PRACTICE MAKES PERFECT

We are wrapping up the 4 P's series and ending with practice. You may have heard that it takes 10,000 hours to master a given skill. As such, practicing placement, position and pressure is required.

Golf legend Sam Snead hit balls all day, then practiced by his car's headlights at night. Brain science reveals performing a motor activity repeatedly sends signals through a highly-specific brain circuit — say, the "high-3-iron-with-slight-draw" circuit — that builds myelin which allows electrical impulses to be transmitted quickly and efficiently along the nerve cells, creating what some call muscle memory. Practice builds muscle memory.

Carolina Lakes Golf Course offers a perfect opportunity to work on your muscle memory at Wednesdays with the Pro. For just $5 you can hit a large bucket of balls at the range from 5-6 p.m. and get helpful pointers and tips from our PGA pro.

UPGRADES TO CAROLINA LAKES GOLF COURSE

Carolina Lakes Golf Course has been working hard to make improvements to enhance the course over the summer months. From aeration of the course, refilling and shaping the sand traps, making sure the greens play as intended, to cutting back the rough and overhanging foliage, the improvements and upgrades are designed to ensure that every player can fully enjoy their experience on the course.

Manager, Horace Garrison, has taken the suggestions of players and the original designs of the course into consideration when planning for these upgrades. "I want to make sure the course remains challenging for long time players while still being forgiving enough that new golfers can enjoy the course and succeed." Now that the redesign of the Tee Top Cafe and the upgrades to the course are completed, the staff at Carolina Lakes will focus on exciting programming in 2020. Keep watching the Carolina Lakes Golf Facebook page for more events.
