once more, with any words you will,
'Tis true, all true, as true as that I speak.

Constance. Why should you doubt it?

Queen. Ah, why doubt?
why doubt?

Dear, make me see it! Do you see it so?
None see themselves; another sees them best.
You say "why doubt it?"—you see him and me.
It is because the Mother has such grace
That if we had but faith—wherein we fail—
Whate'er we yearn for would be granted us;
Yet still we let our whims prescribe despair,
Our fancies thwart and cramp our will and
power,

And while, accepting life, abjure its use.
Constance, I had abjured the hope of love
And being loved, as truly as yon palm
The hope of seeing Egypt from that plot.

Constance. Heaven!

Queen. But it was so, Constance, it was so!

Men say—or do men say it? fancies say—
"Stop here, your life is set, you are grown old.
"Too late—no love for you, too late for
love—

"Leave love to girls. Be queen: let Constance love."

One takes the hint—half meets it like a child,
Ashamed at any feelings that oppose.

"Oh love, true, never think of love again!

"I am a queen: I rule, not love forsooth."

So it goes on; so a face grows like this,
Hair like this hair, poor arms as lean as
these,

Till,—nay, it does not end so, I thank God!

Constance. I cannot understand—

Queen. The happier you!

Constance, I know not how it is with men:
For women (I am a woman now like you)

There is no good of life but love—but love!

What else looks good, is some shade flung from love;

Love gilds it, gives it worth. Be warned by me,

Never you cheat yourself one instant! Love,

Give love, ask only love, and leave the rest!

O Constance, how I love you!

Constance.

I love you.

Queen. I do believe that all is come through
you.

I took you to my heart to keep it warm
When the last chance of love seemed dead in
me;

I thought your fresh youth warmed my withered heart.

Oh, I am very old now, am I not?

Not so! it is true and it shall be true!

Constance. Tell it me: let me judge if true or false.

Queen. Ah, but I fear you! you will look at me

And say, "she's old, she's grown unlovely
quite

"Who ne'er was beauteous: men want beauty
still."

Well, so I feared—the curse! so I felt sure!

Constance. Be calm. And now you feel not sure, you say?

Queen. Constance, he came,—the coming was not strange—

Do not I stand and see men come and go?

I turned a half-look from my pedestal

Where I grow marble—"one young man the
more!

"He will love some one; that is nought to
me:

"What would he with my marble stateliness?"
Yet this seemed somewhat worse than heretofore;

The man more gracious, youthful, like a
god,

And I still older, with less flesh to change—

We two those dear extremes that long to touch.

It seemed still harder when he first began
To labour at those state-affairs, absorbed
The old way for the old end—interest.

Oh, to live with a thousand beating hearts

Around you, swift eyes, serviceable hands,

Professing they've no care but for your cause,
Thought but to help you, love but for yourself,—

And you the marble statue all the time

They praise and point at as preferred to life,

Yet leave for the first breathing woman's
smile,

First dancer's, gipsy's or street baladine's !¹
 Why, how I have ground my teeth to hear men's speech
 Stifled for fear it should alarm my ear,
 Their gait subdued lest step should startle me,
 Their eyes declined, such queendom to
 respect,
 Their hands alert, such treasure to preserve,
 While not a man of them broke rank and spoke,
 Wrote me a vulgar letter all of love,
 Or caught my hand and pressed it like a hand !
 There have been moments, if the sentinel
 Lowering his halbert to salute the queen,
 Had flung it brutally and clasped my knees,
 I would have stooped and kissed him with
 my soul.

Constance. Who could have comprehended?

Queen. Ay, who—who?

Why, no one, Constance, but this one who did.

Not they, not you, not I. Even now perhaps It comes too late—would you but tell the
 truth.

Constance. I wait to tell it.

Queen. Well, you see, he came,
 Outfaced the others, did a work this year
 Exceeds in value all was ever done,
 You know—it is not I who say it—all Say it. And so (a second pang and worse)
 I grew aware not only of what he did,
 But why so wondrously. Oh, never work
 Like his was done for work's ignoble sake—
 Souls need a finer aim to light and lure !
 I felt, I saw, he loved—loved somebody.
 And Constance, my dear Constance, do you
 know,

I did believe this while 'twas you he loved.

Constance. Me, madam?

Queen. It did seem to me, your face Met him where'er he looked : and whom but
 you

Was such a man to love? It seemed to me,
 You saw he loved you, and approved his love,
 And both of you were in intelligence.
 You could not loiter in that garden, step

Into this balcony, but I straight was stung
 And forced to understand. It seemed so true,
 So right, so beautiful, so like you both,
 That all this work should have been done by
 him

Not for the vulgar hope of recompense,
 But that at last—suppose, some night like
 this—

Borne on to claim his due reward of me,
 He might say "Give her hand and pay me
 so."

And I (O Constance, you shall love me now !)
 I thought, surmounting all the bitterness,
 —"And he shall have it. I will make her blest,
 "My flower of youth, my woman's self that
 was,

"My happiest woman's self that might have
 been !

"These two shall have their joy and leave me here."

Yes—yes !

Constance. Thanks !

Queen. And the word was on my lips
 When he burst in upon me. I looked to hear
 A mere calm statement of his just desire
 For payment of his labour. When—O heaven,
 How can I tell you? lightning on my eyes
 And thunder in my ears proved that first word
 Which told 'twas love of me, of me, did all—
 He loved me—from the first step to the last,
 Loved me !

Constance. You hardly saw, scarce heard him speak
 Of love : what if you should mistake?

Queen. No, no—
 No mistake ! Ha, there shall be no mistake !
 He had not dared to hint the love he felt—
 You were my reflex—(how I understood !)
 He said you were the ribbon I had worn,
 He kissed my hand, he looked into my eyes,
 And love, love came at end of every phrase.
 Love is begun ; this much is come to pass :
 The rest is easy. Constance, I am yours !
 I will learn, I will place my life on you,
 Teach me but how to keep what I have won !
 Am I so old? This hair was early grey ;
 But joy ere now has brought hair brown again.
 And joy will bring the cheek's red back, I feel.

'Twere best thus ordered. I am thankful now,
Mute, passive, acquiescent. I receive,
And bless God simply, or should almost fear
To walk so smoothly to my ends at last.
Why, how I baffle obstacles, spurn fate!
How strong I am! Could Norbert see me
now!

Constance. Let me consider. It is all too
strange.

Queen. You, Constance, learn of me; do you, like me!

You are young, beautiful: my own, best girl,
You will have many lovers, and love one—
Light hair, not hair like Norbert's, to suit
yours:

Taller than he is, since yourself are tall.

Love him, like me! Give all away to him;
Think never of yourself; throw by your pride,
Hope, fear,—your own good as you saw it once,
And love him simply for his very self.

Remember, I (and what am I to you?)

Would give up all for one, leave throne, lose
life,

Do all but just unlove him! He loves me.

Constance. He shall.

Queen. You, step inside my inmost heart!

Give me your own heart: let us have one heart!

I'll come to you for counsel; "this he says,
"This he does; what should this amount to,
pray?

"Beseech you, change it into current coin!

"Is that worth kisses? Shall I please him
there?"

And then we'll speak in turn of you—what else?

Your love, according to your beauty's worth,
For you shall have some noble love, all gold:
Whom choose you? we will get him at your choice.

—Constance, I leave you. Just a minute since,
I felt as I must die or be alone

Breathing my soul into an ear like yours:

Now, I would face the world with my new life, Wear my new crown. I'll walk around the rooms,

And then come back and tell you how it feels.

How soon a smile of God can change the world!

How we are made for happiness—how work

Grows play, adversity a winning fight!

True, I have lost so many years: what then!

Many remain: God has been very good.

You, stay here! 'Tis as different from dreams.

From the mind's cold calm estimate of bliss,

As these stone statues from the flesh and blood.

The comfort thou hast caused mankind, God's moon!

[*She goes out, leaving CONSTANCE.
Dance-music from within.*

NORBERT enters.

Norbert. Well? we have but one minute and one word!

Constance. I am yours, Norbert!

Norbert. Yes, mine.

Constance. Not till now!

You were mine. Now I give myself to you.

Norbert. Constance?

Constance. Your own! I know the thriftier way

Of giving—haply, 'tis the wiser way.

Meaning to give a treasure, I might dole

Coin after coin out (each, as that were all,

With a new largess still at each despair)

And force you keep in sight the deed, preserve

Exhaustless till the end my part and yours,

My giving and your taking; both our joys

Dying together. Is it the wiser way?

I choose the simpler; I give all at once.

Know what you have to trust to, trade upon!

Use it, abuse it,—anything but think

Hereafter, "Had I known she loved me so,

'And what my means, I might have thriven
with it."

This is your means. I give you all myself.

Norbert. I take you and thank God.

Constance. Look on through years!

We cannot kiss, a second day like this;

Else were this earth no earth.

Norbert. With this day's heat

We shall go on through years of cold.

Constance. So, best!

—I try to see those years—I think I see.

You walk quick and new warmth comes; you look back

And lay all to the first glow—not sit down

For ever brooding on a day like this

While seeing enibers whiten and love die.
Yes, love lives best in its effect ; and mine,
Full in its own life, yearns to live in yours.

Norbert. Just so. I take and know you all at once.

Your soul is disengaged so easily,
Your face is there, I know you ; give me time,
Let me be proud and think you shall know me.
My soul is slower : in a life I roll
The minute out whereto you condense yours—
The whole slow circle round you I must move,
To be just you. I look to a long life
To decompose this minute, prove its worth.
'Tis the sparks' long succession one by one Shall show you, in the end, what fire was crammed

In that mere stone you struck : how could
you know,
If it lay ever unproved in your sight,
As now my heart lies? your own warmth would hide

Its coldness, were it cold.

Constance. But how prove, how?

Norbert. Prove in my life, you ask?

Constance. Quick, Norbert—how?

Norbert. That's easy told. I count life just a stuff

To try the soul's strength on, educe the man.
Who keeps one end in view makes all things
serve.

As with the body—he who hurls a lance
Or heaps up stone on stone, shows strength alike :

So must I seize and task all means to prove
And show this soul of mine, you crown as yours,
And justify us both.

Constance. Could you write books,
Paint pictures ! One sits down in poverty
And writes or paints, with pity for the rich.

Norbert. And loves one's painting and one's writing, then,
And not one's mistress ! All is best, believe,
And we best as no other than we are.
We live, and they experiment on life—
Those poets, painters, all who stand aloof
To overlook the farther. Let us be The thing they look at ! I might take your
face

And write of it and paint it—to what end?
For whom? what pale dictatress in the air
Feeds, smiling sadly, her fine ghost-like form
With earth's real blood and breath, the beau-teous life

She makes despised for ever? You are mine,
Made for me, not for others in the world,
Nor yet for that which I should call my art,
The cold calm power to see how fair you look.
I come to you ; I leave you not, to write
Or paint. You are, I am : let Rubens there Paint us !

Constance. So, best !

Norbert. I understand your soul.
You live, and rightly sympathize with life,
With action, power, success. This way is straight ;
And time were short beside, to let me change
The craft my childhood learnt : my craft shall serve. .

Men set me here to subjugate, enclose,
Manure their barren lives, and force thence fruit

First for themselves, and afterward for me
In the due tithe ; the task of some one soul,
Through ways of work appointed by the world.
I am not bid create—men see no star
Transfiguring my brow to warrant that—
But find and bind and bring to bear their wills.
So I began : to-night sees how I end.

What if it see, too, power's first outbreak here
Amid the warmth, surprise and sympathy,
And instincts of the heart that teach the head?
What if the people have discerned at length
The dawn of the next nature, novel brain
Whose will they venture in the place of theirs, Whose work, they trust, shall find them as novel ways

To untried heights which yet he only sees?
I felt it when you kissed me. See this Queen,
This people—in our phrase, this mass of men—
See how the mass lies passive to my hand
Now that my hand is plastic, with you by
To make the muscles iron ! Oh, an end
Shall crown this issue as this crowns the first !
My will be on this people ! then, the strain,
The grappling of the potter with his clay,
The long uncertain struggle,—the success

And consummation of the spirit-work,
Some vase shaped to the curl of the god's lip,
While rounded fair for human sense to see
The Graces in a dance men recognize
With turbulent applause and laughs of heart!
So triumph ever shall renew itself;
Ever shall end in efforts higher yet,
Ever begin . . .

Constance. I ever helping?

Norbert. Thus!

[As he embraces her, the QUEEN enters.

Constance. Hist, madam! So have I performed my part.

You see your gratitude's true decency,
Norbert? A little slow in seeing it!
Begin, to end the sooner! What's a kiss?

Norbert. Constance?

Constance. Why, must I teach it you again?

You want a witness to your dulness, sir?
What was I saying these ten minutes long?
Then I repeat—when some young handsome man

Like you has acted out a part like yours,
Is pleased to fall in love with one beyond,
So very far beyond him, as he says—
So hopelessly in love that but to speak
Would prove him mad,—he thinks judiciously,
And makes some insignificant good soul,
Like me, his friend, adviser, confidant,
And very stalking-horse to cover him
In following after what he dares not face.
When his end's gained—(sir, do you understand?)

When she, he dares not face, has loved him first,
—May I not say so, madam?—tops his hope,
And overpasses so his wildest dream,
With glad consent of all, and most of her
The confidant who brought the same about—
Why, in the moment when such joy explodes,
I do hold that the merest gentleman
Will not start rudely from the stalking-horse,
Dismiss it with a "There, enough of you!"
Forget it, show his back unmannerly:
But like a liberal heart will rather turn
And say, "A tingling time of hope was ours;
"Betwixt the fears and falterings, we two lived
"A chanceful time in waiting for the prize:

"The confidant, the Constance, served not ill.
"And though I shall forget her in due time,
"Her use being answered now, as reason bids,
"Nay as herself bids from her heart of hearts,—
"Still, she has rights, the first thanks go to her,

"The first good praise goes to the prosperous tool,
"And the first—which is the last—rewarding kiss."

Norbert. Constance, it is a dream—ah, see, you smile!

Constance. So, now his part being properly performed,

Madam, I turn to you and finish mine
As duly; I do justice in my turn.

Yes, madam, he has loved you—long and well;

He could not hope to tell you so—'twas I
Who served to prove your soul accessible,
I led his thoughts on, drew them to their place

When they had wandered else into despair.
And kept love constant toward its natural aim.
Enough, my part is played; you stoop half way

And meet us royally and spare our fears:
'Tis like yourself. He thanks you, so do I.
Take him—with my full heart! my work is praised

By what comes of it. Be you happy, both!
Yourself—the only one on earth who can—
Do all for him, much more than a mere heart
Which though warm is not useful in its warmth
As the silk vesture of a queen! fold that Around him gently, tenderly. For him—
For him,—he knows his own part!

Norbert. Have you done?

I take the jest at last. Should I speak now?
Was yours the wager, Constance, foolish child.
Or did you but accept it? Well—at least
You lose by it.

Constance. Nay, madam, 'tis your turn.
Restrain him still from speech a little more.
And make him happier as more confident!
Pity him, madam, he is timid yet!
Mark, Norbert! Do not shrink now! Here
I yield

That two may mock her heart if it succumb?
No: fearing God and standing 'neath his
heaven,

I would not dare insult a woman so,
Were she the meanest woman in the world,
And he, I cared to please, ten emperors!

Constance. Norbert!

Norbert. I love once as I live but once.

What case is this to think or talk about?
I love you. Would it mend the case at all
If such a step as this killed love in me?
Your part were done: account to God for it!
But mine—could murdered love get up again,
And kneel to whom you please to designate,
And make you mirth? It is too horrible.
You did not know this, Constance? now you
know

That body and soul have each one life, but
one:

And here's my love, here, living, at your feet.

Constance. See the Queen! Norbert—this one more last word—

If thus you have taken jest for earnest—thus Loved me in earnest . . .

Norbert. Ah, no jest holds here!

Where is the laughter in which jests break up,
And what this horror that grows palpable?
Madam—why grasp you thus the balcony?
Have I done ill? Have I not spoken truth?
How could I other? Was it not your test,
To try me, what my love for Constance meant?
Madam, your royal soul itself approves,
The first, that I should choose thus! so one takes

A beggar,—asks him, what would buy his
child?

And then approves the expected laugh of scorn

Returned as something noble from the rags.
Speak, Constance, I'm the beggar! Ha,
what's this?

Returned as something noble from the rags.
Speak, Constance, I'm the beggar! Ha,
what's this?

You two glare each at each like panthers now.
Constance, the world fades; only you stand
there!

You did not, in to-night's wild whirl of things,
Sell me—your soul of souls, for any price?

No—no—'tis easy to believe in you!

Was it your love's mad trial to o'ertop

Mine by this vain self-sacrifice? well, still—

Though I might curse, I love you. I am love

And cannot change: love's self is at your feet!

[The QUEEN goes out.]

Constance. Feel my heart; let it die against your own!

Norbert. Against my own. Explain not;
let this be!

This is life's height.

Constance. Yours, yours, yours!

Norbert. You and I—

Why care by what meanders we are here

I' the centre of the labyrinth? Men have died

Trying to find this place, which we have found.

Constance. Found, found!

Norbert. Sweet, never fear what she can do!

We are past harm now.

Constance. On the breast of God.

I thought of men—as if you were a man.

Tempting him with a crown!

Norbert. This must end here:

It is too perfect.

Constance. There's the music stopped.

What measured heavy tread? It is one blaze
About me and within me.

Norbert. Oh, some death

Will run its sudden finger round this spark

And sever us from the rest!

Constance. And so do well.

Now the doors open.

Norbert. 'Tis the guard comes

Constance. Kiss!

DRAMATIS PERSONÆ.

1864.

JAMES LEE'S WIFE.

I.—JAMES LEE'S WIFE SPEAKS AT THE WINDOW.

I.

AH, Love, but a day
And the world has changed !
The sun's away,
And the bird estranged ;
The wind has dropped,
And the sky's deranged :
Summer has stopped.

II.

Look in my eyes !
Wilt thou change too ?
Should I fear surprise ?
Shall I find aught new
In the old and dear,
In the good and true,
With the changing year ?

III.

Thou art a man,
But I am thy love.
For the lake, its swan ;
For the dell, its dove ;
And for thee—(oh, haste !)
Me, to bend above,
Me, to hold embraced.

II.—BY THE FIRESIDE.

I.

Is all our fire of shipwreck wood,
Oak and pine ?
Oh, for the ills half-understood,
The dim dead woe
Long ago

Befallen this bitter coast of France !
Well, poor sailors took their chance ;
I take mine.

II.

A ruddy shaft our fire must shoot
O'er the sea :
Do sailors eye the casement—mute,
Drenched and stark,
From their bark—
And envy, gnash their teeth for hate
O' the warm safe house and happy freight —Thee and me ?

III.

God help you, sailors, at your need !
Spare the curse !
For some ships, safe in port indeed,
Rot and rust,
Run to dust,
All through worms i' the wood, which crept,
Gnawed our hearts out while we slept :
That is worse.

IV.

Who lived here before us two ?
Old-world pairs.
Did a woman ever—would I knew !—
Watch the man
With whom began Love's voyage full-sail,—(now, gnash your teeth !)
When planks start, open hell beneath Unawares ?

III.—IN THE DOORWAY.

I.

THE swallow has set her six young on the rail,
And looks sea-ward :

The water's in stripes like a snake, olive-pale
 To the leeward,—
 On the weather-side, black, spotted white with the wind.

“Good fortune departs, and disaster's behind,”—

Hark, the wind with its wants and its infinite wail!

II.

Our fig-tree, that leaned for the saltness, has furled

Her five fingers,
 Each leaf like a hand opened wide to the
 world

Where there lingers
 No glint of the gold, Summer sent for her
 sake:

How the vines writhe in rows, each impaled on its stake!

My heart shrivels up and my spirit shrinks curled.

III.

Yet here are we two; we have love, house
 enough,

With the field there,
 This house of four rooms, that field red and rough,

Though it yield there,
 For the rabbit that robs, scarce a blade or a
 bent;

If a magpie alight now, it seems an event;
 And they both will be gone at November's rebuff.

IV.

But why must cold spread? but wherefore bring change

To the spirit,
 God meant should mate his with an infinite range,

And inherit
 His power to put life in the darkness and cold?

Oh, live and love worthily, bear and be bold!

Whom Summer made friends of, let Winter estrange!

IV.—ALONG THE BEACH.

I.

I WILL be quiet and talk with you,
 And reason why you are wrong.
 You wanted my love—is that much true?
 And so I did love, so I do:
 What has come of it all along?

II.

I took you—how could I otherwise?
 For a world to me, and more;
 For all, love greatens and glorifies
 Till God's a-glow, to the loving eyes,
 In what was mere earth before.

III.

Yes, earth—yes, mere ignoble earth!
 Now do I mis-state, mistake?
 Do I wrong your weakness and call it worth?
 Expect all harvest, dread no dearth,
 Seal my sense up for your sake?

IV.

Oh, Love, Love, no, Love! not so, indeed!
 You were just weak earth, I knew:
 With much in you waste, with many a weed,
 And plenty of passions run to seed,
 But a little good grain too.

V.

And such as you were, I took you for mine:
 Did not you find me yours,
 To watch the olive and wait the vine,
 And wonder when rivers of oil and wine
 Would flow, as the Book assures?

VI.

Well, and if none of these good things came.
 What did the failure prove?
 The man was my whole world, all the same,
 With his flowers to praise or his weeds to
 blame,
 And, either or both, to love.

“ That lasts while on her pallet-bed the nun “ Stretches her length ; her foot comes through
 “ The straw she shivers on ;

V.

“ You had not thought she was so tall : and spent,
 “ Her shrunk lids open, her lean fingers shut
 “ Close, close, their sharp and livid nails indent
 “ The clammy palm ; then all is mute :
 “ That way, the spirit went.

VI.

“ Or wouldst thou rather that I understand “ Thy will to help me ?—like the dog I found
 “ Once, pacing sad this solitary strand,
 “ Who would not take my food, poor hound,
 “ But whined and licked my hand.”

VII.

All this, and more, comes from some young man's pride
 Of power to see,—in failure and mistake,
 Relinquishment, disgrace, on every side,—
 Merely examples for his sake,
 Helps to his path untried :

VIII.

Instances he must—simply recognize ?
 Oh, more than so !—must, with a learner's zeal,
 Make doubly prominent, twice emphasize,
 By added touches that reveal
 The god in babe's disguise.

IX.

Oh, he knows what defeat means, and the
 rest !
 Himself the undefeated that shall be :
 Failure, disgrace, he flings them you to test,—
 His triumph, in eternity
 Too plainly manifest !

X.

Whence, judge if he learn forthwith what the wind
 Means in its moaning—by the happy prompt
 Instinctive way of youth, I mean ; for kind
 Calm years, exacting their accompt
 Of pain, mature the mind :

XI.

And some midsummer morning, at the lull
 Just about daybreak, as he looks across
 A sparkling foreign country, wonderful
 To the sea's edge for gloom and gloss,
 Next minute must annul,—

XII.

Then, when the wind begins among the
 vines,
 So low, so low, what shall it say but this ?
 “ Here is the change beginning, here the lines
 “ Circumscribe beauty, set to bliss
 “ The limit time assigns.”

XIII.

Nothing can be as it has been before ;
 Better, so call it, only not the same.
 To draw one beauty into our hearts' core,
 And keep it changeless ! such our claim :
 So answered,—Never more !

XIV.

Simple ? Why this is the old woe o' the
 world ;
 Tune, to whose rise and fall we live and die—
 Rise with it, then ! Rejoice that man is hurled
 From change to change unceasingly,
 His soul's wings never furled !

XV.

That's a new question ; still replies the fact,
 Nothing endures : the wind moans, saying
 so ;
 We moan in acquiescence : there's life's part.
 Perhaps probation—do I know ?
 God does : endure his act !

XVI.

Only, for man, how bitter not to grave
 On his soul's hands' palms one fair good wise thing
 Just as he grasped it ! For himself, death's wave ;
 While time first washes—ah, the sting !—
 O'er all he'd sink to save.

VII.—AMONG THE ROCKS.

I.

OH, good gigantic smile o' the brown old
 earth,
 This autumn morning ! How he sets his bones
 To bask i' the sun, and thrusts out knees and feet
 For the ripple to run over in its mirth ;
 Listening the while, where on the heap of stones
 The white breast of the sea-lark twitters sweet.

II.

That is the doctrine, simple, ancient, true ;
 Such is life's trial, as old earth smiles and knows.
 If you loved only what were worth your love,
 Love were clear gain, and wholly well for
 you :
 Make the low nature better by your throes !
 Give earth yourself, go up for gain above !

VIII.—BESIDE THE DRAWING BOARD.

I.

“ As like as a Hand to another Hand ! ”
 Whoever said that foolish thing,
 Could not have studied to understand
 The counsels of God in fashioning,
 Out of the infinite love of his heart,
 This Hand, whose beauty I praise, apart
 From the world of wonder left to praise,
 If I tried to learn the other ways

Of love in its skill, or love in its power.

“ As like as a Hand to another Hand ” :
 Who said that, never took his stand,
 Found and followed, like me, an hour,
 The beauty in this,—how free, how fine
 To fear, almost,—of the limit-line !
 As I looked at this, and learned and drew,
 Drew and learned, and looked again,
 While fast the happy minutes flew,
 Its beauty mounted into my brain,
 And a fancy seized me ; I was fain
 To efface my work, begin anew,
 Kiss what before I only drew ;
 Ay, laying the red chalk 'twixt my lips,
 With soul to help if the mere lips failed,
 I kissed all right where the drawing ailed,
 Kissed fast the grace that somehow slips
 Still from one's soulless finger-tips.

II.

'Tis a clay cast, the perfect thing,
 From Hand live once, dead long ago :
 Princess-like it wears the ring
 To fancy's eye, by which we know
 That here at length a master found
 His match, a proud lone soul its mate,
 As soaring genius sank to ground,
 And pencil could not emulate
 The beauty in this,—how free, how fine
 To fear almost !—of the limit-line.
 Long ago the god, like me
 The worm, learned, each in our degree :
 Looked and loved, learned and drew,
 Drew and learned and loved again,
 While fast the happy minutes flew,
 Till beauty mounted into his brain
 And on the finger which outvied
 His art he placed the ring that's there,
 Still by fancy's eye descried,
 In token of a marriage rare :
 For him on earth, his art's despair,
 For him in heaven, his soul's fit bride.

III.

Little girl with the poor coarse hand
 I turned from to a cold clay cast—
 I have my lesson, understand
 The worth of flesh and blood at last.

Nothing but beauty in a Hand?

Because he could not change the hue,
Mend the lines and make them true
To this which met his soul's demand,—
Would Da Vinci turn from you?
I hear him laugh my woes to scorn—
"The fool forsooth is all forlorn
"Because the beauty, she thinks best,
"Lived long ago or was never born,—
"Because no beauty bears the test
"In this rough peasant Hand! Confessed!
" 'Art is null and study void!' "
"So sayest thou? So said not I,
"Who threw the faulty pencil by,
"And years instead of hours employed,
"Learning the veritable use
"Of flesh and bone and nerve beneath
"Lines and hue of the outer sheath,
"If haply I might reproduce
"One motive of the powers profuse,
"Flesh and bone and nerve that make
"The poorest coarsest human hand
"An object worthy to be scanned
"A whole life long for their sole sake.
"Shall earth and the cramped moment-space
"Yield the heavenly crowning grace?
"Now the parts and then the whole!
"Who art thou, with stunted soul
"And stunted body, thus to cry
" 'I love,—shall that be life's strait dole?
" 'I must live beloved or die!' "
"This peasant hand that spins the wool
"And bakes the bread, why lives it on,
"Poor and coarse with beauty gone,—
"What use survives the beauty?" Fool!

Go, little girl with the poor coarse hand!
I have my lesson, shall understand.

IX.—ON DECK.

I.

THERE is nothing to remember in me,
Nothing I ever said with a grace,
Nothing I did that you care to see,
Nothing I was that deserves a place
In your mind, now I leave you, set you free.

II.

Conceded! In turn, concede to me,
Such things have been as a mutual flame.
Your soul's locked fast; but, love for a key,
You might let it loose, till I grew the
same
In your eyes, as in mine you stand: strange plea!

III.

For then, then, what would it matter to me
That I was the harsh ill-favoured one?
We both should be like as pea and pea;
It was ever so since the world begun:
So, let me proceed with my reverie.

IV.

How strange it were if you had all me,
As I have all you in my heart and brain,
You, whose least word brought gloom or glee,
Who never lifted the hand in vain—
Will hold mine yet, from over the sea!

V.

Strange, if a face, when you thought of me,
Rose like your own face present now,
With eyes as dear in their due degree,
Much such a mouth, and as bright a
brow,
Till you saw yourself, while you cried " 'Tis She! "

VI.

Well, you may, you must, set down to me
Love that was life, life that was love;
A tenure of breath at your lips' decree,
A passion to stand as your thoughts approve,
A rapture to fall where your foot might be.

VII.

But did one touch of such love for me
Come in a word or a look of yours,
Whose words and looks will, circling, flee Round me and round while life endures,—
Could I fancy "As I feel, thus feels he";

XII.

And in after-time would your fresh tear fall,
 Though your mouth might twitch with a dubious smile,
 As they told you of gold, both robe and pall,
 How she prayed them leave it alone awhile,
 So it never was touched at all.

XIII.

Years flew ; this legend grew at last
 The life of the lady ; all she had done,
 All been, in the memories fading fast
 Of lover and friend, was summed in one Sentence survivors passed :

XIV.

To wit, she was meant for heaven, not earth ;
 Had turned an angel before the time :
 Yet, since she was mortal, in such dearth
 Of frailty, all you could count a crime
 Was—she knew her gold hair's worth.

XV.

At little pleasant Pornic church,
 It chanced, the pavement wanted repair,
 Was taken to pieces : left in the lurch,
 A certain sacred space lay bare,
 And the boys began research.

XVI.

'Twas the space where our sires would lay a saint,
 A benefactor,—a bishop, suppose,
 A baron with armour-adornments quaint,
 Dame with chased ring and jewelled rose,
 Things sanctity saves from taint ;

XVII.

So we come to find them in after-days
 When the corpse is presumed to have done with gauds
 Of use to the living, in many ways :
 For the boys get pelf, and the town applauds,
 And the church deserves the praise.

XVIII.

They grubbed with a will : and at length—
O cor
Humanum, pectora cæca, and the rest !—
 They found—no gaud they were prying for,
 No ring, no rose, but—who would have guessed ?—
 A double Louis-d'or !

XIX.

Here was a case for the priest : he heard,
 Marked, inwardly digested, laid
 Finger on nose, smiled, “ There's a bird “ Chirps in my ear ” : then, “ Bring a spade,
 “ Dig deeper ! ”.—he gave the word.

XX.

And lo, when they came to the coffin-lid,
 Or rotten planks which composed it once.
 Why, there lay the girl's skull wedged amid
 A mint of money, it served for the nonce
 To hold in its hair-heaps hid !

XXI.

Hid there ? Why ? Could the girl be won :
 (She the stainless soul) to treasure up
 Money, earth's trash and heaven's affront ?
 Had a spider found out the communion-cup,
 Was a toad in the christening-font ?

XXII.

Truth is truth : too true it was.
 Gold ! She hoarded and hugged it first,
 Longed for it, leaned o'er it, loved it—
 alas—
 Till the humour grew to a head and burst.
 And she cried, at the final pass,—

XXIII.

“ Talk not of God, my heart is stone !
 “ Nor lover nor friend—be gold for both !
 “ Gold I lack ; and, my all, my own,
 “ It shall hide in my hair. I scarce die loth
 “ If they let my hair alone ! ”

XXIV.

Louis-d'or, some six times five,
And duly double, every piece.
Now do you see? With the priest to shrive,
With parents preventing her soul's release
By kisses that kept alive,—

XXV.

With heaven's gold gates about to ope,
With friends' praise, gold-like, lingering
still,
An instinct had bidden the girl's hand grope
For gold, the true sort—"Gold in heaven, if you will ;
"But I keep earth's too, I hope."

XXVI.

Enough ! The priest took the grave's grim
yield :
The parents, they eyed that price of sin
As if thirty pieces lay revealed
On the place to bury strangers in,
The hideous Potter's Field.

XXVII.

But the priest bethought him : " ' Milk that's spilt '
"—You know the adage ! Watch and
pray !
"Saints tumble to earth with so slight a tilt !
"It would build a new altar ; that, we may !"
And the altar therewith was built.

XXVIII.

Why I deliver this horrible verse ?
As the text of a sermon, which now I preach :
Evil or good may be better or worse
In the human heart, but the mixture of each
Is a marvel and a curse.

XXIX.

The candid incline to surmise of late
That the Christian faith proves false, I
find ;

For our Essays-and-Reviews' debate
Begins to tell on the public mind,
And Colenso's words have weight :

XXX.

I still, to suppose it true, for my part,
See reasons and reasons ; this, to begin :
'Tis the faith that launched point-blank her dart
At the head of a lie—taught Original Sin,
The Corruption of Man's Heart.

THE WORST OF IT.

I.

WOULD it were I had been false, not you !
I that am nothing, not you that are all :
I, never the worse for a touch or two
On my speckled hide ; not you, the
pride
Of the day, my swan, that a first fleck's fall
On her wonder of white must unswan, undo !

II.

I had dipped in life's struggle and, out
again,
Bore specks of it here, there, easy to see,
When I found my swan and the cure was
plain ;
The dull turned bright as I caught your white
On my bosom : you saved me—saved in
vain
If you ruined yourself, and all through me !

III.

Yes, all through the speckled beast that I am,
Who taught you to stoop ; you gave me
yourself,
And bound your soul by the vows that damn :
Since on better thought you break, as you ought,
Vows—words, no angel set down, some elf
Mistook,—for an oath, an epigram !

IV.

Yes, might I judge you, here were my heart,
And a hundred its like, to treat as you pleased !

I choose to be yours, for my proper part,
Yours, leave or take, or mar me or make ;
If I acquiesce, why should you be teased
With the conscience-prick and the memory-smart ?

V.

But what will God say? Oh, my sweet,
Think, and be sorry you did this thing Though earth were unworthy to feel your feet,

There's a heaven above may deserve your
love :
Should you forfeit heaven for a snapt gold ring
And a promise broke, were it just or meet?

VI.

And I to have tempted you ! I, who tired
Your soul, no doubt, till it sank ! Unwise,
I loved and was lowly, loved and aspired,
Loved, grieving or glad, till I made you
mad,
And you meant to have hated and despised—
Whereas, you deceived me nor inquired !

VII.

She, ruined? How? No heaven for her?
Crowns to give, and none for the brow
That looked like marble and smelt like myrrh?
Shall the robe be worn, and the palm-branch borne,
And she go graceless, she graced now
Beyond all saints, as themselves aver?

VIII.

Hardly ! That must be understood !
The earth is your place of penance, then ;
And what will it prove? I desire your good,
But, plot as I may, I can find no way
How a blow should fall, such as falls on
men,
Nor prove too much for your womanhood.

IX.

It will come, I suspect, at the end of life,
When you walk alone, and review the past ;
And I, who so long shall have done with strife,
And journeyed my stage and earned my wage
And retired as was right,—I am called at last
When the devil stabs you, to lend the knife.

X.

He stabs for the minute of trivial wrong,
Nor the other hours are able to save,
The happy, that lasted my whole life long :
For a promise broke, not for first words
spoke,
The true, the only, that turn my grave
To a blaze of joy and a crash of song.

XI.

Witness beforehand ! Off I trip
On a safe path gay through the flowers
you flung :
My very name made great by your lip,
And my heart a-glow with the good I know
Of a perfect year when we both were young.
And I tasted the angels' fellowship.

XII.

And witness, moreover . . . Ah, but wait !
I spy the loop whence an arrow shoots !
It may be for yourself, when you meditate,
That you grieve—for slain ruth, murdered
truth.
“ Though falsehood escape in the end, what boots ?
“ How truth would have triumphed ! ”— you sigh too late.

XIII.

Ay, who would have triumphed like you. I
say !
Well, it is lost now ; well, you must bear.
Abide and grow fit for a better day :
You should hardly grudge, could I be your judge !
But hush ! For you, can be no despair :
There's amends : 'tis a secret : hope and
pray !

And did you, when we faced the church
 With spire and sad slate roof, aloof
 From human fellowship so far,
 Where a few graveyard crosses are,
 And garlands for the swallows' perch,—

VII.

Did you determine, as we stepped O'er the lone stone fence, "Let me get "Her for myself, and what's the earth
 "With all its art, verse, music, worth—
 "Compared with love, found, gained, and kept?

VIII.

"Schumann's our music-maker now;
 "Has his march-movement youth and
 mouth?
 "Ingres's the modern man that paints;
 "Which will lean on me, of his saints?
 "Heine for songs; for kisses, how?"

IX.

And did you, when we entered, reached
 The votive frigate, soft aloft
 Riding on air this hundred years,
 Safe-smiling at old hopes and fears,—
 Did you draw profit while she preached?

X.

Resolving, "Fools we wise men grow!
 "Yes, I could easily blurt out curt
 "Some question that might find reply
 "As prompt in her stopped lips, dropped eye,
 "And rush of red to cheek and brow:

XI.

"Thus were a match made, sure and fast,
 "'Mid the blue weed-flowers round the mound
 "Where, issuing, we shall stand and stay
 "For one more look at baths and bay,
 "Sands, sea-gulls, and the old church last—

XII.

"A match 'twixt me, bent, wigged and lamed,
 "Famous, however, for verse and worse,

"Sure of the Fortieth spare Arm-chair
 "When gout and glory seat me there,
 "So, one whose love-freaks pass unblamed,—

XIII.

"And this young beauty, round and sound
 "As a mountain-apple, youth and truth
 "With loves and doves, at all events
 "With money in the Three per Cents;
 "Whose choice of me would seem profound:—

XIV.

"She might take me as I take her.
 "Perfect the hour would pass, alas!
 "Climb high, love high, what matter? Still.
 "Feet, feelings, must descend the hill:
 "An hour's perfection can't recur.

XV.

"Then follows Paris and full time
 "For both to reason: 'Thus with us.'
 "She'll sigh, 'Thus girls give body and
 soul
 " 'At first word, think they gain the goal.
 " 'When 'tis the starting-place they climb:

XVI.

" 'My friend makes verse and gets renown:
 " 'Have they all fifty years, his peers?
 " 'He knows the world, firm, quiet and gay:
 " 'Boys will become as much one day:
 " 'They're fools; he cheats, with beard less brown.

XVII.

" 'For boys say, Love me or I die!
 " 'He did not say, The truth is, youth
 " 'I want, who am old and know too much.
 " 'I'd catch youth: lend me sight or:
 touch!
 " 'Drop heart's blood where life's whee:
 grate dry!

XVIII.

"While I should make rejoinder"—(then
 It was, no doubt, you ceased that least Light pressure of my arm in yours)
 " 'I can conceive of cheaper cures
 " 'For a yawning-fit o'er books and men.

XIX.

“ ‘What? All I am, was, and might be,
 “ ‘All, books taught, art brought, life’s whole strife,
 “ ‘Painful results since precious, just
 “ ‘Were fitly exchanged, in wise disgust, “ ‘For two cheeks freshened by youth and sea?’

XX.

“ ‘All for a nosegay!—what came first;
 “ ‘With fields on flower, untried each side;
 “ ‘I rally, need my books and men,
 “ ‘And find a nosegay’: drop it, then,
 “ ‘No match yet made for best or worst!’”

XXI.

That ended me. You judged the porch
 We left by, Norman; took our look
 At sea and sky; wondered so few
 Find out the place for air and view;
 Remark’d the sun began to scorch;

XXII.

Descended, soon regained the baths,
 And then, good-bye! Years ten since then:
 Ten years! We meet: you tell me, now,
 By a window-seat for that cliff-brow,
 On carpet-stripes for those sand-paths.

XXIII.

Now I may speak: you fool, for all Your lore! WHO made things plain in vain?
 What was the sea for? What, the grey
 Sad church, that solitary day,
 Crosses and graves and swallows’ call?

XXIV.

Was there nought better than to enjoy?
 No feat which, done, would make time
 break,
 And let us pent-up creatures through
 Into eternity, our due?
 No forcing earth teach heaven’s employ?

XXV.

No wise beginning, here and now,
 What cannot grow complete (earth’s feat)

And heaven must finish, there and then?
 No tasting earth’s true food for men,
 Its sweet in sad, its sad in sweet?

XXVI.

No grasping at love, gaining a share
 O’ the sole spark from God’s life at strife
 With death, so, sure of range above
 The limits here? For us and love,
 Failure; but, when God fails, despair.

XXVII.

This you call wisdom? Thus you add
 Good unto good again, in vain?
 You loved, with body worn and weak;
 I loved, with faculties to seek:
 Were both loves worthless since ill-clad?

XXVIII.

Let the mere star-fish in his vault
 Crawl in a wash of weed, indeed,
 Rose-jacynth to the finger-tips:
 He, whole in body and soul, outstrips
 Man, found with either in default.

XXIX.

But what’s whole, can increase no more,
 Is dwarfed and dies, since here’s its sphere.
 The devil laughed at you in his sleeve!
 You knew not? That I well believe;
 Or you had saved two souls: nay, four.

XXX.

For Stephanie sprained last night her wrist,
 Ankle or something. “Pooh,” cry you?
 At any rate she danced, all say,
 Vilely; her vogue has had its day.
 Here comes my husband from his whist.

TOO LATE.

I.

HERE was I with my arm and heart
 And brain, all yours for a word, a want
 Put into a look—just a look, your part,— While mine, to repay it . . . vainest
 vaunt,

Were the woman, that's dead, alive to hear,
 Had her lover, that's lost, love's proof to show !
 But I cannot show it ; you cannot speak
 From the churchyard neither, miles removed,
 Though I feel by a pulse within my cheek,
 Which stabs and stops, that the woman I loved
 Needs help in her grave and finds none near,
 Wants warmth from the heart which sends it—so !

II.

Did I speak once angrily, all the drear days
 You lived, you woman I loved so well,
 Who married the other ? Blame or praise,
 Where was the use then ? Time would tell,
 And the end declare what man for you,
 What woman for me, was the choice of
 God.
 But, Edith dead ! no doubting more !
 I used to sit and look at my life
 As it rippled and ran till, right before,
 A great stone stopped it : oh, the strife
 Of waves at the stone some devil threw
 In my life's midcurrent, thwarting God !

III.

But either I thought, " They may churn and chide
 " Awhile, my waves which came for their
 joy
 " And found this horrible stone full-tide :
 " Yet I see just a thread escape, deploy
 " Through the evening-country, silent and safe,
 " And it suffers no more till it finds the
 sea."
 Or else I would think, " Perhaps some night
 " When new things happen, a meteor-ball
 " May slip through the sky in a line of light,
 " And earth breathe hard, and landmarks
 fall,
 " And my waves no longer champ nor chafe,
 " Since a stone will have rolled from its place : let be !"

IV.

But, dead ! All's done with : wait who
 may,
 Watch and wear and wonder who will.
 Oh, my whole life that ends to-day !
 Oh, my soul's sentence, sounding still,
 " The woman is dead that was none of his :
 " And the man that was none of hers may go !"
 There's only the past left : worry that !
 Wreak, like a bull, on the empty coat,
 Rage, its late wearer is laughing at !
 Tear the collar to rags, having missed his throat ;
 Strike stupidly on—" This, this and this,
 " Where I would that a bosom received the blow !"

V.

I ought to have done more : once my speech,
 And once your answer, and there, the end,
 And Edith was henceforth out of reach !
 Why, men do more to deserve a friend,
 Be rid of a foe, get rich, grow wise,
 Nor, folding their arms, stare fate in the
 face.
 Why, better even have burst like a thief
 And borne you away to a rock for us two
 In a moment's horror, bright, bloody and
 brief :
 Then changed to myself again—" I slew
 " Myself in that moment ; a ruffian lies " Somewhere : your slave, see, born in his place !"

VI.

What did the other do ? You be judge !
 Look at us, Edith ! Here are we both !
 Give him his six whole years : I grudge
 None of the life with you, nay, loathe
 Myself that I grudged his start in advance
 Of me who could overtake and pass.
 But, as if he loved you ! No, not he,
 Nor anyone else in the world, 'tis plain .
 Who ever heard that another, free
 As I, young, prosperous, sound and sane,
 Poured life out, proffered it—" Half a glance
 " Of those eyes of yours and I drop the glass !"

My queen shall have high observance, planned
 Courtship made perfect, no least line
 Crossed without warrant. There you stand,
 Warm too, and white too : would this wine
 Had washed all over that body of yours,
 Ere I drank it, and you down with it,
 thus !

ABT VOGLER.

(AFTER HE HAS BEEN EXTEMPORIZING UPON THE MUSICAL INSTRUMENT OF HIS INVENTION.)

[The Abbé Vogler, born 1749. Court
 Chaplain at Mannheim. Improved the organ.
 Visited London, 1790. Died at Darmstadt, 1814.]

I.

WOULD that the structure brave, the manifold music I build,
 Bidding my organ obey, calling its keys to their work,
 Claiming each slave of the sound, at a touch,
 as when Solomon willed Armies of angels that soar, legions of demons that lurk,
 Man, brute, reptile, fly,—alien of end and
 of aim,
 Adverse, each from the other heaven-high,
 hell-deep removed,—
 Should rush into sight at once as he named the ineffable Name,
 And pile him a palace straight, to pleasure the princess he loved !

II.

Would it might tarry like his, the beautiful building of mine,
 This which my keys in a crowd pressed and importuned to raise !
 Ah, one and all, how they helped, would dispart now and now combine, Zealous to hasten the work, heighten their master his praise !
 And one would bury his brow with a blind
 plunge down to hell, Burrow awhile and build, broad on the roots of things,

Then up again swim into sight, having based me my palace well,
 Founded it, fearless of flame, flat on the nether springs.

III.

And another would mount and march, like the excellent minion he was,
 Ay, another and yet another, one crowd
 but with many a crest,
 Raising my rampired walls of gold as transparent as glass,
 Eager to do and die, yield each his place
 to the rest :
 For higher still and higher (as a runner tips
 with fire,
 When a great illumination surprises a festal
 night—
 Outlining round and round Rome's dome from space to spire)
 Up, the pinnacled glory reached, and the pride of my soul was in sight.

IV.

In sight? Not half! for it seemed, it was certain, to match man's birth,
 Nature in turn conceived, obeying an impulse as I ;
 And the emulous heaven yearned down, made effort to reach the earth,
 As the earth had done her best, in my passion, to scale the sky :
 Novel splendours burst forth, grew familiar and dwelt with mine,
 Not a point nor peak but found and fixed its wandering star ;
 Meteor-moons, balls of blaze : and they did not pale nor pine,
 For earth had attained to heaven, there was no more near nor far.

V.

Nay more ; for there wanted not who walked in the glare and glow, Presences plain in the place ; or, fresh from the Protoplast,

Furnished for ages to come, when a kindlier
 wind should blow,
 Lured now to begin and live, in a house to their liking at last ;
 Or else the wonderful Dead who have passed through the body and gone,
 But were back once more to breathe in an old world worth their new :
 What never had been, was now ; what was,
 as it shall be anon ;
 And what is,—shall I say, matched both ?
 for I was made perfect too.

VI.

All through my keys that gave their sounds to a wish of my soul,
 All through my soul that praised as its wish flowed visibly forth,
 All through music and me ! For think, had
 I painted the whole,
 Why, there it had stood, to see, nor the process so wonder-worth :
 Had I written the same, made verse—still,
 effect proceeds from cause,
 Ye know why the forms are fair, ye hear how the tale is told ;
 It is all triumphant art, but art in obedience to laws,
 Painter and poet are proud in the artist-list enrolled :—

VII.

But here is the finger of God, a flash of the will that can,
 Existent behind all laws, that made them and, lo, they are !
 And I know not if, save in this, such gift be allowed to man,
 That out of three sounds he frame, not a fourth sound, but a star.
 Consider it well : each tone of our scale in itself is nought ;
 It is everywhere in the world—loud, soft,
 and all is said :
 Give it to me to use ! I mix it with two in my thought :
 And, there ! Ye have heard and seen :
 consider and bow the head !

VIII.

Well, it is gone at last, the palace of music I
 reared ;
 Gone ! and the good tears start, the praises
 that come too slow ;
 For one is assured at first, one scarce can say that he feared,
 That he even gave it a thought, the gone
 thing was to go.
 Never to be again ! But many more of the kind
 As good, nay, better perchance : is this your comfort to me ?
 To me, who must be saved because I cling with my mind
 To the same, same self, same love, same
 God : ay, what was, shall be.

IX.

Therefore to whom turn I but to thee, the ineffable Name ?
 Builder and maker, thou, of houses not made with hands !
 What, have fear of change from thee who art ever the same ?
 Doubt that thy power can fill the heart that thy power expands ?
 There shall never be one lost good ! What was, shall live as before ;
 The evil is null, is nought, is silence
 implying sound ;
 What was good shall be good, with, for evil,
 so much good more ;
 On the earth the broken arcs ; in the heaven, a perfect round.

X.

All we have willed or hoped or dreamed of good shall exist ;
 Not its semblance, but itself ; no beauty,
 nor good, nor power
 Whose voice has gone forth, but each survives for the melodist
 When eternity affirms the conception of an hour.

The high that proved too high, the heroic for earth too hard,
The passion that left the ground to lose itself in the sky,
Are music sent up to God by the lover and the bard ;
Enough that he heard it once : we shall hear it by-and-by.

XI.

And what is our failure here but a triumph's evidence
For the fulness of the days? Have we withered or agonized?
Why else was the pause prolonged but that singing might issue thence?
Why rushed the discords in but that harmony should be prized?
Sorrow is hard to bear, and doubt is slow to
clear,
Each sufferer says his say, his scheme of the weal and woe :
But God has a few of us whom he whispers
in the ear ;
The rest may reason and welcome : 'tis we musicians know.

XII.

Well, it is earth with me ; silence resumes
her reign :
I will be patient and proud, and soberly acquiesce.
Give me the keys. I feel for the common chord again,
Sliding by semitones, till I sink to the minor,—yes,
And I blunt it into a ninth, and I stand on alien ground,
Surveying awhile the heights I rolled from into the deep ;
Which, hark, I have dared and done, for my resting-place is found,
The C Major of this life : so, now I will try to sleep.

J. Babcock
RABBI BEN EZRA.

I.

GROW old along with me !
The best is yet to be,
The last of life, for which the first was made :
Our times are in His hand
Who saith " A whole I planned,
" Youth shows but half ; trust God : see all nor be afraid ! "

II.

Not that, amassing flowers,
Youth sighed " Which rose make ours,
" Which lily leave and then as best recall ? "
Not that, admiring stars,
It yearned " Nor Jove, nor Mars ;
" Mine be some figured flame which blends, transcends them all ! "

III.

Not for such hopes and fears
Annulling youth's brief years,
Do I remonstrate : folly wide the mark !
Rather I prize the doubt
Low kinds exist without,
Finished and finite clods, untroubled by a spark.

IV.

Poor vaunt of life indeed,
Were man but formed to feed
On joy, to solely seek and find and feast :
Such feasting ended, then
As sure an end to men ;
Irks care the crop-full bird? Frets doubt the maw-crammed beast?

V.

Rejoice we are allied
To That which doth provide
And not partake, effect and not receive !
A spark disturbs our clod ;
Nearer we hold of God
Who gives, than of His tribes that take, I must believe.

XVII.

So, still within this life,
 Though lifted o'er its strife,
 Let me discern, compare, pronounce at
 last,

“This rage was right i' the main,
 “That acquiescence vain :
 “The Future I may face now I have proved the Past.”

XVIII.

For more is not reserved
 To man, with soul just nerved
 To act to-morrow what he learns to-day :
 Here, work enough to watch
 The Master work, and catch Hints of the proper craft, tricks of the tool's true play.

XIX.

As it was better, youth
 Should strive, through acts uncouth,
 Toward making, than repose on aught found
 made :

So, better, age, exempt
 From strife, should know, than tempt Further. Thou waitedest age : wait death nor be afraid !

XX.

