Emmy Rossum
Announces She Will Be Leaving 'Shameless'

The Gallagher family of "Shameless" is losing one of its most beloved members. Emmy Rossum will be leaving her role in the veteran Showtime series. The actress, who stars as Fiona Gallagher, the oldest of six children in the dysfunctional Gallagher clan, broke the news via an emotional Facebook post Thursday. Rossum will leave the show after season 9, but the show will go on without her. — The Associated Press

Girardeau, Missouri, where she worked as the vocal director and artist in residency at the Conservatory of Theatre and Dance at Southeast Missouri State University.

Farris recently moved to the Village of Hillsborough and is now ready to continue her work in The Villages.

She has been giving private vocal lessons, but she hopes the upcoming master class will really help kick things off.

"I want to help everyone, whether they sing or not, to learn how to keep their voices young and healthy forever," Farris said.

In the class, Farris will give a lecture about the voice, how it works and how to activate it and keep it healthy with proper breathing.

Students of all levels are welcome to take the class. Students also can choose whether or not they want to participate.

Those who participate will each get a chance to work one-on-one with Farris by singing in front of the class and getting tips and critiques from Farris. Those observing will be able to learn from the critiques.

"How to sing well will become clearer," Farris said. "I hope it will be inspiring to do more singing and to have a great appreciation of this gift, no matter what its abilities. The gift is there. You didn't have to go down to the music store and buy one."

Farris said she wants everyone to feel comfortable singing, preferably in front of others, so that they can share the gift.

"Perfection does not exist," Farris said. "You should be on the quest of learning."

It's not about perfection, but skills, Farris said.

Farris still has some room for more private lessons, so students who are inspired by the master class can continue learning.

Taking voice lessons is something that you can do for yourself, and Farris encourages people to take the opportunity to strengthen their craft.

The class will be held from 2 p.m. to 5 p.m. on Oct. 9 at The Sharon.

Tickets for the class, which are $45 for students who participate and $20 for students who observe, can be purchased online at thevillagesentertainment.com or at any Villages Box Office location.

Participants should have a song prepared with sheet music in the appropriate key.
