'Jagged Little Pill' by Alanis Morissette Heads to Broadway

"You Oughta Know" Alanis Morissette is coming to Broadway. The singer-songwriter has allowed songs from her 1995 breakthrough album "Jagged Little Pill" to be used in a new musical and producers plan to land it on Broadway this fall. "You Oughta Know" was a song on that Grammy-winning album. It's directed by Diane Paulus and has an original story by Diablo Cody, who wrote "Juno."

Belushi Churns Out On-the-Spot Comedy at The Sharon

By KRISTEN FIORE | Daily Sun Senior Staff Writer

A date in a morgue, a golf cart crashing through the wall of a bar and an egotistical gallivanting gladiator were just some of the things to happen onstage Tuesday at The Sharon L. Morse Performing Arts Center.

Actors Jim Belushi, Megan Grano, Joshua Funk and pianist Trey Stone, all alumni of The Second City comedy club in Chicago, put on a hilarious improvisation show that included on-the-spot music, charades and ridiculous scenes.

Belushi did a bit of stand-up at the beginning of the show, teasing audience members and joking about everything from his family and The Villages to genies and heaven.

"I'm not really a stand-up comedian, as you can tell," Belushi said. "I'm just making this up as I go."

Amazon Picks Up CIA Torture Investigation Film 'The Report'

Vice Studios has announced that Amazon Studios has acquired the worldwide rights to the CIA torture investigation film "The Report." Vice produced the film and made the announcement Monday following an all-night bidding war for the buzzy political film. "The Report" stars Adam Driver as senate staffer Daniel Jones, who investigates the CIA's detention and interrogation program.

When Grano and Funk joined him, they went straight into a scene held at a morgue, at the audience's suggestion.

The show was almost entirely based on audience suggestions and references from audience members. Belushi joked with at the beginning of the show.

The audience suggested movie genres, characters and lines, and Stone expertly added to the experience with piano music that went with the mood of each scene.

In one scene, Belushi, playing a 75-year-old student, urged his professor, played by Funk, to let him graduate.

In another, all three actors pretended to be Italian tenors.

They interviewed three audience members and then made up an opera song about each person on the fly.

For another, Funk took suggestions from audience members on famous lines from movies, song lyrics, things written on bumper stickers and things they recently said or heard someone say.

Stone wrote down what the audience called out on slips of paper and then scattered them around the stage.

Belushi and Grano then came out to do the scene, during which they picked up the slips of paper and delivered what was written on them as lines.

Jere and Karen Krallinger, of the Village of Ashland, said they thought the show was very funny.

"I liked how they went after certain people in the audience and played on their names later on in the show," Jere said.

Kate Thoresen, of the Village of Belvedere, raved about Grano.

"We loved it, especially Megan Grano," Thoresen said. "We just thought she had so much life and vitality. And all of the quick thinking — wow! It was fun to hear all of the different audience feedback."