Enough now, if the Right
 And Good and Infinite
 Be named here, as thou callest thy hand thine
own,

With knowledge absolute,
 Subject to no dispute
 From fools that crowded youth, nor let thee feel alone.

XXI.

Be there, for once and all,
 Severed great minds from small,
 Announced to each his station in the Past !
 Was I, the world arraigned,
 Were they, my soul disdained, Right? Let age speak the truth and give us peace at last !

XXII.

Now, who shall arbitrate?
 Ten men love what I hate,
 Shun what I follow, slight what I receive ;

Ten, who in ears and eyes
 Match me : we all surmise,
 They this thing, and I that : whom shall my soul believe ?

XXIII.

Not on the vulgar mass
 Called “work,” must sentence pass,
 Things done, that took the eye and had the price ;
 O'er which, from level stand,
 The low world laid its hand,
 Found straightway to its mind, could value in a trice :

XXIV.

But all, the world's coarse thumb
 And finger failed to plumb,
 So passed in making up the main account ;
 All instincts immature,
 All purposes unsure,
 That weighed not as his work, yet swelled the man's amount :

XXV.

Thoughts hardly to be packed
 Into a narrow act,
 Fancies that broke through language and escaped ;
 All I could never be,
 All, men ignored in me,
 This, I was worth to God, whose wheel the pitcher shaped.

XXVI.

Ay, note that Potter's wheel,
 That metaphor ! and feel Why time spins fast, why passive lies our clay,—
 Thou, to whom fools propound,
 When the wine makes its round, “Since life fleets, all is change ; the Past gone, seize to-day !”

XXVII.

Fool ! All that is, at all,
 Lasts ever, past recall ;
 Earth changes, but thy soul and God stand
 sure :

What entered into thee,
That was, is, and shall be :
 Time's wheel runs back or stops : Potter and clay endure.

XXVIII.

He fixed thee mid this dance
 Of plastic circumstance,
 This Present, thou, forsooth, wouldst fain arrest :
 Machinery just meant
 To give thy soul its bent,
 Try thee and turn thee forth, sufficiently impressed.

XXIX.

What though the earlier grooves
 Which ran the laughing loves Around thy base, no longer pause and
 press ?
 What though, about thy rim,
 Scull-things in order grim
 Grow out, in graver mood, obey the sterner stress ?

XXX.

Look not thou down but up !
To uses of a cup,
 The festal board, lamp's flash and trumpet's
 peal,
 The new wine's foaming flow,
 The Master's lips a-glow !
Thou, heaven's consummate cup, what need'st thou with earth's wheel ?

XXXI.

But I need, now as then,
 Thee, God, who moulded men ;
 And since, not even while the whirl was
 worst,
 Did I,—to the wheel of life
 With shapes and colours rife,
 Bound dizzily,—mistake my end, to slake
 Thy thirst :

XXXII.

So, take and use Thy work :
Amend what flaws may lurk,
 What strain o' the stuff, what warpings past the aim !

My times be in Thy hand !
 Perfect the cup as planned !
Let age approve of youth, and death complete the same !

A DEATH IN THE DESERT.

[SUPPOSED of Pamphylax the Antiochene :
 It is a parchment, of my rolls the fifth,
 Hath three skins glued together, is all Greek
 And goeth from Epsilon down to Mu :
 Lies second in the surnamed Chosen Chest,
 Stained and conserved with juice of terebinth,
 Covered with cloth of hair, and lettered Xi,
 From Xanthus, my wife's uncle, now at
 peace :
Mu and Epsilon stand for my own name.
 I may not write it, but I make a cross
 To show I wait His coming, with the rest,
 And leave off here : beginneth Pamphylax.]

I said, " If one should wet his lips with wine,
 " And slip the broadest plantain-leaf we find,
 " Or else the lappet of a linen robe,
 " Into the water-vessel, lay it right,
 " And cool his forehead just above the eyes,
 " The while a brother, kneeling either side,
 " Should chafe each hand and try to make it warm,—
 " He is not so far gone but he might speak."

This did not happen in the outer cave,
 Nor in the secret chamber of the rock
 Where, sixty days since the decree was out,
 We had him, bedded on a camel-skin,
 And waited for his dying all the while ;
 But in the midmost grotto : since noon's light
 Reached there a little, and we would not lose
 The last of what might happen on his face.

I at the head, and Xanthus at the feet,
 With Valens and the Boy, had lifted him,
 And brought him from the chamber in the depths,
 And laid him in the light where we might see :
 For certain smiles began about his mouth,
 And his lids moved, presageful of the end.

Beyond, and half way up the mouth o' the cave,
The Bactrian convert, having his desire,
Kept watch, and made pretence to graze a goat
That gave us milk, on rags of various herb, Plantain and quitch, the rocks' shade keeps
alive :
So that if any thief or soldier passed,
(Because the persecution was aware)
Yielding the goat up promptly with his life,
Such man might pass on, joyful at a prize,
Nor care to pry into the cool o' the cave.
Outside was all noon and the burning blue.

"Here is wine," answered Xanthus,— dropped a drop ;
I stooped and placed the lap of cloth aright,
Then chafed his right hand, and the Boy his left :
But Valens had bethought him, and produced
And broke a ball of nard, and made perfume.
Only, he did—not so much wake, as—turn
And smile a little, as a sleeper does
If any dear one call him, touch his face—
And smiles and loves, but will not be disturbed.

Then Xanthus said a prayer, but still he slept :
It is the Xanthus that escaped to Rome,
Was burned, and could not write the chronicle.

Then the Boy sprang up from his knees, and ran,
Stung by the splendour of a sudden thought,
And fetched the seventh plate of graven lead
Out of the secret chamber, found a place,
Pressing with finger on the deeper dints,
And spoke, as 'twere his mouth proclaiming
first,
"I am the Resurrection and the Life."

Whereat he opened his eyes wide at once,
And sat up of himself, and looked at us ;
And thenceforth nobody pronounced a word :
Only, outside, the Bactrian cried his cry
Like the lone desert-bird that wears the ruff,
As signal we were safe, from time to time.

First he said, "If a friend declared to me,
"This my son Valens, this my other son,
"Were James and Peter,—nay, declared as
well
"This lad was very John,—I could believe !
"—Could, for a moment, doubtlessly believe :
"So is myself withdrawn into my depths,
"The soul retreated from the perished brain
"Whence it was wont to feel and use the
world
"Through these dull members, done with long ago.
"Yet I myself remain ; I feel myself :
"And there is nothing lost. Let be, awhile !"

[This is the doctrine he was wont to teach,
How divers persons witness in each man,
Three souls which make up one soul : first,
to wit,
A soul of each and all the bodily parts,
Seated therein, which works, and is what Does,
And has the use of earth, and ends the man
Downward : but, tending upward for advice,
Grows into, and again is grown into
By the next soul, which, seated in the brain,
Useth the first with its collected use,
And feeleth, thinketh, willeth,—is what
Knows :
Which, duly tending upward in its turn,
Grows into, and again is grown into
By the last soul, that uses both the first,
Subsisting whether they assist or no,
And, constituting man's self, is what Is—
And leans upon the former, makes it play.
As that played off the first : and, tending up,
Holds, is upheld by, God, and ends the man
Upward in that dread point of intercourse,
Nor needs a place, for it returns to Him.
What Does, what Knows, what Is ; three souls, one man.

I give the glossa of Theotypas.]

And then, "A stick, once fire from end to
end ;
"Now, ashes save the tip that holds a spark !
"Yet, blow the spark, it runs back, spreads
itself

" Fed through such years, familiar with such
 light,
 " Guarded and guided still to see and speak)
 " Of new significance and fresh result ;
 " What first were guessed as points, I now knew stars,
 " And named them in the Gospel I have writ.
 " For men said, ' It is getting long ago :
 " ' Where is the promise of His coming ? '— asked
 " These young ones in their strength, as loth to wait,
 " Of me who, when their sires were born,
 was old.
 " I, for I loved them, answered, joyfully,
 " Since I was there, and helpful in my age ;
 " And, in the main, I think such men believed.
 " Finally, thus endeavouring, I fell sick,
 " Ye brought me here, and I supposed the
 end,
 " And went to sleep with one thought that,
 at least,
 " Though the whole earth should lie in wickedness,
 " We had the truth, might leave the rest to
 God.
 " Yet now I wake in such decrepitude
 " As I had slidden down and fallen afar,
 " Past even the presence of my former self,
 " Grasping the while for stay at facts which snap,
 " Till I am found away from my own world,
 " Feeling for foot-hold through a blank profound,
 " Along with unborn people in strange lands,
 " Who say—I hear said or conceive they say—
 " ' Was John at all, and did he say he saw ?
 " ' Assure us, ere we ask what he might see !'

 see—

" With me who hardly am withheld at all,
 " But shudderingly, scarce a shred between,
 " Lie bare to the universal prick of light ?
 " Is it for nothing we grow old and weak,
 " We whom God loves? When pain ends, gain ends too.
 " To me, that story—ay, that Life and Death
 " Of which I wrote ' it was '—to me, it is ;
 " —Is, here and now : I apprehend nought
 else.
 " Is not God now i' the world His power first
 made ?
 " Is not His love at issue still with sin,
 " Visibly when a wrong is done on earth ?
 " Love, wrong, and pain, what see I else
 around ?
 " Yea, and the Resurrection and Uprise
 " To the right hand of the throne—what is it beside,
 " When such truth, breaking bounds, o'er-floods my soul,
 " And, as I saw the sin and death, even so
 " See I the need yet transiency of both,
 " The good and glory consummated thence ?
 " I saw the power ; I see the Love, once weak,
 " Resume the Power : and in this word ' I
 see,'
 " Lo, there is recognized the Spirit of both
 " That moving o'er the spirit of man, unblinds
 " His eye and bids him look. These are, I
 see ;
 " But ye, the children, His beloved ones too,
 " Ye need,—as I should use an optic glass
 " I wondered at erewhile, somewhere i' the
 world,
 " It had been given a crafty smith to make :
 " A tube, he turned on objects brought too
 close,
 " Lying confusedly insubordinate
 " For the unassisted eye to master once :
 " Look through his tube, at distance now they lay,
 " Become succinct, distinct, so small, so clear !
 " Just thus, ye needs must apprehend what
 truth
 " I see, reduced to plain historic fact,
 " Diminished into clearness, proved a point

‘ And far away: ye would withdraw your sense
 ‘ From out eternity, strain it upon time, ‘ Then stand before that fact, that Life and Death,
 ‘ Stay there at gaze, till it dispart, dispread,
 ‘ As though a star should open out, all sides,
 ‘ Grow the world on you, as it is my world.
 ‘ For life, with all it yields of joy and woe,
 ‘ And hope and fear,—believe the aged
 friend,—
 ‘ Is just our chance o’ the prize of learning
 love,
 ‘ How love might be, hath been indeed, and is ;
 ‘ And that we hold thenceforth to the utter-most
 ‘ Such prize despite the envy of the world,
 ‘ And, having gained truth, keep truth: that is all.
 ‘ But see the double way wherein we are led,
 ‘ How the soul learns diversely from the flesh!
 ‘ With flesh, that hath so little time to stay,
 ‘ And yields mere basement for the soul’s emprise,
 ‘ Expect prompt teaching. Helpful was the light,
 ‘ And warmth was cherishing and food was choice
 ‘ To every man’s flesh, thousand years ago,
 ‘ As now to yours and mine; the body sprang ‘ At once to the height, and stayed: but the soul,—no!
 ‘ Since sages who, this noontide, meditate
 ‘ In Rome or Athens, may descry some point
 ‘ Of the eternal power, hid yestereve ;
 ‘ And, as thereby the power’s whole mass extends,
 ‘ So much extends the æther floating o’er,
 ‘ The love that tops the might, the Christ in God.
 ‘ Then, as new lessons shall be learned in these ‘ Till earth’s work stop and useless time run
 out,
 ‘ So duly, daily, needs provision be
 ‘ For keeping the soul’s prowess possible,

‘ Building new barriers as the old decay,
 ‘ Saving us from evasion of life’s proof,
 ‘ Putting the question ever, ‘ Does God love,
 ‘ ‘ And will ye hold that truth against the
 world?’
 ‘ Ye know there needs no second proof with good ‘ Gained for our flesh from any earthly source :
 ‘ We might go freezing, ages,—give us fire,
 ‘ Thereafter we judge fire at its full worth,
 ‘ And guard it safe through every chance, ye
 know !
 ‘ That fable of Prometheus and his theft, ‘ How mortals gained Jove’s fiery flower, grows old
 ‘ (I have been used to hear the pagans own)
 ‘ And out of mind; but fire, howe’er its birth,
 ‘ Here is it, precious to the sophist now
 ‘ Who laughs the myth of Æschylus to scorn,
 ‘ As precious to those satyrs of his play,
 ‘ Who touched it in gay wonder at the thing.
 ‘ While were it so with the soul,—this gift of truth
 ‘ Once grasped, were this our soul’s gair safe, and sure
 ‘ To prosper as the body’s gain is wont,— ‘ Why, man’s probation would conclude, his
 earth
 ‘ Crumble; for he both reasons and decides, ‘ Weighs first, then chooses: will he give up fire
 ‘ For gold or purple once he knows its worth?
 ‘ Could he give Christ up were His worth as
 plain?
 ‘ Therefore, I say, to test man, the proofs shift,
 ‘ Nor may he grasp that fact like other fact,
 ‘ And straightway in his life acknowledge it,
 ‘ As, say, the indubitable bliss of fire.
 ‘ Sigh ye, ‘ It had been easier once than now’?
 ‘ To give you answer I am left alive ;
 ‘ Look at me who was present from the first !
 ‘ Ye know what things I saw; then came a test,
 ‘ My first, befitting me who so had seen :
 ‘ ‘ Forsake the Christ thou sawest transfigured, Him

- " " Who trod the sea and brought the dead
 to life?
 " " What should wring this from thee !'—ye laugh and ask.
 " What wrung it? Even a torchlight and a noise,
 " The sudden Roman faces, violent hands,
 " And fear of what the Jews might do ! Just
 that,
 " And it is written, ' I forsook and fled :'
 " There was my trial, and it ended thus.
 " Ay, but my soul had gained its truth, could grow :
 " Another year or two,—what little child,
 " What tender woman that had seen no least
 " Of all my sights, but barely heard them told,
 " Who did not clasp the cross with a light
 laugh,
 " Or wrap the burning robe round, thanking
 God?
 " Well, was truth safe for ever, then? Not so.
 " Already had begun the silent work
 " Whereby truth, deadened of its absolute blaze,
 " Might need love's eye to pierce the o'er-stretched doubt.
 " Teachers were busy, whispering ' All is true
 " ' As the aged ones report ; but youth can reach
 " ' Where age gropes dimly, weak with stir and strain,
 " ' And the full doctrine slumbers till to-day.'
 " Thus, what the Roman's lowered spear was found,
 " A bar to me who touched and handled truth,
 " Now proved the glozing of some new shrewd tongue,
 " This Ebion, this Cerinthus or their mates,
 " Till imminent was the outcry ' Save our Christ !'
 " Whereon I stated much of the Lord's life
 " Forgotten or misdelivered, and let it work.
 " Such work done, as it will be, what comes next?
 " What do I hear say, or conceive men say,
 " ' Was John at all, and did he say he saw ?
 " ' Assure us, ere we ask what he might
 see !'
- " Is this indeed a burthen for late days,
 " And may I help to bear it with you all,
 " Using my weakness which becomes your
 strength?
 " For if a babe were born inside this grot,
 " Grew to a boy here, heard us praise the sun,
 " Yet had but yon sole glimmer in light's
 place,—
 " One loving him and wishful he should learn,
 " Would much rejoice himself was blinded
 first
 " Month by month here, so made to understand
 " How eyes, born darkling, apprehend amiss:
 " I think I could explain to such a child
 " There was more glow outside than gleams
 he caught,
 " Ay, nor need urge ' I saw it, so believe !'
 " It is a heavy burthen you shall bear
 " In latter days, new lands, or old grown
 strange,
 " Left without me, which must be very soon.
 " What is the doubt, my brothers? Quick
 with it !
 " I see you stand conversing, each new face,
 " Either in fields, of yellow summer eves,
 " On islets yet unnamed amid the sea ;
 " Or pace for shelter 'neath a portico
 " Out of the crowd in some enormous town
 " Where now the larks sing in a solitude ;
 " Or muse upon blank heaps of stone and sand
 " Idly conjectured to be Ephesus :
 " And no one asks his fellow any more
 " ' Where is the promise of His coming ?' but
 " ' Was he revealed in any of His lives,
 " ' As Power, as Love, as Influencing Soul ?'
 " Quick, for time presses, tell the whole mind
 out,
 " And let us ask and answer and be saved !
 " My book speaks on, because it cannot pass :
 " One listens quietly, nor scoffs but pleads
 " ' Here is a tale of things done ages since :
 " ' What truth was ever told the second day ?
 " ' Wonders, that would prove doctrine, go for nought.
 " ' Remains the doctrine, love ; well, we must love,

" You stick a garden-plot with ordered twigs
 " To show inside lie germs of herbs unborn,
 " And check the careless step would spoil their birth ;
 " But when herbs wave, the guardian twigs
 may go,
 " Since should ye doubt of virtues, question kinds,
 " It is no longer for old twigs ye look,
 " Which proved once underneath lay store
 of seed,
 " But to the herb's self, by what light ye boast,
 " For what fruit's signs are. This book's fruit is plain,
 " Nor miracles need prove it any more.
 " Doth the fruit show ? Then miracles bade
 'ware
 " At first of root and stem, saved both till now
 " From trampling ox, rough boar and wanton
 goat.
 " What ? Was man made a wheelwork to wind up,
 " And be discharged, and straight wound up anew ?
 " No !—grown, his growth lasts ; taught, he ne'er forgets :
 " May learn a thousand things, not twice
 the same.

 " This might be pagan teaching : now hear
 mine.

 " I say, that as the babe, you feed awhile,
 " Becomes a boy and fit to feed himself,
 " So, minds at first must be spoon-fed with
 truth :
 " When they can eat, babe's-nurture is withdrawn.
 " I fed the babe whether it would or no :
 " I bid the boy or feed himself or starve.
 " I cried once, ' That ye may believe in Christ,
 " ' Behold this blind man shall receive his
 sight !'
 " I cry now, ' Urgest thou, for I am shrewd
 " ' And smile at stories how John's word could cure—
 " ' Repeat that miracle and take my faith ?'
 " I say, that miracle was duly wrought

" When, save for it, no faith was possible.
 " Whether a change were wrought i' the shows o' the world,
 " Whether the change came from our minds which see
 " Of shows o' the world so much as and no more " Than God wills for His purpose,—(what do I
 " See now, suppose you, there where you see
 rock
 " Round us ?)—I know not ; such was the effect,
 " So faith grew, making void more miracles
 " Because too much : they would compel,
 not help.
 " I say, the acknowledgment of God in Christ
 " Accepted by thy reason, solves for thee
 " All questions in the earth and out of it,
 " And has so far advanced thee to be wise.
 " Wouldst thou unprove this to re-prove the proved ?
 " In life's mere minute, with power to use that proof,
 " Leave knowledge and revert to how it sprung ?
 " Thou hast it ; use it and forthwith, or die !

 " For I say, this is death and the sole death,
 " When a man's loss comes to him from his
 gain,
 " Darkness from light, from knowledge
 ignorance,
 " And lack of love from love made manifest ;
 " A lamp's death when, replete with oil, it chokes ;
 " A stomach's when, surcharged with food,
 it starves.
 " With ignorance was surety of a cure.
 " When man, appalled at nature, questioned
 first
 " ' What if there lurk a might behind this might ?'
 " He needed satisfaction God could give,
 " And did give, as ye have the written word :
 " But when he finds might still redouble might,
 " Yet asks, ' Since all is might, what use of
 will ?'
 " —Will, the one source of might,—he being
 man

" With a man's will and a man's might, to teach
 " In little how the two combine in large,—
 " That man has turned round on himself and stands,
 " Which in the course of nature is, to die.

 " And when man questioned, ' What if there be love
 " ' Behind the will and might, as real as they? '—
 " He needed satisfaction God could give,
 " And did give, as ye have the written word :
 " But when, beholding that love everywhere,
 " He reasons, ' Since such love is everywhere,
 " ' And since ourselves can love and would
 be loved,
 " ' We ourselves make the love, and Christ was not, '—
 " How shall ye help this man who knows
 himself,
 " That he must love and would be loved
 again,
 " Yet, owning his own love that proveth
 Christ,
 " Rejecteth Christ through very need of Him?
 " The lamp o'erswims with oil, the stomach flags
 " Loaded with nurture, and that man's soul dies.

 " If he rejoin, ' But this was all the while
 " ' A trick ; the fault was, first of all, in thee,
 " ' Thy story of the places, names and dates,
 " ' Where, when and how the ultimate truth had rise,
 " ' —Thy prior truth, at last discovered none,
 " ' Whence now the second suffers detriment.
 " ' What good of giving knowledge if,
 because
 " ' O' the manner of the gift, its profit fail?
 " ' And why refuse what modicum of help
 " ' Had stopped the after-doubt, impossible
 " ' I' the face of truth—truth absolute, uniform?
 " ' Why must I hit of this and miss of that,
 " ' Distinguish just as I be weak or strong,
 " ' And not ask of thee and have answer
 prompt,

" ' Was this once, was it not once?—then
 and now
 " ' And evermore, plain truth from man to
 man.
 " ' Is John's procedure just the heathen bard's?
 " ' Put question of his famous play again
 " ' How for the ephemerals' sake Jove's fire was filched,
 " ' And carried in a cane and brought to
 earth :
 " ' The fact is in the fable, cry the wise,
 " ' Mortals obtained the boon, so much is fact,
 " ' Though fire be spirit and produced on
 earth.
 " ' As with the Titan's, so now with thy tale :
 " ' Why breed in us perplexity, mistake,
 " ' Nor tell the whole truth in the proper
 words?'

 " I answer, Have ye yet to argue out
 " The very primal thesis, plainest law,
 " —Man is not God but hath God's end to serve,
 " A master to obey, a course to take,
 " Somewhat to cast off, somewhat to become?
 " Grant this, then man must pass from old to new,
 " From vain to real, from mistake to fact,
 " From what once seemed good, to what now proves best.
 " How could man have progression otherwise?
 " Before the point was mooted ' What is
 God?'
 " No savage man inquired ' What am
 myself?'
 " Much less replied, ' First, last, and best of things.'
 " Man takes that title now if he believes
 " Might can exist with neither will nor love,
 " In God's case—what he names now Nature's Law—
 " While in himself he recognizes love
 " No less than might and will : and rightly takes.
 " Since if man prove the sole existent thing
 " Where these combine, whatever their degree,

" However weak the might or will or love,
 " So they be found there, put in evidence,—
 " He is as surely higher in the scale
 " Than any might with neither love nor will,
 " As life, apparent in the poorest midge,
 " (When the faint dust-speck flits, ye guess its wing)
 " Is marvellous beyond dead Atlas' self—
 " Given to the nobler midge for resting-
 place !
 " Thus, man proves best and highest—God,
 in fine,
 " And thus the victory leads but to defeat,
 " The gain to loss, best rise to the worst fall,
 " His life becomes impossible, which is
 death.

 " But if, appealing thence, he cower, avouch
 " He is mere man, and in humility
 " Neither may know God nor mistake
 himself ;
 " I point to the immediate consequence
 " And say, by such confession straight he falls
 " Into man's place, a thing nor God nor beast,
 " Made to know that he can know and not
 more :
 " Lower than God who knows all and can all,
 " Higher than beasts which know and can so far
 " As each beast's limit, perfect to an end,
 " Nor conscious that they know, nor craving
 more ;
 " While man knows partly but conceives
 beside,
 " Creeps ever on from fancies to the fact,
 " And in this striving, this converting air
 " Into a solid he may grasp and use,
 " Finds progress, man's distinctive mark
 alone,
 " Not God's, and not the beasts' : God is,
 they are,
 " Man partly is and wholly hopes to be.
 " Such progress could no more attend his
 soul
 " Were all it struggles after found at first
 " And guesses changed to knowledge absolute,

" Than motion wait his body, were all else
 " Than it the solid earth on every side,
 " Where now through space he moves from rest to rest.
 " Man, therefore, thus conditioned, must expect
 " He could not, what he knows now, know at first ;
 " What he considers that he knows to-day,
 " Come but to-morrow, he will find mis-
 known ;
 " Getting increase of knowledge, since he learns
 " Because he lives, which is to be a man,
 " Set to instruct himself by his past self :
 " First, like the brute, obliged by facts to learn,
 " Next, as man may, obliged by his own mind,
 " Bent, habit, nature, knowledge turned to law.
 " God's gift was that man should conceive of
 truth
 " And yearn to gain it, catching at mistake,
 " As midway help till he reach fact indeed.
 " The statuary ere he mould a shape
 " Boasts a like gift, the shape's idea, and next
 " The aspiration to produce the same ;
 " So, taking clay, he calls his shape thereout.
 " Cries ever ' Now I have the thing I see' :
 " Yet all the while goes changing what was wrought,
 " From falsehood like the truth, to truth it-
 self.
 " How were it had he cried ' I see no face,
 " ' No breast, no feet i' the ineffectual clay' ?
 " Rather commend him that he clapped his
 hands,
 " And laughed ' It is my shape and lives
 again !'
 " Enjoyed the falsehood, touched it on to
 truth,
 " Until yourselves applaud the flesh indeed
 " In what is still flesh-imitating clay.
 " Right in you, right in him, such way be man's !
 " God only makes the live shape at a jet.
 " Will ye renounce this pact of creatureship ?
 " The pattern on the Mount subsists no more,

With elbows wide, fists clenched to prop his chin.

And, while he kicks both feet in the cool slush,
And feels about his spine small eft-things
course,

Run in and out each arm, and make him laugh :
And while above his head a pompion-plant,
Coating the cave-top as a brow its eye,
Creeps down to touch and tickle hair and beard,
And now a flower drops with a bee inside,
And now a fruit to snap at, catch and crunch,—
He looks out o'er yon sea which sunbeams
cross

And recross till they weave a spider-web (Meshes of fire, some great fish breaks at times)

And talks to his own self, howe'er he please,
Touching that other, whom his dam called
God.

Because to talk about Him, vexes—ha,
Could He but know ! and time to vex is now,
When talk is safer than in winter-time.
Moreover Prosper and Miranda sleep
In confidence he drudges at their task,
And it is good to cheat the pair, and gibe,
Letting the rank tongue blossom into speech.]

Setebos, Setebos, and Setebos !

'Thinketh, He dwelleth i' the cold o' the moon.

'Thinketh He made it, with the sun to match,
But not the stars ; the stars came otherwise ;
Only made clouds, winds, meteors, such as
that :

Also this isle, what lives and grows thereon,
And snaky sea which rounds and ends the
same.

'Thinketh, it came of being ill at ease :
He hated that He cannot change His cold,
Nor cure its ache. 'Hath spied an icy fish
That longed to 'scape the rock-stream where she lived,

And thaw herself within the lukewarm brine
O' the lazy sea her stream thrusts far amid,
A crystal spike 'twixt two warm walls of wave ;
Only, she ever sickened, found repulse

At the other kind of water, not her life, (Green-dense and dim-delicious, bred o' the sun)

Flounced back from bliss she was not born to breathe,

And in her old bounds buried her despair,
Hating and loving warmth alike : so He.

'Thinketh, He made thereat the sun, this isle, Trees and the fowls here, beast and creeping
thing.

Yon otter, sleek-wet, black, lithe as a leech ;
Yon auk, one fire-eye in a ball of foam,
That floats and feeds ; a certain badger brown
He hath watched hunt with that slant white-wedge eye

By moonlight ; and the pie with the long tongue

That pricks deep into oakwarts for a worm,
And says a plain word when she finds her
prize,

But will not eat the ants ; the ants themselves
That build a wall of seeds and settled stalks
About their hole—He made all these and
more,

Made all we see, and us, in spite : how else ?
He could not, Himself, make a second self
To be His mate ; as well have made Himself:
He would not make what he dislikes or slights,

An eyesore to Him, or not worth His pains :
But did, in envy, listlessness or sport,
Make what Himself would fain, in a manner,
be—

Weaker in most points, stronger in a few,
Worthy, and yet mere playthings all the
while,

Things He admires and mocks too, — that
is it.

Because, so brave, so better though they be,
It nothing skills if He begin to plague.

Look now, I melt a gourd-fruit into mash,
Add honeycomb and pods, I have perceived,
Which bite like finches when they bill and kiss,—

Then, when froth rises bladdery, drink up all,
Quick, quick, till maggots scamper through my brain ;

Last, throw me on my back i' the seeded thyme,
And wanton, wishing I were born a bird.
Put case, unable to be what I wish,
I yet could make a live bird out of clay :
Would not I take clay, pinch my Caliban
Able to fly?—for, there, see, he hath wings,
And great comb like the hoopoe's to admire,
And there, a sting to do his foes offence,
There, and I will that he begin to live,
Fly to yon rock-top, nip me off the horns
Of grigs high up that make the merry din, Saucy through their veined wings, and mind me not.

In which feat, if his leg snapped, brittle clay,
And he lay stupid-like,—why, I should laugh ;
And if he, spying me, should fall to weep,
Beseech me to be good, repair his wrong,
Bid his poor leg smart less or grow again,—
Well, as the chance were, this might take or else

Not take my fancy : I might hear his cry,
And give the mankin three sound legs for
one,

Or pluck the other off, leave him like an egg,
And lessoned he was mine and merely clay.

Were this no pleasure, lying in the thyme,
Drinking the mash, with brain become alive,
Making and marring clay at will? So He.

'Thinketh, such shows nor right nor wrong
in Him,

Nor kind, nor cruel : He is strong and Lord.
'Am strong myself compared to yonder crabs
That march now from the mountain to the sea ;
'Let twenty pass, and stone the twenty-first,
Loving not, hating not, just choosing so.

'Say, the first straggler that boasts purple spots

Shall join the file, one pincer twisted off ;

'Say, this bruised fellow shall receive a worm,
And two worms he whose nippers end in red ;
As it likes me each time, I do : so He.

Well then, 'supposeth He is good i' the main,
Placable if His mind and ways were guessed,
But rougher than His handiwork, be sure !

Oh, He hath made things worthier than
Himself,
And envieth that, so helped, such things do
more

Than He who made them ! What consoles but this ?

That they, unless through Him, do nought
at all,

And must submit : what other use in things ?
'Hath cut a pipe of pithless elder-joint
That, blown through, gives exact the scream
o' the jay

When from her wing you twitch the feathers
blue :

Sound this, and little birds that hate the jay Flock within stone's throw, glad their foe is hurt :

Put case such pipe could prattle and boast
forsooth

"I catch the birds, I am the crafty thing,

"I make the cry my maker cannot make

"With his great round mouth ; he must blow through mine !"

Would not I smash it with my foot? So He.

But wherefore rough, why cold and ill at ease ?

Aha, that is a question ! Ask, for that,
What knows,—the something over Setebos
That made Him, or He, may be, found and fought,

Worsted, drove off and did to nothing, per-
chance.

There may be something quiet o'er His head,
Out of His reach, that feels nor joy nor grief,
Since both derive from weakness in some way.
I joy because the quails come ; would not joy Could I bring quails here when I have a
mind :

This Quiet, all it hath a mind to, doth.

'Esteemeth stars the outposts of its couch,
But never spends much thought nor care that way.

It may look up, work up,—the worse for those
It works on ! 'Careth but for Setebos

The many-handed as a cuttle-fish,
Who, making Himself feared through what
He does,

Looks up, first, and perceives he cannot soar
To what is quiet and hath happy life ;
Next looks down here, and out of very spite
Makes this a bauble-world to ape yon real,
These good things to match those as hips do grapes.

'Tis solace making baubles, ay, and sport.
Himself peeped late, eyed Prosper at his
books

Careless and lofty, lord now of the isle :
Vexed, 'stitched a book of broad leaves,
arrow-shaped,

Wrote thereon, he knows what, prodigious
words ;

Has peeled a wand and called it by a name ;
Wearth at whiles for an enchanter's robe

The eyed skin of a supple oncelot ;
And hath an ounce sleeker than youngling
mole,

A four-legged serpent he makes cower and
couch,

Now snarl, now hold its breath and mind
his eye,

And saith she is Miranda and my wife :

'Keeps for his Ariel a tall pouch-bill crane
He bids go wade for fish and straight disgorge ;

Also a sea-beast, lumpish, which he snared, Blinded the eyes of, and brought somewhat tame,

And split its toe-webs, and now pens the
drudge

In a hole o' the rock and calls him Caliban ;
A bitter heart that bides its time and bites.

'Plays thus at being Prosper in a way,
Taket h his mirth with make-believes : so He.

His dam held that the Quiet made all things
Which Setebos vexed only : 'holds not so.

Who made them weak, meant weakness He might vex.

Had He meant other, while His hand was in,
Why not make horny eyes no thorn could
prick,

Or plate my scalp with bone against the snow,
Or overscale my flesh 'neath joint and joint,
Like an orc's armour? Ay,—so spoil His sport!

He is the One now : only He doth all.

'Saith, He may like, perchance, what profits
Him.

Ay, himself loves what does him good ; but
why?

'Gets good no otherwise. This blinded beast
Loves whoso places flesh-meat on his nose,
But, had he eyes, would want no help, but
hate

Or love, just as it liked him : He hath eyes.
Also it pleaseth Setebos to work,

Use all His hands, and exercise much craft,
By no means for the love of what is worked.

'Tasteth, himself, no finer good i' the world
When all goes right, in this safe summer-time,
And he wants little, hungers, aches not much,
Than trying what to do with wit and strength.

'Falls to make something : 'piled yon pile of turfs,

And squared and stuck there squares of soft white chalk,

And, with a fish-tooth, scratched a moon on
each,

And set up endwise certain spikes of tree,
And crowned the whole with a sloth's skull
a-top,

Found dead i' the woods, too hard for one to kill.

No use at all i' the work, for work's sole sake:
'Shall some day knock it down again : so He.

'Saith He is terrible : watch His feats in proof!

One hurricane will spoil six good months'
hope.

He hath a spite against me, that I know,
Just as He favours Prosper, who knows why?
So it is, all the same, as well I find.

'Wove wattles half the winter, fenced them firm

With stone and stake to stop she-tortoises
Crawling to lay their eggs here : well, one
wave,

Feeling the foot of Him upon its neck,
Gaped as a snake does, lolled out its large
tongue,

And licked the whole labour flat : so much for spite.

'Saw a ball flame down late (yonder it lies)

And conquer Setebos, or likelier He Decrepit may doze, doze, as good as die.

[What, what? A curtain o'er the world at
once!

Crickets stop hissing; not a bird—or, yes,
There scuds His raven that has told Him all!
It was fool's play, this prattling! Ha! The
wind

Shoulders the pillared dust, death's house o'
the move,

And fast invading fires begin! White
blaze—

A tree's head snaps—and there, there, there,
there, there,

His thunder follows! Fool to gibe at Him!
Lo! 'Lieth flat and loveth Setebos!

'Maketh his teeth meet through his upper lip,
Will let those quails fly, will not eat this month
One little mess of whelks, so he may 'scape!]

CONFESSIONS.

I.

WHAT is he buzzing in my ears?
“Now that I come to die,
“Do I view the world as a vale of tears?”
Ah, reverend sir, not I!

II.

What I viewed there once, what I view again
Where the physic bottles stand
On the table's edge,—is a suburb lane,
With a wall to my bedside hand.

III.

That lane sloped, much as the bottles do,
From a house you could descry
O'er the garden-wall: is the curtain blue
Or green to a healthy eye?

IV.

To mine, it serves for the old June weather
Blue above lane and wall;
And that farthest bottle labelled “Ether”
Is the house o'ertopping all.

V.

At a terrace, somewhere near the stopper,
There watched for me, one June,
A girl: I know, sir, it's improper,
My poor mind's out of tune.

VI.

Only, there was a way . . . you crept
Close by the side, to dodge Eyes in the house, two eyes except:
They styled their house “The Lodge.”

VII.

What right had a lounge up their lane?
But, by creeping very close,
With the good wall's help,—their eyes might strain
And stretch themselves to Oes,

VIII.

Yet never catch her and me together,
As she left the attic, there,
By the rim of the bottle labelled “Ether,”
And stole from stair to stair,

IX.

And stood by the rose-wreathed gate.
Alas,
We loved, sir—used to meet:
How sad and bad and mad it was—
But then, how it was sweet!

MAY AND DEATH.

I.

I WISH that when you died last May,
Charles, there had died along with you
Three parts of spring's delightful things;
Ay, and, for me, the fourth part too.

II.

A foolish thought, and worse, perhaps!
There must be many a pair of friends
Who, arm in arm, deserve the warm
Moon-births and the long evening-ends.

III.

So, for their sake, be May still May !
 Let their new time, as mine of old,
 Do all it did for me : I bid
 Sweet sights and sounds throng manifold.

IV.

Only, one little sight, one plant,
 Woods have in May, that starts up green
 Save a sole streak which, so to speak,
 Is spring's blood, spilt its leaves between,—

V.

That, they might spare ; a certain wood
 Might miss the plant ; their loss were small :
 But I,—whene'er the leaf grows there,
 Its drop comes from my heart, that's all.

DEAF AND DUMB.

A GROUP BY WOOLNER.

ONLY the prism's obstruction shows aright
 The secret of a sunbeam, breaks its light
 Into the jewelled bow from blankest white ;
 So may a glory from defect arise :
 Only by Deafness may the vexed Love wreak
 Its insuppressive sense on brow and cheek,
 Only by Dumbness adequately speak
 As favoured mouth could never, through the eyes.

PROSPICE.

FEAR death?—to feel the fog in my throat,
 The mist in my face,
 When the snows begin, and the blasts denote
 I am nearing the place,
 The power of the night, the press of the storm,
 The post of the foe ;
 Where he stands, the Arch Fear in a visible
 form,
 Yet the strong man must go :
 For the journey is done and the summit
 attained,
 And the barriers fall,

Though a battle's to fight ere the guerdon be gained,
 The reward of it all.
 I was ever a fighter, so—one fight more,
 The best and the last !
 I would hate that death bandaged my eyes,
 and forbore,
 And bade me creep past.
 No ! let me taste the whole of it, fare like my peers
 The heroes of old,
 Bear the brunt, in a minute pay glad life's arrears
 Of pain, darkness and cold.
 For sudden the worst turns the best to the brave,
 The black minute's at end,
 And the elements' rage, the fiend-voices that rave,
 Shall dwindle, shall blend,
 Shall change, shall become first a peace out of pain,
 Then a light, then thy breast,
 O thou soul of my soul ! I shall clasp thee
 again,
 And with God be the rest !

EURYDICE TO ORPHEUS.

A PICTURE BY LEIGHTON.

BUT give them me, the mouth, the eyes, the
 brow !
 Let them once more absorb me ! One look now
 Will lap me round for ever, not to pass
 Out of its light, though darkness lie beyond :
 Hold me but safe again within the bond
 Of one immortal look ! All woe that was.
 Forgotten, and all terror that may be,
 Defied,—no past is mine, no future : look at
 me !

YOUTH AND ART.

I.

IT once might have been, once only :
 We lodged in a street together,
 You, a sparrow on the housetop lonely,
 I, a lone she-bird of his feather.

II.

Your trade was with sticks and clay,
 You thumbed, thrust, patted and polished,
 Then laughed "They will see some day
 "Smith made, and Gibson demolished."

III.

My business was song, song, song ;
 I chirped, cheeped, trilled and twittered,
 "Kate Brown's on the boards ere long,
 "And Grisi's existence embittered !"

IV.

I earned no more by a warble
 Than you by a sketch in plaster ;
 You wanted a piece of marble,
 I needed a music-master.

V.

We studied hard in our styles,
 Chipped each at a crust like Hindoos,
 For air looked out on the tiles,
 For fun watched each other's windows.

VI.

You lounged, like a boy of the South,
 Cap and blouse—nay, a bit of beard too ;
 Or you got it, rubbing your mouth
 With fingers the clay adhered to.

VII.

And I—soon managed to find
 Weak points in the flower-fence facing,
 Was forced to put up a blind
 And be safe in my corset-lacing.

VIII.

No harm ! It was not my fault
 If you never turned your eye's tail up
 As I shook upon E in alt,
 Or ran the chromatic scale up :

IX.

For spring bade the sparrows pair,
 And the boys and girls gave guesses,
 And stalls in our street looked rare
 With bulrush and watercresses.

X.

Why did not you pinch a flower
 In a pellet of clay and fling it ?
 Why did not I put a power
 Of thanks in a look, or sing it ?

XI.

I did look, sharp as a lynx,
 (And yet the memory rankles)
 When models arrived, some minx
 Tripped up-stairs, she and her ankles

XII.

But I think I gave you as good !
 "That foreign fellow,—who can know
 "How she pays, in a playful mood,
 "For his tuning her that piano ?"

XIII.

Could you say so, and never say
 "Suppose we join hands and fortunes
 "And I fetch her from over the way,
 "Her, piano, and long tunes and short tunes ?"

XIV.

No, no : you would not be rash,
 Nor I rasher and something over :
 You've to settle yet Gibson's hash,
 And Grisi yet lives in clover.

XV.

But you meet the Prince at the Board,
 I'm queen myself at bals-parté,
 I've married a rich old lord,
 And you're dubbed knight and an R.A.

XVI.

Each life unfulfilled, you see ;
 It hangs still, patchy and scrappy :
 We have not sighed deep, laughed free.
 Starved, feasted, despaired,—been happy

XVII.

And nobody calls you a dunce,
 And people suppose me clever :
 This could but have happened once,
 And we missed it, lost it for ever.

After we've turned over twenty,
 And the debt of wonder my crony owes
 Is paid to my Marc Antonios,¹
 He stops me—" Festina lentè!
 "What's that sweet thing there, the etching?"
 How my waistcoat-strings want stretching,
 How my cheeks grow red as tomatos,
 How my heart leaps! But hearts, after leaps, ache.

"By the by, you must take, for a keepsake,
 "That other, you praised, of Volpato's."¹
 The fool! would he try a flight further and
 say—

He never saw, never before to-day,
 What was able to take his breath away,
 A face to lose youth for, to occupy age
 With the dream of, meet death with,—why,
 I'll not engage
 But that, half in a rapture and half in a rage,
 I should toss him the thing's self—" 'Tis only a duplicate,
 "A thing of no value! Take it, I supplicate!"

MR. SLUDGE, "THE MEDIUM."

Now, don't, sir! Don't expose me! Just this once!

This was the first and only time, I'll swear,—
 Look at me,—see, I kneel,—the only time,
 I swear, I ever cheated,—yes, by the soul
 Of Her who hears—(your sainted mother,
 sir!)

All, except this last accident, was truth—
 This little kind of slip!—and even this,
 It was your own wine, sir, the good champagne,
 (I took it for Catawba, you're so kind)
 Which put the folly in my head!

"Get up?"

You still inflict on me that terrible face?
 You show no mercy?—Not for Her dear sake,
 The sainted spirit's, whose soft breath even
 now

¹ Engravers, held in repute by collectors.

Blows on my cheek—(don't you feel something, sir?)
 You'll tell?

Go tell, then! Who the devil cares
 What such a rowdy chooses to . . .

Aie—aie—aie!

Please, sir! your thumbs are through my windpipe, sir!

Ch—ch!

Well, sir, I hope you've done it now!
 Oh Lord! I little thought, sir, yesterday,
 When your departed mother spoke those
 words

Of peace through me, and moved you, sir,
 so much,

You gave me—(very kind it was of you)
 These shirt-studs—(better take them back
 again,

Please, sir)—yes, little did I think so soon
 A trifle of trick, all through a glass too much Of his own champagne, would change my best of friends

Into an angry gentleman!

Though, 'twas wrong.

I don't contest the point; your anger's just:
 Whatever put such folly in my head,
 I know 'twas wicked of me. There's a thick
 Dusk undeveloped spirit (I've observed)

Owes me a grudge—a negro's, I should say,
 Or else an Irish emigrant's; yourself

Explained the case so well last Sunday, sir,
 When we had summoned Franklin to clear up
 A point about those shares i' the telegraph:

Ay, and he swore . . . or might it be Tom Paine? . . .

Thumping the table close by where I crouched,
 He'd do me soon a mischief: that's come
 true!

Why, now your face clears! I was sure it would!

Then, this one time . . . don't take your hand away,

Through yours I surely kiss your mother's
 hand . . .

You'll promise to forgive me?—or, at least,

Tell nobody of this? Consider, sir!
 What harm can mercy do? Would but the shade
 Of the venerable dead—one just vouchsafe
 A rap or tip! What bit of paper's here?
 Suppose we take a pencil, let her write,
 Make the least sign, she urges on her child Forgiveness? There now! Eh? Oh! 'Twas your foot,
 And not a natural creak, sir?

Answer, then!

Once, twice, thrice . . . see, I'm waiting to say "thrice!"
 All to no use? No sort of hope for me?
 It's all to post to Greeley's newspaper?
 What? If I told you all about the tricks?
 Upon my soul!—the whole truth, and nought
 else,
 And how there's been some falsehood—for
 your part,
 Will you engage to pay my passage out,
 And hold your tongue until I'm safe on board?
 England's the place, not Boston—no offence!
 I see what makes you hesitate: don't fear!
 I mean to change my trade and cheat no more,
 Yes, this time really it's upon my soul!
 Be my salvation!—under Heaven, of course.
 I'll tell some queer things. Sixty Vs must do.
 A trifle, though, to start with! We'll refer
 The question to this table?

How you're changed!

Then split the difference; thirty more, we'll
 say.
 Ay, but you leave my presents! Else I'll swear
 'Twas all through those: you wanted yours
 again,
 So, picked a quarrel with me, to get them
 back!
 Tread on a worm, it turns, sir! If I turn,
 Your fault! 'Tis you'll have forced me!
 Who's obliged
 To give up life yet try no self-defence?
 At all events, I'll run the risk. Eh?

Done!

May I sit, sir? This dear old table, now!
 Please, sir, a parting egg-nogg and cigar!
 I've been so happy with you! Nice stuffed chairs,
 And sympathetic sideboards; what an end
 To all the instructive evenings! (It's alright.)
 Well, nothing lasts, as Bacon came and said.
 Here goes,—but keep your temper, or I'll scream!

Fol-lol-the-rido-liddle-iddle-ol!

You see, sir, it's your own fault more than
 mine;
 It's all your fault, you curious gentlefolk!
 You're prigs,—excuse me,—like to look so spry,
 So clever, while you cling by half a claw
 To the perch whereon you puff yourselves at roost,
 Such piece of self-conceit as serves for perch
 Because you chose it, so it must be safe.
 Oh, otherwise you're sharp enough! You spy
 Who slips, who slides, who holds by help of wing,
 Wanting real foothold,—who can't keep upright
 On the other perch, your neighbour chose,
 not you:
 There's no outwitting you respecting him!
 For instance, men love money—that, you
 know
 And what men do to gain it: well, suppose
 A poor lad, say a help's son in your house,
 Listening at keyholes, hears the company
 Talk grand of dollars, V-notes, and so forth,
 How hard they are to get, how good to hold,
 How much they buy,—if, suddenly, in pops
 he—
 "I've got a V-note!"—what do you say to
 him?
 What's your first word which follows your last kick?
 "Where did you steal it, rascal?" That's because
 He finds you, fain would fool you, off your perch,

Not on the special piece of nonsense, sir,
 Elected your parade-ground : let him try
 Lies to the end of the list,—“ He picked it up, “ His cousin died and left it him by will,
 “ The President flung it to him, riding by,
 “ An actress trucked it for a curl of his hair,
 “ He dreamed of luck and found his shoe enriched,
 “ He dug up clay, and out of clay made
 gold ”—

How would you treat such possibilities?
 Would not you, prompt, investigate the case
 With cow-hide? “ Lies, lies, lies,” you’d shout : and why?

Which of the stories might not prove mere
 truth?

This last, perhaps, that clay was turned to coin !

Let’s see, now, give him me to speak for him !
 How many of your rare philosophers,
 In plaguy books I’ve had to dip into,
 Believed gold could be made thus, saw it
 made

And made it? Oh, with such philosophers You’re on your best behaviour ! While the lad—

With him, in a trice, you settle likelihoods,
 Nor doubt a moment how he got his prize :
 In his case, you hear, judge and execute,
 All in a breath : so would most men of sense.

But let the same lad hear you talk as grand
 At the same keyhole, you and company,
 Of signs and wonders, the invisible world ;
 How wisdom scouts our vulgar unbelief
 More than our vulgarest credulity ;
 How good men have desired to see a ghost,
 What Johnson used to say, what Wesley did,
 Mother Goose thought, and fiddle-diddle-dee :—

If he break in with, “ Sir, I saw a ghost ! ”
 Ah, the ways change ! He finds you perched and prim ;

It’s a conceit of yours that ghosts may be :
 There’s no talk now of cow-hide. “ Tell it
 out !

“ Don’t fear us ! Take your time and recollect !

“ Sit down first : try a glass of wine, my boy !

“ And, David, (is not that your Christian
 name ?)

“ Of all things, should this happen twice—it may—

“ Be sure, while fresh in mind, you let us
 know ! ”

Does the boy blunder, blurt out this, blab that,
 Break down in the other, as beginners will?
 All’s candour, all’s considerateness — “ No
 haste !

“ Pause and collect yourself ! We understand !

“ That’s the bad memory, or the natural shock.

“ Or the unexplained phenomena ! ”

Egad,

The boy takes heart of grace ; finds, never
 fear,

The readiest way to ope your own heart wide.
 Show—what I call your peacock-perch, per post

To strut, and spread the tail, and squawk upon !

“ Just as you thought, much as you might expect !

“ There be more things in heaven and earth, Horatio,” . . .

And so on. Shall not David take the hint, Grow bolder, stroke you down at quickened rate ?

If he ruffle a feather, it’s “ Gently, patiently :

“ Manifestations are so weak at first !

“ Doubting, moreover, kills them, cuts all
 short,

“ Cures with a vengeance ! ”

There, sir, that’s your style !

You and your boy—such pains bestowed on
 him,

Or any headpiece of the average worth,
 To teach, say, Greek, would perfect him apace.
 Make him a Person (“ Porson ? ” thank you.
 sir !)

Much more, proficient in the art of lies.
 You never leave the lesson ! Fire a light,
 Catch you permitting it to die ! You’ve friends :
 There’s no withholding knowledge,—least from those

That laws exclaim at, save the devil's own,
Yet screwed him into henceforth gulling you
To the topo' your bent,—all out of one half-lie!

You hold, if there's one half or a hundredth part
Of a lie, that's his fault,—his be the penalty!
I dare say! You'd prove firmer in his place?
You'd find the courage,—that first flurry over,
That mild bit of romancing-work at end,—
To interpose with "It gets serious, this;

"Must stop here. Sir, I saw no ghost at all.
"Inform your friends I made . . . well,
fools of them,

"And found you ready-made. I've lived in clover

"These three weeks: take it out in kicks of me!"

I doubt it. Ask your conscience! Let me
know,

Twelve months hence, with how few em-bellishments

You've told almighty Boston of this passage
Of arms between us, your first taste o' the foil

From Sludge who could not fence, sir!
Sludge, your boy!

I lied, sir,—there! I got up from my gorge
On offal in the gutter, and preferred
Your canvas-backs: I took their carver's size,
Measured his modicum of intelligence,
Tickled him on the cockles of his heart
With a raven feather, and next week found myself

Sweet and clean, dining daintily, dized
smart,

Set on a stool buttressed by ladies' knees,
Every soft smiler calling me her pet,
Encouraging my story to uncoil

And creep out from its hole, inch after inch,
"How last night, I no sooner snug in bed,
"Tucked up, just as they left me,—than came raps!

"While a light whisked" . . . "Shaped somewhat like a star?"

"Well, like some sort of stars, ma'am."—
"So we thought!

"And any voice? Not yet? Try hard,
next time,

"If you can't hear a voice; we think you
may:

"At least, the Pennsylvanian 'mediums'
did."

Oh, next time comes the voice! "Just as we hoped!"

Are not the hoppers proud now, pleased, profuse

O' the natural acknowledgment?

Of course!

So, off we push, illy-oh-yo, trim the boat,
On we sweep with a cataract ahead,
We're midway to the Horseshoe: stop, who can,

The dance of bubbles gay about our prow!
Experiences become worth waiting for,
Spirits now speak up, tell their inmost mind,
And compliment the "medium" properly,
Concern themselves about his Sunday coat, See rings on his hand with pleasure. Ask yourself

How you'd receive a course of treats like these!

Why, take the quietest hack and stall him up,
Cram him with corn a month, then out with
him

Among his mates on a bright April morn,
With the turf to tread; see if you find or no
A caper in him, if he bucks or bolts!
Much more a youth whose fancies sprout as rank

As toadstool-clump from melon-bed. 'Tis soon,

"Sirrah, you spirit, come, go, fetch and carry.
"Read, write, rap, rub-a-dub, and hang yourself!"

I'm spared all further trouble; all's arranged:
Your circle does my business; I may rave
Like an epileptic dervish in the books, Foam, fling myself flat, rend my clothes to shreds;

No matter: lovers, friends and countrymen
Will lay down spiritual laws, read wrong things right

By the rule o' reverse. If Francis Verulam Styles himself Bacon, spells the name beside
With a y and a k, says he drew breath in York.

Gave up the ghost in Wales when Cromwell reigned,
(As, sir, we somewhat fear he was apt to say,
Before I found the useful book that knows) Why, what harm's done? The circle smiles apace,
"It was not Bacon, after all, you see!
"We understand; the trick's but natural:
"Such spirits' individuality
"Is hard to put in evidence: they incline
"To gibe and jeer, these undeveloped sorts.
"You see, their world's much like a jail broke loose,
"While this of ours remains shut, bolted, barred,
"With a single window to it. Sludge, our
friend,
"Serves as this window, whether thin or
thick,
"Or stained or stainless; he's the medium-pane
"Through which, to see us and be seen, they peep:
"They crowd each other, hustle for a chance,
"Tread on their neighbour's kibes, play tricks enough!
"Does Bacon, tired of waiting, swerve aside?
"Up in his place jumps Barnum—"I'm your
man,
" "I'll answer you for Bacon!" Try once
more!"

Or else it's—"What's a 'medium'? He's a means,
"Good, bad, indifferent, still the only means
"Spirits can speak by; he may misconceive,
"Stutter and stammer,—he's their Sludge and drudge,
"Take him or leave him; they must hold their peace,
"Or else, put up with having knowledge strained
"To half-expression through his ignorance.
"Suppose, the spirit Beethoven wants to shed
"New music he's brimful of; why, he turns
"The handle of this organ, grinds with Sludge,
"And what he poured in at the mouth o' the mill

"As a Thirty-third Sonata, (fancy now!)
"Comes from the hopper as bran-new Sludge, nought else,
"The Shakers' Hymn in G, with a natural F, "Or the 'Stars and Stripes' set to consecutive fourths."

Sir, where's the scrape you did not help me
through,
You that are wise? And for the fools, the folk Who came to see,—the guests, (observe that word!)

Pray do you find guests criticize your wine,
Your furniture, your grammar, or your nose?
Then, why your "medium"? What's the difference?

Prove your madeira red-ink and gamboge,—
Your Sludge, a cheat—then, somebody's a goose

For vaunting both as genuine. "Guests!"
Don't fear!

They'll make a wry face, nor too much of that,
And leave you in your glory.

"No, sometimes
"They doubt and say as much!" Ay, doubt they do!
And what's the consequence? "Of course they doubt"—

(You triumph) "that explains the hitch at once!
"Doubt posed our 'medium,' puddled his pure mind;

"He gave them back their rubbish: pitch chaff in,

"Could flour come out o' the honest mill?"
So, prompt

Applaud the faithful: cases flock in point,
"How, when a mocker willed a 'medium'
once

"Should name a spirit James whose name was George,
" "James' cried the 'medium,'—'twas the test of truth!"

In short, a hit proves much, a miss proves more.
Does this convince? The better: does it fail?
Time for the double-shotted broadside, then—
The grand means, last resource. Look black and big!

“ You style us idiots, therefore—why stop short ?

“ Accomplices in rascality : this we hear

“ In our own house, from our invited guest

“ Found brave enough to outrage a poor boy

“ Exposed by our good faith ! Have you been heard ?

“ Now, then, hear us ; one man’s not quite worth twelve.

“ You see a cheat ? Here’s some twelve see an ass :

“ Excuse me if I calculate : good day ! ”

Out slinks the sceptic, all the laughs explode.
Sludge waves his hat in triumph !

Or—he don’t.

There’s something in real truth (explain who can !)

One casts a wistful eye at, like the horse
Who mopes beneath stuffed hay-racks and won’t munch

Because he spies a corn-bag : hang that truth,
It spoils all dainties proffered in its place !
I’ve felt at times when, cockered, cosseted
And coddled by the aforesaid company,
Bidden enjoy their bullying,—never fear,
But o’er their shoulders spit at the flying man,—
I’ve felt a child ; only, a fractious child
That, dandled soft by nurse, aunt, grandmother,
Who keep him from the kennel, sun and wind,
Good fun and wholesome mud,—enjoined be
sweet,

And comely and superior,—eyes askance
The ragged sons o’ the gutter at their game,
Fain would be down with them i’ the thick
o’ the filth,

Making dirt-pies, laughing free, speaking plain,
And calling granny the grey old cat she is.
I’ve felt a spite, I say, at you, at them, Huggings and humbug—gnashed my teeth to mark

A decent dog pass ! It’s too bad, I say,
Ruining a soul so !

But what’s “ so,” what’s fixed,
Where may one stop ? Nowhere ! The cheating’s nursed
Out of the lying, softly and surely spun

To just your length, sir ! I’d stop soon enough :
But you’re for progress. “ All old, nothing
new ?

“ Only the usual talking through the mouth,

“ Or writing by the hand ? I own, I thought

“ This would develop, grow demonstrable,

“ Make doubt absurd, give figures we might
see,

“ Flowers we might touch. There’s no one doubts you, Sludge !

“ You dream the dreams, you see the spiritual sights,

“ The speeches come in your head, beyond dispute.

“ Still, for the sceptics’ sake, to stop all mouths,

“ We want some outward manifestation !—
well,

“ The Pennsylvanians gained such ; why not Sludge ?

“ He may improve with time ! ”

Ay, that he may !

He sees his lot : there’s no avoiding fate.

’Tis a trifle at first. “ Eh, David ? Did you hear ?

“ You jogged the table, your foot caused the squeak,

“ This time you’re . . . joking, are you not,
my boy ? ”

“ N-n-no ! ”—and I’m done for, bought and sold henceforth.

The old good easy jog-trot way, the . . . eh ?

The . . . not so very false, as falsehood goes,

The spinning out and drawing fine, you
know,—

Really mere novel-writing of a sort,

Acting, or improvising, make-believe,

Surely not downright cheaterly,—any how,

’Tis done with and my lot cast ; Cheat’s my
name :

The fatal dash of brandy in your tea

Has settled what you’ll have the souchong’s smack :

The caddy gives way to the dram-bottle.

Then, it’s so cruel easy ! Oh, those tricks

That can’t be tricks, those feats by sleight of
hand,

What? Do you live in this world's blow of blacks,
Palaver, gossipry, a single hour
Nor find one smut has settled on your nose,
Of a smut's worth, no more, no less?—one fact
Out of the drift of facts, whereby you learn What someone was, somewhere, somewhen, somewhy?
You don't tell folk—"See what has stuck to
me!
"Judge Humgruffin, our most distinguished
man,
"Your uncle was a tailor, and your wife
"Thought to have married Miggs, missed him, hit you!"—
Do you, sir, though you see him twice a-week?
"No," you reply, "what use retailing it?
"Why should I?" But, you see, one day you should,
Because one day there's much use,—when this fact
Brings you the Judge upon both gouty knees
Before the supernatural; proves that Sludge Knows, as you say, a thing he "could not"
know:
Will not Sludge thenceforth keep an outstretched face
The way the wind drives?

"Could not!" Look you now,
I'll tell you a story! There's a whiskered chap,
A foreigner, that teaches music here
And gets his bread,—knowing no better way:
He says, the fellow who informed of him
And made him fly his country and fall West
Was a hunchback cobbler, sat, stitched soles and sang,
In some outlandish place, the city Rome,
In a cellar by their Broadway, all day long;
Never asked questions, stopped to listen or
look,
Nor lifted nose from lapstone; let the world
Roll round his three-legged stool, and news run in
The ears he hardly seemed to keep pricked up.
Well, that man went on Sundays, touched his pay,
And took his praise from government, you see;

For something like two dollars every week,
He'd engage tell you some one little thing
Of some one man, which led to many more, (Because one truth leads right to the world's end)
And make you that man's master—when he dined
And on what dish, where walked to keep his health
And to what street. His trade was, throwing
thus
His sense out, like an ant-eater's long tongue,
Soft, innocent, warm, moist, impassible,
And when 'twas crusted o'er with creatures—
slick,
Their juice enriched his palate. "Could not Sludge!"

I'll go yet a step further, and maintain,
Once the imposture plunged its proper depth
I' the rotten of your natures, all of you,—
(If one's not mad nor drunk, and hardly then)
It's impossible to cheat—that's, be found out!
Go tell your brotherhood this first slip of mine,
All to-day's tale, how you detected Sludge,
Behaved unpleasantly, till he was fain confess,
And so has come to grief! You'll find, I think,
Why Sludge still snaps his fingers in your face.
There now, you've told them! What's their prompt reply?

"Sir, did that youth confess he had cheated me,
"I'd disbelieve him. He may cheat at times:
"That's in the 'medium'-nature, thus they're
made,
"Vain and vindictive, cowards, prone to scratch.
"And so all cats are; still, a cat's the beast
"You coax the strange electric sparks from out,
"By rubbing back its fur; not so a dog,
"Nor lion, nor lamb: 'tis the cat's nature, sir!
"Why not the dog's? Ask God, who made them beasts!
"D'ye think the sound, the nicely-balanced
man
"(Like me"—aside)—"like you yourself,"— (aloud)
"—He's stuff to make a 'medium'? Bless your soul,

" 'Tis these hysteric, hybrid half-and-halves,
 " Equivocal, worthless vermin yield the fire !
 " We take such as we find them, 'ware their
 tricks,
 " Wanting their service. Sir, Sludge took in
 you—
 " How, I can't say, not being there to watch :
 " He was tried, was tempted by your easiness,—
 " He did not take in me !"

Thank you for Sludge !

I'm to be grateful to such patrons, eh,
 When what you hear's my best word? 'Tis a challenge

" Snap at all strangers, half-tamed prairie-dog,
 " So you cower duly at your keeper's beck !
 " Cat, show what claws were made for, muffling them

" Only to me ! Cheat others if you can,
 " Me, if you dare !" And, my wise sir, I
 dared—

Did cheat you first, made you cheat others next,
 And had the help o' your vaunted manliness
 To bully the incredulous. You used me ?
 Have not I used you, taken full revenge,
 Persuaded folk they knew not their own name,
 And straight they'd own the error ! Who was the fool

When, to an awe-struck wide-eyed open-mouthed

Circle of sages, Sludge would introduce Milton composing baby-rhymes, and Locke Reasoning in gibberish, Homer writing Greek
 In noughts and crosses, Asaph setting psalms
 To crotchet and quaver ? I've made a spirit
 squeak

In sham voice for a minute, then outbroke
 Bold in my own, defying the imbeciles—
 Have copied some ghost's pothooks, half a
 page,

Then ended with my own scrawl undisguised.
 " All right ! The ghost was merely using
 Sludge,

" Suiting itself from his imperfect stock !"
 Don't talk of gratitude to me ! For what ?
 For being treated as a showman's ape,
 Encouraged to be wicked and make sport,
 Fret or sulk, grin or whimper, any mood

So long as the ape be in it and no man—
 Because a nut pays every mood alike.
 Curse your superior, superintending sort,
 Who, since you hate smoke, send up boys that climb

To cure your chimney, bid a "medium" lie
 To sweep you truth down ! Curse your women
 too,

Your insolent wives and daughters, that fire up
 Or faint away if a male hand squeeze theirs,
 Yet, to encourage Sludge, may play with
 Sludge

As only a "medium," only the kind of thing
 They must humour, fondle . . . oh, to mis-
 conceive

Were too preposterous ! But I've paid them
 out !

They've had their wish—called for the naked
 truth,

And in she tripped, sat down and bade them
 stare :

They had to blush a little and forgive !

" The fact is, children talk so ; in next world

" All our conventions are reversed,—perhaps

" Made light of : something like old prints, my dear !

" The Judge has one, he brought from Italy,

" A metropolis in the background,—o'er a bridge,

" A team of trotting roadsters,—cheerful groups

" Of wayside travellers, peasants at their work,

" And, full in front, quite unconcerned, why
 not ?

" Three nymphs conversing with a cavalier,

" And never a rag among them : 'fine,' folk
 cry—

" And heavenly manners seem not much unlike !

" Let Sludge go on ; we'll fancy it's in print !"

If such as came for wool, sir, went home shorn, Where is the wrong I did them ? 'Twas their
 choice ;

They tried the adventure, ran the risk, tossed
 up

And lost, as some one's sure to do in games ;
 They fancied I was made to lose,—smoked
 glass

Useful to spy the sun through, spare their eyes :
 And had I proved a red-hot iron plate
 They thought to pierce, and, for their pains, grew blind,
 Whose were the fault but theirs? While, as things go,
 Their loss amounts to gain, the more's the
 shame !
 They've had their peep into the spirit-world,
 And all this world may know it! They've fed fat
 Their self-conceit which else had starved :
 what chance
 Save this, of cackling o'er a golden egg
 And compassing distinction from the flock,
 Friends of a feather? Well, they paid for it,
 And not prodigiously ; the price o' the play,
 Not counting certain pleasant interludes,
 Was scarce a vulgar play's worth. When you buy
 The actor's talent, do you dare propose
 For his soul beside? Whereas my soul you buy !
 Sludge acts Macbeth, obliged to be Macbeth,
 Or you'll not hear his first word ! Just go
 through
 That slight formality, swear himself's the Thane,
 And thenceforth he may strut and fret his
 hour,
 Spout, spawl, or spin his target, no one cares !
 Why hadn't I leave to play tricks, Sludge as Sludge ?
 Enough of it all ! I've wiped out scores with
 you—
 Vented your fustian, let myself be streaked
 Like tom-fool with your ochre and carmine,
 Worn patchwork your respectable fingers sewed
 To metamorphose somebody, — yes, I've earned
 My wages, swallowed down my bread of
 shame,
 And shake the crumbs off—where but in your face ?

As for religion—why, I served it, sir !
 I'll stick to that ! With my phenomena

I laid the atheist sprawling on his back,
 Propped up Saint Paul, or, at least, Swedenborg !
 In fact, it's just the proper way to baulk
 These troublesome fellows—liars, one and all,
 Are not these sceptics? Well, to baffle them,
 No use in being squeamish : lie yourself !
 Erect your buttress just as wide o' the line,
 Your side, as they build up the wall on theirs ;
 Where both meet, midway in a point, is truth
 High overhead : so, take your room, pile bricks,
 Lie ! Oh, there's titillation in all shame !
 What snow may lose in white, snow gains in rose !
 Miss Stokes turns — Rahab, — nor a bad exchange !
 Glory be on her, for the good she wrought,
 Breeding belief anew 'neath ribs of death,
 Browbeating now the unabashed before,
 Ridding us of their whole life's gathered straws
 By a live coal from the altar ! Why, of old,
 Great men spent years and years in writing
 books
 To prove we've souls, and hardly proved it
 then :
 Miss Stokes with her live coal, for you and
 me !
 Surely, to this good issue, all was fair—
 Not only fondling Sludge, but, even suppose
 He let escape some spice of knavery,—well,
 In wisely being blind to it ! Don't you praise
 Nelson for setting spy-glass to blind eye
 And saying . . . what was it—that he could not see
 The signal he was bothered with? Ay,
 indeed !
 I'll go beyond : there's a real love of a lie,
 Liars find ready-made for lies they make,
 As hand for glove, or tongue for sugar-plum.
 At best, 'tis never pure and full belief ;
 Those furthest in the quagmire, — don't suppose
 They strayed there with no warning, got no
 chance
 Of a filth-speck in their face, which they
 clenched teeth,

Tint ghost-tales, spirit-stories, past the power
Of the outworn umber and bistre !

Yet I think

There's a more hateful form of foolery—
The social sage's, Solomon of saloons
And philosophic diner-out, the fribble
Who wants a doctrine for a chopping-block
To try the edge of his faculty upon,
Prove how much common sense he'll hack and hew

I' the critical minute 'twixt the soup and fish !
These were my patrons : these, and the like
of them

Who, rising in my soul now, sicken it,—
These I have injured ! Gratitude to these ?
The gratitude, forsooth, of a prostitute
To the greenhorn and the bully—friends of
hers,

From the wag that wants the queer jokes for his club,

To the snuff-box-decorator, honest man,
Who just was at his wits' end where to find
So genial a Pasiphae ! All and each

Pay, compliment, protect from the police :
And how she hates them for their pains, like
me !

So much for my remorse at thanklessness
Toward a deserving public !

But, for God ?

Ay, that's a question ! Well, sir, since you
press—

(How you do tease the whole thing out of me !
I don't mean you, you know, when I say
“them” :

Hate you, indeed ! But that Miss Stokes, that Judge !

Enough, enough—with sugar : thank you, sir !
Now for it, then ! Will you believe me,
though ?

You've heard what I confess ; I don't unsay
A single word : I cheated when I could,
Rapped with my toe-joints, set sham hands at
work,

Wrote down names weak in sympathetic ink,
Rubbed odic lights with ends of phosphor-
match,

And all the rest ; believe that : believe this,
By the same token, though it seem to set
The crooked straight again, unsay the said,
Stick up what I've knocked down ; I can't help that

It's truth ! I somehow vomit truth to-day.
This trade of mine—I don't know, can't be sure
But there was something in it, tricks and all !
Really, I want to light up my own mind.
They were tricks,—true, but what I mean to add

Is also true. First,—don't it strike you, sir ?
Go back to the beginning,—the first fact We're taught is, there's a world beside this
world,

With spirits, not mankind, for tenantry ;
That much within that world once sojourned
here,

That all upon this world will visit there,
And therefore that we, bodily here below,
Must have exactly such an interest

In learning what may be the ways o' the world
Above us, as the disembodied folk
Have (by all analogic likelihood)

In watching how things go in the old home
With us, their sons, successors, and what not.
Oh yes, with added powers probably,

Fit for the novel state,—old loves grown pure,
Old interests understood aright,—they watch !
Eyes to see, ears to hear, and hands to help,
Proportionate to advancement : they're ahead,
That's all—do what we do, but noblier
done—

Use plate, whereas we eat our meals off delf,
(To use a figure).

Concede that, and I ask

Next what may be the mode of intercourse
Between us men here, and those once-men
there ?

First comes the Bible's speech ; then, history
With the supernatural element,—you know—
All that we sucked in with our mothers'
milk,

Grew up with, got inside of us at last,
Till it's found bone of bone and flesh of flesh.
See now, we start with the miraculous,
And know it used to be, at all events :

What's the first step we take, and can't but take,
 In arguing from the known to the obscure?
 Why this: "What was before, may be to-day.
 "Since Samuel's ghost appeared to Saul, of course
 "My brother's spirit may appear to me."
 Go tell your teacher that! What's his reply?
 What brings a shade of doubt for the first time
 O'er his brow late so luminous with faith?
 "Such things have been," says he, "and there's no doubt
 "Such things may be: but I advise mistrust
 "Of eyes, ears, stomach, and, more than all, your brain,
 "Unless it be of your great-grandmother,
 "Whenever they propose a ghost to you!"
 The end is, there's a composition struck;
 'Tis settled, we've some way of intercourse
 Just as in Saul's time; only, different:
 How, when and where, precisely,—find it out!

I want to know, then, what's so natural
 As that a person born into this world
 And seized on by such teaching, should begin
 With firm expectancy and a frank look-out
 For his own allotment, his especial share
 I' the secret,—his particular ghost, in fine?
 I mean, a person born to look that way,
 Since natures differ: take the painter-sort.
 One man lives fifty years in ignorance
 Whether grass be green or red,—"No kind of eye
 "For colour," say you; while another picks
 And puts away even pebbles, when a child,
 Because of bluish spots and pinky veins—
 "Give him forthwith a paint-box!" Just the same
 Was I born . . . "medium," you won't let me say,—
 Well, seer of the supernatural
 Everywhen, everyhow and everywhere,—
 Will that do?

I and all such boys of course
 Started with the same stock of Bible-truth;

Only,—what in the rest you style their sense,
 Instinct, blind reasoning but imperative,
 This, betimes, taught them the old world had one law
 And ours another: "New world, new laws," cried they:
 "None but old laws, seen everywhere at work,"
 Cried I, and by their help explained my life
 The Jews' way, still a working way to me.
 Ghosts made the noises, fairies waved the lights,
 Or Santa Claus slid down on New Year's Eve
 And stuffed with cakes the stocking at my bed,
 Changed the worn shoes, rubbed clean the fingered slate
 O' the sum that came to grief the day before.

This could not last long: soon enough I found
 Who had worked wonders thus, and to what end:
 But did I find all easy, like my mates?
 Henceforth no supernatural any more?
 Not a whit: what projects the billiard-balls?
 "A cue," you answer: "Yes, a cue," said I;
 "But what hand, off the cushion, moved the cue?
 "What unseen agency, outside the world,
 "Prompted its puppets to do this and that,
 "Put cakes and shoes and slates into their mind,
 "These mothers and aunts, nay even school-masters?"
 Thus high I sprang, and there have settled since.
 Just so I reason, in sober earnest still,
 About the greater godsend, what you call
 The serious gains and losses of my life.
 What do I know or care about your world
 Which either is or seems to be? This snap
 O' my fingers, sir! My care is for myself;
 Myself am whole and sole reality
 Inside a raree-show and a market-mob
 Gathered about it: that's the use of things.
 'Tis easy saying they serve vast purposes,

Advantage their grand selves : be it true or false,
Each thing may have two uses. What's a star?
A world, or a world's sun : doesn't it serve
As taper also, time-piece, weather-glass,
And almanac? Are stars not set for signs
When we should shear our sheep, sow corn, prune trees?
The Bible says so.

Well, I add one use
To all the acknowledged uses, and declare
If I spy Charles's Wain at twelve to-night,
It warns me, "Go, nor lose another day,
"And have your hair cut, Sludge!" You laugh : and why?
Were such a sign too hard for God to give?
No : but Sludge seems too little for such
grace :
Thank you, sir ! So you think, so does not Sludge !
When you and good men gape at Providence,
Go into history and bid us mark
Not merely powder-plots prevented, crowns
Kept on kings' heads by miracle enough,
But private mercies—oh, you've told me, sir,
Of such interpositions ! How yourself
Once, missing on a memorable day
Your handkerchief—just setting out, you
know,—
You must return to fetch it, lost the train,
And saved your precious self from what befell
The thirty-three whom Providence forgot.
You tell, and ask me what I think of this?
Well, sir, I think then, since you needs must
know,
What matter had you and Boston city to boot
Sailed skyward, like burnt onion-peelings?
Much
To you, no doubt : for me—undoubtedly
The cutting of my hair concerns me more,
Because, however sad the truth may seem,
Sludge is of all-importance to himself.
You set apart that day in every year
For special thanksgiving, were a heathen else :
Well, I who cannot boast the like escape,
Suppose I said "I don't thank Providence

"For my part, owing it no gratitude" ?
"Nay, but you owe as much"—you'd tutor
me,
"You, every man alive, for blessings gained
"In every hour o' the day, could you but know!
"I saw my crowning mercy : all have such,
"Could they but see !" Well, sir, why don't they see?
"Because they won't look,—or perhaps, they can't."
Then, sir, suppose I can, and will, and do
Look, microscopically as is right,
Into each hour with its infinitude
Of influences at work to profit Sludge ?
For that's the case : I've sharpened up my sight
To spy a providence in the fire's going out,
The kettle's boiling, the dime's sticking fast
Despite the hole i' the pocket. Call such facts
Fancies, too petty a work for Providence
And those same thanks which you exact
from me
Prove too prodigious payment : thanks for
what,
If nothing guards and guides us little men?
No, no, sir ! You must put away your price,
Resolve to let Sludge into partnership !
I live by signs and omens : looked at the roof
Where the pigeons settle—"If the further bird,
"The white, takes wing first, I'll confess when thrashed ;
"Not, if the blue does"—so I said to myself
Last week, lest you should take me by surprise:
Off flapped the white,—and I'm confessing,
sir !
Perhaps 'tis Providence's whim and way
With only me, i' the world : how can you tell?
"Because unlikely !" Was it likelier, now,
That this our one out of all worlds beside,
The what-d'you-call-'em millions, should be just Precisely chosen to make Adam for,
And the rest o' the tale? Yet the tale's true,
you know :
Such undeserving clod was graced so once ;
Why not graced likewise undeserving Sludge?
Are we merit-mongers, flaunt we filthy rags?

The one i' the world, the one for whom the world

Was made, expect it tickling at your mouth !
Then will the swarm of busy buzzing flies,
Clouds of coincidence, break egg-shell, thrive,
Breed, multiply, and bring you food enough.

I can't pretend to mind your smiling, sir !
Oh, what you mean is this ! Such intimate way,
Close converse, frank exchange of offices,
Strict sympathy of the immeasurably great
With the infinitely small, betokened here
By a course of signs and omens, raps and sparks,—

How does it suit the dread traditional text
O' the "Great and Terrible Name" ? Shall the Heaven of Heavens
Stoop to such child's play ?

Please, sir, go with me
A moment, and I'll try to answer you.

The "Magnum et terribile" (is that right ?)
Well, folk began with this in the early day ;
And all the acts they recognized in proof
Were thunders, lightnings, earthquakes, whirlwinds, dealt

Indisputably on men whose death they caused.
There, and there only, folk saw Providence
At work,—and seeing it, 'twas right enough
All heads should tremble, hands wring hands amain,

And knees knock hard together at the breath
O' the Name's first letter ; why, the Jews,
I'm told,

Won't write it down, no, to this very hour,
Nor speak aloud : you know best if't be so.
Each ague-fit of fear at end, they crept (Because somehow people once born must live)

Out of the sound, sight, swing and sway o'
the Name,

Into a corner, the dark rest of the world,
And safe space where as yet no fear had reached ;

'Twas there they looked about them, breathed
again,

And felt indeed at home, as we might say.
The current o' common things, the daily life,

This had their due contempt ; no Name pursued

Man from the mountain-top where fires abide,
To his particular mouse-hole at its foot
Where he ate, drank, digested, lived in short:
Such was man's vulgar business, far too small
To be worth thunder : "small," folk kept on,
"small,"

With much complacency in those great days!
A mote of sand, you know, a blade of grass—
What was so despicable as mere grass,
Except perhaps the life o' the worm or fly Which fed there ? These were "small" and men were great.

Well, sir, the old way's altered somewhat since,
And the world wears another aspect now :
Somebody turns our spyglass round, or else
Puts a new lens in it : grass, worm, fly grow
big :

We find great things are made of little things,
And little things go lessening till at last Comes God behind them. Talk of mountains
now ?

We talk of mould that heaps the mountain, mites

That throng the mould, and God that makes the mites.

The Name comes close behind a stomach-cyst,
The simplest of creations, just a sac
That's mouth, heart, legs and belly at once, yet lives

And feels, and could do neither, we conclude,
If simplified still further one degree :

The small becomes the dreadful and immense !
Lightning, forsooth ? No word more upon
that !

A tin-foil bottle, a strip of greasy silk,
With a bit of wire and knob of brass, and there's

Your dollar's-worth of lightning ! But the cyst—

The life of the least of the little things ?

No, no !

Preachers and teachers try another tack,
Come near the truth this time : they put aside Thunder and lightning : "That's mistake,"
they cry,

"Thunderbolts fall for neither fright nor
 sport,
 "But do appreciable good, like tides,
 "Changes o' the wind, and other natural facts—
 " 'Good' meaning good to man, his body or
 soul.
 "Mediate, immediate, all things minister
 "To man,—that's settled: be our future text
 " 'We are His children!' " So, they now harangue
 About the intention, the contrivance, all
 That keeps up an incessant play of love,—
 See the Bridgewater book.

Amen to it!

Well, sir, I put this question: I'm a child?
 I lose no time, but take you at your word:
 How shall I act a child's part properly?
 Your sainted mother, sir,—used you to live
 With such a thought as this a-worrying you?
 "She has it in her power to throttle me,
 "Or stab or poison: she may turn me out,
 "Or lock me in,—nor stop at this to-day,
 "But cut me off to-morrow from the estate
 "I look for"—(long may you enjoy it, sir!)
 "In brief, she may unchild the child I am.'
 You never had such crotchets? Nor have I!
 Who, frank confessing childship from the first,
 Cannot both fear and take my ease at once,
 So, don't fear,—know what might be, well
 enough,
 But know too, child-like, that it will not be,
 At least in my case, mine, the son and heir
 O' the kingdom, as yourself proclaim my style.
 But do you fancy I stop short at this?
 Wonder if suit and service, son and heir
 Needs must expect, I dare pretend to find?
 If, looking for signs proper to such an one,
 I straight perceive them irresistible?
 Concede that homage is a son's plain right,
 And, never mind the nods and raps and winks,
 'Tis the pure obvious supernatural
 Steps forward, does its duty: why, of course!
 I have presentiments; my dreams come true:
 I fancy a friend stands whistling all in white
 Blithe as a boblink, and he's dead I learn.
 I take dislike to a dog my favourite long,

And sell him; he goes mad next week and snaps.
 I guess that stranger will turn up to-day
 I have not seen these three years; there's his knock
 I wager "sixty peaches on that tree!"—
 That I pick up a dollar in my walk,
 That your wife's brother's cousin's name was George—
 And win on all points. Oh, you wince at
 this?
 You'd fain distinguish between gift and gift,
 Washington's oracle and Sludge's itch
 O' the elbow when at whist he ought to trump?
 With Sludge it's too absurd? Fine, draw the line
*Somewhere, but, sir, your somewhere is not
 mine!*

Bless us, I'm turning poet! It's time to end.
 How you have drawn me out, sir! All I ask Is—am I heir or not heir? If I'm he,
 Then, sir, remember, that same personage
 (To judge by what we read i' the newspaper)
 Requires, beside one nobleman in gold
 To carry up and down his coronet,
 Another servant, probably a duke,
 To hold egg-nogg in readiness: why want Attendance, sir, when helps in his father's house
 Abound, I'd like to know?

Enough of talk!

My fault is that I tell too plain a truth.
 Why, which of those who say they disbelieve,
 Your clever people, but has dreamed his
 dream,
 Caught his coincidence, stumbled on his fact
 He can't explain, (he'll tell you smilingly)
 Which he's too much of a philosopher
 To count as supernatural, indeed,
 So calls a puzzle and problem, proud of it:
 Bidding you still be on your guard, you know,
 Because one fact don't make a system stand,
 Nor prove this an occasional escape
 Of spirit beneath the matter: that's the way!
 Just so wild Indians picked up, piece by piece,

The fact in California, the fine gold
That underlay the gravel—hoarded these,
But never made a system stand, nor dug !
So wise men hold out in each hollowed palm
A handful of experience, sparkling fact
They can't explain; and since their rest of life
Is all explainable, what proof in this?
Whereas I take the fact, the grain of gold,
And fling away the dirty rest of life,
And add this grain to the grain each fool has
found

O' the million other such philosophers,—
Till I see gold, all gold and only gold,
Truth questionless though unexplainable,
And the miraculous proved the commonplace !
The other fools believed in mud, no doubt—
Failed to know gold they saw : was that so
strange ?

Are all men born to play Bach's fiddle-fugues,
"Time" with the foil in carte, jump their own height,

Cut the mutton with the broadsword, skate a five,

Make the red hazard with the cue, clip nails
While swimming, in five minutes row a mile,
Pull themselves three feet up with the left
arm,

Do sums of fifty figures in their head,
And so on, by the scores of instances?
The Sludge with luck, who sees the spiritual facts

His fellows strive and fail to see, may rank
With these, and share the advantage.

Ay, but share

The drawback ! Think it over by yourself ;
I have not heart, sir, and the fire's gone grey.
Defect somewhere compensates for success,
Everyone knows that. Oh, we're equals, sir !
The big-legged fellow has a little arm
And a less brain, though big legs win the race :

Do you suppose I 'scape the common lot ?
Say, I was born with flesh so sensitive,
Soul so alert, that, practice helping both,
I guess what's going on outside the veil,
Just as a prisoned crane feels pairing-time
In the islands where his kind are, so must fall

To capering by himself some shiny night,
As if your back-yard were a plot of spice—
Thus am I 'ware o' the spirit-world : while
you,

Blind as a beetle that way,—for amends,
Why, you can double fist and floor me, sir !
Ride that hot hardmouthed horrid horse of
yours,

Laugh while it lightens, play with the great dog,

Speak your mind though it vex some friend
to hear,

Never brag, never bluster, never blush,—
In short, you've pluck, when I'm a coward—
there !

I know it, I can't help it,—folly or no,
I'm paralyzed, my hand's no more a hand,
Nor my head a head, in danger : you can
smile

And change the pipe in your cheek. Your gift's not mine.

Would you swap for mine? No ! but you'd add my gift

To yours : I dare say ! I too sigh at times, Wish I were stouter, could tell truth nor flinch,

Kept cool when threatened, did not mind so
much

Being dressed gaily, making strangers stare,
Eating nice things ; when I'd amuse myself,
I shut my eyes and fancy in my brain

I'm—now the President, now Jenny Lind,
Now Emerson, now the Benicia Boy—

With all the civilized world a-wondering And worshipping. I know it's folly and
worse ;

I feel such tricks sap, honeycomb the soul,
But I can't cure myself : despond, despair,
And then, hey, presto, there's a turn o' the wheel,

Under comes uppermost, fate makes full
amends ;

Sludge knows and sees and hears a hundred
things

You all are blind to,—I've my taste of truth,
Likewise my touch of falsehood,—vice no
doubt,

But you've your vices also : I'm content.

Or try their skill at tinkering? What's your world?

Here are you born, who are, I'll say at once,
Of the luckiest kind, whether in head and heart,

Body and soul, or all that helps them both.
Well, now, look back : what faculty of yours
Came to its full, had ample justice done
By growing when rain fell, biding its time,
Solidifying growth when earth was dead,
Spiring up, broadening wide, in seasons due?
Never ! You shot up and frost nipped you
off,

Settled to sleep when sunshine bade you sprout ;

One faculty thwarted its fellow : at the end,
All you boast is "I had proved a topping
tree

"In other climes"—yet this was the right
clime

Had you foreknown the seasons. Young, you've force

Wasted like well-streams : old,—oh, then
indeed,

Behold a labyrinth of hydraulic pipes
Through which you'd play off wondrous waterwork ;

Only, no water's left to feed their play.
Young,—you've a hope, an aim, a love : it's tossed

And crossed and lost : you struggle on, some spark

Shut in your heart against the puffs around,
Through cold and pain ; these in due time subside,

Now then for age's triumph, the hoarded
light

You mean to loose on the altered face of
things,—

Up with it on the tripod ! It's extinct.
Spend your life's remnant asking, which was
best,

Light smothered up that never peeped forth
once,

Or the cold cresset with full leave to shine?
Well, accept this too,—seek the fruit of it
Not in enjoyment, proved a dream on earth,
But knowledge, useful for a second chance,

Another life,—you've lost this world—you've gained

Its knowledge for the next. What knowledge, sir,

Except that you know nothing? Nay, you
doubt

Whether 'twere better have made you man or brute,

If aught be true, if good and evil clash.

No foul, no fair, no inside, no outside,

There's your world !

Give it me ! I slap it brisk

With harlequin's pasteboard sceptre : what's it now ?

Changed like a rock-flat, rough with rusty weed,

At first wash-over o' the returning wave !

All the dry dead impracticable stuff

Starts into life and light again ; this world

Pervaded by the influx from the next.

I cheat, and what's the happy consequence?

You find full justice straightway dealt you
out,

Each want supplied, each ignorance set at ease,

Each folly fooled. No life-long labour now
As the price of worse than nothing ! No mere film

Holding you chained in iron, as it seems,

Against the outstretch of your very arms

And legs i' the sunshine moralists forbid !

What would you have? Just speak and,
there, you see !

You're supplemented, made a whole at last,
Bacon advises, Shakespeare writes you songs,
And Mary Queen of Scots embraces you.

Thus it goes on, not quite like life perhaps,

But so near, that the very difference piques,

Shows that e'en better than this best will
be—

This passing entertainment in a hut

Whose bare walls take your taste since, one stage more,

And you arrive at the palace : all half real,

And you, to suit it, less than real beside,

In a dream, lethargic kind of death in life,

That helps the interchange of natures, flesh

Transfused by souls, and such souls! Oh,
'tis choice!

And if at whiles the bubble, blown too thin,
Seem nigh on bursting,—if you nearly see
The real world through the false,—what do you see?

Is the old so ruined? You find you're in a flock
O' the youthful, earnest, passionate—genius,
beauty,

Rank and wealth also, if you care for these:
And all depose their natural rights, hail you,
(That's me, sir) as their mate and yoke-fellow,
Participate in Sludgehood—nay, grow mine,
I veritably possess them—banish doubt,
And reticence and modesty alike!

Why, here's the Golden Age, old Paradise
Or new Eutopia! Here's true life indeed,
And the world well won now, mine for the first time!

And all this might be, may be, and with good
help

Of a little lying shall be: so, Sludge lies!
Why, he's at worst your poet who sings how Greeks

That never were, in Troy which never was,
Did this or the other impossible great thing!
He's Lowell—it's a world (you smile applause),
Of his own invention—wondrous Longfellow, Surprising Hawthorne! Sludge does more than they,

And acts the books they write: the more his
praise!

But why do I mount to poets? Take plain prose—

Dealers in common sense, set these at work,
What can they do without their helpful lies?
Each states the law and fact and face o' the
thing

Just as he'd have them, finds what he thinks fit,
Is blind to what missuits him, just records
What makes his case out, quite ignores the rest.
It's a History of the World, the Lizard Age,
The Early Indians, the Old Country War,
Jerome Napoleon, whatsoever you please,
All as the author wants it. Such a scribe
You pay and praise for putting life in stones,

Fire into fog, making the past your world.
There's plenty of "How did you contrive to grasp

"The thread which led you through this labyrinth?

"How build such solid fabric out of air?

"How on so slight foundation found this tale,

"Biography, narrative?" or, in other words,

"How many lies did it require to make

"The portly truth you here present us with?"

"Oh," quoth the penman, purring at your
praise,

"'Tis fancy all; no particle of fact:

"I was poor and threadbare when I wrote that book

"'Bliss in the Golden City.' I, at Thebes?

"We writers paint out of our heads, you see!"

"—Ah, the more wonderful the gift in you,

"The more creativeness and godlike craft!"

But I, do I present you with my piece,

It's "What, Sludge? When my sainted mother spoke

"The verses Lady Jane Grey last composed

"About the rosy bower in the seventh heaven

"Where she and Queen Elizabeth keep
house,—

"You made the raps? 'Twas your invention
that?

"Cur, slave and devil!"—eight fingers and two thumbs

Stuck in my throat!

Well, if the marks seem gone,
'Tis because stiffish cock-tail, taken in time,
Is better for a bruise than arnica.

There, sir! I bear no malice: 'tisn't in me.

I know I acted wrongly: still, I've tried

What I could say in my excuse,—to show

The devil's not all devil . . . I don't pretend,

He's angel, much less such a gentleman

As you, sir! And I've lost you, lost myself,

Lost all-l-l-l- . . .

No—are you in earnest, sir?
O yours, sir, is an angel's part! I know What prejudice prompts, and what's the common course

Men take to soothe their ruffled self-conceit:

Only you rise superior to it all !
 No, sir, it don't hurt much ; it's speaking long
 That makes me choke a little : the marks will go !
 What ? Twenty V-notes more, and outfit too,
 And not a word to Greeley ? One—one kiss O' the hand that saves me ! You'll not let me speak,
 I well know, and I've lost the right, too true !
 But I must say, sir, if She hears (she does)
 Your sainted . . . Well, sir,—be it so !
 That's, I think,
 My bed-room candle. Good-night ! Bl-l-less
 you, sir !

R-r-r, you brute-beast and blackguard !
 Cowardly scamp !
 I only wish I dared burn down the house
 And spoil your sniggering ! Oh what, you're the man ?
 You're satisfied at last ? You've found out
 Sludge ?
 We'll see that presently : my turn, sir, next !
 I too can tell my story : brute,—do you hear?—
 You throttled your sainted mother, that old hag,
 In just such a fit of passion : no, it was . . .
 To get this house of hers, and many a note
 Like these . . . I'll pocket them, however
 . . . five,
 Ten, fifteen . . . ay, you gave her throat
 the twist,
 Or else you poisoned her ! Confound the cuss !
 Where was my head ? I ought to have prophesied
 He'll die in a year and join her : that's the way.
 I don't know where my head is : what had I
 done ?
 How did it all go ? I said he poisoned her,
 And hoped he'd have grace given him to repent,
 Whereon he picked this quarrel, bullied me
 And called me cheat : I thrashed him,—who could help ?
 He howled for mercy, prayed me on his knees
 To cut and run and save him from disgrace :
 I do so, and once off, he slanders me.

An end of him ! Begin elsewhere anew !
 Boston's a hole, the herring-pond is wide,
 V-notes are something, liberty still more.
 Beside, is he the only fool in the world ?

APPARENT FAILURE.

No, for I'll save it ! Seven years since,
 I passed through Paris, stopped a day
 To see the baptism of your Prince ;
 Saw, made my bow, and went my way :

 I took the Seine-side, you surmise,
 Thought of the Congress, Gortschakoff,
 Cavour's appeal and Buol's replies,
 So sauntered till—what met my eyes ?

 Each on his copper couch, they lay

No prayers retard ; then even this was gone,
 Lost in the night at last. We, lone and left
 Silent through centuries, ever and anon
 Venture to probe again the vault bereft
 Of all now save the lesser lights, a mist
 Of multitudinous points, yet suns, mensay—
 And this leaps ruby, this lurks amethyst,
 But where may hide what came and loved our clay?
 How shall the sage detect in yon expanse
 The star which chose to stoop and stay
 for us?
 Unroll the records ! Hailed ye such advance
 Indeed, and did your hope evanish thus?
 Watchers of twilight, is the worst averred?
 We shall not look up, know ourselves are

 Acting or suffering, have the disk's serene

 Nor doubt that, were mankind inert and

 Its core had never crimsoned all the same,
 Nor, missing ours, its music fallen dumb?

 Sad sway of sceptre whose mere touch

 Ghastly dethronement, cursed by those the

 On whose repugnant brow the crown next

BALAUSTION'S ADVENTURE ;

INCLUDING

A TRANSCRIPT FROM EURIPIDES.

1871.

[After the ill-starred expedition under Nikias against Sicily and the crowning disaster of Syracuse had become known to the inhabitants of Rhodes, a great reaction against the supremacy of Athens set in, and a general determination to side with Sparta was expressed. Against this the girl Balaustion (Wild-pomegranate-flower) vehemently protested, and calling together those whom she could muster, they took ship for Athens. Encountering storms and pursued by pirates, they were driven upon Syracuse Harbour, where, however, they were at first refused admission and thrust back upon the pirates. At the last moment, however, curiosity was expressed as to Euripides, and Balaustion came forward and offered to recite the Alkestis, which she did before the whole listening city.]

TO THE COUNTESS COWPER.

If I mention the simple truth : that this poem absolutely owes its existence to you,—who not only suggested, but imposed on me as a task, what has proved the most delightful of May-month amusements—I shall seem honest, indeed, but hardly prudent ; for, how good and beautiful ought such a poem to be !

Euripides might fear little ; but I, also, have an interest in the performance ; and what wonder if I beg you to suffer that it make, in another and far easier sense, its nearest possible approach to those Greek qualities of goodness and beauty, by laying itself gratefully at your feet ? R. B.

LONDON : July 23, 1871.

BALAUSTION'S ADVENTURE.

Our Euripides, the human,
With his droppings of warm tears,
And his touches of things common
Till they rose to touch the spheres.

ABOUT that strangest, saddest, sweetest song
I, when a girl, heard in Kameiros once,
And, after, saved my life by ? Oh, so glad
To tell you the adventure !

Petalé,

Phullis, Charopé, Chrusion ! You must know,
This “after” fell in that unhappy time

When poor reluctant Nikias, pushed by fate,
Went falteringly against Syracuse ;
And there shamed Athens, lost her ships and
men,

And gained a grave, or death without a grave.
I was at Rhodes—the isle, not Rhodes the
town,

Mine was Kameiros—when the news arrived :
Our people rose in tumult, cried “No more
Duty to Athens, let us join the League
And side with Sparta, share the spoil,—at worst,

Abjure a headship that will ruin Greece !”

And so, they sent to Knidos for a fleet
To come and help revolters. Ere help came,— Girl as I was, and never out of Rhodes
The whole of my first fourteen years of life,
But nourished with Ilissian¹ mother's-milk,—
I passionately cried to who would hear
And those who loved me at Kameiros—“No !
Never throw Athens off for Sparta's sake—
Never disloyal to the life and light
Of the whole world worth calling world
at all !

Rather go die at Athens, lie outstretched
For feet to trample on, before the gate
Of Diomedes or the Hippadai,

¹ Athenian.

Before the temples and among the tombs,
 Than tolerate the grim felicity
 Of harsh Lakonia ! Ours the fasts and feasts,
 Choës and Chutroi ;¹ ours the sacred grove,
 Agora, Dikasteria, Poikilé,
 Pnux, Keramikos ; Salamis in sight,
 Psuttalia, Marathon itself, not far !
 Ours the great Dionusiæc theatre,
 And tragic triad of immortal fames,
 Aischulos, Sophokles, Euripides !
 To Athens, all of us that have a soul, Follow me !” And I wrought so with my prayer,
 That certain of my kinsfolk crossed the strait
 And found a ship at Kaunos ; well-disposed Because the Captain—where did he draw
 breath
 First but within Psuttalia ? Thither fled
 A few like-minded as ourselves. We turned The glad prow westward, soon were out at
 sea,
 Pushing, brave ship with the vermilion cheek,
 Proud for our heart’s true harbour. But a wind
 Lay ambushed by Point Malea of bad fame,
 And leapt out, bent us from our course.
 Next day
 Broke stormless, so broke next blue day and next.
 “ But whither bound in this white waste ? ”
 we plagued
 The pilot’s old experience : “ Cos or Crete ? ”
 Because he promised us the land ahead.
 While we strained eyes to share in what he saw,
 The Captain’s shout startled us ; round we rushed :
 What hung behind us but a pirate-ship Panting for the good prize ! “ Row ! harder row !
 Row for dear life ! ” the Captain cried :
 “ ’tis Crete,
 Friendly Crete looming large there ! Beat this craft
 That’s but a keles, one-benched pirate-bark,
 Lokrian, or that bad breed off Thessaly !

Only, so cruel are such water-thieves,
 No man of you, no woman, child, or slave,
 But falls their prey, once let them board our boat ! ”
 So, furiously our oarsmen rowed and rowed ;
 And when the oars flagged somewhat, dash and dip,
 As we approached the coast and safety, so That we could hear behind us plain the threats
 And curses of the pirate panting up
 In one more throe and passion of pursuit,—
 Seeing our oars flag in the rise and fall,
 I sprang upon the altar by the mast
 And sang aloft, — some genius prompting
 me,—
 That song of ours which saved at Salamis :
 “ O sons of Greeks, go, set your country free, Free your wives, free your children, free the fanés
 O’ the Gods, your fathers founded, — sepulchres
 They sleep in ! Or save all, or all be lost ! ”
 Then, in a frenzy, so the noble oars
 Churned the black water white, that well
 away
 We drew, soon saw land rise, saw hills grow
 up,
 Saw spread itself a sea-wide town with towers,
 Not fifty stadia distant ; and, betwixt
 A large bay and a small, the islet-bar,
 Even Ortugia’s self—oh, luckless we !
 For here was Sicily and Syracuse :
 We ran upon the lion from the wolf.
 Ere we drew breath, took counsel, out there
 came
 A galley, hailed us. “ Who asks entry here
 In war-time ? Are you Sparta’s friend or foe ? ” “ Kaunians ”—our Captain judged his best reply,
 “ The mainland-seaport that belongs to Rhodes ;
 Rhodes that casts in her lot now with the League,
 Forsaking Athens,—you have heard belike ! ”
 “ Ay, but we heard all Athens in one ode
 Just now ! we heard her in that Aischulos !

They rose up, bowed to who proved master
 now,
 And bade him go free, thank Euripides !
 Ay, and such did so : many such, he said,
 Returning home to Athens, sought him out,
 The old bard in the solitary house,
 And thanked him ere they went to sacrifice.
 I say, we knew that story of last year !

Therefore, at mention of Euripides,
 The Captain crowed out "Euoi, praise the
 God !

Oöp, boys, bring our owl-shield to the fore !
 Out with our Sacred Anchor ! Here she stands,

Balaustion ! Strangers, greet the lyric girl !
 Euripides ? Babai ! what a word there 'scaped
 Your teeth's enclosure, quoth my grandsire's
 song !

Why, fast as snow in Thrace, the voyage
 through,

Has she been falling thick in flakes of him !
 Frequent as figs at Kaunos, Kaunians said.
 Balaustion, stand forth and confirm my speech !
 Now it was some whole passion of a play ;
 Now, peradventure, but a honey-drop
 That slipt its comb i' the chorus. If there rose
 A star, before I could determine steer
 Southward or northward—if a cloud surprised
 Heaven, ere I fairly hollaed ' Furl the sail !—'
 She had at fingers' end both cloud and star ;
 Some thought that perched there, tame and tuneable,

Fitted with wings ; and still, as off it flew,
 ' So sang Euripides,' she said, ' so sang
 The meteoric poet of air and sea,
 Planets and the pale populace of heaven,
 The mind of man, and all that's made to soar !'
 And so, although she has some other name,
 We only call her Wild-pomegranate-flower,
 Balaustion ; since, where'er the red bloom
 burns

I' the dull dark verdure of the bounteous tree,
 Dethroning, in the Rosy Isle,¹ the rose,
 You shall find food, drink, odour, all at once ;
 Cool leaves to bind about an aching brow,

¹ Rhodes.

And, never much away, the nightingale.
 Sing them a strophe, with the turn-again,
 Down to the verse that ends all, proverb-
 like,
 And save us, thou Balaustion, bless the name !"

But I cried " Brother Greek ! better than so,— Save us, and I have courage to recite
 The main of a whole play from first to last ;
 That strangest, saddest, sweetest song of his,
 ALKESTIS ; which was taught, long years ago
 At Athens, in Glaukinos' archonship,
 But only this year reached our Isle o' the Rose.
 I saw it, at Kameiros, played the same,
 They say, as for the right Lenean feast
 In Athens ; and beside the perfect piece—
 Its beauty and the way it makes you weep,—
 There is much honour done your own loved
 God

Herakles, whom you house i' the city here
 Nobly, the Temple wide Greece talks about !
 I come a suppliant to your Herakles !
 Take me and put me on his temple-steps
 To tell you his achievement as I may,
 And, that told, he shall bid you set us free !"

Then, because Greeks are Greeks, and hearts are hearts,
 And poetry is power,—they all outbroke
 In a great joyous laughter with much love :
 " Thank Herakles for the good holiday !
 Make for the harbour ! Row, and let voice
 ring,

' In we row, bringing more Euripides !'"
 All the crowd, as they lined the harbour now,
 " More of Euripides !"—took up the cry.
 We landed ; the whole city, soon astir,
 Came rushing out of gates in common joy
 To the suburb temple ; there they stationed
 me

O' the topmost step : and plain I told the
 play,

Just as I saw it ; what the actors said,
 And what I saw, or thought I saw the while.
 At our Kameiros theatre, clean-scooped
 Out of a nill-side, with the sky above
 And sea before our seats in marbie row :
 Told it, and, two days more, repeated it,

Until they sent us on our way again
With good words and great wishes.

Oh, for me—

A wealthy Syracusan brought a whole
Talent and bade me take it for myself:
I left it on the tripod in the fane,
—For had not Herakles a second time Wrestled with Death and saved devoted
ones?—

Thank-offering to the hero. And a band
Of captives, whom their lords grew kinder to Because they called the poet countryman,
Sent me a crown of wild-pomegranate-flower:
So, I shall live and die Balaustion now.
But one—one man—one youth,—three days,
each day,—

(If, ere I lifted up my voice to speak,
I gave a downward glance by accident)
Was found at foot o' the temple. When we sailed,

There, in the ship too, was he found as well,
Having a hunger to see Athens too.
We reached Peiraiæus; when I landed—lo,
He was beside me. Anthesterion-month
Is just commencing: when its moon rounds
full,

We are to marry. O Euripides!

I saw the master: when we found ourselves (Because the young man needs must follow
me)

Firm on Peiraiæus, I demanded first Whither to go and find him. Would you think?

The story how he saved us made some smile:
They wondered strangers were exorbitant
In estimation of Euripides.

He was not Aischulos nor Sophokles:

—“Then, of our younger bards who boast
the bay,

Had I sought Agathon, or Iophon,
Or, what now had it been Kephisophon?
A man that never kept good company,
The most unsociable of poet-kind,
All beard that was not freckle in his face!”

I soon was at the tragic house, and saw
The master, held the sacred hand of him

And laid it to my lips. Men love him not:
How should they? Nor do they much love his friend

Sokrates: but those two have fellowship:
Sokrates often comes to hear him read,
And never misses if he teach a piece.
Both, being old, will soon have company,
Sit with their peers above the talk. Mean-
time,

He lives as should a statue in its niche;
Cold walls enclose him, mostly darkness
there,

Alone, unless some foreigner uncouth
Breaks in, sits, stares an hour, and so departs,

Brain-stuffed with something to sustain his
life,

Dry to the marrow 'mid much merchandise.
How should such know and love the man?

Why, mark!

Even when I told the play and got the praise,
There spoke up a brisk little somebody,
Critic and whippersnapper, in a rage
To set things right: “The girl departs from
truth!

Pretends she saw what was not to be seen,
Making the mask of the actor move, forsooth!
'Then a fear flitted o'er the wife's white
face,'—

'Then frowned the father,'—'then the husband shook,'—

'Then from the festal forehead slipt each
spray,

'And the heroic mouth's gay grace was
gone;'

As she had seen each naked fleshly face,
And not the merely-painted mask it wore!”

Well, is the explanation difficult?

What's poetry except a power that makes?
And, speaking to one sense, inspires the rest,
Pressing them all into its service; so
That who sees painting, seems to hear as well
The speech that's proper for the painted
mouth;

And who hears music, feels his solitude
Peopled at once—for how count heart-beats
plain

Unless a company, with hearts which beat,

Come close to the musician, seen or no?
 And who receives true verse at eye or ear,
 Takes in (with verse) time, place, and person
 too,
 So, links each sense on to its sister-sense,
 Grace-like: and what if but one sense of three Front you at once? The sidelong pair
 conceive
 Thro' faintest touch of finest finger-tips,—
 Hear, see and feel, in faith's simplicity,
 Alike, what one was sole recipient of:
 Who hears the poem, therefore, sees the
 play.

Enough and too much! Hear the play itself!

Under the grape-vines, by the streamlet-side,
 Close to Baccheion; till the cool increase,
 And other stars steal on the evening-star,
 And so, we homeward flock i' the dusk, we
 five!

You will expect, no one of all the words
 O' the play but is grown part now of my
 soul,

Since the adventure. 'Tis the poet speaks:
 But if I, too, should try and speak at times,
 Leading your love to where my love, per-
 chance,

Climbed earlier, found a nest before you knew—

Why, bear with the poor climber, for love's
 sake!

Look at Baccheion's beauty opposite,
 The temple with the pillars at the porch!
 See you not something beside masonry?
 What if my words wind in and out the stone
 As yonder ivy, the God's parasite?

Though they leap all the way the pillar leads,
 Festoon about the marble, foot to frieze,
 And serpentinely enrich the roof,
 Toy with some few bees and a bird or two,—
 What then? The column holds the cornice up.

There slept a silent palace in the sun,
 With plains adjacent and Thessalian peace—
 Pherai, where King Admetos ruled the land.

Out from the portico there gleamed a God,
 Apollon: for the bow was in his hand,
 The quiver at his shoulder, all his shape
 One dreadful beauty. And he hailed the house

As if he knew it well and loved it much:
 "O Admeteian domes, where I endured,
 Even the God I am, to drudge awhile,
 Do righteous penance for a reckless deed,
 Accepting the slaves' table thankfully!"
 Then told how Zeus had been the cause of all,
 Raising the wrath in him which took revenge
 And slew those forgers of the thunderbolt Wherewith Zeus blazed the life from out the breast

Of Phoibos' son Asklepios (I surmise,
 Because he brought the dead to life again)
 And so, for punishment, must needs go slave,
 God as he was, with a mere mortal lord:
 —Told how he came to King Admetos' land,
 And played the ministrant, was herdsman
 there,

Warding all harm away from him and his Till now; "For, holy as I am," said he,
 "The lord I chanced upon was holy too:
 Whence I deceived the Moirai, drew from
 death

My master, this same son of Pheres,—ay,
 The Goddesses conceded him escape
 From Hades, when the fated day should fall,
 Could he exchange lives, find some friendly
 one

Ready, for his sake, to content the grave.
 But trying all in turn, the friendly list,
 Why, he found no one, none who loved so
 much,

Nor father, nor the aged mother's self
 That bore him, no, not any save his wife,
 Willing to die instead of him and watch
 Never a sunrise nor a sunset more:
 And she is even now within the house,
 Upborne by pitying hands, the feeble frame
 Gasping its last of life out; since to-day
 Destiny is accomplished, and she dies,
 And I, lest here pollution light on me,
 Leave, as ye witness, all my wonted joy
 In this dear dwelling. Ay,—for here comes
 Death

"But, young or old, thou tak'st one life, no more!"

"Younger they die, greater my praise redounds!"

"If she die old,—the sumptuous funeral!"

"Thou layest down a law the rich would like."

"How so? Did wit lurk there and 'scape thy sense?"

"Who could buy substitutes would die old men."

"It seems thou wilt not grant me, then, this grace?"

"This grace I will not grant: thou know'st my ways."

"Ways harsh to men, hateful to Gods, at least!"

"All things thou canst not have: my rights for me!"

And then Apollon prophesied,—I think,
More to himself than to impatient Death,
Who did not hear or would not heed the while,—

For he went on to say "Yet even so,
Cruel above the measure, thou shalt clutch
No life here! Such a man do I perceive Advancing to the house of Pheres now,
Sent by Eurustheus to bring out of Thrace,
The winter world, a chariot with its steeds!

He indeed, when Admetos proves the host,
And he the guest, at the house here,—he it is Shall bring to bear such force, and from thy
hands

Rescue this woman. Grace no whit to me
Will that prove, since thou dost thy deed the
same,

And earnest too my hate, and all for
nought!"

But how should Death or stay or understand?
Doubtless, he only felt the hour was come,
And the sword free; for he but flung some taunt—

"Having talked much, thou wilt not gain the
more!

This woman, then, descends to Hades' hall
Now that I rush on her, begin the rites
O' the sword; for sacred, to us Gods below,
That head whose hair this sword shall sanctify!"

And, in the fire-flash of the appalling sword,
The uprush and the outburst, the onslaught
Of Death's portentous passage through the door,

Apollon stood a pitying moment-space:
I caught one last gold gaze upon the night
Nearing the world now: and the God was
gone,

And mortals left to deal with misery,
As in came stealing slow, now this, now that Old sojourner throughout the country-side,
Servants grown friends to those unhappy here:
And, cloudlike in their increase, all these griefs

Broke and began the over-brimming wail,
Out of a common impulse, word by word.

"What now may mean the silence at the door?
Why is Admetos' mansion stricken dumb?
Not one friend near, to say if we should mourn
Our mistress dead, or if Alkestis lives
And sees the light still, Pelias' child—to me
To all, conspicuously the best of wives
That ever was toward husband in this world:
Hears anyone or wail beneath the roof,
Or hands that strike each other, or the groan
Announcing all is done and nought to dread?
Still not a servant stationed at the gates!
O Paian, that thou wouldst dispart the wave
O' the woe, be present! Yet, had woe o'erwhelmed

The housemates, they were hardly silent thus:
It cannot be, the dead is forth and gone.
Whence comes thy gleam of hope? I dare not hope:

What is the circumstance that heartens thee?

How could Admetos have dismissed a wife
 So worthy, unescorted to the grave?
 Before the gates I see no hallowed vase
 Of fountain-water, such as suits death's door;
 Nor any clipt locks strew the vestibule,
 Though surely these drop when we grieve the
 dead,
 Nor hand sounds smitten against youthful
 hand,
 The women's way. And yet—the appointed
 time—

How speak the word?—this day is even the day
 Ordained her for departing from its light.
 O touch calamitous to heart and soul!
 Needs must one, when the good are tortured so,
 Sorrow,—one reckoned faithful from the first."

Then their souls rose together, and one sigh
 Went up in cadence from the common mouth:
 How "Vainly—anywhither in the world
 Directing or land-labour or sea-search—
 To Lukia or the sand-waste, Ammon's seat—
 Might you set free their hapless lady's soul
 From the abrupt Fate's footstep instant now.
 Not a sheep-sacrificer at the hearths
 Of Gods had they to go to: one there was
 Who, if his eyes saw light still,—Phoibos'
 son,—

Had wrought so she might leave the shadowy
 place
 And Hades' portal; for he propped up Death's
 Subdued ones till the Zeus-flung thunder-flame Struck him; and now what hope of life were hailed

With open arms? For, all the king could do
 Is done already,—not one God whereof
 The altar fails to reek with sacrifice:
 And for assuagement of these evils—nought!"

But here they broke off, for a matron moved Forth from the house: and, as her tears flowed fast,
 They gathered round. "What fortune shall we hear?

For mourning thus, if aught affect thy lord,
 We pardon thee: but lives the lady yet
 Or has she perished?—that we fain would
 know!"

"Call her dead, call her living, each style serves,"
 The matron said: "though grave-ward bowed,
 she breathed;
 Nor knew her husband what the misery meant
 Before he felt it: hope of life was none:
 The appointed day pressed hard; the funeral pomp
 He had prepared too."

When the friends broke out:
 "Let her in dying know herself at least
 Sole wife, of all the wives 'neath the sun wide,
 For glory and for goodness!"—"Ah, how else
 Than best? who controverts the claim?"
 quoth she:

"What kind of creature should the woman
 prove
 That has surpassed Alkestis?—surelier shown Preference for her husband to herself
 Than by determining to die for him?
 But so much all our city knows indeed:
 Hear what she did indoors and wonder then!
 For, when she felt the crowning day was come,
 She washed with river-waters her white skin,
 And, taking from the cedar closets forth
 Vesture and ornament, bedecked herself Nobly, and stood before the hearth, and prayed:

'Mistress, because I now depart the world,
 Falling before thee the last time, I ask—
 Be mother to my orphans! wed the one
 To a kind wife, and make the other's mate
 Some princely person: nor, as I who bore
 My children perish, suffer that they too
 Die all untimely, but live, happy pair,
 Their full glad life out in the fatherland!
 And every altar through Admetos' house
 She visited and crowned and prayed before,
 Stripping the myrtle-foliage from the boughs,
 Without a tear, without a groan,—no change
 At all to that skin's nature, fair to see,
 Caused by the imminent evil. But this done—
 Reaching her chamber, falling on her bed,
 There, truly, burst she into tears and spoke:
 'O bride-bed, where I loosened from my life
 Virginity for that same husband's sake
 Because of whom I die now—fare thee well!
 Since nowise do I hate thee: me alone

Hast thou destroyed ; for, shrinking to betray Thee and my spouse, I die : but thee, O bed,
Some other woman shall possess as wife—
Truer, no ! but of better fortune, say !'

—So falls on, kisses it till all the couch
Is moistened with the eyes' sad overflow.
But, when of many tears she had her fill,
She flings from off the couch, goes headlong
forth,

Yet,—forth the chamber,—still keeps turning
back

And casts her on the couch again once more.
Her children, clinging to their mother's robe,
Wept meanwhile : but she took them in her
arms,

And, as a dying woman might, embraced
Now one and now the other : 'neath the roof,
All of the household servants wept as well,
Moved to compassion for their mistress ; she Extended her right hand to all and each,
And there was no one of such low degree
She spoke not to nor had an answer from.
Such are the evils in Admetos' house.

Dying,—why, he had died ; but, living, gains
Such grief as this he never will forget !"

And when they questioned of Admetos,
"Well—

Holding his dear wife in his hands, he weeps ;
Entreats her not to give him up, and seeks
The impossible, in fine : for there she wastes
And withers by disease, abandoned now,
A mere dead weight upon her husband's arm.
Yet, none the less, although she breathe so faint,

Her will is to behold the beams o' the sun :
Since never more again, but this last once,
Shall she see sun, its circlet or its ray.

But I will go, announce your presence,—
friends

Indeed ; since 'tis not all so love their lords
As seek them in misfortune, kind the same :
But you are the old friends I recognise."

And at the word she turned again to go
The while they waited, taking up the plaint
To Zeus again : "What passage from this strait ?

What loosing of the heavy fortune fast
About the palace ? Will such help appear,
Or must we clip the locks and cast around
Each form already the black peplos' fold ?
Clearly the black robe, clearly ! All the same,
Pray to the Gods !—like Gods' no power so great !

O thou king Paian, find some way to save !
Reveal it, yea, reveal it ! Since of old Thou found'st a cure, why, now again become Releaser from the bonds of Death, we beg,
And give the sanguinary Hades pause !"
So the song dwindled into a mere moan,
How dear the wife, and what her husband's
woe ;

When suddenly—

"Behold, behold !" breaks forth :
"Here is she coming from the house indeed !
Her husband comes, too ! Cry aloud, lament,
Pheraian land, this best of women, bound—
So is she withered by disease away—
For realms below and their infernal king !
Never will we affirm there's more of joy
Than grief in marriage ; making estimate
Both from old sorrows anciently observed,
And this misfortune of the king we see—
Admetos who, of bravest spouse bereaved,
Will live life's remnant out, no life at all !"

So wailed they, while a sad procession wound
Slow from the innermost o' the palace, stopped
At the extreme verge of the platform-front :
There opened, and disclosed Alkestis' self,
The consecrated lady, borne to look
Her last—and let the living look their last—
She at the sun, we at Alkestis.

We !

For would you note a memorable thing ?
We grew to see in that severe regard,—
Hear in that hard dry pressure to the point,
Word slow pursuing word in monotone,—
What Death meant when he called her consecrate

Henceforth to Hades. I believe, the sword—
Its office was to cut the soul at once
From life,—from something in this world which hides

Truth, and hides falsehood, and so lets us live

Indeed, a mother is no more for you !
Farewell, O children, long enjoy the light !”

“ Ah me, the melancholy word I hear,
Oppressive beyond every kind of death !
No, by the Deities, take heart nor dare
To give me up—no, by our children too
Made orphans of ! But rise, be resolute,
Since, thou departed, I no more remain !
For in thee are we bound up, to exist
Or cease to be—so we adore thy love !”

—Which brought out truth to judgment. At this word

And protestation, all the truth in her
Claimed to assert itself : she waved away
The blue-eyed black-wing'd phantom, held in check

The advancing pageantry of Hades there,
And, with no change in her own countenance,
She fixed her eyes on the protesting man,
And let her lips unlock their sentence,—so !

“ Admetos,—how things go with me thou seest,—

I wish to tell thee, ere I die, what things
I will should follow. I—to honour thee,
Secure for thee, by my own soul's exchange,
Continued looking on the daylight here—
Die for thee—yet, if so I pleased, might live,
Nay, wed what man of Thessaly I would,
And dwell i' the dome with pomp and queenliness.

I would not,—would not live bereft of thee,
With children orphaned, neither shrank at all,
Though having gifts of youth wherein I joyed.
Yet, who begot thee and who gave thee birth,
Both of these gave thee up ; no less, a term
Of life was reached when death became them
well,

Ay, well—to save their child and glorious die :
Since thou wast all they had, nor hope remained
Of having other children in thy place.

So, I and thou had lived out our full time,
Nor thou, left lonely of thy wife, wouldst groan
With children reared in orphanage : but thus
Some God disposed things, willed they so should be.

Be they so ! Now do thou remember this,
Do me in turn a favour—favour, since Certainly I shall never claim my due,
For nothing is more precious than a life :
But a fit favour, as thyself wilt say,
Loving our children here no less than I,
If head and heart be sound in thee at least.
Uphold them, make them masters of my house,
Nor wed and give a step-dame to the pair,
Who, being a worse wife than I, thro' spite
Will raise her hand against both thine and mine.
Never do this at least, I pray to thee !

For hostile the new-comer, the step-dame,
To the old brood—a very viper she For gentleness ! Here stand they, boy and girl ;

The boy has got a father, a defence
Tower-like, he speaks to and has answer from :
But thou, my girl, how will thy virginhood
Conclude itself in marriage fittingly ?
Upon what sort of sire-found yoke-fellow
Art thou to chance ? with all to apprehend—
Lest, casting on thee some unkind report,
She blast thy nuptials in the bloom of youth.
For neither shall thy mother watch thee wed,
Nor hearten thee in childbirth, standing by Just when a mother's presence helps the most !
No, for I have to die : and this my ill
Comes to me, nor to-morrow, no, nor yet
The third day of the month, but now, even
now,

I shall be reckoned among those no more.
Farewell, be happy ! And to thee, indeed,
Husband, the boast remains permissible
Thou hadst a wife was worthy ! and to you.
Children ; as good a mother gave you birth.”

“ Have courage !” interposed the friends,
“ For him

I have no scruple to declare—all this
Will he perform, except he fail of sense.”

“ All this shall be—shall be !” Admetos sobbed :

“ Fear not ! And, since I had thee living,
dead

Alone wilt thou be called my wife : no fear
That some Thessalian ever styles herself

Bride, hails this man for husband in thy place !
 No woman, be she of such lofty line
 Or such surpassing beauty otherwise !
 Enough of children : gain from these I have,
 Such only may the Gods grant ! since in thee
 Absolute is our loss, where all was gain.
 And I shall bear for thee no year-long grief,
 But grief that lasts while my own days last,
 love !

Love ! For my hate is she who bore me,
 now :

And him I hate, my father : loving-ones
 Truly, in word not deed ! But thou didst pay
 All dearest to thee down, and buy my life, Saving me so ! Is there not cause enough
 That I who part with such companionship
 In thee, should make my moan ? I moan, and more :

For I will end the feastings—social flow
 O' the wine friends flock for, garlands and the Muse

That graced my dwelling. Never now for me
 To touch the lyre, to lift my soul in song
 At summons of the Lydian flute ; since thou
 From out my life hast emptied all the joy !
 And this thy body, in thy likeness wrought
 By some wise hand of the artificers,
 Shall lie disposed within my marriage-bed :
 This I will fall on, this enfold about,
 Call by thy name,—my dear wife in my arms
 Even though I have not, I shall seem to have—

A cold delight, indeed, but all the same
 So should I lighten of its weight my soul !
 And, wandering my way in dreams perchance, Thyself wilt bless me : for, come when they
 will,

Even by night our loves are sweet to see.
 But were the tongue and tune of Orpheus
 mine,

So that to Koré¹ crying, or her lord,
 In hymns, from Hades I might rescue thee—
 Down would I go, and neither Plouton's dog
 Nor Charon, he whose oar sends souls across,
 Should stay me till again I made thee stand Living, within the light ! But, failing this,

¹ Proserpine.

There, where thou art, await me when I die,
 Make ready our abode, my house-mate still !
 For in the self-same cedar, me with thee
 Will I provide that these our friends shall
 place,

My side lay close by thy side ! Never, corpse
 Although I be, would I division bear
 From thee, my faithful one of all the world !”

So he stood sobbing : nowise insincere,
 But somehow child-like, like his children, like Childishness the world over. What was new
 In this announcement that his wife must die ?
 What particle of pain beyond the pact
 He made, with eyes wide open, long ago—
 Made and was, if not glad, content to make ?
 Now that the sorrow, he had called for, came,
 He sorrowed to the height : none heard him
 say,

However, what would seem so pertinent,
 “ To keep this pact, I find surpass my power :
 Rescind it, Moirai ! Give me back her life,
 And take the life I kept by base exchange !
 Or, failing that, here stands your laughing-
 stock

Fooled by you, worthy just the fate o' the fool
 Who makes a pother to escape the best
 And gain the worst you wiser Powers allot !”
 No, not one word of this : nor did his wife
 Despite the sobbing, and the silence soon
 To follow, judge so much was in his thought—
 Fancy that, should the Moirai acquiesce,
 He would relinquish life nor let her die.
 The man was like some merchant who, in
 storm,

Throws the freight over to redeem the ship :
 No question, saving both were better still.
 As it was,—why, he sorrowed, which sufficed.
 So, all she seemed to notice in his speech
 Was what concerned her children. Children,
 too,

Bear the grief and accept the sacrifice.
 Rightly rules nature : does the blossomed bough
 O' the grape-vine, or the dry grape's self, bleed wine ?

So, bending to her children all her love,
 She fastened on their father's only word

To purpose now, and followed it with this.
 "O children, now yourselves have heard these things—
 Your father saying he will never wed
 Another woman to be over you,
 Nor yet dishonour me!"

"And now at least
 I say it, and I will accomplish too!"

"Then, for such promise of accomplishment, Take from my hand these children!"

"Thus I take—
 Dear gift from the dear hand!"

"Do thou become Mother, now, to these children in my place!"

"Great the necessity I should be so,
 At least, to these bereaved of thee!"

"Child—child!
 Just when I needed most to live, below
 Am I departing from you both!"

"Ah me!
 And what shall I do, then, left lonely thus?"

"Time will appease thee: who is dead is nought."

"Take me with thee—take, by the Gods
 below!"

"We are sufficient, we who die for thee."

"Oh, Powers, ye widow me of what a wife!"

"And truly the dimmed eye draws earth-ward now!"

"Wife, if thou leav'st me, I am lost indeed!"

"She once was—now is nothing, thou mayst
 say."

"Raise thy face nor forsake thy children thus!"

"Ah, willingly indeed I leave them not!
 But—fare ye well, my children!"

"Look on them—
 Look!"

"I am nothingness."

"What dost thou? Leav'st . . ."

"Farewell!"

And in the breath she passed away.

"Undone—me miserable!" moaned the king,
 While friends released the long-suspended sigh

"Gone is she: no wife for Admetos more!"

Such was the signal: how the woe broke
 forth,

Why tell?—or how the children's tears ran fast

Bidding their father note the eyelids' stare, Hands' droop, each dreadful circumstance of
 death.

"Ay, she hears not, she sees not: I and you,
 'Tis plain, are stricken hard and have to bear!"

Was all Admetos answered; for, I judge,
 He only now began to taste the truth:
 The thing done lay revealed, which undone
 thing,

Rehearsed for fact by fancy, at the best,
 Never can equal. He had used himself
 This long while (as he muttered presently)
 To practise with the terms, the blow involved
 By the bargain, sharp to bear, but bearable
 Because of plain advantage at the end.

Now that, in fact not fancy, the blow fell—
 Needs must he busy him with the surprise.

"Alkestis—not to see her nor be seen,
 Hear nor be heard of by her, any more
 To-day, to-morrow, to the end of time—
 Did I mean this should buy my life?"
 thought he.

So, friends came round him, took him by the hand,

Bade him remember our mortality,

Along with the gay cheer of that great voice,
 Hope, joy, salvation : Herakles was here !
 Himself, o' the threshold, sent his voice on first
 To herald all that human and divine
 I' the weary happy face of him,—half God, Half man, which made the god-part God the
 more.

“ Hosts mine,” he broke upon the sorrow with,
 “ Inhabitants of this Pheraian soil,
 Chance I upon Admetos inside here ? ”

The irresistible sound wholesome heart
 O' the hero,—more than all the mightiness
 At labour in the limbs that, for man's sake,
 Laboured and meant to labour their life long,—
 This drove back, dried up sorrow at its source.
 How could it brave the happy weary laugh
 Of who had bantered sorrow “ Sorrow here ?
 What have you done to keep your friend from harm ?

Could no one give the life I see he keeps ?
 Or, say there's sorrow here past friendly help,
 Why waste a word or let a tear escape
 While other sorrows wait you in the world,
 And want the life of you, though helpless here ? ”
 Clearly there was no telling such an one
 How, when their monarch tried who loved him more

Than he loved them, and found they loved, as he,

Each man, himself, and held, no otherwise,
 That, of all evils in the world, the worst
 Was—being forced to die, whate'er death gain :
 How all this selfishness in him and them
 Caused certain sorrow which they sang
 about,—

I think that Herakles, who held his life
 Out on his hand, for any man to take—
 I think his laugh had marred their threnody.

“ He is in the house ” they answered. After all,
 They might have told the story, talked their
 best

About the inevitable sorrow here,
 Nor changed nor checked the kindly nature,
 —no !

So long as men were merely weak, not bad,

He loved men : were they Gods he used to help ?

“ Yea, Pheres' son is in-doors, Herakles.
 But say, what sends thee to Thessalian soil,
 Brought by what business to this Pherai
 town ? ”

“ A certain labour that I have to do Eurustheus the Tirunthian,” laughed the God.

“ And whither wendest—on what wandering Bound now ? ” (they had an instinct, guessed what meant

Wanderings, labours, in the God's light
 mouth.)

“ After the Thrakian Diomedes' car
 With the four horses.”

“ Ah, but canst thou that ?
 Art inexperienced in thy host to be ? ”

“ All-inexperienced : I have never gone
 As yet to the land o' the Bistones.”

“ Then, look
 By no means to be master of the steeds
 Without a battle ! ”

“ Battle there may be :
 I must refuse no labour, all the same.”

“ Certainly, either having slain a foe
 Wilt thou return to us, or, slain thyself,
 Stay there ! ”

“ And, even if the game be so,
 The risk in it were not the first I run.”

“ But, say thou overpower the lord o' the place.
 What more advantage dost expect thereby ? ”

“ I shall drive off his horses to the king.”

“ No easy handling them to bit the jaw ! ”

“ Easy enough ; except, at least, they breathe Fire from their nostrils ! ”

“ But they mince up men
 With those quick jaws ! ”

“ You talk of provender
For mountain-beasts, and not mere horses’ food ! ”

“ Thou mayst behold their mangers caked with gore ! ”

“ And of what sire does he who bred them boast Himself the son ? ”

“ Of Ares, king o’ the targe—Thrakian, of gold throughout. ”

Another laugh.

“ Why, just the labour, just the lot for me
Dost thou describe in what I recognize !
Since hard and harder, high and higher yet,
Truly this lot of mine is like to go
If I must needs join battle with the brood
Of Ares : ay, I fought Lukaon first,
And again, Kuknos : now engage in strife
This third time, with such horses and such lord.

But there is nobody shall ever see Alkmené’s son shrink foemen’s hand before ! ”

—“ O never hear him say ” (the Chorus thought) “ That death is terrible ; and help us so
To chime in—‘ terrible beyond a doubt,
And, if to thee, why, to ourselves much more :
Know what has happened, then, and sympathise ’ ! ”

Therefore they gladly stopped the dialogue,
Shifted the burthen to new shoulder straight,
As, “ Look where comes the lord o’ the land, himself,

Admetos, from the palace ! ” they outbroke
In some surprise, as well as much relief.
What had induced the king to waive his right
And luxury of woe in loneliness ?

Out he came quietly ; the hair was clipt,
And the garb sable ; else no outward sign
Of sorrow as he came and faced his friend.
Was truth fast terrifying tears away ?

“ Hail, child of Zeus, and sprung from Per-seus too ! ”

The salutation ran without a fault.

“ And thou, Admetos, King of Thessaly ! ”

“ Would, as thou wishest me, the grace might fall !

But my good-wisher, that thou art, I know. ”

“ What’s here ? these shorn locks, this sad show of thee ? ”

“ I must inter a certain corpse to-day. ”

“ Now, from thy children God avert mis-
chance ! ”

“ They live, my children ; all are in the house ! ”

“ Thy father—if ’tis he departs indeed,
His age was ripe at least. ”

“ My father lives,
And she who bore me lives too, Herakles. ”

“ It cannot be thy wife Alkestis gone ? ”

“ Two-fold the tale is, I can tell of her. ”

“ Dead dost thou speak of her, or living yet ? ”

“ She is—and is not : hence the pain to me ! ”

“ I learn no whit the more, so dark thy speech ! ”

“ Know’st thou not on what fate she needs must fall ? ”

“ I know she is resigned to die for thee. ”

“ How lives she still, then, if submitting so ? ”

“ Eh, weep her not beforehand ! wait till
then ! ”

“ Who is to die is dead ; doing is done. ”

“ To be and not to be are thought diverse. ”

“ Thou judgest this—I, that way, Herakles ! ”

“ Well, but declare what causes thy complaint !
Who is the man has died from out thy friends ? ”

"No man : I had a woman in my mind."

"Alien, or someone born akin to thee?"

"Alien : but still related to my house."

"How did it happen then that here she died?"

"Her father dying left his orphan here."

"Alas, Admetos—would we found thee gay,
Not grieving!"

"What as if about to do Subjoinest thou that comment?"

"I shall seek Another hearth, proceed to other hosts."

"Never, O king, shall that be! No such ill Betide me!"

"Nay, to mourners should there come
A guest, he proves importunate!"

"The dead—
Dead are they: but go thou within my house!"

"'Tis base carousing beside friends who mourn."

"The guest-rooms, whither we shall lead thee, lie
Apart from ours."

"Nay, let me go my way!
Ten thousandfold the favour I shall thank!"

"It may not be thou goest to the hearth
Of any man but me!" so made an end
Admetos, softly and decisively,
Of the altercation. Herakles forbore:
And the king bade a servant lead the way,
Open the guest-rooms ranged remote from view
O' the main hall; tell the functionaries, next,
They had to furnish forth a plenteous feast,
And then shut close the doors o' the hall,
midway,

"Because it is not proper friends who feast Should hear a groaning or be grieved," quoth
he.

Whereat the hero, who was truth itself,
Let out the smile again, repressed awhile
Like fountain-brilliance one forbids to play.
He did too many grandnesses, to note
Much in the meaner things about his path:
And stepping there, with face towards the sun,
Stopped seldom to pluck weeds or ask their names.

Therefore he took Admetos at the word:
This trouble must not hinder any more
A true heart from good will and pleasant ways.
And so, the great arm, which had slain the
snake,

Strained his friend's head a moment in embrace
On that broad breast beneath the lion's hide,
Till the king's cheek winced at the thick rough gold;

And then strode off, with who had care of him,
To the remote guest-chamber: glad to give Poor flesh and blood their respite and relief
In the interval 'twixt fight and fight again—
All for the world's sake. Our eyes followed
him,

Be sure, till those mid-doors shut us outside.
The king, too, watched great Herakles go off
All faith, love, and obedience to a friend.

And when they questioned him, the simple
ones,

"What dost thou? Such calamity to face,
Lies full before thee—and thou art so bold
As play the host, Admetos? Hast thy wits?"

He replied calmly to each chiding tongue:
"But if from house and home I forced away
A coming guest, wouldst thou have praised me more?"

No, truly! since calamity were mine,
Nowise diminished; while I showed myself
Unhappy and inhospitable too:
So adding to my ills this other ill,
That mine were styled a stranger-hating house.
Myself have ever found this man the best
Of entertainers when I went his way
To parched and thirsty Argos."

"If so be—
Why didst thou hide what destiny was here.
When one came that was kindly, as thou say'st?"

Pluck back despair just reaching its repose.
 He would have bidden the kind presence
 there
 Observe that,—since the corpse was coming
 out,
 Cared for in all things that befit the case,
 Carried aloft, in decency and state,
 To the last burial place and burning pile,—
 'Twere proper friends addressed, as custom prompts,
 Alkestis bound on her last journeying.

“ Ay, for we see thy father ” they subjoined “ Advancing as the aged foot best may ;
 His servants, too : each bringing in his hand
 Adornments for thy wife, all pomp that's due To the downward-dwelling people.” And in truth,

By slow procession till they filled the stage,
 Came Pheres, and his following, and their gifts.

You see, the worst of the interruption was,
 It plucked back, with an over-hasty hand,
 Admetos from descending to the truth,
 (I told you)—put him on the brink again,
 Full i' the noise and glare where late he stood :

With no fate fallen and irrevocable,
 But all things subject still to chance and
 change :

And that chance—life, and that change—happiness.

And with the low strife came the little mind :
 He was once more the man might gain so
 much,

Life too and wife too, would his friends but
 help !

All he felt now was that there faced him one
 Supposed the likeliest, in emergency,
 To help : and help, by mere self-sacrifice
 So natural, it seemed as if the sire
 Must needs lie open still to argument,
 Withdraw the rash decision, not to die
 But rather live, though death would save his
 son :—

Argument like the ignominious grasp
 O' the drowner whom his fellow grasps as fierce,

Each marvelling that the other needs must hold
 Head out of water, though friend choke thereby

And first the father's salutation fell.
 Burthened, he came, in common with his
 child,
 Who lost, none would gainsay, a good chaste
 spouse :
 Yet such things must be borne, though hard
 to bear.

“ So, take this tribute of adornment, deep
 In the earth let it descend along with her !
 Behoves we treat the body with respect
 —Of one who died, at least, to save thy life,
 Kept me from being childless, nor allowed
 That I, bereft of thee, should peak and pine
 In melancholy age ! she, for the sex,
 All of her sisters, put in evidence,
 By daring such a feat, that female life
 Might prove more excellent than men suppose.

O thou Alkestis ! ” out he burst in fine,
 “ Who, while thou savedst this my son, didst raise

Also myself from sinking,—hail to thee !
 Well be it with thee even in the house
 Of Hades ! I maintain, if mortals must Marry, this sort of marriage is the sole Permitted those among them who are wise ! ”

So his oration ended. Like hates like :
 Accordingly Admetos,—full i' the face
 Of Pheres, his true father, outward shape
 And inward fashion, body matching soul,— Saw just himself when years should do their work

And reinforce the selfishness inside
 Until it pushed the last disguise away :
 As when the liquid metal cools i' the mould.
 Stands forth a statue : bloodless, hard, cold bronze.

So, in old Pheres, young Admetos showed.
 Pushed to completion : and a shudder ran,
 And his repugnance soon had vent in speech :
 Glad to escape outside, nor, pent within,
 Find itself there fit food for exercise.

“ Neither to this interment called by me
Comest thou, nor thy presence I account
Among the covetable proofs of love.

As for thy tribute of adornment,—no !
Ne'er shall she don it, ne'er in debt to thee
Be buried ! What is thine, that keep thou
still !

Then it behoved thee to commiserate
When I was perishing : but thou — who stood'st

Foot-free o' the snare, wast acquiescent then
That I, the young, should die, not thou, the old—

Wilt thou lament this corpse thyself hast slain ?

Thou wast not, then, true father to this flesh ;
Nor she, who makes profession of my birth
And styles herself my mother, neither she Bore me : but, come of slave's blood, I was cast

Stealthily 'neath the bosom of thy wife !
Thou showedst, put to touch, the thing thou
art,

Nor I esteem myself born child of thee !
Otherwise, thine is the preëminence
O'er all the world in cowardice of soul :
Who, being the old man thou art, arrived
Where life should end, didst neither will nor dare

Die for thy son, but left the task to her,
The alien woman, whom I well might think
Own, only mother both and father too !
And yet a fair strife had been thine to strive,
—Dying for thy own child ; and brief for thee
In any case, the rest of time to live ;
While I had lived, and she, our rest of time,
Nor I been left to groan in solitude.

Yet certainly all things which happy man
Ought to experience, thy experience grasped.
Thou wast a ruler through the bloom of youth,
And I was son to thee, recipient due
Of sceptre and demesne,—no need to fear
That dying thou shouldst leave an orphan
house

For strangers to despoil. Nor yet wilt thou Allege that as dishonouring, forsooth,
Thy length of days, I gave thee up to die,—
I, who have held thee in such reverence !

And in exchange for it, such gratitude
Thou, father,—thou award'st me, mother
mine !

Go, lose no time, then, in begetting sons
Shall cherish thee in age, and, when thou diest,

Deck up and lay thee out as corpses claim !
For never I, at least, with this my hand
Will bury thee : it is myself am dead
So far as lies in thee. But if I light

Upon another saviour, and still see
The sunbeam,—his, the child I call myself,
His, the old age that claims my cherishing.
How vainly do these aged pray for death,
Abuse the slow drag of senility !

But should death step up, nobody inclines
To die, nor age is now the weight it was !”

You see what all this poor pretentious talk
Tried at,—how weakness strove to hide itself
In bluster against weakness,—the loud word
To hide the little whisper, not so low
Already in that heart beneath those lips !

Ha, could it be, who hated cowardice
Stood confessed craven, and who lauded so Self-immolating love, himself had pushed
The loved one to the altar in his place ?
Friends interposed, would fain stop further
play

O' the sharp-edged tongue : they felt love's champion here
Had left an undefended point or two,
The antagonist might profit by ; bade
“ Pause !

Enough the present sorrow ! Nor, O son,
Whet thus against thyself thy father's soul !”

Ay, but old Pheres was the stouter stuff !
Admetos, at the flintiest of the heart,
Had so much soft in him as held a fire :
The other was all iron, clashed from flint
Its fire, but shed no spark and showed no bruise.

Did Pheres crave instruction as to facts ?
He came, content, the ignoble word, for him,
Should lurk still in the blackness of each
breast,

As sleeps the water-serpent half surmised :

Not brought up to the surface at a bound,
By one touch of the idly-probing spear,
Reed-like against unconquerable scale.
He came pacific, rather, as strength should,
Bringing the decent praise, the due regret,
And each banality prescribed of old.

Did he commence "Why let her die for
you?"

And rouse the coiled and quiet ugliness
"What is so good to man as man's own
life?"

No: but the other did: and, for his pains,
Out, full in face of him, the venom leapt.

"And whom dost thou make bold, son—
Ludian slave,

Or Phrugian whether, money made thy ware,
To drive at with revilings? Know'st thou
not

I, a Thessalian, from Thessalian sire
Spring and am born legitimately free?
Too arrogant art thou; and, youngster words
Casting against me, having had thy fling,
Thou goest not off as all were ended so!
I gave thee birth indeed and mastership
I' the mansion, brought thee up to boot:
there ends

My owing, nor extends to die for thee!
Never did I receive it as a law
Hereditary, no, nor Greek at all,
That sires in place of sons were bound to die.
For, to thy sole and single self wast thou
Born, with whatever fortune, good or bad;
Such things as bear bestowment, those thou hast;

Already ruling widely, broad-lands, too,
Doubt not but I shall leave thee in due time:
For why? My father left me them before.
Well then, where wrong I thee?—of what defraud?

Neither do thou die for this man, myself,
Nor let him die for thee!—is all I beg.
Thou joyest seeing daylight: dost suppose Thy father joys not too? Undoubtedly,
Long I account the time to pass below,
And brief my span of days; yet sweet the
same:

Is it otherwise to thee who, impudent,

Didst fight off this same death, and livest now Through having sneaked past fate apportioned thee,

And slain thy wife so? Cryest cowardice
On me, I wonder, thou—whom, poor
poltroon,

A very woman worsted, daring death
Just for the sake of thee, her handsome spark?
Shrewdly hast thou contrived how not to die
For evermore now: 'tis but still persuade
The wife, for the time being, to take thy
place!

What, and thy friends who would not do the like,

These dost thou carp at, craven thus thyself?
Crouch and be silent, craven! Comprehend
That, if thou lovest so that life of thine,
Why, everybody loves his own life too:
So, good words, henceforth! If thou speak us ill,

Many and true an ill thing shalt thou hear!"

There you saw leap the hydra at full length!
Only, the old kept glorying the more,
The more the portent thus uncoiled itself,
Whereas the young man shuddered head to
foot,

And shrank from kinship with the creature.
Why

Such horror, unless what he hated most,
Vaunting itself outside, might fairly claim
Acquaintance with the counterpart at home?
I would the Chorus here had plucked up
heart,

Spoken out boldly and explained the man,
If not to men, to Gods. That way, I think.
Sophokles would have led their dance and
song.

Here, they said simply "Too much evil spoke
On both sides!" As the young before, so now
They bade the old man leave abusing thus.

"Let him speak,—I have spoken!" said the
youth:

And so died out the wrangle by degrees
In wretched bickering. "If thou wince at fact,

Behoved thee not prove faulty to myself!"

No longer shall absorb the sight, O friends,
Admetos will begin to see indeed
Who the true foe was, where the blows should
fall !

So, the old selfish Pheres went his way,
Case-hardened as he came ; and left the
youth,
(Only half-selfish now, since sensitive)
To go on learning by a light the more,
As friends moved off, renewing dirge the
while :

“ Unhappy in thy daring ! Noble dame, Best of the good, farewell ! With favouring
face
May Hermes the infernal, Hades too, Receive thee ! And if there,—ay, there,— some touch
Of further dignity await the good,
Sharing with them, mayst thou sit throned by her
The Bride of Hades, in companionship ! ”

Wherewith, the sad procession wound away,
Made slowly for the suburb sepulchre.
And lo,—while still one's heart, in time and
tune,

Paced after that symmetric step of Death
Mute-marching, to the mind's eye, at the head
O' the mourners—one hand pointing out their path

With the long pale terrific sword we saw,
The other leading, with grim tender grace,
Alkestis quieted and consecrate,—
Lo, life again knocked laughing at the door !
The world goes on, goes ever, in and through,
And out again o' the cloud. We faced about,
Fronted the palace where the mid-hall-gate
Opened—not half, nor half of half, perhaps—
Yet wide enough to let out light and life,
And warmth and bounty and hope and joy,
at once.

Festivity burst wide, fruit rare and ripe
Crushed in the mouth of Bacchos, pulpy-prime,
All juice and flavour, save one single seed
Duly ejected from the God's nice lip,
Which lay o' the red edge, blackly visible—

To wit, a certain ancient servitor :
On whom the festal jaws o' the palace shut,
So, there he stood, a much-bewildered man.
Stupid ? Nay, but sagacious in a sort :
Learned, life long, i' the first outside of things,
Though bat for blindness to what lies beneath
And needs a nail-scratch ere 'tis laid you bare.
This functionary was the trusted one
We saw deputed by Admetos late
To lead in Herakles and help him, soul
And body, to such snatched repose, snapped-
up

Sustainment, as might do away the dust
O' the last encounter, knit each nerve anew
For that next onset sure to come at cry
O' the creature next assailed,—nay, should it prove
Only the creature that came forward now
To play the critic upon Herakles !

“ Many the guests ”—so he soliloquized
In musings burdensome to breast before,
When it seemed not too prudent tongue should wag—

“ Many, and from all quarters of this world,
The guests I now have known frequent our
house,
For whom I spread the banquet ; but than
this,

Never a worse one did I yet receive
At the hearth here ! One who seeing, first of all,

The master's sorrow, entered gate the same,
And had the hardihood to house himself.
Did things stop there ! But, modest by no means,

He took what entertainment lay to hand,
Knowing of our misfortune,—did we fail
In aught of the fit service, urged us serve
Just as a guest expects ! And in his hands
Taking the ivied goblet, drinks and drinks
The unmixed product of black mother-earth.
Until the blaze o' the wine went round about
And warmed him : then he crowns with myrtle sprigs

His head, and howls discordance—twofold lay
Was thereupon for us to listen to—
This fellow singing, namely, nor restrained

A jot by sympathy with sorrows here—While we o' the household mourned our mistress—mourned,
 That is to say, in silence—never showed
 The eyes, which we kept wetting, to the guest—
 For there Admetos was imperative.
 And so, here am I helping make at home
 A guest, some fellow ripe for wickedness,
 Robber or pirate, while she goes her way
 Out of our house : and neither was it mine
 To follow in procession, nor stretch forth
 Hand, wave my lady dear a last farewell,
 Lamenting who to me and all of us
 Domestic was a mother : myriad harms
 She used to ward away from everyone,
 And mollify her husband's ireful mood.
 I ask then, do I justly hate or no
 This guest, this interloper on our grief?"

"Hate him and justly!" Here's the proper
 judge

Of what is due to the house from Herakles!
 This man of much experience saw the first
 O' the feeble duckings-down at destiny,
 When King Admetos went his rounds, poor
 soul,

A-begging somebody to be so brave
 As die for one afraid to die himself—

"Thou, friend? Thou, love? Father or mother, then!

None of you? What, Alkestis must Death
 catch?

O best of wives, one woman in the world!
 But nowise droop: our prayers may still assist:
 Let us try sacrifice; if those avail

Nothing and Gods avert their countenance,
 Why, deep and durable our grief will be!"

Whereat the house, this worthy at its head,
 Re-echoed "deep and durable our grief!"

This sage, who justly hated Herakles,
 Did he suggest once "Rather I than she!"

Admonish the Turannos—"Be a man!
 Bear thine own burden, never think to thrust

Thy fate upon another and thy wife!
 It were a dubious gain could death be doomed

That other, and no passionatest plea
 Of thine, to die instead, have force with fate;

Seeing thou lov'st Alkestis: what were life
 Unlighted by the loved one? But to live—
 Not merely live unsoled by some thought,
 Some word so poor—yet solace all the same—
 As 'Thou i' the sepulchre, Alkestis, say!
 Would I, or would not I, to save thy life,
 Die, and die on, and die for evermore?'
 No! but to read red-written up and down
 The world 'This is the sunshine, this the shade,

This is some pleasure of earth, sky or sea,
 Due to that other, dead that thou mayst
 live!

Such were a covetable gain to thee?
 Go die, fool, and be happy while 'tis time!"
 One word of counsel in this kind, methinks,
 Had fallen to better purpose than Ai, ai,
 Pheu, pheu, e, papai, and a pother of praise
 O' the best, best, best one! Nothing was to hate

In King Admetos, Pheres, and the rest
 O' the household down to his heroic self!
 This was the one thing hateful: Herakles
 Had flung into the presence, frank and free,
 Out from the labour into the repose,
 Ere out again and over head and ears

I' the heart of labour, all for love of men:
 Making the most o' the minute, that the soul
 And body, strained to height a minute since,
 Might lie relaxed in joy, this breathing-space,
 For man's sake more than ever; till the bow,
 Restrung o' the sudden, at first cry for help,
 Should send some unimagined shaft

True to the aim and shatteringly through
 The plate-mail of a monster, save man so.
 He slew the pest o' the marish yesterday:
 To-morrow he would bit the flame-breathed
 stud

That fed on man's-flesh: and this day between—

Because he held it natural to die,
 And fruitless to lament a thing past cure,
 So, took his fill of food, wine, song and
 flowers,

Till the new labour claimed him soon
 enough,—

"Hate him and justly!"

True, Charopé mine!

The man surmised not Herakles lay hid
 I' the guest ; or, knowing it, was ignorant
 That still his lady lived—for Herakles ;
 Or else judged lightness needs must indicate
 This or the other caitiff quality :
 And therefore—had been right if not so
 wrong !

For who expects the sort of him will scratch
 A nail's depth, scrape the surface just to see
 What peradventure underlies the same ?

So, he stood petting up his puny hate,
 Parent-wise, proud of the ill-favoured babe.
 Not long ! A great hand, careful lest it crush,
 Startled him on the shoulder : up he stared,
 And over him, who stood but Herakles !
 There smiled the mighty presence, all one
 smile

And no touch more of the world-weary God,
 Through the brief respite. Just a garland's
 grace

About the brow, a song to satisfy Head, heart and breast, and trumpet-lips at
 once,

A solemn draught of true religious wine,
 And,—how should I know ?—half a mountain
 goat

Torn up and swallowed down,—the feast was fierce

But brief : all cares and pains took wing and flew,

Leaving the hero ready to begin
 And help mankind, whatever woe came next,
 Even though what came next should be nought more

Than the mean querulous mouth o' the man, remarked

Pursing its grievance up till patience failed
 And the sage needs must rush out, as we saw
 To sulk outside and pet his hate in peace.
 By no means would the Helper have it so :
 He who was just about to handle brutes
 In Thrace, and bit the jaws which breathed the flame,—

Well, if a good laugh and a jovial word
 Could bridle age which blew bad humours
 forth,

That were a kind of help, too !

“ Thou, there ! ” hailed

This grand benevolence the ungracious one—“ Why look'st so solemn and so thought-absorbed ?

To guests a servant should not sour-faced be,
 But do the honours with a mind urbane.

While thou, contrariwise, beholding here
 Arrive thy master's comrade, hast for him
 A churlish visage, all one beetle-brow—
 Having regard to grief that's out-of-door !
 Come hither, and so get to grow more wise !
 Things mortal—know'st the nature that they have ?

No, I imagine ! whence could knowledge
 spring ?

Give ear to me, then ! For all flesh to die,
 Is nature's due ; nor is there any one
 Of mortals with assurance he shall last
 The coming morrow : for, what's born of
 chance

Invisibly proceeds the way it will,
 Not to be learned, no fortune-teller's prize.
 This, therefore, having heard and known through me,

Gladden thyself ! Drink ! Count the day-by-day

Existence thine, and all the other—chance !
 Ay, and pay homage also to by far
 The sweetest of divinities for man,
 Kupris !¹ Benignant Goddess will she prove !
 But as for aught else, leave and let things be !
 And trust my counsel, if I seem to speak
 To purpose—as I do, apparently.

Wilt not thou, then,—discarding overmuch
 Mournfulness, do away with this shut door,
 Come drink along with me, be-garlanded
 This fashion ? Doso, and—I well know what—
 From this stern mood, this shrunk-up state of mind,

The pit-pat fall o' the flagon-juice down
 throat

Soon will dislodge thee from bad harbourage !
 Men being mortal should think mortal-like :
 Since to your solemn, brow-contracting sort,
 All of them,—so I lay down law at least,—
 Life is not truly life but misery.”

Pillar-wise to the sky and saves the world :
So, in a spasm and splendour of resolve,
All at once did the God surmount the man.

“ O much-enduring heart and hand of mine !
Now show what sort of son she bore to Zeus,
That daughter of Elektron, Tiruns' child,
Alkmené ! for that son must needs save now
The just-head lady : ay, establish here
I' the house again Alkestis, bring about Comfort and succour to Admetos so !
I will go lie in wait for Death, black-stoled
King of the corpses ! I shall find him, sure,
Drinking, beside the tomb, o' the sacrifice :
And if I lie in ambushade, and leap
Out of my lair, and seize—encircle him
Till one hand join the other round about—
There lives not who shall pull him out from me,
Rib-mauled, before he let the woman go !
But even say I miss the booty,—say,
Death comes not to the boltered blood,—why
then,

Down go I, to the unsunned dwelling-place
Of Koré and the king there,—make demand,
Confident I shall bring Alkestis back,
So as to put her in the hands of him
My host, that housed me, never drove me off :
Though stricken with sore sorrow, hid the stroke,
Being a noble heart and honouring me !
Who of Thessalians, more than this man, loves
The stranger ? Who, that now inhabits Greece ?

Wherefore he shall not say the man was vile
Whom he befriended,—native noble heart ! ”

So, one look upward, as if Zeus might laugh
Approval of his human progeny,—
One summons of the whole magnific frame,
Each sinew to its service,—up he caught,
And over shoulder cast, the lion-shag,
Let the club go,—for had he not those hands ?
And so went striding off, on that straight way
Leads to Larissa and the suburb tomb.
Gladness be with thee, Helper of our world !
I think this is the authentic sign and seal
Of Godship, that it ever waxes glad,
And more glad, until gladness blossoms, bursts

Into a rage to suffer for mankind,
And recommence at sorrow : drops like seed
After the blossom, ultimate of all.
Say, does the seed scorn earth and seek the sun ?

Surely it has no other end and aim
Than to drop, once more die into the ground,
Taste cold and darkness and oblivion there :
And thence rise, tree-like grow through pain
to joy,
More joy and most joy,—do man good again.

So, to the struggle off strode Herakles.
When silence closed behind the lion-garb,
Back came our dull fact settling in its place,
Though heartiness and passion half-dispersed
The inevitable fate. And presently
In came the mourners from the funeral,
One after one, until we hoped the last
Would be Alkestis and so end our dream.
Could they have really left Alkestis lone
I' the wayside sepulchre ! Home, all save she !
And when Admetos felt that it was so,
By the stand-still: when he lifted head and face
From the two hiding hands and peplos' fold,
And looked forth, knew the palace, knew the hills,
Knew the plains, knew the friendly frequency
there,
And no Alkestis any more again,
Why, the whole woe billow-like broke on him.

“ O hateful entry, hateful countenance
O' the widowed halls ! ”—he moaned. “ What was to be ?

Go there ? Stay here ? Speak, not speak ?
All was now

Mad and impossible alike ; one way
And only one was sane and safe—to die :
Now he was made aware how dear is death,
How loveable the dead are, how the heart
Yearns in us to go hide where they repose,
When we find sunbeams do no good to see,
Nor earth rests rightly where our footsteps fall.
His wife had been to him the very pledge,
Sun should be sun, earth—earth ; the pledge was robbed,

Pact broken, and the world was left no world. ”

He stared at the impossible mad life :
 Stood, while they urged " Advance—advance!
 Go deep
 Into the utter dark, thy palace-core !"
 They tried what they called comfort, " touched the quick
 Of the ulceration in his soul," he said,
 With memories,— " once thy joy was thus and
 thus !"
 True comfort were to let him fling himself
 Into the hollow grave o' the tomb, and so
 Let him lie dead along with all he loved.

One bade him note that his own family
 Boasted a certain father whose sole son,
 Worthy bewailment, died : and yet the sire
 Bore stoutly up against the blow and lived ;
 For all that he was childless now, and prone
 Already to grey hairs, far on in life.
 Could such a good example miss effect ?
 Why fix foot, stand so, staring at the house,
 Why not go in, as that wise kinsman would ?

" O that arrangement of the house I know !
 How can I enter, how inhabit thee
 Now that one cast of fortune changes all ?
 Oh me, for much divides the then from now !
 Then—with those pine-tree torches, Pelian
 pomp
 And marriage-hymns, I entered, holding high
 The hand of my dear wife ; while many-voiced
 The revelry that followed me and her
 That's dead now,—friends felicitating both,
 As who were lofty-lineaged, each of us
 Born of the best, two wedded and made one ;
 Now—wail is wedding-chant's antagonist,
 And, for white peplos, stoles in sable state
 Herald my way to the deserted couch !"

The one word more they ventured was " This grief
 Befell thee witless of what sorrow means,
 Close after prosperous fortune : but, reflect !
 Thou hast saved soul and body. Dead, thy wife—
 Living, the love she left. What's novel here ?
 Many the man, from whom Death long ago
 Loosed the life-partner !"

Then Admetos spoke :
 Turned on the comfort, with no tears, this time.
 He was beginning to be like his wife.
 I told you of that pressure to the point,
 Word slow pursuing word in monotone,
 Alkestis spoke with ; so Admetos, now,
 Solemnly bore the burden of the truth.
 And as the voice of him grew, gathered
 strength,
 And groaned on, and persisted to the end,
 We felt how deep had been descent in grief,
 And with what change he came up now to
 light,
 And left behind such littleness as tears.

" Friends, I account the fortune of my wife
 Happier than mine, though it seem otherwise :
 For, her indeed no grief will ever touch,
 And she from many a labour pauses now, Renowned one ! Whereas I, who ought not
 live,
 But do live, by evading destiny,
 Sad life am I to lead, I learn at last !
 For how shall I bear going in-doors here ?
 Accosting whom ? By whom saluted back,
 Shall I have joyous entry ? Whither turn ?
 Inside, the solitude will drive me forth,
 When I behold the empty bed—my wife's—
 The seat she used to sit upon, the floor
 Unsprinkled as when dwellers loved the cool,
 The children that will clasp my knees about,
 Cry for their mother back : these servants too
 Moaning for what a guardian they have lost !
 Inside my house such circumstance awaits.
 Outside,—Thessalian people's marriage-feasts
 And gatherings for talk will harass me,
 With overflow of women everywhere ;
 It is impossible I look on them—
 Familiars of my wife and just her age !
 And then, whoever is a foe of mine,
 And lights on me—why, this will be his word—
 ' See there ! alive ignobly, there he skulks
 That played the dastard when it came to die,
 And, giving her he wedded, in exchange,
 Kept himself out of Hades safe and sound,
 The coward ! Do you call that creature—
 man ?
 He hates his parents for declining death,

Just as if he himself would gladly die !'
 This sort of reputation shall I have,
 Beside the other ills enough in store.
 Ill-fained, ill-faring, — what advantage,
 friends,
 Do you perceive I gain by life for death ?”

That was the truth. Vexed waters sank to smooth :

'Twas only when the last of bubbles broke,
 The latest circlet widened all away
 And left a placid level, that up swam
 To the surface the drowned truth, in dreadful
 change.

So, through the quiet and submission,—ay, Spite of some strong words—(for you miss the tone)

The grief was getting to be infinite—Grief, friends fell back before. Their office
 shrank

To that old solace of humanity—
 “ Being born mortal, bear grief ! Why born
 else ? ”

And they could only meditate anew.

“ They, too, upborne by airy help of song,
 And haply science, which can find the stars,
 Had searched the heights : had sounded depths as well

By catching much at books where logic lurked,
 Yet nowhere found they aught could overcome
 Necessity : not any medicine served,
 Which Thrakian tablets treasure, Orphic voice
 Wrote itself down upon : nor remedy
 Which Phoibos gave to the Asklepiadai ;
 Cutting the roots of many a virtuous herb
 To solace overburdened mortals. None !
 Of this sole goddess, never may we go
 To altar nor to image : sacrifice
 She hears not. All to pray for is—‘ Approach !

But, oh, no harder on me, awful one,
 Than heretofore ! Let life endure thee still !
 For, whatsoe'er Zeus' nod decree, that same
 In concert with thee hath accomplishment.
 Iron, the very stuff o' the Chaluboi, Thou, by sheer strength, dost conquer and subdue ;

Nor, of that harsh abrupt resolve of thine,
 Any relenting is there !’

“ O my king !
 Thee also, in the shackles of those hands,
 Not to be shunned, the Goddess grasped !

Yet, bear !
 Since never wilt thou lead from underground
 The dead ones, wail thy worst ! If mortals
 die,—

The very children of immortals, too,
 Dropped 'mid our darkness, these decay assure !
 Dear indeed was she while among us : dear,
 Now she is dead, must she for ever be :
 Thy portion was to clasp, within thy couch,
 The noblest of all women as a wife.

Nor be the tomb of her supposed some heap
 That hides mortality : but like the Gods
 Honoured, a veneration to a world
 Of wanderers ! Oft the wanderer, struck thereby,

Who else had sailed past in his merchant-ship,
 Ay, he shall leave ship, land, long wind his way
 Up to the mountain-summit, till there break Speech forth ‘ So, this was she, then, died of old

To save her husband ! now, a deity
 She bends above us. Hail, benignant one !
 Give good !’ Such voices so will supplicate.

“ But—can it be ? Alkmené's offspring comes,
 Admetos !—to thy house advances here !”

I doubt not, they supposed him decently
 Dead somewhere in that winter world of Thrace—

Vanquished by one o' the Bistones, or else
 Victim to some mad steed's voracity—
 For did not friends prognosticate as much ?
 It were a new example to the point,
 That “ children of immortals, dropped by stealth

Into our darkness, die as sure as we !”
 A case to quote and comfort people with :
 But, as for lamentation, ai and pheu,
 Right-minded subjects kept them for their lord.

Ay, he it was advancing ! In he strode,
 And took his stand before Admetos,—turned

Then, where could she be sheltered in my house,
Female and young too? For that she is young,
The vesture and adornment prove. Reflect!
Should such an one inhabit the same roof
With men? And how, mixed up, a girl, with youths,
Shall she keep pure, in that case? No light
task

To curb the May-day youngster, Herakles!
I only speak because of care for thee.
Or must I, in avoidance of such harm,
Make her to enter, lead her life within
The chamber of the dead one, all apart?
How shall I introduce this other, couch
This where Alkestis lay? A double blame
I apprehend: first, from the citizens—
Lest some tongue of them taunt that I betray
My benefactress, fall into the snare
Of a new fresh face: then, the dead one's self,—

Will she not blame me likewise? Worthy,
sure,
Of worship from me! circumspect my ways,
And jealous of a fault, are bound to be.
But thou,—O woman, whosoe'er thou art,—
Know, thou hast all the form, art like as like Alkestis, in the bodily shape! Ah me!
Take,—by the Gods,—this woman from my
sight,

Lest thou undo me, the undone before!
Since I seem—seeing her—as if I saw
My own wife! And confusions cloud my heart,
And from my eyes the springs break forth!

Ah me
Unhappy—how I taste for the first time
My misery in all its bitterness!”

Whereat the friends conferred: “The chance,
in truth,
Was an untoward one—none said otherwise.
Still, what a God comes giving, good or bad,
That, one should take and bear with. Take her, then!”

Herakles,—not unfastening his hold
On that same misery, beyond mistake
Hoarse in the words, convulsive in the face,—

“I would that I had such a power,” said he,
“As to lead up into the light again
Thy very wife, and grant thee such a grace.”

“Well do I know thou wouldst: but where the hope?
There is no bringing back the dead to light.”

“Be not extravagant in grief, no less!
Bear it, by augury of better things!”

“’Tis easier to advise ‘bear up,’ than bear!”

“But how carve way i’ the life that lies before,
If bent on groaning ever for the past?”

“I myself know that: but a certain love
Allures me to the choice I shall not change.”

“Ay, but, still loving dead ones, still makes weep.”

“And let it be so! She has ruined me,
And still more than I say: that answers all.”

“Oh, thou hast lost a brave wife: who disputes?”

“So brave a one—that he whom thou behold’st
Will never more enjoy his life again!”

“Time will assuage! The evil yet is young!”

“Time, thou mayst say, will; if time mean
—to die.”

“A wife—the longing for new marriage-joys
Will stop thy sorrow!”

“Hush, friend,—hold thy peace!
What hast thou said! I could not credit ear!”

“How then? Thou wilt not marry, then, but keep
A widowed couch?”

“There is not anyone
Of womankind shall couch with whom thou
seest!”

“Dost think to profit thus in any way
The dead one?”

“Her, wherever she abide,
My duty is to honour.”

“And I praise—
Indeed I praise thee! Still, thou hast to pay
The price of it, in being held a fool!”

“Fool call me—only one name call me not!
Bridegroom!”

“No: it was praise, I portioned thee,
Of being good true husband to thy wife!”

“When I betray her, though she is no more,
May I die!”

And the thing he said was true:
For out of Herakles a great glow broke.
There stood a victor worthy of a prize:
The violet-crown that withers on the brow
Of the half-hearted claimant. Oh, he knew
The signs of battle hard fought and well won,
This queller of the monsters!—knew his friend
Planted firm foot, now, on the loathly thing
That was Admetos late! “would die,” he knew,
Ere let the reptile raise its crest again.
If that was truth, why try the true friend more?

“Then, since thou canst be faithful to the death,
Take, deep into thy house, my dame!” smiled
he.

“Not so!—I pray, by thy Progenitor!”

“Thou wilt mistake in disobeying me!”

“Obeying thee, I have to break my heart!”

“Obey me! Who knows but the favour done
May fall into its place as duty too?”

So, he was humble, would decline no more Bearing a burden: he just sighed “Alas!
Wouldst thou hadst never brought this prize from game!”

“Yet, when I conquered there, thou conqueredst!”

“All excellently urged! Yet—spite of all,
Bear with me! let the woman go away!”

“She shall go, if needs must: but ere she go,
See if there is need!”

“Need there is! At least,
Except I make thee angry with me, so!”

“But I persist, because I have my spice
Of intuition likewise: take the dame!”

“Be thou the victor, then! But certainly Thou dost thy friend no pleasure in the act!”

“Oh, time will come when thou shalt praise
me! Now—
Only obey!”

“Then, servants, since my house
Must needs receive this woman, take her
there!”

“I shall not trust this woman to the care
Of servants.”

“Why, conduct her in, thyself,
If that seem preferable!”

“I prefer,
“With thy good leave, to place her in thy hands!”

“I would not touch her! Entry to the house—
That, I concede thee.”

“To thy sole right hand,
I mean to trust her!”

“King! Thou wrenchest this Out of me by main force, if I submit!”

“Courage, friend! Come, stretch hand forth!
Good! Now touch
The stranger-woman!”

“There! A hand I stretch—
As though it meant to cut off Gorgon's head!”

“Hast hold of her?”

“Fast hold.”

“Why, then, hold fast
And have her! and, one day, asseverate
Thou wilt, I think, thy friend, the son of Zeus

He was the gentle guest to entertain !
 Look at her ! See if she, in any way,
 Present thee with resemblance of thy wife !”

Ah, but the tears come, find the words at fault !
 There is no telling how the hero twitched
 The veil off : and there stood, with such fixed
 eyes

And such slow smile, Alkestis' silent self !
 It was the crowning grace of that great heart,
 To keep back joy : procrastinate the truth
 Until the wife, who had made proof and
 found

The husband wanting, might essay once
 more,

Hear, see, and feel him renovated now—
 Able to do, now, all herself had done, Risen to the height of her : so, hand in
 hand,

The two might go together, live and die.

Beside, when he found speech, you guess the speech.

He could not think he saw his wife again :
 It was some mocking God that used the bliss
 To make him mad ! Till Herakles must
 help :

Assure him that no spectre mocked at all ;
 He was embracing whom he buried once.
 Still,—did he touch, might he address the true,—

True eye, true body of the true live wife ?

And Herakles said, smiling, “ All was truth.
 Spectre ? Admetos had not made his guest
 One who played ghost-invoker, or such cheat !

Oh, he might speak and have response, in
 time !

All heart could wish was gained now—life
 for death :

Only, the rapture must not grow immense :
 Take care, nor wake the envy of the Gods !”

“ Oh thou, of greatest Zeus true son,”—so spoke

Admetos when the closing word must come,
 “ Go ever in a glory of success,

And save, that sire, his offspring to the end !
 For thou hast—only thou—raised me and
 mine

Up again to this light and life !” Then asked

Tremblingly, how was trod the perilous path
 Out of the dark into the light and life :
 How it had happened with Alkestis there.

And Herakles said little, but enough—
 How he engaged in combat with that king
 O' the dæmons : how the field of contest lay
 By the tomb's self : how he sprang from ambushade,
 Captured Death, caught him in that pair of
 hands.

But all the time, Alkestis moved not once
 Out of the set gaze and the silent smile ;
 And a cold fear ran through Admetos' frame:
 “ Why does she stand and front me, silent
 thus ?”

Herakles solemnly replied “ Not yet
 Is it allowable thou hear the things
 She has to tell thee ; let vanish quite
 That consecration to the lower Gods,
 And on our upper world the third day rise !
 Lead her in, meanwhile ; good and true thou
 art,

Good, true, remain thou ! Practise piety
 To stranger-guests the old way ! So, farewell !

Since forth I fare, fulfil my urgent task
 Set by the king, the son of Sthenelos.”

Fain would Admetos keep that splendid
 smile

Ever to light him. “ Stay with us, thou
 heart !

Remain our house-friend !”

“ At some other day !
 Now, of necessity, I haste !” smiled he.

“ But mayst thou prosper, go forth on a foot
 Sure to return ! Through all the tetrarchy
 Command my subjects that they institute

Stood up to be a monarch ; having learned
The worth of life, life's worth would he bestow

On all whose lot was cast, to live or die,
As he determined for the multitude.
So stands a statue : pedestalled sublime,
Only that it may wave the thunder off,
And ward, from winds that vex, a world
below.

And then,—as if a whisper found its way E'en to the sense o' the marble,—“ Vain thy vow !

The royalty of its resolve, that head
Shall hide within the dust ere day be done :
That arm, its outstretch of beneficence,
Shall have a speedy ending on the earth :
Lie patient, prone, while light some cricket leaps

And takes possession of the masterpiece,
To sit, sing louder as more near the sun.
For why ? A flaw was in the pedestal ;
Who knows ? A worm's work ! Sapped, the certain fate

O' the statue is to fall, and thine to die ! ”

Whereat the monarch, calm, addressed himself

To die, but bitterly the soul outbroke—
“ O prodigality of life, blind waste
I' the world, of power profuse without the
will

To make life do its work, deserve its day !
My ancestors pursued their pleasure, poured
The blood o' the people out in idle war,
Or took occasion of some weary peace
To bid men dig down deep or build up high, Spend bone and marrow that the king might feast

Entrenched and buttressed from the vulgar
gaze.

Yet they all lived, nay, lingered to old age :
As though Zeus loved that they should laugh to scorn

The vanity of seeking other ends
In rule than just the ruler's pastime. They Lived ; I must die.”

And, as some long last moan

Of a minor suddenly is propped beneath
By note which, new-struck, turns the wail, that was,

Into a wonder and a triumph, so Began Alkestis : “ Nay, thou art to live !
The glory that, in the disguise of flesh,
Was helpful to our house,—he prophesied
The coming fate : whereon, I pleaded sore
That he,—I guessed a God, who to his couch
Amid the clouds must go and come again,
While we were darkling,—since he loved us
both,

He should permit thee, at whatever price,
To live and carry out to heart's content Soul's purpose, turn each thought to very
deed,

Nor let Zeus lose the monarch meant in thee.”

“ To which Apollon, with a sunset smile,
Sadly—‘ And so should mortals arbitrate !
It were unseemly if they aped us Gods,
And, mindful of our chain of consequence,
Lost care of the immediate earthly link :
Forwent the comfort of life's little hour,
In prospect of some cold abysmal blank
Alien eternity,—unlike the time
They know, and understand to practise with,—
No,—our eternity—no heart's blood, bright
And warm outpoured in its behoof, would tinge

Never so palely, warm a whit the more :
Whereas retained and treasured—left to bear
Joyously on, a life's length, in the breast
O' the loved and loving—it would throb itself
Through, and suffuse the earthly tenement.
Transform it, even as your mansion here
Is love-transformed into a temple-home
Where I, a God, forget the Olumpian glow.
I' the feel of human richness like the rose :
Your hopes and fears, so blind and yet
sweet

With death about them. Therefore, well in thee

To look, not on eternity, but time :
To apprehend that, should Admetos die,
All, we Gods purposed in him, dies as sure :
That, life's link snapping, all our chain is lost.

And yet a mortal glance might pierce,
methinks,

Deeper into the seeming dark of things,
And learn, no fruit, man's life can bear, will
fade :

Learn, if Admetos die now, so much more
Will pity for the frailness found in flesh,
Will terror at the earthly chance and change
Frustrating wisest scheme of noblest soul,
Will these go wake the seeds of good asleep
Throughout the world : as oft a rough wind sheds

The unripe promise of some field-flower,—
true !

But loosens too the level, and lets breathe
A thousand captives for the year to come.
Nevertheless, obtain thy prayer, stay fate !
Admetos lives—if thou wilt die for him !”

“ So was the pact concluded that I die,
And thou live on, live for thyself, for me,
For all the world. Embrace and bid me hail,
Husband, because I have the victory—
Am, heart, soul, head to foot, one happiness !”

Whereto Admetos, in a passionate cry, “ Never, by that true word Apollon spoke !
All the unwise wish is unwished, oh wife !
Let purposes of Zeus fulfil themselves,
If not through me, then through some other
man !

Still, in myself he had a purpose too,
Inalienably mine, to end with me :
This purpose—that, throughout my earthly
life,
Mine should be mingled and made up with thine,—

And we two prove one force and play one
part

And do one thing. Since death divides the pair,

’Tis well that I depart and thou remain
Who wast to me as spirit is to flesh :
Let the flesh perish, be perceived no more,
So thou, the spirit that informed the flesh,
Bend yet awhile, a very flame above
The rift I drop into the darkness by,—
And bid remember, flesh and spirit once

Worked in the world, one body, for man's
sake.

Never be that abominable show
Of passive death without a quickening life—
Admetos only, no Alkestis now !”

Then she : “ O thou Admetos, must the pile
Of truth on truth, which needs but one truth
more

To tower up in completeness, trophy-like,
Emprize of man, and triumph of the world,
Must it go ever to the ground again
Because of some faint heart or faltering hand,
Which we, that breathless world about the base,

Trusted should carry safe to altitude,
Superimpose o' the summit, our supreme
Achievement, our victorious coping-stone ?
Shall thine, Beloved, prove the hand and
heart

That fail again, flinch backward at the truth
Would cap and crown the structure this last
time,—

Precipitate our monumental hope
And strew the earth ignobly yet once more ?
See how, truth piled on truth, the structure
wants,

Waits just the crowning truth I claim of thee !
Wouldst thou, for any joy to be enjoyed,
For any sorrow that thou mightst escape,
Unwill thy will to reign a righteous king ?
Nowise ! And were there two lots, death and
life,—

Life, wherein good resolve should go to air,
Death, whereby finest fancy grew plain fact
I' the reign of thy survivor,—life or death ?
Certainly death, thou choolest. Here stand I
The wedded, the beloved one : hadst thou loved
Her who less worthily could estimate Both life and death than thou ? Not so should say

Admetos, whom Apollon made come court
Alkestis in a car, submissive brutes
Of blood were yoked to, symbolizing soul
Must dominate unruly sense in man.
Then, shall Admetos and Alkestis see
Good alike, and alike choose, each for each,
Good,—and yet, each for other, at the last,

Choose evil? What? thou soundest in my
soul

To depths below the deepest, reachest good
In evil, that makes evil good again,
And so allottest to me that I live
And not die—letting die, not thee alone,
But all true life that lived in both of us?
Look at me once ere thou decree the lot!"

Therewith her whole soul entered into his,
He looked the look back, and Alkestis died.

And even while it lay, i' the look of him,
Dead, the dimmed body, bright Alkestis'
soul

Had penetrated through the populace
Of ghosts, was got to Koré,—throned and crowned

The pensive queen o' the twilight, where she dwells

Forever in a muse, but half away
From flowery earth she lost and hankers
for,—

And there demanded to become a ghost
Before the time.

Whereat the softened eyes
Of the lost maidenhood that lingered still Straying among the flowers in Sicily,
Sudden was startled back to Hades' throne
By that demand: broke through humanity
Into the orbéd omniscience of a God,
Searched at a glance Alkestis to the soul,
And said—while a long slow sigh lost itself
I' the hard and hollow passage of a laugh:

"Hence, thou deceiver! This is not to
die,
If, by the very death which mocks me now,
The life, that's left behind and past my
power,

Is formidably doubled. Say, there fight
Two athletes, side by side, each athlete armed

With only half the weapons, and no more,
Adequate to a contest with their foe:
If one of these should fling helm, sword and shield

To fellow—shieldless, swordless, helmless
late—

And so leap naked o'er the barrier, leave
A combatant equipped from head to heel,
Yet cry to the other side 'Receive a friend Who fights no longer!' 'Back, friend, to the fray!'

Would be the prompt rebuff; I echo it.
Two souls in one were formidable odds:
Admetos must not be himself and thou!"

And so, before the embrace relaxed a whit,
The lost eyes opened, still beneath the look:
And lo, Alkestis was alive again,
And of Admetos' rapture who shall speak?

So, the two lived together long and well.
But never could I learn, by word of scribe
Or voice of poet, rumour wafts our way,
That—of the scheme of rule in righteousness,
The bringing back again the Golden Age,
Which, rather than renounce, our pair would
die—

That ever one faint particle came true,
With both alive to bring it to effect:
Such is the envy Gods still bear mankind!

So might our version of the story prove,
And no Euripidean pathos plague
Too much my critic-friend of Syracuse.

"Besides your poem failed to get the prize.
(That is, the first prize: second prize is none).
Sophokles got it!" Honour the great name!
All cannot love two great names; yet some
do:

I know the poetess who graved in gold,
Among her glories that shall never fade,
This style and title for Euripides,
*The Human with his droppings of warm
tears.*

I know, too, a great Kaunian painter,¹ strong
As Herakles, though rosy with a robe
Of grace that softens down the sinewy
strength:

ARISTOPHANES' APOLOGY;

INCLUDING A TRANSCRIPT FROM EURIPIDES: BEING THE LAST ADVENTURE OF BALAUSTION.

1875.

[Is a defence of Comedy as understood and practised by Aristophanes; that is, as a broad expression of the natural life and a satire upon those who condemn it. See Mrs. Orr's Handbook.]

ARISTOPHANES' APOLOGY.

οὐκ ἔσθω κενέβρει' · ὀπίσταν δὲ θύης τι, κάλει με.

I eat no carrion; when you sacrifice
Some cleanly creature—call me for a slice!

WIND, wave, and bark, bear Euthukles¹ and
me,

Balaustion, from—not sorrow but despair,
Not memory but the present and its pang!
Athenai, live thou hearted in my heart:
Never, while I live, may I see thee more,
Never again may these repugnant orbs
Ache themselves blind before the hideous
pomp,
The ghastly mirth which mocked thine overthrow

—Death's entry, Haides' outrage!
Doomed to die,—
Fire should have flung a passion of embrace
About thee till, resplendently inarmed,

(Temple by temple folded to his breast,
All thy white wonder fainting out in ash)
Lightly some vaporous sigh of soul escaped,
And so the Immortals bade Athenai back!
Or earth might sunder and absorb thee,
save,

Buried below Olumpos and its gods,
Akropolis to dominate her realm
For Koré,² and console the ghosts; or, sea
What if thy watery plural vastitude,
Rolling unanimous advance, had rushed,
Might upon might, a moment,—stood, one
stare,

Sea-face to city-face, thy glaucous wave
Glassing that marbled last magnificence,— Till fate's pale tremulous foam-flower tipped
the grey,
And when wave broke and overswarmed and,
sucked

To bounds back, multitudinously ceased,
Let land again breathe unconfused with sea,
Attiké was, Athenai was not now!

Such end I could have borne, for I had shared.
But this which, glanced at, aches within my orbs

To blinding,—bear me thence, bark, wind and wave!

Me, Euthukles, and, hearted in each heart,
Athenai, undisgraced as Pallas' self,
Bear to my birthplace, Helios' island-bride,
Zeus' darling: thither speed us, homeward-
bound,

² Proserpine.

Wafted already twelve hours' sail away
From horror, nearer by one sunset Rhodes !

Why should despair be? Since, distinct above
Man's wickedness and folly, flies the wind
And floats the cloud, free transport for our
soul

Out of its fleshly durance dim and low,—
Since disembodied soul anticipates (Thought-borne as now, in rapturous un-restraint)

Above all crowding, crystal silentness,
Above all noise, a silver solitude :—
Surely, where thought so bears soul, soul in
time

May permanently bide, "assert the wise,"
There live in peace, there work in hope once
more—

O nothing doubt, Philemon ! Greed and
strife,

Hatred and cark and care, what place have they

In yon blue liberality of heaven ?
How the sea helps ! How rose-smit earth will rise

Breast-high thence, some bright morning, and be Rhodes !

Heaven, earth and sea, my warrant—in their
name,

Believe — o'er falsehood, truth is surely sphered,

O'er ugliness beams beauty, o'er this world Extends that realm where, "as the wise assert,"

Philemon, thou shalt see Euripides
Clearer than mortal sense perceived the man !

A sunset nearer Rhodes, by twelve hours' sweep

Of surge secured from horror ? Rather say,
Quieted out of weakness into strength.

I dare invite, survey the scene my sense
Staggered to apprehend : for, disenvolved
From the mere outside anguish and contempt,
Slowly a justice centred in a doom
Reveals itself. Ay, pride succumbed to pride, Oppression met the oppressor and was matched.

Athenai's vaunt braved Sparté's violence
Till, in the shock, prone fell Peiraios, low
Rampart and bulwark lay, as,—timing stroke
Of hammer, axe, and beam hoist, poised and swung,—

The very flute-girls blew their laughing best,
In dance about the conqueror while he bade
Music and merriment help enginery

Batter down, break to pieces all the trust
Of citizens once, slaves now. See what walls
Play substitute for the long double range
Themistoklean, heralding a guest

From harbour on to citadel ! Each side
Their senseless walls demolished stone by
stone,

See,—outer wall as stonelike,—heads and hearts,—

Athenai's terror-stricken populace !
Prattlers, tongue-tied in crouching abject-
ness,—

Braggarts, who wring hands wont to flourish
swords—

Sophist and rhetorician, demagogue,
(Argument dumb, authority a jest)

Dikast and heliast,¹ pleader, litigant,
Quack-priest, sham-prophecy-retailer, scout

O' the customs, sycophant, whate'er the style,
Altar-scrap-snatcher, pimp and parasite,—

Rivalities at truce now each with each, Stupefied mud-banks,—such an use they serve !

While the one order which performs exact
To promise, functions faithful last as first,
What is it but the city's lyric troop,

Chantress and psaltress, flute-girl, dancing-
girl ?

Athenai's harlotry takes laughing care
Their patron miss no pipings, late she loved,
But deathward tread at least the kordax-step.²

Die then, who pulled such glory on your heads !

There let it grind to powder ! Perikles !
The living are the dead now : death be life !
Why should the sunset yonder waste its wealth ?

² Cancan.

Prove thee Olympian ! If my heart supply
 Inviolable the structure,—true to type,
 Build me some spirit-place no flesh shall find,
 As Pheidias may inspire thee : slab on slab,
 Renew Athenai, quarry out the cloud,
 Convert to gold yon west extravagance !
 'Neath Propylaia,¹ from Akropolis
 By vapoury grade and grade, gold all the
 way,
 Step to thy snow-Pnux,² mount thy Bema³
 cloud,
 Thunder and lighten thence a Hellas through
 That shall be better and more beautiful
 And too august for Sparté's foot to spurn !
 Chasmed in the crag, again our Theatre
 Predominates, one purple : Stag-hunt-month,
 Brings it not Dionusia ? Hail, the Three !
 Aischulos, Sophokles, Euripides
 Compete, gain prize or lose prize, godlike
 still.

Nay, lest they lack the old god-exercise—
 Their noble want the unworthy,—as of old, (How otherwise should patience crown their might ?)

What if each find his ape promoted man,
 His censor raised for antic service still ?
 Some new Hermippos to pelt Perikles,
 Kratinos to swear Pheidias robbed a shrine,
 Eruxis—I suspect, Euripides,
 No brow will ache because with mop and mow

He gibes my poet ! There's a dog-faced dwarf

That gets to godship somehow, yet retains
 His apehood in the Egyptian hierarchy,
 More decent, indecorous just enough :
 Why should not dog-ape, graced in due
 degree,

Grow Momos as thou Zeus ? Or didst thou
 sigh

Rightly with thy Makaria ? “ After life,
 Better no sentiency than turbulence ;
 Death cures the low contention.” Be it so !
 Yet progress means contention, to my mind.

² A rocky eminence in Athens frequented by orators and their audiences.

³ The platform used by the orator.

Euthukles, who, except for love that speaks,
 Art silent by my side while words of mine
 Provoke that foe from which escape is vain
 Henceforward, wake Athenai's fate and fall,—
 Memories asleep as, at the altar-foot
 Those Furies in the Oresteian song,—
 Do I amiss who, wanting strength, use craft,
 Advance upon the foe I cannot fly,
 Nor feign a snake is dormant though it gnaw ?
 That fate and fall, once bedded in our brain,
 Roots itself past upwrenching ; but coaxed
 forth,
 Encouraged out to practise fork and fang,—
 Perhaps, when satiate with prompt sustenance,
 It may pine, likelier die than if left swell
 In peace by our pretension to ignore,
 Or pricked to threefold fury, should our stamp
 Bruise and not brain the pest.

A middle course !

What hinders that we treat this tragic theme
 As the Three taught when either woke some
 woe,

—How Klutaimnestra hated, what the pride
 Of Iokasté, why Medeia clove
 Nature asunder. Small rebuked by large,
 We felt our puny hates refine to air,
 Our poor prides sink, prevent the humbling
 hand,

Our petty passions purify their tide.
 So, Euthukles, permit the tragedy
 To re-enact itself, this voyage through,
 Till sunsets end and sunrise brighten Rhodes !
 Majestic on the stage of memory,
 Peplosed and kothorned, let Athenai fall
 Once more, nay, oft again till life conclude,
 Lent for the lesson : Choros, I and thou !
 What else in life seems piteous any more
 After such pity, or proves terrible
 Beside such terror ?

Still—since Phrunichos⁴
 Offended, by too premature a touch
 Of that Milesian smart-place freshly frayed—
 (Ah, my poor people, whose prompt remedy
 Was—fine the poet, not reform thyself !)

⁴ An Athenian poet who was fined for referring to the defeat at Miletus.

Triumph his whole life through, submitting
 work
 To work's right judges, never to the wrong—
 To competency, not ineptitude.
 When he had run life's proper race and worked Quite to the stade's end, there remained to try The stade's turn, should strength dare the double course.
 Half the diaulos reached, the hundred plays
 Accomplished, force in its rebound sufficed
 To lift along the athlete and ensure
 A second wreath, proposed by fools for first,
 The statist's olive as the poet's bay.
 Wiselier, he suffered not a twofold aim Retard his pace, confuse his sight ; at once
 Poet and statist ; though the multitude
 Girded him ever ' All thine aim thine art ?
 The idle poet only ? No regard
 For civic duty, public service, here ?
 We drop our ballot-bean for Sophokles !
 Not only could he write " Antigoné,"
 But—since (we argued) whoso penned that piece
 Might just as well conduct a squadron,— straight
 Good-naturedly he took on him command,
 Got laughed at, and went back to making plays,
 Having allowed us our experiment
 Respecting the fit use of faculty.'
 No whit the more did athlete slacken pace.
 Soon the jeers grew : ' Cold hater of his kind,
 A sea-cave suits him, not the vulgar hearth !
 What need of tongue-talk, with a bookish store
 Would stock ten cities ?' Shadow of an ass !
 No whit the worse did athlete touch the mark
 And, at the turning-point, consign his scorn
 O' the scorers to that final trilogy
 ' Hupsipule,'¹ ' Phoinissai,' and the Match
 Of Life Contemplative with Active Life,
 Zethos against Amphion. Ended so ?
 Nowise !—began again ; for heroes rest
 Dropping shield's oval o'er the entire man,
 And he who thus took Contemplation's prize
 Turned stade-point but to face Activity.
 Out of all shadowy hands extending help
 For life's decline pledged to youth's labour still,

¹ Queen of Lemnos and entertainer of Jason.

Whatever renovation flatter age,— Society with pastime, solitude
 With peace,—he chose the hand that gave the
 heart,
 Bade Macedonian Archelaos take
 The leavings of Athenai, ash once flame.
 For fifty politicians' frosty work,
 One poet's ash proved ample and to spare :
 He propped the state and filled the treasury,
 Counselling the king as might a meaner soul,
 Furnished the friend with what shall stand in stead
 Of crown and sceptre, star his name about
 When these are dust ; for him, Euripides
 Last the old hand on the old phorminx² flung,
 Clashed thence ' Alkaion,' maddened ' Pentheus' up ;
 Then music sighed itself away, one moan
 Iphigeneia made by Aulis' strand ;
 With her and music died Euripides.

" The poet-friend who followed him to Thrace.
 Agathon, writes thus much : the merchant-ship
 Moreover brings a message from the king
 To young Euripides, who went on board
 This morning at Mounuchia : all is true."

I said " Thank Zeus for the great news and
 good !"

" Nay, the report is running in brief fire
 Through the town's stubbly furrow," he resumed :

—" Entertains brightly what their favourite styles

' The City of Gapers'³ for a week perhaps,
 Supplants three luminous tales, but yesterday
 Pronounced sufficient lamps to last the month :
 How Glauketes, outbidding Morsimos,
 Paid market-price for one Kopaic eel
 A thousand drachmai, and then cooked his prize
 Not proper conger-fashion but in oil
 And nettles, as man fries the foam-fish-kind :
 How all the captains of the triremes, late
 Victors at Arginousai, on return
 Will, for reward, be straightway put to death :

² Guitar.

³ Athens.

How Mikon wagered a Thessalian mime
Trained him by Lais, looked on as complete,
Against Leogoras' blood-mare koppa-marked,¹
Valued six talents,—swore, accomplished so,
The girl could swallow at a draught, nor breathe,

A choinix of unmixed Mendesian wine ;
And having lost the match will—dine on herbs !
Three stories late a-flame, at once extinct,
Outblazed by just ' Euripides is dead ' !

" I met the concourse from the Theatre,
The audience flocking homeward : victory
Again awarded Aristophanes
Precisely for his old play chopped and changed
' The Female Celebrators of the Feast '—
That Thesmophoria, tried a second time.
' Never such full success ! '—assured the folk,
Who yet stopped praising to have word of mouth

With ' Euthukles, the bard's own intimate,
Balaustion's husband, the right man to ask.'

" ' Dead, yes, but how dead, may acquaintance know ?

You were the couple constant at his cave :
Tell us now, is it true that women, moved
By reason of his liking Krateros . . . '

" I answered ' He was loved by Sokrates.

" ' Nay,' said another, ' envy did the work !
For, emulating poets of the place,
One Arridaios, one Krateues, both Established in the royal favour, these . . . '

" Protagoras instructed him," said I.

" ' Phu,' whistled Comic Platon, ' hear the fact !

'Twas well said of your friend by Sophokles
" He hate our women ? In his verse, belike :
But when it comes to prose-work,—ha, ha, ha !"
New climes don't change old manners : so, it chanced,

Pursuing an intrigue one moonless night

With Arethousian Nikodikos' wife, (Comenow, his years were simply seventy-five)
Crossing the palace-court, what haps he on
But Archelaos' pack of hungry hounds ?
Who tore him piecemeal ere his cry brought
help.'

" I asked : Did not you write ' The Festivals ' ?
You best know what dog tore him when alive.
You others, who now make a ring to hear,
Have not you just enjoyed a second treat,
Proclaimed that ne'er was play more worthy
prize

Than this, myself assisted at, last year,
And gave its worth to,—spitting on the same ?
Appraise no poetry,—price cuttlefish,
Or that seaweed-alphestes, scorpion-sort,
Much famed for mixing mud with fantas:
On midnights ! I interpret no foul dreams."

If so said Euthukles, so could not I,
Balaustion, say. After " Lusistraté"
No more for me of " people's privilege,"
No witnessing " the Grand old Comedy
Coëval with our freedom, which, curtailed,
Were freedom's deathblow : relic of the past,
When Virtue laughingly told truth to Vice, Uncensured, since the stern mouth, stuffed with flowers,

Through poetry breathed satire, perfumed blast
Which sense snuffed up while searched unto the bone !"

I was a stranger : " For first joy," urged
friends,

" Go hear our Comedy, some patriot piece
That plies the selfish advocates of war
With argument so unevadable
That crash fall Kleons whom the finer play
Of reason, tickling, deeper wounds no whit
Than would a spear-thrust from a savorystalk !

No : you hear knave and fool told crime and fault,

And see each scourged his quantity of stripes.
' Rough dealing, awkward language,' whine
our fops :

The world's too squeamish now to bear plain
words

¹ A certificate of high-breeding.

Concerning deeds it acts with gust enough :
But, thanks to wine-lees and democracy,
We've still our stage where truth calls spade a spade !

Ashamed? Phuromachos' decree provides
The sex may sit discreetly, witness all,
Sorted, the good with good, the gay with gay,
Themselves unseen, no need to force a blush.
A Rhodian wife and ignorant so long?
Go hear next play !”

I heard “Lustraté.”

Waves, said to wash pollution from the world,
Take that plague-memory, cure that pustule caught

As, past escape, I sat and saw the piece
By one appalled at Phaidra's fate,—the chaste, Whom, because chaste, the wicked goddess chained

To that same serpent of unchastity
She loathed most, and who, coiled so, died distraught

Rather than make submission, loose one limb
Love-wards, at lambency of honeyed tongue,
Or torture of the scales which scraped her snow
—I say, the piece by him who charged this piece (Because Euripides shrank not to teach,
If gods be strong and wicked, man, though
weak,

May prove their match by willing to be good)
With infamies the Scythian's whip should cure—

“Such outrage done the public—Phaidra named !

Such purpose to corrupt ingenuous youth,
Such insult cast on female character !” —

Why, when I saw that bestiality—

So beyond all brute-beast imagining,

That when, to point the moral at the close,

Poor Salabaccho, just to show how fair

Was “Reconciliation,” stripped her charms,

That exhibition simply bade us breathe,

Seemed something healthy and commendable

After obscenity grotesqued so much

It slunk away revolted at itself.

Henceforth I had my answer when our sage

Pattern-proposing seniors pleaded grave

“You fail to fathom here the deep design !

All's acted in the interest of truth,

Religion, and those manners old and dear
Which made our city great when citizens
Like Aristeides and like Miltiades
Wore each a golden tettix¹ in his hair.”
What do they wear now under—Kleophon?

Well, for such reasons,—I am out of breath,
But loathsomeness we needs must hurry past,—
I did not go to see, nor then nor now,
The “Thesmophoriazousai.” But, since males Choose to brave first, blame afterward, nor brand

Without fair taste of what they stigmatize,
Euthukles had not missed the first display,
Original portrait of Euripides

By “Virtue laughingly reproving Vice” :

“Virtue,”—the author, Aristophanes,

Who mixed an image out of his own depths,
Ticketed as I tell you. Oh, this time

No more pretension to recondite worth !

No joke in aid of Peace, no demagogue

Pun-pelleted from Pnux, no kordax-dance

Overt helped covertly the Ancient Faith !

All now was muck, home-produce, honestman

The author's soul secreted to a play

Which gained the prize that day we heard the death.

I thought “How thoroughly death alters
things !

Where is the wrong now, done our dead and great ?

How natural seems grandeur in relief,

Cliff-base with frothy spites against its calm !”

Euthukles interposed—he read my thought—

“O'er them, too, in a moment came the change.

The crowd's enthusiastic, to a man :

Since, rake as such may please the ordure-heap

Because of certain sparkles presumed ore,

At first flash of true lightning overhead,

They look up, nor resume their search too
soon.

The insect-scattering sign is evident,

And nowhere winks a fire-fly rival now,

¹ Grasshopper, used as a badge of honour.

Suddenly, torch-light ! knocking at the door,
Loud, quick, " Admittance for the revels'
lord ! "

Some unintelligible Komos-cry—
Raw-flesh red, no cap upon his head,
Dionusos, Bacchos, Phales, Iacchos,
In let him reel with the kid-skin at his heel,
Where it buries in the spread of the bushy myrtle-bed !

(Our Rhodian Jackdaw-song was sense to
that !)

Then laughter, outbursts ruder and more rude,
Through which, with silver point, a fluting
pierced,
And ever " Open, open, Bacchos bids ! "

But at last—one authoritative word,
One name of an immense significance :
For Euthukles rose up, threw wide the door.

There trooped the Choros of the Comedy
Crowned and triumphant ; first, those flushed Fifteen
Men that wore women's garb, grotesque disguise.

'Then marched the Three, — who played Mnesilochos,
Who, Toxotes, and who, robed right, masked rare,
Monkeyed our Great and Dead to heart's content
That morning in Athenai. Masks were down
And robes doffed now ; the sole disguise was drink.

Mixing with these—I know not what gay
crowd,
Girl-dancers, flute-boys, and pre-eminent Among them,—doubtless draped with such reserve

As stopped fear of the fifty-drachma fine
(Beside one's name on public fig-tree nailed)
Which women pay who in the streets walk
bare,—
Behold Elaphion of the Persic dance !
Who lately had frisked fawn-foot, and the rest,
—All for the Patriot Cause, the Antique
Faith,

The Conservation of True Poesy—
Could I but penetrate the deep design !
Elaphion, more Peiraios-known as " Phaps,"
Tripped at the head of the whole banquet-band
Who came in front now, as the first fell back ;
And foremost—the authoritative voice,
The revels-leader, he who gained the prize,
And got the glory of the Archon's feast—
There stood in person Aristophanes.

And no ignoble presence ! On the bulge
Of the clear baldness,—all his head one
brow,—

True, the veins swelled, blue network, and there surged

A red from cheek to temple,—then retired
As if the dark-leaved chaplet damped a flame,—
Was never nursed by temperance or health.
But huge the eyeballs rolled back native fire,
Imperiously triumphant : nostrils wide Waited their incense ; while the pursed
mouth's pout

Aggressive, while the beak supreme above,
While the head, face, nay, pillared throat thrown back,

Beard whitening under like a vinous foam,
These made a glory, of such insolence—
I thought,—such domineering deity
Hephaistos might have carved to cut the brine
For his gay brother's prow, imbrue that path
Which, purpling, recognized the conqueror.
Impudent and majestic : drunk, perhaps,
But that's religion ; sense too plainly snuffed :
Still, sensuality was grown a rite.

What I had disbelieved most proved most true.
There was a mind here, mind a-wantoning
At ease of undisputed mastery
Over the body's brood, those appetites.
Oh but he grasped them grandly, as the god
His either struggling handful,—hurtless snakes Held deep down, strained hard off from side and side !

Mastery his, theirs simply servitude,
So well could firm fist help intrepid eye.
Fawning and fulsome, had they licked and hissed ?

At mandate of one muscle, order reigned.

They had been wreathing much familiar now
About him on his entry ; but a squeeze
Choked down the pests to place : their lord stood free.

Forward he stepped : I rose and fronted him.

“ Hail, house, the friendly to Euripides ! ”

(So he began) “ Hail, each inhabitant !

You, lady? What, the Rhodian? Form and face,

Victory's self upsoaring to receive

The poet? Right they named you . . some rich name,

Vowel-buds thorned about with consonants,
Fragrant, felicitous, rose-glow enriched

By the Isle's unguent : some diminished end
In ion, Kallistion? delicater still,

Kubelion or Melittion,—or, suppose

(Less vulgar love than bee or violet)

Phibalion, for the mouth split red-fig-wise,

Korakinidion for the coal-black hair,

Nettarion, Phabion for the darlingness?

But no, it was some fruit-flower, Rhoidion
. . . ha,

We near the balsam-bloom — Balaustion !

Thanks,

Rhodes ! Folk have called me Rhodian, do you know ?

Not fools so far ! Because, if Helios wived,
As Pindaros sings somewhere prettily,

Here blooms his offspring, earth-flesh with sun-fire,

Rhodes' blood and Helios' gold. My phorminx, boy !

Why does the boy hang back and baulk an ode Tiptoe at spread of wing ? But like enough,

Sunshine frays torchlight. Witness whom you scare,

Superb Balaustion ! Look outside the house !
Pho, you have quenched my Komos by first frown

Struck dead all joyance : not a fluting puffs

From idle cheekband ! Ah, my Choros too ?

You've eaten cuckoo-apple ?¹ Dumb, you dogs ?

¹ Arum maculatum, to eat which makes a fool of you.

So much good Thasian wasted on your throat
And out of them not one Threttanelo ?
Neblaretai !² Because this earth-and-sun
Product looks wormwood and all bitter herbs ?
Well, do I blench, though me she hates the most

Of mortals ? By the cabbage, off they slink !

You, too, my Chrusomelolonthion-Phaps,
Girl-goldling-beetle-beauty ? You, abashed,

Who late, supremely unabashable,

Propped up my play at that important point

When Artamouxia tricks the Toxotes ?

Ha, ha, — thank Hermes for the lucky
throw, —

We came last comedy of the whole seven,

So went all fresh to judgment well-disposed

For who should fatly feast them, eye and ear,

We two between us ! What, you fail your
friend ?

Away then, free me of your cowardice !

Go, get you the goat's breakfast !³ Fare afield,
Ye circumcised of Egypt, pigs to sow,

Back to the Priest's or forward to the crows,

So you but rid me of such company !

Once left alone, I can protect myself

From statuesque Balaustion pedestalled

On much disapprobation and mistake !

She dares not beat the sacred brow, beside !

Bacchos' equipment, ivy safeguards well

As Phoibos' bay.

“ They take me at my word !

One comfort is, I shall not want them long,

The Archon's cry creaks, creaks, ‘ Curtail expense ! ’

The war wants money, year the twenty-sixth !

Cut down our Choros number, clip costume,
Save birds' wings, beetles' armour, spend the cash

In three-crest skull-caps, three days' salt-fish-slice,

Three-banked-ships for these sham-ambassadors,

And what not : any cost but Comedy's !

‘ No Choros ’—soon will follow ; what care I ?

² Vulgar noises imitating familiar sounds.

³ Vulgar expression connected with the worship of the god.

Archinos and Agurrhios, scrape your flint,
Flay your dead dog, and curry favour so!
Choros in rags, with loss of leather next,
We lose the boys' vote, lose the song and dance,

Lose my Elaphion! Still, the actor stays.
Save but my acting, and the baldhead bard¹
Kudathenaian and Pandionid,
Son of Philippos, Aristophanes
Surmounts his rivals now as heretofore,
Though stinted to mere sober prosy verse—
'Manners and men,' so squeamish gets the
world!

No more 'Step forward, strip for anapæsts!'
No calling naughty people by their names,
No tickling audience into gratitude
With chickpease, barleygroats and nuts and plums,
No setting Salabaccho . . ."

As I turned—

"True, lady, I am tolerably drunk:
The proper inspiration! Otherwise,—
Phrunichos, Choirilos!—had Aischulos
So foiled you at the goat-song? Drink's a
god.

How else did that old doating driveller
Kratinos foil me, match my masterpiece
The 'Clouds'? I swallowed cloud-distilment
—dew

Undimmed by any grape-blush, knit my brow
And gnawed my style and laughed my learnedest;

While he worked at his 'Willow-wicker-flask,' Swigging at that same flask by which he swore,

Till, sing and empty, sing and fill again,
Somehow result was—what it should not be
Next time, I promised him and kept my word!
Hence, brimful now of Thasian . . . I'll be bound,

Mendesian, merely: triumph-night, you know,
The High Priest entertains the conqueror,
And, since war worsens all things, stingily
The rascal starves whom he is bound to stuff,

Choros and actors and their lord and king
The poet; supper, still he needs must spread—
And this time all was conscientious fare:
He knew his man, his match, his master—
made

Amends, spared neither fish, flesh, fowl nor wine:

So merriment increased, I promise you,
Till—something happened."

Here he strangely paused.

"After that,—well, it either was the cup
To the Good Genius, our concluding pledge,
That wrought me mischief, decently un-
mixed,—

Or, what if, when that happened, need arose
Of new libation? Did you only know
What happened! Little wonder I am drunk."

Euthukles, o'er the boat-side, quick, what
change,

Watch, in the water! But a second since,
It laughed a ripply spread of sun and sea,
Ray fused with wave, to never disunite.
Now, sudden all the surface, hard and black,
Lies a quenched light, dead motion: what
the cause?

Look up and lo, the menace of a cloud
Has solemnized the sparkling, spoiled the sport!

Just so, some overshadow, some new care
Stopped all the mirth and mocking on his face
And left there only such a dark surmise
—No wonder if the revel disappeared,
So did his face shed silence every side!
I recognized a new man fronting me.

"So!" he smiled, piercing to my thought at
once,

"You see myself? Balaustion's fixed regard
Can strip the proper Aristophanes
Of what our sophists, in their jargon, style
His accidents? My soul sped forth but now
To meet your hostile survey,—soul unseen,
Yet veritably cinct for soul-defence
With satyr sportive quips, cranks, boss and spike,

Chionides felled oak and rough-hewed thence
This club I wield now, having spent my life
In planing knobs and sticking studs to shine;
Somebody else must try mere polished steel!"

Emboldened by the sober mood's return,
"Meanwhile," said I, "since planed and studded club

Once more has pashed competitors to dust,
And poet proves triumphant with that play
Euthukles found last year unfortunate,— Does triumph spring from smoothness still more smoothed,

Fresh studs sown thick and threefold? In plain words,

Have you exchanged brute-blows,—which teach the brute

Man may surpass him in brutality,—
For human fighting, or true god-like force Which breathes persuasion nor needs fight at
all?

Have you essayed attacking ignorance,
Convicting folly, by their opposites,
Knowledge and wisdom? not by yours for ours,
Fresh ignorance and folly, new for old,
Greater for less, your crime for our mistake!
If so success at last have crowned desert,
Bringing surprise (dashed haply by concern
At your discovery such wild waste of strength —And what strength!—went so long to keep in vogue

Such warfare—and what warfare!—shamed
so fast,

So soon made obsolete, as fell their foe
By the first arrow native to the orb,
First onslaught worthy Aristophanes)—

Was this conviction's entry that same strange 'Something that happened' to confound your feast?"

"Ah, did he witness then my play that failed,
First 'Thesmophoriazousai'? Well and good!
But did he also see,—your Euthukles,—
My 'Grasshoppers' which followed and failed
too,

Three months since, at the 'Little-in-the-

"To say that he did see that First—should
say
He never cared to see its following."

"There happens to be reason why I wrote
First play and second also. Ask the cause!
I warrant you receive ere talk be done,
Fit answer, authorizing either act.

But here's the point: as Euthukles made vow
Never again to taste my quality,
So I was minded next experiment
Should tickle palate—yea, of Euthukles!
Not by such utter change, such absolute

A topsyturvy of stage-habitude
As you and he want,—Comedy built fresh,
By novel brick and mortar, base to roof,—

No, for I stand too near and look too close!
Pleasure and pastime yours, spectators brave,
Should I turn art's fixed fabric upside down!
Little you guess how such tough work tasks
soul!

Not overtasks, though: give fit strength fair
play,
And strength's a demiourgos! Art renewed?
Ay, in some closet where strength shuts out
—first

The friendly faces, sympathetic cheer:
'More of the old provision none supplies
So bounteously as thou,—our love, our pride,
Our author of the many a perfect piece!
Stick to that standard, change were decadence!'

Next, the unfriendly: 'This time, strain will tire,

He's fresh, Ameipsias thy antagonist!
—Or better, in some Salaminian cave
Where sky and sea and solitude make earth
And man and noise one insignificance, Let strength propose itself,—behind the
world,—

Sole prize worth winning, work that satisfies Strength it has dared and done strength's utmost!

After which,—clap-to closet and quit cave,—
Strength may conclude in Archelaos' court,
And yet esteem the silken company
So much sky-scud, sea-froth, earth-thistle-
down,

For aught their praise or blame should joy or grieve.

Strength amid crowds as late in solitude
May lead the still life, ply the wordless task :
Then only, when seems need to move or speak,
Moving—for due respect, when statesmen pass, (Strength, in the closet, watched how spiders spin)

Speaking—when fashion shows intelligence, (Strength, in the cave, oft whistled to the gulls)

In short, has learnt first, practised afterwards !
Despise the world and reverence yourself,—
Why, you may unmake things and remake
things,

And throw behind you, unconcerned enough,
What's made or marred : 'you teach men,
are not taught !'

So marches off the stage Euripides !

“ No such thin fare feeds flesh and blood like
mine,

No such faint fume of fancy sates my soul,
No such seclusion, closet, cave or court,
Suits either : give me Iostephanos¹
Worth making happy what coarse way she
will—

O happy-maker, when her cries increase
About the favourite ! 'Aristophanes !
More grist to mill, here's Kleophon to grind !
He's for refusing peace, though Sparté cede
Even Dekeleia ! Here's Kleonumos
Declaring—though he threw away his shield,
He'll thrash you till you lay your lyre aside !
Orestes bids mind where you walk of nights—
He wants your cloak as you his cudgelling :
Here's, finally, Melanthios fat with fish,
The gormandizer-spendthrift-dramatist !
So, bustle ! Pounce on opportunity !
Let fun a-screaming in Parabasis,²
Find food for folk agape at either end,
Mad for amusement ! Times grow better too,
And should they worsen, why, who laughs, forgets.

In no case, venture boy-experiments !
Old wine's the wine : new poetry drinks raw :

² Comic chorus.

Two plays a season is your pledge, beside ;
So, give us 'Wasps' again, grown hornets
now !'”

Then he changed.

“ Do you so detect in me—
Brow-bald, chin-bearded, me, curved cheek, carved lip,
Or where soul sits and reigns in either eye—
What suits the—stigma, I say,—style say
you,

Of 'Wine-lees-poet' ? Bravest of buffoons,
Less blunt than Telekleides, less obscene
Than Murtilos, Hermippos : quite a match
In elegance for Eupolis himself,
Yet pungent as Kratinos at his best ?

Graced with traditional immunity
Ever since, much about my grandsire's time,
Some funny village-man in Megara,
Lout-lord and clown-king, used a privilege,
As due religious drinking-bouts came round,
To daub his phyz,—no, that was afterward,—
He merely mounted cart with mates of choice
And traversed country, taking house by house,
At night,—because of danger in the freak,—
Then hollaed 'Skin-flint starves his labourers !
Clench-fist stows figs away, cheats government !

Such an one likes to kiss his neighbour's
wife,
And beat his own ; while such another . . .
Boh !'

Soon came the broad day, circumstantial tale,
Dancing and verse, and there's our Comedy, There's Mullos, there's Euetes, there's the stock

I shall be proud to graft my powers upon !
Protected ? Punished quite as certainly When Archons pleased to lay down each his law,—

Your Morucheides-Surakosios sort,—
Each season, 'No more naming citizens,
Only abuse the vice, the vicious spare !
Observe, henceforth no Areopagite
Demean his rank by writing Comedy !'
(They one and all could write the 'Clouds'
of course.)

'Needs must we nick expenditure, allow
 Comedy half a choros, supper—none,
 Times being hard, while applicants increase
 For, what costs cash, the Tragic Trilogy.'
 Lofty Tragedians! How they lounge aloof
 Each with his Triad, three plays to my one,
 Not counting the contemptuous fourth, the frank Concession to mere mortal levity,
 Satyric pittance tossed our beggar-world!
 Your proud Euripides from first to last Doled out some five such, never deigned us
 more!
 And these—what curds and whey for mar-
 rowy wine!
 That same Alkestis you so rave about
 Passed muster with him for a Satyr-play,
 The prig!—why trifle time with toys and skits
 When he could stuff four ragbags sausage-
 wise
 With sophistry, with bookish odds and
 ends,
 Sokrates, meteors, moonshine, 'Life's not
 Life,'
 'The tongue swore, but unsworn the mind
 remains,'
 And fifty such concoctions, crab-tree-fruit
 Digested while, head low and heels in heaven,
 He lay, let Comics laugh—for privilege!
 Looked puzzled on, or pityingly off,
 But never dreamed of paying gibe by jeer,
 Buffet by blow: plenty of proverb-pokes
 At vice and folly, wicked kings, mad mobs!
 No sign of wincing at my Comic lash,
 No protest against infamous abuse,
 Malignant censure,—nought to prove I scourged
 With tougher thong than leek-and-onionplait!
 If ever he glanced gloom, aggrieved at all,
 The aggriever must be—Aischulos perhaps:
 Or Sophokles he'd take exception to.
 —Do you detect in me—in me, I ask,
 The man like to accept this measurement
 Of faculty, contentedly sit classed Mere Comic Poet—since I wrote 'The Birds'?'

I thought there might lurk truth in jest's disguise.
 "Thanks!" he resumed, so quick to construe
 smile!
 "I answered—in my mind—these gapers
 thus:
 Since old wine's ripe and new verse raw,
 you judge—
 What if I vary vintage-mode and mix Blossom with must, give nosegay to the brew,
 Fining, refining, gently, surely, till
 The educated taste turns unawares
 From customary dregs to draught divine?
 Then answered—with my lips: More
 'Wasps' you want?
 Come next year and I give you 'Grasshoppers'!
 And 'Grasshoppers' I gave them,—last month's play.
 They formed the Choros. Alkibiades,
 No longer Triphales but Trilophos, (Whom I called Darling-of-the-Summertime.
 Born to be nothing else but beautiful
 And brave, to eat, drink, love his life
 away)
 Persuades the Tettix (our Autochthon-brood,
 That sip the dew and sing on olive-branch
 Above the ant-and-emmet populace)
 To summon all who meadow, hill and dale
 Inhabit—bee, wasp, woodlouse, dragonfly—
 To band themselves against red nipper-nose
 Stagbeetle, huge Taigetan (you guess—Sparté) Athenai needs must battle with,
 Because her sons are grown effeminate
 To that degree—so morbifies their flesh
 The poison-drama of Euripides,
 Morals and music—there's no antidote
 Occurs save warfare which inspirits blood,
 And brings us back perchance the blessed
 time
 When (Choros takes up tale) our commonalty
 Firm in primæval virtue, antique faith,
 Ere earwig-sophist plagued or pismire-sage,
 Cockeyed no noddle up with A, b, g,
 Book-learning, logic-chopping, and the moon,

The Thesmophoriazousai, smartened up
With certain plaits, shall please, I promise
you !

“ Yes, I took up the play that failed last
year,

And re-arranged things ; threw adroitly in,—
No Parachoregema,¹—men to match

My women there already ; and when these (I had a hit at Aristullos here,
His plan how womankind should rule the roast)

Drove men to plough—‘ A-field, ye cribbed of cape !’

Men showed themselves exempt from service
straight

Stupendously, till all the boys cried ‘ Brave !’

Then for the elders, I bethought me too,

Improved upon Mnesilochos’ release

From the old bowman, board and binding-strap :

I made his son-in-law Euripides

Engage to put both shrewish wives away—

‘ Gravity’ one, the other ‘ Sophist-lore’—

And mate with the Bald Bard’s hetairai twain—

‘ Goodhumour’ and ‘ Indulgence’ : on they tripped,

Murrhiné, Akalanthis,—‘ beautiful

Their whole belongings’—crowd joined choros
there !

And while the Toxotes wound up his part

By shower of nuts and sweetmeats on the mob,

The woman-choros celebrated New

Kalligeneia, the frank last-day rite.

Brief, I was chaired and caressed and crowned

And the whole theatre broke out a-roar,

Echoed my admonition—choros-cap—

Rivals of mine, your hands to your faces !

Summon no more the Muses, the Graces,

Since here by my side they have chosen their places !

And so we all flocked merrily to feast,

I, my choragos, choros, actors, mutes

And flutes aforesaid, friends in crowd, no fear,

At the Priest’s supper ; and hilarity

Grew none the less that, early in the piece,
Ran a report, from row to row close-packed,
Of messenger’s arrival at the Port

With weighty tidings, ‘ Of Lusandros’ flight,’

Opined one ; ‘ That Eubolia penitent

Sends the Confederation fifty ships,’

Preferred another ; while ‘ The Great King’s Eye’²

Has brought a present for Elaphion here,

That rarest peacock Kompolakuthes !’

Such was the supposition of a third.

‘ No matter what the news,’ friend Strattis
laughed,

‘ It won’t be worse for waiting : while each click
Of the klepsudra sets a-shaking grave

Resentment in our shark’s-head, boiled and spoiled

By this time : dished in Sphettian vinegar,

Silphion and honey, served with cocks’-brain-sauce !

So, swift to supper, Poet ! No mistake,

This play ; nor, like the unflavoured “ Grasshoppers,”

Salt without thyme !’ Right merrily we supped,
Till—something happened.

“ Out it shall, at last !

“ Mirth drew to ending, for the cup was crowned

To the Triumphant ! ‘ Kleonclapper erst,

Now, Plier of a scourge Euripides

Fairly turns tail from, flying Attiké

For Makedonia’s rocks and frosts and bears.

Where, furry grown, he growls to match the
squeak

Of girl-voiced, crocus-vested Agathon !

Ha ha, he he !’ When suddenly a knock—
Sharp, solitary, cold, authoritative.

“ ‘ Babaiax ! Sokrates a-passing by,

A-peering in for Aristullos’ sake,

To put a question touching Comic Law ?’

“ No ! Enters an old pale-swathed majesty.
Makes slow mute passage through two ranks
as mute,

² A nickname in “ The Acharnians.”

(Strattis stood up with all the rest, the sneak !) Grey brow still bent on ground, upraised at length
 When, our Priest reached, full-front the vision paused.

“ ‘ Priest ! ’—the deep tone succeeded the fixed gaze—

‘ Thou carest that thy god have spectacle
 Decent and seemly ; wherefore I announce
 That, since Euripides is dead to-day,
 My Choros, at the Greater Feast, next month,
 Shall, clothed in black, appear ungarlanded ! ’

“ Then the grey brow sank low, and Sophokles

Re-swathed him, sweeping doorward : mutely
 passed

’ Twixt rows as mute, to mingle possibly
 With certain gods who convoy age to port ;
 And night resumed him.

“ When our stupor broke,
 Chirpings took courage, and grew audible.

‘ Dead—so one speaks now of Euripides !
 Ungarlanded dance Choros, did he say ?
 I guess the reason : in extreme old age
 No doubt such have the gods for visitants.
 Why did he dedicate to Herakles
 An altar else, but that the god, turned Judge, Told him in dream who took the crown of gold ?

He who restored Akropolis the theft,
 Himself may feel perhaps a timely twinge
 At thought of certain other crowns he filched
 From—who now visits Herakles the Judge.
 Instance “ Medeia ” ! that play yielded palm
 To Sophokles ; and he again—to whom ?
 Euphorion ! Why ? Ask Herakles the Judge ! ’

‘ Ungarlanded, just means—economy !
 Suppress robes, chaplets, everything suppress Except the poet’s present ! An old tale Put capitally by Trugaios—eh ?
 —News from the world of transformation
 strange !

How Sophokles is grown Simonides,

And,—aged, rotten,—all the same, for greed
 Would venture on a hurdle out to sea !—
 So jokes Philonides. Kallistratos
 Retorts—Mistake ! Instead of stinginess,
 The fact is, in extreme decrepitude,
 He has discarded poet and turned priest,
 Priest of Half-Hero Alkon : visited
 In his own house too by Asklepios’ self,
 So he avers. Meanwhile, his own estate
 Lies fallow ; Iophon’s the manager,—
 Nay, touches up a play, brings out the same,
 Asserts true sonship. See to what you sink
 After your dozen-dozen prodigies !
 Looking so old—Euripides seems young,
 Born ten years later.’

‘ Just his tricky style !
 Since, stealing first away, he wins first word
 Out of good-natured rival Sophokles,
 Procures himself no bad panegyric.
 Had fate willed otherwise, himself were taxed
 To pay survivor’s-tribute,—harder squeezed
 From anybody beaten first to last,
 Than one who, steadily a conqueror,
 Finds that his magnanimity is tasked
 To merely make pretence and—beat itself ! ’

“ So chirped the feasters though suppressedly.

“ But I—what else do you suppose ?—had pierced
 Quite through friends’ outside-straining, foes’
 mock-praise,
 And reached conviction hearted under all.
 Death’s rapid line had closed a life’s account,
 And cut off, left unalterably clear
 The summed-up value of Euripides.

“ Well, it might be the Thasian ! Certainly
 There sang suggestive music in my ears ;
 And, through—what sophists style—the wall of sense

My eyes pierced : death seemed life and life seemed death,
 Envisaged that way, now, which I, before,
 Conceived was just a moonstruck mood.
 Quite plain
 There re-insisted,—ay, each prim stiff phrase

Of each old play, my still-new laughing-stock,
Had meaning, well worth poet's pains to state,
Should life prove half true life's term,—death,
the rest.

As for the other question, late so large
Now all at once so little,—he or I,
Which better comprehended playwright craft,—

There, too, old admonition took fresh point.
As clear recurred our last word-interchange
Two years since, when I tried with 'Ploutos.'
'Vain !'

Saluted me the cold grave-bearded bard—
'Vain, this late trial, Aristophanes !

None baulks the genius with impunity !

You know what kind's the nobler, what makes grave

Or what makes grin ; there's yet a nobler still,
Possibly,—what makes wise, not grave,—and
glad,

Not grinning : whereby laughter joins with
tears,

Tragic and Comic Poet prove one power,
And Aristophanes becomes our Fourth—

Nay, greatest ! Never needs the Art stand
still,

But those Art leans on lag, and none like you,
Her strongest of supports, whose step aside
Undoes the march : defection checks advance Too late adventured ! See the "Ploutos"
here !

This step decides your foot from old to new—Proves you relinquish song and dance and jest,

Discard the beast, and, rising from all-fours,
Fain would paint, manlike, actual human life,
Make veritable men think, say and do.

Here's the conception : which to execute,
Where's force ? Spent ! Ere the race began,
was breath

O' the runner squandered on each friendly
fool—

Wit-fireworks fizzed off while day craved no
flame :

How should the night receive her due of fire Flared out in Wasps and Horses, Clouds and Birds,

Prodigiously a-crackle ? Rest content !

The new adventure for the novel man
Born to that next success myself foresee
In right of where I reach before I rest.

At end of a long course, straight all the way.
Well may there tremble somewhat into ken
The untrod path, clouds veiled from earlier
gaze !

None may live two lives : I have lived mine
through,

Die where I first stand still. You retrograde.
I leave my life's work. I compete with you,
My last with your last, my Antiope—

Phoinissai—with this Ploutos ? No, I think !
Ever shall great and awful Victory

Accompany my life—in Maketis

If not Athenai. Take my farewell, friend :

Friend,—for from no consummate excellence
Like yours, whatever fault may countervail.

Do I profess estrangement : murk the marsh,
Yet where a solitary marble block

Blanches the gloom, there let the eagle perch !

You show—what splinters of Pentelikos,
Islanded by what ordure ! Eagles fly,

Rest on the right place, thence depart as free :
But 'ware man's footstep, would it traverse mire

Untainted ! Mire is safe for worms that crawl.'

"Balaustion ! Here are very many words.

All to portray one moment's rush of thought,—
And much they do it ! Still, you understand.

The Archon, the Feast-master, read their sum
And substance, judged the banquet-glow
extinct,

So rose, discreetly if abruptly, crowned

The parting cup,—'To the Good Genius,
then !'

"Up starts young Strattis for a final flash :

'Ay the Good Genius ! To the Comic
Muse,

She who evolves superiority,

Triumph and joy from sorrow, unsuccess

And all that's incomplete in human life ;

Who proves such actual failure transient
wrong,

Since out of body uncouth, halt and maimed—

Lo, that Euripidean laurel-tree
 Struck to the heart by lightning! Sokrates Would question us, with buzz of how and
 why,
 Wherefore the berry's virtue, the bloom's vice,
 Till we all wished him quiet with his friend;
 Agathon would compose an elegy,
 Lyric bewailment fit to move a stone,
 And, stones responsive, we might wince, 'tis
 like;
 Nay, with most cause of all to weep the least,
 Sophokles ordains mourning for his sake
 While we confess to a remorseful twinge:—
 Suddenly, who but Aristophanes,
 Prompt to the rescue, puts forth solemn hand,
 Singles us out the tragic tree's best branch,
 Persuades it groundward and, at tip, appends,
 For votive-visor, Faun's goat-grinning face!
 Back it flies, evermore with jest a-top,
 And we recover the true mood, and laugh!"

"I felt as when some Nikias,—ninny-like Troubled by sunspot-portent, moon-eclipse,—
 At fault a little, sees no choice but sound
 Retreat from foeman; and his troops mistake
 The signal, and hail onset in the blast,
 And at their joyous answer, alalé,
 Back the old courage brings the scattered wits;
 He wonders what his doubt meant, quick confirms
 The happy error, blows the charge amain.
 So I repaired things.

"Both be praised" thanked I.
 "You who have laughed with Aristophanes,
 You who wept rather with the Lord of Tears!
 Priest, do thou, president alike o'er each,
 Tragic and Comic function of the god,
 Help with libation to the blended twain!
 Either of which who serving, only serves—
 Proclaims himself disqualified to pour
 To that Good Genius—complex Poetry,
 Uniting each god-grace, including both:
 Which, operant for body as for soul,
 Masters alike the laughter and the tears,
 Supreme in lowliest earth, sublimest sky.

Who dares disjoin these,—whether he ignores Body or soul, whichever half destroys,— Maims the else perfect manhood, perpetrates
 Again the inexpressible crime we curse—
 Hacks at the Hermai, halves each guardian
 shape
 Combining, nowise vainly, prominence
 Of august head and enthroned intellect,
 With homelier symbol of asserted sense,—
 Nature's prime impulse, earthly appetite.
 For, when our folly ventures on the freak,
 Would fain abolish joy and fruitfulness,
 Mutilate nature—what avails the Head
 Left solitarily predominant,— Unbodied soul,—not Hermes, both in one?
 I, no more than our City, acquiesce
 In such a desecration, but defend Man's double nature—ay, wert thou its foe!
 Could I once more, thou cold Euripides,
 Encounter thee, in nought would I abate
 My warfare, nor subdue my worst attack
 On thee whose life-work preached 'Raise soul, sink sense!
 Evirate Hermes!'—would avenge the god,
 And justify myself. Once face to face,
 Thou, the argute and tricky, shouldst not wrap,
 As thine old fashion was, in silent scorn
 The breast that quickened at the sting of
 truth,
 Nor turn from me, as, if the tale be true,
 From Lais when she met thee in thy walks,
 And questioned why she had no rights as thou:
 Not so shouldst thou betake thee, be assured,
 To book and pencil, deign me no reply!
 I would extract an answer from those lips
 So closed and cold, were mine the garden-
 chance!
 Gone from the world! Does none remain to take
 Thy part and ply me with thy sophist-skill?
 No sun makes proof of his whole potency
 For gold and purple in that orb we view:
 The apparent orb does little but leave blind
 The audacious, and confused the worshipping:
 But, close on orb's departure, must succeed
 The serviceable cloud,—must intervene,
 Induce expenditure of rose and blue,

Reveal what lay in him was lost to us.
 So, friends, what hinders, as we homeward go,
 If, privileged by triumph gained to-day,
 We clasp that cloud our sun left saturate,
 The Rhodian rosy with Euripides?
 Not of my audience on my triumph-day,
 She nor her husband! After the night's news
 Neither will sleep but watch; I know the mood.

Accompany! my crown declares my right!
 And here you stand with those warm golden
 eyes!

“In honest language, I am scarce too sure
 Whether I really felt, indeed expressed
 Then, in that presence, things I now repeat:
 Nor half, nor any one word,—will that do?
 May be, such eyes must strike conviction, turn
 One's nature bottom upwards, show the base—
 The live rock latent under wave and foam:
 Superimpose these! Yet solid stuff
 Will ever and anon, obeying star, (And what star reaches rock-nerve like an eye?)

Swim up to surface, spout or mud or flame,
 And find no more to do than sink as fast.

“Anyhow, I have followed happily
 The impulse, pledged my Genius with effect, Since, come to see you, I am shown—myself!”

I answered:

“One of us declared for both ‘Welcome the glory of Aristophanes.’
 The other adds: and,—if that glory last,
 Nor marsh-born vapour creep to veil the
 same,—

Once entered, share in our solemnity!
 Commemorate, as we, Euripides!”

“What?” he looked round, “I darken the bright house?
 Profane the temple of your deity?
 That's true! Else wherefore does he stand portrayed?”

What Rhodian paint and pencil saved so much.
 Beard, freckled face, brow—all but breath, I hope!

Come, that's unfair: myself am somebody,
 Yet my pictorial fame's just potter's-work,—
 I merely figure on men's drinking-mugs!
 I and the Flat-nose, Sophroniskos' son,
 Oft make a pair. But what's this lies below?
 His table-book and graver, playwright's tool!
 And lo, the sweet psalterion, strung and screwed,

Whereon he tried those le-é-é-é-és
 And ke-é-é-é-és and turns and trills,
 Lovely lark's tirra-lirra, lad's delight!
 Aischulos' bronze-throat eagle-bark at blood
 Has somehow spoiled my taste for twitterings!
 With . . . what, and did he leave you
 ‘Herakles’?

The ‘Frenzied Hero,’ one unfractured sheet,
 No pine-wood tablets smeared with treacherous wax—

Papuros perfect as e'er tempted pen!
 This sacred twist of bay-leaves dead and sere Must be that crown the fine work failed to catch,—

No wonder! This might crown ‘Antiope.’
 ‘Herakles’ triumph? In your heart perhaps!
 But elsewhere? Come now, I'll explain the case,

Show you the main mistake. Give me the sheet!”

I interrupted:

“Aristophanes!

The stranger-woman sues in her abode—
 ‘Be honoured as our guest!’ But, call it—shrine,

Then ‘No dishonour to the Daimon!’ bids
 The priestess ‘or expect dishonour's due!’
 You enter fresh from your worst infamy,
 Last instance of long outrage; yet I pause,
 Withhold the word a-tremble on my lip,
 Incline me, rather, yearn to reverence,—
 So you but suffer that I see the blaze
 And not the bolt,—the splendid fancy-fling,
 Not the cold iron malice, the launched lie
 Whence heavenly fire has withered; impotent,

Yet execrable, leave it 'neath the look
Of yon impassive presence! What he scorned,
His life long, need I touch, offend my foot,
To prove that malice missed its mark, that lie
Cumbers the ground, returns to whence it came?
I marvel, I deplore,—the rest be mute!
But, throw off hate's celestialty,—
Show me, apart from song-flash and wit-flame,
A mere man's hand ignobly clenched against Yon supreme calmness,—and I interpose,
Such as you see me! Silk breaks lightning's blow!"

He seemed to scarce so much as notice me,
Aught had I spoken, save the final phrase:
Arrested there.

"Euripides grown calm!
Calmness supreme means dead and therefore safe,"

He muttered; then more audibly began—

"Dead! Such must die! Could people comprehend!

There's the unfairness of it! So obtuse
Are all: from Solon downward with his saw 'Let none revile the dead,—no, though the
son,

Nay, far descendant, should revile thyself!—
To him who made Elektra, in the act
Of wreaking vengeance on her worst of foes,
Scruple to blame, since speech that blames insults

Too much the very villain life-released.

Now, I say, only after death, begins
That formidable claim,—immunity
Of faultiness from fault's due punishment!
The living, who defame me,—why, they live:
Fools,—I best prove them foolish by their life,
Will they but work on, lay their work by mine,
And wait a little, one Olympiad, say!

Then—where's the vital force, mine froze
beside?

The sturdy fibre, shamed my brittle stuff?
The school-correctness, sure of wise award
When my vagaries cease to tickle taste?
Where's censure that must sink me, judgment
big

Awaiting just the word posterity
Pants to pronounce? Time's wave breaks, buries—whom,
Fools, when myself confronts you four years
hence?

But die, ere next Lenaia,—safely so
You 'scape me, slink with all your ignorance,
Stupidity and malice, to that hole

O'er which survivors croak 'Respect the dead!'
Ay, for I needs must! But allow me clutch
Only a carrion-handful, lend it sense,
(Mine, not its own, or could it answer me?)

And question 'You, I pluck from hiding-place, Whose cant was, certain years ago, my
'Clouds'

Might last until the swallows came with Spring—

Whose chatter, 'Birds' are unintelligible,
Mere psychologic puzzling: poetry?

List, the true lay to rock a cradle with!

O man of Mituléné, wondrous wise!

—Would not I rub each face in its own filth
To tune of 'Now that years have come and
gone,

How does the fact stand? What's demonstrable

By time, that tries things?—your own test, not mine

Who think men are, were, ever will be fools, Though somehow fools confute fools,—as these, you!

Don't mumble to the sheepish twos and threes
You cornered and called 'audience'! Face this me

Who know, and can, and—helped by fifty years—

Do pulverize you pygmies, then as now!

"Ay, now as then, I pulverize the brood, Balaustion! Mindful, from the first, where foe

Would hide head safe when hand had flung its stone,

I did not turn cheek and take pleasantry,
But flogged while skin could purple and flesh start,

To teach fools whom they tried conclusions
with.

Nor add, this poet, learned,—found no taunt
Tell like 'That other poet studies books!'
Wise,—cried 'At each attempt to move our hearts,

He uses the mere phrase of daily life!
Witty,—'His mother was a herb-woman!'
Veracious, honest, loyal, fair and good,—
'It was Kephisophon who helped him write!'

"Whence,—O the tragic end of comedy!—
Balaustion pities Aristophanes.
For, who believed him? Those who laughed so loud?

They heard him call the sun Sicilian cheese!
Had he called true cheese—curd, would muscle move?

What made them laugh but the enormous lie?
'Kephisophon wrote Herakles? ha, ha,
What can have stirred the wine-dregs, soured
the soul

And set a-lying Aristophanes?
Some accident at which he took offence!
The Tragic Master in a moody muse
Passed him unhailing, and it hurts—it hurts!
Beside, there's licence for the Wine-lees-
song!'"

Blood burnt the cheek-bone, each black eye flashed fierce.

"But this exceeds our licence! Stay awhile—
That's the solution! both are foreigners,
The fresh-come Rhodian lady and her spouse
The man of Phokis: newly resident,
Nowise instructed—that explains it all!
No born and bred Athenian but would smile,
Unless frown seemed more fit for ignorance.
These strangers have a privilege!

"You blame"

(Presently he resumed with milder mien)
'Both theory and practice—Comedy:
Blame her from altitudes the Tragic friend
Rose to, and upraised friends along with him,
No matter how. Once there, all's cold and fine,
Passionless, rational; our world beneath Shows (should you condescend to grace so
much

As glance at poor Athenai) grimly gross—
A population which, mere flesh and blood,
Eats, drinks and kisses, falls to fisticuffs,
Then hugs as hugely: speaks too as it acts, Prodigiously talks nonsense,—townsmen
needs

Must parley in their town's vernacular.
Such world has, of two courses, one to choose:
Unworld itself,—or else go blackening off
To its crow-kindred, leave philosophy
Her heights serene, fit perch for owls like you.
Now, since the world demurs to either course,
Permit me,—in default of boy or girl,
So they be reared Athenian, good and true,—
To praise what you most blame! Hear Art's defence!

I'll prove our institution, Comedy,
Coëval with the birth of freedom, matched
So nice with our Republic, that its growth
Measures each greatness, just as its decline
Would signalize the downfall of the pair.
Our Art began when Bacchos . . . nevermind!
You and your master don't acknowledge gods:
'They are not, no, they are not!' well,—
began

When the rude instinct of our race outspoke,
Found,—on recurrence of festivity
Occasioned by black mother-earth's good will
To children, as they took her vintage-gifts,—
Found—not the least of many benefits—
That wine unlocked the stiffest lip, and loosed
The tongue late dry and reticent of joke,
Through custom's gripe which gladness thrusts aside.

So, emulating liberalities,
Heaven joined with earth for that god's day
at least,

Renewed man's privilege, grown obsolete,
Of telling truth nor dreading punishment.
Whereon the joyous band disguised their forms
With skins, beast-fashion, daubed each phyz with dregs,

Then hollaed 'Neighbour, you are fool, you
—knave,

You—hard to serve, you—stingy to reward!
The guiltless crowed, the guilty sunk their crest,

And good folk gained thereby, 'twas evident.

Whence, by degrees, a birth of happier
thought,
The notion came—not simply this to say,
But this to do—prove, put in evidence,
And act the fool, the knave, the harsh, the hunks,
Who did prate, cheat, shake fist, draw purse-string tight,
As crowd might see, which only heard before.

“So played the Poet, with his man of parts ;
And all the others, found unqualified
To mount cart and be persons, made the mob,
Joined choros, fortified their fellows' fun,
Anticipated the community,
Gave judgment which the public ratified.
Suiting rough weapon doubtless to plain truth,
They flung, for word-artillery, why—filth ;
Still, folk who wiped the unsavoury salute
From visage, would prefer the mess to wit—
Steel, poked through midriff with a civil
speech,
As now the way is : then, the kindlier mode
Was—drub not stab, ribroast not scarify !
So did Sousarion introduce, and so
Did I, acceding, find the Comic Art :
Club,—if I call it,—notice what's implied !
An engine proper for rough chastisement,
No downright slaying : with impunity—
Provided crabtree, steeped in oily joke,
Deal only such a bruise as laughter cures.
I kept the gained advantage : stickled still
For club-law—stout fun and allowed thumps :
Knocked in each knob a crevice to hold joke
As fig-leaf holds the fat-fry.

“Next, whom thrash ?
Only the coarse fool and the clownish knave ?
Higher, more artificial, composite Offence should prove my prowess, eye and
arm !
Not who robs henroost, tells of untaxed figs,
Spends all his substance on stewed ellops-fish,
Or gives a pheasant to his neighbour's wife :
No ! strike malpractice that affects the State,
The common weal—intriguer or poltroon,
Venality, corruption, what care I

If shrewd or witless merely?—so the thing
Lay sap to aught that made Athenai bright
And happy, change her customs, lead astray
Youth or age, play the demagogue at Pnux,
The sophist in Palaistra, or—what's worst,
As widest mischief,—from the Theatre
Preach innovation, bring contempt on oaths,
Adorn licentiousness, despise the Cult.
Are such to be my game? Why, then there wants

Quite other cunning than a cudgel-sweep !
Grasp the old stout stock, but new tip with steel
Each boss, if I would bray—no callous hide
Simply, but Lamachos in coat of proof,
Or Kleon cased about with impudence !
Shaft pushed no worse while point pierced sparkling so
That none smiled 'Sportive, what seems savagest,
—Innocuous anger, spiteless rustic mirth !'
Yet spiteless in a sort, considered well,
Since I pursued my warfare till each wound Went through the mere man, reached the principle

Worth purging from Athenai. Lamachos ?
No, I attacked war's representative ;
Kleon ? No, flattery of the populace ;
Sokrates ? No, but that pernicious seed
Of sophists whereby hopeful youth is taught
To jabber argument, chop logic, pore
On sun and moon, and worship Whirligig.
O your tragedian, with the lofty grace,
Aims at no other and effects as much ?
Candidly : what's a polished period worth,
Filed curt sententiousness of loaded line,
When he who deals out doctrine, primly steps
From just that selfsame moon he maunders of,
And, blood-thinned by his pallid nutriment,
Proposes to rich earth-blood—purity ?
In me, 'twas equal-balanced flesh rebuked
Excess alike in stuff-guts Glauketes
Or starveling Chairephon ; I challenged
both,—
Strong understander of our common life,
I urged sustainment of humanity.
Whereas when your tragedian cries up Peace—
He's silent as to cheesecakes Peace may chew ;

Seeing through rabble-rule, he shuts his eye
To what were better done than crowding
Pnux—
That's—dance ' Threttanelo, the Kuklops
drunk !'

" My power has hardly need to vaunt itself!
Opposers peep and mutter, or speak plain :
' No naming names in Comedy !' votes one,
' Nor vilifying live folk !' legislates
Another, ' urge amendment on the dead !'
' Don't throw away hard cash,' supplies a third,
' But crib from actor's dresses, choros-treats !'
Then Kleon did his best to bully me :
Called me before the Law Court : ' Such a
play
Satirized citizens with strangers there,
Such other,'—why, its fault was in myself !
I was, this time, the stranger, privileged
To act no play at all,—Egyptian, I—Rhodian or Kameirensian, Aiginete,
Lindian, or any foreigner he liked—
Because I can't write Attic, probably !
Go ask my rivals,—how they roughed my fleece,
And how, shorn pink themselves, the huddled sheep
Shiver at distance from the snapping shears !
Why must they needs provoke me ?

" All the same,
No matter for my triumph, I foretell
Subsidence of the day-star : quench his beams
No Aias e'er was equal to the feat
By throw of shield, tough-hided seven times seven,
' Twixt sky and earth ! 'tis dullards soft and sure
Who breathe against his brightest, here a sigh
And there a ' So let be, we pardon you !'
Till the minute mist hangs a block, has tamed
Noonblaze to ' twilight mild and equable,'
Vote the old women spinning out of doors.
Give me the earth-spasm, when the lion ramped
And the bull gendered in the brave gold flare !
O you shall have amusement,—better still,

Instruction ! no more horse-play, naming
names,
Taxing the fancy when plain sense will serve !
Thearion,¹ now, my friend who bakes you
bread,
What's worthier limning than his household
life ?
His whims and ways, his quarrels with the spouse,
And how the son, instead of learning knead
Kilikian loaves, brings heart-break on his sire
By buying horseflesh branded Sax, each flank,
From shrewd Menippos who imports the
ware :
While pretty daughter Kepphé too much haunts
The shop of Sporgilos the barber ! brave !
Out with Thearion's meal-tub politics
In lieu of Pisthetairos, Strepsiades !
That's your exchange ? O Muse of Megara !
Advise the fools ' *Feed babe on weasel-lap
For wild-boar's marrow, Cheiron's hero-pap,
And rear, for man—Ariphrades, mayhap !*'
Yes, my Balaustion, yes, my Euthukles,
That's your exchange,—who, foreigners in fact
And fancy, would impose your squeamishness
On sturdy health, and substitute such brat
For the right offspring of us Rocky Ones,² Because babe kicks the cradle,—crows, not mewls !

" Which brings me to the prime fault, poison-
speck
Whence all the plague springs—that first feud
of all
' Twixt me and you and your Euripides.
' Unworld the world ' frowns he, my opposite.
I cry, ' Life !' ' Death,' he groans, ' our better Life !'
Despise what is—the good and graspable,
Prefer the out of sight and in at mind,
To village-joy, the well-side violet-patch,
The jolly club-feast when our field's in soak.
Roast thrushes, hare-soup, pea-soup, deep washed down
With Peparethian ; the prompt paying off

How call these carrion kill-joys that intrude?
 'Wise men,' their nomenclature! Prodikos—
 Who scarce could, unassisted, pick his steps
 From way Theseia to the Tripods' way,—
 This empty noddle comprehends the sun,—
 How he's Aigina's bigness, wheels no whit
 His way from east to west, nor wants a steed!
 And here's Protagoras sets wrongheads right,
 Explains what virtue, vice, truth, falsehood
 mean,

Makes all we seemed to know prove ignorance
 Yet knowledge also, since, on either side
 Of any question, something is to say,
 Nothing to 'stablish, all things to disturb!
 And shall youth go and play at kottabos,
 Leaving unsettled whether moon-spots breed?
 Or dare keep Choes ere the problem's solved—
 Why should I like my wife who dislikes me?
 'But sure the gods permit this, censure that?'
 So tell them! straight the answer's in your teeth:

'You relegate these points, then, to the gods?
 What and where are they?' What my sire supposed,
 And where yon cloud conceals them! 'Till they 'scape

And scramble down to Leda, as a swan,
 Europa, as a bull! why not as—ass
 To somebody? Your sire was Zeus perhaps!
 Either—away with such ineptitude!
 Or, wanting energy to break your bonds,
 Stick to the good old stories, think the rain
 Is—Zeus distilling pickle through a sieve!
 Think thunder's thrown to break Theoros' head For breaking oaths first! Meanwhile let ourselves

Instruct your progeny you prate like fools
 Of father Zeus, who's but the atmosphere,
 Brother Poseidon, otherwise called—sea,
 And son Hephaistos—fire and nothing else!
 Over which nothings there's a something still,
 "Necessity," that rules the universe
 And cares as much about your Choes-feast Performed or intermitted, as you care
 Whether gnats sound their trump from head or tail!

When, stupefied at such philosophy,
 We cry—Arrest the madmen, governor!

Pound hemlock and pour bull's-blood,
 Perikles!—

Would you believe? The Olumpian bends his brow,

Scarce pauses from his building! 'Say they
 thus?

Then, they say wisely. Anaxagoras,
 I had not known how simple proves eclipse
 But for thy teaching! Go, fools, learn like
 me!

"Well, Zeus nods: man must reconcile
 himself,

So, let the Charon's-company harangue,
 And Anaxagoras be—as we wish!

A comfort is in nature: while grass grows
 And water runs, and sesame pricks tongue,
 And honey from Brilesian hollow melts
 On mouth, and Bacchis' flavorful lip beats
 both,

You will not be untaught life's use, young man?
Pho! My young man just proves that pan-niered ass

Said to have borne Youth strapped on his stout back,

With whom a serpent bargained, bade him swap

The priceless boon for—water to quench thirst!
 What's youth to my young man? In love with age,

He Spartanizes, argues, fasts and frowns,
 Denies the plainest rules of life, long since
 Proved sound; sets all authority aside,
 Must simply recommence things, learn ere act.
 And think out thoroughly how youth should
 pass—

Just as if youth stops passing, all the same!

"One last resource is left us—poetry!

Vindicate nature, prove Plataian help, Turn out, a thousand strong, all right and
 tight,

To save Sense, poet! Bang the sophist-brood
 Would cheat man out of wholesome sustenance
 By swearing wine is water, honey—gall,
 Saperdion¹—the Empousa!² Panic-smit,

² A horror—a ghoul.

Our juveniles abstain from Sense and starve :
Be yours to disenchant them ! Change things
back !

Or better, strain a point the other way
And handsomely exaggerate wronged truth !
Lend wine a glory never gained from grape,
Help honey with a snatch of him we style
The Muses' Bee, bay-bloom-fed Sophokles,
And give Saperdion a Kimberic robe !

“ ‘I, his successor,’ gruff the answer grunts,
‘ Incline to poetize philosophy,
Extend it rather than restrain ; as thus—Are heroes men? No more, and scarce as
much,

Shall mine be represented. Are men poor?
Behold them ragged, sick, lame, halt and
blind !

Do they use speech? Ay, street-terms, market-phrase !

Having thus drawn sky earthwards, what comes next

But dare the opposite, lift earth to sky?
Mere puppets once, I now make womankind,
For thinking, saying, doing, match the male.
Lift earth? I drop to, dally with, earth's dung!
—Recognize in the very slave—man's mate,
Declare him brave and honest, kind and true,
And reasonable as his lord, in brief.

I paint men as they are—so runs my boast—
Not as they should be : paint—what's part of
man

—Women and slaves—not as, to please your
pride,

They should be, but your equals, as they are.

O and the Gods ! Instead of abject mien,
Submissive whisper, while my Choros cants

“ Zeus,—with thycubit's length of attributes,—
May I, the ephemeral, ne'er scrutinize

Who made the heaven and earth and all things there ! ”

Myself shall say' . . . Ay, Herakles may help !

Give me,—I want the very words,—attend ! ”

He read. Then “ Murder's out,—‘ There are no Gods.’

Man has no master, owns, by consequence,

No right, no wrong, except to please or plague
His nature : what man likes be man's sole law!
Still, since he likes Saperdion, honey, figs,
Man may reach freedom by your roundabout.
‘ Never believe yourselves the freer thence !
There are no gods, but there's “ Necessity,”—
Duty enjoined you, fact in figment's place,
Throned on no mountain, native to the mind !
Therefore deny yourselves Saperdion, figs
And honey, for the sake of—what I dream,
A-sitting with my legs up ! ’ “ Infamy !

The poet casts in calm his lot with these Assailants of Apollon ! Sworn to serve
Each Grace, the Furies call him minister—
He, who was born for just that roseate world Renounced so madly, where what's false is
fact,

Where he makes beauty out of ugliness,
Where he lives, life itself disguised for him
As immortality—so works the spell,
The enthusiastic mood which marks a man
Muse-mad, dream-drunken, wrapt around by verse,

Encircled with poetic atmosphere,
As lark emballed by its own crystal song,
Or rose enmisted by that scent it makes !
No, this were unreality ! the real

He wants, not falsehood, — truth alone he seeks,

Truth, for all beauty ! Beauty, in all truth—
That's certain somehow ! Must the eagle lilt
Lark-like, needs fir-tree blossom rose-like ?

No !

Strength and utility charm more than grace,
And what's most ugly proves most beautiful.
So much assistance from Euripides !

“ Whereupon I betake me, since needs must,
To a concluding—‘ Go and feed the crows !
Do ! Spoil your art as you renounce your life,
Poetize your so precious system, do,
Degrade the hero, nullify the god,
Exhibit women, slaves and men as peers,—
Your castigation follows prompt enough !
When all's concocted upstairs, heels o'er head,
Down must submissive drop the masterpiece

For public praise or blame : so, praise away,
 Friend Sokrates, wife's-friend Kephisophon !
 Boast innovations, cramp phrase, uncouth
 song,

Hard matter and harsh manner, gods, men, slaves

And women jumbled to a laughing-stock
 Which Hellas shall hold sides at lest she split !
 Hellas, on these, shall have her word to say !

“ She has it and she says it—there's the curse!—
 She finds he makes the shag-rag hero-race,
 The noble slaves, wise women, move as much
 Pity and terror as true tragic types :

Applauds inventiveness—the plot so new,
 The turn and trick subsidiary so strange !
 She relishes that homely phrase of life,
 That common town-talk, more than trumpet-blasts :

Accords him right to chop and change a myth :
 What better right had he, who told the tale
 In the first instance, to embellish fact ?
 This last may disembellish yet improve !
 Both find a block : this man carves back to bull

What first his predecessor cut to sphynx :
 Such genuine actual roarer, nature's brute,
 Intelligible to our time, was sure
 The old-world artist's purpose, had he worked To mind ; this both means and makes the
 thing !

If, past dispute, the verse slips oily-bathed
 In unctuous music—say, effeminate—
 We also say, like Kuthereia's¹ self,
 A lulling effluence which enswathes some isle
 Where hides a nymph, not seen but felt the
 more.

That's Hellas' verdict !

“ Does Euripides
 Even so far absolved, remain content ?
 Nowise ! His task is to refine, refine,
 Divide, distinguish, subtilize away
 Whatever seemed a solid planting-place
 For foot-fall,—not in that phantasmal sphere
 Proper to poet, but on vulgar earth

Where people used to tread with confidence.
 There's left no longer one plain positive Enunciation incontestable

Of what is good, right, decent here on earth.
 Nobody now can say 'this plot is mine,
 Though but a plethron square,²—my duty !'
 —' Yours ?

Mine, or at least not yours,' snaps somebody !
 And, whether the dispute be parent-right
 Or children's service, husband's privilege
 Or wife's submission, there's a snarling straight,
 Smart passage of opposing 'yea' and 'nay,'
 'Should,' 'should not,' till, howe'er the contest end,

Spectators go off sighing—Clever thrust !
 Why was I so much hurried to pay debt,
 Attend my mother, sacrifice an ox,
 And set my name down 'for a trireme, good' ?
 Something I might have urged on t'other side '
 No doubt, Chresphontes or Bellerophon
 We don't meet every day ; but Stab-and-stitch
 The tailor—ere I turn the drachmas o'er
 I owe him for a chiton, as he thinks,
 I'll pose the blockhead with an argument !

“ So has he triumphed, your Euripides !
 Oh, I concede, he rarely gained a prize :
 That's quite another matter ! cause for that !
 Still, when 'twas got by Ions, Iophons,
 Off he would pace confoundedly superb,
 Supreme, no smile at movement on his mouth
 Till Sokrates winked, whispered : out it broke !

And Aristullos jotted down the jest,
 While Iophons or Ions, bay on brow,
 Looked queerly, and the foreigners—like
 you—

Asked o'er the border with a puzzled smile
 —' And so, you value Ions, Iophons, Euphorions ! How about Euripides ?' (Eh, brave bard's-champion ? Does the anger boil ?

Keep within bounds a moment,—eye and lip
 Shall loose their doom on me, their fiery worst !
 What strangers ? Archelaos heads the file !
 He sympathizes, he concerns himself,

And incidentally drop word of weight
On justice, righteousness, so turn aside
The audience from attacking Sicily!—
The more that Choros, after he recounts
How Phrixos rode the ram, the far-famed Fleece,

Shall add—at last fall of grave dancing-foot—
'Aggression never yet was helped by Zeus!'
That helps or hinders Alkibiades?
As well expect, should Pheidias carve Zeus' self
And set him up, some half a mile away,
His frown would frighten sparrows from your field!

Eagles may recognize their lord, belike,
But as for vulgar sparrows,—change the god,
And plant some big Priapos with a pole!
I wield the Comic weapon rather—hate!
Hate! honest, earnest and directest hate—
Warfare wherein I close with enemy,
Call him one name and fifty epithets,
Remind you his great-grandfather sold bran,
Describe the new exomion, sleeveless coat
He knocked me down last night and robbed me of,

Protest he voted for a tax on air!
And all this hate—if I write Comedy—
Finds tolerance, most like—applause, perhaps True veneration; for I praise the god
Present in person of his minister,
And pay—the wilder my extravagance—
The more appropriate worship to the Power
Adulterous, night-roaming, and the rest:
Otherwise,—that originative force
Of nature, impulse stirring death to life,
Which, underlying law, seems lawlessness,
Yet is the outbreak which, ere order be,
Must thrill creation through, warm stocks and stones,
Phales Iacchos.

“Comedy for me!

Why not for you, my Tragic masters? Sneaks
Whose art is mere desertion of a trust!
Such weapons lay to hand, the ready club,
The clay-ball, on the ground a stone to snatch,—
Arms fit to bruise the boar's neck, break the chine

O' the wolf,—and you must impiously—despise?

No, I'll say, furtively let fall that trust Consigned you! 'Twas not 'take or leave
alone,'

But 'take and, wielding, recognize your god
In his prime attributes!' And though full soon
You sneaked, subsided into poetry,
Nor met your due reward, still,—heroize
And speechify and sing-song and forego
Far as you may your function,—still its pact
Endures, one piece of early homage still Exacted of you; after your three bouts
At hoitytoity, great men with long words,
And so forth,—at the end, must tack itself
The genuine sample, the Satyric Play,
Concession, with its wood-boys' fun and freak,
To the true taste of the mere multitude.

Yet, thereagain! What does your Still-at-itch,
Always-the-innovator? Shrugs and shirks!
Out of his fifty Trilogies, some five
Are somehow suited: Satyrs dance and sing,
Try merriment, a grimly prank or two,
Sour joke squeezed through pursed lips and teeth on edge,

Then quick on top of toe to pastoral sport,
Goat-tending and sheep-herding, cheese and cream,

Soft grass and silver rillets, country-fare—
When throats were promised Thasian! Five such feats,—

Then frankly off he threw the yoke: next Droll,

Next festive drama, covenanted fun,
Decent reversion to indecency,
Proved—your 'Alkestis'! There's quite fun
enough,

Herakles drunk! From out fate's blackening wave

Calamitous, just zigzags some shot star,
Poor promise of faint joy, and turns the laugh
On dupes whose fears and tears were all in waste!

“For which sufficient reasons, in truth's name,
I closed with whom you count the Meaner
Muse,

Classed me with Comic Poets who should weld

Dark with bright metal, show their blade may keep

Its adamantine birthright though a-blaze
With poetry, the gold, and wit, the gem,
And strike mere gold, unstiffened out by steel,
Or gem, no iron joints its strength around,
From hand of—posturer, not combatant!

“Such was my purpose: it succeeds, I say!
Have not we beaten Kallikratidas,
Not humbled Sparté? Peace awaits our word,
Spite of Theramenes, and fools his like.
Since my previsions,—warranted too well
By the long war now waged and worn to end—
Had spared such heritage of misery,
My after-counsels scarce need fear repulse.
Athenai, taught prosperity has wings,
Cages the glad recapture. Demos, see,
From folly's premature decrepitude
Boiled young again, emerges from the stew
Of twenty-five years' trouble, sits and sways,
One brilliance and one balsam,—sways and sits
Monarch of Hellas! ay and, sage again,
No longer jeopardizes chieftainship,
No longer loves the brutish demagogue
Appointed by a bestial multitude
But seeks out sound advisers. Who are they?
Ourselves, of parentage proved wise and good!
To such may hap strains thwarting quality,
(As where shall want its flaw mere human stuff?)

Still, the right grain is proper to right race;
What's contrary, call curious accident!
Hold by the usual! Orchard-grafted tree,
Not wilding, race-horse-sired, not rouncey-
born,

Aristocrat, no sausage-selling snob!
Nay, why not Alkibiades, come back
Filled by the Genius, freed of petulance, Frailty,—mere youthfulness that's all at fault,—

Advanced to Perikles and something more?
—Being at least our duly born and bred,— Curse on what chaunoproct¹ first gained his ear

And got his . . . well, once true man in right place,

Our commonalty soon content themselves
With doing just what they are born to do,
Eat, drink, make merry, mind their own affairs

And leave state-business to the larger brain.
I do not stickle for their punishment;
But certain culprits have a cloak to twitch,
A purse to pay the piper: flog, say I,
Your fine fantastics, paragons of parts,
Who choose to play the important! Far from side

With us, their natural supports, allies,—
And, best by brain, help who are best by birth

To fortify each weak point in the wall
Built broad and wide and deep for permanence

Between what's high and low, what's rare and vile,—

They cast their lot perversely in with low
And vile, lay flat the barrier, lift the mob
To dizzy heights where Privilege stood firm.

And then, simplicity become conceit,—
Woman, slave, common soldier, artisan, Crazy with new-found worth, new-fangled claims,—

These must be taught next how to use their heads

And hands in driving man's right to mob's rule!

What fellows thus inflame the multitude?
Your Sokrates, still crying 'Understand!'
Your Aristullos,—'Argue!' Last and worst,
Should, by good fortune, mob still hesitate, Remember there's degree in heaven and
earth,

Cry 'Aischulos enjoined us fear the gods,
And Sophokles advised respect the kings!'
Why, your Euripides informs them—'Gods?
They are not! Kings? They are, but . . .
do not I,

In Suppliants, make my Theseus,—yours, no
more,—

Fire up at insult of who styles him King?
Play off that Herald, I despise the most,
As patronizing kings' prerogative
Against a Theseus proud to dare no step
Till he consult the people?'

"Such as these—
 Ah, you expect I am for strangling straight?
 Nowise, Balaustion! All my roundabout
 Ends at beginning, with my own defence.
 I dose each culprit just with—Comedy.
 Let each be doctored in exact the mode Himself prescribes: by words, the word-monger—
 My words to his words,—my lies, if you like,
 To his lies. Sokrates I nickname thief,
 Quack, necromancer; Aristullos,—say,
 Male Kirké who bewitches and bewrays
 And changes folk to swine; Euripides,—
 Well, I acknowledge! Every word is false, Looked close at; but stand distant and stare
 through,
 All's absolute indubitable truth
 Behind lies, truth which only lies declare!
 For come, concede me truth's in thing not
 word,
 Meaning not manner! Love smiles 'rogue'
 and 'wretch'
 When 'sweet' and 'dear' seem vapid: Hate adopts
 Love's 'sweet' and 'dear' when 'rogue'
 and 'wretch' fall flat:
 Love, Hate—are truths, then, each, in sense not sound.
 Further: if Love, remaining Love, fell back
 On 'sweet' and 'dear,'—if Hate, though
 Hate the same,
 Dropped down to 'rogue' and 'wretch,'—
 each phrase were false.
 Good! and now grant I hate no matter whom
 With reason: I must therefore fight my foe,
 Finish the mischief which made enmity.
 How? By employing means to most hurt
 him
 Who much harmed me. What way did he do harm?
 Through word or deed? Through word?
 with word, wage war!
 Word with myself directly? As direct
 Reply shall follow: word to you, the wise,
 Whence indirectly came the harm to me?
 What wisdom I can muster waits on such.
 Word to the populace which, misconceived
 By ignorance and incapacity,

Ends in no such effect as follows cause
 When I, or you the wise, are reasoned with,
 So damages what I and you hold dear?
 In that event, I ply the populace
 With just such word as leavens their whole lump
 To the right ferment for my purpose. They Arbitrate properly between us both?
They weigh my answer with his argument,
 Match quip with quibble, wit with eloquence?
 All they attain to understand is—blank!
 Two adversaries differ: which is right
 And which is wrong, none takes on him to
 say,
 Since both are unintelligible. Pooh!
 Swear my foe's mother vended herbs she stole,
 They fall a-laughing! Add,—his household
 drudge
 Of all-work justifies that office well,
 Kisses the wife, composing him the play,—
 They grin at whom they gaped in wonderment.
 And go off—'Was he such a sorry scrub?
 This other seems to know! we praised too
 fast!'
 Why then, my lies have done the work of
 truth,
 Since 'scrub,' improper designation, means Exactly what the proper argument
 —Had such been comprehensible—proposed To proper audience—were I graced with such—
 Would properly result in; so your friend
 Gets an impartial verdict on his verse
 'The tongue swears, but the soul remains unsworn!'
 "There, my Balaustion! All is summed
 and said.
 No other cause of quarrel with yourself!
 Euripides and Aristophanes
 Differ: he needs must round our difference
 Into the mob's ear; with the mob I plead.
 You angrily start forward 'This to me?'
 No speck of this on you the thrice refined!
 Could parley be restricted to us two,
 My first of duties were to clear up doubt
 As to our true divergence each from each.

For one who conquered with 'Antigone,'
The right to undertake a squadron's charge,—
And needs the son's help now to finish plays,
Seeing his dotage calls for governance
And Iophon to share his property,—
Why, of all this, reported true, I breathe
Not one word—true or false, I like the man.
Sophokles lives and lets live: long live he!
Otherwise,—sharp the scourge and hard the blow!

“And what's my teaching but—accept the old,
Contest the strange! acknowledge work that's
done,
Misdoubt men who have still their work to do!
Religions, laws and customs, poetries,
Are old? So much achieved victorious truth!
Each work was product of a life-time, wrung
From each man by an adverse world: for
why?

He worked, destroying other older work
Which the world loved and so was loth to lose.
Whom the world beat in battle—dust and ash!
Who beat the world, left work in evidence,
And wears its crown till new men live new
lives,
And fight new fights, and triumph in their
turn.

I mean to show you on the stage: you'll see
My Just Judge only venture to decide
Between two suitors, which is god, which man,
By thrashing both of them as flesh can bear.
You shall agree,—whichever bellows first,
He's human; who holds longest out, divine:
That is the only equitable test.

Cruelty? Pray, who pricked them on to court
My thong's award? Must they needs dominate?

Then I—rebel. Their instinct grasps the new?

Mine bids retain the old: a fight must be,
And which is stronger the event will show.
O but the pain! Your proved divinity Still smarts all reddened? And the rightlier served!

Was not some man's-flesh in him, after all?
Do let us lack no frank acknowledgment

There's nature common to both gods and
men!

All of them—spirit? What so winced was clay.

Away pretence to some exclusive sphere
Cloud-nourishing a sole selected few Fume-fed with self-superiority!

I stand up for the common coarse-as-clay Existence,—stamp and ramp with heel and hoof

On solid vulgar life, you fools disown.

Make haste from your unreal eminence,
And measure lengths with me upon that
ground

Whence this mud-pellet sings and summons
you!

I know the soul, too, how the spark ascends
And how it drops apace and dies away.

I am your poet-peer, man thrice your match.
I too can lead an airy life when dead,
Fly like Kinesias when I'm cloudward bound;
But here, no death shall mix with life it mars.

“So, my old enemy who caused the fight,
Own I have beaten you, Euripides!
Or,—if your advocate would contravene,— Helphim, Balaustion! Use the rosy strength!
I have not done my utmost,—treated you
As I might Aristullos, mint-perfumed,—
Still, let the whole rage burst in brave attack!
Don't pay the poor ambiguous compliment
Of fearing any pearl-white knuckled fist
Will damage this broad buttress of a brow!
Fancy yourself my Aristonumos,
Ameipsias or Sannurion: punch and pound!
Three cuckoos who cry 'cuckoo'! much I
care!

They boil a stone! Neblaretai! Rattai!”

Cannot your task have end here, Euthukles?
Day by day glides our galley on its path:
Still sunrise and still sunset, Rhodes half
reached,

And still, my patient scribe! no sunset's peace
Descends more punctual than that brow's incline

O'er tablets which your serviceable hand

Prepares to trace. Why treasure up, forsooth,
 These relics of a night that make me rich,
 But, half-remembered merely, leave so poor
 Each stranger to Athenai and her past?
 For—how remembered! As some greedy hind
 Persuades a honeycomb, beyond the due,
 To yield its hoarding,—heedless what alloy
 Of the poor bee's own substance taints the
 gold
 Which, unforced, yields few drops, but purity,—
 So would you fain relieve of load this brain,
 Though the hived thoughts must bring away,
 with strength,
 What words and weakness, strength's receptacle—
 Wax from the store! Yet,—aching soothed
 away,—
 Accept the compound! No suspected scent
 But proves some rose was rifled, though its ghost
 Scarce lingers with what promised musk and myrrh.
 No need of farther squeezing. What remains
 Can only be Balaustion, just her speech.
 Ah, but—because speech serves a purpose
 still!—

He ended with that flourish. I replied,

Fancy myself your Aristonumos?
 Advise me, rather, to remain myself,
 Balaustion,—mindful what mere mouse confronts
 The forest-monarch Aristophanes!
 I who, a woman, claim no quality
 Beside the love of all things loveable
 Created by a power pre-eminent
 In knowledge, as in love I stand perchance, —You, the consummately-creative! How Should I, then, dare deny submissive trust
 To any process aiming at result
 Such as you say your songs are pregnant
 with?
 Result, all judge: means, let none scrutinize
 Save those aware how glory best is gained
 By daring means to end, ashamed of shame,

Constant in faith that only good works good,
 While evil yields no fruit but impotence!
 Graced with such plain good, I accept the means.

Nay, if result itself in turn become Means,—who shall say?—to ends still loftier
 yet,—

Though still the good prove hard to understand,

The bad still seemingly predominate,—
 Never may I forget which order bears

The burden, toils to win the great reward,
 And finds, in failure, the grave punishment,
 So, meantime, claims of me a faith I yield!

Moreover, a mere woman, I recoil
 From what may prove man's-work permissible,

Imperative. Rough strokes surprise: what
 then?

Some lusty armsweep needs must cause the crash

Of thorn and bramble, ere those shrubs,
 those flowers,

We fain would have earth yield exclusively,
 Are sown, matured and garlanded for boys
 And girls, who know not how the growth was gained.

Finally, am I not a foreigner?

No born and bred Athenian,—isled about,
 I scarce can drink, like you, at every breath,
 Just some particular doctrine which may best Explain the strange thing I revolt against—

How—by involvement, who may extricate?—
 Religion perks up through impiety,
 Law leers with licence, folly wise-like frowns,
 The seemly lurks inside the abominable.

But opposites,—each neutralizes each Haply by mixture: what should promise
 death,

May haply give the good ingredient force,
 Disperse in fume the antagonistic ill.

This institution, therefore,—Comedy,—

By origin, a rite,—by exercise,
 Proved an achievement tasking poet's power
 To utmost, eking legislation out

Beyond the legislator's faculty,
 Playing the censor where the moralist
 Declines his function, far too dignified

For dealing with minute absurdities :
 By efficacy,—virtue's guard, the scourge
 Of vice, each folly's fly-flap, arm in aid
 Of all that's righteous, customary, sound
 And wholesome ; sanctioned therefore,— better say,
 Prescribed for fit acceptance of this age
 By, not alone the long recorded roll
 Of earlier triumphs but, success to-day—
 (The multitude as prompt recipient still
 Of good gay teaching from that monitor
 They crowned this morning—Aristophanes—
 As when Sousarion's car first traversed street)—
 This product of Athenai—I dispute,
 Impugn ? There's just one only circumstance Explains that ! I, poor critic, see, hear, feel ;
 But eyes, ears, senses prove me—foreigner !
 Who shall gainsay that the raw new-come
 guest
 Blames oft, too sensitive ? On every side
 Of—larger than your stage—life's spectacle,
 Convention here permits and there forbids
 Impulse and action, nor alleges more Than some mysterious " So do all, and so Does no one : " which the hasty stranger blames
 Because, who bends the head unquestioning, Transgresses, turns to wrong what else were
 right,
 By failure of a reference to law
 Beyond convention ; blames unjustly, too—
 As if, through that defect, all gained were lost
 And slave-brand set on brow indelibly ;—
 Blames unobservant or experienceless
 That men, like trees, if stout and sound and sane,
 Show stem no more affected at the root
 By bough's exceptional submissive dip
 Of leaf and bell, light danced at end of spray
 To windy fitfulness in wayward sport—
 No more lie prostrate—than low files of flower
 Which, when the blast goes by, unruffled raise
 Each head again o'er ruder meadow-wreck
 Of thorn and thistle that refractory
 Demurred to cower at passing wind's caprice.
 Why shall not guest extend like charity,
 Conceive how,—even when astounded most
 That natives seem to acquiesce in muck

Changed by prescription, they affirm, to
 gold,—
 Such may still bring to test, still bear away
 Safely and surely much of good and true
 Though latent ore, themselves unspecked, unspoiled ?
 Fresh bathed i' the icebrook, any hand may
 pass
 A placid moment through the lamp's fierce
 flame :
 And who has read your Lemnians seen The Hours,
 Heard Female-Playhouse-seat-Preoccupants,
 May feel no worse effect than, once a year,
 Those who leave decent vesture, dress in rags
 And play the mendicant, conform thereby
 To country's rite, and then, no beggar-taint
 Retained, don vesture due next morrow-day.
 What if I share the stranger's weakness then ?
 Well, could I also show his strength, his sense
 Untutored, ay !—but then untampered with !

 I fancy, though the world seems old enough,
 Though Hellas be the sole unbarbarous land,
 Years may conduct to such extreme of age,
 And outside Hellas so isles new may lurk,
 That haply,—when and where remain a
 dream !—
 In fresh days when no Hellas fills the world,
 In novel lands as strange where, all the same,
 Their men and women yet behold, as we,
 Blue heaven, black earth, and love, hate, hope and fear,
 Over again, unhelped by Attiké—
 Haply some philanthropic god steers bark,
 Gift-laden, to the lonely ignorance
 Islanded, say, where mist and snow mass hard
 To metal—ay, those Kassiterides !
 Then asks : " Ye apprehend the human form.
 What of this statue, made to Pheidias' mind,
 This picture, as it pleased our Zeuxis paint ?
 Ye too feel truth, love beauty : judge of these ! "
 Such strangers may judge feebly, stranger-like :
 " Each hair too indistinct—for, see our own !
 Hands, not skin-coloured as these hands we
 have,
 And lo, the want of due decorum here !
 A citizen, arrayed in civic garb,

Before new educators stood reproved,
Or foreign legates blushed, excepted to !
Where did the helpful rite pretend its rise ?
Did it break forth, as gifts divine are wont,
Plainly authentic, incontestably
Adequate to the helpful ordinance ?
Founts, dowered with virtue, pulse out pure from source ;

'Tis there we taste the god's benign intent :
Not when,—fatigued away by journey, foul
With brutish trampling,—crystal sinks to slime,

And lymph forgets the first salubriousness.
Sprang Comedy to light thus crystal-pure ?
"Nowise !" yourself protest with vehemence ;
"Gross, bestial, did the clowns' diversion
break ;

Every successor paddled in the slush ;
Nay, my contemporaries one and all Gay played the mudlark till I joined their game ;

Then was I first to change buffoonery
For wit, and stupid filth for cleanly sense,
Transforming pointless joke to purpose fine,
Transfusing rude enforcement of home-law—
'Drop knave's-tricks, deal more neighbour-like, ye boors !'—

With such new glory of poetic breath
As, lifting application far past use
O' the present, launched it o'er men's lowly
heads

To future time, when high and low alike
Are dead and done with, while my airy power
Flies disengaged, as vapour from what stuff
It—say not, dwelt in—fitlier, dallied with
To forward work, which done,—deliverance
brave,—

It soars away, and mud subsides to dust.
Say then, myself invented Comedy !"

So mouths full many a famed Parabasis !
Agreed ! No more, then, of prescriptive use,
Authorization by antiquity,
For what offends our judgment ! 'Tis your
work,

Performed your way : not work delivered you
Intact, intact producible in turn.
Everywhere have you altered old to new—

Your will, your warrant : therefore, work must stand

Or stumble by intrinsic worth. What worth ?
Its aim and object ! Peace you advocate,
And war would fain abolish from the land :

Support religion, lash irreverence,
Yet laughingly administer rebuke
To superstitious folly,—equal fault !

While innovating rashness, lust of change,
New laws, new habits, manners, men and
things,

Make your main quarry,—"oldest" meaning
"best."

You check the fretful litigation-itch,
Withstand mob-rule, expose mob-flattery,
Punish mob-favourites ; most of all press hard
On sophists who assist the demagogue,
And poets their accomplices in crime.

Such your main quarry : by the way, you strike

Ignobler game, mere miscreants, snob or
scamp,

Cowardly, gluttonous, effeminate :
Still with a bolt to spare when dramatist
Proves haply unproficient in his art.

Such aims—alone, no matter for the means—
Declare the unexampled excellence
Of their first author—Aristophanes !

Whereat—Euripides, oh, not thyself—
Augustlier than the need !—thy century
Of subjects dreamed and dared and done,
before

"Banqueters" gave dark earth enlightenment,
Or "Babylonians" played Prometheus here,—
These let me summon to defend thy cause !
Lo, as indignantly took life and shape
Labour by labour, all of Herakles,— Palpably fronting some o'erbold pretence
"Eurusheus slew the monsters, purged the
world !"

So shall each poem pass you and imprint
Shame on the strange assurance. You praised
Peace ?

Sing him full-face, Kresphontes ! "Peace"
the theme ?

"Peace, in whom depths of wealth lie,—of the blest

Immortals beauteousest,—
 Come ! for the heart within me dies away,
 So long dost thou delay !
 O I have feared lest old age, much annoy,
 Conquer me, quite outstrip the tardy joy,
 Thy gracious triumph-season I would see,
 The song, the dance, the sport, profuse of crowns to be
 But come ! for my sake, goddess great and
 dear,
 Come to the city here !
 Hateful Sediton drive thou from our homes,
 With Her who madly roams
 Rejoicing in the steel against the life
 That's whetted—banish Strife !”

Shall I proceed ? No need of next and next !
 That were too easy, play so presses play,
 Trooping tumultuous, each with instance apt,
 Each eager to confute the idle boast.
 What virtue but stands forth panegyri-zed,
 What vice, unburned by stigma, in the books
 Which bettered Hellas,—beyond graven gold
 Or gem-indenture, sung by Phoibos' self
 And saved in Kunthia's mountain treasure-
 house—
 Ere you, man, moralist, were youth or boy ?
 —Not praise which, in the proffer, mocks the praised
 By sly admixture of the blameworthy
 And enforced coupling of base fellowship,—
 Not blame which gloats the while it frowning laughs,
 “Allow one glance on horrors—laughable !”—
 This man's entire of heart and soul, discharged
 Its love or hate, each unalloyed by each,
 On objects worthy either ; earnestness,
 Attribute him, and power ! but novelty ?
 Nor his nor yours a doctrine—all the world's !
 What man of full-grown sense and sanity Holds other than the truth, — wide Hellas
 through,—
 Though truth, he acts, discredit truth he holds ?
 What imbecile has dared to formulate “Love war, hate peace, become a litigant !”—
 And so preach on, reverse each rule of right
 Because he quarrels, combats, goes to law ?
 No, for his comment runs, with smile or sigh

According to heart's temper, “Peace were
 best,
 Except occasions when we put aside
 Peace, and bid all the blessings in her gift
 Quick join the crows, for sake of Marathon !” “Nay,” you reply ; for one, whose mind withstands
 His heart, and, loving peace, for conscience'
 sake
 Wants war,—you find a crowd of hypocrites
 Whose conscience means ambition, grudge and greed.
 On such, reproof, sonorous doctrine, melts
 Distilled like universal but thin dew
 Which all too sparsely covers country : dear,
 No doubt, to universal crop and clown,
 Still, each bedewed keeps his own head-gear dry
 With upthrust skiadeion, shakes adroit
 The droppings to his neighbour. No ! collect
 All of the moisture, leave unhurt the heads
 Which nowise need a washing, save and store
 And dash the whole condensed to one fierce spout
 On some one evildoer, sheltered close,—
 The fool supposed,—till you beat guard away,
 And showed your audience, not that war was
 wrong,
 But Lamachos absurd,—case, crests and all,—
 Not that democracy was blind of choice,
 But Kleon and Huperbolos were shams :
 Not superstition vile, but Nikias crazed,—
 The concrete for the abstract ; that's the way !
 What matters Choros crying “Hence, im-
 pure !”
 You cried “Ariphrades does thus and thus !”
 Now, earnestness seems never earnest more
 Than when it dons for garb—indifference ;
 So there's much laughing : but, compensative,
 When frowning follows laughter, then indeed
 Scout innuendo, sarcasm, irony !—
 Wit's polished warfare glancing at first graze
 From off hard headpiece, coarsely-coated brain
 O' the commonalty—whom, unless you prick
 To purpose, what avails that finer pates Succumb to simple scratching ? Those—not these—

'Tis Multitude, which, moved, fines Lamachos,
Banishes Kleon and burns Sokrates,
House over head, or, better, poisons him.
Therefore in dealing with King Multitude, Club-drub the callous numskulls! In and in Beat this essential consequential fact
That here they have a hater of the three,
Who hates in word, phrase, nickname, epithet
And illustration, beyond doubt at all!
And similarly, would you win assent
To—Peace, suppose? You tickle the tough hide

With good plain pleasure her concomitant—
And, past mistake again, exhibit Peace—
Peace, vintager and festive, cheesecake-time,
Hare-slice-and-peasoup-season, household
joy:

Theoria's¹ beautiful belongings match
Opora's¹ lavish condescendings: brief,
Since here the people are to judge, you press
Such argument as people understand:
If with exaggeration—what care you?

Have I misunderstood you in the main?
No! then must answer be, such argument,
Such policy, no matter what good love
Or hate it help, in practice proves absurd,
Useless and null: henceforward intercepts
Sober effective blow at what you blame,
And renders nugatory rightful praise
Of thing or person. The coarse brush has daubed—

What room for the fine limner's pencil-mark?
Blame? You curse, rather, till who blames must blush—

Lean to apology or praise, more like!
Does garment, simpered o'er as white, prove grey?

“Black, blacker than Acharnian charcoal,
black

Beyond Kimmerian, Stugian blackness black,”
You bawl, till men sigh “nearer snowiness!”
What follows? What one faint-rewarding fall
Of foe belaboured ne'er so lustily?

Laugh Lamachos from out the people's heart?
He died, commanding, “hero,” say yourself!

Gibe Nikias into privacy?—nay, shake
Kleon a little from his arrogance
By cutting him to shoe-sole-shreds? I think,
He ruled his life long and, when time was ripe,
Died fighting for amusement,—good tough
hide!

Sokrates still goes up and down the streets,
And Aristullos puts his speech in book,
When both should be abolished long ago.
Nay, wretchedest of rags, Aripgrades—
You have been fouling that redoubtable
Harp-player, twenty years, with what effect?
Still he strums on, strums ever cheerily,
And earns his wage,—“Who minds a joke?”
men say.

No, friend! The statues stand—mudstained at most—

Titan or pygmy: what achieves their fall
Will be, long after mud is flung and spent,
Some clear thin spirit-thrust of lightning—
truth!

Your praise, then—honey-smearing helps
your friend,
More than blame's ordure-smirch hurts foe,
perhaps?

Peace, now, misunderstood, ne'er prized
enough,

You have interpreted to ignorance
Till ignorance opes eye, bat-blind before,
And for the first time knows Peace means the power

On maw of pan-cake, cheese-cake, barley-cake,
No stop nor stint to stuffing. While, in camp,
Who fights chews rancid tunny, onions raw,
Peace sits at cosy feast with lamp and fire,
Complaisant smooth-sleeked flute-girls giggling gay.

How thick and fast the snow falls, freezing
War

Who shrugs, campaigns it, and may break a shin

Or twist an ankle! come, who hesitates
To give Peace, over War, the preference?
Ah, friend—had this indubitable fact
Haply occurred to poor Leonidas,
How had he turned tail on Thermopulai!
It cannot be that even his few wits

Your fancy-fleerings—who would stoop so low?

Your own adherents whisper,—when disgust
Too menacingly thrills Logeion through
At—Perikles invents this present war
Because men robbed his mistress of three maids—

Or—Sokrates wants burning, house o'er
head,—

“What, so obtuse, not read between the lines?
Our poet means no mischief! All should
know—

Ribaldry here implies a compliment!
He deals with things, not men,—his men are things—

Each represents a class, plays figure-head
And names the ship: no meaner than the first
Would serve; he styles a trireme ‘Sokrates’—
Fears ‘Sokrates’ may prove unseaworthy (That’s merely—‘Sophists are the bane of boys’)

Rat-riddled (‘they are capable of theft’),
Rotten or whatsoe'er shows ship-disease,
(‘They war with gods and worship whirligig’).
You never took the joke for earnest? scarce
Supposed mere figure-head meant entire ship,
And Sokrates—the whole fraternity?”

This then is Comedy, our sacred song,
Censor of vice, and virtue's guard as sure:
Manners-instructing, morals' stop-estrays,
Which, born a twin with public liberty,
Thrives with its welfare, dwindles with its wane!

Liberty? what so exquisitely framed
And fitted to suck dry its life of life
To last faint fibre?—since that life is truth.
You who profess your indignation swells
At sophistry, when specious words confuse Deeds right and wrong, distinct before, you
say—

(Though all that's done is—dare veracity,
Show that the true conception of each deed
Affirmed, in vulgar parlance, “wrong” or “right,”

Proves to be neither, as the hasty hold,
But, change your side, shoots light, where dark alone

Was apprehended by the vulgar sense)

You who put sophistry to shame, and shout
“There's but a single side to man and thing;
A side so much more big than thing or man
Possibly can be, that—believe 'tis true?

Such were too marvellous simplicity!”—

Confess, those sophists whom yourself depict, (—Abide by your own painting!) what they teach,

They wish at least their pupil to believe,
And, what believe, to practise! Did you wish Hellas should haste, as taught, with torch in
hand,

And fire the horrid Speculation-shop?
Straight the shop's master rose and showed the mob

What man was your so monstrous Sokrates;
Himself received amusement, why not they?
Just as did Kleon first play magistrate
And bid you put your birth in evidence—
Since no unbadged buffoon is licensed here
To shame us all when foreign guests may mock—

Then,—birth established, fooling licensed
you,—

He, duty done, resumed mere auditor,
Laughed with the loudest at his Lamia-shape,
Kukloboros-roaring, and the camel-rest.

Nay, Aristullos,—once your volley spent
On the male-Kirké and her swinish crew,—
PLATON,—so others call the youth we love,—
Sends your performance to the curious king—

“Do you desire to know Athenai's knack
At turning seriousness to pleasantry?

Read this! One Aristullos means myself.
The author is indeed a merry grig!”

Nay, it would seem as if yourself were bent
On laying down the law “Tell lies I must—Aforethought and of purpose, no mistake!”

When forth yourself step, tell us from the stage
“Here you behold the King of Comedy—Me, who, the first, have purged my every piece

From each and all my predecessors' filth,
Abjured those satyr-adjuncts sewn to bid
The boys laugh, satyr-jokes whereof not one Least sample but would make my hair turn grey

Beyond a twelvemonth's ravage! I renounce
Mountebank-claptrap, such as firework-fizz
And torchflare, or else nuts and barleycorns
Scattered among the crowd, to scramble for
And stop their mouths with; no such stuff shames me!

Who, — what's more serious, — know both when to strike

And when to stay my hand: once dead, my foe,
Why, done, my fighting! / attack a corpse?
I spare the corpse-like even! punish age?
I pity from my soul that sad effete

Toothless old mumbler called Kratinos! once
My rival, — now, alack, the dotard slinks
Ragged and hungry to what hole's his home;
Ay, slinks thro' byways where no passenger Flings him a bone to pick. You formerly Adored the Muses' darling: dotard now,
Why, he may starve! O mob most mutable!"
So you harangued in person; while, — to point Precisely out, these were but lies you launched, —

Prompt, a play followed primed with satyr-frisks,

No spice spared of the stomach-turning stew,
Full-fraught with torch-display, and barley-
throw,

And Kleon, dead enough, bedaubed afresh;
While daft Kratinos — home to hole trudged he,
Wrung dry his wit to the last vinous dregs,
Decanted them to "Bottle," — beat, next
year, —

"Bottle" and dregs — your best of "Clouds" and dew!

Where, Comic King, may keenest eye detect
Improvement on your predecessors' work
Except in lying more audaciously?

Why — genius! That's the grandeur, that's the gold —

That's you — superlatively true to touch —
Gold, leaf or lump — gold, anyhow the mass
Takes manufacture and proves Pallas' casque
Or, at your choice, simply a cask to keep Corruption from decay. Your rivals' hoard
May ooze forth, lacking such preservative:
Yours cannot — gold plays guardian far too
well!

Genius, I call you: dross, your rivals share;
Ay, share and share alike, too! says the world,
However you pretend supremacy

In aught beside that gold, your very own.

Satire? "Kratinos for our satirist!"

The world cries. Elegance? "Who elegant
As Eupolis?" resounds as noisily.

Artistic fancy? Choros-creatures quaint?
Mages invented "Birds" and "Frogs"
enough,

Archippos punned, Hegemon parodied,
To heart's content, before you stepped on stage.

Moral invective? Eupolis exposed

"That prating beggar, he who stole the cup,"
Before your "Clouds" rained grime on Sok-rates;

Nay, what beat "Clouds" but "Konnos," muck for mud?

Courage? How long before, well-masked,
you poured

Abuse on Eukrates and Lusikles,

Did Telekleides and Hermippos pelt

Their Perikles and Kumon? standing forth, Bareheaded, not safe crouched behind a
name, —

Philonides or else Kallistratos,

Put forth, when danger threatened, — mask
for face,

To bear the brunt, — if blame fell, take the
blame, —

If praise . . . why, frank laughed Aristo-phanes

"They write such rare stuff? No, I promise
you!"

Rather, I see all true improvements, made

Or making, go against you — tooth and nail

Contended with; 'tis still Moruchides,

'Tis Euthumenes, Surakosios, nay,

Argurrhios and Kinesias, — common sense

And publicshame, these only cleanse your sty!

Coerced, prohibited, — you grin and bear,

And, soon as may be, hug to heart again

The banished nastiness too dear to drop!

Krates could teach and practise festive song

Yet scorn scurrility; as gay and good,

Pherekrates could follow. Who loosed hold,

Must let fall rose-wreath, stoop to muck once
more?

Did your particular self advance in aught,
 Task the sad genius—steady slave the while—
 To further—say, the patriotic aim?
 No, there's deterioration manifest
 Year by year, play by play! survey them all,
 From that boy's-triumph when "Acharnes"
 dawned,

To "Thesmophoriazousai,"—this man's-
 shame!

There, truly, patriot zeal so prominent Allowed friends' plea perhaps: the baser stuff
 Was but the nobler spirit's vehicle.

Who would imprison, unvolatilize
 A violet's perfume, blends with fatty oils
 Essence too fugitive in flower alone;
 So, calling unguent—violet, call the play—
 Obscenity impregnated with "Peace"!
 But here's the boy grown bald, and here's the play

With twenty years' experience: where's one spice

Of odour in the hog's-lard? what pretends
 To aught except a grease-pot's quality?
 Friend, sophist-hating! know,—worst soph-istry

Is when man's own soul plays its own self false,
 Reasons a vice into a virtue, pleads
 "I detail sin to shame its author"—not
 "I shame Aiphrades for sin's display"!
 "I show Opora to commend Sweet Home"—
 Not "I show Bacchis for the striplings' sake!"

Yet all the same.—O genius and O gold—
 Had genius ne'er diverted gold from use
 Worthy the temple, to do copper's work
 And coat a swine's trough—which abundantly
 Might furnish Phoibos' tripod, Pallas' throne!
 Had you, I dream, discarding all the base,
 The brutish, spurned alone convention's watch
 And ward against invading decency
 Disguised as license, law in lawlessness,
 And so, re-ordinating outworn rule,
 Made Comedy and Tragedy combine,
 Prove some new Both-yet-neither, all one bard,

Euripides with Aristophanes

Coöperant! this, reproducing Now
 As that gave Then existence: Life to-day,

This, as that other—Life dead long ago!
 The mob decrees such feat no crown, per-
 chance,

But—why call crowning the reward of quest?
 Tell him, my other poet,—where thou walk'st
 Some rarer world than e'er Ilissos washed!

But dream goes idly in the air. To earth!
 Earth's question just amounts to—which succeeds,

Which fails of two life-long antagonists?
 Suppose my charges all mistake! assume Your end, despite ambiguous means, the
 best—

The only! you and he, a patriot-pair,
 Have striven alike for one result—say, Peace!
 You spoke your best straight to the arbiters—
 Our people: have you made them end this war
 By dint of laughter and abuse and lies
 And postures of Opora? Sadly—No!

This war, despite your twenty-five years' work,
 May yet endure until Athenai falls,
 And freedom falls with her. So much for you!
 Now, the antagonist Euripides—
 Has he succeeded better? Who shall say?
 He spoke quite o'er the heads of Kleon's crowd
 To a dim future, and if there he fail,
 Why, you are fellows in adversity.

But that's unlike the fate of wise words launched
 By music on their voyage. Hail, Depart, Arrive, Glad Welcome! Not my single wish—

Yours also wafts the white sail on its way,
 Your nature too is kingly. All beside
 I call pretension—no true potentate,
 Whatever intermediary be crowned,
 Zeus or Poseidon, where the vulgar sky
 Lacks not Triballos¹ to complete the group.
 I recognize,—behind such phantom-crew,—
 Necessity, Creation, Poet's Power,
 Else never had I dared approach, appeal
 To poetry, power, Aristophanes!
 But I trust truth's inherent kingliness,
 Trust who, by reason of much truth, shall reign
 More or less royally—may prayer but push

Of Heré, or because fate willed it thus.
 The other labours—why, he toiled them
 through ;
 But for this last one—down by Tainaros,
 Its mouth, to Haides' realm descended he
 To drag into the light the three-shaped hound
 Of Hell : whence Herakles returns no more.
 Now, there's an old-world tale, Kadmeians
 have,
 How Dirké's husband was a Lukos once,
 Holding the seven-towered city here in sway
 Before they ruled the land, white-steeded
 pair,
 The twins Amphion, Zethos, born to Zeus.
 This Lukos' son,—named like his father too,
 No born Kadmeian but Euboia's gift,—
 Comes and kills Kreon, lords it o'er the land,
 Falling upon our town sedition-sick.
 To us, akin to Kreon, just that bond Becomes the worst of evils, seemingly ;
 For, since my son is in the earth's abysses,
 This man of valour, Lukos, lord and king,
 Seeks now to slay these sons of Herakles,
 And slay his wife as well,—by murder thus
 Thinking to stamp out murder,—slay too me,
 (If me 'tis fit you count among men still,— Useless old age) and all for fear lest these,
 Grown men one day, exact due punishment
 Of bloodshed and their mother's father's fate.
 I therefore, since he leaves me in these domes,
 The children's household guardian, — left,
 when earth's
 Dark dread he underwent, that son of mine,—
 I, with their mother, lest his boys should die,
 Sit at this altar of the saviour Zeus
 Which, glory of triumphant spear, he raised Conquering—my nobly-born !—the Minuai.
 Here do we guard our station, destitute
 Of all things, drink, food, raiment, on bare
 ground
 Couched side by side : sealed out of house and home
 Sit we in a resourcelessness of help.
 Our friends—why, some are no true friends,
 I see !
 The rest, that are true, want the means to aid.
 So operates in man adversity :

Whereof may never anybody—no,
 Though half of him should really wish me
 well,—
 Happen to taste ! a friend-test faultless, that !

MEGARA.

Old man, who erst didst raze the Taphian
 town,
 Illustriously, the army-leader, thou,
 Of speared Kadmeians—how gods play men
 false !
 I, now, missed nowise fortune in my sire,
 Who, for his wealth, was boasted mighty
 once,
 Having supreme rule,—for the love of which Leap the long lances forth at favoured breasts,—
 And having children too : and me he gave
 Thy son, his house with that of Herakles
 Uniting by the far-famed marriage-bed.
 And now these things are dead and flown
 away,
 While thou and I await our death, old man,
 These Herakleian boys too, whom—my chicks—
 I save beneath my wings like brooding bird.
 But one or other falls to questioning
 "O mother," cries he, "where in all the
 world
 Is father gone to? What's he doing? when Will he come back?" At fault through tender years,
 They seek their sire. For me, I put them
 off,
 Telling them stories ; at each creak of doors,
 All wonder "Does he come?"—and all a-foot
 Make for the fall before the parent knee.
 Now then, what hope, what method of escape
 Facilitatest thou?—for, thee, old man,
 I look to,—since we may not leave by stealth
 The limits of the land, and guards, more strong
 Than we, are at the outlets : nor in friends
 Remain to us the hopes of safety more.
 Therefore, whatever thy decision be,
 Impart it for the common good of all !
 Lest now should prove the proper time to die,
 Though, being weak, we spin it out and live.

AMPHITRUON.

Daughter, it scarce is easy, do one's best,
To blurt out counsel, things at such a pass.

MEGARA.

You want some sorrow more, or so love life?

AMPHITRUON.

I both enjoy life, and love hopes beside.

MEGARA.

And I ; but hope against hope—no, old man !

AMPHITRUON.

In these delayings of an ill lurks cure.

MEGARA.

But bitter is the meantime, and it bites.

AMPHITRUON.

O there may be a run before the wind
From out these present ills, for me and thee, Daughter, and yet may come my son, thy spouse !

But hush ! and from the children take away
Their founts a-flow with tears, and talk them
calm,

Steal them by stories—sad theft, all the same !
For, human troubles—they grow weary too ;
Neither the wind-blasts always have their
strength

Nor happy men keep happy to the end :
Since all things change—their natures part in twain ;

And that man's bravest, therefore, who hopes on,

Hopes ever : to despair is coward-like.

CHOROS.

These domes that overroof,
This long-used couch, I come to, having made
A staff my prop, that song may put to proof
The swan-like power, age-whitened,—poet's aid

Of sobbed-forth dirges—words that stand aloof
From action now : such am I—just a shade
With night for all its face, a mere night-
dream—

And words that tremble too : howe'er they seem,
Devoted words, I deem.

O, of a father ye unfathered ones,
O thou old man, and thou whose groaning stuns—

Unhappy mother—only us above,
Nor reaches him below in Haides' realm, thy
love !

—(Faint not too soon, urge forward foot and
limb

Way-weary, nor lose courage—as some horse
Yoked to the car whose weight recoils on him
Just at the rock-ridge that concludes his course !
Take by the hand, the peplos, anyone
Whose foothold fails him, printless and fir-
done !

Aged, assist along me aged too,
Who,—mate with thee in toils when life was
new,

And shields and spears first made acquaintanceship,—

Stood by thyself and proved no bastard-slip
Of fatherland when loftiest glory grew.)—

See now, how like the sire's
Each eyeball fiercely fires !

What though ill-fortune have not left his race ?
Neither is gone the grand paternal grace !
Hellas ! O what—what combatants, destroyed
In these, wilt thou one day seek—seek, and find all void !

Pause ! for I see the ruler of this land,
Lukos, now passing through the palace-gate.

LUKOS.

The Herakleian couple—father, wife—
If needs I must, I question : “must” forsooth ?
Being your master—all I please, I ask.

To what time do you seek to spin out life ?
What hope, what help see, so as not to die ?
Is it you trust the sire of these, that's sunk
In Haides, will return ? How past the pitch,
Suppose you have to die, you pile the woe—
Thou, casting, Hellas through, thy empty vaunts

As though Zeus helped thee to a god for son ;

And thou, that thou wast styled our best man's wife !

Where was the awful in his work wound up,
If he did quell and quench the marshy snake
Or the Nemean monster whom he snared
And—says, by throttlings of his arm, he slew?
With these do you outwrestle me? Such feats Shall save from death the sons of Herakles
Who got praise, being nought, for bravery
In wild-beast-battle, otherwise a blank?
No man to throw on left arm buckler's weight,
Not he, nor get in spear's reach! bow he bore—
True coward's-weapon: shoot first and then fly!

No bow-and-arrow proves a man is brave,
But who keeps rank,—stands, one unwinking
stare

As, ploughing up, the darts come,—brave is
he.

My action has no impudence, old man!
Providence, rather: for I own I slew
Kreon, this woman's sire, and have his seat.
Nowise I wish, then, to leave, these grown
up,
Avengers on me, payment for my deeds.

AMPHITRUON.

As to the part of Zeus in his own child,
Let Zeus defend that! As to mine, 'tis me
The care concerns to show by argument
The folly of this fellow,—Herakles,
Whom I stand up for! since to hear thee
styled—

Cowardly—that is unendurable.

First then, the infamous (for I account
Amongst the words denied to human speech, Timidity ascribed thee, Herakles!)
This I must put from thee, with gods in proof.
Zeus' thunder I appeal to, those four steeds
Whereof he also was the charioteer
When, having shot down the earth's Giantgrowth—

(Never shaft flew but found and fitted flank)
Triumph he sang in common with the gods.
The Kentaur-race, four footed insolence—
Go ask at Pholoé, vilest thou of kings,
Whom they would pick out and pronounce best man,

If not my son, "the seeming-brave," say'st
thou!

But Dirphus, thy Abantid mother-town,
Question her, and she would not praise,
I think!

For there's no spot, where having done some
good,

Thy country thou mightst call to witness
worth.

Now, that all-wise invention, archer's-gear,
Thou blamest: hear my teaching and grow
sage!

A man in armour is his armour's slave,
And, mixed with rank and file that want to run,

He dies because his neighbours have lost
heart.

Then, should he break his spear, no way
remains

Of warding death off,—gone that bodyguard,

His one and only; while, whatever folk
Have the true bow-hand,—here's the one main good,—

Though he have sent ten thousand shafts abroad,

Others remain wherewith the archer saves
His limbs and life, too,—stands afar and wards

Away from flesh the foe that vainly stares
Hurt by the viewless arrow, while himself
Offers no full front to those opposite,
But keeps in thorough cover: there's the
point

That's capital in combat—damage foe,
Yet keep a safe skin—foe not out of reach
As you are! Thus my words contrast with thine,

And such, in judging facts, our difference.
These children, now, why dost thou seek to slay?

What have they done thee? In a single point

I count thee wise—if, being base thyself,
Thou dread'st the progeny of nobleness.
Yet this bears hard upon us, all the same,
If we must die—because of fear in thee—
A death 'twere fit thou suffer at our hands,

And nobly drawn my breath at home in Thebes
Where thou exuldest!—city that's insane,
Sick through sedition and bad government,
Else never had she gained for master—thee!

MEGARA.

Old friends, I praise you: since a righteous wrath
For friend's sake well becomes a friend.
But no!

On our account in anger with your lord,
Suffer no injury! Hear my advice,
Amphitruon, if I seem to speak aright.
O yes, I love my children! how not love
What I brought forth, what toiled for? and
to die—

Sad I esteem too; still, the fated way
Who stiffens him against, that man I count
Poor creature; us, who are of other mood,
Since we must die, behoves us meet our death
Not burnt to cinders, giving foes the laugh—
To me, worse ill than dying, that! We owe
Our houses many a brave deed, now to pay.
Thee, indeed, gloriously men estimate
For spear-work, so that unendurable
Were it that thou shouldst die a death of shame.

And for my glorious husband, where wants he
A witness that he would not save his boys
If touched in their good fame thereby?
Since birth

Bears ill with baseness done for children's
sake,

My husband needs must be my pattern here.
See now thy hope—how much I count thereon!

Thou thinkest that thy son will come to light:
And, of the dead, who came from Haides
back?

But we with talk this man might mollify:
Never! Of all foes, fly the foolish one!
Wise, well-bred people, make concession to!
Sooner you meet respect by speaking soft.

Already it was in my mind—perchance
We might beg off these children's banish-
ment;

But even that is sad, involving them

In safety, ay—and piteous poverty!
Since the host's visage for the flying friend
Has, only one day, the sweet look, 'tis said,
Dare with us death, which waits thee, dared
or no!

We call on thine ancestral worth, old man!
For who outlabours what the gods appoint
Shows energy, but energy gone mad.
Since what must—none e'er makes what must not be.

CHOROS.

Had anyone, while yet my arms were strong,
Been scorning thee, he easily had ceased.
But we are nought, now; thine henceforth to see—
Amphitruon, how to push aside these fates!

AMPHITRUON.

Nor cowardice nor a desire of life
Stops me from dying: but I seek to save
My son his children. Vain! I set my heart,
It seems, upon impossibility.
See, it is ready for the sword, this throat
To pierce, divide, dash down from precipice!
But one grace grant us, king, we supplicate!
Slay me and this unhappy one before
The children, lest we see them—impious
sight!—

Gasping the soul forth, calling all the while
On mother and on father's father! Else,
Do as thy heart inclines thee! No resource Have we from death, and we resign ourselves.

MEGARA.

And I too supplicate: add grace to grace,
And, though but one man, doubly serve us
both!

Let me bestow adornment of the dead
Upon these children! Throw the palace
wide!

For now we are shut out. Thence these shall share
At least so much of wealth was once their sire's!

LUKOS.

These things shall be. Withdraw the bolts,
I bid
My servants! Enter and adorn yourselves!

I grudge no peploi ; but when these ye wind
About your bodies,—that adornment done,—
Then I shall come and give you to the grave.

MEGARA.

O children, follow this unhappy foot,
Your mother's, into your ancestral home,
Where others have the power, are lords in
truth,
Although the empty name is left us yet !

AMPHITRUON.

O Zeus, in vain I had thee marriage-mate,
In vain I called thee father of my child !
Thou wast less friendly far than thou didst
seem.

I, the mere man, o'ermatch in virtue thee
The mighty god : for I have not betrayed
The Herakleian children,—whereas thou
Hadst wit enough to come clandestinely
Into the chamber, take what no man gave,
Another's place ; and when it comes to help
Thy loved ones, there thou lackest wit indeed !
Thou art some stupid god or born unjust.

CHOROS.

Even a dirge, can Phoibos suit
In song to music jubilant
For all its sorrow : making shoot
His golden plectron o'er the lute,
Melodious ministrant.

And I, too, am of mind to raise,
Despite the imminence of doom,
A song of joy, outpour my praise
To him—what is it rumour says ?—
Whether—now buried in the ghostly gloom
Belowground,—he was child of Zeus indeed,
Or mere Amphitruon's mortal seed—
To him I weave the wreath of song, his labour's meed.

For, is my hero perished in the feat ?
The virtues of brave toils, in death complete,
These save the dead in song,—their glory-garland meet !

First, then, he made the wood
Of Zeus a solitude,
Slaying its lion-tenant ; and he spread

The tawniness behind—his yellow head Enmuffled by the brute's, backed by that grin of dread.

The mountain-roving savage Kentaur-race
He strewed with deadly bow about their
place,

Slaying with winged shafts : Peneios knew,
Beauteously-eddying, and the long tracts too
Of pasture trampled fruitless, and as well
Those desolated haunts Mount Pelion under,
And, grassy up to Homolé, each dell
Whence, having filled their hands with pine-tree plunder,

Horse-like was wont to prance from, and subdue

The land of Thessaly, that bestial crew.

The golden-headed spot-back'd stag he slew,
That robber of the rustics : glorified
Therewith the goddess who in hunter's pride
Slaughters the game along Oinoé's side.
And, yoked abreast, he brought the chariot-
breed

To pace submissive to the bit, each steed
That in the bloody cribs of Diomedé Champed and, unbridled, hurried down that gore

For grain, exultant the dread feast before—
Of man's flesh : hideous feeders they of yore !

All as he crossed the Hebros' silver-flow
Accomplished he such labour, toiling so
For Mukenaian tyrant ; ay, and more—
He crossed the Melian shore
And, by the sources of Amauros, shot
To death that strangers'-pest Kuknos, who dwelt in Amphanaia : not
Of fame for good to guest !

And next, to the melodious maids he came,
Inside the Hesperian court-yard : hand must aim

At plucking gold fruit from the appled leaves,
Now he had killed the dragon, backed like
flame,

Who guards the unapproachable he weaves
Himself all round, one spire about the same.
And into those sea-troughs of ocean dived
The hero, and for mortals calm contrived,

Whatever oars should follow in his wake.
And under heaven's mid-seat his hands thrust
he,

At home with Atlas : and, for valour's sake,
Held the gods up their star-faced mansionry.
Also, the rider-host of Amazons
About Maiotis many-streamed, he went
To conquer through the billowy Euxin once,
Having collected what an armament
Of friends from Hellas, all on conquest bent
Of that gold-garnished cloak, dread girdlechase !

So Hellas gained the girl's barbarian grace
And at Mukenai saves the trophy still—
Go wonder there, who will !

And the ten thousand-headed hound
Of many a murder, the Lernaian snake
He burned out, head by head, and cast
around
His darts a poison thence,—darts soon to slake

Their rage in that three-bodied herdsman's
gore
Of Erutheia. Many a running more
He made for triumph and felicity,
And, last of toils, to Haides, never dry
Of tears, he sailed : and there he, luckless,
ends

His life completely, nor returns again.
The house and home are desolate of friends,
And where the children's life-path leads them, plain

I see,—no step retraceable, no god
Availing, and no law to help the lost !
The oar of Charon marks their period,
Waits to end all. Thy hands, these roofs accost !—

To thee, though absent, look their uttermost !

But if in youth and strength I flourished still,
Still shook the spear in fight, did power match will

In these Kadmeian co-mates of my age,
They would,—and I,—when warfare was to
wage,

Stand by these children ; but I am bereft
Of youth now, lone of that good genius left !

But hist, desist ! for here come these,— Draped as the dead go, under and over,—
Children long since,—now hard to discover,—
Of the once so potent Herakles !
And the loved wife dragging, in one tether
About her feet, the boys together ;
And the hero's aged sire comes last !
Unhappy that I am ! Of tears which rise,—
How am I all unable to hold fast,
Longer, the aged fountains of these eyes !

MEGARA.

Be it so ! Who is priest, who butcher here
Of these ill-fated ones, or stops the breath
Of me, the miserable ? Ready, see,
The sacrifice—to lead where Haides lives !
O children, we are led—no lovely team
Of corpses—age, youth, motherhood, all
mixed !

O sad fate of myself and these my sons
Whom with these eyes I look at, this last
time !

I, indeed, bore you : but for enemies
I brought you up to be a laughing-stock,
Matter for merriment, destruction-stuff !
Woe's me !
Strangely indeed my hopes have struck me
down

From what I used to hope about you once—
The expectation from your father's talk !
For thee, now, thy dead sire dealt Argos to :
Thou wast to have Eurustheus' house one
day,

And rule Pelasgia where the fine fruits grow ;
And, for a stole of state, he wrapped about
Thy head with that the lion-monster bore,
That which himself went wearing armour-
wise.

And thou wast King of Thebes—such chariots
there !

Those plains I had for portion—all for thee,
As thou hadst coaxed them out of who gave birth

To thee, his boy : and into thy right hand
He thrust the guardian-club of Daidalos,— Poor guardian proves the gift that plays thee
false !

And upon thee he promised to bestow

Chapleted, and, amid a crowd of men,
My very wife—my father weeping too,
Whatever the misfortune! Come, best take
My station nearer these and learn it all!
Wife, what new sorrow has approached our home?

MEGARA.

O dearest! light flashed on thy father now!
Art thou come? art thou saved and dost thou
fall
On friends in their supreme extremity?

HERAKLES.

How say'st thou? Father! what's the trouble
here?

MEGARA.

Undone are we!—but thou, old man, forgive
If first I snatch what thou shouldst say to him!
For somehow womanhood wakes pity more.
Here are my children killed and I undone!

HERAKLES.

Apollon, with what preludes speech begins!

MEGARA.

Dead are my brothers and old father too.

HERAKLES.

How say'st thou?—doing what?—by spear-stroke whence?

MEGARA.

Lukos destroyed them—the land's noble king!

HERAKLES.

Met them in arms? or through the land's disease?

MEGARA.

Sedition: and he sways seven-gated Thebes.

HERAKLES.

Why then came fear on the old man and thee?

MEGARA.

He meant to kill thy father, me, our boys.

HERAKLES.

How say'st thou? Fearing what from orphanage?

MEGARA.

Lest they should some day pay back Kreon's death.

HERAKLES.

And why trick out the boys corpse-fashion
thus?

MEGARA.

These wraps of death we have already donned.

HERAKLES.

And you had died through violence? Woe's
me!

MEGARA.

Left bare of friends: and thou wast dead, we heard.

HERAKLES.

And whence came on you this faintheartedness?

MEGARA.

The heralds of Eurustheus brought the news.

HERAKLES.

And why was it you left my house and hearth?

MEGARA.

Forced thence; thy father—from his very couch!

HERAKLES.

And no shame at insulting the old man?

MEGARA.

Shame, truly! no near neighbours he and Shame!

HERAKLES.

And so much, in my absence, lacked I friends?

MEGARA.

Friends,—are there any to a luckless man?

HERAKLES.

The Minuai-war I waged,—they spat forth
these?

MEGARA.

Friendless,—again I tell thee,—is ill-luck.

HERAKLES.

Will not you cast these hell-wraps from your hair

And look on light again, and with your eyes

Taste the sweet change from nether dark to day?

While I—for now there needs my handiwork—
First I shall go, demolish the abodes
Of these new lordships; next hew off the head
Accurst and toss it for the dogs to trail.
Then, such of the Kadmeians as I find
Were craven though they owed me gratitude,—
Some I intend to handle with this club Renowned for conquest; and with winged shafts

Scatter the others, fill Ismenos full
With bloody corpses,—Dirké's flow so white
Shall be incarnadined. For, whom, I pray,
Behoves me rather help than wife and child
And aged father? Farewell, "Labours"
mine!

Vainly I wrought them: my true work lay
here!

My business is to die defending these,—
If for their father's sake they meant to die.
Or how shall we call brave the battling it
With snake and lion, as Eurustheus bade,
If yet I must not labour death away
From my own children? "Conquering
Herakles"

Folk will not call me as they used, I think!
The right thing is for parents to assist
Children, old age, the partner of the couch.

AMPHITRUON.

True, son! thy duty is—be friend to friends
And foe to foes: yet—no more haste than needs!

HERAKLES.

Why, father, what is over hasty here?

AMPHITRUON.

Many a pauper,—seeming to be rich,
As the word goes,—the king calls partisan.
Such made a riot, ruined Thebes to rob Their neighbour: for, what good they had at home .

Wasspent and gone—flew off through idleness.
You came to trouble Thebes, they saw: since seen,

Beware lest, raising foes, a multitude,
You stumble where you apprehend no harm.

HERAKLES.

If all Thebes saw me, not a whit care I.
But seeing as I did a certain bird
Not in the lucky seats, I knew some woe
Was fallen upon the house: so, purposely,
By stealth I made my way into the land.

AMPHITRUON.

And now, advancing, hail the hearth with
praise
And give the ancestral home thine eye to
see!

For he himself will come, thy wife and sons
To drag-forth—slaughter—slay me too,—this king!

But, here remaining, all succeeds with thee—
Gain lost by no false step. So, this thy town
Disturb not, son, ere thou right matters here!

HERAKLES.

Thus will I do, for thou say'st well; my home
Let me first enter! Since at the due time Returning from the unsunned depths where dwells

Haides' wife Koré, let me not affront
Those gods beneath my roof I first should hail!

AMPHITRUON.

For didst thou really visit Haides, son?

HERAKLES.

Ay—dragged to light, too, his three-headed beast.

AMPHITRUON.

By fight didst conquer, or through Koré's gift?

HERAKLES.

Fight: well for me, I saw the Orgies first!

AMPHITRUON.

And is he in Eurustheus' house, the brute?

HERAKLES.

Chthonia's grove, Hermion's city, hold him
now.

AMPHITRUON.

Does not Eurustheus know thee back on earth?

HERAKLES.

No : I would come first and see matters here.

AMPHITRUON.

But how wast thou below ground such a time?

HERAKLES.

I stopped, from Haides, bringing Theseus up.

AMPHITRUON.

And where is he?—bound o'er the plain for home?

HERAKLES.

Gone glad to Athens—Haides' fugitive !
But, up, boys ! follow father into house !
There's a far better going-in for you
Truly, than going-out was ! Nay, take heart,
And let the eyes no longer run and run !
And thou, O wife, my own, collect thy soul
Nor tremble now ! Leave grasping, all of you, My garments ! I'm not winged, nor fly from friends !

Ah,—

No letting go for these, who all the more
Hang to my garments ! Did you foot indeed
The razor's edge ? Why, then I'll carry them—Take with my hands these small craft up, and tow

Just as a ship would. There ! don't fear I shirk
My children's service ! this way, men are men,
No difference ! best and worst, they love their boys

After one fashion : wealth they differ in—
Some have it, others not ; but each and all Combine to form the children-loving race.

CHOROS.

Youth is a pleasant burthen to me ;
But age on my head, more heavily
Than the crags of Aitna, weighs and weighs,
And darkening cloaks the lids and intercepts the rays.

Never be mine the preference
Of an Asian empire's wealth, nor yet
Of a house all gold, to youth, to youth
That's beauty, whatever the gods dispense !
Whether in wealth we joy, or fret Paupers,—of all God's gifts most beautiful, in truth !

But miserable murderous age I hate !
Let it go to wreck, the waves adown,
Nor ever by rights plague tower or town
Where mortals bide, but still elate
With wings, on ether, precipitate,
Wander them round—nor wait !

But if the gods, to man's degree,
Had wit and wisdom, they would bring Mankind a twofold youth, to be
Their virtue's sign-mark, all should see,
In those with whom life's winter thus grew
spring.

For when they died, into the sun once more
Would they have traversed twice life's racecourse o'er ;

While ignobility had simply run
Existence through, nor second life begun.
And so might we discern both bad and good
As surely as the starry multitude
Is numbered by the sailors, one and one.
But now the gods by no apparent line
Limit the worthy and the base define ;
Only, a certain period rounds, and so Brings man more wealth, — but youthful vigour, no !

Well ! I am not to pause
Mingling together—wine and wine in cup—
The Graces with the Muses up—
Most dulcet marriage : loosed from music's laws,

No life for me !
But where the wreaths abound, there ever may
I be !

And still, an aged bard, I shout Mnemosuné—
Still chant of Herakles the triumph-chant, Companioned by the seven-stringed tortoise shell

And Libuan flute, and Bromios' self as well
God of the grape, with man participant !
Not yet will we arrest their glad advance—
The Muses who so long have led me forth to dance !

A paian—hymn the Delian girls indeed,
Weaving a beauteous measure in and out
His temple-gates, Latona's goodly seed ;
And paians—I too, these thy domes about,

LUKOS.

Ah me—me !

CHOROS.

This strikes the keynote—music to my mind, Merry i' the household ! Death takes up the tune !

The king gives voice, groans murder's prelude well !

LUKOS.

O, all the land of Kadmos ! slain by guile !

CHOROS.

Ay, for who slew first? Paying back thy due, Resign thee ! make, for deeds done, mere amends !

Who was it grazed the gods through lawless-
ness—

Mortal himself, threw up his fool's-conceit
Against the blessed heavenly ones—as though Gods had no power? Old friends, the impious man

Exists not any more ! The house is mute.
Turn we to song and dance ! For, those I
love,

Those I wish well to, well fare they, to wish !

Dances, dances and banqueting
To Thebes, the sacred city through,
Are a care ! for, change and change
Of tears to laughter, old to new,
Our lays, glad birth, they bring, they bring !
He is gone and past, the mighty king !
And the old one reigns, returned—O strange!
From the Acherontian harbour too !
Advent of hope, beyond thought's widest range !

To the gods, the gods, are crimes a care,
And they watch our virtue, well aware
That gold and that prosperity drive man
Out of his mind—those charioteers who hale Might-without-right behind them : face who can

Fortune's reverse which time prepares, nor quail ?

—He who evades law and in lawlessness
Delights him,—he has broken down his trust—
The chariot, riches haled—now blackening in the dust !

Ismenos, go thou garlanded !

Break into dance, ye ways, the polished bed
O' the seven-gated city ! Dirké, thou
Fair-flowing, with the Asopiad sisters all,
Leave your sire's stream, attend the festival
Of Herakles, one choir of nymphs, sing triumph now !

O woody rock of Puthios¹ and each home
O' the Helikonian Muses, ye shall come
With joyous shouting to my walls, my town
Where saw the light that Spartan race, those “Sown,”

Brazen-shield-bearing chiefs, whereof the band
With children's children renovates our land,
To Thebes a sacred light !

O combination of the marriage rite—
Bed of the mortal-born and Zeus, who couched
Beside the nymph of Perseus' progeny !
For credible, past hope, becomes to me
That nuptial story long ago avouched, O Zeus ! and time has turned the dark to
bright,

And made one blaze of truth the Herakleidan

His, who emerged from earth's pavilion, left
Plouton's abode, the nether palace-cleft.

Thou wast the lord that nature gave me—not
That baseness born and bred—my king, by lot !

—Baseness made plain to all, who now regard
The match of sword with sword in fight,—
If to the gods the Just and Right
Still pleasing be, still claim the palm's award.

Horror !

Are we come to the self-same passion of fear,
Old friends?—such a phantasm fronts me here
Visible over the palace-roof !

In flight, in flight, the laggard limb
Bestir ! and haste aloof
From that on the roof there—grand and grim !
O Paian, king !

Be thou my safeguard from the woeful thing !

IRIS.

Courage, old men ! beholding here—Night's

Madness, and me the handmaid of the gods,
Iris: since to your town we come, no plague—
Wage war against the house of but one man
From Zeus and from Alkmené sprung, they
say.

Now, till he made an end of bitter toils,
Fate kept him safe, nor did his father Zeus
Let us once hurt him, Heré nor myself.
But, since he has toiled through Eurustheus'
task,
Heré desires to fix fresh blood on him—
Slaying his children: I desire it too.

Up then, collecting the unsoftened heart,
Unwedded virgin of black Night! Drive, drag
Frenzy upon the man here—whirls of brain
Big with child-murder, while his feet leap gay!

Let go the bloody cable its whole length!
So that,—when o'er the Acherousian ford
He has sent floating, by self-homicide,
His beautiful boy-garland,—he may know
First, Heré's anger, what it is to him,
And then learn mine. The gods are vile
indeed
And mortal matters vast, if he 'scape free!

MADNESS.

Certes, from well-born sire and mother too
Had I my birth, whose blood is Night's and Heaven's;
But here's my glory,—not to grudge the good!
Nor love I raids against the friends of man.
I wish, then, to persuade,—before I see
You stumbling, you and Heré! trust my words!
This man, the house of whom ye hound me to,
Is not unfamed on earth nor gods among;
Since, having quelled waste land and savage
sea,
He alone raised again the falling rights
Of gods—gone ruinous through impious men.
Desire no mighty mischief, I advise!

IRIS.

Give thou no thought to Heré's faulty schemes!

MADNESS.

Changing her step from faulty to fault-free!

IRIS.

Not to be wise, did Zeus' wife send thee here.

MADNESS.

Sun, thee I cite to witness—doing what I loathe to do!

But since indeed to Heré and thyself I must subserve,

And follow you quick, with a whizz, as the hounds a-hunt with the huntsman,

—Go I will! and neither the sea, as it groans with its waves so furiously,

Nor earthquake, no, nor the bolt of thunder gasping out heaven's labour-throe,

Shall cover the ground as I, at a bound, rush into the bosom of Herakles!

And home I scatter, and house I batter,

Having first of all made the children fall,—

And he who felled them is never to know

He gave birth to each child that received the
blow,

Till the Madness, I am, have let him go!

Ha, behold! already he rocks his head—he is off from the starting-place!

Not a word, as he rolls his frightful orbs, from their sockets wrenched in the ghastly race!

And the breathings of him he tempers and times no more than a bull in act to toss,

And hideously he bellows invoking the Keres, daughters of Tartaros.

Ay, and I soon will dance thee madder, and pipe thee quite out of thy mind with fear!

So, up with the famous foot, thou Iris, march to Olumpos, leave me here!

Me and mine, who now combine, in the dreadful shape no mortal sees,

And now are about to pass, from without,
inside of the home of Herakles!

CHOROS.

Otototoi,—groan!

Away is mown

Thy flower, Zeus' offspring, City!

Unhappy Hellas, who dost cast (the pity!)

Who worked thee all the good,

Away from thee,—destroyest in a mood

Of madness him, to death whom pipings dance!
There goes she, in her chariot,—groans, her brood,—

And gives her team the goad, as though adrift
For doom, Night's Gorgon, Madness, she whose glance

Turns man to marble! with what hissings lift
Their hundred heads the snakes, her head's inheritance!

Quick has the god changed fortune: through their sire

Quick will the children, that he saved, expire!
O miserable me! O Zeus! thy child—
Childless himself—soon vengeance, hunger-wild,

Craving for punishment, will lay how low—
Loaded with many a woe!

O palace-roofs! your courts about,
A measure begins all unrejoiced
By the tympanies and the thyrsos hoist
Of the Bromian revel-rout!

O ye domes! and the measure proceeds
For blood, not such as the cluster bleeds
Of the Dionusian pouring-out!

Break forth, fly, children! fatal this—
Fatal the lay that is piped, I wis!
Ay, for he hunts a children-chase—
Never shall Madness lead her revel
And leave no trace in the dwelling-place!
Ai ai, because of the evil!

Ai ai, the old man—how I groan
For the father, and not the father alone!
She who was nurse of his children,—small
Her gain that they ever were born at all!

See! See!

A whirlwind shakes hither and thither
The house—the roof falls in together!
Ha, ha, what dost thou, son of Zeus?
A trouble of Tartaros broke loose,
Such as once Pallas on the Titan thundered,
Thou sendest on thy domes, roof-shattered and wall-sundered!

MESSENGER.

O bodies white with age!—

CHOROS.

What cry, to me—
What, dost thou call with?

MESSENGER.

There's a curse indoors.

CHOROS.

I shall not bring a prophet: you suffice.

MESSENGER.

Dead are the children.

CHOROS.

Ai ai!

MESSENGER.

Groan! for, groans
Suit well the subject. Dire the children's
death,
Dire too the parent's hands that dealt the fate.
No one could tell worse woe than we have borne.

CHOROS.

How dost thou that same curse—curse, cause for groan—
The father's on the children, make appear?
Tell in what matter they were hurled from
heaven
Against the house—these evils; and recount
The children's hapless fate, O Messenger!

MESSENGER.

The victims were before the hearth of Zeus,
A household-expiation: since the king
O' the country, Herakles had killed and cast
From out the dwelling; and a beauteous choir

Of boys stood by his sire, too, and his wife.
And now the basket had been carried round
The altar in a circle, and we used
The consecrated speech. Alkmené's son,—
Just as he was about, in his right hand,
To bear the torch, that he might dip into
The cleansing-water,—came to a stand-still;
And, as their father yet delayed, his boys
Had their eyes on him. But he was himself
No longer: lost in rollings of the eyes;

Digs at, heaves doors up, wrenches doorposts
out,
Lays wife and child low with the selfsame shaft.
And this done, at the old man's death he drives;
But there came, as it seemed to us who saw,
A statue—Pallas with the crested head, Swinging her spear—and threw a stone which smote
Herakles' breast and stayed his slaughter-rage,
And sent him safe to sleep. He falls to ground—
Striking against the column with his back—
Column which, with the falling of the roof,
Broken in two, lay by the altar-base.
And we, foot-free now from our several flights,
Along with the old man, we fastened bonds
Of rope-noose to the column, so that he,
Ceasing from sleep, might not go adding deeds
To deeds done. And he sleeps a sleep, poor wretch,
No gift of any god! since he has slain
Children and wife. For me, I do not know
What mortal has more misery to bear.

CHOROS.

A murder there was which Argolis
Holds in remembrance, Hellas through,
As, at that time, best and famous:
Of those, the daughters of Danaos slew.
A murder indeed was that! but this
Outstrips it, straight to the goal has pressed.
I am able to speak of a murder done
To the hapless Zeus-born offspring, too—
Prokné's son, who had but one—
Or a sacrifice to the Muses, say
Rather, who Itus sing alway,
Her single child. But thou, the sire
Of children three—O thou consuming fire!—
In one outrageous fate hast made them all expire.
And this outrageous fate—
What groan, or wail, or deadmen's dirge,
Or choric dance of Haidēs shall I urge
The Muse to celebrate?

Woe! woe! behold!
The portalled palace lies unrolled,
This way and that way, each prodigious fold!

Alas for me! these children, see,
Stretched, hapless group, before their father—
he
The all-unhappy, who lies sleeping out
The murder of his sons, a dreadful sleep!
And bonds, see, all about,— Rope-tangle, ties and tether,—these Tightenings around the body of Herakles
To the stone columns of the house made fast!

But—like a bird that grieves
For callow nestlings some rude hand be-reaves—
See, here, a bitter journey overpast,
The old man—all too late—is here at last!

AMPHITRUON.

Silently, silently, aged Kadmeians!
Will ye not suffer my son, diffused
Yonder, to slide from his sorrows in sleep?

CHOROS.

And thee, old man, do I, groaning, weep,
And the children too, and the head there—
used
Of old to the wreaths and pians!

AMPHITRUON.

Farther away! Nor beat the breast,
Nor wail aloud, nor rouse from rest
The slumberer—asleep, so best!

CHOROS.

Ah me—what a slaughter!

AMPHITRUON.

Refrain—refrain!
Ye will prove my perdition.

CHOROS.

Unlike water,
Bloodshed rises from earth again.

AMPHITRUON.

Do I bid you bate your breath, in vain—
Ye elders? Lament in a softer strain!
Lest he rouse himself, burst every chain,
And bury the city in ravage—bray
Father and house to dust away!

CHOROS.

I cannot forbear—I cannot forbear !

AMPHITRUON.

Hush ! I will learn his breathings : there !
I will lay my ears close.

CHOROS.

What, he sleeps ?

AMPHITRUON.

Ay,—sleeps ! A horror of slumber keeps
The man who has piled
On wife and child
Death and death, as he shot them down
With clang o' the bow.

CHOROS.

Wail—

AMPHITRUON.

Even so !

CHOROS.

—The fate of the children—

AMPHITRUON.

Triple woe !

CHOROS.

—Old man, the fate of thy son !

AMPHITRUON.

Hush, hush ! Have done !
He is turning about !
He is breaking out !
Away ! I steal
And my body conceal,
Before he arouse,
In the depths of the house.

CHOROS.

Courage ! The Night
Maintains her right
On the lids of thy son there, sealed from sight !

AMPHITRUON.

See, see ! To leave the light
And, wretch that I am, bear one last ill,
I do not avoid ; but if he kill
Me his own father, and devise

Beyond the present miseries
A misery more ghastly still—
And to haunt him, over and above
Those here who, as they used to love,
Now hate him, what if he have with these
My murder, the worst of Erinues ?

CHOROS.

Then was the time to die, for thee,
When ready to wreak in the full degree
Vengeance on those
Thy consort's foes
Who murdered her brothers : glad, life's
close,
With the Taphioi down,
And sacked their town
Clustered about with a wash of sea !

AMPHITRUON.

To flight—to flight !
Away from the house, troop off, old men !
Save yourselves out of the maniac's sight !
He is rousing himself right up : and then,
Murder on murder heaping anew,
He will revel in blood your city through !

CHOROS.

O Zeus, why hast, with such unmeasured
hate,
Hated thy son, whelmed in this sea of woes ?

HERAKLES.

Ha,—
In breath indeed I am—see things I ought—Æther, and earth, and these the sunbeam-
shafts !
But then—some billow and strange whirl of sense
I have fallen into ! and breathings hot I breathe—
Smoked upwards, not the steady work from lungs.
See now ! Why bound,—at moorings like a ship,—
About my young breast and young arm, to
this
Stone piece of carved work broke in half,
do I

Sit, have my rest in corpses' neighbourhood?

Strewn on the ground are winged darts, and bow

Which played my brother-shieldman, held in
hand,—

Guarded my side, and got my guardianship!

I cannot have gone back to Haides—twice

Begun Eurustheus' race I ended thence?

But I nor see the Sisupheian stone,

Nor Plouton, nor Demeter's sceptred maid!

I am struck witless sure! Where can I be?

Ho there! what friend of mine is near or far—

Some one to cure me of bewilderment?

For nought familiar do I recognize.

AMPHITRUON.

Old friends, shall I go close to these my woes?

CHOROS.

Ay, and let me too,—nor desert your ills!

HERAKLES.

Father, why weepest thou, and buriest up
Thine eyes, aloof so from thy much-loved
son?

AMPHITRUON.

O child!—for, faring badly, mine thou art!

HERAKLES.

Do I fare somehow ill, that tears should flow?

AMPHITRUON.

Ill,—would cause any god who bore, to groan!

HERAKLES.

That's boasting, truly! still, you state no hap.

AMPHITRUON.

For, thyself seest—if in thy wits again.

HERAKLES.

Heyday! How riddlingly that hint returns!

AMPHITRUON.

Well, I am trying—art thou sane and sound!

HERAKLES.

Say if thou lay'st aught strange to my life's
charge!

AMPHITRUON.

If thou no more art Haides-drunk,—I tell!

HERAKLES.

I bring to mind no drunkenness of soul.

AMPHITRUON.

Shall I unbind my son, old men, or what?

HERAKLES.

And who was binder, tell!—not that, my deed!

AMPHITRUON.

Mind that much of misfortune—pass the rest!

HERAKLES.

Enough! from silence, I nor learn nor wish.

AMPHITRUON.

O Zeus, dost witness here throned Heré's work?

HERAKLES.

But have I had to bear aught hostile thence?

AMPHITRUON.

Let be the goddess—bury thine own guilt!

HERAKLES.

Undone! What is the sorrow thou wilt say?

AMPHITRUON.

Look! See the ruins of thy children here!

HERAKLES.

Ah me! What sight do wretched I behold?

AMPHITRUON.

Unfair fight, son, this fight thou fastenedst
On thine own children!

HERAKLES.

What fight? Who slew these?

AMPHITRUON.

Thou and thy bow, and who of gods was cause.

AMPHITRUON.

Lost are we—
Lost—flown away from life !

THESEUS.

What sayest thou?
What did he?

AMPHITRUON.

Erring through a frenzy-fit,
He did all, with the arrows dipt in dye
Of hundred-headed Hudra.

THESEUS.

Heré's strife !
But who is this among the dead, old man?

AMPHITRUON.

Mine, mine, this progeny—the labour-plagued,
Who went with gods once to Phlegruia's plain,
And in the giant-slaying war bore shield,

THESEUS.

Woe—woe ! What man was born mis-chanceful thus !

AMPHITRUON.

Thou couldst not know another mortal man
Toil-weary, more outworn by wanderings.

THESEUS.

And why i' the peploi hides he his sad head?

AMPHITRUON.

Not daring meet thine eye, thy friendliness
And kinship,—nor that children's-blood about.

THESEUS.

But / come to who shared my woe with me !
Uncover him !

AMPHITRUON.

O child, put from thine eyes
The peplos, throw it off, show face to sun !
Woe's weight well matched contends with tears in thee.

I supplicate thee, falling at thy cheek
And knee and hand, and shedding this old tear !

O son, remit the savage lion's mood,
Since to a bloody, an unholy race
Art thou led forth, if thou be resolute
To go on adding ill to ill, my child !

THESEUS.

Let me speak ! Thee, who sittest—seated
woe—

I call upon to show thy friends thine eye !
For there's no darkness has a cloud so black
May hide thy misery thus absolute.

Why, waving hand, dost sign me—murder's
done ?

Lest a pollution strike me, from thy speech ?
Nought care I to—with thee, at least—fare ill :
For I had joy once ! Then,—soul rises to,— When thou didst save me from the dead to light !

Friends' gratitude that tastes old age, I
loathe,

And him who likes to share when things
look fine,

But, sail along with friends in trouble—no !
Arise, uncover thine unhappy head !

Look on us ! Every man of the right race Bears what, at least, the gods inflict, nor shrinks.

HERAKLES.

Theseus, hast seen this match—my boys with
me ?

THESEUS.

I heard of, now I see the ills thou sign'st.

HERAKLES.

Why then hast thou displayed my head to sun ?

THESEUS.

Why ? mortals bring no plague on aught
divine.

HERAKLES.

Fly, O unhappy, this my impious plague !

THESEUS.

No plague of vengeance flits to friends from friends.

HERAKLES.

I praise thee. But I helped thee,—that is truth.

THESEUS.

And I, advantaged then, now pity thee.

HERAKLES.

—The pitiable,—my children's murderer !

THESEUS.

I mourn for thy sake, in this altered lot.

HERAKLES.

Hast thou found others in still greater woe ?

THESEUS.

Thou, from earth, touchest heaven, one huge distress !

HERAKLES.

Accordingly, I am prepared to die.

THESEUS.

Think'st thou thy threats at all import the gods ?

HERAKLES.

Gods please themselves : to gods I give their like.

THESEUS.

Shut thy mouth, lest big words bring bigger woe !

HERAKLES.

I am full fraught with ills—no stowing more !

THESEUS.

Thou wilt do—what, then ? Whither moody borne ?

HERAKLES.

Dying, I go below earth whence I came.

THESEUS.

Thou hast used words of—what man turns up first !

HERAKLES.

While thou, being outside sorrow, schoolest me.

THESEUS.

The much-enduring Herakles talks thus ?—

HERAKLES.

Not the so much-enduring : measure's past.

THESEUS.

—Mainstay to mortals, and their mighty friend ?

HERAKLES.

They nowise profit me : but Heré rules.

THESEUS.

Hellas forbids thou shouldst ineptly die.

HERAKLES.

But hear, then, how I strive by arguments Against thy teachings ! I will ope thee out My life—past, present—as unliveable.

First, I was born of this man, who had slain His mother's aged sire, and, sullied so, Married Alkmené, she who gave me birth.

Now, when the basis of a family Is not laid right, what follows needs must fall ;

And Zeus, whoever Zeus is, formed me foe

To Heré (take not thou offence, old man !

Since father, in Zeus' stead, account I thee),

And, while I was at suck yet, frightful snakes

She introduced among my swaddling-clothes,—

That bedfellow of Zeus !—to end me so.

But when I gained the youthful garb of flesh,

The labours I endured—what need to tell ?

What lions ever, or three-bodied brutes,

Tuphons or giants, or the four-legg'd swarms

Of Kentaur-battle, did not I end out ?

And that hound, headed all about with heads

Which cropped up twice, the Hudra, having

slain—

I both went through a myriad other toils

In full drove, and arrived among the dead

To convoy, as Eurustheus bade, to light

Haides' three-headed dog and doorkeeper.

But then I,—wretch,—dared this last labour

—see !

Slew my sons, keystone-coped my house with ills.

To such a strait I come ! nor my dear

Thebes

Dare I inhabit : and, suppose I stay ?

Into what fane or festival of friends

Am I to go ? My curse scarce courts accost !

Shall I seek Argos ? How, if fled from home ?

But say—I hurry to some other town !

And there they eye me, as notorious now,— Kept by sharp tongue-taunts under lock and key—

“Is not this he, Zeus' son, who murdered once Children and wife? Let him go rot elsewhere!”

To any man renowned as happy once,
Reverses are a grave thing; but to whom
Evil is old acquaintance there's no hurt
To speak of, he and misery are twins.
To this degree of woe I think to come:
For earth will utter voice forbidding me
To touch the ground, and sea—to pierce the
wave,

The river-springs—to drink, and I shall play Ixion's part quite out, the chained and wheeled!

And best of all will be, if so I 'scape
Sight from one man of those Hellenes,—once
I lived among, felicitous and rich!
Why ought I then to live? What gain accrues

From good-for-nothing, wicked life I lead?
In fine, let Zeus' brave consort dance and
sing,
Stamp foot, the Olumpian Zeus' own sandal-trick!

What she has willed, that brings her will to
pass—
The foremost man of Hellas pedestalled, Up, over, and down whirling! Who would
pray

To such a goddess?—that, begrudging Zeus
Because he loved a woman, ruins me—
Lover of Hellas, faultless of the wrong!

THESEUS.

This strife is from no other of the gods
Than Zeus' wife; rightly apprehend, as well,
Why, to no death—thou meditatest now—
I would persuade thee, but to bear thy woes!
None, none of mortals boasts a fate unmixed,
Nor gods—if poets' teaching be not false.
Have not they joined in wedlock against law
With one another? not, for sake of rule, Branded their sires in bondage? Yet they
house,
All the same, in Olumpos, carry heads'

High there, notorious sinners though they be!
What wilt thou say, then, if thou, mortal-
born,

Bearest outrageously fate gods endure?
Leave Thebes, now, pay obedience to the law

And follow me to Pallas' citadel!
There, when thy hands are purified from
stain,
House will I give thee, and goods shared alike.

What gifts I hold too from the citizens
For saving twice seven children, when I slew
The Knosian bull, these also give I thee.
And everywhere about the land are plots
Apportioned me: these, named by thine own
name,

Shall be henceforward styled by all men—
thine,
Thy life long; but at death, when Haides-
bound,

All Athens shall uphold the honoured one
With sacrifices, and huge marble heaps:
For that's a fair crown our Hellenes grant
Their people—glory, should they help the brave!

And I repay thee back this grace for thine
That saved me, now that thou art lorn of
friends—

Since, when the gods give honour, friends may flit:

For, a god's help suffices, if he please.

HERAKLES.

Ah me, these words are foreign to my woes!
I neither fancy gods love lawless beds,
Nor, that with chains they bind each other's
hands,

Have I judged worthy faith, at any time;
Nor shall I be persuaded—one is born
His fellows' master! since God stands in need—

If he is really God—of nought at all.
These are the poets' pitiful conceits!
But this it was I pondered, though woe-
whelmed—

“Take heed lest thou be taxed with cowardice
Somehow in leaving thus the light of day!”

THESEUS.

Give to my neck thy hand ! 'tis I will lead.

HERAKLES.

Yoke-fellows friendly — one heart-broken,
though !

O father, such a man we need for friend !

AMPHITRUON.

Certes the land that bred him boasts good sons.

HERAKLES.

Turn me round, Theseus—to behold my boys !

THESEUS.

What ? will the having such a love-charm soothe ?

HERAKLES.

I want it ; and to press my father's breast.

AMPHITRUON.

See here, O son ! for, what I love thou seek'st.

THESEUS.

Strange ! Of thy labours no more memory ?

HERAKLES.

All those were less than these, those ills I bore.

THESEUS.

Who sees thee grow a woman,—will not praise.

HERAKLES.

I live low to thee ? Not so once, I think.

THESEUS.

Too low by far ! “ Famed Herakles ”— where's he ?

HERAKLES.

Down amid evils, of what kind wast thou ?

THESEUS.

As far as courage—least of all mankind !

HERAKLES.

How say'st, then, / in evils shrink to nought ?

THESEUS.

Forward !

HERAKLES.

Farewell, old father !

AMPHITRUON.

Thou too, son !

HERAKLES.

Bury the boys as I enjoined !

AMPHITRUON.

And me—

Who will be found to bury now, my child ?

HERAKLES.

Myself.

AMPHITRUON.

When, coming ?

HERAKLES.

When thy task is done.

AMPHITRUON.

How ?

HERAKLES.

I will have thee carried forth from Thebes
To Athens. But bear in the children, earth Is burthened by ! Myself,—who with these shames

Have cast away my house,—a ruined bulk,
I follow—trailed by Theseus—on my way ;
And whoso rather would have wealth and
strength

Than good friends, reasons foolishly therein.

CHOROS.

And we depart, with sorrow at heart,
Sobs that increase with tears that start ;
The greatest of all our friends of yore
We have lost for evermore !

When the long silence ended,—“ Our best
friend—

Lost, our best friend !” he muttered musingly.
Then, “ Lachares the sculptor ” (half aloud

“Sinned he or sinned he not? ‘Outrageous sin!’

Shuddered our elders, ‘Pallas should be clothed:

He carved her naked.’ ‘But more beautiful!’

Answers this generation: ‘Wisdom formed
For love not fear!’ And there the statue stands,
Entraps the eye severer art repels.

Moreover, Pallas wields the thunderbolt
Yet has not struck the artist all this while.

Pheidias and Aischulos? Euripides
And Lachares? But youth will have its way.

The ripe man ought to be as old as young—
As young as old. I too have youth at need.
Much may be said for stripping wisdom bare.

“And who’s ‘our best friend’? You play kottabos;

Here’s the last mode of playing. Take a sphere
With orifices at due interval,

Through topmost one of which, a throw adroit Sends wine from cup, clean passage, from outside

To where, in hollow midst, a manikin
Suspended ever bobs with head erect
Right underneath whatever hole’s a-top
When you set orb a-rolling: plumb, he gets Ever this benediction of the splash.

An other-fashioned orb presents him fixed:
Of all the outlets, he fronts only one,
And only when that one,—and rare the
chance,—

Comes uppermost, does he turn upward too:
He can’t turn all sides with the turning orb.
Inside this sphere of life,—all objects, sense
And soul perceive,—Euripides hangs fixed,
Gets knowledge through the single aperture
Of High and Right: with visage fronting these
He waits the wine thence ere he operate,
Work in the world and write a tragedy.

When that hole happens to revolve to point,
Indrops the knowledge, waiting meets reward.
But, duly in rotation, Low and Wrong—
When these enjoy the moment’s altitude,
His heels are found just where his head should
be!

No knowledge that way! I am moveable,—
To slightest shift of orb make prompt response,

Face Low and Wrong and Weak and all the rest,
And still drink knowledge, wine-drenched every turn,—

Equally favoured by their opposites.

Little and Bad exist, are natural:

Then let me know them, and be twice as great
As he who only knows one phase of life!

So doubly shall I prove ‘best friend of man,’
If I report the whole truth—Vice, perceived
While he shut eyes to all but Virtue there.

Man’s made of both: and both must be of use
To somebody: if not to him, to me.

While, as to your imaginary Third
Who, stationed (by mechanics past my guess)

So as to take in every side at once,
And not successively,—may reconcile

The High and Low in tragi-comic verse,—
He shall be hailed superior to us both

When born—in the Tin-islands! Meantime,
here

In bright Athenai, I contest the claim,
Call myself Iostephanos’ ‘best friend,’

Who took my own course, worked as I
descried

Ordainment, stuck to my first faculty.

“For listen! There’s no failure breaks the
heart,

Whate’er be man’s endeavour in this world,
Like the rash poet’s when he—nowise fails

By poetizing badly,—Zeus or makes
Or mars a man, so—at it, merrily!

But when,—made man,—much like myself,
—equipt

For such and such achievement,—rash he turns
Out of the straight path, bent on snatch of feat

From—who’s the appointed fellow born there-
to,—

Crows take him!—in your Kassiterides?

Half-doing his work, leaving mine untouched,
That were the failure. Here I stand, heart-

whole,

No Thamuris!

“Well thought of, Thamuris
Has zeal, pray, for ‘best friend’ Euripides
Allowed you to observe the honour done
His elder rival, in our Poikilé?

You don't know? Once and only once, trod stage,
Sang and touched lyre in person, in his
youth,
Our Sophokles,—youth, beauty, dedicate
To Thamuris who named the tragedy.
The voice of him was weak; face, limbs and
lyre,
These were worth saving: Thamuris stands
yet

Perfect as painting helps in such a case.
At least you know the story, for 'best friend'
Enriched his 'Rhesos' from the Blind Bard's
store;

So haste and see the work, and lay to heart
What it was struck me when I eyed the piece!

Here stands a poet punished for rash strife
With Powers above his power, who see with
sight

Beyond his vision, sing accordingly
A song, which he must needs dare emulate.
Poet, remain the man nor ape the Muse!

"But—lend me the psalterion! Nay, for
once—

Once let my hand fall where the other's lay!
I see it, just as I were Sophokles,
That sunrise and combustion of the east!"

And then he sang—are these unlike the
words?

Thamuris marching,—lyre and song of
Thrace—
(Perpend the first, the worst of woes that were Allotted lyre and song, ye poet-race!)

Thamuris from Oichalia, feasted there
By kingly Eurutos of late, now bound
For Dorion at the uprise broad and bare

Of Mount Pangaios (ore with earth enwound Glittered beneath his footstep)—marching
gay
And glad, Thessalia through, came, robed and crowned,

From triumph on to triumph, mid a ray
Of early morn,—came, saw and knew the spot
Assigned him for his worst of woes, that day.

Balura—happier while its name was not—
Met him, but nowise menaced; slipt aside,
Obsequious river to pursue its lot

Of solacing the valley—say, some wide
Thick busy human cluster, house and home,
Embanked for peace, or thrift that thanks the tide.

Thamuris, marching, laughed "Each flake of foam"

(As sparkingly the ripple raced him by)
"Mocks slower clouds adrift in the blue dome!"

For Autumn was the season; red the sky
Held morn's conclusive signet of the sun
To break the mists up, bid them blaze and
die.

Morn had the mastery as, one by one
All pomps produced themselves along the tract
From earth's far ending to near heaven
begun.

Was there a ravaged tree? it laughed compact
With gold, a leaf-ball crisp, high-brandished
now,
Tempting to onset frost which late attacked.

Was there a wizened shrub, a starveling
bough,
A fleecy thistle filched from by the wind,
A weed, Pan's trampling hoof would dis-
allow?

Each, with a glory and a rapture twined
About it, joined the rush of air and light
And force: the world was of one joyous
mind.

Rumour attributes to your great and dead
 For final effort : just the prodigy
 Great dead men leave, to lay survivors low !
 —Until we make acquaintance with our fate
 And find, fate's worst done, we, the same, survive
 Perchance to honour more the patron-god,
 Fitlier inaugurate a festal year.
 Now that the cloud has broken, sky laughs
 blue,
 Earth blossoms youthfully. Athenai breathes.
 After a twenty-six years' wintry blank
 Struck from her life,—war-madness, one long swoon,
 She wakes up : Arginousai bids good cheer.
 We have disposed of Kallikratidas ;
 Once more will Sparté sue for terms,—who knows ?
 Cede Dekeleia, as the rumour runs :
 Terms which Athenai, of right mind again,
 Accepts—she can no other. Peace declared,
 Have my long labours borne their fruit or no ?
 Grinned coarse buffoonery so oft in vain ?
 Enough—it simply saved you. Saved ones,
 praise
 Theoria's beauty and Opora's breadth !
 Nor, when Peace realizes promised bliss,
 Forget the Bald Bard, Envy ! but go burst
As the cup goes round and the cates abound,
Collops of hare with roast spinks¹ rare !
 Confess my pipings, dancings, posings served
 A purpose : guttlings, guzzlings, had their use !
 Say whether light Muse, Rosy-finger-tips,
 Or 'best friend's' heavy-hand, Melpomené, Touched lyre to purpose, played Amphion's
 part,
 And built Athenai to the skies once more !
 Farewell, brave couple ! Next year, welcome
 me !”

No doubt, in what he said that night, sincere !
 One story he referred to, false or fact,
 Was not without adaptability.
 They do say—Lais the Corinthian once Chancing to see Euripides (who paced
 Composing in a garden, tablet-book

¹ Chaffinches.

In left hand, with appended stulos prompt) “ Answer me,” she began, “ O Poet,—this !
 What didst intend by writing in thy play
Go hang, thou filthy doer ?” Struck on heap,
 Euripides, at the audacious speech—
 “ Well now,” quoth he, “ thyself art just the one
 I should imagine fit for deeds of filth !”
 She laughingly retorted his own line
 “ What's filth,—unless who does it, thinks it
 so ?”

So might he doubtless think. “ Farewell,” said we.

And he was gone, lost in the morning-grey,
 Rose-streaked and gold to eastward. Did we dream ?

Could the poor twelve-hours hold this argument

We render durable from fugitive,
 As duly at each sunset's droop of sail,
 Delay of oar, submission to sea-might,
 I still remember, you as duly dint
 Remembrance, with the punctual rapid style,
 Into—what calm cold page !

Thus soul escapes
 From eloquence made captive : thus mere
 words

—Ah, would the lifeless body stay ! But no :
 Change upon change till,—who may recognize
 What did soul service, in the dusty heap ?
 What energy of Aristophanes
 Inflames the wreck Balaustion saves to show ?
 Ashes be evidence how fire—with smoke—
 All night went lamping on ! But morn must rise.

The poet—I shall say—burned up and, blank
 Smouldered this ash, now white and cold
 enough.

Nay, Euthukles ! for best, though mine it be, Comes yet. Write on, write ever, wrong no
 word !

Add, first,—he gone, if jollity went too,
 Some of the graver mood, which mixed and marred,

Departed likewise. Sight of narrow scope
Has this meek consolation : neither ills
We dread, nor joys we dare anticipate,
Perform to promise. Each soul sows a seed—
Euripides and Aristophanes ;
Seed bears crop, scarce within our little lives ;
But germinates,—perhaps enough to judge,—
Next year ?

Whereas, next year brought harvest time !
For, next year came, and went not, but is now,
Still now, while you and I are bound for
Rhodes
That's all but reached—and harvest has it brought,
Dire as the homicidal dragon-crop.
Sophokles had dismissal ere it dawned,
Happy as ever ; though men mournfully
Plausible,—when only soul could triumph now,
And Iophon produced his father's play,—
Crowned the consummate song where Oidipous
Dared the descent mid earthquake-thundering,
And hardly Theseus' hands availed to guard
Eyes from the horror, as their grove disgorged
Its dread ones, while each daughter sank to ground.

Then Aristophanes, on heel of that,
Triumphant also, followed with his "Frogs :"
Produced at next Lenaia, — three months
since,—
The promised Main-Fight, loyal, license-free !
As if the poet, primed with Thasian juice, (Himself swore — wine that conquers every kind
For long abiding in the head) could fix
Thenceforward any object in its truth,
Through eyeballs bathed by mere Castalian
dew,
Nor miss the borrowed medium,—vinous drop
That colours all to the right crimson pitch
When mirth grows mockery, censure takes the tinge
Of malice !

All was Aristophanes :
There blazed the glory, there shot black the
shame.

Ay, Bacchos did stand forth, the Tragic God
In person ! and when duly dragged through mire,—

Having lied, filched, played fool, proved coward, flung

The boys their dose of fit indecency,
And finally got trounced to heart's content,
At his own feast, in his own theatre
(—Oh never fear ! 'Twas consecrated sport,
Exact tradition, warranted no whit
Offensive to instructed taste,—indeed,
Essential to Athenai's liberty,
Could the poor stranger understand !) why,
then—

He was pronounced the rarely-qualified
To rate the work, adjust the claims to
worth,

Of Aischulos (of whom, in other mood,
This same appreciative poet pleased
To say "He's all one stiff and gluey piece
Of back of swine's neck !")—and of Chatterbox
Who, "twisting words like wool," usurped his seat

In Plouton's realm : "the arch-roguer, liar,
scamp

That lives by snatching-up of altar-orts,"
—Who failed to recognize Euripides ?

Then came a contest for supremacy—
Crammed full of genius, wit and fun and freak.
No spice of undue spite to spoil the dish
Of all sorts,—for the Mystics matched the Frogs

In poetry, no Seiren sang so sweet !—
Till, pressed into the service (how dispense
With Phaps-Elaphion and free foot-display ?)
The Muse of dead Euripides danced frank,
Rattled her bits of tile, made all too plain
How baby-work like "Herakles" had birth !
Last, Bacchos,—candidly disclaiming brains
Able to follow finer argument,— Confessed himself much moved by three main facts :

First,—if you stick a "Lost his flask of oil"
At pause of period, you perplex the sense—
Were it the Elegy for Marathon !
Next, if you weigh two verses, "car"—the
word,

Will outweigh "club"—the word, in each packed line !

And—last, worst fact of all !—in rivalry
The younger poet dared to improvise
Laudation less distinct of—Triphales ?
(Nay, that served when ourself abused the youth !)

Pheidippides ? (nor that's appropriate now !)
Then,—Alkibiades, our city's hope, Since times change and we Comics should change too !

These three main facts, well weighed, drew judgment down,

Conclusively assigned the wretch his fate—
"Fate due" admonished the sage Mystic
choir,

"To sitting, prate-apace, with Sokrates, Neglecting music and each tragic aid !"
—All wound-up by a wish "We soon may cease

From certain griefs, and warfare, worst of
them !"

—Since, deaf to Comedy's persistent voice,
War still raged, still was like to rage. In vain
Had Sparté cried once more "But grant us
Peace

We give you Dekeleia back !" Too shrewd
Was Kleophon to let escape, forsooth,
The enemy—at final gasp, besides !

So, Aristophanes obtained the prize,
And so Athenai felt she had a friend
Far better than her "best friend," lost last
year ;

And so, such fame had "Frogs" that, when came round

This present year, those Frogs croaked gay
again

At the great Feast, Elaphebolion-month.¹
Only—there happened Aigispotamoi !

And, in the midst of the frog-merriment,
Plump o' the sudden, pounces stern King
Stork

On the light-hearted people of the marsh !
Spartan Lusandros swooped precipitate,

Ended Athenai, rowed her sacred bay
With oars which brought a hundred triremes back Captive !

And first word of the conqueror
Was "Down with those Long Walls, Peiraios'
pride !
Destroy, yourselves, your bulwarks ! Peace needs none !"
And "We obey" they shuddered in their
dream.

But, at next quick imposure of decree—
"No longer democratic government !
Henceforth such oligarchy as ourselves
Please to appoint you !"—then the horror stung

Dreamers awake ; they started up a-stare
At the half-helot captain and his crew —Spartans, "men used to let their hair grow long,

To fast, be dirty, and just—Sokratize"—
Whose word was "Trample on Themistokles!"

So, as the way is with much misery,
The heads swam, hands refused their office,
hearts

Sunk as they stood in stupor. "Wreck the Walls ?

Ruin Peiraios ?—with our Pallas armed
For interference ?—Herakles apprised,
And Theseus hasting ? Lay the Long Walls
low ?"

Three days they stood, stared,—stonier than their walls.

Whereupon, sleep who might, Lusandros
woke :

Saw the prostration of his enemy,
Utter and absolute beyond belief,
Past hope of hatred even. I surmise
He also probably saw fade in fume
Certain fears, bred of Bakis²-prophecy,
Nor apprehended any more that gods

² Bakis was a foolish soothsayer, an Athenian "red-faced Nixon."

Pour in, and oversweep the assembled foe!
Triumphant play, wherein our poet first Dared bring the grandeur of the Tragic Two Down to the level of our common life,
Close to the beating of our common heart.
Elektra? 'Twas Athenai, Sparté's ice
Thawed to, while that sad portraiture appealed—

Agamemnonian lady, lost by fault
Of her own kindred, cast from house and
 home,
Despoiled of all the brave inheritance,
Dowered humbly as befits a herdsman's mate,
Partaker of his cottage, clothed in rags,
Patient performer of the poorest chares,
Yet mindful, all the while, of glory past
When she walked darling of Mukenai, dear
Beyond Orestes to the King of Men!

So, because Greeks are Greeks, though
 Sparté's brood,
And hearts are hearts, though in Lusandros'
 breast,
And poetry is power, and Euthukles
Had faith therein to, full-face, fling the same—
Sudden, the ice-thaw! The assembled foe,
Heaving and swaying with strange friendliness,
Cried "Reverence Elektra!"—cried "Abstain
Like that chaste Herdsman, nor dare violate
The sanctity of such reverse! Let stand Athenai!"

 Mindful of that story's close,
Perchance, and how,—when he, the Herds-man chaste,
Needs apprehend no break of tranquil sleep,—
All in due time, a stranger, dark, disguised,
Knocks at the door: with searching glance,
 notes keen,
Knows quick, through mean attire and dis-
 respect,
The ravaged princess! Ay, right on, the clutch
Of guiding retribution has in charge
The author of the outrage! While one
 hand,
Elektra's, pulls the door behind, made fast
On fate,—the other strains, prepared to push

The victim-queen, should she make frightened
 pause
Before that serpentining blood which steals
Out of the darkness where, a pace beyond,
Above the slain Aigisthos, bides his blow Dreadful Orestes!

 Klutaimnestra, wise
This time, forbore; Elektra held her own;
Saved was Athenai through Euripides, Through Euthukles, through—more than ever—me,
Balaustion, me, who, Wild-pomegranate-flower,
Felt my fruit triumph, and fade proudly so!

But next day, as ungracious minds are
 wont,
The Spartan, late surprised into a grace,
Grew sudden sober at the enormity,
And grudged, by daybreak, midnight's easy
 gift;
Splenetically must repay its cost
By due increase of rigour, doglike snatch
At aught still left dog to concede like man.
Rough sea, at flow of tide, may lip, per-
 chance,
Smoothly the land-line reached as for repose—
Lie indolent in all unquestioned sway;
But ebbing, when needs must, all thwart and
 loth,
Sea claws at sand relinquished strugglingly.
So, harsh Lusandros—pinioned to inflict
The lesser penalty alone—spoke harsh,
As minded to embitter scathe by scorn.

"Athenai's self be saved then, thank the Lyre!
If Tragedy withdraws her presence—quick,
If Comedy replace her,—what more just?
Let Comedy do service, frisk away,
Dance off stage these indomitable stones, Long Walls, Peiraian bulwarks! Hew and heave,
Pick at, pound into dust each dear defence!
Not to the Kommos¹—eleleleleu

With breast bethumped, as Tragic lyre prefers,
But Comedy shall sound the flute, and crow

At kordax-end—the hearty slapping-dance !
Collect those flute-girls—trash who flattered
ear

With whistlings and fed eye with caper-cuts While we Lakonians supped black broth or crunched

Sea-urchin, conchs and all, unpricked—coarse brutes !

Command they lead off step, time steady
stroke

To spade and pickaxe, till demolished lie
Athenai's pride in powder !”

Done that day—

That sixteenth famed day of Munuchion-month !

The day when Hellas fought at Salamis,
The very day Euripides was born,
Those flute-girls—Phaps-Elaphion at their
head—

Did blow their best, did dance their worst,
the while

Sparté pulled down the walls, wrecked wide the works,

Laid low each merest molehill of defence,
And so the Power, Athenai, passed away !

We would not see its passing. Ere I knew
The issue of their counsels,—crouching low
And shrouded by my peplos,—I conceived,
Despite the shut eyes, the stopped ears,—by count

Only of heart-beats, telling the slow time,—
Athenai's doom was signed and signified
In that assembly,—ay, but knew there watched

One who would dare and do, nor bate at all
The stranger's licensed duty,—speak the
word

Allowed the Man from Phokis ! Nought remained

But urge departure, flee the sights and
sounds,

Hideous exultings, wailings worth contempt,

And press to other earth, new heaven, by
sea

That somehow ever prompts to 'scape despair.

Help rose to heart's wish ; at the harbour-
side,

The old grey mariner did reverence

To who had saved his ship, still weather-
tight

As when with prow gay-garlanded she praised
The hospitable port and pushed to sea.

“Convoy Balaustion back to Rhodes, for
sake

Of her and her Euripides !” laughed he.

Rhodes,—shall it not be there, my Euthukles,
Till this brief trouble of a life-time end,

That solitude—two make so populous !—

For food finds memories of the past suffice,

May be, anticipations,—hope so swells,—

Of some great future we, familiar once

With who so taught, should hail and entertain?

He lies now in the little valley, laughed

And moaned about by those mysterious streams,

Boiling and freezing, like the love and hate

Which helped or harmed him through his earthly course.

They mix in Arethousa by his grave.

The warm spring, traveller, dip thine arms into,

Brighten thy brow with ! Life detests black cold.

I sent the tablets, the psalterion, so

Rewarded Sicily ; the tyrant there

Bestowed them worthily in Phoibos' shrine.

A gold-graved writing tells—“ I also loved

The poet, Free Athenai cheaply prized—

King Dionusios,—Archelaos-like !”

And see if young Philemon,—sure one day

To do good service and be loved himself,—

If he too have not made a votive verse !

“Grant, in good sooth, our great dead, all
the same,

Retain their sense, as certain wise men say,
 I'd hang myself—to see Euripides !”
 Hands off, Philemon ! nowise hang thyself,
 But pen the prime plays, labour the right
 life,
 And die at good old age as grand men
 use,— Keeping thee, with that great thought, warm
 the while,—
 That he does live, Philemon ! Ay, most
 sure !
 “ He lives !” hark,—waves say, winds sing out the same,

And yonder dares the citted ridge of Rhodes
 Its headlong plunge from sky to sea, dis-parts
 North bay from south,—each guarded calm, that guest
 May enter gladly, blow what wind there
 will,— Boiled round with breakers, to no other
 cry !
 All in one chorus,—what the master-word
 They take up ?—hark ! “ There are no gods, no gods !
 Glory to God—who saves Euripides !”
